(D) He is only quoted in a Work of St Epiphanius] Nay the very Text must be corrected if that Quotation be found in it (g) Ti 'y ο Διαδολ Φαξίαι, πνεύμα περι την υλην έχον μεθαίπερ ελέλη, δ Αθηιαγορα, γενόμενον από τε θευ Quidnam esseum is the state of the property of the property of the same and the correspondent of the property of the same and the correspondent of the correspondent of the same and the correspondent of videlicet qui circa materiam versatur, quemadmodum dictum est, 6 Athenagora, a Deo procreatum This is what the Editions of Epiphanius contain, and according to this it must be said, that the Business there concerns another Athen ogeras, who had been Interlocutor, in the Dialogue of which Epiphanius gives some Lxtracts Now it is a Dialogue compos'd by Methodius against Origen, and in which Methodius is one of the Interlocutors But the Criticks (b) have very justly conjectured, that inflead of & Admiray bea, it ought to be read to Adnvayoga, ab Athenagora

(h)Paulus I copaidus, l 19 emendat c 9 Petavius in Epiphan ad Haref 64 11 21 pig 265'

(1) Athenag p m rid Petii ubi tupra p , 18

(1) Athenig p 298

V" Letiticus, c 21 V 1,

(E) He was not thoroughly purg'd from Heterodox O-pinions] He admits two forts of bad Angels, (1) the one comprehends those whom God created, and who acquitted themselves ill of the Commisfion which they had receiv'd to govern Matter, and to preside over the Production of forms, the other comprehends those which they begat by the carnal Conversation which they had with Women I say it comprehends the Souls of Giants who were begot by that Copulation Suffridus Petri observes, that Athenagoras supports his Hy-potheses by two misunderstood Passages of the que na us est ita maneat, aut unes nuptus contentus ft seunde enim speciolum sunt adulterium Quisquis enim (inquit) dimiterit uvorem suam, & duxent chim (inquit) dimiterit unorem Iuam, & duxeiit altim, adulterium committit neque dimitere since cam, ci jur ung nitatem delibaris, neque alteram enere. Nim qui seiplum priori unore privat, etiamse es moitua sit, adulter est clancularius, cum primum. Di manum transpediatui (quoniam ab iritio Deus nuum vinum creavit & muliciem unam). You see he imposes the time I aw on all Men which God Almighty (m) impos d on the chief Priest alone, if they will mail v he would have it to be only if they will marry he would have it to be only with a Maid. He is not contented that they be Virgins, he would also have them choose none but Virgins for their Wives. This is erring in the Consequence, for it second Mairiages were a Batchelor who should marry a Widow would be Criminal, and commit a new Crime every time he should acquir himself of the Mittimonial I unctions He would cause his Wife to Sin now according to the Rules of Morality, wholover causes others to Sin, fins himfelf The same may be said of a Maid who should marry a Widower I don't know, says Mr de Tillement (n), (1) Whether the Expression which Athenogoras makes ule of concerning the Prophets at a tim, whin the Extasies of Montanus began to trouble the Church, may not give ground to suspect that he was ingag'd in that Party (2) Neverthele's neither Scultetus, nor Mr du Pin have observ'd that Place to be liable tus, nor Mr du Pin bave objerv d that Place to be liable to a bad Senfe I do not find that there is the least Reason to suspect him of Manufactus on this Foot, how many Orthodox present that the ancient Prophets were wrap'd up and statie, and that their Tongues or their Pens water the Instrument of the Holy Ghost? What then could they find of the Holy Ghost? What then could they find amis in these words of Athenageras, (o) Nouse with the court words of Athenageras, (o) Nouse with the court words of the court with the court mentis abreptionem, Spiritu divino ipsos movente, qua acceperunt, elocuti funt, cum & Spiritus codem modo per ipso operaretur, que tibicen instat pstulam. It is true, that the comparison of the Holy Ghost with a Player on the Flute, is mean, but the Substance of the thing is right

What I have said of the I aw that was prescribed Resteto the High Priest of the Jews, suggests a chion on jecture to me which I shall hazzard in the Resteto the Jewssa The Primitive Christians who declar'd so strategy High The Primitive Christians who declar'd so strainly against second Marriages, were perhaps ingaged in that Opinion from this Consideration, that there must be more perfectness under the Evangelical, than under the Melaik Law, so that Lay Christians are obliged to observe all the strictest Regularity that was in use among the Ecclesiasticks of the Synagogue In effect it seems, that in some respects (p) all Christians are appointed to the Priesshood If the set was thought sit to forbid the High Priess of the Jewisto marry a Widow, to the end that That Prohibition might make him remember the special Engagement he was under to Purity, may it not be supposed that all Christians Purity, may it not be supposed that all Christians ought to be laid under the same Yoak? It may be they reason d thus It may be too, that the Original Design of that moral Severity, was wholly to take away the Abuse of that kind of Polygamy which Divorces made frequent in the World Scoffers would be more than ridiculous, should they think of carping at the Law which was pre-ferib d to the High Priest He ought to have been subjected to some builthensome Law, say they, but on the contrary he was enjo n'd Delicacy, and the not taking up with a Dish twice heated Others may take the Leavings of others. He only is taught to be nice, and of a more liquors heaten. be nice, and of a more liquorish Palate Insi-pid poor Rallery, for it is in reality a Slaving, not to have the liberty of marrying where we peafe, and how many tensual Persons in a full liberty of Choice would prefer a Widow before any other But besides is it not meer Blinds Miftreis? But besides is it not meer Blindarding to see the Wisson of the Law giver in this hibition? Depos that Law sold sewarn the least Pontif to about more than others from the least Appearants of fregularity? For if a Woman ceas'd to be worthy of him, the moment she less aspring to the rupieme Degree of Pertession and Honour to which she might have attain d by preferring a chast Widdowhood before a secon'd Marriage, if the only want of that heighten'd Vertue, if I say, the only want of that Virtue, which is not so much a real Vice as the simple Privation of a distinguish d Merit, was sufficient Miffreis? Privation of a distinguish d Merit, was sufficient to make her unworthy to marry with the High Priest, was this not a Proof that God requir'd a more particular Abstinence of him from all Approaches of Impurity, and a peculiar Regard to a most exact Conduct? Read these Words of a great Man (a) Quin & illa ad declarandam in-

(x) Tiffe4 mont ubi fupra, p 759

(1)Athng leg pod

(2) Scult. P 52 du Pin to 1 P 175

(0) Atl nag pa

Priest's not being allow d to marry unless with a Virgin

(p) See the Epistle of St Peter, C. 2 V 5

(a) Etafmus in Ecclesiafte, 1 1 p. m.

lignem.

forgot (F) some Editions 1 still mention a Romance (G) which appear d under 4 this is ne of Athenageras If I could have consulted the Differtation 1 which father the 3d of le woursy publish'd, I should without doubt have borrow'd some good Materials the de le woursy publish'd, I should without doubt have borrow'd some good Materials the de le woursy publish'd, I should without doubt have borrow'd some good Materials the de le woursy publish'd, I should without doubt have borrow'd some good Materials the description of the least state of the from it for this Article, but his Work is not yet * con- to our Hands, tho' it was printed in the Year 1697 I have feen some account of it in the Journal de Scavans, and in the afta Eruditorum of Leipfick

ATHENÆUM (A), was a publick Edifice in Rome, built by the Emp for

(b) See Duaren de Sacris Ecclef Minist ac benefic 11b 4 c 8 p m 386

(r) Id 1b 387

(d) For Ju-ly 1684 art 6 p 517

(c) See the first Tome of bis Nouvelle Bibhotheque, Printed in 1686

thu the baving that Paris

(g) Du Verd cr Vau-Privas Biblioth Franc P 533

(b) Id ib p 87, 88

(1) He who bas morote A continuation of Paulus Emilius en Latin

(k) Takin from Dr Cave, Hifton literar de fcriptor Lcclet ₽ 49

(I) Huer de l'origin ne des Romans, pm 4-& fcq of Section 1 Lastion bas Theogenes, and ithead of Pherecides. it bas Phencysignem vite mundiciem pertinent, quod si quis de stripe Aaron teneatur profluvio Sanguinis, vetatur ad Sacerdotis mensam accedere sacrisque vesci panibus item quod quicunque vicio maculave corporis essent diformati, submoventur a sacris ministeriis rursus quod ipse pontifex jubetur virginem sua gentis ducere, a vidua, repudiata, ac profittuta abstincre Non statim quod plebi licet, licet & sacerdeti multitudini multa conceduntur, a sacerdote Summa requiritur puritas in omni vita portione The same Spirit reign'd in the Christian Discipline, even at the time when married Persons were not excluded from the Priesthood (b), for it excluded those who had had two Wives successively, or who had married a Widow, or had been dishonour d by the Adultery of their Wives, and if that dis-honour happen'd to them in their Clericature, they were oblig'd either to repair it by a Divorce, or abdicate their Character (c) Verba synodi Niocafar ca 8 bec sunt si cujus unorem adultes sum commifisse, cum esset laicus, evidenter feerit probatum, hic ad ministerium ecclesiasticum admitti non potist. Quod fi in clericatu eo jam constituto adulter avit, dato repudio dimittere cam debet fi v 10 retinere egus confortium w lit, non potest suscepto ministerio perfrui ca si cujus, 34 distin See Mr Moreris Distertation, or the 34 distin See Mr Moreis Differention, or the Abstract that was given of it in the News (d) of the Republick of Learning

Mr du Pin has forgot some Editions] His List ample, (e) but not very well printed in the Button (f) of Amsterdam This breeds a confu-Easton (f) of Amsterdam This breeds a confu-tion in the Mind He has not noted the Ldition of Oxford, nor that of Leipsick I he first appear d in the Year 1682, in 12 by the Care of Dr Fell Bishop of Oxford, and the latter in the Year 1684, in 8 by the (are of Adam Rechenb rg They are both of em in Greek and Latin, with Notes Neither hath he mention d the Commentary of Mr Kert to the Treatile of Methonagorus That Pere was printed at Kiel mathe Year 1675, in Folio, and was inferted with Additions in the I dition of Justin Mariyr of Athenagoras, &c at Lispsick, in 1686 Note, that Guy Gaussart, Prior of St Toz, at Coulomniers, gave a French Translation of the Apology of Athenagoras, and Joyn d the Annotations of Sufficial Petri to it. This was printed at Paris in 8 in the Year 1574 Du Verdier Vau Pitous (g) who informs me of this, makes mention (h) of a Irench Translation of two Writings of Athenagoras, compos d by Arnaued du (1) Ferron, but does not note when or where they were prin-

(G) A Romance that appear d under the Name of Athenagoras J According to Dr Cave, we have only deen the French I ranslation of it as yet, which was printed at Paris by Daniel Guillemoi in the Law and perfect I ove, written in Greek by Athenagoras, an Anthenian Philosopher, containing the chast Loves of Theogonus and Charlet, of Phenecides and Melangenia. Mart n Emme I ord of Chille, we have not find Transform, and tent it to The Law and the Transform of the Cardinal of Armagnae, Secretary which is a the Year 1612 (k) Contain the Philosopher is the true Author of the Huet (l) who speaks amply of that Book, and who supposes that Philander is the true Author of it. He informs us, that That Funde boasted that he had got the Greek Original by the means of Lamane, Protonotary of the Cardinal of Armagnae.

Note, that the Edition mention'd by Dr Cave, and which he had seen in the Library of Mi Vosand which he had seen in the Library of 1811 reg-fius, is not the fish. I have one that is of Paris, by Michel Somius 1899, in 12°. The Title differs almost (m) in nothing from that which we have seen above. The Preface is of Bernard of Sar-jorry, and dated from (aftre: the first of Ottober 1596 informs us, that San jorry being almost Sevans, had found a Copy of that Work among his Papers which he had caused to be writt n from that which had been fint to Mi de Lamine, and which he difu a Monfour de I onbouzart, who was a voing to court about some Affairs of his own, to do him the kindness to chare bimself with and take the trouvle of communication. and take the trouvle of communicating it to Some Printer as he past through Paris

(A) Atheneum This Name come from Minerva, in Greek Adnus The Goddets of ingenious Arts and Sciences It was thought fit that an I difice made in fivour of the Lenned frould bear the Name of that Goddess Some have be liev d that it was a Temple conficuated to her but Aurelius Vistor does not give us that Iden of it speaking of the Imperor Advian, he figs (n) do-Elorifque curare occapit, adeo qued m ut ctiam le dum ingenuarum artium quod 4then cum esecant, confle ceret. Other Historians, who speak of this I diffice, represent it only as a Place for I estures and Declamations Ad Atheneum audiendorum er (a corren C latinorum rhetorum vel poetarum cauffi frequen o process t, Lampidius says this of Alexander Sew real This Passage is quoted in Cilepin a little after his ving faid that Athenaum was confectated to Minerva, and that the Poets and other Crick Winters, brought their Works thither, as the Latin Wilters brought theirs into the Temple of Apollo Judge by this of the exactness of those who composed or corrected this giest Dictionary Giuqui u (a) makes use of the same Division, he sends the I a Ciuquis (o) tin Poets to the Temple of Apollo, and the Greek into the Temple of Minerva, which he calls Athenaur But let us fee what the Ancients have find of the Place in question, (um Portinar (p) co d c processionem quam and Atheneum part of the as-direct Poetam, ob sace sient prasaguum dissulter. Another thys (g) that Gordian the Emperor had de-claimed in the Athenaum, uli adolevit, in Ati neo controversias declamavit Philostratus fiys, that the Sophist Adiian, who was in great I steem at Rome, had no tooner declard that he would make a Speech, but the Senators, Knights, and every bo dy (1) flock d to the Atlinaum Ict is add these words of St ferome, Quando omno 1110 neist Scholasticosum vocibus o rsos is (1) and those of Sidonius Apollinaris (t) Dignis omnino quem privistic Sidenius Apollinaris (t) Dignovimina que en pitantis libus Roma soveret ulnis, quoque rectan e er pitantis Achines subsellie cunea a quaticentur. The I tymology that Dion gives us, is a new Reason eganft their who have taken the A b neum for a Temple of Minerva, he fays (v), that the Place was call d to because of the I vercises of the learned Men 270 this evalue to the remaissuper we arenowe. He informs us illo, that when the Conful knew that the Pretorian Cohoits had stop d the Murtherers of Pitings he affembled the Senate in the Atl engum The Objection which might be drawn from hence, that the Senate never mer but in Places confected by the Juguis, does now by ballance the Reasons which shew that the Athinaum was not a Temple of Pallier Mean time they (a) who pretend that the sirst Place that was call d Athinaum was a Building in Athers will have much a naum was a Building in Athens will have much a do to prove it Good Mr de Marolle had a very wrong Idea of that word, for in his I ranslation of Aurelius Victor he faid, that Adrian impited lear-ned Vien from all Parts, as if he intended to place Athens in Rome

I shall observe occasionally that in the City of Athens the Rhetoricians and Calimmarians met in the Temple of the Muics upon Trials of Skill 'Aπαγει παρό το τεμει & τῶν Μετῶν ένθα ποιη Ταὶ μρηπορες κὶ τῶν γενιμα Ιιςων οι ποῖδες φοίλων-τες, ποιεντοι τας ετίδει Αδαιεί αλ Μιζανιπ templum quò potta, Rh tot, Grammatici vintitan-tes, prebint suoum ingenionum specimina. Thus speaks in Author of the VIth Century of the practice in his time, I mean Zach ir; of Mitylane in ed 169

Tome of his Appuistus ad Bi-bliothecam maxi mam Veterum Patrum I write this in A-Jul 1699 + Of the 1,th of May, 1697 P m 31 11 Of Decembre 1698 þ

(n) Aurelius Vifor in Hadrimo

(0 I 1110-111 SIE 1 / 1 1

(p) Juliue Cipitolin in Pertin

(q Cipitolm in Gordin

(1 Despos EXWGRN & TU Alli-171 0 00 Contento curfu & fludio inflamm ito in Athenyum convolabant Iri-10/1 71 A dri no

> obitu Paulinz ad Punmich

(1) Epist 14 l 9 Vide etiam cpift 9 cjuid epift 5

(~)Xiphi= lin in Didio Juliawhere Xy-Innder translates *Adnvasco by templum Minerva

ATHENÆU'M.

LI rontonis platani convulfaque marmora clamant, Semper & alliudo ruptæ lectore columna y Stella, in Martial epig 614 Titinnius Capito. in Pliny, 1 8 epist 12 Quadratus, in Arian, Epict 13 See the Remark A See the Remark A † Salmai in Tiebell Polhon de triginta on Athemaus

(b) Catub

Comment in

Captitol

vit Per-tyrannis

1. Su the

Priface of

Citubon

(c) Vostius de imitat p 36

tın

(d) Savar in Sidon Apoll ep

(c) Horat Sat ult

(f) Lipf epift 48 centur ad Belg

(e) \ee Voffius de imitat p 61

(1)Juven Sit 7

WHII-IHIR the Poets repeated in third House Liters of Jest as

(1) Juven abid Adrian (B) to serve the Professors in Arts and Sciences, for an Auditory, and for those who would read their Books in the presence of aigreat many People. It appears from the beginning of Juvenal's Satyrs, that this sort of Lectures were very frequent, and that Frento B lent his House and Gardens to those Poets who had a mind to acpeat their Verses before a numerous Audience. Others y were also willing that their Houses might serve for the same use, but they often put the Poets to (C) great Chaiges, for he that was to read his Work, was to surnish the Room, and pay for the use of the Chairs. It is very probable that the Emperor Adrian, who low'd and understood Sciences, caus'd the Athaneum to be built to save Authors this charge. And it is not to be doubted but this Place serv'd also for sa Colledge, for they did not only recite their own Works, but read Lectures there also. I find likewise that the Senate * sometimes met there. The Name of the Place was afterwards given to all manner of Colleges design'd for the explaining of Sciences and Languages, for they are call'd in Latin Athenaa. Some are also of Opinion 1, that Libraries have been call'd Athenica.

AMHENÆUS, a Greek Grammarian, born at Naucratus in Ægype Flourish'd in (AD) the Illd Century He was one of the most learned Men of his Time, he had read so much, and remember'd so many Things, that he might justly have been call'd the his Book di mundi opificio See the 339th Page of the eleventh Volume of the Bibliotheca Patrum, printed at Paris in the Year 1644

(B) Built by the Emperor Adrian This I have proved by the Passage of Aurelius Victor, Casaubon (b) has also very good Reason to laugh at Theodorus Marsilius, whom he treats hard enough without naming him. This Author spends a great many Words in his Commentary on Persius, to prove that the Atheneum, and the Temple of Apollo Palatinus were the same thing. Vossius (c) has trump dup the same Fault against him, and gives him Father Raderus for an Accomplice on the 70th Epigram of the 10th Book of Martial. He might also have given him Saduaron (d) for an Accomplice, who by these words of Horace (e) Hac ego ludo, Qua nec in ade source contains judice Farps, understands that he would not have his Verses heard in the Atheneum. He gives that Interpretation as the very Words of an ancient Scholiast. Lipsus (f) makes use of the same Authority, tho he contesses where he accent and the Passage of Aurelius Victor, he would not have (g) preter d the Interpretation of the first of their Scholiasts, before that of the latter. See the Article Farps in its place.

(c) so great Charges] The Author of the Dialogue de causes corrupt a eloquentia is my warrant where he frys, Domum mutuatur, & auditorium exstruit, & subscelle conducit, ut beatissimus recitationem esus eventus consequatur Juvenal will come in for a second Witness, where he threatens the Poets with the vexation of not finding any Lord that will re imburie them for the Expences which they have been at

Nemo (h) dabit regum quanti subsellia constent, Et qua conducto pendent anabathra tigillo, Queque reportando posta est orchestra cathedris

I would not deny but they sometimes repeated in an hired House, but cannot forbear saying, that I office maintains it without any ground, seeing the Witnesses he illedges mean nothing lets than what he pierends. The first Passage which he quotes is that of the Dialogue de causis corruptae cisquentiae where we have just seen donum mucuatur, which signifies a borrow'd and not an hired House. The second is of Juvenal, and consists in these words,

(1) (um jam celebres notique Poetæ Balnco'im Gabits, Romæ conducere fuinos Lu aren

Which denotes only the curfed Barrenness of the Irade which had almost forc'd the Poets to make Bunkrupt to the Muses, and to get their Living by some mechanick Imploy, as one may say, that of a Bath keeper, of a Baker, or of a Cryer The thorough Testimony is taken from these words of the same Javanal,

Ipse (k) facit versus, atque uni cedit Homero Propter mille annos, & si dnicedine famæ Succensus recites, Maculonis commodae ades

(k)Juven. Sat 7

It is plain, that it's neither faid in this, nor in the foregoing Passage, that the Poets hired the Chamber where they recited their Verses, so that it is not to be imagin'd how such mistakes could escape the sight of the learned Possas. Observe, that they are found in a Book that was printed in (1) the Author's Life time, the Title whereof is, De imitatione cum Oratoria tum pracipue postica, deque recitatione victorium. This latter Subject has been amply treated by Cresollius in his Theater of the ancient Sophists

(AD) Athenaus—floursh'd in the IIId Century] Mr le Feure (m) has censur'd Helvicus, who in quoting Suidas places Athenaus in the Reign of Antoninus Pius These are two Faults, for Suidas makes him flourish under Marcus Aurelius, and does not deserve to be follow'd in this, seeing Oppian who dedicated a Poem to the Emperor (n. Cara alla, dy'd before Athenaus Helvisus ought not then to have plac'd Oppian fifty Years after him Mr le Feure takes him up for this fault, and maintains that Atheneus liv'd at the same time with Herodian, who finish'd his History in the Year 238 It is certain, that Atheneus places himself after him in point of Time, for in speaking of several Authors who had written of Fishing, he says (0) Καὶ τὸν ὁλίγφ πρὸ μμῶν γενόμενον Οππιανὸν τὸν Κίλικα, & qui paulo ante nos υικιτ Ορριανίμη Gilcem Without doubt it will be objected he elsewhere says (p), that he knew the Poet Pancrares, who received some Presents from Emperot Adrian But that forms no great Difficulty, it is sufficient to suppose, that this Pancrates was respond to the proof, that this Pancrates was very young at that time, that he lived eight. Years, and that he dy'd before Athenaus attain to the twentieth Year of his Age, by this you will find nothing to hinder but that the latter might live unto the Empire of Gordianus. If Mide Tillement, and remember d the Greek Passage of Athenaus which I have quoted, the Age which he ought to have given that Writer would have appear'd more surprizing to him, for (q) he supposes him very aged by imagining only that his poles him very aged by imagining only that his Work was writ after the Death of Commodus, and the Reason which he gives for it is, that Athenaus had known the Poet Pancrates, famous in the had known the Poet Pancrates, famous in the Days of Adrian He does not disprove Suidas who placed him under Marcus Aerelius Yet he ought to have disproved him in consequence of the Greek Passage above mention d tell me that it is not Athenaus who boafts of having known the Poet Pancrates, but that they are the words of Callinenus the Rhodian which he had quoted a little before. This Supposition

(1) At Amfterdam 1647 with the Inflituti-

(m) Tanaq Faber epift 63 l 1 p 211, 212

ones poe-

(n) Who was kill'd in 217

(o) Athen 1 1 p 13

(p) Id lib 15 p 675

(q) Tillemont, Hist des Lmper to 2 p m 809 of the Greeks Of all the (A) Works which he composid, there's preto us only that which is intitul'd the Dieprojophists *, that is to say, the Sophists at , in which he introduces a certain number of learned Men of all Professions, who Libriz course of various Things at the Table of a Roman Citizen call'd Larensius There's mer/s 4 valt Variety of Pacts and Citations in that Work of Arbenness, which makes the ading of it very pleasant to those who have Skill enough to love Antiquity with a pre-property that is not blind. But it's not to be doubted that the learned Men who were rumlibiant to those who have that is not blind. ntemporary with the Author, judg'd less advantagiously of his Work than we do in quindential Albanaus set down, wherefore they considered it by a wrong View, and as a meer Heap and Compilation of Collections. But for our parts who can consult only a very few of the Authors alledged by Atheneus, and can find no where but in his Book several particular Curiosities mention'd by him, we look upon his Compilation as a very precious Treasure, we consider it on the best side, and transfer to the Author all the Esteem we have for the Rarities recorded by him, which are indeed become such, only because the Books out of which he took them are all lost. For this same Reason such a Compiler whom our Age might not esteem in the least, would be idmir'd a thousand Years hence, if fisch Revolutions should happen an the Republick of Leanning, as those which destroy'd most part of the ancient Greek and Roman Authors We cannot answer that such a Fate shall never happen again, let us therefore not blame those was compile, they labour perhaps more ulefully for future Ages, than the Authors borrow nothing from their Neighbours. We find divers Touches of Slander, Frigments of scandalous Reports, and several obscene Stories in the Dippeolophilis of our Author We have no Book that has been work treated (B) by Dankinbers than Athenaus, all the Editions (C) we have of it are very imperfect Some Body had (D)

ACITION Cooray

(r) Casau in Athen p. 958 (f) to AXEEU-Sei at In fuis libris de A texandria Ap 676

(a) Athen lib s p 211.

(b) Vost Gr p 232

(c)Athen l 4 c 13 in fine

(d) Ante omnes alios(nam de Sanga Romano vereoi ut credendum sit Paulo Jovio, Latimen fecit Athenæum Casasbon praf unim in Athen Quamvis rumor ipargeregam patritium Romameter VI-Tom, or miæ do-Arını id præstitil-Se Dalechamp ep st dedi

Calledbon

what place

Vious faid be pici-

Paul Jo-

won't pass, Casaubon (r) perceiv'd very plainly, that Callixenus s words are wanting in the Book of Atheneus, but he has omitted a very strong Reason Atheneus, but he has omitted a very strong Reason for his Conjecture, which is, that the Passage in question begins thus, Seeing I have mention a the City of Alexandria Now Callixenus would never have these words in a (f) Work concerning that very Lity It is therefore Atheneus who makes that Phrise, after having let down what he had horsow A from Calliverus. he had borrow d from Callixenus

(A) Of all the Works which he composed] He writtone of the Kings of Syria, as himself informs us (a) I offices (b) afcribes to him another Book about illustrious Persons, and those Generals of Armies who had fought Dueis He grounds his Opinion on these words of the Fourth Book (c) Oli d'à η οι ενδοξοι η οι ήγεμενες εμουρμάχεν η επ περκλησεως τετ εποίκν ον άλλοις ειξήκημεν Illustres quidem viros & exercituum duces provocatos singular cei amen non detrest sse alibi deximus. That Subject would be very proper for a particular Treatrie, but it might also be infeited as an Epifod in another Work, and chiefly by in Author who has run so much Ground in a little time as Ath ne is, and who lov'd Rhapfody as well as he Therefore Vossus's Opinion is not very certain

(B) P n wor se treated by Transcribers thin Athenaus] The Omissions, I ranspositions, and falle Readings are numberless. These are Taults that may be imputed to the Pranscribers, but the loss may be impured to the Transcribers, but the loss of part of the Work is not so much to be laid to their tharge. The two first Bools the beginning that third, and most put of the last are wanting. To make up this loss as well as was possible, they have printed the Abridgment of that was lost with what was lost with which was lost with the last that which was lost was lost with the lost of the whole was lost which was lost with the lost of the whole was lost which was lost with the lost of the whole was lost which was lost with the lost of the whole was lost which was lost with the lost of the whole was lost which was lost with the lost of the nur niving in a no good Minuscripts, and not being very exact in correcting it, a great number of I sults have past in the Work. The Ldition of Basil, which tollow d next in the Year 1535, by the case of James Bedrot, and Christian Herlinus was little better. Natalis Comes ventured to transwas little better Natalis Comes venture to translate Athenous into Latin His Learning is very well known It appears by his Mythology that had read and ftudied much, but is he wis ignorant in Criticism, it is certain that his Translation is most wretched It is the first (a) that was publish'd Dalechamp, a famous Physician, gave a fecond which exceeds that of Awahis Comes, and might have been much better than it is, if the Awthor laid not had to much Practice. But as he Assumer and not need to much fractice. But as he manded has Protession, and bestowed only his spare Hours on Assumeus, he has not done all that might be expected from hum, tho' for near tharty Years he confectured all his letture Time that way (e) And thus it has remain'd ever time that way (e) And thus it has remain'd ever time that had not be other, with the Volume of and the Lastin on the other, with the Volume of Contacham's Assumentation of the lastin of Cafaibon's Americations is the best Aibenaiss extent The Abbot of Marolles has translated that Greek Author into Greek I do not question but he tollow'd the Latin translation as his only Model, and that he has commetted many Faults & only know that Work by the Journal of the (f) learned It is in 4, and was printed at Paris in the Year 1880 R is the first French Translation from the Original, and the last Composition of the Translation of the Translation of the Prince I have heard the that it sold so well, that it is very starce at the Bookkellers, and is at an excessive Price As to what his been stude concerning a Franslation by Smea, see the Margent of the first Collumn of this Page

D) Some Body had made an Abriedin ne of that Work | Casabon (g) contesses ingenuously, that That Abbieviator is unknown to him, and that he can neither tell his Name nor Country, nor the Age in which he liv'd (1) However he places him above five Hundred Years before himfult, and he is very certain that he must be placed before Enstarbins, because Enstarbins made use upon several occasions of the Abrigdment of Albeneus, preferring it before the Original which led him into (1) fome I anks Calaubon funces, that this Abbreviator was a Comminarian, who undertook the time thing on Atheneus is Hermolans had undertaken on the Work of Steplanus Pyzantinus, in fome parts of which he deterved to be piaced for his Learning and in others to be blam d for his want of Lxactness (k) Athenous Minuscripts (k) Ibid were very much corrupted even when this A- p 3 bridgment was made, which is provid by two (1)
Reasons There appear divers Corruptions in the Abridgment not unlike those in the Manuscripts And the Abreviator confesses, that he passes over feveral things because they have been tillify de Casaubon (m) had the Manuferpt of the Abridgment which David Hosen liur sent him. There wanted the first Book and part of the second, so that they had retrenched it the beginning almost all that had been inserted in the Edition of Athenieus, to supply what was lost of the Deipno-Sophists.

(i) L prefat Cataub in Arhee næum

(1) Dazo Mai 1680

(r)C isaub Änuma L in Athen

(b) Id in pirefit &c anım dv $p : \alpha$

() Id in præfit

animady

ATHENÆUS. ATTALUS. ATTICUS.

made an Abridgment of that Work Mr Morers (E) could not forbear saying some thing of it, but was grofly mistaken. All that he has said of Athenaus and of two

(F) other Persons of that Name is defective

ATTAIUS, the Name of some Kings of Pergamus Look for Pergamus

ATTICUS, (Titus Pomponius) passes for one of the best Men of ancient Rome He carried himself so uprightly that without deviating from the Rules of an exact Neutrality he preserved (A) the Esteem and Assection of Two contrary Parties The intimate Friendship which he had for Cicero did not hinder his having a very strict Union with Hortensius, and he was the Cause that those Two Rivals in Eloquence not only abstain'd from any thing of mutual Reproach, but even liv'd together (B) in a very good Understanding. He had never

(E) Mr Moreri .. was grossy mistaken] These are his Words, Athenæus writ a Work of the Despnosophists in 15 Books, which Hermolaus of Bizantium abbreviated as Suidas tells us I do not mention his Sin of Omission, it is plain enough that he ought to have told us whether that which is extant is the Work it sells, or only the Abridgment Let us only examine his Sins of Commission I It is false that Hermolaus of Byzantium abridged Athenaus 2 It is salse that Suidas says this 3 It is salse that Suidas mentioned any Abbreviator of the Despnosophists Casaubon at sirst sight appeared to me to be the Cause of this Mistake, I mean the most innocent Cause, for who would ever have thought that any body would stumble at these Words? (n) Putem confessam Constantinopolis ance annos quingentos & amplius Etam Constantinopoli ante annos quingentos & amplius hanc epitomen ab aliquo Grammatico, qualis fuit Hermolaus Byzantsus auttor corum Excerptorum qua hodie pro 'Edvinov Stephani libris in doctorum manibus ver-But afterwards I found that it was Charles Sciphens had deceiv d Mr Morers I think Volaterran is the first who fally imputed to Suidas the having said that Hermolaus of Byzantium had abridg'd Athenaus This Fault of Volaterran was taken Atheneus This Fault of Volaterran was notice of in the Edition of Atheneus of the Year 1535, as may be feen without confulting that Edition, if one casts but an Eye on Gesner's Library How easie soever it was to have avoided brary How easie soever it was to have avoided the same I suit since Gesner noted it, yet it is certain that Charles Stephens, Lloyd and Hosman fell fli into it, and what is worse, affirm, that we have no other Athenau (a) but the Abridgment of Hirmolaus of Byzantium

(I) Of two other Persons of that Name] These are Athenaus the Historian, and Athenaus the Philosotopher Mr Morers lets forth that the first Achenaus writ the History of Semiramis, and that this History is to be found in the Second Book of Disdorus Siculus, and that Mures transcrib d it without citing the Author One must be very heedless not to perceive that these Words contain I know not how many Contradictions Does an Histoman croud into a small Corner of his Work all that another Historian has writ on a long Reign, fruitful in Lvents? Cou d fuch a Critick as Muner edge the whole Life of Semiramis into one of his (b) short Chapters This is abfurd He ought then to have express d himself in this, or some such like manner, Diodorus Siculus reports an Action of Semramu, and quotes an Author whose Name is Athenaus Muret mentions the fame Action without quoting any Body. To conclude from without quoting any Body. To conclude from thence that the same A lengue had composed the History of S maramis, and ought consequently to have a Place a nong the Historians, is going a little too fast According to that Rule Sences would have write the History of almost all great Men, for these are but four of them of a horse has not to the same of the same has not to the same had composed the History of the same had composed the same had com there are but few of them of whom he has not iclited some Action, or memorable Sentence. This I may against Lossius, who at a venture places him whom Diodorus siculus mentions, in the Number of Historians, but he has taken one not to fry poof sem same. As to Atheneus wrote the History of sem same. As to Atheneus the Philosopher its falle that Strabo cited by Mr. Morer, says, that he taught Arifords Philosophy at Rome, that being return d home again, he was accused of having a period to to form a Rombhall and that he was to Delign to form a Republick, and that he was fecured Here's what Strato (c) fays of him A-hineus a Peripartitek Philosopher, a Native of Seleu in Cili ia, had a Share in the Government, and was a Demagogue in his Country for some time Afterwards he became an intimate I riend of Muren, and when M rena's Conspiracy against

Augustus was discover'd he fled with him was taken in his Flight, but the Emperor not finding him guilty, fet him at Liberty Athenaus returned to Rome, and to those he first met with he repeated these Words of Euripides,

I come from the Caverns of Death, and the Gates of nel Ne-Hell One can hardly comprehend the Ground of post in these Fassities of Morers, for it seems more diffi-cult to pervert things in this Manner, than to deliver them as they lye

(A) He preserved the Esteem and Affection of Two (f) Idem Parties] He sent (c) Money to the Son of Mac c 4.

rius who was declared as Lines to the Republish and with reserved to the Republish. lick, and infinuated himfelf fo far into Sylla's vour that that General would always have him near him, and did not take it ill that Assicus excus'd himself from following him to Rome, alledging for his Reasons that he would observe a Neutrality Noli, (f) or te, inquit Pomponius," adversum cosme velle ducere, cum quivus ni contra te arma ferrem, Italiam reliqui. He kept quiet in Rome during the War between Cafar and Pompey, this did not (g) displease Pompey, and it pleas d Cafar exceedingly After the Death of the latter, he sent Money to Brutus when the Party for Liberty began to decline, and did a thousand good Offices to Mark Anthony's Wife and Friends, when that Party seem'd to be runn'd not all Party seem'd not all Party seem'd to be runn'd not all Party seem'd not all p that Party feem'd to be ruin'd past all Recovery

Mark Authory was not ungrateful, for though he extended his cruel Harted against all Cicere's

Friends, yet he writ (b) a very obliging Letter with his own Hand to Atticus He atterwards (i) with his own Hand to Atticus He atterwards (1) promoted the Marringe of Atticus's Daughter with Agrippa the Favourite of Augustus Lastly, notwithstanding the bloody Dissentions that were rais'd between Mark Anthony and Augustus, our Atticus maintain'd himielf in both their Friend-One (k) of them whenever he was upon a Progress, writ punctually to him what he was doing, what he read, and whither he was to go, and when he was at Rome, he writ almost every Day to him for his Advice on some Question, the other (1) gave him confrantly an exact Account of his Affairs Without doubt it was very difficult to preserve the Friendship of I wo such Antagonists at the same time (m) Hot quale fit Antagonists at the same time (m) Hot quase jit facilius existimabit is qui judicare poterit, quanta sit japicntia corum retinere usum benevolentiamque, inter quos maximarum rerum non solum amulatio, sed obtre-tatio tanta intercedibat, quantum fuit incidere necesse inter Casarem atque Antonium, cum se uterque principem non solum urbis Romana, sed orbis terrarum esse cuperet

cupered

(B) Liv'd it a very kied Understanding] They who are sepreble how m ch the Jealouiy of Eloquence influences and stirs up the other Passions, will conclude no mean Idea of the Industry and Merit of a Man who knew how to keep the Peace between the Two most samous Orators of Anti-It was not sufficient that Pomponius Atticus could infinuate himfelt pleasantlyinto People's Affections, they must furthermore observe in him such Qualities as inspir'd a respectful Isteem What I am about to quote is very proper to mark the Character of his Merit (n Utebainr intime ?) Horicofio qui iis temporibus principatum eloquentia tenebat, ut intelligi non posso utcr eum plus diligeret Cicero an Horicosius, & id quod er at dissipilimum, efficiebat ut inter quos tanta laudis effit amu-latio, nulla intercederet obtrettatio, eserque talium viro um copula

"Ηκω νεκεών κευθμώνα κ) σκότε πυλας

pos, in vita, Attici C 2

(e) Cor-

(g) Idem c 7 yet Cicero epift 6 Atticum, Says that Pompey had done Attıcus an ill Turn if h had conquer d

(b) Idem C 10

(1) Idem

(k) To 2018 Augustus C 20

(1) To mi-Mark Anthony

(m) Id 1b

(n) Idem

(c) Stirb lib 14 Pag 461

(n) 1d

pag 3

animady

(a' Opus,

gued ad nos fine

haudouaguam in-pervenit.

Clus epi-tome ib Hermo-lao By-

TANIUM

Zintio

ieli ta

Suid

Author

(b) It the varmum

17th of the 6th Book

lettionum

tegrum

(C | Neither

Hoc ipium vere gloriantem fux,quam extulit annorum 90, cum effet feptem & 60, fe nunquam cum matru in gratiam redirile, nunquam cum forore tuisse ın fimultite quam prope aqualem habebat, quod est fignum aur nullun unquam inter cos quei imonum inaut hunc in fuos indulpentia, ut quos ากการ deberct arafei eis nefis ducciet Id

(p) See the 3d Letter of Cicero ad Quin tum finatiem 1 2 and Fibincius in the Life of Cicero
ad annum uibis 697

(q) The 11th of the 5th
Bool ad
Atticum

(r) Ex

epift 7

I 16 ad
Atticum

(a) In iefterito vices quod a patre acceperat Cornel
Neposib
e 14

Hoc ways behav'd himself generously towards his Friends, and open'd his Purse to them in their Necessities. This he could do, for besides the great Fstates which fell to him (D) by Succession, he found Whys to hy out his Money at a great Advantage. The Troubles which arose at Rome between underimal and sylla's Parties, made him resolve in his Youth to go to Athens where he hiv'd a long time. He made himself so (E) belov'd by the Athens matris suggested at the Day he left their Town was in some Manner a Day of Mourning. He lov'd good Literature extreamly, and had several good Libraries and good Readers belonging to his family. He had (I \times) always something read at his Table even when he treated his Friends. He never troubled his Head to raise himself above the Condition in which he was born, which was that of a Knight. He might have attained to great Offices in the Republick, but still (F) declin'd them, because in the Cornunquant.

(C) Nother with his Mother, nor with his Siffed.] When he was at the Age of 67 Years he lost his Mother, who was 90 Years of Age when she died, and he had a Sister almost as old as himself. He declared at his Mother's I uneral that he never had any need of heavy reconciled to her and that there Mother's I uneral that he never had any need of being reconcil'd to her, and that there had never been any Quarrel between his Sister and he I do not mention this Circumstance of I ime to swell my Book, or rather help to fill up a Sheet of Paper, every one sees its Lisential to this Remark, for it the happy I emper of Atticus appears very singular in this Place, it is chiefly because of the Number of Years which he pass d with his Mother and Sister without the least Broil. Its pity the History did the least Broil I is pity the History did not add how he lived with his Wife IIe does not (o) boast on that Head, and this may create some Suspicion that his Address or Patience could not signalize themselves to much in that respect as towards his Mother and Sister, who penhaps on their side contributed much to the Union, and did not oblige him to make all the Advances. The Matter on this Supposition would lose much to the Supposition would lose much of its Singularity with regird to Atticus, but to take it all rogether it would not lose but rather Gain as to the Point of Singularity. See in the following Remark that Atticus kept lways in fivour with an Unkle whose Humour was so expressions that no Relation could bear it. Let us return to the Relation could bear it Let us return to the Wife of Acricus It is frange that Corn lius Nipos should say neither good not ill of her, and that we nust have recourse to other Authors to know that her Mame was Pilia, and that secus (p) married her in the Year and that A sicus (p) married her in the Year of Kom 6,7, when he was s, Years of Age He had raide no great hafte to mad himlelf in that Waifare It may be inferred from one of (q) Ciciro's Letter the Filia loved her II shaid, for a, for that et her Paffage (r from which some have collected that she had had Thoughts of a Divorce, it is plain that it ought to be read otherways, and that it figuries that the was threatned with the Pally Mi Sarazin affirm, in his I ranslation of the Lite of Pompon us A ricus that the City of Athens had elected Statues to Pilia the Wife of Actions, but it is plain that he made Wife of Action, but it is plain that he made use of a bad Ldition, for you must not read Pilia in Conclus Nepos Actions's Marriage followed his Return from Athensia at too great a distance for the Athensia to think of erecting Statues to his Wife Work Cornclus Nepos have been so heedeless as to spoke to us of the Statues of Pilia without saying who she was? The Family Pilia makes so manner of Ligure in the ancient History of Rome

(D) That fill to him by Succession] Quintus Caestliv., his Unive by the Mother's Side, was a Man of an unsupportable I emper, but Atticus mang'd that perverse Spirit of his so well, that he kept in his I avour to the end without any Interruption, nor did he loose his Labour, for Caestliu made him his Heir, and left him near a M llion of Money And Atricus sown Patrimony was about (a) Two Hundred Thousand Livers Caeilius having adopted his Nephew by Will, he took upon him from that time the Name of Q Caeilius Pomponianus Atricus. Let us see what Cornelius Nepos says of the harsh Humouis of east Unkle (1) Havebar arunculum Q Cae eimequitem Romanum familiarem (c) I Iucul invitem, difficillima natura, cujus su aspenti em veritus est, ut quem nemo serie post his reossimilar quo facto tulit pieta is si etier, concilius enim mori no testamento adop avecinos circles demque feit ex domante. En qua hared acaecepit circiter centies LLS

(E) He made himself so beloved by the (E) He made binjelf 10 beloved b) the Alivenians | He had (d) clus d most of his I flects to be transported thither, and by Loins and Carts, did great Services to the City of Ather. They were not ungrateful, burgive him all manner of publick Howen he actual that the teething a refus'd that of a Cit zen, and thit o electing a Stitue to him, but after his Departure they erected several, and were much troubled it his Departure (1) Quo factum if ut huic omnes honores quos piff ut public hibrat, civeraju nes ronores quos poj ut punti e rib i rt, cevernju facere studeren, quo ven peto tele ute noluit quoa nonnulli interpretantur, am e e ere tatem Rominam, alia adseta ("uam leu adjuit ne quis sibstitua pene eturi sib e, alsens prob bere non intuit liang illus autem i bu Romiti i e Ouem dum fi u i fr m gravit Romam m gravit Romam Ouem dien tio tas Atheusenfium professi a eff defider i fu ure dolorem indicar t 1 l toryin s He spoke the (f) (creek I anguige to perfectly well that one would have taken him for an 4th n m Some believe that the Surname of Aris came from thence Folatersan (g) offirms in as a thing related by Cornelius nipo, but he is mistiken the Abb St. Real (h) observes that Atticus call d himself to because he wis very learned in Greek, and lived most of his Time at Ath us. It had been (represented to him that he ought only to have ful on account of the long Abode which he made at Athen in his Youth, fince its certain that he lived most part of his Life in Italy or Epirus, where he had a good Lstate, as appears by his Life written by Cornelius N pos, and by feveral Passages in Cicio's Letters

(EA) He caused always foncting to be read in the at his Ieble. If he had bept in open Table Biblio free for all who would come to it, that them (ustom of Reading would have been very inconvenient, but he invited none but those of his own Humour (k) Nomo in convivo to ejus aliud acroama audivit quam anaerosticm pag Nique unquam sine aliqua lettione apud cum construm off ut non minus aumo quam quante.

Neque unquam fine attiqua tectione appa cum canatum est, ut non minus animo quam ventre conviva del Harentur, namqu. eos vocabat quorum

mores a fus non abhorrer nt

(I) But fill declind them] Its probably the ftrongest Proof that he gave of his Vertue. There was no attaining to Offices in those Times but by ill Practices, nor could they be exercised according to the Rules of Justice, and for the Good of the Country, without exposing one to the Violence of a great Number of ill Persons Ile choice therefore to live in a private Condition rather than pur-

CorneE CIRT

C IIII

(i) II
(i) II ib.

(ii) Cip 5

(iii) Cip 5

(iii) Cip 5

(iii) Cip 5

(iii) Cip 6

(iii) Cip 7

(

ld Corn, Nepos, c 2

(1) Id c 3 & 4

(f Idem c 4

(g) Volae terr lib 13 p m 666

(h Remarks ou Cices o s Epstlesto Atticus
in the Bibliotheque Universielle, t 2
pag 78

() The

Au | 1 of

Biblio
theque

Univer
felle, ibid.

(k) Cornel Nepos, ubit iupra c

TTICUS.

† Nata est Attico neptis ex Agrippa Cui Virginem filiam collocarat Hinc Cafar vix anniculam Tiber10 Claudio Neroni Drufilla nato pri-vigno fuo delpondit Corn Nepos in vita Attici c 19 + See the R mark C ncho Nepo e, in viriPomponn Attici

(1) Corn-Nepos сар б

(m) Cice. ro in Oratore

(n) Idem in Bruto

(o) Attigit quo-

que pocticen. credimus, ne cjus expers effet fuavitatis Namque vertibus Qui honoreserumque gestaıum ımplitudine Ceteros Romanı popule prastiterunt expoluit iti ut fingulorum ım ıgınıbus tacta magiffra tufque corum non amplius quaternis quinilque versibus deteripferit, quod vix credenduia lit tintis ies tim bictuisse dechiari Corn Nopos C 18

ruption which then reign'd he could neither have obtain'd or exerc them legally He never had a Law Suit in his Life He never peach'd any one nor seconded those who did The Emperor Augustus was related to him, the manner of the Relation was thus Actions had married his Daughter to Agrippa That Mariage produc'd a Daughter whom I Augustus betroth'd to Tiberius almost as soon as she was born I do not believe that the Wise of Atticus was of any I great Family He ought to be reckov'd (G) in the Number of good Authors He attain'd to the Age of 77 Years without scarce knowing what Sickness was He had liv'd for 30 Years together without taking any kind of Physick. At last he fell sick, and for three Months his Dutemper was but sight, but afterwards the Pains he endur'd were excessive. He sent for his Son in Law Agrippa and two other Persons, and declar'd to them that he had resolved to put an analysis has been been all head of November and desired end to his Life by abkaining from all kind of Nourishment, and defired them to approve of his Resolution, and not oppose it, for an their Exhortations would prove vain Agrippa made use of his Prayers and Tears to prevail with him to live, but all to no purpose After two Days Abstinence his Feaver ceas'd, and his Pains were much abated, nevertheless Actions persisted in his Resolution, and died three Days after * This was in the Year of Rome 723 He's fallen in our Days into the Hands of a (H) very dangerous Cenfor, but has not been abandon'd (I) to the Rigour of his Censures. We have something to (K) correct in Mr Moreri's 1)1-chase Dignities at the Price of his Conscience How good and rare is this! If all the World were like Atticus there would be some reason to apprehend a State of Anarchy, but there is no Fear of this, there will always be more unworthy Persons rewill always be more unworthy Persons ready to grasp at Offices by all manner of illegal Ways, than Offices to confer on them I have heard say that a Person who had travell d all his Life time, answer'd those who hit him in the Teeth with his ambulatory Humour, that he would willingly have fixt in some Town or other if he could have found that the Power and Credit were any where in the Hands of good Men Another Traveller affirming at a certain time that he I raveller affirming at a certain time that he would stroil no longer from Place to Place if he could find a Town that was govern'd by fuch Persons as were most deserving, was answerd, YOUWILL DIEIN YOUK TRAVELS (1) Honores non petie cum ci paterent propter vel gratiam vel dignitatem quod neque peti more majorum, neque capipess nt conservatis l gibus in tam essussi ambitus largitionibus, neque geri e republica sine periculo, corruptis civitatis moribus Compare with this what was faid in the Article of Alexander ab Alexandro

(G) Atticus ought to be reckon d in the Numb r of good Authors] He composed Annals wherein he ohier'd an exact Chronology, and clear d the Genealogies of the Roman Magifitrates the finest in the World That Book comprehended Seven Centuries, whereby it may early be conjectured that he principally confidered the Roman History I say principally, for it must not be doubted but the Author set forth the abridged History of divers States in a Chronological Series Cuero will not fuffer it to be doubted (m) Cognojcat etiam, lays he, rerum gistarum & memoria sed & imperiosorum populorum & regum illustrium quem laborem nobis Attici nostri levavit labor, qui confructis notatifque temporibus nibil cum illustre prates mitteret annorum feptingentorum memoriam uno livro colligave Thete Annals had a kind of Chronological Tables to them Habuit iste liber Attici & n nova mihi quidem multa, O cam utilitat m quam requirebam,ut explicatis ordinibus temporum uno in conspettu omnia viderim I have said that Atticus observ'd the Genealogical Order very exactly, and add here that he wrote particular I reatises on iome Families and composed Inscriptions of I our or I ive Verses each (s) to be plac'd under the Portraitures of illustrious Persons, and that his Talent was much admir d in complizing many things in few Words.

(p) Moris etiam majorum summus imitator fuit antiquitatifque amotor, quam odeo dilig nter habuit cognitam, ut cam totam in co volum n expofuerit quo magistratus ornavit - Nalla inim lex, neque pax, neque bellum, neque res illustris est po-puli Romani que non in o suo tempore set nocata, O quod difficillimum fuit, sie familiarum orig nem subtexuit ut ex co clarorum virorum propagines possimus cognoscere. Feit hoc idem siparatim in aliis libris, ut M. Biuti i ogatu Juniam familiam a fterpe ad hanc etatem ordine enumer avit, notant qui a quo ortus, quos honores, quibusque restaute bus cepisset Pari modo Marcelli Claudii de dire collorum, Scipionis Corn lit, & Filit Maximi de Corneliorum & Iabiorum & Amiliorum quoque, quibus libris nibil potest effe dulcius eis qui al quam cupiditatem habent notitiæ clarorun vivorum a pity these Books are lost, they would clear a great number of Discoulines. I say nothing of the History of Cicero's Consulship which Atticus (q) had with in a (r) plain Style in the Greek Language.

(H) Of a very dangerous Censor] Its the Abbot of St Real See the Book inititl'd Cesario, or Entretiens divers. It was reprinted at the Hague after the Copy of Paris in 1685. It is divided into Four Days, whereof the Third is a very rigorous Censure of Pomponius Acticus, and his Panegyrist Cornelius N pos I have been inform'd that the Author of that I have been inform'd that the Author of that Work persisted in the same Sentiments, which appears by the Remarks which he has joyn'd to the Translation of the two first Books of Cicero's Letters to Atticus That I ianslation Citero's Letters to Attitus That I ianslation is mention'd in a Book (a) very well known, and I have always wonder d that the Bookfellers of Amsterdam did not conntersite it, for I don't question but much gain'd by the reading of that Work which the color curveus, authority against a tracks as inserted (b) Of I he Anthon of the Apoll is not named, Dec 1686 but its in Secret that it was the late Mr Raminsant his M C. Majosty's Cabinet keeper of Medals The News (b) from the Republick of Learning enlarged on Mr Reinsant's Writings in such a manner as was not pleasing to the in fuch a manner as was not pleasing to the Abbot of St Reale

(1) But has not been abandon'd to the Rigour of his Censure: I In the Year 1686 there uppear'd a small Book in Harm entitl'd Le retour the pieces chaife.

(k) Something to correct in Mr Moreri's Distinuity] 1 It is false that Givero married Atticus & Sister It was Givero's Brother who married her 2 He ought not to have mention'd the Ties of Amity produc'd by that Marriage.

(p) Ibid

(q) Id 1b

(r) Cicer. cp 1 l 2 ad Atti-

(a) In the 2 th Tome Ďıblıotheque Univerielle, pag 73 Sc allo the Journal des Savans for the

Dec 1686

ATTICUS. ATTILA.

I forgot to mention that Atticus was of the | Sect of Epicurus we may defie the most zealous Defenders of the Tenet which down that without the Belief of a Providence it is impossible, as to od Manners, to equal those who acknowledg'd a Jupiter, a Neptune to shew a better Man than Attitus among the greatest Bigots of

ATTII A King of the Huns, fur-named the Scourge of God, liv'd in the 5th Century He may be reckon'd among the greatest Conquerors, since there were but few Provinces in Europe which did not feel the Weight of his victorious Arms He would not grant the Emperor Theodofins a Peace, (A) but upon Condition that he would become his Tributary The Bittle which he lost in Champagne || in the Year 451 did not weaken him to such a degree but that he soon found himself in a Condition to lavage It ily, and it the Prayers of Pope Lee had not put a stop to him, he would intallibly have taken the City of Rome We must not believe what is reported of the Apparition of an old Man standing with a naked Sword in his Hand by st Leo's side and threatning Accida This King of the Huns was of a small Stature, but thit did not hinder his striking a Terror into the most couragious by his lofty Carriage and fierce Countenance. He knew very well how to (B) joyn Craft with Force Superstition was (C) one of his De-

(c) Corn Nepos, cap s

(d) Siethe Letters of Atticus, 1 5 ep

(e) Cap 16

prelly that Atticus had more kindness for Cicero than for his Brother in Law Quintus Cicero (i) Erat nup. a foros Attic Q Iulio Ciceroni, easque nuptias M Cicero conciliarat, cum quo a cona scipulatu vivebat conjunctissim, mul o et am familiarius, quam cum Quinto, ut judicari possit plus in amicitia vilice similitudium morum quam affinitatem Atticus s Sister Pomponia did not ilwiys live well with (d) her Hulband, so that she was not very sit to tye the Knot of Friendship between her Husband Volume of his Letters to Atticus, he ought to have faid that he kept a continual Corre-fpondatice with him by Letters, and that we have a Collection of the Letters which he wrote to him which is divided into 16 Books Cornelius Nipos (e) mentions it, and five that they comprehend the History of those I imes, and in some fort a Prophecy of what wis to happen Ut nibil in its non apparent, & fat le existimari possit prudentiam quodaminede este divinationem Non inim Cicero casolum wire vivo se acciderant futura prædixit, sed etimologiae nune usu veniunt ut vates 4 It is stretching it too tar to siy that Atticus had no other Servants as were fit to read to him. He ought to have been content with faying that he had several learned Domesticks who could read and write, and bind a Book well and that every one of his Lootmen could do this Cornelius Nipos fays no more of it, how comes it then that in the 17th Century they durst say 20 t mes more than he had said? Has he not expresly noted that beides the Domesticks who were Renders and Book-Binders, Atticus had others all very well clad, and born and bred in his House? (b. In ea familia) erant pueri literatissimi, anavnosi e optimi, er thusimi librarii, ut ne pedissi quus quidem quissimi esse aui non utiumque horum pulibre secre posse Pari modo AR III-(LS TERE RI quos cultus dom sticus destante desta

Marringe, seeing Cornelius Nepos notes most expresly that Atticus had more kindness for

LSTETERI ques cultus dom ficus desiderat apprime boni. Negue tames borum quemnist d mi natum domini sim habuit negue and third of the constitution and the most condition that he will be come his Iri'ut. A second to the Missing of the Bragadochios. The must call hings by the most honounder Name, which the Limperor oblig d hintest to pay ever sear to Ailla was not call d a Tribute, but a Penson I hese arethe Words of a modern Author () "He oblig d the Emperor Ine-Author ()" He obligd the Emperor Ine" odof is the younger shamefully to beg a "Peace of him, ne ther could he obtain it without prying him 60c0 Livers (1) of Gold immediately, and obliging himself to pry him a thousand more (2) every Year 50 that the Emperor of the Last, whatever recourse he had to the specious Title of Inouland "Pension to save his Honour became Inbu-Crustian The same Author re-tates, that decide having seen a Picture in the Palace of Milan which represented an I mperoi on his I hrone, having the so h ans in Chains at his I ect, ordered it to be ta-ken away, and mother pit in its the e, wherein he caused himself to be drawn fitting on a Throne surrounded with 1 mperois londen with Baps fill of and ind Silver, which they end to be a long a very submissive to by that as he had oblig d 110 him I libite Seven of Light Year lesore, he would force the I macros I il n n vi to do as much to fave in k fe and the tark ferable Remains of his Engine (1)

(B) He kn w very well how to join (raft with Force) I he appears by the Intrigue which he managed in his Expedition against the Gauls He endeavour'd to distunct the Romans commanded by Ae ins, and the Viligorhs under their King Theodorick. For this purpose he sent Word to the Emperor Valentiman that he did not think of committing any Acts of Hostility against the Subjects of the Empire, that he would only chaffile the France and the ν /150 hs, the first whereof had been so audicious is to let foot on the Territories of the I mpire, and the latter were only Slaves co Valent n an At the time time he let Theodorick understand that he had made the King of the tandals believe that he came into Gaul an infit the Wilgoths, but that it was only a Pretence to deceive the Imperor, that his tiue delign was to divide the Impire between the Huns and the Wifigoths, and that he would fall into Italy it In adorack would attack the Gauls (1) I alentini in and Theodorick easily discovered this Snare, and jointly repulsed that cristy Conqueror (a) Homo fultilise antiquem bella g reret, arte pugnabat, cæ cra episto as blan-dim ntis oppleverat, studens sidem adhibere men-

() Superstition was one of his Divices] He had found means to possess the Minds of his Soldiers with a superstatious Belief that he had form thing divine in him to which his good I return was linkt, for whether he really believed this himself or only pretended to, he made them believe that he had found the Cimeter of Mr., who was adored among those People, and that the I ites promised the Empire of the World to him who should have the fatel Sword" This is one of the powerfulest Stratagems that a General of an Aimy cui make ute of to manage and move his Soldiers the Springs of a mysterious Superalition which fill them either with Confidence or lear according as the Cafe requires, with Confidence when there is occision for fightconfidence when there is occasion for lighting, and with Fear when they are inclined to Mutiny. All goes well when the Soldiers (c) are perfuaded that their General has a guardian Spirit who delivers him out of all Danger. Attila was (d) superstitious (e) Corhimself, for a little before the Battle of demoi p. Chalons "he (e) consulted his Soothsyers, 120 cx. Jorna ide

[421] † Vide Grillendum de vita I pia curil 2

IIn Campis Cita-launicis

4 Maim-Hill I Augn fine t 3 Jorn ide Cip Dicora in M tcell lily

uni 10 onlyp

Suid

(/) Cndémoi Luft de Irrice t i pag 116 ex Joininde. Secalo Maimbourg Hu? l'Arrin t 3 p 9

(a) Torn indes de reb Goth

(/)Mumbourg ubi fupra pag 6

(c) Su the Remarks cf th Art le Anilandie

(d) Religioni perfushoութոլ de Das a fur , n e lulue p 15 utgië id fuj cistiaddıctus Callimachus expos c 13 7) Maimbourg Hist de l Arianitine n. Laz. Paulo Diacoro in Mif-

h) Cor-

cell lib 35 (1) Site Hunde Sixty Thou[are Cromns

Eleven wenty TIVL I nouland

ATTILA ATTILIUS.

See the Remark E yMaimb ibid

A See the Article of Marulle of Calabria

2 In the Article of Honoria

* See the Remark I of the Article Accius.

+ See the Same Re-

Il Sucton in Cafare c 84

vices He was a cunning fly Dissembler, wise in Council, and dating in Execution, cruel to his knemies, but gentle enough to those who put themselves in the Posture of Supplicants. Its also said that he made it a Point of Honour to keep his & Faith inviolably with those whom he had once received into his Protection y He & would not suffer extravagant Flatterers The most common Opinion about the Manner of his Death, is that on his (D) Wedding-Night a Bleeding at the Nose strangled him Wc shall elsewhere relate ζ in what manner he was sought for by the Sister of Valentinian III. His life was composed in the 15th Century by a Refugee Italian in Poland, call'd Callimachus Expersens Others have (L) writ it lince

It is faid that he had an Ambition to introduce his (1) native Tongue, and raise it on the Ruins of the Roman

ATTILIUS, a Latin Poet, liv'd to all likelihood in the Beginning of the 7th Century of Rome Volcatius Sedigitus has given him the 5th Rank among the Comick Poets, and yet he was but a mean Author, his Stile was as hard as Iron *, not only according to Cicero's Taste, but even according to Licinius's who had nothing near fo delicate an Ear as Cicero The Translation of Sophocles's Llettra by Attilius is good for nothing, in the mean time Cicero | judg'd it worth the Reading Suetonius || observes that some Passages were taken out of it to be sung at Julius Casar's Funeral, because they were applicable to the Murtherers of that Emperor Casaubon and Torrentius have in vain alter'd that Passage of Suctionius They have only given (A) an Example of the Consusion which Criticism may sometimes AITIUS

" who told him that in reality all their Ob-"fervations promisd nothing advantagious to the Huns, but that they had discover'd by them that the chief of the Lnemies would be kill'd in the Battle. This was "enough to deceive Attila, for he imagin d that the Death of Aerius was certain, and that if that Man did not fland in his way, he might reckon upon the Conquest of the Empire He did not value the Loss of the Coldiers and was perswaded that he "his Soldiers, and was perswaded that he fould always have Men enough, provided he out by dehar great Cintain." But he " he out liv d that great Captain was deceived, for Actius was not so much as wounded in the Battle

(D) That on his Widding-Night a Bleeding at the Nose shangled him] Its reported that after Pope Less Prayers had prevail'd with him to space the Remainder of Italy, he return'd into Pannonia laden with Booty, and that tho' he had a great Number of Concubines, yet he would take one more who was the Daughter of the King of the Battrians She was a perfect Beauty, and he lov d her so passionately he would honour her with a publick Marriage to give her the first Rank among his Wives IIc kept his Wedding with great Solemnity, but he drank to much, and atterwards over-heated himself so excessively in the Embrices of his new Wite, that being tallen afleep, he fell a bleeding at the Noie which foon strangled him Ildico (f) puella ei fuit pracat ris gratissima, Bastrianorum regis filia mira pulchritudini. & incomparabili vinustate, cujus amore succensus eam primariæ uxoris loco habere conflituit Comparatis pro regis dignitate nuptus per omnen intemperantia licentiam in conjugali convivio fibi indulfit, Baccho ac Venere corpus i.a ca nocte confect, ut inter dormiendum Supino corpore, proflu sio Sanguinis e naribus continuo Sussicatus interierit. This Story would all be probable enough, if they had not added that sitila was then 124 Years of Age. It is hard to believe that at such an Age a Man should be in a Condition to be guilty of great Excesses with the fair Sex. A Frishand Historian alledged this I act as a favourable Proof of the Truth of the Histories of his own Nation, which make their kings very long liv'd. He does not borrow it of Bonfinius, but of Michael R tius (g) His adde tiftimonium Michaelis Rithii qui libro de iegilus Hungaria pi imo scribit, Atthilam Italica prada opimisqu spoliis onustum in Pannoniam se iecep sit, uxorenque superduxisse regis Bastriano um nomine. Milzoth, etfi plures alias haberet in matrimonio, cumque cum nuptiales epulas apparatissime celibraffet, liberius solito crapulatum in enbiculum se recepific, erumpenteque e naribus sanguine in os dormientis extinctum esse, anno etatis sue 124 regni sui 44 Si tantam atatem in hoc libidinoso tauro Scythico credimus, cur non & camdem Frisus accidere potuisse censiamus? Mean time some have related that Astila did not die in that Manner, but that his new Wife who did not love him, finding him drunk and fast asleep, like another Holophernes stabbd him with a

Knife (b)

(b) Others have writ it fince Nicholas Olahus Archbishop of Strieonium wrote a Life of Attila much more ample than that of Callimachus Experiens. He composed it while he was a Counicilor to Mary of Justina Queen of Hungary, Governor of the Nitherlands You fee in it the Speech which Attile made to his Army a little before the Battie of Chalons That Speech is composed on all kind of common Places, as appears by the marginal Notes Sambuchus his inferted those Works of Olahus, and Cali machus Experiens in his Edition of Bonfinius The Sieur Otrokocsi (1) who publish d a Book on the Origin of the Hunggrians, makes ample mention of Attila, and chiefly makes use of the Relation of Priscus, who had accompanied the Ambaffadors whom Theodofius ient to the King of the Huns in the Year 448 He draws divers Observations from that Relation to shew that Attila was a very honourable Person He does not forget the Reproaches which that Prince caus'd to be made to the Emperor Theodosius on the Eunuch Chry Saphius's endeavouring to ingage Edicon Attilas Envoy at the Court of Theodopus to kill his Master That Envoy pretended to undertake it for a gleat Sum of Money that was promis d him, and afterwards discover d all to Attila The Money was brought and the Plot was prowas prought and the Huss was proved, the King of the Huss complain'd loudly of it to Theodofius, and with fuch an Air as makes what is faid of (k) his Gentleness to those who submit themselves, and of the look of his Word probable enough Latth of his Word, probable enough

I aith of his Word, probable enough

(I) To introduce his native Tongue, and raife it on the Ruinty The Roman | I have read the in a Piece of Alexania, where these Words are saided be spoken by John de Medicis who was Pape Leo X (I) in Bibliothica nostra afferware liber incesti autoris grace scriptus de reba Goth in Italia gestis, in co memine legre Attilameres m post partam victoriam tam studiosum suisse cotta lingua propagenda ut edicto sanceit ne quis lingua latina loqueretur. Magi-Janvent ne quis lingua latina loqueretur, Magi-frosque insuper e sua provincia acciviste, qui Ita-los Goticam lirguam edocerent. In the Article of the Emperor Claudius you will find some Collections concerning the Zeal of several Princes for the Language of their Country

(A) Given an Example of the Confusions] Cafaubon having found ex Electra Attitus also and similim fententiam, in all the Copies of Suctionius, did nevertheless believe that this Aitilia ought to have been left out, and Attu put in its Place Sie em ndavimus, says he, corra-

(1) Mauri ubi iupra P 25 ad ann 453 ex Cassiodoro

(1) He's n Protestans Minister mbo bas fled from Hungary his native Coun ry HIS Rook intitled. Origines. Hungarix bas been prin-1ed at Traneker 1n 8vo 1n 1693

(k) Supplicibus Prope ad mollitiem facilis & qui in fidem feme1 receptos. in pernique suam tueretur Callim Experiens

(1) Petrus Algonius, un Medice Legato polieriore fol h m ver-

(f) Bonhift Hungar deend 1 lib 7 pig m

(g) Bernard I ui merius Annd Phrificor 1 , c 9 P 243

ATTIUS (Lucias) a Tragical Poet See ACCIUS

AUBERI (Z) Author of a History of the Cardinal of Richelieu, and f Cardinal Manarin; see the Journal of the Learned * Is some particular Reason * In the o does not hinder me, I shall always make use of such a like Reference, when the Book 14th of to which the Reference is to be made, is easily to be found, and only contains the Life of a Man in a very compendious manner

AUBERTIN (Edmund) in Latin Edmundus Albertinus, Munister of the Church seq edit of Paris in the XVII. Century, was a very learned Man. He was Boin at Chalons on of Holland Marne in the Year 1595. He was secent d Munister in the Synod of Charenton in the of his Book. Year 1618, and given to the Church of Chartres, from whence he was transferd to de EuchaParse in the Year † 1621 He made, to speak properly, (A) but one Book, but acquar'd more Reputation by that only Book, than other ingenious Men have acquir'd by printing an hundred Volumes That Piece runs on the Controverse of the Luch will

I have It appeared in the Year 1633, under the Title of the Fucharist of the ancient Church The heard lay, Agents of the Clergy (B) of France, complain'd of Mr subertin before the King's that after-Council, and obtain'd a Warrant against him, because he quainted limited Paster of the warrant the Council, and obtain'd a Warrant against him, because he quainted limited Paster of the warrant the Council and Counc Reformed Church of Para That Process was dropt, it was not yet time to push that fort d lim fort of Matters too far | Now whether the goodness of the Book, without the affiftanc of that Accident, made it fell so well, or that People concluded it to be very strong, see- fo 2013 ing the Clergy attack'd it by way of the Secular Power, it is certain, that the Author force word had reason to be contented with the Success of (C) his Book. This oblig'd him to re- force word that had

Omnsum librorum lectionem Attilis Torrentius is not fatisfied with turning Attilius out in favour of Attius, but turn d the Electra out also,

and pretended that Succession had montion'd but one Piece of Actius, intitled, Armorum judicium, like that of Pacuvius, which he had but just quoted Torrenteur's reason is, because the Manuscripts vary very much concerning the Poet's Name, but that they have oftner Accius of Attius Thus we fee that they have oftner Accius or Attius Thus we fee that the Criticks don't agree on the Readings of the Manuferipts, which is a Matter of fact Cafauben con-felles, That he found Attilius every where Torrenrius fays on the contraly, that he found Astilius but feldom Peter Ceinitus (a) complain'd, that the Grammarians had put Accus instead of Astilius, in that Possesson of Succession Rus let us come to former. that Passage of Sucrement But let us come to something of more substance. Though Casaubon has not told us why he changed the Text, yet it as not to be question'd, but that he had the same reason for it as Torrentius had. Now this is Torrentius's reason He did not remember to have read any thing concerning the Electra of Attius, nor concerning a Poet whose Name was Attilus. It is less surprising, that a learned Man should suffer lamiels to be drawn away by such a Principle to the negation of a Fact, than to see that those two excellent Criticks should be ignorant that Ciero mention'd the Electra of Assilias, that he treats Assilias as a very harsh Poet, that Volcasius Sedigius mentions him honourably in Aulis Gellius, and that Vorrequoted him in the 5th and 6th Book of the Latin Tongue (b) nim in the stin and oth Book of the Latin Tongue (b) I do not speak of Crimitus, nor of Gregory Gyraldus, who have not forgot him an the Life of the Latin Poets, by such Tokens that the latter (c) has faifly imputed to Cicera, to have call'd him a Tragical Poet I shall not touch upon the Complaints that have been published against those that after the Readings of Manuscripts, in proportion to what they do, or do not understand. That would be to think of it unfeasonably considering the great be to think of it unfeafonably, confidering the great Services that Cafauban has done to the Republick of Lagrang, by his vast and judicious Erudition Torrentius's merit is not of the same strength, but he has his worth, which I do not intend to diminish nas his worth, which I do not intend to thininish (2) Author of an History of the Cardinal of Richelieu I it was Printed at Jones in Holes, in the Year 1860, with two other Values which contain Letters, Instructions, and Momoria Ambieny Bertier Bookfeller of Payle, who printed them, had collected the Pieces that are contain din the two latter with great care, (a) but he represented to the Queen Mother, That he durft not publish them, wishout her Majestier particular Authority and Protession, because MACHET, That he durft not publish them, without her Majesties particular Authority and Protession, because these were divers Persons that were settled again at the Court, whose past condust not having been regular, and heing very disadvantageously for them noted in those Memoirs, would not fail to put him to some trouble. Go, laid the Queen to him, work wishout Fear, and make Vice so smuch asham'd, that nothing but Vertue may re-

(A) To Speak properly, but one Book] For the Eflay (e) which he gave on St Augustin, to shew that the Sentiments of that Father, concerning the Eucharift, were not conformable to those of the Church of Rome, but to those of the Protestants, ought only to be look'd upon as a finall forerunner of the Pulpir Book which he published in Folio, in the Year 1633 I say this after the learned Blondel, (f) Augustinum quem obtorto collo in partes trabere conabacur Perronius abducenti fortiter extorsit, vindicatumque in lu in Dei castra feliciter reducit. Hoc nsigni vitutis Spici- Pitt Ii mine dato, & tirocinio, ut sic dicam, posito, di parium bit Albe universorum causa asservada si o cogitais, Ant que fittin de clesse Eucharistiam nobis accuratiore stud o representava tini de l'uchais I never saw the Observations which for the Albot of stire Maiolics sake be made on a Book of Mr De la Millettere, who press him to answer some dessint Questione, but I have been told, that it is a Book of 226 Pages, which was princed in the Yest 1648, and conges, which was printed in the Year 1648, and con-cerns the Controversie of the Eucharist 1 h. At bor of Marelles mentions it in the Lift of the Picker's which he receiv d from Authors

(B) The Agents of the Clergy of France complain d of him before the King and Council They represented in their Request, I hat Master Edmund Aubertin, Aubertin, Minister of the precented Reformed Religion at have Charenton, had caus'd a Book to be printed, wherein concerthe he took upon himself the Quality of Paster of the Resure Name of med Church of Paris, and address his Prifice to the Niestic-Faithful of the Reform'd Church of the said City of Pa- 7at and ris; and that in the approbation of that Book, the the sand that in one approparity of that Book, the cother Munifers of Charenson, took upon them the Qua- (h) See the lity of Pafters of the Churches of the Isle of Linice, Remark B, Champaign, and Country of Chartres, and in their of the Arsugastures qualified themselves Maistrevat and Drelin- tick Bo- court, Pastors of the Raformed Churches of Paris, and chart Dallie (g) Minister of the Holy Gospel of the Said Church (Matth) The tame Agents complained, I hat in the Title of (1) It is in the Book the Cardinals Rallarmin and Du Derron, the College the lame Agents complain'd, I hat in the I itle of (1) It is in the Book, the Cardinals Bellarmin and Du Perron, the Collewers call'd Advantaries of the Church The King oi - Hion of the dar'd, that Aubertin should be feir'd and imprison d in Decrees obthe Bishops Fort, if he could be taken; and if not tain if for taken, be should be cryed three publick Days, his Efface the Affairs seen'd, and inventory id according to the Decree, in order to of the Clerproceed to his Tryal, and that the Said Maistrerat, Dieproceed to his Tryal, and that the said Maistrerat, Dieproceed to his Tryal, and that the faid on the Fait ment: and the Somelly to be heard, and interrogated on the Facts mention d in the Request His Majesty injoyn'd (h) the Miou'd an the Request Has Majesty injoyn'd (h) the Ministers and others professing the presented Reformed Religious, to assume the other Quality than was attributed to them by the Edicts, forbidding without to could the Catholicks, Adversaries of the Church This Decree was (s) and Prior given in the King's Privy Council the 14th of July 1633. The Author of the History of the Edict of Riers Nants, informs us, (k) That that Affair which made the wuch mosses to little purpose, was almost as soon ended as Pag 534 it was begun, and product of or that time only (l) some (t) This Verbal Prohibitions: He adds, That the Book was the ought not more in reagast for it, and that the Succession was edd the more in request for it, and that the Success incomaged the to be un author to revise and increase it, and to treat accurately derstood of of that Matter in a large Latin Volume, which did not the Defenappear until after his Death, and that the unsuspected ces con-

Gatholick Dollors never durst confutest on equal Terms tain d in

(C) To be consumed with the Success of his Book] We the Decree have suft now showed what the Author of the Hi- of the 14th story of the Edist of Nants judged of it He on- July 16,3 story of the Edist of Nants judg'd of it He on- July 16, ly conform'd himself to the Opinion of Mi Dallie (m) Life nhe Son, whole Words are these (m) M. Auber- of Mr tin's Name continues immerial in this World, and will Daille done for over in that great and incomparable Work of the Pag 28 H h h

March 1695 pag 185 & vile estap d him in the

> (f) David BlondelbuAlber-

and the

13 63 pag 379 apud Sueton Græ-V41 1D-C#fare, c 84. (c) Apud Volfuum de Poet Lat pag 7 (d) La (d) La Caille, History of Printing, pag 285, 286 (e) This printed in the Tear 1626, the Title of it s, Conformity of the Belief of the Church, with that of St Augustin on the Sacrathe Eucharift is

COMBINS #

bove 500 Page: jin

(a) De Poet Lat

om 14.

(b) See

Remesius

var lect

+ The Year 1654 It is Thub has pares in 2 Cilumns

* Samminin nus I he † Relictis præter ea qua commemoravi Pocinara, filvarum aliquot libris our lucemexpettie poter int ab erus herede. marthanus ib vise and inlarge it, and to finish it with so much application, that he seems to ha icera ed all his Libours and Studies to that Work "He defign'd his new Book to Latin, but hid not the Satisfiction to see it come out of the Press After his Death it was printed! it Deventer, by the care of David Blondel When this Book began to we if out of the Memory of Man, there arose a Quarrel between the Gentlemen of Port Royal, and Mr Claude, which made the Name of (D) Aubertin, and the Character of his Work known to a great number of Books who had a supplied to the Name of the San and the Character of his Work known to a great number of People who had never heard of it before, or remembred it no more Mr Claude had (E) a thousand occasions to mention the merit of that Book Mr Aubertin died at Paris the 5th of April 1652, aged 57 Years In his Agony he was exposed to the Vexations of (F) the Rector of Saint Sulpitime, and in of that Book spight of the drowfiness which had been one of the chief Symptoms of his Sickness, he hid his Mind free enough to declare when that Missionary question'd him, that he died persuaded of the Truths which he had always profest. He had had much access to the Duke of Verneuil, who was at that time Abbot of St. Germain in the Fields. That Prince would often have him at his Table He found him good Company very Universal, wellskill'd in the Culture of Fruit-Trees, Flowers, Musick, &c One of Mr Aubertin's Sons was Minister of Amiens

AUDEBERT (Germain) President in the Election of Orleans, was a Man of much Merit, and a good I atin Poet in the 16th Century He was Alciatus's Disciple at Bolonia for some Years, and returned from Italy so satisfy'd with the Country, and the People he convers'd with there, that he made use of all the Art of Poetry for the Description of Rome, of Venice, and Naples * Those three Poems have been inserted in the full Volume of the Delights of the Poets of France It will appear hereafter in what manner the Venetians rewarded the Discription of their City He composed other Pocms | that might have been communicated to the Publick, if his Son who was Counsellot in the Pathament of Britany, has survived him any time Scevola de Sainte Marthe made the Llogy of our Audebert with his usual Eloquence, and gave him the most effectivel Qualities of a good Man Mr Morers has faithfully reported the exactness of that Llogy I do not question but that he was ignorant of the advantagious Conse-

Eucharist, which remains until this time above all the Attacks of those of the other Communion, not one whereof has dar d to oppose him fairly, or undertake him Face to Face, if a Man may so speak Those also that pass among them for the Pillars and Hiads of the Party, could only give him some oblique Blows, according to that new Art which they have invented, and which the despair of their Cause they have invented, and which the despair of their Gause made them put in practice under the specious Name of Method of Prescription. In this place Mr Daille denotes the I heologians of Port Royal, who in their Book of the Perpetuity of Faith, did only oppose in Mi Aubertin's Work, the History of the Illeviation of Belief neither did they oppose that History but by Arguments, and not by proofs of fift, against proofs of Fact. See the second Chapter of the first Book of Mr Claude's great Answer, wherein he shows that the Author of the Perperuity of the Lath ittack'd Mr Aubertin's Book, in an oblique and indirect manner

What Judgment tle Poit Royal maker of Aubertin

(a) He means Blondel s Supposition Sulstantiation was brought forth a long (c) P ncfil) d = finall 1 clap 5 fag m s

(D) A Quarrel which made the Name of Aubertin known] The Author of the Perpetuity of the Iaith, chose only to consute the History of the Innovation in the great Work of the Minister the Innovation in the great Work of the Minister That gave occasion enough to produce the Name and Work of Aubertin on the Stage See here a Pussage of the Perpetuity of Faith "Aubertin" perceiving allo, that there was no means to main"tain such (a) a Visible Folly, thought that he ought to reform the Plan And to that is reduced what this Minister, (who unhappily spent his "Lite in searching into the Writings of the Anci"ents, wherewith to obscure the Truth,) found most plausible to make the prodigious overthrowing of the ancient Faith most likely, and which he is obliged to admit of, that he may not "piss himself for an Innovator" Mr Arnauld treated him much more disobligingly, though he forth along "pais nimitest for an innovator" Mr Arnauld time after treated him much more disobligingly, though he Beteinger confesses (b) that it is much to be wished, that (l) In the some ingenious Person would labour to constite the Books I stice of of the new Ministers, and amongst others, that of Autic Perpose bertin, and those of Mr Daille He maintains (c) that Aubertin's Work is very contemptible, in the was a Man of little Wit, a mean Critical Property of the way a Man of little Wit, a mean Critical Property of Style or Indeed. tick, without any loftiness of Style or Judgment, who had read much, because that required only Eyes and Leisure, but who had read without Judgment or Knowledge, who does not diffinguish between good and bad Reasions, who exclaims every moment on the weakoff Proofs, who has corrupted his reason by the "hibit of repeating always the same Absurdities, and who, far from having obtain'd a fair Victory aguish the School of Rome, has only discover'd the weakness of the Calvinists." (E) Mr Claude had a thousand eccusions to mention without any other trouble than that of reading the Article, defire to know Mr Aubertin's Plan without any other trouble than that of reading Article, defire to know Mr Aubertin's Plan Copy these words of Mr Claude (a) "All Mr bertin's Book is a Body of Disputes on the Sub" jest of the Eucharist, which is divided into three "parts In the first, he treats the Matter by the "Holy Scripture, and by Human Reasonings He "produces his Passages and his Arguments, he con" futes the Answers that are made to them, he re" lates the Passages and Arguments of those of the lates the Passages and Arguments of those of the Book, 1 r Communion of Rime, he answers almost all that the Control and Subject In the second of the Examines the Belle of the Church for six hundred Veers by an even Difference of all the Passages. dred Years, by an exact Discussion of all the Passages on both sides, and makes it appear, that Transubstantiation, and the real Presence, were un-"known Doctrines in all that time In the third, "he writes the History of the Introduction of those Doctrines" Mr Glande had already said (e) in his first Answer, that Mr Auberin after having traced all the Questions of the Eucharist to the bottom, By the Hely Scripture, and by Reasonings, and of the An-having obtain'd a fair Victory over all the Subtilties of swer to the the School of Rome, examines all the Passages of the 2d 2 Fathers, that have hitherto been produced on that matter by both sides, discovering thereby to all the World the alteration which the Church of Rome has made in making a perpetual comparison of the ancient making a perpetual comparison of the ancient belief To which he adds the History of and Progress of Transabstantiation, and the fence

(F) In his Agony leading exposed to the Vexations of the Rector of St. Sulput the Amine of the Clock in the Evening, he cathered has been as the Door with the Bailiff of St. God the Clock in the Evening has the Door counterfeited the Parties of the Amine Market has the Door counterfeited the Parties of the Poor was opened, all the Troop early prolently into the House, saying, That the sick erson desired to make his Abjuration hefore a Priest, but that he was hinder'd, wherebefore a Priest, but that he was hinder'd, wherefore they came to deliver his Confcience from that Slavery The agonizing Minister's eldest Son defended the Stairs as well as he could, but at last to hinder the Mobb from breaking the Chamber-Doors, it was agreed, That only the Rector and Baily should come into the Sick Person's Chamber The Cries and Hollowings of their Guard recovered Mr Aubertin a little out of his drowzy Lethargy, fo that he declared very distinctly his perseverance in the Resonand Religion. The Rector and Bailiss went out, and had much ado to make the Mobb retire. A little while after they return'd

naulds

(e) In the ift Chapter 2d Trea-quences which the Protestants have drawn from that Chapter of Scevola de Sainte Marthe, to justifie one of their most famous Ministers from a horrid Accusation The Malice blonder dorus Beza was accused of an abominable Intimy, on as frivolous a ground as his E-lus Profit pigram is, de sua in Candidam & Audebertum benevolentia Mr Maimbourg renews that "Jurieu Application of Audebertum benevolentia Mr Maimbourg renews that "Jurieu Application of Audebertum benevolentia" Mr Maimbourg renews that "Jurieu Application of Audebertum benevolentia" Mr Maimbourg renews that "Jurieu Application of Audebertum benevolentia" Mr Maimbourg renews that "Jurieu Application of Mainbourg renews that "Jurieu Mainb lus Prefet pigram is, de jua in Canasaam Cr Audeversum venevoiensia Mr Maimvourg renews that Apology for bertini de tion of the Piece it felf, without forgetting to strengthen the Apology by the great Mc-ed, Part i stia rit of Audevert Theodorus Beza (A) had already made use of that reason Mr Gra-pag 141 (c) Tri- verol the Minister, had a design to publish the Epitaphs of that tamous Magistrate, in & seq shus had a Latin Dissertation +, which he brought to light at that time, but received them too veniliable in the Life communicated them to me, and this is a (R) very convenient opportunity to Theodorus allo mon-late He communicated them to me, and this is a (B) very convenient opportunity to Theodore The History of our Audebert may be seen there such as an Historical BezæPocht to give it The Sieur Konig has cut (C) that Author in two Sainte Maris, Amstel publish them ulla Pestis Dictionary ought to give it & 1ra De- Marthe is not the only Person (D) who made that good Man's Elogy AVENTINE 1683 in ûm Stygiis fele again, crying out, That they had been forced out of the House, and would have plunder'd it, if two topping Men had not interpoz'd their Prayers

(f) Viciniam non latuit extrema hec calamitas, que pii

And under the fame Marble lies Messire Nicholas (f) Viciniam non latuit extrema hac calamitas, qua più (f) Viciniam non latuit extrema hac calamitas, qua più viri spirani ad huc spolium cujus villudere parati injuria exponebat Lamentabili isa occasione infeliciter usus prafervidi sed tumultuosi xeli vir joannes Jacobus Ollevius, Basilica S Sulpicii Curatus, & Sadalitatis qua de propaganda side dicitur primipilus, & Can any Body think of this, without remembring that mournful Word of Lucretius? Tantum relligio potuit suadere malorum! What is not a (g) furious Zeal of Religion able to do? It will not so much as suffer Men to die quietly, after having tormented them in their was deceived when the Arms of a Ditease that bars them from the use of reason. It takes the advantage of those Mohe said of reason It takes the advantage of those Mo-p 145, that wherein the Soul is as sick as the Body, and Audebert (h) claudicat ingenium, delirat linguaque

Audebert where (b) claudicat ingenium, delirat linguaque dy'd, after Mensque that the Mensque
(A) Theodorus Beza had already made use of past thro' that reason] It is in his second Apology against all the signature de Sainstes. He says, that when he comnest Offices of the Epigram, Audebert was already Advocate in the Parliament of Paris. This is his Latin, Quid (a) quum eousque proveheris ut meam cum honestissimo wocant, nunc vero in civitate Aureliansi Magna aum digspard him mitate versanti, amicitiam & samilaritatem summam that Lye, ad nobis ne nominaic quidam sine horrore potest, a vobis of he has another in vestris illis gurgustiolis, ut omnes noiunt, pro ludo & joco ducitur, quis te ipsum vir honestus non exe-Audebert cretur?

(B) This is a very convenient opportunity to publish jamdu-dum exextulit

undis Virgil Æn / 3

mas so mo(B) This is a very convenient opportunity to publish dest, that the Epitaphs of Audebert] To make use of it, I he mas sawill insert here word for word what the Person atiffed with bove mention'd writ and sent me

"I desire you would be pleas'd that I send you wuch bemuch bemuch bis "and his Son If I had receiv'd them in the time they were promis'd me, I would have added them to the similar Latin Apology of Theodorus Beza, which a special occasion oblig'd me to give to the quam de "enly carable to put an end to the edgous Calum." quam de only capable to put an end to the odious Calumfolitamo only capable to put an end to the odious Calumny wherewith the Memory of that excellent deftia de Servant of God has been hitherto charg'd, whatever contentus ea quam apud fuos jamdu servant or God nas been interest chang a, whatever evafion may be endeavour'd to elude the force of it, and you will do a fignal piece of fervice to Touth, if you give the Publick this new means to defend him

Here lies Messire Germain Audebert, Native of this dum exercebat vectigate Unity of Orleans, Prince of the Poets of his Time, who for his only Vertue was ennobled with all his um indictionum-que presentectura humili fortasse illa & obtained with the Duke and Republick of Venice, and the latteras is the Duke and Republick of Venice, and the latteras is fador into France And notwithstanding all these interests. feura, si ter sent him the Order of St Mark by their Ambashondinis fador into France. And notwithstanding all these great Honours, he was so much a Lover of his great Honours, he was so much a Lover of his country, that he was always pleas'd to exercise the State of an Elu in that Election for the space of fifty Years, which being considered by his faid Majesty, having created and erected a President, and a Lieutenant, in each Election of separate, he exempted the said Germain Audebert, and would have him preside and precede the one and the other (b) He wrote three Books of the

cay partem attigisse, sibique soli vixisse diceretur

And under the same Marble lies Messire Nicholas Audebert, one of the King's Counfellors in his Court of Parliament of Britany, Son of the faid Germain Audebert, a great Imitator of his Father's Vertues, who deceased five Days after his Father, in the 42d Year of his Age Their Souls are among the Bleffed

Audebertorum, Germani Patris, & Nicolai filis tumulus

Audebertorum si quis depingere l'iudes Cogitat, ille sibi nihilo plus explicet, ac si Infane sapiens solem illustrare laboret Parcendum verbis igitur, vanoque labori Sit dixisse satis, situs hic jacet Audebertus, Lt pater, & gnatus patris cito sata secutus Nominat hac quisquis sincera nomina lingua Virtutum & laudum gazas fimul eruit omnes Quas qui nescierit communis luminis expers Credatur furvis semper vixisse sub antiis

These three Epitaphs are found written in Letters of Gold, on a Black Marvle, sastened to the Wall of the Gallery, in the Church-yard of the Church of the Holy Cross of Orleans, about 60 Paces in the Gallery, on the lift hand as you come in They have been copyed word for word from the Original, by a faithful Person Here ends the Copy of Mi Graverol's Letter

(C) Has cut that Author in two] He gives us a Germanicus Audebertus, and an Aurelius Audebertus I or the first he refers us to the 191st Page of Sainte Marthe's Llogies, and he says of the second, that he compos'd three Poems in the Year 1603 Scripfit Venetias, Romam, Parthenopen carmine, A 1603 That Date is a new fault, leeing that Audebert died in the Year 1598 It is true that those three Poems were printed at Hanaw in 1603, but it was not the first Edition By this it may appear, that it is not so easie to compose the Bibliotheque of Authors, as may be thought Those that do not know the Chronology of Editions, nor the difference of the Christian Names, or those of the Country, are very subject to be deceived Germanus is Audebert s Christian Name, and Aurelius is his Country Name What is to be admired in it is, that Mr Konig refers us to an Author which he has not feen him-For it he had taken the pains to cast his Lyes on the place of Sainte Marth, whom he quotes, he would have feen there that Germanus Audebert is he that compos'd the three Poems of Venice, Rome, and

Naples, Venetias, & Roman & Parthenopen
ea carminu majestate descripsit (D) Sainte Marthe is not the only Person who made the Elogy | An Advocate of the Council who gave himself in Latin the Name of Rodolphus Boterius, himself in Latin the Name of Rodolphus Boterius, prais'd Audebert magnificently in his History of (c) Lib 5 France (c) He does not forget the Honours which pag 460 the Pope and the Republick of Venice did him, but & seq ad whereas the Epitaph attributes the Honour annum which Audebert receiv'd from the Court of Rome, 1598 to Gregory XIII he attributes it to Gregory XIV, 1598 He says, where the Ambassador of Venice confer'd the Knighthood of St Mark, and before what Concourse of People. Gregorius XIV as Venetiallum sin course of People Gregorius XIV ac Veneti illum ci-Ustatu jure & equestris ordinis dignitate donarunt effusius Venets, qui per Oratorem suum in suburbano Tybure Gentsiliaco, assidente spectaculo & convivio longa corona hominum literatissinoram, Audebertum torque aureo

Divi Marci insigniverunt

A VENTINE (John) famous by his Annals of Bavaria, flourish'd (A) in the Century He was of mean Birth, the Son of an Inn-keeper (B) of Abenspergh in He studied first at Ingolftadt, and afterwards in the University of Para under the University of Par Feure of Etaples, and under fesse Cliston Being returned into Germany, in the Year 150 They were he stop'd some time at Vienna, where in a Chamber he taught Eloquence and Poetry. The Sons of In the Year 1507, he went into Poland, where he publickly taught the Greek Grammar Albert in Cracon He return'd into Germany, and past some time at Rarubon, from whence he the wife Duke of went to Ingolftadt in the Year 1509, where he explain'd some Books of Cicero pass for a very Ingenious Man, he was sent for to Munich in the Year 1512, to be Pre-Bavaria ceptor of Prince Lews and Prince Ernest * He travel'd with the † latter of these two receptor of Prince Lews and Prince Erneft He traveld with the platter of these two Princes Afterwards he undertook to compose (C) the Annals of Bavaria, and was inflowed to couraged to it by the hopes which the Dukes of that Name gave him to bear the Charthic Sieur ges, whereupon he forgot nothing that might answer the Expectation of his Masters, he consulted the Records of Germany as well as he could, and apply the most wholly to that Work He did not lose his labour, for he acquired much the travel of the Work in the Year 1529, he received an Affront, which troubled him all the remainder of his labour, for he acquired him all the remainder of his life. He was forcibly taken out of his Sister's House at Abenspergh, and imprison'd No heady over know the true reason of such Violence, which would have been carried farbody ever knew the true reason of such Violence, which would have been carried farther, if the Duke of Bavaria had not taken that learned Person under his Protection (d) Voss. Though Aventin had liv'd a single Life to the 64th Year of his Age, yet the invincible used Hist Mel incholy that possess him since that Affront, was so far from making him resolve to Lar pag continue in that State, that perhaps it inclin'd him rather to think on Marriage (e) In v. new Paisson was not so strong as to take away the liberty of consulting the Holy Scrita Journes ptures, and his Friends on what he had to do He found nothing but Counsels (D) full of Aventum Uncert unties, wherefore he himself was obliged to give the Resolution of that Problem, and (f) lt does he concluded (E) for Marriage There remain'd nothing more to do, but to seek for a that one of Match And he was so imprudent is to leave it to a crastry old Woman, who deceived Names

Names pro

Leeds from the other

In the Year 1466, and dy'd in the Year 1534 From

There to whence Vossius (d) insteas with much reason, that some full flourish in the Year 1366 Father Gaultier follow d

in the

Genebrard's Fault In the Epitomy of Gesner's Bi printing of bliotheca the Death of Aventin is falsly placed in the

the one or Yeer 1529

the one or Yeer 1529
the other (B) Of an Inn-keeper of Abenspergh] Jerom Zie(g) Bullitts A- Thermair, and that from thence it comes, that Leocademy of nard of Eckh gives John Aventin (f) in an Epigram, Sciences, the Nime of Thurniomarus He adds, That the Fom 1 Annihit's Name, was Aventinum He adds, (h) Pittin That the Limptor Antoninus calls it Abusina cjus fuit in his Itinerary Mr Bullart did not well underAbusin i, stand this, he says, (g) The City of Abenspergh is undefallo famous enough in the Roman History chiefly by the Emcum se peror Antoninus, who calls it Aventinium in his Itinominare nerwy That Author would be much puzzi'd, if debussier he were requir'd to prove that that City was famous enough in the Roman History The learned nensem Lambecius did not believe that it would be found to cognomi- have any other Name than that of Abusina, which ne usus is given it in the Itenerary of Antoninus, and thereest Aven- fore he blames (b) the Author of the Annals for tin I am- not having given himself the Name of Abusinensis bee lib But would that Name have been as noble as that of comment one of the Hills of Rome?
Biblioth (C) To compose the Annals of Bayarra | He had a bec lib_ But would that Name have been as noble as that of comment one of the Hills of Rome?

Biblioth (C) To compose the Annals of Bavaria I He had a Casaic 6 Peninon for it, and began it a little before the pag 471 Death of the Emperor Maximilian The Work in not consists in 7 Books, and extends to the Year 1533 margin Possius observes (a) all these things Annales Bosorum in 2 apid libris 7 resiquit Terminature ejus bissoria anno Magirum Cid idax Termina summiliani temporibus Epony— sam caperat historiam summ scribere auspicius & liberamol p 91 litate fruens Gulielmi & Ludovici, Bavaria ducum, (a) Vossii— qui patri sua Alberto successerum anno 1508 These us ubi su— Annals did not appear before the Year 1554, pubpir lish'd by Jerom Zieglerus, Professor of Poetry in the (b) Tie— University of Ingossiade But as he confesses himpered Cisconcern'd the Clergy, and divers Stories that significat shews seed nothing to the History of Bavaria (b) Multambis Pre-ime dubio emendasses (Aventinus) pleraque forsian mussic, that tasset, etam, si per fata licusses personas, item shad inventiones nibil quidquam ad historiam facientes non sould not glesus and the sincerity wherewith he consesses the live almost success and the sincerity wherewith he consesses the live almost of the Protessans, and oblig d them to pricends he search for whenhad been suppress'd, and they sought nould and so well for a Manuscript of those undistinember'd Annals, that they found it. It was publish'd at

Basil in the Year 1580, by the care of Nicholas Cifnerus. The Title of that Edition bears Joannis Aventini annalium Bojorum libri VII ex autenticis manuscriptis codicibus recogniti, resituti, aucht diligentia Nicolai Cisneri. Coeffeteau could not forbear large. Ing his Anger against the Edition of Cisnerie. What he says (c) Aventin is no credible Automate (c) Cosserbose Ecclesiastical Matters, having no other aim in his teau s Annuals than to dishonour the Clergy, and above all he is swer to the exceptionable in the History of Gregory VII. Mystery of The Incontinency of his Pen in those Matters, was the Iniquity of cause that Zieglerus had cut off many of his lying the Sieur Narratives, and Investives against the Clergy from it Du Plesin his sirst Impression, but the Protestants, who turn sis, p 673 their Ears from the Truth, to give themselves over to Fables, and not bear that Correction, and have publish'd Shosa Annals to us, with all that sith

(D) But Counsels full of uncertainties] See here what Mr Bullart relates concerning the Answers that the Books made "(d) Secrates left it undeci-(d) Bul"ded by this Discourse which he held formerly to lart ubi
"a young Man who was in the same irresolution supra,
"Marry, or do not Marry, you cannot fail to repent of pag 148
"the one and the other He would have needed no
"other Council, if he had believ'd that of Dioge"nes, who said to young Persons that it was yet too soon
"to Marry, and to old ones, that it was too late Eu"ripides flatter'd his desire, by saying, That a Wife
"is a sweet comfort to a Husband in his Sicknesses and "Adversities, but afflicted him with several other Sen"tences which he pronounc'd elsewhere against "that Sex" It is a meer Romance, and sugging opportunity to set out a common place the Life of Aventine notes expressly, that he sim'd only several places of Scripture with two is his Friends, Sapins multiple locos ex sacris literis suadentes.

Or dissuadentes multiple services.

only several places of Scripture with two of his Friends, Sepius enulses loces ex secris literis suadentes. Or dissuadentes missionem protalit

(E) He conclusion Morriage Let us continue to hear the same for Advice among the Dead and the Live for Advice among the Dead and what have nature Companien to assist and serve me in the gleru weakness of Logick, conclusion was accord-says, ing to the Rules of Logick, conclusion sea accord-says, ing to the Rules of Logick, conclusion fequiture debilierem neckne partern On the one side his Books and his Friends suadiadvis'd him to deliberate all his Life time, and on nino't the other side his Infirmity advis'd him to Marry sideral By his Conclusion he took the weaker side But tander had he not two Children in sew Years, though the proru ill-savouredness and Scolding of his Devilish Wise pens were not very proper to warm him? He was in the hæc v wrong then to say, that he wanted a Wise be dixit cause of the Weakness of his Age He had also nex so need of one, for the youthful remains which he mish nistra

(1) 11 %o

him (F) filtinly, for the brought him a Woman of the Country of Suabia, who had Leonar-three great Impertections, I say a Woman that was Poor, Ill-favour'd, and Vexatious, dus ab which gave him occasion to make (G) many Typeriments After his Wedding, he hi- † He had a House at Ratisbon, and afterwards he was called to Ingolstadt in 1523, to be Pre- a son that the bad of one of the Duke of Bavaria's * Counsellors Sons He would take his Wife died with him thither, and for that purpose harmade a Journey to Ratubon in the Christmass + Taken from his Holydays, but by the way he was the head of the Sickness, of which he died at Ratubon Life, comthe 19th of fanuary 1534, aged the Helest but one + Daughter, who was but posed by a little above two Months old He was Buried there in the Church of St Hemeran, Jerom where his Epitaph gives him the praise of a good Catholick | In the mean while it is It is at the found by the Inquiries which the Jesuits have made, that he was (H) a good private Luberan analysis. theran Annals

(F) Who diceiv'd him filthily] His Historian does him much wrong have, for fee how he expresses himself, Durit Salving, morosam mulierem, illepidam, or omnino pauperem, decenus ab anu quadam, qua ei illam ut famulam saltem adduxerat. I he old Woman did not bring him that Maid of Suabia for a Wife for him, but only as a Servant. Wherein then did sie for, for by taking his Expressions right, the old Woman might ensity be justified, and all the fault laid on the good old Man. It may be believed, that having resolved to be married, and that having lost too much time already, considering his Age, lost too much time already, considering his Age, he took the sirst Maid that came to his hand, which the took the first Maid that came to his hand, which was his own Servant, and so he became a fit Sub

(f) See the jest to increase the List of the Colletes (f), and of Menagia- so many others that have married their Servants na, p m

(G) Tomake many Experiments] "Having resolutions by his the Remark E of "Marriage, he had nothing elie to do, but to memark E of "ditate on the Alteration of his List, and to conthe Article" sider if it is less vexatious to seed a poor Wite, Brises "than to suffer the Pride of a rich one, to possess Brife's "than to fuffer the Pride of a rich one, to possess one that no Body else will have, or to keep a ubiture."

Tair one As his Wife was at least as bad as the company of Socrates, that great Philosopher's Exringius, Charles also leaved Georges was very unhanringius, differt de Rebusp
apud Magirum EWife been but fair and telve limit for a continual to a good Harbour, and to be shelter d from a thousand Inconveniencies, but girum EWife been but fair and rich, but she had nothing ponymol for her Portion, but her ill-favour diefs, and quar-Critic pag 90 relsom Humour (a) Aventinus vir doctus, magni judicii integritatisque si d fortunu adamedum tenui, quam (b) Rara corrupit ulterius ducta uxore rivista malorum morum, est adeo ut cum duobus malis paupertate or uxore mala ipsi suerit concordia conflict and um formæ, Perhaps we may do him justice, if we suppose, Atq, puthat he did not Marry that Wife without having dicitia. feriously consider dall Inconveniencies She could Juv Sat not deceive him as to her Ill-favour'dness, for he so that he could not think that she was Rich He cum for therefore knew plainly two Defects which she ma magna pudicitize that fhe was poor But this knowledge cannot make us conclude that he acted imprudently, for Ovidius it might promife to rid him of a thousand infusserable Inconveniencies. As he had read much, he rable Inconveniencies As he had read indent, he received the Ancients, on the inest pul- (b) Discord between Beauty, and Chastity, and the chriss seguiture, and the accompanies handsome (c) Maids, and quiture, sa Wife with a Rich (d) Dowry These superbia with the College, and there are a formant. fuperbia formam

formam
Ovedius

thousand occasions to apply them every Day which makes them to remain strongly imprinted in the makes the makes the makes the makes the makes the make dote fieto ferolaut

laut

condition of an old Husband, that has a young and handsom Wise, yet nevertheless they are less disficult to be avoided, than those that are imaginary I mean, that such a Husband has more reason to fear the Vexation of his Jealousie, than the Disloyalty of his Wise It happens oftner that a Man is jealous of his Wise without a Cause, than that she is dishonest without his feeling any disquiet for It There is then some likelihood that Aventine was more mistrustful of himself than of a handsom was more mistrustful of himself, than of a handsom Wise, and that he argued as thus I would have her to be effectively chaste, but am I well assured, that I shall not be so weak to be suspicious of her when I perceive her (e) to please my Neighbours (e) Magno and Friends, and that they endeavour to please Periculo her? Let my Jealouse be as ill grounded as Peocustodiple would have it, it will not therefore be a less tur quod savage and crue! Tormenter The surest way is multis not to expose my self to it, and to Marry this Seiplacet vant, whose Ill-savour'dness will draw me out of Publius all Disquiets. for casta est quam nemo rogavit If she Syrus was more mistrustful of himself, than of a handsom all Disquiets, for casta est quam nemo rogavit. If she Syrus should really form an ill Design, where would she find Corrupters? And besides, as she is Poor, I shall have no reason to fear that she will be Imperious. rious She will be of a submissive Mind will not dare make a noise, and contradict me Don't I know what the (f) ancient Poets have said? If we supwhat the (f) ancient Poets have faid? If we sup-pose that he took the Matter in that sense, we shall them has find him more unfortunate than imprudent I or said, spon-lastly, the Reasons that had determined him to his sum sine lastly, the Reasons that had determin'd him to his choice, are specious and dazling, but it must also be supposed, that the third Defect was not known to him, and that his Servant had the Wit to hide her Vexatious, Grumbling, tormenting, and crossgrain'd Humour She took care not to discover it, for she quickly perceived that her Master was resolved to Marry at any rate, and without doubt it was not long before he gave some Signs which made her believe that he would not look for a Wise out of his own House As things are not to be judged Quick industry the Event, let us take good heed not to blame him for Imprudence, under pretence that his Marels are some signs which made her believe that he would not look for a Wise out of his own House As things are not to be judged Quick industry. him for Imprudence, under pretence that his Marest ea in riage was unhappy. The wisest are caught in it potestate Cato (g) was deceived by his own Arguments in est viri, such a case In a word, two things must be known, Dotatæ to fay that Aventine was imprudent, the first that machant he did not weigh the reasons before mention'd on & malo both sides, the other, that if he had marry'd a & damno Young, Rich, and Jolly Wife, he would not have viros had so many Vexations as he had after he had marry'd his Servant These are the Springs of rash Judg-(g) Seeone ments, Persons are condemn'd without either of the Reknowing the secret Motives well weighed, and well marks of examin'd that determinate them, nor what would his Artichave happen'd if they had made choice after another ide have happen'd if they had made choice after another ile manner (H) That he was a good private Lutheran] I fay private, for feeing that he was buried in a Catholick Church, with the usual Ceremonies, and that they plac'd Vera Religionis amater on his Epitaph, it must be believ'd, that he did not declare himself publickly for the Protestants, no not when he was at the Point of Death, in that decisive Moment (h) Sec when there is no more occasion to dissemble It is Rivet in when there is no more occasion to dissemble It is Rivet in true also, that the Style of his History is altoge-his Answer ther Roman Catholick, if those Places are excepted to Coeffewhere he treats so freely against the Tyranny of teau for the Popes, and the loose Manners of the Clergy (b) Du Pless It must not be thought strange then that Mr Du T 2 p 167 Pless objects him to those of the Church of Rome, as a Witness that was one of their own Religion (1) Gretmr Du Plessis was ignorant of the private Memoirs for in Exthat Father Gretzer had publish'd See here a Pass amine sage of that Jeiut, Addit (1) Plesseus Investica Mysteris Aventiniana banc clausulan, hac quidem licet pro- Plessiani, sessione Romanus, plura forte si licusset, disturus cap 45 Professione Romanus, hoc est Catholicus, non fuit Aventi- pig 354-

```
AVENTINE. 'AVERROES.
 *See all his theran It is by this, that those of the Church of Rome endeavour to weaken the force of (d) Coi Names in his Evidence against the conduct of the Popes, and the bad I ives of the Priests; for the ringing plants in his Evidence against the conduct of the Popes, and the bad I ives of the Priests; for the ubiting the Re- Protestants have quoted Aventine's Annals a thousand times, to shew the Disorders of the mark C. Church Most part of the Annals a thousand times, to shew the Disorders of the Church Most part of that Authors (I) other Wittings have not been printed (1) Bri the Linguistans, was of † Corduba, and flourish'd (A) in the 12th Century He had an emerse the Linguistans, was of † Corduba, and flourish'd (A) in the 12th Century He had an emerse the Linguistans.
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    He had an times in extraordinary bu Ann renov 1-that fometimes he would begin again a little after SeeZeil Supper, and fit to it until Midnight As he had de Hift broke (d) the Ice for those that have wrought on P 13 Coldubi nus, sed hæreticus, cujus criminis ut alia probamenta is a t t) accssint, id tamen satis superque liqueret ex epistola Me-of Atabia landhonis ad Aventinum quame exipso Autographo recithe Antiquities of Bavaria, it must be no wonder that (e) they found faults in his Annals. He would (f) In have found many more in theirs, if they had given him the Materials which he gave them tar Bit Lambecius (f) has reprimanded him in many orthic tar belongs.
                                  tavi lib 2 contra Calvinianum replicatorem, cap 19 Ciefficeau did not know that Circumstance, never-Coefficeau did not know that Circumstance, nevertheless he maintains boldly, that Aventine was an (1) Coeff Heretick. He says (k), As for Du Plessis making him to Aventine of the Roman Prosession, we will never agree the Mission to it. His Language discovers him, and in all his Anostropical nais he shows how his Passion transports him against the Holy See Therefore to cut him short, all what they object against us from him is not worth a Chesnut Leaf, and I sudge him no more worthy of an Auswer, than the Imposion of the Benno, by whose Memoirs he wrote the Life of that (1) To wi, (1) Pontist In the Index of forbidden Books, Ascreword, quartine has been called a Lutbergen Author, never-things

(K) Mr Moreri had no good fucces in that Article 1 Vide N

1st, That in the first Edition he spoke of Aventine giri E 1

under the Letter I, it is a pardonable Fault, but he is blameable for a Relapse I se could not be ignorant that every body complain'd for his having plac'd the illustrious Persons according to their Christian Names Why then was not the Subject of that Con plaint avoided in the following Editions?

2 Aventine was born in the Year 1466, and not in the Year 1460 3 Having once committed that fault, Aventine dying in the Year 1534, he ought not to have given him 68 Years of Age He must lye once again, in making him to live 74 les Bo rumlity once again, in making him to live 74 les Bo Years, and there is a very great Mistake committed, for not hiving added this second Lye to the first, for he pretends, that there was but 68 Years from the Year 1646, to the Year 1534 4 It is not true, that Nicholas Gisner published Aventine's Annals He ought to have faid (g) Nicholas Cisner 5 Io say that Nicholas Cisner published these Annals with Additions, would be very improperly spoken, for this would be to say plainly, Cisner that he had added certain things to them, on his Vossiu own bottom, and of his own growth Now this History
   (1) To we, (1) Ponteff Gregory ventine has been called a Lutheran Author, nev the less from ord does not believe him a Heretick, but only like Erasmus makes him to speak too freely against the Detects of the Monks (m) Liberishett I 10-mae enim lingua (hæreticæ dicere non ausim, neque puto) mondus of plane Erafmica in Monachorum of Ecclesiasticorum vi-in libro tia suit Aventinus Plus etiam nimio tavens Schiide orle maticis, & paium integra side res Rom Pontiscum terix im- productife perhibetur, ideoque meruit in classe auttomoh rum, cautt legendorum ab Indice expurgatorio recen-p 24, 25 feri Men of the greatest Memory, don't remember whatever is common enough I am going to give an I xample of it Conringing had torgot that those who publish d Aventine's Annals at Ingolftadt, had (n) re(n) See the thench d what did not appear agreeable to the Chara-R mark C there of a good Catholick He fays, Libri equi(0) post mortingins apparent primos saltem editors non improbasse que ib irepeapud Marrier He confesses, that Aventum held a Commerce apud Ma-girum,

ibi lupra

by Nine, and that he inclin'd on their fide, which did not hinder him from dying in the Roman Communion (p) I veit superiori seculo quando maxima illa sicroi um mutatio sicret, & multa pontificia religionis do mata improbavit Per literas familiaritatem coluit cum Protestantium nonnulus, & cum Philippo quoque Melanchtone Reperire tamen non potus reliquisse cum pe-nitus Ecclesiam Romanam utut in Protestantes videatus propension l'init enim & mortuus est in illa Ecclesia, sepultusque Reginoburg in Monasterio & Emerani ceremo-niss pontificia Ecclesia usicatis I observe, that Aven-tine I ate may be justly compar'd with that of Fra-(1) Most part of that Author's other Writings have

```

(a) Vossi- not been printed] Vossius (a) observes, that Aventine us ubi in- informs his Readers in the 2,6th Page of his Annuls (which is the 344th in the Edition of 1580) that he had publish d the History of Octingen, a City of Swalia, publicate a se historie Utinenssum me-min t, Gisner has not mention'd that History, but spake only of a Grammar publish'd by Aventine in the Year 1519, and of a Book concerning the man-ner of counting on the Fingers, publish d at Ratubon in the Year 1532, to which the Author had joyn'd the Summary of a great Work, that only required the Assistance of a Mecanas to come out of the Press Here is the Title of the Book printed in 153 Numerandi per d gitos manusque (quin etiam loquendi) veterum consuetudinis abacus, sive explicatio ex Beda cum pitturu & imaginibui,una cum capitibus rerum quibus illustrabitur Germania ab Aventino, modo continof that great Work of Aventine Whereby it appears, that the same Author had formed a very fine and large Plan to illustrate the Antiquities of Germany The general view of the Matters The general view of the Matters 10 49th of which he undertook, is sufficient to cause an assorbic Cintu nishment. See the Letter (*) which he wrote to 1) puol sh d I adianus in 1530. He was speedily to have publis Gold sil sish d such another Chronicle as that of Eusebius, an (b) See. Leclesinstical History from the beginning of the Gesner, World to his time, some ancient Grammarians, a Biblioth. Greek and I atin Dictionary, Annotations on Clausofol 386. dian (b), &c. But it is not known what is become (c) Ziege of those World. To comprehend that he might lerus in be sufficient for so many Writings, you must know ejus vita. (c) that he begin to study by break of Day, and Germany

properly spoken, for this would be to say plainty, Cisner that he had added certain things to them, off his Vossius own bottom, and of his own growth Now this Histor he has not done. His Labour amounts to this Lat pa He published those Annals after a Manuscript of 655 Aventine, that had not been castrated, so that his Vossius and a standard of the same that he would be said to the same that he was the was the same that he was the was the same that he was the Edition is more ample than that of Zieglerus, because fomewh it contains all the Parts which Zieglerus had sup- in the press vossilist words (b) that made Moreri stumble, wrong, would not have deceived an attentive Person. They to have infinuate clearly enough, that Cisner did only re-touched fore to Augustine what had been taken from him Contains. infinuate clearly enough, that Cifner did only re-touched store to Aventine, what had been taken from him fomething Such a Priest as Moreri is, maintains a strange of the part, when he calls Nicholas Cifner's Additions maintee considerable, for those Additions consist only in Edition Investives against the Popes, and the Roman If he his Clergy 7 The other Pieces which Aventine left, spoken are those whose Septiments did not feem very of the Invectives against the Popes, and the Roman If he his Clergy 7 The other Pieces which Aventine left, spoken are not those whose Sentiments did not seem very of it, Orthodox to Cardinal Beronius That Cardinal was what I much vex'd at the Annals of Bavaria 8 He ought have que not to have quoted Baronius (i) T IX Anni A C ted mou 772, for that signifies, that Baronius consecrated at have be least 9 Volumes to the only Year 772

(A) Flourish'd in the 12th Century 1 I have seen but sew other Proofs of it than this, which is, (i) Vost that (k) his two Sons were seen by Giles of Rome, at the only the Court of Frederick Barbarossa Actatem execute Author ligimus quod Agidius Romanus in none Quotlibeto refert that M se duos ejus ssiles vidisse in aula Frederice Barbarossa reri h.

ligimus quod Ægidius Romanus in nono Quotlibeto refert that M se duos ejus silios vidisse in aula Frederici Barbarossa reti h. Is vero regere capit Anno CIO CIII ac imperavut Annos quoted e xxxvIII These are Vassius's words in the 114th terming Page of his Book de Philosophia, chap 14 See it ventine also in the 17th Chapter of the Treatise de Philosophia phorum sectus, pag 91 where he proves by the Evinave p dence of the Cosciliator, and by the same Giles of serv'd k Rome, that Auterroes sources flourish'd in the Year 1150, he from Errefers us to the Quodlibets of that Giles, lib 2 for he Quastione de unitate intellectus Reinessus (1) observes, quotes e that the Death of Averroes, is placed in the 505th TIX Year of the Hegyra, which is the 1198th of the annum Christian Epoch I wish that Mr Kong, who refers 772 us to Reinessus, had not plac'd that Death in the (k) Ni Year 1225 He ought to have referr'd us to Hot-deus A tinger, and to rectisse him, for that learned Swisilogy of tinger, and to rectifie him, for that learned Swift logy of having faid (m) after John Leo, that Averroes decea- great M fed in the 603d Year of the Hegyra, makes that accused Year to answer to our Year 1225 It is a great mi-Magick.

p m 354 he quotes Giles of Rome, quodliber 9 See also Pe Petiti Medici Parisiensis Observationes Miscellaneæ, pag 11 (1) Reinesius Epist 15 ad Hosmannum, pag 32 (m) He ting Biblioth Theol pag 279

Qui Græce nescius adagman tem Arie stotelis perspexit, quid non fecisset si linguam fcillet Græcam ? Vossiusde Philosophorum iectis, pag 90 See Keckerman's Words in the Remark I > (n) Rertolocci Biblioth. Rabbinica, Tom 1 pag 13 He quotes Caferrius in Chronolog compendio

(o) Ludovicus V1ves, de Cauliseon. ruptar.
tium, I 5 P m 167

(p) That is to Jay, by a Quo tation of a Passage of Aristotle's Misspbysicks

(q) Cx11us Rhodiginus Antiq lect lib 3 c 2 p m 110

(r) Rapin s Reflettions on Philosophy, n 15 pag 339, 340 Edit of Holland

(f) Id ib

(a)Repair Says Paris Heatings pag 32 (b) Præf Averrous apad Gef-TU TU

O Avicennæ Medica

Cissimus fuit, ut eum nominare in suis libris vereatur Symphorianus Campegius apud Gesner ib fol 100 See Calint Rhodigimus, chap 12 of the 3d Book, p. in 1684, and Scaling against Cardan, Exerc 61 n 5.

extraordinary Affection for Aristorie, and commented his Works with so much skill, that he was call'd the Commentator by way of I cellency It is to be admir'd | that not knowing felicites Greek he penetrated fo well into the sense of the Original, there is reason then to be trood Aristotle's Thoughts This some learned Men say, but others affirm, that he understood Aristotle (B) very ill, as well because he had a very mean Wit, as because he was Nepenth ignorant of good Literature Professor in the University of (C) Marocco, and pag 89 made himself very skilful in (D) Physick, but he knew the Theory of it better than (c) South the Practice He is look'd upon as the Inventor of (E) a very abfurd Opinion, and very Petit Mistake, it answers partly to our Year 1206, and partly to our Year 1207 The Bibliotheca Rabbinua of Bartolocci (n) informs me, That Averroes flourish d from the Year 1131, to the Year 1216, which was that of his Death; than his Commentaries on Ari-fiotle's Natural Philosophy, were finish'd at Sevil, in the Year 1187, and that those on the Metaphysicks, of the same Arisotle, were written in the Year 1192

(B) That he understood Allstotle very ill, as well because It is the Opinion of Lewis Vives He fays, (o) Nocause sites the Opinion of Lewis vives netaxs, (o) Nomen est commentators natius, homo qui in Aristoteli inargando nihil minus explicat, quam eum ipsum, quem sus cestivate de la inofacilitation. Sed nec potuisset explicare etiam si di inofacilitation. Sed nec potuisset explicare etiam si di inofacilitation. Sed nec potuisset ingenio, quum est thumano, & quidem intra mediocritate non Nam qui di tandem adsirebat, quo ni Aissociete enarrando possitisset si son copnitionem veteris memoria, ion scientiam placitorum prisca disciplina, & intelligintiam sciarum qui vus Ar stoteles passim scatti Itaque videas eum possime philosophus omness antiquos cutare, ut qui nullum unuquam lever ti, ionaneis antiquos citare, ut qui nullum unquani leger t, ignarus Gracitatis ac I atinita is, pro polo Ptholomaum ponit, pro Prothagora Pythagoram, pro Cratylo Democritum, li-bros Platonis titulistid culis infribit & ita de iis loquitur, ut vel caco perspicuum sit l teram cum in ill sl-g sse nullam At quam considenter audet pronuntiare hoc aut illud ab eis dici, & quod impudentius est, non dici Quum solos videret Alexandrum, Themistium, & Nico-laum Damascenum Et hos ut apparet, versos in Asabicum perversissime ac corruptissime Cisat enim eos non-nunquam, & contradicit, & cum eis rinatur, ut nec ipse quidem, qui scripsit intell gat Aristotelem verd quo-modo legit, non in sua oissine purum & integrum, non ın lacunam Latinam derivatum, non enim potuit linguarum expers, sed de Latino in Arabicum transvasaum. He proves afterwards the Eriors of that Interpreter of Aristotli, by (p) an Example See (g) Calius ter of Aristotli, by (p) an Example See (q) Calius Rhodiginus who, generally speaking, saysalmost the same thing Do not rely on Larker Rapin (r) who fame thing Do not rely on Lather Rapin (r) who makes him fay that concerning Aucenna I or that Jesuit did nor alway quote from the Original Nevertheless do not despise what he is going to tell you (1) "As Averroes d d only know Aissource the by an unfaithful Translation, he fell himself "into such horrible Alterations of the Sense of that " Philosopher, that Bagolin a Philosopher of Verona, " Zimara and Mantinus undertook in vainto correct bim

(C) Profesor in the University of Marocco] It was under the third King of the Race of the Almohades, after the Expulsion of the Almoravides Read this Passage of Reinesius (a) Quem Averroom adpellant vulgo si hole, ejus nomen integrum est Abual-Walid Mo-hammed, ebn Achmed, ebn Mohammed, eben Roshd Docuitque in Academia Maroccana auspiciis Jacobi, tertii

ex Almohadis, post ejestos Almoravidas, regis

(D) Very skilful in Physick, but he knew] His chief

Work of Physick, is that which is called colliget rein he treats of that Science in general, and hot be thought amis to find here a piece of reface. (4) For any cost poblic Description. reface (b) Ex pracepto nobilis Domini Audento Semple, qui pro consilio Suorum Philosophorum Avosait & Avenchalis injunuit mihi ut conscriberem opus, quod Arabico sermone totam Medicina Scientiam contineret, ad approbandum judicandamve sententiae veterum, ret, ad approbandum judicandamve sententiae veterum, collegi hoc opus Colleget, id est, Unjversale, sie inscriptum propter ordinem dostrina observandum, qui paulatim ab universalibus ad particularia procedit. In boc enimilibro universales regulas inchoavi, & deinceps savente Deo alium librum de iis qua particularia sunt instituam, & To make it plain that he valued his great Skill in Physick, it will be sufficient to advise, that he was a Rival of the great Avisenna, and his so great Enemy, that he avoids to name him in his Writings: (c) his affectation in that regaid is plain. In all likelihood that affectation was the reason that in confuting a Doctrine which Aucenna maintain'd, c 18 he attack'd him only according to Galen's Senti- (f) Petiments I freak only of the Doctrine which afferts tris, Miments I freak only of the Doctrine which afterts tis, Mi-that the Animal Sprits that cause loy are lucid, seell Oband those that cause Mclancholly are linck Mr Pe- servat 17 tit has not taken notice of Averroes's affectedness (7 P 99)

(d) Nunc quibus mentis penetrationibus Averrois hine 100 Avisenna opinionem impugnet, videamus quam mamico (1) Vostiloco directe Avisennam non petit, sed Calenum, spon : neum melancholicorum metum ab humorii, qui in iis a in- loiophii, dat, nigredine repetentem, verum que ibi Galino ol 1 - C 1+ P
cit, pari impetu in memoratam Aviscone opinionem re- 114 cit, pari impetu in memoratam Avisenna opinionem redeun Averroes has either exprelly, or by a detect (h) That of Memory, had a quite contrary conduct from that in regard of Avempace, for he names him as not nell the Author of a Remark, which he might have read in Philoponus (e) So much by the by Now (i) Microhe confesses himiest, that he was more learned klinus in the Theory than in the Pratick, as Mr Petri Confesses (f) Averrois fatetur de se ultro in sept no corum librorum, quos Colliger vulgus appellat, cap 6 (i) Symp Ego, inquit non studiu ei scien a (Med e ne) ut vid no compessembi in ea esse sufficiens et alvo negat se neo um numero esse qui adibent. This Pasape of is Medinero esse qui agus remedia adhibent. This Pasape of the Miller is much more esset than these Words of the Vossius, (g) Averroes Cordubensis, cognomento Commen. Vossius, (g) Averroes Cordubensis, cognomento Commen- (') Pastator, medicus non tani practicus quam theor icus quict ne fuit medicus M marolini regis. The lift voids weather the first more than they confirm them, ioi to cume of his be a Prince s Phylician, requires much practice Itiy Letre, nothing of (b) Memarol ni which was not a proper Book 191 Name, but a Name of Dignity, and confequently pig 548 not fit to be united to the world Regis Mr Merik- (m) Light and the start of the start o linus did not think of that when he faid, (1) videtur mentum M. liew fuisse Regis Miramamolini Syn phorian Cham- a mon-pier was their Lad Guide here, he raid, (1) 1 it strum als pier Was their Lad Guide here, he laid, (1) Lit thrum als Averroes lived tempore Miramalini Regis apud Gordul am Averroe. Observe that the Phylicians of Paris, favourers of confiPhlebotomy, would not easily agree, that Averroes thum was mean in the Practice of Phylick, for it is said, Pompothat his Example contributed much to extirpate in a trus de Error which they disapproved Read these words immort of Stephen Pasquier "(1) How many Ages have immore, "we exercised Phylick, supposing that a Child c 14 p
"ought not to be blooded, until it had attained the m 9
"Age of 14 Years, and that bleeding of them be"fore that time, was not a Cure, but their Death? C 3 p 7
"A Heresie which we should have hived in to this (6) Co"Day, if it had not been for Averroes an Arabian, nimbia"who ventured to make the first Experiment of it centes in on a Son of his aged about six or seven Years, 2 lib de whom he cured of a Pleurisie"
(E) As the Inventor of a very absurd Opinion I It quæst 7

(E) As the inventor of a very absard Opinion] It quaft 7 feems to me, that it were better to fay, that he has ait i clear'd and unravell dit, and that having maintain d p m 59 it with more application than was done before, he (p) Hoc has given it a kind of new Life, for the tame Pom-quidem ponations, who affirm d in the 4th Chapter, that it is argumentm) a Monster forg'd by Averroes, had also faid in tum perthe 3d Chapter that Them stus and Averroe taught movit ethe same thing (n) Averroes it aque of ut existing tiam at the ante eum Themistius concordes posuere animam intellecti- pradictvam realiter distingui ab anima corruptibili, verum ip- im intel-sam esse unam numero in emplus hominibus, mortalem lectus u-vero multiplicatam. The Jesuits of Commbrica go intatem higher, for they will have it, that Theophrassis un- in Arist derstood the Doctrine of his Master Aristotle in this doctrina manner (o) Occurrit alia sententia existimantium in afferendisciplina Aristotelis ponendam esse unam duntavat ani- dam non mam intellectricem, sive unum intellectum qui omnibus paucos è hominibus assistat, ut soli, lumen universitat Sicenim recentica hominibus affifiat, nt solis lumen universitat. Sicenim recentica Aristotelem interpretati sunt ejus discipulus & Schole ribus Pesuccessor Theophrasius, Themistius, Simplicius, Averroes ripatetialique non pauci, etsi non omnes eedem modo de hujus- cis, in modi intellettu locuti suerint. They add, that divers quibus (p) Moderns have own d, that according to Ar sto- sure

Per tus Different ry icell Obfirst 13 is de Phiim intel-

Anglicus, Achillinus, Ödo, Jandunus, Mirandulanus, Zimara Vicomercacus & quidam alii Ibid

Theni

ry contrary to Christian Orthodoxy, and which nevertheless made such formidable Progreffes

(9) Mirandulanus, 1 32 de eversione fingularis cettaminis seet i & lih 33 feet 2 &6

(r) Achillinus lib de intelligentia

(/) (ocentes in lib 3 de anıma,c 5 quæft 1 art 1 p 226

(t) Commentator iple com ig lib 3 de anima ponit ipim este ultımım intelligentiaium Pompon itius de unmort anıma, C 4 P 11

(v) (alius Rhodiginus intig lest lib 3 c 2 p m 100

numbr in lib 2 de anima, c i quaft 7 rt 2 p 60 runt Arıflorelem timpliciter probaic intelle&um poffibi-lem effe ımmıxtum & immaterialem Pomponatius ubi fupra, P 7

(a) Pomubi fupra, lag 8

gancy

the's Hypothesis, the Understanding of all Men is one and the same Substance, but that some among those Mederns will have it to be as an affishant form to all Men, and that others maintain that it is there in the quality of an informing form The latter Opinion is that of (q) Mirandulanus, and (1) of Achillinus But fee here a mistake like that of Pomponatius I he Jeluits of Commbrica impute of Pomponatius I he Jeluits of Commbrics impute ellewhere the Invention of the unity of the Understandings of all Men to Averroes This will appear the more jurprizing, when the Words are iten which precede those where they affirm it (1) Secunda (lententia) fuit Avicanna 9 Metaph cap quarto, & in lib Natur part 5 Avempace in epistela de lumine, & Graci cujuldam Marini cujus mentionem facit hoc loco Philodonus. assur.um virallassum accusant facit hoc loco Philoponus, agentium intellectum agentem esse substantiam quandam separatam, quam Avicenna Cho'cod am nuncupabat Idem placuit Averroi in libello Cho'codeam nuncupabat Idem placuit Averres in libello de beatstudine anima, cap 5 & in epitome Metaph tractatu 4 qui errori errorein subnectens, aliorum vestigia sicutus, unum omnium hominum finxit communem intellectum, ut alibi retulimus. That is to say, That the Unity of the Understanding is a Fiction which Averrors has added to the Errors of others, yet nevertheless it is plain, that this Fiction does not defect from the Doctrine which they attributed to Averroes (t) as the Intellect of Man, is the utmost of Intelligences, which occupies the lowest place of the Universe Esse mentium insimam omnium, & unicam Nam sicuti calestis globi singuli singulas habere mentes videntur, ita & orbis hicinseror unam, ut ipsi vult, habet, qua non hujus hominis sit, vel illiut ipse vult, habet, que non hujus hominis sit, vel illi-us Sed humane species mens sit, & dicatur, ut species unica unicus sit intellectus in hoc orbe inferiori, ut plerique intell gunt, ub que totus compingi (v) However, unica unicus sit intellectus in hoc orbe inferiori, ut plerique intell gunt, ub que totus compingi (v) However, when these Jesuits confute the pretended Unity of the Intellect of all Men, they attack that Philosopher only, they are so much perswaded, that he deserves at least to be held the chief Desender of that Chimera. I hey observe that Scot has said that Averroes made himself worthy to be Excommunicated by human Race, and that others say, That his Doctrine is such a dieadful Monster, that the I orrests of Arabia never produc'd a greater (w) Hec Commentatoris seu commentatoris possus de unitate intellectus seutentia adea stulta est. ut merito Scotus tate intellectus sententia adeo stulta est, ut merito Scotus in 4 d 43 g 2 dixerit dignum esse Averrorem qui ob has ineptias ex hominum communione averruncetur Alii vero hoe equi sigmentum monstrum vocarint quo nullum majus Arabum | low genuerint Certe hoc unum fat effe debuisset ad cos coarguendos qui filium Rois tanti faciunt, ut clus an mam Aristotelis animam esse dicant. The last part of this Passage informs us, that among other Elogies, that of having Aristote's Soul was given to that Arabian. The Jeiuts of Commbrica, will have it, that to confute this, it is sufficient to have regard to the Doctrine of the Unity of the Understanding That Resection is falle, for, as divers Moderns have own'd that Dostrine is only an That Reflection is falle, for, as diextension, and unraveling of Aristotle's Principles I could mike divers Remarks to prove this, but will be fatisfied with this, that according to that Philosopher's Hypothesis, the multiplication of the Individuals, can have no other foundation than Individuals, can have no other foundation than Matter, from whence it follows, that the understanding is fingular, seeing that according to Arisotle, it is (x) separate and distinct from Matter This Observation is of Pomponatius (a) Qued vero unicus sit intellectus in omnibus bominibus some possibilis ponatur, pascre possis ex es queniam apud Peripateticos est celebrata propositie, multiplicationem individuerum in cadem socie este una possibilitation per materiam organism. cadem specie non posse esse nis per materiam quantum, ut dicitur 7 & 12 Metaph, & 2 de anima Altho' this Opinion of Averrees, may be grounded on Aristotle, yet it is impious and absurd at the bottom, It is impious, seeing it leads to believe (b) that the Soul, which is properly the form of Man, dies with the Rody, it is absurd for what can be faid with the Body, it is abfurd, for what can be faid more senceless than to maintain, that two Men that should kill each other, being both of them directed by their Intellectual Operations, have the same soul? What can be imagin'd more Chimerical than end of the to pretend that two Philosophers, whereof one de-Remark H mes, and the other affirms the same Thesis at one and the same time, are but one only Being as to the Intellect. Let us examine what an Adversary of Pempematius, propos'd against that Extrava-

First, He consutes it as it supposes that the Intellect is not in Man, and afterwards as it supposes that all Men have but one and the same Intellect. On the first Point (c) he enquires why an Understanding which ought to unite it's Operation, to that of Man, in the most intimate manner that is conceivable in that kind, should think to dishonour it self by its uniting mortaliwith the Organs to compose an individual with them? You will casily apprehend the intimate Union that is mention'd there, if you take notice that according to the Aversists, the Soul of Man is not capable of understanding without the help of that affishing Intellect. It must be then that of that affifting Intellect It must be then that affectas, that Intellect supplies by its Operation what is pag 368 wanting to the Soul of Man, and consequently our Intellectual Acts depend on two Principles, whereof one is as a passive and desective Subject, the other is an active and perfecting Principle It is true then, that the Concourse of those two Principles ciples terminate to the same effect, and that the Action of the Intellect of the Averreifts, unites it felf thus in a most intimate manner with the understanding Soul This difficulty is not great, for the Union that is objected, is not more intimate, than the Operation of God with the Operation of the Creature, according to the Dostrine of the Concourse, yet nevertheless it does not follow, that theie two Causes ought personally to unite themselves The Author (a) pretends to prevent this Answer by saying, That the Operation of the mondus Intellect of the Averraists, is immanent and partiable p 365 cular, which cannot be said of the Concourse of Cod but the may easily be answered for that he God, but this may easily be answer'd, so that his Dispute is not triumphant as to the first Point, as it is as to the second, for behold how he presses Averrees That Intellect of which you speak, is either God, or a Creature If it is God, I ask you this Question, Does he act within or without himself? If without himself, what (e) a Monster would not an Operation of the Understanding be, that is plaan Operation of the Understanding be, that is placed without the Intellect, and in another Person? This proves too much, from thence it must be intellected for detailed to the Divine Wistom cannot produce an Operation of Intelligence in the Soul of Man, intellemental producing it in himself. Now this is false that account of the other Member of the Question sisted to reduces the Averrages to the last gasp. It God torms the Operations of Intelligence in himself toto ab eathat are in Man, how many Errors does he nourish in his Bosom? (f) Sed neque intra Deum continere supposings (intellectio) quod immensor in eum errores toties to? Id is posest (intellectio) quad immensor in eum errores toties to? Id ib inveheret, quoties opinione sud sallerentur homines, ne- Pag 370 que enim prosus ulla valeret excusatio, quin prima ac summa veritas à se ipsa monstrose desiceret, si assignanda (f) ld ib ips essent, si in sinu ejus & complexu reponenda que cunque esse possunt salsa bominum judicia. If they aniwer that that is a created Intellect, the Author (g) replies, that a Creature does not feem to be fo fitly P 371,372 fufficient to modifie all humane Souls at the fame time Befides, that the contrary Opinions that reign among Men, cannot lodge together in one single Understanding Quomodo in unam & candem intelligentiam simul cadet contrarietas illa opinionum & Sentemiarum, quam totics in hominibus experimer, cum unus ait, alter negat de codem idem ? Qua cadem questio impedire posest adversarium in responsione jamijam enplosa de intellettu divimo. This last Objection has the same force against those that should say that that Intellect is God. It is also by this that (b) Spino-assim is also invincibly consisted. Observe that the Author owns (i) that all the strength of his Objection consists in that he pretends to have provid, that the Operation of the Understanding of the that the Operation of the Understanding of the averages, on the Souls of Men, is inherent I do (¿Anco not believe that they are oblig'd to agree that he proves it. As to what remains, he declares, that he would have nothing to fay against Average's p 372 so Thought, M that Philosopher had only spoke of the Operation of the Divine Wisdom, consider'd the Operation of the Operation as the firm Caufe (k) Reffat ergo, ap sum ifind som-nium integrum Averroes somnis loco & mendacii habers. sinat, aut certé interpretetur ipse, de actione intellectus divim, qua parte non intellectus quidem pracife, sed est prima causa, in omnes causarum secundarum, adcoius prima couja, in omnes caujarum jecunum am, autorus inferiorum intelligentiarum effectus en virtute sud influens aliquid (1) An ita possit accipi, non disputo, illud comentus ostendisse, quod nits quid simile sonet ejun doctrina, inanis ac stulta sit, se quid autom simile, ne

natium &

(d)Id Sir-1b p 369

hoc por-

(g) Id 1b

(b) Seethe Anticle of Spinoza. Observat I (.)Ancon. Sixmon-P 374

(k) Id. ib

(1) Doid. P 373

gresses among divers Italian Philosophers, that it was proscrib'd (F) by the Pope's Authority. This Opinion is, That there is an Intelligence, which without multiplying it self, animates all the Individuals of human species, in as much as they exercise the Functions of icasonable Souls There is scirce any Book, whereby it appears, that Spinozi, Averroes was of a better Mind, besides that which be its the (G) Title of, Destruct ones destruct 10num

(a) That of the Vindication of the Truth of the Christian Religion,

cb 15

pilum quidem nobis adversantem habeat He tells us, That he has abstain'd from the Objections which Thomas Aquinas propos'd against the Hypothesis of that Arabian I inform you, that it is perfectly consuted in a (a) Work of M1 Du Plessis

It is to be wondered at, that fuch fublime Genius's, as those of Aristotle, and of Averroes, have forg'd so many Chimera's on the Understanding, but I dare say, they never would have soig d them if they had not been great Wits It is by a strong or they had stored from the beautiful to the Difference. found no other recourse, than to fay that we see that God is the general Intelligence of all Spirits, in lib 3 de anima, c 5 quæst r artic r p m 226

(b) Malle-branch's

Inquiry af-

Book 3 c 1

& seq of

Part 2

(c) Co-

nimbric

(d) Seethe Article of thu Anfelmus

(e) Valde dubito, si vel totidem annos quot Vixerat ıllı addı-dıffet Dearbiter, ad finem quæstiorus dubiæ unquam potuerit perveni-re Thomas Bartholinus differtat 6 de legendis libiis, pag 164

(f) Du Pleffis Morhay's Vindication of the Truth of the Chriftian Religion,ch i s fol m 208

penetiation that they discover d such Difficulties, that constrain'd them to move out of the common road, and despise divers other ways where they did road, and despise divers other ways where they did not meet with what they sought. The most centain knowledge which they had of the Nature of the Soul is, that it is capable to think i thousand things successively, but they could not comprehend how it reduc'd that Faculty into Astron. The Operation of Objects, their Species, their Remblances as much refind in the Biain as you please, nothing of all this icems capable to give the Soul that actual Intelligence. See with what soice I ather Mallebranch (b) consutes all what is said of the Manner by which we know things. He found no other recourse, than to say that we see them in God, and that the Ideas are not produc'd in our Souls Some ancient Philosophers have faid, that is to fry, that he pours knowledge upon them as the Sun disperies Light on the Bodics Read these words of the Jesuits of Commbrida (c) Prima sententia fuit Alexandri libro secundo de anin a, cap 20 & 21 existimantis intellicium agentem esse invellicium universalem omnium conditorem, hoc est Deum, quod esi-amablatonis dogma libro sexto de republica fuisse creditur qui intellectum agentem nostros animos calitus irradiantem comparavit Soli, ut ex Thimistio hoc in lib refert tem comparavit joli, ut ex Insmissio noc in lib resert divus Thomas I pari quest 79 articulo quarto In cundem errorem lapsus fuit Priscianus Lydus asserens, n elletium agentem non esse partem animæ sed mentem primam atque divinam, vel ideam boni. When a Subject Matter is very obsenie, it is no wonder that the greatest Philosophers speak a little aside of it, and on Suppositions that are not cally apprehended. nd on Suppositions that are not cashly apprehended Now if there ever was any distinct matter, it is that of forming the I hought. It is perhaps more impenetrable than that of the Original of the Soul Bartholin's Reflection on a thing which is reported of St Anselm, is of good icnie It is affirm'd, that that Archbishop of Canterbury findring himself near Death, at the Age of Seventy-fix Years, (d) wish'd for a little Delay, that he might finish a very obscure Question, which he had begun on the Original of the Soul If he had obtain'd yet 76 Years of Life more, jays Bartholin (e), I doubt whether he could have made an end of fuch an obscure Question Observe, that most of the Cartesians teach, That as there is none but God Cartesians teach, That as there is none but God that can give Motion to the Body, so there is none but God that can modifie the Spirits They except the Actions that make the Soul guilty But as for all that which is called Schiation, Imagination Passion, Memory, Idea, they pretend that God is the efficient and immediate cause of it, and that the Actions of the Objects, or the Motion of our Animal Spirits is but the occasional souls. our Animal Spirits, is but the occasional cause thereof This Opinion is but an extension of that which is attributed to a famous Interpreter of Ariflotle, and which Mr Du Plessis Mornay confutes by Specious Reasons, but such as our Carressans would not embarass themselves with Let us see something of what he produces (f) As to the Opinion of Alexander (Aphiodisensis) who maintains that there is an actual universal Intellect, which imprints the passible Intellect, to wit, every one's Capacity, and reduces it into Action, most of the Reasons produced above against Averroes, serve also against him But, because by that attive Intellect, he seems to mean God himself, there is more over this, That God who is all Good and Wise, would not imprint the follies and Malignities into our Understanding which we find in it, neither would be leave the same in so much Ignorance and Obscurity as we feel in it, but conquer in all Men that Contagion which this Body brings with it, and the heshould not inspire or influence so many it has to the one as to the o her, according to the several Capacities of this plain Table, yet nevertheless he would not paint a great number of falle Features in it, which each of us may perceive in himself Furthermore, either the Insluvion would be perpetual, or interrupted of perpetual, me hould evidence of the percentual. perpetual, we should under stand all what our imagination should represent unto us without Troub'e or Art If interrupted, we should not be able to understand any thing Bouille in what seem as forver, nor to will what we would Now on the the Life of contrary, we can scarce apprehend some thing and we Rumond must overcome the ignorance of our understand no, as it were by degrees, and there are others which we understand as soon as they appear, and when we plase

(F) Made fuch formidable Progression and when we place

(F) Made fuch formidable Progression that it was proserved by the Popes Authority I (1) Lid have reported the Words of one of Pope Leo \ his Vives de Bulls, which was approved in the Council of Ia-ciusts teran, in (g) another place I add here, that Rin mond Lulli tolicited Pope Gloment V instantly to ution, condense described Computation on suffact, and lib 5 pm condemn Averses Cemmentaries on Ariforle, and liber that he endeavoured to ingage Philip the I ar King 167 of France, to do the like He represented, that they are Books full of pernicious Litors, and which (1) Climay lead young Perions by degrees to Imprety Vigny de He requested, petition d, and made a Book on that Sainte Subject, but found both the Pope and the king of Honorine Fran edentio it (b) At this pictent it is neither ne- of the use cettary to defire this, not to pray that at least it may of suspers-be to bid to hold that Philotopher for in Oricle, his ed Bools, Au hority is void, for no body wissestime to read P 48, 49 him. But some Centuries have been much infatuated with his Doctime Read what follows (1) Congruentior & exauditu fac lior fuiffet petitio pro qua nunc, (quæ De lenien tas est.) non est la arendum Nimirum ne Acciross oracule loco este in Schol e Quod cum superiore seculo, & paices an erroribue invalu fet, viror belpiefertim in Italia, ut Canus lib to de locise 5 notavit, occasio fuit nagnorum in oris illis errorum & tute illuinutilis diligentia qua aliqui non minus in per colutant'o fit lib. Actroe collocabant opera, quam in fact s literis ponant, 4 Pig miqui its maxime delectantur. Ne fidei minus Averoi in that tribucrunt, quam oprimi quique fideles Canon eis seripto- bajizzet II tribuerunt, quam optimi quique fideles Canon els seripto- bastact II ribus Quod indignissimum fuisse, nemo non videt Nunc Peripace-Authoric in scholis depontanus enaste ludovicus l'ives tici Avercomplain d'eligit much of the Authority which tois opitl at Arabian Philosopher had obtain d (k) Quem monibus Philosophi de nostra Schola, qui post eum scripfere, ita soulectra sunt amplexati, ut penè authoritate Aristoteli adaquabutui rint, nec solum qui longo post intervallo viaciount, si d qui illus quoque etate Quod fablum est & ignorantia meliultus quoque etate Quod fablum est & ignorantia meliorum. Er administrate mercinopus luqua des sociaveito paorum, & admiratione mercimonii lingua & sinfis peregrini Ut gratiam ei conciliaret apud primos novitai, lamAveiapud posteros vetusias. He notes a lucky (linectossitem se there. Some foitunate Wits please it sirst for prositebatur. Novelty, and at last for their Antiquity. Let my Readers examine this irguing of a Mo-Hree seu dern (1) It ought to be no monday. dern (1) It ought to be no wonder to see that Men have had so much esteem for Averroes, seeing Cardan's Father, who made use of Magick, assures us, that the Devils themselves have admired his Dostrine, wherewith Bajazeth diverted himself in his great st Pains of the Gout, which is no less advantageous proof to bull vishew its Merit, tian its having astonished the Intelligences If that which concerns Bajazet, is not more faits aifaithfully reported (m) than the rest, I question it gumento much, to relate well what regards Gardan's Father, to relate well what regards Cardan's Father, and the top of th it ought to have been faid, that one of the Spirits that appeared to him, made Protession of being an Averroist, and not that Averroes aftonish'd the Intelligences, and it ought to have been added that Cardan himself infinuates (n) that this I ale of P m 682 his Fither was I abulous

(G) Which bears the Title of Definetiones De- (e) See Reifructionum] Or, Destructionum Destructorin The nessus e- Arabick Title is (e) Hahapalah al ahapalah In pist 15 Anabuk Title is (a) Hahapalah Al ahapalah In Pift 15 ad Hofm pinions that Algazel had maintain d against the Pag 33 Philosophers Most of these Opinions of Algazel are very bad, as for example, he (p) opposed (p) So what the Philosophers said, that the World is the Work of God, and that God is an Agent, that he B bis of the is an only Being, Simple, and Incorporeal, and that fol is there cannot be two uncreated Natures Seeing Averrage

(e) In the

(b) Theoph Raynaudus crotem de malis lıb n 340 pm 200 gination be quotes

If in- Chules Lullius

() Id 15

and libs pm

(m) I find only in Paul Joviusclog h i viilamAveiicu tabula habuir Quod fibula vieffe debet quod, &c de fubtilit lib 19

Averroe

structionum contra Algazelem Very disadvantageous Reports are made of (H) that Philo-Topher's Religion, for it is faid, that he did not only despise the Jewish and the Christian, but

(a) Rapin Reflex on Philosophy, n 30 pm Selecta 112 c 36

Averree maintains the Philosophers part in all theie Propositions, it cannot be denied, but that the labours in favour of Orthodoxy In (a) Father Rapin's Opinion, it is one of his best pieces But on the other side, can the good cause finds its Account in the Service which such a Desender might (b) See Poslevin's

Bibliotheca

Beings are Eternal, and that God does not know particular things, and does not extend his Providence over the Individuals of this World?

(H) I et al sadvantagious Reports are made of that Philosophers Religion | You will find in Moreri's Dictionary, that according to his Opinion, Christianity was an impossible Religion, that Judaism was a Religion of Children, and that Mahometism was a Religion of Swines, and that afterward he was a Religion of Swines, and that afterward he cryed out, Moriatur anima mea morte Philosophorum, that is to say, Let my Soul die the Death of Philosophers Behold, in what manner he imitated Balaam, who said, (c) Let me die the Death of the Righteous, and let my last end be like his Mr Moreri does not exactly relate what concerns Christianity, he says, Auguste call'd it an impossible Religion. he fays, Averroes call'd it an impossible Religion, because of the Mystery of the Eucharst It is certain that that Philosopher did not speak so obligingly of it when he restected on the Practice of the Communion of Rome Read these words of Mr Daille, which he address'd to Father Adam "(d) The wise Men of the World have not not

(d) Dull Riply to Fa Adam and Cottiby 1 part chap 16 p 116 (e)Du Per charift, 13 (f) DuPles Ireatife of p m 1106

(1) Numb

ch 23 v

10

(g) Drelincourt Dial 9 against the Miffio-21 17165 071 the fervice of thereformed Churches, p 305,306 (h) Avei-(1) Id Dial 6 p 236 (k) Cicero de Nat Deor 1 3 p m 619 (/) Id Ib mentiffi mæ ac sto Lidiffimæ ınfidelitatısdamnamus hære. ticos homines qui Christi Domini, hoc eft iptatis planıssima dı fertiffimaq, ver-ba, or Lescaloper m Cic de Nat Deor pag 622 (n) Id Ib

(d) The wise Men of the World have not pardon'd you this strange Belief, neither the Jews, witness the words of the Philosopher Averroes, which (e) Cardinal Du Perron relates on the Faith of Sarga, one of the Fathers of your Society, "of Sarga, one of the Fathers of your Society, "that he found no Self worse, or more silly, than that of the Christians, who eat and tear their God them"selves whom they adore" Before I pass any further, I make two Olservations against that learned Minister The first is, That Cardinal Du Person does not properly relate these Words on the I ather of one of lather of the Targerry to be only reof one of lather Adam's I raternity, he only re-lates them as cited by Mr Du Plessis (f) who al-ledges on that Subject what the Jesuit Scarge obferves concerning that Arabian Philosopher's I houghts The Second is, that instead of Sarga he should have said Scarga Let us the down here the Passage of another Minister (g) If we should receive the holy Sacrament kneeling, we should be a Scandal and a ftumbling-block to the Weak But we should give the Infidels occasion to Blaspheme the Sacred Name of God, and to have an horror for Christianity For we cannot forget the lamentable Example of the Pagan Philosopher, (h) who having seen the Sacrament eaten, which they had before adored, said, That he had never teen a more foolish, or more ridiculous Sect than that of the Christians, who adore that which they eat, and for that reason this unhappy Man cried out. Let my Soul be with that of the Philosophers Seeing the Christians adore what they eat The fame Minister alledges (1) elsewhere a Passage of Cicero, which agrees much with Averrees's Thought (k) Ecquen tam amentem essentially put as qui illud quo vossitute Deum credat essert That is to say, and who " catur Deum credat effe? I hat is to lay, And who " do you think is so senseless as to believe that what he " eats is God?" Cicero spake in this manner, considering that they call'd Corn by the Name of Geres, and Wine by that of Racchus (l) Cum fruges Gererem, vinum Liberum dicimus, genere nos quidem sermo-nu utimur usitato Father Lescalopier confesses, that that illustrious Pagan is very reasonable, when he argues in that manner, in regard of Geres and Bacargues in that manner, in regard of Geres and Bacchius, but he adds, it is an extraordinary Wisdom, under Christianity, to eat what we believe to be God, and we look upon those as guilty (m) of a most sense and stupid Insidelity, that do not take the Words of Jesus Christ, Thu u my Body, literally, and who by way of mockery, object these Words of Gicero against us (n) Illud Academicorum, sublate cachina procaciter usurpant, Academicorum, substate cachina procaciter usurpant, Academicorum, substate academicorum, substate academicorum, substate academicorum, substate academicorum, essense esse non Fidelium nepotes Ecquem tam amentem esse putas qui iliud, quo vescatur, Deum credat esse At cum Apostolo Cathelici respondemus Nos stulti propter Christum Utinam vos sitis prudentes in I he business is not to examine here the quality of these Reservoirs, it concerns Averreer's Thoughts only I observe, that Vossius has only spoke in general of that Philosopher's Contempt of the Christian Religion, he has not consider'd the Re-

fult of the Transubstantiation in particular, so particular, so Quam parum viderit tantus Philosophus in vera comming factus via arguit illud quod diceret, mulle se and day mam some esse cum Philosophus quam cum Christianus Some that (p) Averrees was born a Christianus fattus essentiat prin'd Jew, and afterwards Muhametan Mahume Others say that he wrote against the three great tanus Legisteria, Moses, Jesus Christ, and Mahomet, and Anton that he supply'd the Materials of the Book de tribus simpostoribus Others observe, (r) That he never believ'd decimal that there were any Dennie and that there were any Dennie and the supply describes of the social decimal decimal that there were any Dennie and the supply describes of the social decimal decimal that there were any Dennie and the supplier of the social decimal d that he supply'd the Materials of the Book de tribus Sirmondan impostoribus. Others observe, (r) That he never believ'd de immorthat there were any Devils, and therefore that Cardan tal animized violence to his Dostrine, (s) when he introduces pag 20 an Evil Spirit who call de himself his Disaple and Sectary. (q) Claua Nothing can be said more strong than this Judg-Berigardu ment or Wish of Erasmus, (t) Animam prodisset ingens in proamicillud opus adversus Averroen in the hat hat his great scircule Pito a man who haveroes was part of How happens (r) Naud it then that Erasmus wishes the publication of it? Apolog of Is it not a sign that in answering his Friends he had itustive menot always their Letters before him, and that he pm 320. not always their Letters before him, and that he had forgot some circumstances in them? However it is, his wish puts me in mind of one of Perrar-ch's Letters, wherein a Learned Divine is exhorted to confute Averrees, that mad Dog that barks in furiously against Jesus Christ Petrarch adds, that he had made some Collections for such a Work but that he neither had the leisure nor knowledge that was requir'd for it He calls the filence which for many great Men have kept, impious and wishes that the Work which he exhorts his Friend to compose may be dedicated to himself, tho' he should be already in his Grave (x) Extremum quaso ut cum primum perveneris quo suspiras, quod cito fore confido, contra canem illum rabidum Averroem, qui furore actus infando, contra Dominum suum Christium, contraque Catholicam Edin largat collectis undique his character. Catholicam Fidem latrat, collectis undique blasphemus ejus, quod ut scis, jam caperamus, sed me ingens fampur, O nunc solito major occupatio, nec minor temporis, quam scientia retravit inopia, totis iugenii viribus ac nervis incumbens, rem à multis magnis viris impie neglectam, opusculum unum scribas, & mihi illud inscribas, seu tunc vivus ero, seu interim abiero. Let us also quote Mr du Plessis, (y) Several say that Aristotle had but little Religion, and his Interpreter Averroes was alto-

sether improus

(2) No body is ignorant how much Averroes which presset the Eternity of the World, and the Universal Intellect, which nevertheless cannot be compatible with their To finish this description of Averroes's Irreligion, we must not forget the Subject-matters which his Hypotheses on the Soul of Man supply us with It is certain that he did not admit of Punishments or Rewards after this life, for, to speak properly, he taught the Mortality of the Human Soul I am not ignorant that he acknowledged that the Undernot ignorant that he acknowledg'd that the Under-franding never dy'd, and that he made an Eternal Nature of it but in that regard he did not consider it as a Suhfrance, appropriated to accomplete Nature of it but in that regard he did not consider it as a Substance appropriated to every Body, and consequently, though he consess d that the first cause of the Intellectual Operations of Peter and Paul subsisted after their Death, yet nevertheless he believ'd that all that had particularly belong'd to Peter and Paul, as well to the Body as the Soul, ceas d to hive when they dy'd So then he deny'd Heaven and Hell Vossius, who comprehended this Doctrine very well, ought not to have ascarded it absolutely to Mirandulanus, seeing that Author coes not adopt it as true in it self, but only (a) as a lawful Interpretation of Aristotle's words Durst any body have declar'd himself in any printed Boulder for an impious Opinion, and which expos'd paorile. any body have declar'd himself in any printed Bornels for an impious Opinion, and which expos'd people to the Fires of the Inquisition? The passage work, Vessian which I am going to quote, will serve for a what I proof that the most learned Writers do not always distinguish what they ought to do Sometimes they do impute to a Philosopher. proof that the moit learned william and they distinguish what they ought to do Sometimes they distinguish what the absolutely do impute to a Philosopher not what he absolutely believes but what he fays must be believ'd, if one would follow the Opinions of Aristotle, or of some other Founder of a Sect (b) Bisariam jubet considerar. hominis intellection (Aversees), at est intellection, & ut est forma, quam obtinet, dum nobus uniture. Priori modo ait eum a morte nostra superesse, quippe aternum nec su idole dare homini essentiam, sed uniri illi per operationem tria, lis sum phantasmatum interventu. Hanc sententiam etiam sequitur Antonius Mirandulanus evers singul certam 116 XXXII sest i & lib seq sest 11, & VI Similira 1952 Cardan s, de Philose p m 320. (s) Cardas m 320. a subsitis l 19.5 m (t)Erasmu epist 29 lib 10 num opu lectum u libros fer & quadra guita ex Peripace cita difei plina con fecimus quod eta am excu fum eft Ambrofius Leo Epist ad Erasm Thu Lette w the 28th of the ton Erasmus, Petrarcha Epiftola ul tima libr sine titule p m 656 (y)DuPlej Mornac

Jesuits of Consm-bridge tria, lib 3

ofthetruti of the Chri franRelig

c 20 fol m

258 ver/1

6 42 P M

but also the Mahometan Religion, which was that he profess'd outwardly Several Authors have (1) labour'd on the Latin Translation of his Works I was in hopes that before this Article was given to the Printers, I should have had the satisfaction to confult the Volume where Don Nicholas Antonio has spoken very amply of Avertoes, but find my self deprived of it, and reduced only to the Abstracts of the Journalist of Paris

I will shew you what I draw from it * "Averroes of Corduba was instructed by his *Journal of
"Father in the Knowledge of the Law, and in the Religion of the Country He was the I carn"excessive Fat, tho' he eat but one Meal a day, He pussed all the nights in the study cod of the second benefit and he diversed by the second of July of Philosophy, and when he found himself tird, he diverted himself with reading of July of some Book of Poetry or History, He was never seen to play, or seek any other to Edite of the Edite and obliged to work a Sentence by which of Hol-"he was deprived of his Estate, and obliged to recant After his Condemnation, he land took a Voyage to Fez, and return'd afterwards to Corduba, where he continued, until at the earnest request of the People he was recall d to Morocco, where he pass'd the remainder of his Life, which he ended in 1206" The Journ this of Leepsich + inform + Asta crume, That Don Nicolas Antonio made great use in this part of his Work of a Writing of dir Lipi John Leo, which Hottinger publish'd So that as to this I can go to the Head of the 1697, pag Fountain as well as he I will say then, That we find in that Writing, that the People of 305 Corduba rais'd Averroes to two noble Offices (K) which his Father and Grandfather hid possess'd, which was that of Chief Justice, and that of Chief Priest, and he was capable to acquit himself of them, seeing he was very well instructed in the knowledge of the Law, and in Theology After the Study of those two Sciences, he apply d him-felf to Natural Philosophy, Physick, Astrology, and the Mathematicks During the time that he exercised the Offices before mentioned, the King of Morocco sent Deputies to him, to offer him that of Judge of Morocco, and of all Mauritania, and on fuch condition that he should preserve all the Employs which he enjoy'd in Spain That Proposition pleasing him, he went to Morocco, but having settled Judges there as his Subdelegates, he return'd to Corduba Wonders are said of his (L) Patience, Liberality and

Cardanus, quem propterea reprehendit, ac refellit Casar d Scaliger Exercit (a) CCCV1 sist 30 Et sanc ea sen-tentia Scripturis è diametro aversatur, ut qua suam cuique animam, sua etiam a morte pramia, & panas,

(1) Several Authors have labour d on the Latin Translation of Averroes] See here a pullage of Mr Huet, which will inform us of the Name, of some of those Translators, and at the same time of a mistake of Scaliger (b) Viewllos Averrois Arabicos codices in Europä reperiri posse putabat Scaliger, solamque conversionem ab Armegando Blassi, Jacobo Mantino, Johanne Irancisco Buiana, Abrahamo de Balmis, Vitale Nisso, Calo Calonymo, Johanne Bruyerino Campegio, Paulo Israelita, alissque adornatam in Lucem venisse Ego tamen his versavi manibius Arabicum Averrois librum, ix oriente huc olim a Postello devettum, quod miror Sca-ligerum fug sse, Postello olim amicitià, & literaria con-Suetudine conjunctum Eo libro continentur in Logicam, Rhetoricam & Poeticam commentaria, que ad Jacobi Mantini & Abrahami de Balmu interpretationem a me

expensa, fidem corum & artem aperte mini comprobarunt Note, That fome Rabbins have translated some of Averrees's Works (c) into Hebrew It is fit that we should observe here what I find in Possevin That Jesut (d) affirms, That those that were so fond of that Arabian Philosopher, could only read him in pitiful Translations, before the Edition which John Baptista Bagolin caused to be made by the Junta's in Venice in the year 1552 That Edition, continues That Ldition, continues he, cannot be worth much, for as to part of Averroes's Works, Bagolin made use of a Jew's Translation whose name was James Mantinua and as for the other part, the preceding Translations were made use of, as also those which Niphus and Zimara had never corrected in working on Averroes The Tran-flator Mantinus follow'd the Tracks of Abraham de Balmus, who had sped very ill So that it cannot be certain that a Translator who had such bad Guides, has well express the Original And as Bagolin did not understand any thing in Arabick, he could judge nothing of those Interpretations I am going to copy a long passage of Keckerman, where it is wished that God would raise up a Translator that might deliver the Works of Averages from the filth and obscure barbarity of the rees from the filth and obscure barbarity of the roes from the filth and oblique barbarity of the former it is then that the great Services which that Arabian did to Philosophy would appear (e) Quid & quantum Universe Philosophia Averroes ifte profuerit, tum clarum perspectumque haberemus, si quem nobus Deus virum excitaret, qui Latinam ejus versionem ab ista, qua scatet undique molesta barbarie liberaret, & stylo Latino saltem mediceri & intelligibility and saltem Philosophia studiosomm verteret. Ad bili in gratiam Philosophia studiosorum verteret Ad quam rem ila, qua nuper Avicennam Arabicum nitidissimis typis dedit clarissima Typographia Medicea plu-rimum adjunienti adserret, si lingua Arabica Averioem ederet, atque ita occasionem viris cjus lingua peritis faciliorem praberet baibara v rsionis emindanda, & ad intelligentiam traducenda aliascertum est, Averioem a multis neglettum iri, a quibus l geretur d ligenter nist tam multis locis non intelligeretur. In Posterioribus Anal apparet, singularem operam prestit se & immortalitate dignissima Et Epitome Logicæ, quam scripsit, lauda-tissima est ob varias caus ut & logica cjus quasita Nemo tam interpretum veterum videri potest proximus Aristotelis menti atque hic Aribs I question whether there be many perions at this time that make fuch a like Wish or Vow, or that ground such fair hopes on an accomplish'd Translation of Averrees s

Voiks, or that give him fuch great praises
(K) Two noble Offices which his I ather and Grandfather had possess d] His Grandfather was one of the most famous Lawyers of his time, he pass'd for a second (f) Malich, and was moreover a learned Divine It (f) Malich, and was moreover a learned Divine It was he whom the People of Gorduba, shaking off the Yoak of their Prince, being minded to make the King of Morocco their Master, deputed to that Monarch to negotiate that great Affair He obtaind all the Favours he required of him in the labels of these Musicians and required to them. behalf of those Mutineers, and return'd to them loaden with Presents and Caresses, having been created Chief of the Priess, and great Judge of the Kingdom of Corduba Hedyd, ifter having enjoyd those Dignities a long time, and lest a Son, who was a Lawyer, and was design'd for the same Imploys by the Votes of the Inhabitants of Corduba, and that Election being confirm d by the King of Morocco, our Lawyer found himself endued with a noble our Lawyer found himself endued with a nobie Theol Character We find that the Authority of his Offices extended over all Andalusa and the Kingdom Pag 27of Valencia His Life was long, and he pass d it (g) Taken with delight After his death, his Offices were from a book conferr'd on his Son Averroes by the Votes of the de viris People (g) Note, That at the request of divers quibusgreat Persons that implor d his Clemency in favour of Ibnu Saigh, a famous Physician, who was detain d stribus in Prison for the Crime of Heresie, he set him at apudAraliberty, during which Proceedings Ibnu Giulgiul bes, tranfaid, Averroes s Father does not know that he has a Son that will be a greater Heretick than this (h) And he was not deceiv'd in it

[L) Wonders are said of his Patience, and of his the Afri-Liberality] There were teveral persons among the can, and Nobility and Learned Men at Corduba, that hated publish'd by and controll'd him As he was one day explaining Hottin in the Auditory of the Civil Law, a Servant of one ger ubi of his Enemies came and whisper'd fomething in supra his ear, which made him change colour, but he (h) Ibid answer'd only ria, ria The next day the same pag 269 III .

the four greateft :-71071151 Unucex quatuor Primariis danorum Canonica interpremetan Religion Hotting Biblioth dam illu-Latin by Hottin-

pag 269

(c) See the Bibliotheca Rabinica Father Bartoloc-C1, to I pag 13, & seq (d) Possevinus, Rib-lioth felett lib 12 c 16 p 43

(e) Keck IN PRACOEcis,tract 2 c 2 # 32 p m 103

Mildness He sent all Criminal Causes to his Lieutenant, and never gave his Opimon in them So many good Qualities did not hinder him from having many Enemies, who cross'd him extremely, and who accus'd him of (M) Heresie, which had many vexatious and burthensome Consequences for him however he did not die before he was honourably deliver'd from them What he answer young Gentleman who desir'd him to (N) grant him his Daughter, is curious en a very singular thing is reported con-

Servant return'd to the Auditory, ask'd pardon, and confess'd before all the Scholars, that he had whisper'd some abusive Language in Averrous's ear He aniwer'd, God bless you, seeing you have declar'd that I am provided with patience, and gave him afterwards a certain Sum of Money, saying to him, Do not that to others which you have done to me. Tho' he was Rich both by his Marriage and by his Offices, yet was he always indebted, because he gave many Alms to Learned Men that were necefitous, whether they lov'd or hated him. One day as his Friends reproved him for distributing his Estate to his Enemies, he answer'd them, Wretched men as you are, you do not know that to do good to one's Relations and Friends is not an act of Liberality, a man is inclined to that by the dictates of Nature To be liberal, is to communicate one's Estate to one's Enemies, liberal, is to communicate one's Estate to one's Enemies, and because neither my Ancestors nor my self have acquired Riches by Merchandise, or some Art, or by the Irade of Arms, but by the Profession of Virtue, is it not reasonable that I should dispose of them by Virtue? I find that I have not ill plac'd them, for they have converted those that were my Enemies into Friends (a) Add to this what I have said (b) concerning his Sobriety, his Vigilancy, his application to Study, & He would not consent that his youngest Son should be educated to the Honours that were offer'd him at educated to the Honours that were offer'd him at the Court of Morocco and he was so far from rejoi-cing at the Respect that was shew'd to that young man, whereby they thought to please the Father, that he was troubl'd at it in good earnest (c) What pity 'tis, that so many Virtues, and so many good Qualities, were not accompany'd with Ortho-doxy, but that on the contrasy they were link'd with the most cnormous Errors! The Writings of his Adversages defam'd him only on the side of his Adversages defam'd him only on the side of Heresie, and his Panegyrists prais'd him only on the side of Virtue and Science, &c (d) Hica multis laudatus, a nonnullis vero aliis vituperio affestus est

Adversarius ejus scripsit epistolam quâ vitupe-rabatur Averroes, eum de hæresi infamando, & alius scripsit aliam laudando eum de nobilitate, justitia & do-

Etrina qua quidem epistola sunt longissima

(M) Who accus d him of Hereste, which had many burthensome Consequences for him Divers Noblemen und Doctors of Corduba, and namely the Physician Ibnu Zoar, envy'd him, and resolv'd to enter a Process of Religion against him. They suborn'd young persons to desire him to give them a Lesson of Philosophy, he agreed to it, and in that Lessure he discover'd (e) his belief in Philosophy to them they caused a Deed of it to be drawn up by a Notary, and declar'd him an Heretick in it, which they caus d a Deed of it to be drawn up by a Notary, and declar'd him an Heretick in it, which Deed being fign d by an hundred Witnesses, was sent to Mansor King of Morocco. That Prince upon fight thereof was angry with Averroes, and said aloud, It is plain that this man is not of our Religion Hunc nostree legis non essential He caus'd all his Histe to be conficated, and condemn'd him to keep in the Jews Quarters. Averroes obey'd but going sometimes to the Mosque to say his Prayers, and being chased from thence by the Children with stones, he retir'd from Corduba to Fex, where he kept himself private, but in sew days he was discover'd, and put into Prison, and Mansor being sent to, to know what should be done with him, that Prince assembly divers Doctors of Divinity and the Civil Law, and enquir'd of them what and the Civil Law, and enquir'd of them what Punishment such a man deserv'd? Most of 'em answer'd, That as an Heretick he deserv'd Death, but some represented, that they ought not to put such a person to death, that was chiefly known by the quality of a Civilian and a Divine, for then, faid they, it will not be divulged in the World that an Heretick has been condemn'd, but that a Civilian, a Divine, underwent that Sentence, from whence it will happen, if That the Infidels will not embrace our Faith, whereby our Religion will be lessen'd 2dly That complaints will be made that the African Doctors seek and find Reasons to take away each other's Life It would be better to make him retrast before the Gate of the great Mosque, where he shall be ask'd if he repents.

Our opinion is, that if he repents your Majesty will pardon him, for there is no man on earth that is without a fault Manfor was pleas'd with this Counsel, and gave Orders to the Governous of Fez for such an Execution Accordingly our Philosopher was conducted on a Friday to the Gate of the Mosque at the hour of Prayer, and placed bareheaded on the highest step, where all those that entred into the Mosque spit in his face Prayer being ended, the Doctors with the Notaries, and the Judge with his Assistants, came and ask'd this miserable Wretch if he repented of his Heresie he answer'd with a Tes, where he made Lectures of the Civil Law Mansor having permitted him some time after to return to Cordubs, he accordingly went thither, where he liv'd miserably accordingly went thither, where he liv'd miserably depriv'd of his Estate and Books. In the mean time, the Judge that had succeeded him acquitted himself so ill in his Office, and Justice in general was so badly administred in that Country, that the People groan'd under it Mansor being willing to redress that Grievance, assembled his Council, where he proposed to re-establish Averrees, and most of the Council being of the same Opinion, he sent him an Order to come immediately to Maracco. fent him an Order to come immediately to Merocco, to perform the Functions of his first Magistrature Averroes departed forthwith with all his Family, and past the rest of his days at Morocco (f), where he was bury'd without the Curriers Gate (g), and where was bury'd without the Curriers Gate (g), and where his Tomb and Epitaph were to be seen a very long time (b) It must not be forgot what he animal those that ask'd him how the state of his Soul was during that Persecution? That state, still he, back pleased and displeased me I was glad to be discharged from the troublesome Functions of Judicature, but I was vexid to have been oppres'd by false Witnesses the added, I did not wish to be re-settl'd in the Office of a Magistrate, and I have not taken it up again but after my Innocence was declar'd (1)

(N) What he answer'd to a young Gentleman who demy Innocence was declar'd (1' (N) What he answer'd so a young Gentleman who defir'd him to grant him his Daughter, is curious enough] This Gallant (k) This Give her to me, and I will pay you her weight in Gold for her Can you tell, answered Averrees, whether my Daughter is handfome or homely? do you know whether you shall be satisfied with her? The other reply'd, I have feen her (1) Copy, I mean her Brother I am afraid, said Averrees, (m) that your impetuous ardour has hinder'd you from knowing her The voung man went away asham'd, and return'd no dour has hinder'd you from knowing her. The young man went away asham'd, and return'd no more to the Charge. That Daughter was afterwards marry'd by her Father to a Relation of the K of Morocco (n). When I said that Averroer's Answer was curious, I hinted at two things, in the first place at the circumstances, and then at the obscurrity of the Translator. I suspect him of having express'd himself ill. he understood the Lawrongue but little, it is likely that the words have more of Salt than his Translator therefore the curious. Wits will be gladied the examination of that little Fast proport to them. It is a great piece of singularity to lee a the examination of that little Fact proposition to them. It is a great piece of fingularity to less than that will barter his Gold, weight the season with the season of t Averrees wou'd not have done ill to ie ob imhave ask'd the Gallant, Do you know if my Daughter is of a small size, or if she is of too good a plight of Body? That Light might be of consequence, seeing in the second case the Merchandise would have cost more, and been of less value. According to our Customs, nothing wou'd be more singular than a Gallant that had not seen be more fingular than a Gallant that had not feen the Daughter of the Chief Magistrate of the place of his residence but that is common amongst the Mahometans, they do not permit Maids to shew themselves at the Windows and at the Door of the House, to run from place to place, and to receive civitate. Visits every day In the mean time, I dare say that Ibid pa there is something considerable in that the (o) Noble Corduban knew only by conjecture that Averros's

(f) Ibid

(1) Ibide PAG 278

(k) O Domine ju-dex, da mihi in uxorem filiam tuam, & quanti eam ponderaveris rum tıbı tradam Ibid pag 275 (1) Comparatio-nem ejueam non cognovif-

CIVITATIS 275

(e) Inter legendum autem fufophalem fidem detexerunt Ibid pag

276

(a) Ibid pag 273, 274 (b) In the Text of this in the paf-

Sage out of nal of the I earned (c) Apud Hotting ubi (up) a, PAF 274. 275 (d) Ibid

pag 279

Article,

concerning the effect of some Discourse which he pronounc'd (0) against his youngest + Taken Son He compos'd many Verses of Gallantry, but when he was old, (P) he caused them to be burnt * I cannot tell from whence Du Verdier Vau-Privas had these words Averroes was broke by a Wheel that was put on hu Stomach They are in a Chapter + which Averroes was broke by a Wheel that was put on his Stomach. They are in a Chapter with the intitles, Of feveral Ancient and Modern Learned Men that did miferably. I was furprized at the productions Sterility which I found concerning this famous Philosopher, in the Oriental Library of Mr d'Harting. There was reason to believe that a Man who had such a vast Knowledge of the Arabian Books would have showed a thousand fine Collections of the Adventures and Doctrines of Averroes, and instead of this, there appears only a surprising Brevity, (2) which so far from instructing us of what we were ignolished by Hotting make us forget what we have learn'd rant, may make us forget what we have learn'd

St AU-

Daughter was handsome These are some of the Circumstances to which I had an eye

(0) The effect of some Discourse which he pronounced against his youngest som, I will not amuse my self to translate what ought to serve me here for a Commentary, it will suffice me to say that Averroes wish'd rather the death of his Son, than to see him disobedient, and that thereupon he made an Imprecation, which that young man outliv'd but ten months Here is much Latin, which I do not take from Histinger, for find it more correct in another Author (a) De Averrois corminum efficacia, hanc historiam historicus Arabs refere Quadam die ee existente cum amicis quibus dam, colloquentibus que, ingressie eff silius ejus cum aliquibus sociis juvenibus, quos cum animadvertisset Averroes, protulit duo carmina, hujus senson sum, dance miratus est omnis pulcher in te jenjus Kapueruni puicorituainistua, capreolo puicori-tudinem suam, donec miratus est omnis pulcher in te Trbs est pestus ejus, & oculi cius, & stupor cjus, Verum cras cornua sua patri tuo crunt Post qua dixit, Sit ma-ledista pesegrinatio quando eram juvenis, aliquando patrem meum punsebam Nune autem Sener filium meum punire non possum At Deum deprecor, ut priusquam punire non possum. At Deum deprecor, at prinsquam undeam aliquid contra voluntatem meam, eum mori facilità. Sieque prinsquam transfrent menses decem filius esti amerius est, & major solus remanssit, qui judex opinimist & sette essettius est. Bartholin, who supplies me with this passage, imputes without reason the great essett in question to the Philosopher's Verses, which ought only to be imputed to the Imprecation which Assertes uttered in Prote. Comprecation which Averross uttered in Profe Compilers (b) have collected many Lxamples of the effects of fuch Imprecations (b) See Ca-

fects of fuch Imprecations

(P) When he was old, he caused his Verifes of Gallantry to be burnt. The Discourse which accompanied that act is altogether feafon d with Wisdom. He said, Man shall be judged by his Words, and if I have spoken ill, I will not discours my holly. If my Verses pleas'd any body, they wou'd take me for a Wise Man, and I do not acknowledge that I am so You see there a good Character. Averroes having committed a fault, repaired it, and he wou'd equally have avoided the approbation which he thought he did not deserve, and the blame which he merited. There wou'd have been a great numhe merited There wou'd have been a great number of Peoplethat wou'd have read his Love-Verses with Incense in their hands, admir'd him, and bless'd his memory Ovid and Catullus are Examples of this But he would have none of that Praise conters wou'd have thought it very ill that such a befolutus the Transtate put in instead

Perhaps

fall worth Works of Poetry are lost, except a mass disobedient to his Reason, but that being had followed it whereupon he put forth this Would to God I had been born old, and that from my Touth I had been in the state of Perfettion. Others wou'd have thought it very ill that fuch a my Youth I had been in the flate of Perfection This icems to me to be the true (c) fense of these words of John Leo De (d) suis quidem Carminibus tantum duo reperiuntur ad verbum significantibus Inobediens cam fui voluntati mez juvenis, ac quando tempus Hotting comm fui voluntati meæ juvenis, ac quando tempus the 278 cum calvitie ienectutcque agitavit me, tum parui (e) Postea voluntati meæ Utinam natus fuissem senex, & ob diferent meæ juventute absolutus What wish cou'd be made coam fue more worthy of a Philosopher?

fortune Let us now relate what Averrees did in regard amore ca- of the amorous Veiles of another Writer There was at Corduba a Philosopher, Physician and Aftro amore capitur, & was at Corduba a Philosopher, Physician and Aitrodignitate loger, whose Name was Abraham Ibnu Sahal, (e) loger, who by the Caprichio of his ill lortune fell in posposite consider caprice in Religion, advised him not to publish those Lafcivious Verses, to which he answer d them in pro-

phane Verses This made them have recourse to Bil hoth the Authority of the Magistrate, and as Accepted was the great Judge of the Country, they address d themselves to him. They represented to him, that this Abraham had corrupted all the I own by his Poetry, and chiefly the Youth of both Sexes, and that nothing else was sung at the Nutril I costs abredieverto continue it on the passing of learning the continue it on the continue it on the passing of learning the continue it is not the continue in the continue it is not the continue in t averroes was angry with that Poet, and feibid him to continue it, on the penalty of lening chafts d according to the exigency of the cafe, or at the pleafure of the Judge Hearing that his Prohibition did not frop the Jew's Vein of Poetry, and being willing to know the truth of it, he fent a trufty perion to the Poet's house, who brought him word, I found no body at his house but your eldest Child, who was writing some of his Parene and added when who was writing some of his Poems, and added, There is neither Man, Woman nor Child that has not learn d something of Abraham Ibnu Sahal's Versee Then Averrees ceas'd his Purfuit, faying, Can one only Hand thut up a thoutand Mouths ! Having feen one day at a Bookieller's that the Alcoron was fold but for a Ducat, and that the Poems of that 'tem were bought for ten Pistols (f) at the suist word, he cry dout, This City will perill speedily, for I have seen the peoples contempt for holy things, and its inclinations for things that are forbid and dishoneit (p) I unclinit Averrois, commission adstantibus, Scitote, hand Civitatem mox ruituram, quoniam vidi populum, qua ad fiden pertinent virtuife at que prohibita at que inhonesta grata estitisse majorisque ficise. Et suut dicrat successive Non adhuc elapsis quinquaginta annis Christicola oppugnarunt Cordubam, multas alias civitates. I rom this it may be gather d, that some Vices prevail in all Countries, Religions and Ages. See here the Malo metans of Spain, who did in the 12th cuting whire divers Christians of Paris have done in the 17th houm ic-If they were to buy a Copy of Mi Godeau's Pfalme, cept, & they would cheapen a long time, and nothing in picc would be concluded if the Piice was notlow but if teeeflit they were to buy the Satyrical Parnaffus, they would without cheapning give what enormous Price the (g) Ibid Seller would require for it. Let us also observe that we find Examples of good Assume that we find Examples of good Actions in each Country, Age and Keligion II Christians in these latter Ages have buint their Prophine Poems, | Pic Mitheir Love and I accivious Vertes, Averees did the handula-like under the Protession of Mahometism 1 by under nus did so the Profession, for it is doubted that inwardly he be- Petraich liev d nothing(b) in matters of Piety His Prediction had a mind on the Mileries of Corduba does not confute this, to do it it is natural enough to believe that an horrible cor- SeeM Bul-ruption of Manners, and a depravation which car- let, fudeies a contempt of what is esteem d holy, and a love ment on he to that which is believ'd to be dishonest, will cause Poets to, great Dilorders in a City

(Q) A surprising Brevity, which so far from instruct- He was soing us may make us forge. I list of all, there is, /11/
is reason to be surprised, not to find that Arabian made such Philosopher in that Bibliotheque, under that Arabian made fuch Philosopher in that Bibliotheque, under that name Poems See which all the Western Nations give him, I mean, h 3d letunder that of Averroes I grant that this is not the to of the true Name, but one that is very much corrupted by 8th book divers I raniportations from one Dialect to uno-familiar ther But is it not a just Motive enough to place p m 278 it in its Order in a Dictionary, to see that there is (h) See the almost no other Name but that which is used 3- Remarks mong us? If d Herbelot had rather give that Phi- H & M losopher's Article under the Arabick Name well spell'd, Notice ought at least to be given of it unspell'd, Notice ought at least to be given of it under the word Averses, and consequently, d Herbeles, who has not done it, has for lot it thing which was not to be neglected. In the Body of his Work there is neither found Averses, nor Aben-Ross, noi Aben-Ross. One is then fore'd to have recourse to (1) It is a the Table of Matters, which is not pleasing. But fault in the what is to be found there? (1) Averses, with a re server to the pages 303, 719, 815? What is to be found

De viiis quibut-dum illuin chap 3 book of his the sthe > dictus rond n ciumen t im, onens de eman-COS DUn cravit & jeifol-

(#) Tho Bartholinus, de

Poetus, pag 105, 106

merarius

in the Hi-ftor scal Meditations, to I book 5 chap 6 & to 3 book 2 chap 15,

(e) In juventute Molutus Perhaps empt from youth d) Apud

cal Authors

St AUGUSTIN, one of the most famous Fathers of the Church, was born at Tagaste in Africa, the 13th of November, 354 His Father, whose Name was Patricine, was but a me in Citizen of that City, his Mother's Name was Monica, who was very Viituous Their Son had no inclination to (A) Study, nevertheless his Father forc'd him to it, intending to advance him by that means, and fent him to learn Human I carning at Madaura At the age of Sixteen he took him from thence, and fent him to learn his Rhetorick at Carthage St Augustin went thither towards the end of the year * 371 where he advanc'd much in the Sciences, but plung'd (B) himself in the Debauchery of Women. He had a mind to read the Holy Scriptures, but the plain-Du Pin's Biblioth of ncis of the Style disgusted him he was yet a too great Admirer of the Pagan Eloquence to like the Bible He had a strong mind to know Truth in general; and having thought to find it in the Scct of the Manicheans, he engaged himself in it, and maintain'd most of the Doctrines of it with much servency Having lived some time in Carrhage, he return'd to Tagaste, where he taught Rhetorick with so much applause, that his Mother was congratulated for having such an admirable Son. This did not hinder the holy Woman from being extraordinarily afflicted at her Son's Herefie, and the Debauchery in which he plung'd himself He return'd to Carthage in the year 380 where he taught Rhetorick with a great deal of Reputation At that time he fix'd his Incontinency, which had been rambling on divers Objects. He took a Concubine, and was Satisfied

(b) d'Herbelot Biblioth Orient pag and Aristotle p m

403, 404 See also M d'Herbe-lot ubi sup 7 546 (d) R ipin ibid pag (e)Hertelot ubi sup

P 337 (f)Rigoi-

us in vit Philippi

agu i Launoium de flot fortuna, cap 1 ρ 6 (η) Lau-noius ib

6 Jeg 24

found in the page 303? that Aucrrees is one of those Philosophers who believ'd that the World was Lternal There is in page 819; that Mohammed Al-Gazali believ'd that Averroes had very contrary Principles to those of the Mussians. But in the 719th page you find the Article of our Man under the term of Roschd That Article does not contain 20 lines, the latter half whereof is thus (6) "Averroes "is the first that translated Andreas Contain 20 ines, the latter half whereof is thus (b) "Averroes "is the first that translated Aristole from Greek into "Arabick, before the Jews had made their Translation of him, and for a long time we had no other "Iext of Aristole than that of that great Philo-"iopher's Arabick Translation, who added after-wards very ample Commentaries to it, which "Sr Thomas and the other School-men made use of " St Thomas and the other School-men made use of " before the Greek Originals of Arifietle and of his "Commentators were known to us" I find many "Commentators were known to us" I find many things there to which I can give no credit, for I observe the Learned Men say that Averrees was ignorant of the Greek Tongue I know moreover, that the Caliphs Almanzer, Abdalla and Almannen, who preceded Averrees some Centuries, caused a (c) See Fannumber of Greek Books to be translated (c) into care Room. tnerR ipin

Arabick There is then no likelyhood that the first comparison Arabick Translation of Aristotle's Works was made of Plato by Averroes, the it should be supposed that he was by Averroes, the it should be supposed that he was not ignorant of the Greek Tongue Alpharabius, who flourish d in the 10th Century, found Aristotle's Physick, (d) in Mesoporamia, the Translation of the same Aristotle's Analyticks is generally ascribed to him This Mr d'Herbelot (e) informs us of Rigord says, That a Council held at Paris in the year 1209, condemn'd some of Aristotle's Books to be burnt, that were explained in the Colleges, and had been lately brought from Constantinople, and translated from Greek into Latin (f) Delati de novo a Constantinopoli or a Graco in Latinum translati. This does not agree with Mr d'Herbelot, for it results from thence, that about the time that Averroes dy d they made use at Paris of a Translation of roes dy d they made use at Paris of a Translation of Arishtle from the Greek It is certain, that before the middle of the 12th Century Arishtle's Philosophy was taught in the University of Paris See the phy was taught in the University of Paris See the complaints of St Bernard, related by Mr de Launoi (g) This same passage of Rigord shews, that the Gick Books of Aristotle were in France in the time of Averrees Lassy, I wou'd willingly have any body name me iome Translators of Aristotle, and of the Arabick Commentary of Averrees, that liv'd between Averrees and Thomas Aguinas All the Latin Translators of that Arabian Philosopher that are come to my knowledge are posteriour to that Arabian Aguinas All the Latin come to my knowledge are posteriour to that Angelical Doctor 'Tis not that I would reject what I have read in some Authors, that the Emperour Frederick II who flourish d before the time of St Thomas, and after Averrees, caused the Books of this faction to be translated into Lean. This man this Arabian to be translated into Latin This may be inferred from these words of Cuspinian, (b) Libros multos ere Graco & ex Arabico Latinos fieri curavis, inter quos & Aristotelis volumina sucrum & multa Midicoum, and from this passage of Wolphgang Hungous in his Notes on Cuspinian, Curavit (1) quoque es feri tiansaciones operum Arabica, qui in bine lista sucre & Arabica, qui in bune 1851, sucre acces estationes qui in bune 1851, sucre acces estationes le la la sucre de la sucre d annotat in Medicina ev lineua Graca & Arabica, qui in voncing, Culp pm diem in sekolis lesta sunt, atque etiamnum leguntur, 150 & Bonomam easten mist, ut Academia offerrentur, quod esus extepssolis apparet See also the Chronicle

(k) of Carion, where he fays expressly, that this Emperour caused the Almagest of Prolemy, several Works (1) of Aristotle, Galen, Avicenna, &c to be translated, you'll find the same Names in the Theastre of Matthias, (m) under the quotation of the 7th Carion Book of Aventinus's Annals, and the Chronicle of 15 pm Carion I don't know why Averrees is not named, 684 and yet I fancy that he was one of those whom this Emperour took care to have translated I should be Emperour took care to have translated I should be glad to know the Names of those People he employ'd in these Translations Let us take notice of one thing that is in Mr d Herbeler's Bibliotheque, which is, that the Mahometans look upon the Doctrine of those who admitting a First Mover, maintain also that the World is Eternal, as (n) pure Atheism This Doctrine is ascrib'd to the most famous Philosophers that have floursh'd among the Arabians (a), as, to belot ubit our Averroes, to Avicenna, and to Alpharabius. The superficient of col 2 that Doctrine, and it is certain, that it cannot be (a) Id ib supported without treating the Holy Scripture as col 1

(A) Had no inclination to fludy] By the Description which St Augustin made himself of his Youth, St Augustin may be known that he was what we call a Rake

He shown deba School each a Plant and the School each and the Scho It may be known that he was what we call a Rake He shunn d the School as the Plugue, and lov'd nothing but Play and Sights, he robb'd what he cou'd from his Father, and invented a thousand Lyes to avoid the Rod, which they were oblig'd to make use of to punish his Lewdness (p) Furta etiam faciebam de cellario parentum & de mensa, vel gula imperitante, vel ut haberem quod darem pueris ludum sum mihi, que pariter utique delestabantur, tamen vendentibus Fallendo innumerabilibus mendaciis & pa-Fallendo innumerabilibus mendaciis O patibus Fauenao innumerao ilibus menaaciis & pa-dagogum & magifros & parentes, amore ludends, fiudio spectands nugatoria, & imitands ludicra inquistudine This confutes what Leo Allacius set forth, (q) "That St Augustin had studied at Twelve years of age, and understood all Aristotle's Books that concerned Logick and Theory, of himself, without the affishance of any Master, and that at the same apad Bailage he had compos'd some excellent Writings, to let, Famour discover and confute the Errors of many Authors children The Writer that took upon him the Name of Chrip 159 finanus Liberius, (r) fays the same thing Mr Baillet (r) Descriptions, and discovers the cause of their militake property 178 He fays, Let us believe (s) that those that have despud Bastceived them might have read Twelve for Twenty in the let ibid
place where St Augustin speaks of it That Saint ac(s) Baillet place where St Augustin speaks of it Inar sains at (1) Daniel knowledges (1) that he was near Twenty years of age shid p 60, when a freatise of Aristotle fell into his hands that was 61 call d the I en Categories, which he had often heard (1) Confes and the I en Categories, which he had often heard (1) Confes and the I en Categories with great oftentation. He I 4 c 16 call'd the Ten Categories, which he had often heard spoken of at Carthage with great oftentation. He read it alone, and understood it perfettly well so that having since conferred about it with those who said they had learn'd it with much pains from excellent Masters, that had not only explained it to them by word of mouth, but also by sigures which they had drawn of them on the sand, they could tell him no more than what he had comprehended of them of himself in particular Hetestisses also, that at that age he read and understood all Books of the Liberal Arts that he could meet with, without any body's assistance. He says the same thing of the Mathematicks. assistance He says the same thing of the Mathematicks, and namely of Geometry, Musick and Arithmetick (B) He plung'd himself in the Debauchery of Women] He bogan very early, for at fixteen years of age he

(n) Her-belot ub:

fin was a Learned Man and an Author from his youth (p) Aug confest 116 1 6 19

(q) In Apib Urbanis

(h) Cufp in lied init p m 419 (1) Wol Hunger

latisfied with her, by whom he had a Son, which he named Adeodatus, (C) Given of God, and who had very good Parts. He became a little wavering in his Sect, because he found no body that could fully answer (D) the Difficulties which he had to piopole nevertheless he did not alter his Profession, but waited for better Explications His good Mother Monica went to him at Carthage, to endeavour to draw him out of his Hereic and Luxury, and did not despair, tho' she found that her Remonstrances were in vain. He sought a new Thearre, and resolv'd to go to Rome, and because he would not be diverted from that high, he embark'd without tiking leave of his Mother, or of his near * Relation Laminan, who had maintain'd him at School He taught. * His Farketorick at Rome with the same Success as at Carthage so that Symmachus, Prefect ther dy do of the City, having been inform'd that those of Milan required an able Professor in Rhetorick, design'd him for that Employ in the year 282. St. Augustin was much Rhetorick, design'd him for that Employ in the year 383 St Augustin was much sesteem'd at Milan, he went to give St Ambrose a Visit, and was kindly received by him He went much less to his Sermons through a Principle of Piety, than of a Critical Curiosity He would know if that Prelate's Eloquence deserv'd the Reputition to which it was a way, and God made use of that means to recover him for St Ambrose's Sermons made such an Impression upon St Augustin, that he made himself a Catholick in the year 184 His Mother, who was come to him to Milan, advis d him to mirry, that he might renounce the dishonest life that he led He consented to that Proposition, and sent his Concubine back into Africa, but as the Maiden that was design d for his Spouse was not of Age to be marry'd until after two years, he could not resist his Natural Inclinations so long, but continued his former Impurity At last, the † 7 iken reading of St Paul's Lpistles, the Sollicitations and Tears of his Mother, and the good from the Discourses of some Friends, drew upon him the last stroke of Grace, he felt himself a Ecclesialization good Christian, ready to sorsake all for the Gospel, he renounced his Profession of of John le Rhetorick, and was baptized by St Ambrose on Easter-Eve in the year 387 The following was become a solution of the solut in the same lowing year he seturn'd into Africa, having lost his Mother at Ostia, where he was to adan 388 Cicero de embark † He was ordain'd Priest in the year 391 by Valerius Bishop of Hippo, Four pag 484 Offic 11 years after he became Condition of that Prelate, and did very considerable Services to the edit in gave himself over to the Instincts of that furious Passion, (a) Ubi eram, tays he, & quam longe evaluation with a delicits domus tue, anno illo sexto decimo etaluation with a delicits domus tue, anno illo sexto decimo etaluation with a delicits domus tue, anno illo sexto decimo etaluation with a description of totas was exeruis med, cum accepit in me sceptium, & totas was exeruis dedi vesanie libidinis, licentissa per dedecus superius este delicitation illicitae autem per leges tuas de He passo de the passo de la constant de le constant de la constant de with to keep him at Carthage, was getting by degrees what was necessary to send him thither That good I ather's 109 was 10 great, when being at bathing (b) with his Son, he perceiv'd such forward progresses of Nature, that he could not forbear to acquaint his Wife with that News, he felt already I know raren cupusquam adolescentia, quasi jam ex hoc in mepotes gestiret, gauqui mihi more disquieted than joyful at it, she fear d that twould rather produce Disorders, wherefore she mulebres made him very serious Remonstrances to abstain made him very ferious Remonstrances to abstain

(a) from the Sex, and above all from Adultery
But he took no notice of these good Exhortations, for he contracted fuch a strong habitude of Incontinency, that when he had renounced Manichessm, and prepar d himself for Baptism, he took a new Consulting (1) and the strong and the strong of the s cubine (e) in the room of Deedatus Mother, while the Maiden that was design'd for his Wife should come of age to be married, for which he was to (f) tarry near two years. It is remarkable, that in the Dispute between St. Augustin and Alypius on Machine and a single life, Alypius, to far from personal straight of the st to be persuaded to Marriage He led a chast life, tho' in the beginning of his Youth he had tasted en tho' in the beginning of his Youth he had tasted en and as it were privately, the Venereal Debut withdrew himself from it betimes He del St Augustin (g) against Marriage, as an Obstacle to the design which they had form'd to live together in the Study of Wissom St Augustin confess'd to him ingenuously, that it would be impossible for him to contain himself, and alledged to him the Example of some Marry'd Sages that had been faithful to God and their Friends He added, that there was a great difference between added, that there was a great difference between those passing Pleasures which Alypius had tasted, and since forgotten, and those which he (Augustin) had made habitual to him, which would also become more fweet under the fair Name of Marriage was so touch'd with this Discourse, that he resolved to be marry'd, to know, said he, by experience what St Augustin found more charming than Life it self Cum me ille miraretur quem non parvi penderet, ita barere visco illius voluptatis, ut me af-tum interesse inter illud quod ipse rapiim & furtim expertus esset, quod pane jam nec meninisset quidem, atque ideo nulla molestia facil, contemneret, & delectationes consuctudinis mea, ad quas si accessisse honestum nomen Matrimonii, non cum mirari oportere cur igo illam vitam nequirem Spernere Caperat & ipsi desiderare conjuguum nequaquam victus libidine talis volu-ptatis, sed curiositatis Dicebat enim scire se cupere, quidnam esset illud sine quo vita mea que illi sic place-bat, non misi vita, sed pana viderctur (h) Never-theless neither of them were marry'd, and they liv'd continently

liv'd continently

(C) A Son whom he nam'd Given of God, who had very good Parts] Without doubt my Reader will be pleas'd to find fomething here concerning that Bastard, wherefore I will set down what I find of him in Mr Baillet (1) "Adeodatus" was but sisteen years of age when his Father was baptized, but he was then so forward, and his Mind had then already received so much Know-ledge, that he outdid many aged persons, and those that are valu'd in the World sor their "Gravity and Learning About the same time "St Augustin compos'd a Book by way of Dialogue, intit'd, of the Master Adeodas and himself are the two persons that entertain themselves in it, and he takes God to withes that all what he makes his Son to say in that Work is entirely his

it, and he takes God to witnels that all what he makes his Son to say in that Work is entirely his own, tho' he was then but sixteen years of age St Augustin adds, That he had seen yet more admirable things of that Child than what we have said Lassy, how firm soever his mind was, he declares that the Greatness of his Son's Wit terrified him Adeodatus received the Grace of Ba-ptism with his Father, and dy'd a little time rified him

(D) That could fully answer the difficulties which he had to propose] St Augustin had a penetrating Wit, he was a Rhetorician by Profession, and understood the Dialectick It is easie for a subtil and eloquent Disputer to form Doubts and make Replies It must not then be wonder'd at that he embarrass d the Manot then be wonder d atthat he embarrais d the Manichean Doctors, neither must it be a wonder that he puzzl'd divers Catholick Doctors, and that the weak Answers which they made to his Objections confirm'd him in his Heielies. He confesses, that to his cost (k) he had obtain'd a thousand Victories against them fo time it is, that every Orthodox person ought not to engage himself in Disputes, and that unless he has to do with an Heretick of his own flight, he can do nothing, naturally speaking, bur flight, he can do nothing, naturally speaking, but harden his Adversary

(E) In

(h) Id 1b

ubi supra pag 63 ex August

(k) Quæ-Victoria pæne mihi semper ın dıfputationibus provenie-bat, diffe-Christianis imperitis, quo fucceffu creberrimo glisce. animofitas. & impetu fuo in pervignum ma lum imprudenter vergeb it duabus to, 20 d c 3 (c) It was against decency among Pagans them-Selves that a Father Should bath in thesame

Offic 1 1 c 35 Val Max 1 2 c 1 n 7 Plut in Catome majore p 348 (d) Socreto meminı ut monuerit cum folicitudine ingenti ne fornicarer, ma-muliebres videbantur, qui-bus obtemperare erubescerem Aug Confess ubi supra (e) 1bid 1 6 c 15 (f) 1bid c 13 (g)Prohi-fanc Ali-plus ab more ducenda, caufans nullo modo nos posse securo octo firmed in piemae vivere ficut jam

bebat me deraveramus, si id fecifem 16 C 12 abi Supra

(a) M Baf-

nige thews

Council of ellewhere

the Church of Rome decided against st

other Counuls Sec

his Hist of the Kelig

of the Reformed

Church co

to 2 p 452

Whether the Peonot fome-times

make their Doctors stand in fear of them, in case of a great ca-Pacity plainly that in the

the Church with his Pen and by his Piety, until his Death, which happen'd the 28th of Du Pin August * 430 The particulars of his Episcopal Life and Writings would be superfluous August 7430 Ine particulars of his Epheopai Line and writings would be imperfiuous here, they may be found in Moreri's Diftionary, and in Mr du Pin's Bibliotheque, and if those Gentlemen had not lightly pass'd over St Augustin's irregular Life, I might wholly have dispensed with this Article But for the better Instruction of the Publick, it is good to discover the Right and the Left of Great Men. The Approbation which the Councils and Popes have given St Augustin on the Doctrine of Grace, does much add to his Glory, for without that, the Molinist in these latter Times would have highly advanced their Banner against him, and set his Authority aside. We have made it inpear elsewhere that all their Politicks could not well compel them to set a good it appear elsewhere that all their Politicks cou'd not well compel them to set a good tree upon it, and not to give him some rude Blows indirectly. It is certain that the tice upon it, and not to give him some rude Blows indirectly. It is certain that the Ling ignment which the Church of Rome is into respect St Augustin's System, casts her in a perplexity (E) that is very ridiculous. The Arminians (F) not having the same caution to keep, deal uncerely with that holy Father of the Church A Learned French Critick may make use of such respectul terms as he pleases, yet we cannot but discover that he despises St Augustin's Commentaries on the Scripture (C) with all his heart judice, and with necessary Parts, that St Augustin's Dostrine and that of Jansenius Bishop of Ipres are one and the same, so that it cannot be look'd upon without indignation, that the Court of Rome has bragg d to have condemn'd fansenius, and nevertheless to have preserv'd St Augustin in all his Glory These are two things altogether incompatible Much more the Council of Trent, in condemning calvin's Doctrine on Free Will, did necessarily condemn that of St Augustin For there is no Cal-winist that has deny d, or could have deny'd, the concourse of the Human Will, and the liberty of the Soul, in the fense that St Augustin has given to the words Concourie, Co-operation, and Liberty There is no Calvinist that does not acknowledge Free Will, and its use in Conversion, is that word be understood according to St Augustin's Idea's Those whom the Council of Trent condemn d do not reject Free Will, but as it signifies a liberty of Indistrency The Thomastic reject it also under that Notion, yet they pass for very good Catholicks See another Comical Scene! The Physical Printers must no of the Thomastic, the New York of Printers must no of the Thomastic, the New York of Printers must no of the Thomastic, the New York of Printers must no of the Thomastic, the New York of Printers must no of the Thomastic, the New York of Printers and P Physical Pradetermination of the Thomists, the Neceffity of St Augustin, that of the Jansen str, and that of Cilvin, are the time thing at the bottom yet nevertheless the Thomists disown the sansenists, and both pretend to be calumniated when they are accus d of teaching the same Doctrine as Calvin If I houghts, we should be much tempted to say that Doctors are great Comedians here, and that they me not ignorant that the Council of Trent condemn'd only a Chimæra which never entred into the Augustin

Minds of the Calvinifts, or that it condemn'd St Augustin

Magainst and the Physical Prædetermination So that when they brag of having St Augustin's Faith, and never to have (a) vary'd in the Doctrine, it is only done to keep a Decorum, and to avoid the ruin of the System, which a sincere confession of the I ruth would necessarily produce It is a great happiness for some persons, that the people do not care to make them give an Account of their Docare to make them give an Account of their Do-chrine, and that they are not capable of doing it, they would often mutiny against Doctors than against Tax-gatherers. They would say to them, If you are ignorant that you deceive us, your stupidity deserves that you should be sent to till the Earth and if you do know it, your Wickedness deserves that you should be put between four Walls, to be kept with Bread and Water. But there is nothing to be fear'd, the people require to be led according to fear'd, the people require to be led according to the usual course, and if more was desired of them, they would not be capable to enter into a discusfion, their businesses have not permitted them to acquire so great a capacity

(F) In a perplexity that is very ridiculous] It is manifest to all menthat examin things without pre-

(I) The Arminians

deal fincerely with that holy Father of the Church] They might have perplex'd the World like the Jeiuits, but they have found it more convenient to leave St Augustin wholly to their Adversaries, and to acknowledge him for as great a Pradefinarian (it is a term much us d among them) as Calvin Without doubt the cluits would have done as much, if they had dird to condemn a Doctor whom the Popes and Councils had approv'd

(6) That he despises St Augustin's Commentaries on the Sriptures with all his heart] I ipeak of

Mr Simon See his Critical History (b) of the Old To- (b) Book 3 flament, wherein the chief Praise he gives to that chap 9 Father is, to have known his bas very well observed the
(c) He has very well observed the (c) Ibid words are these (c) He has very well observed the (c) Ibid Qualities requir'd to interpret the Scripture well, and pag 397 being a modest man, he confiss d freely that he lack'd most of those Qualities, and therefore it ought to be no wonder, if sometimes but little exactness in found in his Commentaries on the Scriptures He (d) soon perceived that the Undertaking (to answer the Manipag 398 chesns) was above his strength In Scripturis (1) exposition in the structure mode successful Retract I confess that Mr Simon does not quote Peter Castellan without blaming him But being he writ in France, could he forbear to make use of some caution? He says, (e) I cannot approve of the heat of Peter Castellan the says, (e) I cannot approve of the heat of Peter Castellan the says, (e) I cannot approve of the heat of Peter Castellan the says, (e) I cannot approve of the heat of Peter Castellan the says, (e) I cannot approve of the heat of Peter Castellan the says, (e) I cannot approve of the heat of Peter Castellan the says, (e) I cannot approve of the heat of Peter Castellan the says, (e) I cannot approve of the heat of Peter Castellan the says of the says, (e) I cannot approve of the heat of Peter Castellan the says of the He says,(e) I cannot approve of the heat of Peter Castellanus, Grand Almoner of France, who accuses St Augufin with too much liberty, in reproaching him to have dream'd only when he explain d the Holy Scripture. I hofe that wrote against (f) him knew very well (f) Seethe how to reproach him for the disagreement there is book intibetween the Esteem which he would shew for St Augustin's Writings, and the Judgment which he makes of them, and they have taken that occafion to give a very disadvantageous Idea of that vines of Father They say, "No other Idea can be form'd of Hollandon "the Blessed St Augustin, than of an Orator who the Critical History and the Cr "pole or not, provided it agrees with a certain Platry of the tonick System which he had form d of the Christian Old Te-Religion, of a Man that loses himself every moment in the Clouds, and that suffers himself to be carry'd "in the Clouds, and that fuffers himself to be carry'd "away by frigid Allegories, which he sets out as "Oracles, in short, as of a man that had none of "those Qualities which an Interpreter of the Holy "Scriptures ought to have "Of all this they give some very strong Examples Mr Simon in his Reply has not much troubl'd himself to defend St Augustin It is easily felt that his heart was not there (g) He gives something to Decency, and much more to the Interest of Criticising his Adversary It may be observed in divers places of his Writings, that he believes that since St Augustin made no difficulty to forsake the Greek Fathers on the Subject of Grace, no body is obliged to follow Him before the Greek Fathers. That shift would be very contract the same to the De-Grace, no body is oblig'd to follow Him before the Greek Fathers That shift would be very con-For feeing St Augustin's Doctrine on Grace has been approved of by the Church, it must follow that all Doctrine which is opposite to that is to be rejected, and therefore whatever may be found as Science of the state of the st venient, but there is no means to make use of it and therefore whatever may be found in St Chryso from, that favours Molinism, is a particular Tenet, and at least implicitly branded by the authentick Approbation that was given to St Augustin Thus is what I call before a replacement of the state of what I call before a perplexity that casts the Church of Rome into a fort of ridicule I report Castellaor Rome into a fort of fidicule 1 report Castellanu's words, they are notable, and his Life is not a very common Book in this Country (b) Ut divum Augustinum contra hareticos de hominis Christiani Galland Justificatione disputando, proxime ad divi Pauli sentenin vità tiam accessific fatebatur, ita linguarum ignoratione somniCastellani asse frequenter atque etiam delirasse sacra explicando p 44, 45 rans quam peritus dici posset, non satus idoneum esse judi-cabat cui de artibus disserenti legendo tempus transmitte-retur qui minime otio abundaret Eam quoque stili Au-gustiniani anfractuosam sinussitatem esse, & sermonis omni elegantia vacui impuritatem addebat, ut ab homis omni elegantia vacui impuritationi anti-liberaliter in literis educato citra fasti dium legi vix posser SINCL

fup p 399

tled Opinions of fome Di-

If Mr Claude (H) who condemned that Father's Approbation of the Penal Laws in Matters of Conscience, had liv'd but three or four Years longer, he would have exposed himself to a severe Censure

(a) Simon, Preface to the new Observations on the Text and Versions of the New Testament. Printed at Paris 1695 in

(1) Interpretandi rationem & inhærentem fententiæ facrorum librorum explanationem omnes admirantur, dignumque exifilmant cui Pau-lus Apoquem ille mirificè coluit fcribenti & prædıdictasse vıdeatur Rr Rom

ftolus

canti

multa

SINCE the first Edition of this Dictionary, I have feen the Explication which Mr Single has given to stop the Complaints of the Jansenist (a) My intention, says he, was not to diminish Saint Augustin's Authority in the least, whom I have always acknowledged to be the most able Divine of the Western Churches, and to have deserved the great Elogies that so many Popes bave given him

I agree, that the Church affures us that those who have taught Theology with Art and Method, have taken St Augustin for their Master and Guide These are the Words of the their Master and Guide These are the Words of the Roman Breviary, but they do not signific that those Masters of Theology that followed St Augustin in the manner of treating of chat Science, have been obliged never to swerve from that learned Bishop's Opinions, Neither that those same Opinions are Articles of Faith, nor, in short, that the other Fathers are to be for saken when they do not wholly agree with him The Church teaches us in the same Lessons of the Breviary, speaking of St John Chryfostom, (1) That all the World admires his way of Interpreting the Sacred Books litterally and of Interpreting the Sacred Books litterally, and judge him Worthy of what was believed of him, (viz) that St Paul, whom he honourd fingularly, dictated several things to him I always had a great teneration for those two great Men, that are yet to this day the Admiration of the Lastern and Western Churches, but as to that which concerns only the Explication ches, but as to that which concerns only the Explication of certain Passages of the Scripture, about which St Augustin and St Chrysostom do not always agree, I thought I might follow St Chrysostom's Interpretation, when it seem'd more litteral to me This diversity, which does in no manner regard the ground of the Doctrine, does not hinder them from agreeing together in the essential Points of our Belief Speaking of St Augustine of the Commentations of many the commentations. gustin in my History of the Commentators, I might indeed have been more moderate in my Expressions, and I have mentioned some Expressions of Cardinal Sadolet, which seem too hard But I never design d to oppose the Dottrine of that holy Doctor, who confuted so powerfully the Here-sies of his time He adds, That he proposed Cardinal Gaspar Contarini for his Guide, who judg d that there was a certain Medium to be taken between those, who under pretence of being Fnemies to the Lutherans, came too near the Herefie of Pelagius, and those who having some tineture of St Augustin s Writings, instead of imitating his Modesty and his Charity, preach'd very puzzling Doctrines to the People which they did not understand themselves, and which they could not explain but by running into Paradoxes "I be" liev d, continues he, that I could not do better than to imitate that great Cardinal, having to answer some Divines of Holland who had objected against me, that the Tradition of the Church was rot constant and certain, alledging as an Example the Matters of Grace, and of Predefination, concerning which the Church had follow'd and authoriz'd St Augustin's Doctrine, though he had, as they faith, differ'd from the Greek as well as the Latin Fathers that had pre-"ceded him I shew'd them that the difference that might be found there, was only concerning things that had not been decided, as Matters of Faith, and on fome Passages of Scripture that might be diversly explained, and therefore that "the Church ought not to be accused of Incon"stancy in Iradition" This being a little examined, it will appear to be a Disguise or a Paint hat can only deceive ignorant Persons For, I regions only ucceive ignorant regions for, I bray, from whence come the most capital Controverses? Is it not because some Passages of Scriture are differently explain'd? Why then do you nake use of the Idea of that difference, to make us indestand that Sr. Cheusestern and St. American nake the or the idea of that difference, to make us indestand that St Chrysosom and St Augustin differ n nothing essential. Is it an accident, is it an accessory to the Doctrine of Grace, to know in what the Power of a sinful Man consists, and what the Essence of his Liberty is? Is it not inher a fundamental part of this Doctrine? It has those two Eathers are directly consolire in hen those two Fathers are directly opposite in he Explication of the Nature of Freewill, it is ertain, that their Discord concerns the essential part of that Doctrine, and that the Chuich could not adopt the Hypothesis of the one, without reset adopt the rippotness of the one, without resetting that of the other. Or else it must be faid, hat she approves a Truth without condemning the apposite Error, for, in short, tho'it were possible hat they should have been both deceived, it is impossible that both their Opinions should be true Ir must be then, that either those that follow St Chryse-stom's Explication deceive themselves, or that those that follow St Augustin's Explication teach a Falsity Here is once again the great puzzle of the Communion of Rome She finds her felf obliged to approve those that give all to, and those that take all from Grace, with reference to Man's Assent, some of her Doctors say, That Man forms this Assent with a full Liberty to refuse it Othersteach, That Grace produces this Assent without leaving to Man the power to refuie it The one or the other teach an Error that does not turn on a trifle, but on a point of very great confiquence In the mean time the Church of Rome, with her pretended Infallibility, Condemns nothing upon this Score If the Condemns Janfinism, the is compell'd to declare at the fame time, (b) that she does not Condemn St Augustin, this is to undo with one hand, what was done with the other Observe by the way these words of Mr Simon, The difference was only concerning things that had not been decided as Matters of Faith. That is to fiv, that provided an Error be let forth, but on the Points that have not yet been That is to fiy, that provided an Error be Janiemst decided to be Articles of latth, a person does not Mr Ley-cease to be latthful, and a good Christian, I say, decker observe this Privilege of an erring Conscience It is men-Observe also, that though it was persisted not to tion d in be of St Augustin's Opinion, when the Matters of the History Grace had not yet been decided as they were in that of the I ather's time, it does not follow, that after those Works of Decisions, the Writers of the Seventeenth Century the Learn-ought to be free to return to St Chrysostom's Opi- ed 1697 nion, for here is a folid Objervation of a Divine, that cannot be supperfied by Mr Simon "(c) I here "is less regard in the Dispute concerning Grace, Llection, and Predestination, to the antient I athers that lived before the Pelagian Herefic, than to those that came since And there is much lib 9 c 6 more had to the Lasins, than to the Greeks, tho apud Armore had to the Lasins, than to the Greeks, tho they came after that Heislie Now among the Latins, whose Authority we have already seen ought to carry it above that of the other Fathers, Divines agree, that St Augustin is he on whom we ought most to rely I of not aert only all the Fathers, and all the Doctors that part 9 came after him, but the Popes themselves, and P 200 the Councils of the other Bishops, have held his Doctrine, concerning Grace, for certain and for Catholick, and they have ALL BFLIEVED

(H) Mr Claude would have exposed himself (H) Mr Claude would have exposed himself to a severe Censure I I have two things to shew, the one, that Mr Claude blamed St Augustin for approving of the Penal Laws against Hereticks, the other, that if he had lived three or four Years longer, he would have been censured, for having Censured St Augustin that it was a sufficient Proof of the I ruth of an Opinion, to know that that Saint had taught

I To prove the I irst of those two things, I need only fet down what Mr Claude writ in a Letter that was made publick He confesses, That St Augustin had an admirable Wit, an Imagination happy and abounding, expressing almost on all occasions a great Piety, Justice, and Charity But he adds, (d) There is one thing that tarnishes his Memory extreamly, (viz) that having had Sentiments of Midness and Charity concerning the Course that ought to be taken with Here ticks, the Contestation which he had with the Donatists heated him so much, that he ran into the quite contrary Opinion, and maintain d foutly that the Hereticks ought to be Prolicuted

II I he Acts of the Synod of the Walloon Churches of the United Provinces, held at Amsterdam in the Month of August, 169 decide the second thing which I am to prove, for this is one (e) of the (e) See Propositions which that Assembly condemn'd, The what has Magistrate has no right to imploy his Authority to destroy been publicative, and had the Proposition of Hereste I say, this lish dos the Proposition is one of those which the Synod solumns of lemnly and unanimously acclar d false, scandalous, and that Synod pernicious, equally destructive of Morality and Religion in the Pithe Synod proscribes, forb di, and condemns them as there of such, forbidding all Ecclesiastick and Secular Persons under the secrets Consures to utto them either in the Pulvice of the secrets of the such as the secrets of the se the severest Consures to attenthem either in the Pulpits nim, por in private Consustations ordering most expressly 565 ordering most expressy 565

(b) Secthe Anlwer that a made to pag 251 (c) Pctav Dogmat tom 1 nald Difficulties proposed to

> (d) See the Letter written from Switzerland. Printed at Dordrecht, 1690 p 20

(a) He was dead in to c

Monti of

lantary, 1687

(b) They

A Physician of Paris publish'd a pretty singular Remark; he pretends that this great Saint could bear a great deal of Drink, and would fometimes make use of it, without being drunk We'll set down (I) his Reasons for it, and those of a Journalist that

Passoral Care and Vigilancy proportionably to the danger that threatens their Flocks, to repress without distinction, and without Complaisance, all those that shall be found Guily, by suspending private Persons from the Holy Sacra-ment and as to the Ministers they shall be suspended from their Offices until the next Syned, by calling two Pafers of the Neighbouring Churches to their Sentence Some Body may object, if Mr Claude had been living (a) while that Synod was held, perhaps they would not have Condemn'd the Proposition which I have rehears d I cannot tell However it cannot be denied, but that his Opinion was struck with Thunder For it is visible, that St Augustin establish'd nothing else, is visible, that St Augustin establish'd nothing esse, but that the Magistrates ought to repress Hereticks by certain Penalties, now the Synod of Amsterdam establishes this so strongly, that they put the contrary Proposition in the number of pernicious Errors, for which they will have the Laity excommunicated, and the Ministers suspended They have then decided the same Doctrine which Mr

all Confifories of their Jurisdiction, to redouble their Claude had Condemn'd in St Augustin Mr Claude's Opinion has been fulminated by that Synod If Mi Claude was surprized that St Augustin imbraced a quite contrary Opinion, others wonder yet more that the (b) Ministers who fled from France have done the like For whereas St Augustin alter'd his Opinion, because the Laws of the Emperors had made a Schism to cease, those Ministers have alter'd their Opinion, when the Ruine of their Churches, by the Authority of the Sovereign, was yet quite freih in their Memory, and the Wound still bleeding. If they had been ask'd, while the Edicts of Perfecution did not cease to pour on the Party, what they thought of a Prince who brought those of his Subjects under divers Punishments that defir'd only a liberty to ferve God according to their Conficiences, they would have answer'd that it is unjust, and yet as ioon as they are come into another Country, they have pronounced Anathema on those that condemn the ule of the Penal Laws against thoic who err This ought to ierve for an Example of the Instability of humane Things, this may afford matter for several moral Resections thole who err

He that was the promoter of those Synodical Decisions had quite alter d his Mind, but it was in cisions had quite alter d his Mind, but it was in some manner by a special Privilege, and by a prophetick Dispensation stom which others could draw no consequence. His Politicks of the Clergy, his Preservative, &t had highly condemned the use of Penal Laws in Matters of Religion. He had amply treated of it in his Answer to the History of Calvinsim, at least he had given to understand that he wish'd solidly to consute the Apologists of the Penal Laws. It is true that he had pull d down with one hand, what he endeavour'd to build with the other and that he fell into a putiful Contradiction. one hand, what he endeavour'd to build with the other, and that he fell into a pitiful Contradiction, which exposed him to some terrible Mortifications in several Writings that have been publish'd against him, but in short, he could not be hitherto convinced of having clearly and precisely, said the risa and No It was only in consequence of the Revelations which he thought he had received from above, about the approaching Ruine of Popery I say, it was only in consequence of it, that he I fay, it was only in consequence of it, that he raised himself against those who did not believe that it was permitted to extirpate Sectaries by the Authority of the Secular Power He imagined that those Persons made a personal Quarrel against him, and that they conspired against his Explication of the Revelutions (c) The Clergy of France have made much use of the Caugustin's Reasons, to have made much use of St Augustin's Reasons, to justifie the Conduct of the Court towards the Reformed All that St Augustin published on that matter has been ordered to be Printed separately in good French A Protestant has given the Constutation of it in the Third Purt of the Philosophical commentary on these words, COMPEL THE M TO COME IN See the Ressections (d) that have been made on the Prejudice which the Authority of that ME IN See the Reflections (a) that have been made on the Prejudice which the Authority of that Sunt does to the good Cause Some have been surprised that Mr Poires should have endeavoured to excuse him See the History of the Works of the Learned in the Month of May, 1692 p 358 and in the Month of August in the same Year, P 55-

(1) Unit form his Resigns, and these of a year-nalist whether the form of whom I speak the Petts The Chapter (1) where he treats of the intituled, Videri B. Augustinam non invasidation for the first he places the foundation of the Properties in these words of Secondaria. foundation of his Pretention in the milwebers, no Augustin, (f) Rhrietas longe off a me milwebers, no appropriagues mihl Grapula autem nonnunquam surrepit serve tue, misereberis, ut longe flat a me That is to say, Drunkenness is far from me, then will have mercy on me, Lord, that it may not come near me Dronk mercy on me, Lerd, that it may not some near me Drink furprizes thy Servant sometimes, then mile pery him that it may go far from him. It feems that there is a fort of Contradiction there, for the contradiction there, for the contradiction, that one never drinks so much out contradiction, that one never drinks so much as to make one's felf drunk, and yet that one is sometimes overcome by the Crapala? Mr Posse shews by the Authority of Aristote, that the Crapala is the last Period of Drunkeaness, that it is the Head-ach which remains when Sleep has designated Head-ach which remains when Sleep has diffipated the Vapours of the Wine, and when a Man that made himself Drunk, recovers his Understanding, and is no longer in the ahenation of Mind which took his Senses from him. He confirms this by a Passage of Pliny, and by some Verses of the Poet Alexis, and here is the way how he clears the feeming Conand here is the way how me crows are seeining contradiction. He supposes that this great Saint had a strong Head, (g) and was able to drink much Wine without losing the use of Reason, but not without being incommoded with it the next Day. At that rare a Man may say that he is never drunk, tho' in some occasions he finds himself tormented with the Crapula for having drank too much, and he must acknowledge a certain imperfection heieus that obliges him to implore Mercy of the Heaven ly Father Sic nobie dubitatio illa vanescie, vindicatta que Augustinus a turpitudine corum, qui rationem sumo vino obruere non dubitant uon tamen a culpa ommino, Plo judice, qui tantum vini hauriret, inde ut crapulam redigeret, aliquando incurreret, nece posset sibilitare pocula temperare, rationis quin nimio potu interdum valetudini sua incommodaret usum Qua de re ibi misericardiam Dei implerat (h) Mr conserva petit excuses St Augustin on the Climat where he re Petrus lived, and on the Custom of the Africans, and proposes this Objection to himself It is probable that ubi supra this great Man practice what he advited others to p 138 he praised the shat were contented to live on Herbs and Bacon, and to drink two or three Glasses of Wine without Water (1) Duavel tres vinemeraca potiones propter diligentiam valetudinis sumpta cum olus-culus & lardo laudansur The Answer 18, That it is cults & lardo laudaneur The Aniwer 1s, That it is de morilikely St Augustin dud not so much practise that busManiRule, but that he might sometimes transgress it chaorum among his Friends, and those whom he invited to apud Pehis Episcopal Table (k) Velim & mihi illus contitum ib cedi, non minus probabile, non its hunc regule illi addidium vixise, ut non eum vini medum nonunque de p 140 didium vixise, ut non eum vini medum nonunque (k) Petiinser amicos, & mensa episcopalis hospites bibendo ence-deret For otherwise it must be concluded that he lived only on Herbs and Bacon, (1) which cannot be thought without monachal Folly be thought without monachal Folly

Let us see what Mr Cousin answered to that and customage Paradex of Mr Petit For so he can be frange Paradex of Mr Petit For so he can be confessionally from whence the Passage maken Id We shall see, (a) That St Augusum represents there (n) how he was disposed in regard of eating and drinking and that he declares that he had learned of God n for after Aliments any more, than as he would do the after Aliments any more, than as he would do seek after Aliments any more, than as he would do Remedies, and to use both aliment the says that according to that Principle he is always with his guard against Pleasure, when he satisfies the Necessities of Nature, that he was in a continual War with himself by Fastings and Abstrace, that he reduced his Body often into Subsection, and heard methous coasing the market God crying jection, and heard without ceasing the voice of God crying to him Ne graventur corda vestra in crapula & ebrictate Mr Cousin asks, Whether a Bishop that lived in that manner can be suspected to have drank sometimes in "hat manner can be suspected to have drank sometime, to excess? He assures that no distinction is to be made here, that St Augustin never drank more than necessity required, and (p) that therefore when he said, Cra- (p) Ibid pula autem nonnunquam obrepais serve touo, he P 427 takes the word Crapula in another sence Besides that of Aristotle, wherein it signifies the heat and pain caused by the Wine taken excessively, it may at least have

(e) It is the 15th of hes Book Interned. Homet Nepenthes, five de Helenæ Medi-Printed at Utrecht in the Year 1689 IN (f) Aug Confess.

Cap 31

(g) Quod ca effet cerebri ac mentis firmitate ut pollet, parte oue multosad mno, infaniam redigeret, (h) ld 1b pag 139 (1) Aug de moritus ibid

> putare cucullata effet dementiæ Id ib (m) 7 1689 p

(1) Quod

of Hol-(») Ibid

were in far greater number in the Synod, than the Walloon Ministers, and they with the French Ministers fled into England See the AEts of that Synod, concerning the Fatt. in the 8th I etter of the Pitlure of Socinianılın, & P 559 & feq The Author of The that Pi-Eture offirms p the Refoand Definitions of that Symadeuna nimoufly (c) Sec the Apology for Assertors of Toleration ty Mr Huet Mifter of Dort, p 133,134 (d) In the the Opinions of some Divines of Holland on the Critical Hi-flory, p 365 1eq

confutes them I will not say much (K) on the Additions of St Augustin's Works Divers of his Treatises have been Translated into French

AURAT, or D'AURAT (John) in Latin Auratus See DAURAT

AU-

two others, according to one of which it is taken for an Excess of Eating, and according to the other, for the pleasure it self of eating and drinking. St Augustin did not take it in the first Seuse, for he was as far from eating as from drinking to excess. So then he could only take it in the second Seuse, and confessing that though he fored himself continually to resist the Temptation of Pleasure, which places it self as it were in an Ambuscade at the Passage of the necessary Aliments to allay Hunger and Thirst, and to maintain Health, nevertheless he would sometimes suffer himself to be surprized by it That Surprize happens to the most Perfect, to those that stime their Bodies, and feed them only with Fassings and Abstinence. Mr Cousin confirms this, by the wing divers things that Possidius reported conceining St Augustin's Sobriety. I believe he would not have done amiss, had he given good Proofs of the two Significations of the word Crapula, which he joined to those which Mr Petit prov'd so well.

My Readers ought to decide this Dispute I country my self with the wing than the Passage.

My Readers ought to decide this Dispute I content my self with shewing them the Ressons of both Parties I shall only add, that I have confulted several Dictionaries, without finding there the least track of the Signification which Mr Cousin will have the word Crapula to be taken in in this place. I have also found that some Physicians maintain, that Drunkenness and Crapula signific the fame thing, and that (a) those that look for any difference in them, lose their time in a dispute of Words It is certain, that in Cicero the Teims of (b) Crapulam edormire, Crapulam exhalare, mean the fame thing as the French words cuver son vin, 1 e, to Sleep one's felf sober Plautus vies (c) Crapulam amovere, (d) Crapulam edormire, (e) Crapulam edormifeere, in the same Sense It is also well known, that at this present time the French word Crapule is more odious than that of Drunkenneis, for it fignifies the highest degree of Drunkenness It is, as Furetiere obscives, a shameful and continual Debauch of Wine, or other intericating Liquors lie adds, Crapuler is as much as to tiy, to drink without ceasing, to be continually and filthely Dounk The Diction uy of the French Academy contums these Definitions But there is no consequence to be drawn from one Age to another, as to the Sense of Terms Use makes it vary prodigiously There was certainly a distinction between Drunkenness and Crapula, in Aristotle's and St Augustin stime This is yet more clear by the Passage of that Father of the Church, than by that of the said Philosopher The Question is, to know wherein the difference consisted in St Augustin's time Without doubt, if Mr Petit had (f) replied to Mr Cousin, he would have produc'd much Learning, and I believe he would not have forgot that the Authors who, like Aristotle, treat a subject dogmatically, are particular in the Description of the Genus's and Species, and observe the propriety of the Terms design d to significe the differences of the Species, or the different degrees of one and the same Quality, but Poets and Orators soon leave that exactness, they introduce a freer use, or else they fit themselves to the Custom of the Publick, which makes the Terms, which the Doctors had distinguish'd, to be taken indifferently for each other in a great many Occasions ftion is, to know wherein the difference confifted

(R) On the Editions of St Augustin's Works | Mr du Pin (g) has given a List of them, which is neither so ample, nor so exact as that which the Journalists of Leipsick (h) have given Now seeing it is very easie to constit those Authors, it would be superfluous to Copy them here I shall only say, that the best Edition of that Father's Works is that which came out at Paris by the Care of the Benedistine Monks of St Maur It is divided into I can Volumes in Folio, as some others are, but there is a new order, or a new disposition in each Volume The First and Second were Printed in the Year 1679 the Third was Printed in the Year 1680, the Fourth in 1681, the Fifth in 1683, the Sixth and Seventh in 1681, the Eighth and Ninth in 1688, and the Tenth in 1690 This last Volume contains the Works which St Augustin composed against the Pelagians There came out a Letter of the Abbot D to the R R F F Benedistiner of the Congregation of St Maur, on the last I ome of their Edition of St Augustin The Author of that Letter pretends, that they design'd to favour $\Im an \Im eni/m$, and that the Proofs which he brings for it are convincing. I have heard that this Letter does so much the more puzzle the Beneditines, because there are some Bishops that require an account of them for their Conduct, and threaten to forbid the Reading of that Edition of St Augustin in their Dioceles in their Dioceies Those I carned Fathers have given an Ex lanation on that Head, and satisfy d the Publick on account of the Reproach See the Letter of a Divine to one of his Friends, on the Libel which is Initialed, A Letter of the Abbot * * * & c it was Printed off the 22th of Fibruary, 1699 and contains B. nedial Registration of the standard of the service of the Registration of the service of the B. nedial Registration of the service of 88 Pages in 12, but it did not determine the difctines and furence There came out a (1) Memorial of a Dottor in Divinity addressed to the Prelates of Irai ce, on the Answer of a Benedictine Div ne to the Letter of a Tefuits, on the Ed tion German Abbot, and the Author of that Memorial of St Aumaintains, That all the blame which had been laid gustin on the Beneditines is just, and that those Fathers (1) Pr n ed hive not Answer'd well He takes notice (k) that in 1609 it they sent from Rouen to Paris a second Answer to contains the German Abbot, and that Father de St. Marthe 128 Pages was very willing that it should be attributed to him in 12°.

The Beneditines reply d, but could not illence their (k) P 121.
Adversaries Some other Writings were publish d Pro and Con, of which I cannot give the Particulars, because I have seen but few of them I have seen a little Book call d, The Condust of the Beneditines since their Edition of St Augustin has been attack d It contains 79 Pages in 12, and was Printed in the Year 1699 Among other things we are told there, I That before they had publish d any thing in their own Defence, (1) an unknown person addressed a Writing to them, which he took care to disperse all over Paris before he had sent them any Copy

That he had given his Piece the Train of That he had given his Piece the Title of ALetter of a Commendatory Abbot, to the Reverend Fathers the Benedictines of the College of St Vaur 3 That as the Letter which the German Abbot witt against these Fathers was call'd The German Benedictine, this was named The Little Benedictine, and all the World was named The Little Benedictine, and all the Wolld iaid that the younger was as good as the elder 4. That (m) the Author dissembled all the while, from (m) P 25 the beginning to the end, and only spoke the Language of the Jansenists, that he might be the better underflood by the BB 5. That (n) the Little Benedictine (n) P 28 exasperated and stirred up the Party, so that from that moment they thought of defending the new Augustine and that the Abbot du Guerr West to the Augustin, and that the Abbot du Guay went to the Abbey to offer his Pen to the Congregation of St Maur 6 That (0) the Little Benedictine had not (0) P 29. been seen by every Body, before another smaller and more pleasing one appear'd on a sudden It was intituled, The Letter of a Benedictine not reformed to the Reverend Fathers the Benedictines of the Congregation of St Maur, and came from the same Hand as the Little Benedictine 7 That (p) the Benedictine appear'd, which was so Icrous, as to make one believe, that it really came out of a Closser Its Sitle was, A Letter of a reform'd Benedictine of St Dennis, by way of Answer to the German Abbot, the Commendatory Abbot, and the Benedictine not Reform'd 8 That (q) the first Answer of the Benedictine: came from (q) P 35 Augustin, and that the Abbot du Guay went to the (q) the first Answer of the Benedictines came from (q) P 35 St Dennis, and was attributed to Dom Lamy It is intituled, A Letter from a Divine to one of his Friends, on occasion of a Libel called, A Letter of the Abbot * * * to the Reverend F F the Benedictines, &c 9 That (1) there appear'd another Answer, which was (r) P 40. not expected, 'tis that which Dom de Ste Maithe bragg'd that he had made in less than two Days, the Title of it is, Reflections on the Letter of a ier-man Abbot, &c 10 That () by the Conlent of (s) P 44 the Title of it is, Reflections on the Letter of a serman Abbot, &c 10 That () by the Confent of (s) P 44 all the World, the best thing which has been Writ on the account of this Edition, is that whose Title 18, A Memorial of a Doctor of Divinity addressed to the Prelates of France, about the Answer of a Divine among the Benedictines, to the Letter of the German Abbot 11 That (t) a Man more Learned than Polite, (t) P 47 spread abroad a Manuscript against Dom de Ste Marthe, and called it See Marthe a bad Divine, and a good Jansens? I hat (u) a Manuscript of a certain unjudicious melancholy Man succeeded this Learned one, that piece was intituled, Antimory Learned one, that piece was intituled, Antimony to fire eas a Preservative age ust the Calimn is of F de h h h h

(a) Qui differentiaminter erapulam & ebrietatem fingunt λογισχῦσι Γοεί pag 353 Diet n 475 Jacob Pancratius Bruno in Lexico Me-

(b) See the 2d Philip of Cicero, fol m 247 D and the 8th Verrine, fol 53 B dico bub.

(c) Plaut in Pfeud act 5 fc 2 V 1

(d) Id in Mostell

26t 5 fc 2 V 1 (e) Id in Rud 26t 2 fc 7 V 28

(f) He could not do it, for he was dead before his Nepenthes appear'd (g) See his New Bibliotheque of the Ecclef Authors, Tome 3 p 257 edit of Holland

(h) Intheir Menth of Jan 1683 PAG 2

& The EmperorCliu
dius mriting to him. calls bim only Valerius Aurelianus Vopifcus in Aurel . 17

(1) P 51 (b) P 67 (c) P 68 (d) T_k s witlout tha which wa spoken of 111 p 64 n q o'ing the words taken from a Manu-Script Letter of Mr Simon to F Martianai A Benedi-Etine, na-Bernaid de Montfaucon, bas made a vivorous anin er to the of the Ma-Cer of the Sacred Palatt (e) P 10 (f) P 12

AURILIANUS (Lucius & Domitius) Emperor of Rome in the third Century, was one of the greatest Warriours in Antiquity. It is not certain where he was (A) born, but it is agreed that his Lxtraction was but mean, and that his Mother,

Ste Marthe And (a) that the Manuscript of the melancholy Man was follow'd by another which was attributed to a Jesust, it is called, Vindicial Petavis 12 That in the Book intituled, (b) A Solution of divers Problems, and attributed to Mr du Guet, the Jansensts defend the Beneditines with an high hand 13 That (c) there appeared a third (d) Answer of the Beneditines, which is call d, Vindicial S Augustine a PP BB, adornate, that it predive S Augustini a PP BB, adornate, that it preceded most of these Writings which I have hitherto named, that it is little more than a Translation of I Lamy's Answer, and that its done under a of I Lamy's Answer, and that tis done wind borrow'd Name &c.

I have seen a Piece also which is attributed to Dom Lamy, 'Tis a Complaint of the Apologist of the Benedictines, to the Prelates of France, on the Defamatory Libels which are dispersed against those Religious, and against their Edition of S Augustin, with a Summons to the Author of those Libels to appear before the Archbishop of Paris, and an Account of the Process which was entred against the Benedictines, on their Edition of S Augustin All this contains 88 Pages in 8 The Author having demanded of the Prelates the Punishment of his Adversaries, takes notice that (e) The difficulty is to know who tice that (e) The difficulty is to know who those unquiet and seditions Men are that attacked the Benedictines. Tis not so great as may be imagined, fays he, 'tis true, that they take care not to set their Names to their Libels. But the R. R. F. F. the Jesuits take so much care to ascribe them to themselves, and discover themselves so many other ways, in these Seditions Writings, that they can't be mistaken, unless People take a pleasure in making themselves blind. After this he German

Abhot,

Printed by

he Licence

proposes his Conjectures, and atter some general

Considerations he gives (f) something that is more particular and decisive, "And now, says he, as to the Licence the Letter of the German Abbot, if these Fathers had not made themselves known by their Air, Voice, Accent, Pincip les and Doctrine, yet'its a matter of fact that now no Body denies or contends about, that I Langlus, a Jesuit of the College of Lamis le Crand, is the Author of it, and certainly that good I ather could not pretend that the World thould be apporant of it fince that the World should be ignorant of it, since the Book was fold publickly enough in that College As for the other I ibels, such as the Letter of the Commendatory Abbot, and that of the Monk "not Reform'd, besides our knowing that they made "Presents of them to abundance of People, and "raised Trophies to their pretended Victories,

"how many times have they taken pleasure to Characterize, Name, and make themselves to be look'd "racterize, Name, and make themselves to be look'd
"upon in them, as our Adversaries It is proper,
"my Lords, to let you see in what Shapes and Co"lours they paint themselves, I shall use their own "words, Consider (says one in these Letters) what "Jesuits do Those Men, whom you may suspect to be "your Adversaries, take them for your Model in this "matter, they answer every thing" Having heap'd up a great many more Characters, he goes on thus, "I (g) don't doubt, considering
"all these Strokes, but that they are Jesuits It "will be said that 'tis but a small number of par'ticular Men I grant it They must be only ticular Men I grant it They must be only iome particular Men, for a whole Society was never yet known to have altogether a hand in the Writing of one and the same Letter But "in the Writing of one and the same Letter But is there not some reason to attribute those Writings to a whole Body, when that Body generally speaks and talks of them with approbation and delight? Nay, when they boast of and diffribute them by way of Piesents, and in a triumphing manner, as all the World knows the Jesuits have often done with those Letters. In a word, my Lords, however Scandalous the Writings of any particular Persons of a Society may be, there is ground to attribute them to the whole Society, when the Superiors take no care to superiors them, or when, if it be not in their Power, they don't shew by some publick Act that they they don't shew by some publick Ast that they "dispprove of them, when they don't make a Repulation to the offended Parties, as notorious ind publick as the Injuries and Calumnies have leen 'Tis by this Rule that the scandalous Writing, intituled, The Comedy of the Marks, has been always look'd upon as a Work of the Society of the Jeluits, in which almost all the Religious

" and the with an Indignity and Desision, which "work a willy be pardon'd in the most furious How retire has been. If ay, justify astributed to the "whole dy, altho' composed and acted by their young Cholars, because it doth not appear them "the Superiors ever made any Satisfaction for it". After this he shows us, that it belongs to the Archildhop of Raris to determine this Dussernee, and he (s) summoneth his Adverticues to appear personally at that Tribunal, and to prove their several Accusations, on pain, if they fails to do either of them, of, being Condemned as Slandeners, and their Libels judged Defamatory. But not to give them an opportunity of abusing that Citation, by reason of the Time not being determined, and yet not to be too pressing upon them, we give them two Months from the Day this our Citation shall be published at Raris. At lash he shews, what the State of the Question is, and afterwards, in the drawing up of the Process, he refutes several things that were published against the Benedistines.

I done say that the Archbishop of Paru, and a dottines

I dare say that the Archbishop of Peru, and a National Council would be puzzled in the Determination of such a Cause as this is, for besides the Questions of Jansens being full of Equivocations, two powerful and very learned Communities, who have each their Briends and Generals can cut out work enough, and start Incidents to hternity The best Expedient, when such Disputes are on foot, is to have recourse to the Seputes are on foot, is to have recourse to the Secular Power, as to a God in a Machine, that he may cut the Knot This is what has happen'd in this Dispute The King order'd the Chancellor to write a Letter (k) to the Archbishop of Partitle that no more should be said of this Quarrel that the Parties should publish nothing that the Parties should publish nothing that the Parties should publish nothing that the Bent stan Histories took the best way that could be, as well term for thew that they were assured of the matter of January, Fast, as to stop the Current of the Libels They demanded a regular Procedure, where their Ac-Fact, as to stop the Current of the Libels They 1700 demanded a regular Procedure, where their Accusers should be obliged to declare their Names, cuiers should be obliged to declare their Names, and to prove according to the Forms of Law the matters in debate, without this no good iffue can be expected, for the worst Gauses, those who have the liberty to Head only at the Fribunal of the Publick, by Assonymous Pemphlets, find it always in their Power to be haughty, insulting, and anoisy, whilst there are Writers and Printers A. Private Man, whether he be in the right or the wrong, is silenced, if his Fastism's don't sell, he cannot go on with them, without being at the charge of the Press, and that he cannot do Such charge of the Press, and that he cannot do charge of the Preis, and that he cannot do Such an Inconveniency is not to be found in fo rich and powerful Communities, as those of the Beneditines and the Jesuits They are going to reprint at Amsterdam that Edition in (1) lesser Characters, and News from it will be fold much cheaper than that of Paris There was a delign to Print with it the Critical Notes of a Learned Man, who hides himself under (1) the was a delign to Print with it the Critical Notes of a Learned Man, who hides hunfelf under (m) the Name of Jeannes Pheroponus, but I understand sure that the design is alter'd, and that those Critical Notes will be Printed separately, with the mentary of Ludevicus Vives on the Work de Critical States of the Roman Catholicks would be displeased with it wherefore they shall be left at full sheety to be sufficiently sure on the Edition will be in a separate Volume, and all St Augustical Works, exact comformable to the Edition will be sold without them, to all those was sould not have the rest.

the rest.

(A) It is not certain where he was born] Vopicus nonnulla having related three (n) Opinions, adds, That it Dacia Rhappens commonly that the native Soil of those penils are born in a poor place is unknown. He that are born in a poor place is unknown. He august this reason for it, Because they tell a Lye on giffe methat subject to make themselves commendable to mini au-Posterity by the Splendor of the Place of their Natorem Posterity by the Splendor of the Place of their inativity. Evenit quidem ut de eorum virorum genitality qui eum folo nesciatur qui humiliori loco nati, plerique solum genitale confingunt, ut dent posteritati de locorum splendore nitum sulgorem (o). I believe there is another thing that contributes more to it, I mean the number of the Places that would have the honour of having produced famous Persons. They take the advantage of iel contributes more to the Fact, and hope not to be solutily who took upon her to Foretel things, was a Priestess of the Sun He was of a good of the Stature, a handlom Man, of a very strong Constitution, † and of an extraordinary quick Genius He lov'd Labour, Wine, and good Chear, but not Women He of Id c of observ'd Discipline exactly, and cann'd others to observe it (B) with the utmost Seventy A very remarkable thing various erv'd in him, which is, that he continued poor id c of in the midst of a very great parties of Offices that were conferred upon him He had such a great Passon to draw as Sword, that the Soldiers gave him the Sirname of lidly confused; so that they vainly and without proof report, that they are born in such and such a place. From thence came the Disputes about Homer's place. From thence cante the Disputer about Homer's Country I grant with Popisus, that it matters not much to know where great Princes were born, but how they have govern'd Nec tamen magnerum principum virtutibus fumum said est, ubs quisque sis gentus, sed qualis in republ fuerit Nevertheleis, as we are naturally very inquisitive to know the time and place of the Birth of Great Men, I think an Historian is oblig'd to make all possible inquiry to this sie all his Readers in that point, and that there is reason to complain of the Negligence of a great number of Writers that have not taken that care

Traytor Bessus who kill'd lang Darius Nothing can be finer than Aurelian's Orders concerning the Soldiers Duty St John Baptist (b) could not have forbad them more, had he come so particulars Aurelian would not fuffer them to that hay Fruit, nor to make the People give them will Salt, Wood, or Oil, nor to swerve from the Rules of Chastity Would not one think that he had a design to introduce the Monastick Discipline in the Army? (c)

Would not one think that he had a design to introduce the Monastick Discipline in the Army? (c) Hajus episola militaris est ad vicarium sum data hajus medi. Si vis tribunus este, imò is vis vivere, manus militum contine. Nemo pullum alienum rapiat, ovem nemo contingat. Uvam nullus auferat, segetem nemo deterat oleum, sal, lignum, nemo exigat annona sua contentus sit. De præda hostis, non de lacrymis provincialium, habeat arma tersa sin fervus obsequatur à medicis gratis curentur, aruspicibus nihil dent in hospitis caste agant, qui litem fecerit, vapulet. He was so rigid, that the Emperor Valerian, who had a singular Esteem for him, durst not put his Son under his Direction, for that young Prince, who lov'd to play the hald try too much the Austerity of such a Wherefore he chose a less exact Governor Read what he answer'd to the Consul Galus, who did not approve that Aurelian shat Office consultaris sham commiserim quum utique of severiori of the season commiserim quum utique of severi timuisse se dicat Let us not forget Aurelian's Severity to his Domesticks He caused those that verity to his Domesticks. He caused those that had rambled from their Duty to be whipt in his Presence, and he put several of his own Servants in the hands of Justice, to have them punished for their faults. He caused his Maid to be put to Death, for having committed Adultery with his Man (c) Servos & min stros peccanies corremse coedi jubebat, ut nicique dicunt, causa tenenda feveritatis at alil, fludio crudelitatis Ancillam suam qua adulterium cum servo suo fecerat, capiti punivit Multos servos e samilia propria qui peccaverant, legibus audiendos judicius publicis dedit Velerian was in the right to say, that such a Man was too severe (f) Ad for the Age he liv'd in He was only sit for the nostra Sect of the Montanists The Christians of the succeeding Ages would have found him excessive, and how many Casuists should we find at this day that would say of his Morals, what they say of cap 8 p those of the Fathers, they are too strong, and that this bitter and corrosive Physick does not agree with our Sick? Where are the Military Men, nay where are the Citizens that take care to punish the Galantrics of their Servants of both Sexes? All the Galantrics of their Servants of both Sexes? All the Galantrics of their Servants of both Sexes? All the Punishment for Faults of that nature, is to put them away. Nay, sometimes they are so kind as to make them Marry each other. Observe, that History mentions but one of Aurchan's Servants that was punished for her Lasciviousness. It is a sign that such Faults were very rare in his Family, which is a matter of wonder, considering what we see every day, and that a General, an Emperor, must necessarily have divers Slaves of both Sexes.

(C) That he continued Paux in the midst of a very

(C) That he continued Poor in the midfl of a very great number (g) of Offices] The Emperor his Ma- (g) See the flor testified that Vertue, when he charged the List of em Publick with the Expense which the Consult he in Vopitpromised Aurelian should require (h) Consulatum cus ubi su-cum eodem Uspio Crinito in annum sequentem a die un- pia c 10 decimo Calind Juniarum, in locum Gallieni & Vale-riani, sperare te convenit sumptu publico Levanda est enim paupertas eorum hominum qui diu reipublica vi-ventes, pauperes sunt, & nullerum magis The Histo-rian that supplies me with these Words, produces the letter which the Emperor writ to the Prefect the I etter which the Emperor writ to the Prefect of Rome, to fignifie to him what he defired should be given to the new Consul (1) Aureliano cui confulatum detulimus ob PAUPERTATEM, qua ille cap 12 magnus est ceteris major, dabis ad editionem Circenfium aureos Antonianos trecentos, &c Some have said that the Poverty of Aurelian obliged Valerian to order Ulpius Grinitus to assist him (k) Memni me in quodam libro Graco levise

Mandatum (2) 15 in quodam libro Graco legiste este Crinito a Value esse Crimito a Valeriano ut Aurelianus adoptareur, id-circo pracipue qued pauper esse Observe, that being Emperor, he did not transgress the Rules of Mediocrity, in doing good to his Friends Perhaps he behaved himself in that manner by the habit he had got to renounce opulency, and by the Opinion he had, that moderate Riches were sufficient for a great Man It may be also that he would not irritate the People by excessive Profusions, for Subjects are not pleased to see their Prince beflow his Treasures and Favours on his Friends in an extravagant manner Vopiscus tells us, That that Fmperor would keep a Medium that should take rmperor would keep a Médium that should take away the Inconveniencies of Poverty, without exposing any one to Envy (1) Amicos suos bonesse (1) Id ib ditavit & modice, at miserias paupertatis essugerent, cap 45 & divitiarum invidiam patrimonis moderatione vitapag 540 rent. He adds, That he would not suffer any Person to wear Silk Clothes, of which he gave them an Fxample, and that he submitted his own Wise to that Law, for when she desir'd at least but one Suit of it from him. he answerd her. God forbid Suit of it from him, he answerd her, God forbid that Thread should cost as much as Gold At that time a Pound of Silk was worth a Pound of Gold

(m) Vestem holosericam neque ipse in visitario suo habuit, noque alteri utendam dedit Et quum ab co uver sua peteret, ut un co pallio blatteo serico uteretur, lle rispondit, Absit ut auio sila pensentur libra enim (n) Tilleauri tunc libra serici suit See Mr de Tillimont, (n) who found but little agreement between that fact, and certain things reported by the same Historian or others, concurring that Liperor's Luxury But let us not forget, that he did not clothe (o) his Domesticks more magnificently after his Livation
(o) Vopison
the Throne than before, and that he granted
(p) the Senators to have the same Liveries as himfelf facit temcus ubi lu-

(h) Ill 1b.

(D) The

(b) Seethe Goffel of St Luke chap 3

#k 14

« Vopif-Cus abid cap 6 5 lb 1d O cap 7 x See the First Rook of Samuel chap 18 v 7 v Vopisc 16 cap 14 cap 15 2 16 c 10 # Ib c 13 s Ibid c 17 ø 7 osimus lib 1 pag 654,655 They were Neighbours of Rhetia and of Iv Vopisc cap 2.1 * Laken out Hist of the Emperors, tom 3 par 1030
& feq

Sword on hand, to distinguish him from a (D) Captain whose Name was like his. He made fuch a Slaughter in Combats, that he "kill'd Forty-eight Sarmatians in one day, and that the number of a Thousand was made use of to count the mortal Blows which he had given the Enemy That thought found place in the Songs and Ballads; he had in that the same Advantage as the first King "of the Jews, and deserved it much better For it was not pretended that Saul kill'd with his own hand the Thousand Enemies, whose Slaughter was attributed to him in the Songs, but the thing was understood so of Aurelian He was adopted by "Ulpius Crimitus, one of the greatest Men of those Times The Emperor Valerian, who managed that Affair, made him a Lieutenant of the same Crimitus, who was General of the Frontiers of Illricum and tenant of the same Crinius, who was General of the Frontiers of Myricum and Thracia, and design'd him Consul in the Year 258 Those Rewards, and some others were accompanied with the most sensible Delights, considering the Elogies, (E) and Testimonies of Esteem, that serv'd for a Preface to the Emperor's Declarations We do not find that Aurelian made any Figure in the Empire of Gallienus, but under the Empire of Claudius he had the chiefest Employs, and commanded the Army with so much Glory, that after the Death of that Emperor, all the Legions conspir'd to set him on the Throne? This was done in the Year 270 A little while after he came to Rome, and when he had confirm'd his Authority, σ he marched towards Pannonia, where the Goths had made an Irruption He gave them Battle, and oblig'd them to rep is the Danube, and to desire a Peace After this having been inform'd that the Marcomans, the τ Juthungs, and some other Nations, had resolv'd to carry the War into Italy, he marched against them, and overthrew them in a great Battle near the Danube. He kill'd many of them as they repass'd that River, and hindred the rest from returning into their Country, but thut them up in the Roman Dominions The wint of Provisions, and many other Inconveniencies which obligid them to defire a Peace of him, did not inspire them with such a Submission as might please him Deputies spake hercely, and he sent them back very haughtily, for imagining that he had cut off the Retreat from that Army, he thought they could not escape him He wis deceived. The Enemies disingaged themselves, and marching before him, they enter d into Italy, where they made great Ravages round about Milan tollow them with speed enough, for his Army was heavier than theirs He could not They defeated him by Surpitze o near Placentia, and if they had understood the Military Art as well . as he, they might have ruin'd the Empire after such a Defeat, but as they knew not how to make use of their Advantage, and did not march close, he defeated them in divers Rencounters, and reduc'd them to nothing * During that War the Books of the Sibyl were consulted at Rome I must mention some Circumstances of it that will Dexippus make Amelian's Religion, (F) and the Irreligion of his Flatteres known to us It is likely

(D) The Soldiers gave him the Sirname of Sword in Hand, to distinguish him] What an able distinction is here to flatter the Pride of a brave Warriour! Here are Popiscus's Words (a) Gladii exercidi cupidus Nam quum essent in exercitu duo Aureliani tribuni, hic, & alius qui cum Valeriano captus est, huic signum exercitus apposuerat manus ad ferrum, ut si forte quareretur quis Aurelianus aliquid vel fecisset vel gessisse. Suggereretur, Aurelianus manu ad ferrum, atque cognosceretur (a) Idem cap 6 pag

stque cognosceretur

(L) Considering the Elogies and the Testimonies of Esteem that served for a Presace I I am going to report them, for they contain the considerable Services that Aurelian had done to the Empire (b) Valerianus Augustus Ceronio Albino prasecto urbs. Vel-Valerianus Augustus Ceronio Albino prafetto urbi Vel-lemus guidem singulis quibusque devotissimis Respub viris multo majora deferre compendia quam eorum di-gnitas postulat, maxime ubi honorem vita commendat Debet enim quid prater dignitatem pretium esse meri-torum Sed facit rigor publicus, ut accipere de provinciarum oblationibus ultra ordinis sui gradum nemo plus possit Aurelianum fortissimum virum ad inspicienda & ordinanda castra omnia destinavimus cui tantum à nobis atque ab omnia Republica, communi totius exercitus confissione, debetur, ut digna illi vix aliqua vel nimis magna sunt nunera Quid enim in illo non clarum? quid non Convinis & Scipionibus confirendum? Ille liberator Illyrici, ille Galliarum resitutio, ille dux magnitotius exempli. Et tamen nibil praeterea possum addere tanto quiro ad muneri avatiam quant settius chem. tanto viro ad muncris gratiam quam patitur sobria & bene gerenda Respub Quare sinceritas ena, mi parens charissime, supradicto viro efficiet, quandiu Roma suerit, panes militares mundos sedecim, &c This is what Valerian wrote to the Prefect of Rome, and here is what he wrote to Aurelian Ego de te tantum, Deo favente, fero quantum de Trajano, si viveret, possis sperare Re-spub Neque enim minor cst (c), in cujus locum sidemque te lege Consulatum erm eodem Ulpio Crinito in annum sequentem a die under mo Calend Juniarum, in locum Gili de I aleriani, sperare te convenit sumptu publico. Here is vet the Discourse that Valerian made to him in the presence of the Army, and the Court (1) Gratias ivi agi. Aureliane Resp quod eam Gotel orun por stare l' van Alundamus per te prada, abundamus gloria, & his omnibus quibus Romanafelicitas crescit Cape igitur tibi pro rebus gestis tuis co-ronas murales quatuor, coronas vallares quinque, coronas navales duas, coronas civicas duas, hastas puras decen, navales duas, coronas civicas duas, najtas puras aecem, vexilla bicolora quatuor, tunicas ducales russas quatuor, pallia proconsularia duo, togam pratexiam, tunicam palmatam, togam pitam, subarmalim profundum, sellam eboratam. Nam te consulem hodie designo, scripturus ad senatum ut tibi deputet scipionem, deputet etiam sascis Hac enim imperator non solet dare, sed a senatu, quando sit consul. fit conful, accipere

The first of these three Passages of Vopiscus, contains a thing that deserves some attention, and which does not well agree with the Ideas we have of the Disorders of the Empire We fancy that since the Soldiers were accustom'd to create, and kill their Emperors, there was nothing but Oppression and Tyranny in the Roman Provinces. That was not always true, We ice here that Valerian managed the publick Expenses to disburthen the Provinces with more Precaution, than is this day and the Christian Vandons day used in the Christian Kingdoms

(I) Some Circumstances that will make Aurelian's Religion, and the Irreligion of his Flatterers known to us. The Consternation was great in Rome, (e) when (e) Vopisthey heard that the Marcomans were enter'd into cus ub: Italy, and made great Ravagesthere In that Con- Juorac 18 sternation some Seditions happen'd, wherefore Ulpius Syllanus, Chief of the Senate, proposed to confult the Books of the Sibyl, but some Senators opposed it, by reason that under so brave a Prince as Aurelian, it was not necessary to inform them-felves of the Will of the God. This diversity of Opinions causing the Consultation of the Wri-tings of the Sibyl to be deferr'd, it was necessary that Aurelian should concern himself in it He wrote therefore to the Senators, that he wonder'd they should hesitate about a matter of that nature, just as instead of deliberating about in the Temple of all the Gods, they were deliberating it in a Christian Church (f) Miror vos, paties sancti, (f) Id tamdiu de aperiendis Sibyllinis dubitasse libris, perinde cap 20 quast in Christianorum Ecclesia, non in templo decrum pag 46 omnium, trasfaretis He was very pressing upon them,

(v) Id 1b ap 9 pag 440

Micfly Suc

he Notes

allo

hon will IBLL F read es tla i to (a) that Velerin believ d lerian equall d Cumitus Th s seems

() Cafau-

ti ue Senfi (i) Idem Vopiscus likely that he purfued the Enemies as far as Germany, where he was oblig'd to flop formetime to repulse the Vandals, who had past the Danube He defeated them, and forced them to beg a Peace, which he was willing to grant them

He return'd to lemont ibid full of Anger, for the Seditions that were raised there, and punish'd them with witraordinary Cruelty This was his predominant Vice, and for that reason many would Voping of Process of not place him among the good Praces; (G) and, according to the Saying of Diocletian, he was more fit to Comman and Army, than to be an Emperor Nevertheles, we must take notice that his natural strictly did not hinder him from being beloved by the People His Liberality, and the eare he took to maintain Plenty, (H) and to punish Misdemeanors, caused his Cruelty to be forgotten Having punish'd the Seditious, and settled Rome in Order again, he undertook the Expedition of the Levant to against Zenobia, and ended that War by the taking of that brave Princess I say he ended it speedily though he found many Enemies to fight to be saying of process. ended it speedily, though he found many Enemies to fight in his way, and many TilleTowns to reduce We have seen elsewhere s what hinder'd him from ruining that mont ubs of Tyana He exposed himself so much when he Besieged Zenobia in Palmyra, & that supra pag he was wounded with an Arrow He defeated the Persians that came to the Assistance 1055 of the Besieged, and the Reputation which he acquir'd " by the Conquest of all the Nations Dominions of Zenobia cannot be express'd In his return towards the West, he under that sent flood him Preessem, he promised to defray the necessary Expen-ces, and for that end he sent his Orders to the Treasurers, for, added he, it is no Shame to con-Treaturers, for, added he, it is no Shame to conquer by the Divine Assistance, it is in this manner that our Ancestors have ended, and begun divers Wars (a) Neque enim indecorum est d is juvantibus vincere se apud majores nostros multa sinita sunt bella, sic capta So that Syllanus had reason to say to Aurelian's Flatterers, That this great Man honou'd the Gods, and trusted in them, and that their Assistance never sham'd Brave Men (b) Meministis P C flance never sham'd Brave Men (b) Meministis P C

(d) See the Article of Ajax the Son of Telament, (e) Ideal.

(e) Ideal.

(f) Unde apparet nullam

flance never sham'd Brave Men (b) Meministis P C me in hoc ordine sepe distiss; jam tum quum primum nuntiatum est Marcomannos erupisse, consulenda Sibylla decreta, utendum Apollinis beneficiis, inserviendum deorum immortalium praceptis recusasse vero quosdam, &

rum immortalium praceptis recusasse vero quosdam, &
rum immortalium praceptis recusasse vero quosdam, &
fulli proinde quasi & ipse vir magnus non deos colat, rum de diis immortalibus speret Quid plura? audivimus titeras quibus rogavit opem deorum, qua nunquam cuiauam turpis est ut vir fortissimus adjuvetur After my literas quibus rogavit opem deorum, qua nunquam cuiquam turpis est ut vir fortissimus adjuvetur. After Aurelian's Letter, there was no farther delay, the Senate caused the Books of the Sibyl to be consulted, which drew a great Train of Devotions (c) Obscrive by the way, how well the Maxim of Ajax (d) seem'd good to certain Persons. We have Flatterers here who imagine that there is no need of any recourse to the Assistance of Leven, but when we mistrust the Valour and Prudence of worldly Princes. Here are yet two Proofs that direction Princes Here are yet two Proofs that Aurelian was not of that Opinion (e) Crede adjutures Rom Remp Dees que nunquam nostres conatibus desurunt This be wrote when he found himself perplexed by the long Ressistance of Zenobia. He acknow-ledg'd in another Letter, that his Victories were a Present (f) from the Gods It is true, he added, that they had always granted them to him with many Difficulties It is the Fate of all things it is not Vertue alone that must be acquired (g) by is not Vertue alone that must be acquir'd (g) by the Sweat of one's Brows, it is the Property of all other good things Sic displacium. In that sense there is no Free-gift, and we ought to confess that that Heavenly Disposition bears a Character of Goodness, for we feel more joy by the acquisition of a condition that costs us much Labour (a the same she good Princes, and, according to the Saying of Diocletian] Vopiscus will inform us of the Particulars, (b) Le Aurelianus quiden, says mustis neque inter bones, neque inter malos principes, ideires qued et clementia, imperatorum des principes described que described qu will find them in Vopiscus, (k) an Author who observes, (!) that but few good Princes were reckoned among a great number of the Roman Emperors, and who praises what a Jester said, I hat all the good Princes may be Painted on a Ring (m) Vides quase quam pauci sint principes bons, ut bene dictum sit a quedam mimico scurra Claudii, luque temporibus,

In uno annulo bonos principes posse perscribi uque

Discleriani, teste Asclepsodoto, sape dicebat, Discleria-num frequenter dinisse, quam Maximiani asperitatem reprehenderet, Aurelianum magis duiem esse debuisse quam principem Name ejus nimia ferocitas endem displiruam principem Nam equi nimia ferential eidem displicebat. These words of Discletian are of an understanding Man, for he used to say, (i) I hat there is nothing more difficult than to Reign well, and he perfectly knew the Reasons of that Difficulty You will find them in Practice (1) and American South

(H) His Liberality, and the care he took caused his Cruelty to be forgotten.] The manner wherewith he punish'd the Seditions that were raised in Rome, during his Absence, past so much the bounds of a lawful and necessary Severity, that it tarnish'd his Reputation, and made him odious (n) Magnum itud, & qued jani fuerat, & qued non frustra speratum est, infamiæ tristioris itstu contaminavit imperium Timeri capit princeps op imus, non amari, quum alii dicerent, perfodiendum talem principem, non optandum alii bonum quidem medicum, sed mala ratione curantem That hatred did not continue among the People the distributions (o) of (o) Idem Bread, Pork, and (p) Oil, and such other Kind- cap 35

Continet, atque duas tantum res anxius optas, Panem, & Circenses It was by such means that this Emperor made himself beloved by the Multitude Read the Letter which he writ to the Overseer of the Provisions (r) Aurelianus Augustus Flavio Arabiano prasetto annone Inter catera quibus diis faventibus Romanam Cus C 47 Rempub zuvimus, nihil mihi est magnificentius quam Pag 576, quod additamento uncie omne annonarum ui bicarum genus juvi quod ut esset perpetuum, navicularios Niliaces apud Ægyptum novos, & Rome amnicos posui Tibe-rinas extruxi ripas vadum alvei tumcutis essodi, diis & perennitati vota constitui, almam Cererem consecravi Nunc tuum est ofsicium, Arabiane jucundissime, elaborare, ne mez dissosimos in irritum voniant. Neque cap 48 enim populo Rom saturo quicquam potest esse letius (1) St & Windows and had taken measures for it (1) It is populo faid, that the Prefect of his Palace dissuaded him from the execution by saving to him the execution of the execution of the execution by saving to him the execution of the exec from the execution, by faying to him, that if (t) Wine was given to the People, there would re-Wine was given to the People, there would remain nothing more to do than to give them Geese and Fowls Such largesses are sufficient to cause the spilling of some Persons Blood to be forgotten. Though Awelian had caused his (u) Sisters Son or Daughter to be put to Death, or both of them, for frivolous Reasons, tho' be had improperly made use of (w) the Punishment of Death, all this was not able to make him lose the Affection of a People to whom he gave the means to feed themselves. not able to make him lose the Affection of a People to whom he gave the means to feed themselves conveniently, and whom he regaled (x) with fine Clothes Besides, his Severity put a stop to several Disorders that were odious to the People He destroy'd the Informers, Extortionis, the publick Bloodsuckers, and such other Blood (y)

Quicquid sane scelerum suit, quicquid male conscientia, well arium sungstarum, quicquid denique fastionum Aurelianus toto pemius orbe purgavir (z) Item superitation publicas ad privatoium securitatem securit in soot Trajaro semel suss Amnessia etiam subsequenti foro Trajaro semel suss Amnessia etiam subsequenti custus est tabula publicas ad privatoium securitatem securit in soot Trajaro semel susse et de exemplo Atheniens cusus sit e iam Tullius 12 Philippicis memint Fures provinciales repetundarum ac peculatus cap 39 P min t Fures provinciales repetundarum ac peculatus cap 39 P reoc ulti s m 2 1111 modum est persequitus, ut eos in- 5- , 523 gentibus

(n) Idem

(p) Idem

(q) Juv Sar 10 ¥ 77

(r)Vopif-577

damus fuperest ut & pulferes demus cap 48 pag 578 (u) ldem стр 36 Notes upon (x)Vopif ro fudorem dii poluerunt Immortales, longa vasam, Primumque aspera Hefiod Opera & dies v 287 (b) Vapit-cue 533 (1) Id 1b cap 43 (k) Ibid (l) Idem cap 42 (a) Id ib

depingi

(a)Vopis cus c 23 p 464 (b) Idem

c 19. p 459, 460 (c) Idem cap 20 (d) See the mihi à dus im-mortalibusdatam fine dufficultate victoriam Id c 38 (g) The Superne a perme ad pourse Seol n egnaegida Edmias Abaralos ng spores 3 ng spores 3 ns spores in

Kan Ton you TO SPOOTO Ante vir-

a Tillemont pag 1056 See the Remark L 6 Vopic c 32 7 See Tillemont 16 p 1058, 1050 & See the description of it in Vopisc 13, & 1eq m It is par -In the Coun try which es now called Bavaria and Suabia was also called Da-CIA, or New Dicia Sce the Proofs of the sin l p 1c67 θ Vopisc 4 35

(a) Idem c 39 (t) Idem (49 (1) Id il

(d) Populus autem vit, Senamuit Id cap ult (e) Senatus mortem ejus graviter tulit, gri-VIUS tamen po-pulusRoqui vulgo dicebat Aurelinnum predagogum este Senatorum Id c 37 (f) Id (I 7 416

(c) 11 trom Vopilcus s words juft , ow menon'd stood that the Palmyrenians had revolted That News made him return into Syria, and he came a to Antioch before it was known that he was coming. He punish'd Palmyra with an excessive Cruelty, for he put all in it to the Sword When he was yet at Carræ in Melopotamia, he was inform'd of the Revolt of the Egyptians He march'd against them with his usual good Fortune and Diligence, he defeated their Chief, took against them with his situal good Fortule and Dingence, he deleased their Chief, took and put him to Death, and by that means subdued Egypt in a very little time 6. His delire of reuniting to the Empire, Gaul, Spain, and Britain, which had been usurp'd by setticus, made him return into the West. He won a Battle near Chalons on the Marne, which decided the matter, so much the more, because Tetricus yielded himself up to him during the Battel. He return'd to Rome, and triumph'd over Zenobia and Tetricus with an extraordinary Pomp s. He repast into Gaul, and being inform'd that the Bribarians were enter'd into the Country n of the Vindelicians, he march'd thither immediately, and stop'd the Evil From thence he past into Illyricum, and judging that he could not preserve Dacia, of which Trajan had made a Province beyond the Danube, and which was lost under Gallienus, he withdrew the Troops and the Inhabitants from thence, and gave to the latter part of Masia and Dardania, which he convertcd into a new & Province He had a fine Army in Thracia, which he designed to lead after the Winter against the Persians, when he was kill'd by one of his Generals 6 It was in the Month of January, 275 We know the great Actions of his Life only in was in the Month of January, 275 We know the great Actions of his Life only in general, but if we knew the particulars of them by exact Descriptions, and in such a minner as Conquests and Battles are described at this time, we could not sufficiently admine him, and we should find the Complaint (I) of Junius Tiberianus very restonable. For, in short, Aurelian was a Man that carried the War from the East to the West with the same ease is they do now from Alsatia into Flanders. He was much lumented, and most magnificent Monuments were erected in his Honour They (k) desired him, and built him a Temple Let us observe, that there was no Deity gentibus suppliciu cruciatibusque puniret He enlarg'd (a) the Circumference of Rome, and restor'd the (a) the Circumsterence of Rome, and rettor d the uncient Bounds of the Empire By this Splendor of Glory the People suffer'd themselves to be decoy'd He reform'd several Abuses, he (b) regulated the number of Lunuchs, because they were risen to too high a Price He forbad (c) to have any Concubines that were of a free Condition In short, it was a pleasure to the Roman People to see (d) that Lingeror make himself to be fear'd by the Senate It may be, that Company took a little too much upon themselves, however it be, I imagine that it was thought fit that the Senators should observe their Actions (e) under such a Master, as School-Boys under the Correction of a Peda-

(1) The Complaint of Junius Tiberianus very rea-fonable] What, faid he, a Therfites, a Sinon, and other Monsters of Antiquity are known to us, and will be known to our Posterity, and shall we not know Aurelian, a most illustrious Prince, and a most severe Imperor, who restor'd the whole World to the Roman Name? Heaven grant that this Folly may never happen Hereupon he engaged Flavius Vopiscus to work on that Emperor's History, and promis d him all the Memoirs that the Library of Trajan could furnish Let us set down that Historian's own words (f) Quasivita me (Junius Tiberianus) quis vitam Aureliani in liter as retulisses. Cui ego quum respondissem, neminem à me Latinorum, Gracorum aliquos lessitatos, dolorem gemitus sui vir santius per hac verba prosudit Ergo Thersitem, Sinonem, cæteraque illa prodigia vetustatis, & nos bene scimus, & posteri frequentabunt divum Aurelianum, claritimum principe..., feverissimum imperatorem, per quem totus Romano nomini orbis est restitutus, posteri nescient? Deus avertat hanc amentiam Et tamen, si bene novi, ephemeridas illius viri scriptas habemus, etiam bella charactere historico digesta, quæ velim accipias, & per ordinem scribas, additis quæ ad vi-tam pertinent Quæ omnia ex libris linteis, in quibus ipse quotidiana sua scribi praceperat, pro tua sedulitate condisces Curabo autem ut tibi ex Ulpia bibliotheca & libri lintei proferantur Tu velim Aurelianum ita ut est, quatenus potes, in literas mittas Observe, that lopicus spake thus about Thirty Years after the Death of Aurelian, I say, observe this as a Proof either of the ignorance or of the negligence of the Latins of those Times None of them had yet publish'd any thing of that Prince's great Actions, the Restorer of the Empire, Orbis restitutor, as he is called in a Medal He did not expect that Disgrace, when he took cire to have the Series of his Exploits written down (g) daily
(h) Il n as much lamented

Il was much lamented They desfied Their very Men that put him to Death

(b) erected a magnificent Tomb for him, and con- (b) Idem (h) erected a magnineent 1 omb for him, and confectated a Temple to him, for they discover'd that they had been engaged by an horrible Imposture to confirm against him. He had threatned his Secretary Mnessheus. That Man thinking himself lost, for he knew very well that the threats (1) of that, (1) Qui Prince would be follow'd with the effect, resolv'd TerreAuton prevent him, and made several Persons believe relianum. to prevent him, and made several Persons believe relianum that Aurelian would put them to Death He shewed them a List, wherein he had put himself, and frustra exhorted them to save their Lives They were minara all persons who had either incurr'd Aurelian's dis- solere, pleasure (k), or who had reason to believe that by the importance of their Services they were very wen in his Favour, and had nothing to fear. All ignoscere, those persons plotted against his Life, and put it in execution. But having afterwards discover'd the Secretary's Fraud, they were the most zeasous to honour Aurelian Mnessheus was exposed to the Beasts (1), and they would have the Memory of Aurelia. honour Aurelian Mnesseus was exposed to the Beasts (1), and they would have the Memory of that Punishment to be preserved on that Emperor's Tomb The Soldiers would not (m) confer the Empire on any of those that were concern'd in his Death, and requir'd a new Prince, and the Deisscation of Aurelian of the Senate The Senate would not take the care upon them to create an Emperor, but as for the Divine Honours which the Army but as for the Divine Honours which the Army demanded for Aurelian, they were decreed without any delay Tacitus, (n) who gave his Opinion first in the Senate, made a fine Speech, which the Reader will be glad to find here, seeing it contains a true Abstract of Aurelian's most splendid Actions, and some curious Thoughts (o) Reste atque ordine confuluissent dis immortales P C si bons service inviolabiles extitissent, ut longiorem ducerent vitam neque contra ess aliqua esset posessas un neces infamille true. biles extitissent, ut longiorem ducerent vitam neque (n) Hewas contra eos aliqua esset potestas iis qui neces infandas tri- elected Emstissima mente concipiunt Viveret enim princeps noster peror some Aurelianus, quo neque utilior suit quisquam Respirare Months certe post inselicitatem Valeriani, post Gallieni mala, after imperante Claudio caperat nostra Respublica at eadem reddita fuerat Aureliano toto penitus orbe vincente Alle (0) Id cap nobis Gallias dedit ille Italiam liberavit ille Vinde- 41 Pag licis jugum Barbarica servitutis amovit Illo vivvente 526, 527 Illyricum restitutum est, reddita Romanis legibus Thra-cia Ille (prob pudor) Orientem samineo pressum jugo iu nostra jura restituti ille Persas insultantes adhuc Valeriani nece, fudit, fugavit, oppressit Illum Saraceni, Blemyes, Axomita, Bastriani, Sercs, Hiberi, Albani, Armenii, populi etiam Indorum, veluti prasentem pene venerati sunt deum Illius donis qua a Barbaris gen-tibus meruit, resertum est Capitolium quindecim millia libiarum auri ex ejus liberalitate unum tenet templum, omnia in urbe fana ejus micant donis Quare P C vel deos ipsos jure convenio, qui talem principem interire passi sunt, nist forte secum eum esse maluerunt Decerno igitur divinos honores id quod vos omnes existimo esse facturos Nam de imperatore deligendo ad eundem evercitum censes effe referendim Eten m in tal.

minara neque fi minaretur nus vere ırafcebatur cum us de qui-bus nihil asperum cogitabat

for which he shew'd more Zeal than (L) for the Sun He left but an only Daughter a. «Vopifwhose Grandson was yet living in Diocletian's time. He was a venerable Senator for cusubifuhis Vertue, and had been Proconful of Cilicia Let us look upon as a Lye, what Abul- pra c 42 pharagius says, c that Aurelian making a Peace with Sapor, King of Persia, gave him h s R See Till-Daughter in Marriage It is also pretended v that he sent him some Greek Physicians, lemont who taught the Persians Hippocrates's Physick Note, That he used no Physicians in his Sickness, and seldom made use of any other Physick than Abstinence It was a hour Happiness for the Christians, that such a Bloody Prince did not apply himself to depharaguas strong them. I own that one of the Persecutions of the Church is plac'd under his stride. I own that one of the Persecutions of the Church is plac'd under his Reign, but some Historians make no manner of mention of it, and those that speak Vopis of it agree that it was short " Before I make an end of this Article, I must take no- cus tice of a Distinction which Vopiscus makes, and which sew Persons (M) are capable * See Tilto make Such was, says he, the end of Aurelian, a Prince more necessary than good lemont who says a see Tilton make Such was, says he, the end of Aurelian, a Prince more necessary than good lemont who says a second of Murble that was says as a second of Murble th What we find in Angelons, a concerning some pieces of Marble that were found in the time of Pope Urban the Eighth, when they level'd the place where Aurelian had caused of fig.

2 Temple to be built on Mount Quirinal, is very proper to give a great Idea of the hic finis Aurelian had Edifice

AUREOLUS (Peter) a Franciscan Friar, and since Archbishop of Aix, was one of the most Subtle and Famous Divines of his Time He flourish'd towards the end magis neof the XIIIth Century, and the beginning of the XIVth He was a boin at Verberie cellario on the Oise, and his Name was Oriol, but as he is only known by the I atiniz'd Name quam bowhich he gives himself I place him here without amount of the same of the on the Osse, and his Name was Orsol, but as he is only known by the I atimiz a Ivaline which he gives himself, I place him here, without imitating Morers, who refers us cap 37 from Aureolus to d Orsol That Reference would be more pardonable, if we found in *kransisto his Article of Oriol, all that was reasonably expected from an Historian, who quotes Angeloni, the Life * of that illustrious Archbishop of Aix, but that is not to be found there I la Historia cannot remedy that defect, for I do not believe that there is any Body in all the diagnifia Extent of the United Provinces, that can lend me the Work wherein that Life of diagnification of the United Provinces, that can lend me the Work wherein that Life of Gifarcin-Aureolus is to be found What I can fay amounts to this, Aureolus † was Professor of fino a Con-Divinity in the University of Paris, they appropriated to him the Title of Doctor flanting it forwards. He was I Provincial of Agustain when he was a Problem of the Magnin of the Provincial of Agustain when he was made Archivered. Divinity in the University of Paris, they appropriated to him the Title of 11 Doctor facundus. He was 4 Provincial of Aquitain when he was made Archbishop of Aix, Magno, illustrata ded not live long (A) after he was raised to that high Dignity. It has been con la veand he did not live long (A) after he was raised to that high Dignity It has been con la verafied that he was promoted to the Dignity of a Cardinal He was a subtle Wit, readelle but too desirous to distinguish himself by (B) new Opinions. It is pretended that antiche genere sententia nisi stat quod dicitur, & eletti pericu-lum erit, & eligentis invidia Probata est sententia Taciti The same Tacitus having been elected (a) Emperor some Months after, began his Reign by ordering sour Statues to be erected to Au-relian, one of Gold in the Capitol, and three of Silver in divers places, and that every Body should have that great Prince's Picture in his House The three Silver Statues were dedicated, but not that of the Capitol (b) In eadem oratione but not that of the Capitol (b) In eadem oratione Aureliano statuam auream ponendam in Capitolio de-crevit item statuam argenteam in Cuita, item in tem-plo Solu, item in foro divi Trajani Sed aurea non est posita dedicata autem sunt sola argentea in eadem oratione cavit, ut si quis argento publice privatimque es t at last (b) Vopif Cusin Ta

cupital effet cum bonorum proscriptions

Addidit,

Cito, c 9

ut Aurelianum omnes pictum haberent

(L) More Zeal than for the Sun] It seems to me that his first Education was the cause of that Worship, for it is likely that his Mother, who was (c) Priestels of the Sun, inspired a particular Devotion into him from his Youth for that Deity However it cap 14
(e) Spanheim not en the Cefars of Julian, pag 10
(f) Vopifcus says he spoke those words
(g) Ibid
cap 25
(h) Ilic

cap 24

him from his Youth for that Deity However it be, we find that when he thank'd Valerian, who had design'd him to be Consul, he made use of these words
(d) Dis faciant & Deus certus sol ut & Senatus de me sic judicet A learned Man (e) pretends that he spoke thus in a (f) Letter, as if the other God were doubtful, except the Sun only It is pretended that in the Battle which he won against a Deity that incourag'd the Soldiers, and made the Infantry support the Cavalry that was ready to fly As soon as he entred Victorious into Emesa, he went to the Temple of the Sun Statim ad templum Heliogabali tetendit, quasi communi officio vota went to the Temple of the Sun Statim ad templum Heliogabali tetendit, quast communi officio vota soluturus, and found there the same Figure of the Deity that had savour'd him in the Battle Wherefore he founded some Temples in (b) that place, and afterwards he caused the Temple of the Sun to be built (i) in Rome He caused also the Temple of the same God to be rebuilt in Palmyra Here are the Orders which he dispatch'd for that purpose, they discover to us that Prince's Cruelty, and his Devotion for the Sun (k) Aurelianus Augustus Cesonio Basso Non operate ulterius progredi militume gladios sam satis Palmyrenorum casum atque cencisum est Muliteribus non pepercimus, infantes occidimus, senes jugulavimus, rusticos interemimus cus terras, cus urbem deinceps relinquemus? Par-condum eft iis qui remanserunt Gredimus enim tam paucos tam multorum supplicis esse correctos Templum fanc Solis, quod apud Palmyram aquilifer legionis tertia cum vecilliferis & draconario & cornicinibus atque liticinibus diripuerunt, ad eam formam volo qua fuit, reddi Habes trecentas auri libras e Zenobia capsulis habes argent; mille offingenta pondo De Palmyrenorum bonis habes gemmas regias Ex his omnibus fac cohonestari templum mihi & dissimmortalibus gratissimum seceris Ego ad senatum scribam, petens ut mittat pontificem qui dedicet templum

(M) A diffinition which few persons are tences able to make] The defects of Aurelian were ter-Printed aviceable, the State had need of them, but in Vo-Rome in pifens's Opinion it does not follow from thence that the Tear
he was a good Emperor This is the Language of 1595 a Man that does not confound things A great † Labbe a Man that does not confound things. A great number of Persons are ignorant of this distinction. They look only and absolutely on that Government as a good and just Reign, that his prevented and made evil to cease, and if once they fancy de S. pr that a Government is unjust, they look only upon that a Government is unjust, they look only upon that as absolutely bad, without having regard to the magestary Advantages that the Publick draws from

(A) And he did not live long after he was raised]
The Archbishoprick of Aix was conferred upon him (/) Labbe (1) in the Year 1321, and we find that James de Diff de Concos de Cabrairez, a Dominican, was install'd in Scrip Ecthe same Prelature the 10th of July, 1322 It must des tom 2 follow then, that the 27th of April, (m) which was pag 184 the Day of Aureolus's Death, belongs at farthest to (m) Id 1b the Year 1322 Behold the negligence of those times They were contented to note the day in which an Archbishop died, and did not mind the date of the Year

(B) Too desirous to distinguish himself by new Opinions] It is a very dangerous Character, it is a Rock much to be seared, it has scarce ever been (n) Theseen that those who have Wit and Learning enough oph Raystrongly to oppose the common Opinions, have naudus Judgment enough to stop at a proper time, and to discern what is not worth the trouble of a Reformation. Here is a Passage where those fort of Persons are well represented, and our Aureolus is by name among them (n) Ex hac classe, insignia in genia due, Durandus, & Aureolus minus bene audiunt, ? m 250

L 1 1

quad

λ labbe, Differt de Scriptor pag 18, *Plaud, 18 he 1 ys, before the Commen-Oriol, on the Mafter of the Sin-

| Id ib

4 Bellarm

the Army the Senate left the Elettion of a uew Prince. continued to the Senate, who undertook it at last cito, c 9 p 608 (c) Id in Aureliano, cap 4 (d) Id 1b Mars of Jucap 25 (b) Illyc templa donarus ingentibus poli-tis Id ib (i) Id ib

(k) Ibid

(a) It was by the Senate, for he maintain'd (C) the Impossibility of the Creation. The Dominicans had a formidable Adversary in him, and caused him to be refuted with much yigour by one of their best (D) Pens I shall say something concerning (E) his Writings.

AURIEGE.

(n) I do not in any wife frak those tlat labour on necessary Reformas 10ms

(6) Carolus Paichalius,

de opti-

mo gene-re elocu-tionis p

m 124

Estque haud dubie argumentum judicii minus exquisiti, Esque haud duble argumentum juaicii minus exquisti, nec satis maturi, vel emuncii, ferri facile, & absque urgenti vatione, extra viam ita ut quamvis res de qua agitur, ad schola tricas merè pertineat, nec inde dispendium ullum doctrina fidei, vel sanis, ac puris moribus sit timendum, tamen consultissimum sit, quando manifesta ratio non urget, ab anteriorum placitis non discedere Nevertheless it must be confess'd, that these Innovators, (a) and shuffling Wits, are sometimes necessary, for could any considerable progress be made without them? Should we not fall assemble of the second of the second out already, and that we must acquiesce in the Opinions of our Fathers, as in their Lands and their Sun? The Disputes, and the Confusions that are excited by bold, ambitious and rash Men, are never altogether evil. They may be as great an Evil as you please, but they are useful in reference to Sciences, and the Improvement of the Mind that proceeds from them This may be faid even of Civil Wars A very honest Man affirms it of the Civil Wars that ravag'd France in the XVIth Century He says, they resin'd the Genius or the Language of some Persons, they clear'd the Judgment of others, they serv'd for a Bath to cleanse some, and for a Curry-Comb to others to get away their Nastiness Here are his Words, it seems to me that he thinks and expresses himself well amount to describe that I should see your down. well enough to deserve that I should set em down in this place (b) Ut sape res adversa inexpestatis bonis locum faciunt, ita in hac publica, & omnium maxima calamitate res autor dari posest, quibusdam ingenium evasisse limatius, acumen perspicacius, judicium resecatius, os mundius, scripta purgatiora, prorsus ut agnoscere liceat, arumnarum procellas, quibus astua-vimus his esse balneas qua sordes eluciunt, aliis strigivinus his esse balneas qua sordes eluei unt, aliis strigi-lem qua squamam detersit, quibusdam uredinem, qua absumpsit quicquid luxurians & inutile Denique si quis viere astimet, nunc demum intelligimus, eam, qua Rei-publica tempestas suit, privatim, & pauculis esse cotem qua acuitur, & faculam qua accenditur quicquid in singulis ess optimum In truth, the Publick could well be without such Curry-Combs, or Files, or Hones, as any Body will call them Doubtless it is better to be without these Advantages, than to pay so great a Price for them It is better to to pay so great a Price for them. It is better to continue sick, than to be cured by such a terrible chargeable Remedy However it be, we have a Doctor here that was refolv'd to be of no Body's Opinion in his Commentary on the Master of the Sentences, but on the other side he was alone of his own Opinion, every one was eager to oppose him, they compar'd him to Ismael (c) Quem (Petrum Aureolum) (d) Autoninus ait, ita stripsisse in librum Sententiarum, ut quia manus ejus contra omnes qui jam antea scripserant, etiam manus omnium contra eum

(c) Spondan ad ann 1337 n 10 pag m 460 (d) Ant tit 24 cap 8 Sett 2

(c) Theoph Raynaud in Theol Naturali difint 8 n 334 P m 1039

(C) That he maintain'd the Impessibility of the Creaming The Knowledge that I have upon this Subject is very small, for I can only assure you that Theephilus Raynaudus, after having rejected some Reasons of Averroes as very weak, adds, that the Arguments made use of by Aureolus, to shew that the Creation is Impossible, amount to the same thing (e) Eodem recidunt arguments quibus Aureolus apud Capreolum in 2 d 1 q 2 in arguments contra quartam, parum faliciter ingenium enercuit, ut probares creationem esse impossibilem Observe, that he had not read Aureolus, and that he knew his Doctrine no otherwise than as it was reported by his Adversary Capreolus This imposes a new Necesfity upon me to grope here in the dark But in the mean while I do not believe that I am deceived in the Conjecture that I am going to make I suppose that Auresias did not plainly and absolutely deny that the Creation was Impossible, for that would have been to broach an Opinion most oppofite to the Roman Faith He maintain'd only that for such and such Reasons he found it impossible that a Being should be made out of nothing, if Faith did not teach him that the Words which the Scripture makes use of concerning the first forming of the World, ought to be taken properly speaking in a sence of Creation Having once co-

quod ingeniis, quibus valebant plurimum, indulserint ver'd with this Shield, he might freely in plerisque, & novas eudere, ac comminisci opiniones, communem tramitem sine causa deserendo non dubitarint the Impossibility of the Creation, he only ventur'd upon a Philosophical Dispute, in which he did not fear that he should want Cavilsand Subtilities I am certain, that in reading this, those that have a Copy of Capreolus in their Closet, will be so curious as to consult him to know, whether this great Antagonist of Aureolus lays down the whole state of the Question faithfully Many that have a Dostor who maintains that the Creatic Impossible, and would exaggerate the period Consequences of that Dostrine, without intimating that the same Dostor preserves the Orthodox Opinion, and submits the most subtil Arguments that natural Light affords him, to the Authority of Tradition. I fear that he should want Cavilsand Subtrities I am affords him, to the Authority of Tradition. I know that in another Cale Aureolus behaved himfelf in the same manner as I suppose he did with respect to the Creation, which makes my Conjecture more probable. He said, that the Authority of the Saints only made him believe that Translubstantiation is a true change of the whole Bread into the whole Body of the Lord I have read this in a Book of Dr Allin (f) Peirus Aureolus Romana Ecclesia Cardinalis hoc profisuur, propter iolas authoritates Sanctorum teneo, quod Transsubstantiatio est verus transitus & conversio totius panis in to-tum corpus Domini in 4 dist 11 q 1 a 2

(D) To be Refuted by one of their best Pens]

It was by the same Capreolus, whom I have just before mention'd Consult his Commentary on the Master of the Sentences He (g) does severely examine therein Aureolus's Commentary on the farm Mailer. He infinuates, that the false Interpretations which Aureolus made use of, and which had served him for Principles to draw odious Consequences from them, reoli) is had not always their only foundation on the fuis in obscurity of the Mind, but that Passion had a share in the matter I have this only from Father Baron, who expresses himself thus (h) Memini me Capreolum nescio quo ex questiombus in primum sentent loco legere, soluto quadam argumento Aureoli, quo ad septus grande aliquod impiano, & absurdum ex falsa inverpre- excussit tatione nostra sentializarem deduxerar, hec modeste ad- exagitajunxisse Capreolum ex nostra responsone paier hanc vitque objectionem Aureoli prosectionem esse especializarem quidquid sit de essectu. Note, That Constantius Capreolum quidquid sit de essectus a kniera and a Cardinal compositionem a kniera and a Cardinal compositionem a kniera and a Cardinal compositione. Sarmanus, a Friar and a Cardinal, composid a Book, his Labbe wherein he pretended (1) to reconcile Aureolus's who suppose to make the same Agreement appear between the (b) Vin-Tenets of Thomas Aquinas and those of Scotus (k) In the like manner iome have endeavour'd to shew a good Intelligence between Plate and Ariftotle This is to trifle with the Readers, or to turn into Ri-dicule those whom they endeavour to reconcile, without designing to do it Such a Peace is skame- feet 2 ful to both Parties, and the Mediators might fear PAS 240 ful to both Parties, and the Mediators might fear fome cruel Reproaches, if they, who occasion'd the Quarrel, should return into the World. They would say, What, do you pretend that we would say, What, do you pretend that we not the same Doctrines without perceiving it; because we are preposses without perceiving it; because from knowing what we say? This is a same all over, we will have no Peace on such ignormous Conditions, go your ways with your Proposes of Re-union, we had rather continue the War, than see it end to the same of our Understandings and Learning Obierve, that there are some Ocand Learning Observe, that there are some Oc-casions where the hottest Controversies are but a misunderstanding, but I do not believe that we are to judge so of Thomism and Scotism, nor consequently of the difference that is between the Scotist

Aureolus, and the Thomist Capreolus (E) Something concerning his Writings] There is (I) Labbe fo little exactness in those that have spoke of them, who suppose that they have not observed any distinction, neither between those Writings that are yet remaining (m) so among us, and those that are lost, nor between the bear those Works that have been Printed, and those of his I that never were Father Labbe, (I) who complains forested of that common neglect of the Bibliographers, production of the Bibliographers, productions miled to repair it amply, but he died without giving the great Volume of which the Differration which I quote (m) was but a Forerunner He observes

(f) Petrus Allıx, Prafat historica de dogmate transubma, p. 66. (c) Que Commentaria Aureols) in eafdem fententres Commentarus (b) Vincentrus Baronius Apologes ∫e# 2

afticis.

AURIEGE, or rather (A) ARIEGE, a River of France, has its Source in * It is a the Mountains that serve for Bounds to the County of Foix towards Roussillon It pisses Lordship that was by Tarascon, Foix, Pamies, Barilles, * Bonac, Saverdun, Sainte-Gabelle, and Haute Rive, erested inand falls into the Garonne at Porter, a long League above Toulouse, after having received to a Marne Waters of the River Lers on the Right, and (B) those of the Arget and of the quisate for eze on the Lest The Ariege is rapid and full of Fish, as also very good to drink, the late ut it is only Navigable from Hagte-Rive Du Bartas (C) printes it much See also fon, elder ne Passage † which Papyrius Masso relates

AURISPA (John) a Native of Note || in Sicily, was one of the most Learned Persons of the XVth Century He understood the Greck and Latin Tongue, he was a good Oritor, and wrote very well for those Times in Prose and Verse It is fild replux, that he was honour'd with the Poetical Crown in Italy He was Secretary to Pope dir of

(a) Oldoini in Athen Romano p 532 puts the Year 1581 -(b) O1doini ib p 533 Says the Same thing observes, that the Brewiarium Bibliorum of Aureolus, sive Epitome universa sacra scriptura justa lieralem sensum, was Printed at Venice in the Year 1571 and at Paris in the Year (a) 1585 by the care of Stephen Novellet, Doctor of Divinity of the Faculty of Paris, and that the Commentaries on the Four Paris, and that the Commentaries on the Four Books of Sentences (b) were Plinted at Rome in Folio in the Year 1595 and dedicated to Pope Clement VIII by Cardinal Constantius Sarnanus He rejects what Father Mainece reports in his Bibliotheca Mariana, that the Treatist of Aureolis de conceptione immaculata B Virginis, was Printed at Toulouse in the Year 1314 he says, that perhaps that Writing was composed in that Year, or Printed in the Year 1514 the Year 1514

Let us make fome small Remarks on all this

1st, the Catalogue of the Oxford Library mentions the Epitome totius S Scriptura, printed at Straiburg in the Year 1514 I ather Labbe did not know that Edition Gesner was also ignorant of it Gesner's Epitome publish'd in the Year 1583 does not note any of Aureolus's Books that had been printed Obferve that in that Abridgment our Peter Aureolus is very falfly distinguish d from Petrus de Leiberia, dictus Aureols In the 2d place, it is not true that the Commentaries on the Four Books of Sentences were printed at Rome in the Year 1595 Bellarmin (c) affirms that he saw only the Commentary on the first of those four Books, and that it was printed at Rome in the Year 1596 I he Catalogue of the Oxford Library, and that of the Archbishop of Reims, place in that Year the Edition of Aureolus S Commentary on the first Book of Sentences and in the Year 1605 they place the Edition of the Commentary on the three following Books, with the Quodlibeta All this makes two Volumes in Folio printed at Rome, the first in 1596, in the Vation, the last by Zannetti in the Year 1605 I wonder that Bellarmin had no knowledge of the Impression of the last Volume This is somewhat more strange, than to see in Morers that we have several Editions of the Commentaries of Aureolus on the Master of the Sentences, but that that of Rome of 1595, is the most correct How could he have shown those several Editions? Would he have dated that of Rome as he did, if he had known what I have faid above ? Adly, Father Labbe has too much spar'd Father Maracci who believed that they printed Books in the Year 1314 Is it not known to all the World that Printing was not in use in Europe till towards the middle of the XV rh Century? What did the Jesuit Oldoini think on then, when he brags to have seen (d) the Treatise of Aureolus de conceptione Virginie Maria printed at Toulouse in the Year 1314 (A) Or rather Ariege] It is so calld in the Countries thro which it passes. In the old Maps it is call'd Aregia, and Areia in a Manuscript Martyrology of the Monastery of Mossfac. There is in that Manuscript the Passion of St Antonin, who was martyr'd at Pamies, and it is affirm d there that the Bark wherein his Body was laid enter'd through that River into the Garonne (e) Per fluvi-um qui Areia dicitur, ad Garonnam usque perveniens fluvium navicula (in qua corpus Antonini mart à Gentilibus necati) inde alium qui Tarnis dicitur inveniens fluvium, inde retrogrado cursu per Tarnin intravit in Avarionis alveum Hadrian Valesus, of whom I have this, has censur'd those that call it Auriege, and treated Papprius Masso very ill for calling it Auriera (f) Fluvius est vulgo distus Ariege, quibusdam corrupte l'Auriege, (g) à Massono prese, qui busdam corrupte commandament une de rediprisci ejus suvii nominis ignaro Aurigera novo ac ridi-culo nomine nuncupatus Mr Baudrand (h) believes that the true Latin Name of that River is Albu-racis I wish he would have quoted some good of Den-Author Sanson cills it Laurique in a (1) Map which he publish'd in the Year 1675 Most of the Proper Names in it are so dissigned, that he had a work and the head and the state of the largest state of the larges Mr Morers has very pleasantly imagind that it ought to be believed that they are faults of the linguaver Mr Morers has very pleasantly imagind that the Aur ige of Lauriege are the two Names that are used He forgets the true one, and does not think that the two Names which he mentions are the same thing, one without an Aiticle, the other with an Article His mistake is just like the fruit that would be committed by frying, the River that runs by Paris, is call d Sinc or Lascine I know that many Authors laugh at a Writer that takes them up for Errors of this nature, and that they pretend Name is to be above those Trifles But they are great Netum in boafters that would cover their Ignorance, or their Latin Idleness, or their ill Relish, or their Careleiness, with a fair Mask If a City or River were only mention'd occasionally in a piece of Reasoning, the faults which those Gentlemen call Frisles would be excusable. But it is not the same thing, when those Faults concern the chief Subject of a Book That which is only an infignificant Nicety in the Writings of a Divinc, will Iometimes be a capital Fault in a Geographer, or in the Author of a Di-Eti mary

(B) After having received the Witters of the Arget on the Left | Morers deserves a small centure 1 times, here He says that the Auriege having acceived the Iome 1 Iers, the Arget, and the Leze, fulls into the Garonne f 48, This fignifies plainly that the Mouth of the Icrs is above the Mouth of the Arget and that the entrance of the Leze is between the two others Notrance of the Leze is between the two others. No- faid the thing can be more falle. I he Argit comes into Aiget, the Ariege near Foix, and there is eight or nine which is Leagues distance between Foix and Sainte Gabelle, the true whereabouts the Mouth of the Lers is (k) I er- Orthogratius vero in Aurigeram labitur prope Timplum & Gauphy villa. The Leze has its entrance three of tour (n) Note. Leagues below that of the Iers Coulon might have taught Morers the Order of those Entrances Note, that he observes, (1) that the Auriege is called by the I atins Aurigera, and (m) the Arget, Argenti-gera, and that the one bears Gold (n), and the other Silver Perhaps he had taken these Remarks from Olhagara, who wrote what I am going to fay
(o) And what shall we not say of the Lers with his
(p) flowing and ebbing? If the Auriege, and of the Arget Rivers with Gold and Silver Banks? does this not witness the hidden Treasures in the Bowels of those stances Mountains?

(C) Du Bartas praises it much] See here the third Sonnet of his Nine Pyrenean Muses presented to the King of Navarre

Fleuve (q) d'or & de flot & de nom & de sable,

Riche en grains, en pastel, en finits, en vins, en bois, Auriege au vifte cours clair ornement de Foix, Qui rend par ton tribut Garonne navigable. Fille de si grand Mont, que cache, espouvantable, Son front dedans le ciel, que chenu tous les Moss, Depuis le bord du Su jusqu'au boi d'Escossois, Ne void autre plus grand a sa grandeur semblible, Clair flot, je te feroy par un discours facond Plus riche que Pattol, plus que le Nil second Plus loin que l'Ocean on oroit tes etu bruire Fier, on t'egalero t aux fleu see les plus Grands On te verroit au ciel comme le Po reluire, Si je voyo, ter bords repurgez de (1) brigans See also the seventh Sonnet, you will find this in the beginning of it on this admirable Phenom non (q) Du Bartas, in the Appendix of the first Week, p m 934 (r) & nee Du Bartis's time thin lave been after d for the bit or is to tiat L11 2

Brother of Monlieur de Bon-Ambassa-Nicolas France to the Court mark, and afterwards land t Of Berti and Helias Papyrius Musso de flu Gall P m 412

(1) That of th Pyrenean

10/11/11/11

(/)P 4pv1 Milloube 1 ipia (/) Cou-10 1, Ric er of † 48, (m) He had twice laid the Orthogratrand Heleas lib r Historiæ Comitum Fuxensium, fets down fume curious Circumconcernin that Gold Papyr Maflo ubi fupra, P 412 quotes his words (o) Peter Olhagarai Preface to the History of Foix, Bearn and Navarre (p) Seethe third day of the first

Du Birtas

(c) Bel-larm de Scriptor Eccles p m 365

(d) De

concepti-one Virginis Ma-

riæ li-

brum qui habetur M S Tolofæ in Collegio Fuxensi, Sum vidimus Tolofæ anno 1314 Oldoini ub: supra (e) Hadrian Valefius in notitia Galliæ, p 26 (f) Id 1b (g)Papyr Masso in descript Flumin Gallıæ, Pag 470 edit 1685 (b) See bis Geogrpuby

33,88

* Taken from the Elogies S1culorum quiliteris floruerunt, com pos'd by the fesuit Hierome Raguía,

P 147 & leq † See the b) Janus us, Medicus Zuiccaviensis. dated the first of A-pril,1530 + Micrelius, Syn-tag hist Konig is mı staken in putting 153, and quoting Micielius > Aufonius Prrfat ad Syagrium See the

(a) Du Bartas 16 P 936 (c) It is at Lentini " Sicily (d) Taken

Poems of Ausonius,

Intituled. Parentana.

out of Jerome Raguia, pag 148, 149 elogiorum Sı-(e) Lilius Gregor Gyrald de poet fuor temporum Dial 1 p m 531 See also Gefner in Bibl fol 386 verso (f) See Gefner Biblioth fel 386 verso (g) Id 10 (h)Labbe, nova Bıblioth MSS ILbrorum.

(A) And the Son of a Famous Physician] Whose Name was Julius Ausonius He was a Native of (k) Bazas, and ietled himself at Bourdeaux His Wises name was Emilia Eonia, and was the Daughter of Cecilius Argicius Arberius, who fled into

pag 231 idit 1653 () Ppit Biblioth Gefners (k) Aufon. Præf ad Svige & in epiccil paren

Nicolas the Lifth, who gave him great Proofs of his Esteem, in gratifying him (A) with two good Abbeys He entertain'd a long Correspondence by Letters with Philelphus, and his Name is found with praise in Laurentius Valla, in Antonius Panormita, and in divers other famous Authors He retired to Ferrara, and (B) lived there to 2 great Age, honour d with the Esteem of the Lords of that Country, which proved very advantageous to him, for he did not only receive a Livelihood from their Liberality, but also an Lstate *. What he Composed is at present very hard to be

AUROGALLUS (Matthew) a Learned Note of the XVIth Century, and Professor of three Languages in the University of Wittemberg, was born in Bohemia. He had been curious to heap up many good ancient Books, and he was not contented as leave them. rpifile de- to love them, as many others do, that endeavour to make themselves a Name by their numerous Libraries, but loved to read them also I have seen an Epistle Dedicatory | wherein he is exhorted to publish the Physician Aetius, Nineteen Books of Natural History composed by an unknown Author, the Hymns of Callimachus, the Harangues of ratther of the Ten Orators of Athens, and divers other Greek Manuscripts brought from the imatoris I evant to Bohemsa by the Baron Bohuslas of Hassensteyn, which came to his hands, cogniaffectibus tionis & studiorum bæreditario jure It seems that it might be inferr'd from those Latin words, that he was related to that Baron There are some (D) Books of his He died in the Year 1543 4, and had been a great affiftant to Luther in the Translation of the Bible

AUSONIUS, in Latin Decius, or rather Decimus Magnus Ausonius, one of the most excellent Poets of the IVth Century, was of p Bourdeaux, and the Son of a (A) Famous Physician He was educated with a very Particular Care, all s the Family

Françou, (a) arreste toy, ne passe la campagne Que nature mura de Rochers d'un coste,

Que nature mura de Rochers d'un coste, Que l'Auriege entresend d'un cours precipité Campagne qui n'a point en beauté de compagne (A) In gratifying him with two good Abbeys] He gave him that (b) of St Philip de Grandi the 3 is to May, 1449 and that of (c) Sta Maria de la Roccade, in the Year 1451 Aurispa had a Law Suit for this last Benefice, with a Man that had it bestow'd upon him by Alphonfus King of Naples See Rocchus Pir-ius in the 225th Page of his Notice of the Church of Syracusa (d)

(B) He retired into Verrara, and lived there honour'd with the Esteem of the Lords of that Country I prove all this by a Passage of Giraldi (e) Joannes Aurispa Siculiu, says he, orator in aliquo poetarum or-dine riponi potest, quippe qui Gracè & Latine probe do-Elus esset, quippe qui gua ipse legi nescio quid Sicularum gerrarum habere videntur fuit enim eo tem-pore quo nondum exquisita litera in lucem redierant p 936

V xit autem Ferraria ad Jummam fenettutem, in pretio
(b) It sat habitus a nostris principilus, qui & oum locupletem redMessina
(c) Italian familiam originem duxiffe

(C) What he composed is hard to be found] These are the Books that are ascribed to him Translation of Archimedes, the Translation of Hie-cles's Commentary on the golden Verses of Py-thager as, and that of a Consolatory Treatise of Philiscus to Cicero Gesner's Epitome mentions these three Pieces, without mentioning whether they had been printed It is known that the Hierocles of Aurisha was printed at Basil (f) by Henry Peter, in 8', in the Year 1543 Gesner sets down (g) a piece of the Presace, by which it appears that it was made when the Author was already Eighty Years of Age. In the Library of Gebrush Name. Years of Age In the Library of Gabriel Naude there was a Manuscript, intituled, Comparatio de prasidentia Hamibalis Carthaginensis, Alexandri Magni & Scipionis Majoris Romani apud inferos, ex Graco in Latinum conversa ab Aurifia Oratore ad Baptistam Sena-

toris & Equestris Ordinis Civem Romanum (h)

(D) Some Books of his] I do not know whether there are any others than (i) Compendium Hebree Chaldeaque Grammatices, printed at Wittemberg in 8°, in the Year 1525 and at Basil in the Year 1539 and De Hibrais urbium, regionum, populorum, stuminum, montium & alion um locorum nominibus liber even in the consider. Driving at Wittemberg in ters instrumento congestus, printed at Wittemberg in the Year 1526, and at Basil in 1539, in 8 That Second Edition had been inlarged by the Au-

Aquitain after a Proscription, which had deprived him of all the Estate which he had in his (1) Coun-This Arborius having fixt himself in the City called (m) Aque Tarbellorum, he married a good Wo-man that had but a little Estate, and whose Name was Emilia Corinthia Maura From this Marriage proceeded one Son and three Daughters The Son proceeded one son and three Daughters The Son is the same Emilius Magnus Arborius that taught (n) Rhetorick at Toulouse, and who had a very particular care of the Education of our Poet One of the Education of our Poet One of the Country the Daughters was married to Julius Ausonius and the four Children, of which the Poet Ausonius and the same of what follows in his Daughters or in his married our (u) Ausonius and the Proof of all thus, and dour of what follows in his Daughters or in his married our (u) Ausonius and the Proof of the same of the proof of the proof of the same of the proof of the pr of what follows in his Parentalia, or in his Epicedien in patrem This Julius Ausonius was a Man of great in Profess merit, and if he was like the Picture that his Son c 16 pag has left of him, he was a remainder of the golden m 176 Age There was the greatest Uniformity imagi-nable in his Conduct He freely offer'd to serve in his Art all those that desir'd it He labour'd to keep up the good Openion they had of him, but he never judg'd five fudus pressure by the did Judicium (e) do we fudus pressure become,

Ipse mibi nunquam, judice me, placui
He had an Aversion for Law-Suits, he neither increas'd his Estate nor diminish'd it, he never was a Witness (p) or Informer against any Perfon's Life, he was neither Envious or Ambitious, he thought Swearing and Lying were both alike, he never was concern'd in any Conspiracy, Plot, or Cabal, he observ'd the sacred Laws of Friendthip religiously; he did not make Happiness to confift in possessing what one would have, but in not wishing for what Fortune did not give Felicem (q) scivi, non qui, quod vellet, haberet Sed qui per fatum non data non cuperet He did not endeavour to discover other Mens Secrets, he did not invent false Reports against his Neighbours Reputation, and when he know dif-advantageous Truths he held his Tongue Non (r) occursator, non garrulus, obvia cernum Valvis & velo condita non adii

Famam, que posset vitam lacerare benorum,

Non finzi & veram si scierim, tacus

He (s) never believ'd that to have committed fine fairly was a thing that deserv'd Praise, and property, ferr'd good Manners before the Laws, that is to Atque fay, if I mistake not, he did a good Action because bonos it was good, and not to conform himself to the Laws He kept his Marriage Vow exactly during legibus the Forty-sive Years that he was married (s); and if he had the pleasure to see what he wish'd should come to pass, it was not by too great an Indulgence come to pass, it was not by too great an Indulgence (F) and of Fate, but because he had given strick Bounds to pag 300 his Wishes

Non (u) quia fatorum nimia indulgentia fed quod Tam moderata illi vota fuere vere Parenta.

He was compar'd to the ancient Sages of Greece, cap I and imitated them in the most difficult point, pag 110 which was to practise what they had taught, he

(1) Im Province which is now call d Burgun-(n)Aufon

> (o)Aufon inEpiced p 298

(p) Indice me nullus fed neque teste p rit Id ib

(q) 1d 1b $ 299

(r) Id : (s) Deli

quile a 想

(u) Id : Parenta

ingag'd themselves in it, either because his Wit promised much, or because his Nativity (B) caused a belief that he should attain to great Honours. He made admirable Progresses in good Learning, and a at the Age of Thirty Years he was chosen to teach B Auson the Grammar in Bourdeaux. Some time after he was promoted there to the Office of Præf ad Syapring Progrenes in good Learning, and a at the Age of Initty Lears he was chosen to teach praying the Grammar in Bourdeaux. Some time after he was promoted there to the Office of Præf ad Fofest of Rhetorick. He acquired so great a Reputation in that employ, that was instanced to the Imperial Court to be Preceptor of Gratian, the Emperor Valentinian's Son. He made himself variable both to his Disciple and his Father, and received such Rewards and Dignature from them, as made him a very confirmative mist received such Rewards and Dignature from them, as made him a very confirmative mist received to the Office of a Consul. He was effectually raised to the Consulship by the Emperor Gratian in the Year 270, after having exercised other very considerable. promoted to the Office of a Consul He was effectually raised to the Consulthip by tuna vote Emperor Gratian* in the Year 379, after having exercised other very considerable Offices, for besides the Dignity of Questor, wherewith he was honour'd in the Life of the Emperor Valentinian, he was created Presect of the Pratorium in Italy, and in Javen Gaul after the Death of that Prince The Thanks which he gave to the Emperor Sat 7 Gratian for his promotion to the Consulship is an excellent Piece The time of his And not in the Tean of the Presection of the Consulship is an excellent Piece That the was yet in the Tean Death is not certainly known, but it cannot be question'd (C) but that he was yet in the Year 188, and even in the Year 292, and that he lived a long time He 382 as had † married a Wise of a good Family who died Young He had some Children by Vinetus her, and did not marry again He was much esteem'd by the Emperor Theodosius, affirms in his Notes. and some believe || that that Monarch conferr'd the Dignity of Patricius upon him They build on a Letter that is found in most Editions at the beginning of Ausonius's nius's Works Nothing can be seen more obliging than that I etter Some Criticks judge it to be Suppositious, but they cannot deny that the same Emperor esteem'd much Ausonius's Poems, and exhorted him to publish them, for this appears by a Preface in Paren-which is incontestably of that Poet There is an extraordinary unequality in his Albertus Works, either because his Muses were a little Inconstant, or because some Pieces have Petrus been inserted in his Poems that he had but rough drawn, or because some particular Reasons oblig'd him to send abroad some Verses that he had no time to Polish To fpeak in general, there is some harshness in his Manners, and in his Stile, but it was Mallin rather the Desect of the Age, than of his Wit They that are good Judges of Poetry Theodori can easily guess that if he had liv'd in Augustus's time, his Verses would have equal'd P 81 the best of that time Though the general Opinion makes him a Christian, yet some learned Persons believe that (D) he was not If they ground themselves either on some

on Aufo-Thanks Differt

(e) Id to

(b) Ser-

verum

Attica

lingua Suffecit

culti vo-cibus elo-

qui Id

an Epiced

p 298 (c) Id 1n Parental

(d) Id m

Epiced

P 298 (e) Id 1b

P 302 (f) Ibid

p 303 (e) See Scaliger

W Vita

Aufonix

(b) Marcell in præfixa lib de

Medica

& con as specific (i) See in Vita

Auson

(k) Aufon In Paren-

Tal cap 4

S 117

k

Epist

mone impromptus Latio

Quorum dostrinam moribus excoluit Viveret ut potius, quam diceret arte sophorum, Quamquam & facundo, non rudis ingenio Nevertheless he was eloquent (b) not in Latin, but in Greek Let us not wonder then if after his Death he was honour'd with this Blogy, There is no body that imitates him, there the tody whom he

Inde & perfuncta manet hac reverentia vita, Etas nostra illi quod dedit hunc titulum Ut nullum Ausonius, quem sectaretus, habebat Sic nullum, qui se nunc imitetur, habet (c) Note, that he was honour'd with some illustrious

Offices, without having the trouble to exercise them, and that he died at Ninety Years of Age without having felt any weakness. He walked without any Staff, and he had all his Senses Curia (d) me duplex, & uterque senatus habeba

Ipfe (e) nee affectans, nec detrectator honorum,

Munerus exfortem, nomine participem

Prafectus magni nuncupor Illyrici enta (f) annos baculo fine, corpore toto gs, cunctus integer official posted fome Works of Physick in Latin, nposed some Works of Physick in Latin,

(g) Vindicianus and (b) Marcellus have holy mention'd Scaliger (i) affirms that he stree Emperor Valentinian's Physician, before his Son was chosen Gratian's Preceptor I have found no proof of it in Ausonius

no proof of it in Aujonius

(B) His Nativity caused a belief that he should attain to great Honours | Cacilius Argicius Arborius his Grandfather by the Mother's side, understood Astrology, and had cast that Nativity, he kept it private, but his Daughter distribution in Ausonius informs us of these Particulars himself

Tu (k) call numeros, & consc a sidera fati Callebas, studium dissimulanter agens Non ignotatibi nostra quoque formula vita Signatis quam tu condiderae tabulis, Prodita non unquam Sed matris cura vetexit Sedula, quam tim di cui a tegebat avi He adds, that Arberius being exposed from time to

Min, than to discourse like one ing his Son that died at Thirty Years of Age, Quem (a) sua contendit septem sapientibus atas, that the Stars promis'd his Grand-child

Dicebas (!) sed te solatia longa fovere, Quod mea præcipuus fata maneret bonos Et modo conciliis animarum mixte piorum Fata tu: certe nota nepotis habes Sentis quod questor, quod te presettus, & idem Consul, honorifico munere commemoro Observe, that he supposes that his Grandfather's

Soul was not ignorant in the abode of the Bleffed, of the accomplishment of the Horoscope, and of the particulars of the Dignities that our Poet hid obtain'd at the Emperor's Court He is less Orthodox in another place, for he questions there whether any thing remains of us after our Death

Et (m) nunc, sive aliquid post fata extrema supersit, Vivis adhuc, avi qued persit meminens Sive nihil superest, nec habent longa otia sensus, Tu tibi v xisti nos tua sama juvat, I cannot tell is those that say he was a Pagan have ever quoted this Passage as a proof of their Opinion (C) But that he was yet living in the Year 388 and even in the Year 392 and that he lived a long time] He speaks (n) of the Punishment of the Tyrant Maximus whom Theodofius destroy'd (a) in the Year 388 Baronius (p) proves that Paulinus confectated himself to a Monastick Life in his retiring place of Nola, in the Year 394 It was but few Years after the devout Life he had led in Spain, and which Ausonius had blam'd This makes one believe that this Poet was yet living in the Year 392 Whence it follows that he lived a long time, for he was already old (q) when he was made Conful in the Year 379 Add to this that (r) there was but very little difference between his Father's Agu and his, but he furviv dhis Father, who died at Ninety Years of Age

(D) Some learned Persons believe he was no Christian J Vossius is of that number He says, (s) Poeta fuit gentilis, quemadmodum ex Paullino liquet ut qua Christum celebiant perperam illi sint tributa Father Briet affirms the same thing, he only gives Vossius's Poet Lat Phrases another turn (t) La Paulino certum est eum Ethnicum fuisse, quare opera Christ and huic adjudicari (t) Birer solita, sine dubio alterius sunt. Mr. Borrichius goes de Poet further, for he affirms, that folits, fine dubio alterius sunt Mr Borrebius goes de Poet further, for he affirms, that Ausonins often in- Lar lib 4 curr'd Paulinus's Centure, because of his Paganism p (a) Reli-

(1) Id 1b pag 118

(m) Id in Proteflorıbu c ı in fine p 148 (n) ld 1n claus urbibus c 7 237 (o) And not in the Year 391 as Vinctus affirms in hunc locum Aufonu He is more exact in the I ife of Aufonius.lenotes 388 (q)Baron ad ann 394 n 72 p m 884 (q) Aufon in Grat a-&ione (r)Auson Epist 1 (1) Vossi(a) Borrich Difsertat de

Poet p 73 (b) Id 1b

P 74 (c) That is to Jay, Aufonius (d) Paulipistolidifore ad Au ionium

(e) Chii-

ftimus

auidem

Autonius fuit ut ex cjus verfibus, & atem Pau-lini ejus difcipuli ficile col-lig mus

Hift Poet

Dial 10

† m 514 (f) Baron

394 n 84 (g) I express my

lelf thus bccaul tho

Paulinus

gave this believe it

25 210t tite true one, and that here must le undoflood an zmprecation against bim that advisid Paulinus

not to an-swer Au-

Ionius . Letters

(h) Aufon epist

(i) Arnı-

lection

Prudentn contra church pud des oph Ray-

Laud ubi

lense to Aufonius swords. the is reason to ad ann

Cyrıla

Lascivious Verscs (E) that he Composed, or on the manner wherewith he Condemn'd the Solitude of Paulinus, or on the intimite Friendship that was between the Pagin Symmachus and him, they are grofly mistaken Nevertheless, those

(a) Religione Ethn cus, Eoque a Paullino amico, sed Christianis Sacris didito identidem objurgatus

(b) Paullinus discipulus Ausonis quem colebat ut pra-(b) Paullinus discipulus Ausoni quem colebat ut pracuptorem, sed ut aversum a Christiana religione subinte increpabat, quemadmodum ex opere ipsus liquidum est. All this shews that even great Authors ip ire themselves the trouble of going to the I ountim Head, and that they stop at the first comer.
Those that consult St. Paulinus's Works, find nothing there that persuades them that Ausonius profest Paganism, and since they do nor find there that he was strongly exhorted to be Baptized, they conclude that he protest the Gospel They conclude it yet more certainly from those express words that they meet with there,

Nonveor how (c) Sancto fic displicuisse Parenti, Mention of convert control of the vivere Christo (d)
So that the Reading of St Paulinus's Works makes quite contrary to what Vassus and some others have assumed, it makes Ausonius & Christianity appear, as

(1) Lilius Giraldus acknowledges It is then without any ground that they would take from that Poet what is found to the Praise of JESUS (HRISI in the Collection of his Verses Nay, tho we should take from him the Carmen Paschale, and the excellent Piece that begins with Omnipotens, folo mentis mini cognite cultu, as some Criticks would take from him the Oratio Paschalis, versibus Rophaheis, yet there would be found in his Works wherewith to confute those that say that he was a Pagan Now see how necessary it is to address one's self among the Moderns rather to some than to others, when one won't take the pains to iun to the Fountain If Vossius had address him-ielt to Baronius, he would have avoided the fault which he has committed, and fo would they that copied it He could never have comprehended, ther having read Baronius, that St Paulinus gives the least Proof of the pretended Paganism of our Poet Ausonius, for that Learned Cardinal (f) relates the respectful Answer of St Paulinus, and makes it appear that Ausonius s I houghts on that I nend s retient, does not differ from those which Worldly Christians form daily, when they see a young Man of Qu dity renounce ill the Vanities of the World, to conscient himself to a Monastic il Life. The Cardin il pretended (g) that Ausonius thought that a Misintropick Humour, or a Management of the Cardin of the C lidy like that of Bellerophon, made Paulinus retire from the World, and renounce the Muses

Inflis (b), egens, deserta colat tacitusque pereries Alpini convexa jugi ceu dicitur olim Mintis inops, catus hominum, & vestigia vitans, Avia perlustrasse vagus loca Bellerophontes
Thousands of Christians might have made the same Judgment, it is then an impertinent Proof of Paganism Without doubt Arnifaus and the French ganism Without doubt Arnisaus and the French Author, whom he quotes, were Christians, and yet they judged, like Ausonius, of the love of Solitude, they discover'd clearly enough, that they imputed the Retirement of the Founders of Monks, 25 p 697, 698 to i melancholy Humour (1) Medici inter signa morbi melancholici referent, si quis quærat solitudinem, aut si quem tristis agat mæror, torvave severum fronte, vel a lætis sociorum cætibus arceat, & Gallicus quifeus, Relection politic dam non inconcinnus scriptor, ejus ordinis suisse censer pag 9

(k) Baron choi etas, qui contra natura prascriptum politicus societatibus se subtraverunt, in cremos, instar Endymionum, sele abdidei unit, & quo melancholica ingenia maxime afficiebantur, novum vita genus, assettata religionis palito observe that Ausonius was Educated by two Nuns that were (!) his Aunts This is a Proof that he choi cice was of a Christian Family Now, Christianity belium ing uppermost in those times, and Paganism exposed to Disgrace and Persecutions, it happen'd ieldom that a Christian turn'd Pagan Seeing then that Ausouits was educated from his Infancy in Prudentii Christianity, we ought to be persuaded that he pro-Christianity, we ought to be persuaded that he profess it all the Days of his Life, for nothing is more absured than the Thought of Giselinus, who (m) itys, that Claudian and Ausonius being prevailed upon by the Authority and Eloquence of Symmachus, abjur'd the Christian Faith, and plung d themselves appended to prove this by the into Idolatry He pretends to prove this by the Testimony of St Angustin, and by the great I nend-

fhip that Symmachus express'd for them in his Letters The Jesuit (n) who confutes this, shews, that (n) The St Augustin without mentioning Ausonius, said only that Claudian had been addicted to Paganism, this is not toppretend that he was formerly a Christian Hoploth And as for what concerns Ausonius, he is as well suffissed by the Silence of the Emperor Gratian, and of St Paulinus, as by their kindness The Jesuit cap 14 might have added, that the reason borrowed from p m 56 the Friendship of Symmachus is the weakest in the World it was not the Conformity of Religion that might hem, but the love that both of them that united them, but the love that both of them had for good Literature

It cannot be denied that Mr Baillet does embrace the Opinion of those who pretend that Aufonius was a Pagan, I say it cannot be denied, when these words are weigh'd which he makes use of "(0) They are Described which he ought to have (0) Baillet made up by fome good Qualities, and by Maxims Judgm on and Sentiments diawn from Morality, as the the Poets, best Poets of Antiquity took care to do before tom 2 him But being he lived among Christians, he was afraid perhaps that he might be confounded with them. If his Opinions concerning Maximum with them, if his Opinions concerning Manners had been agreeable to theirs. It is certain, that the best Maxims of Morality are found in Ausonius's Works, and namely the Apophthegms of the ancient Sages of Greece What can be iten more Moral than his Description of (p) vir bonus?

(E) Some Lascivious Verses that he Composed] Scaliger the Father, found some of Ausonius's Epigrams so nasty, that he thought Fire was only able to cleanse them (q) Nonnulla (epigrammata) adeo (q) Jul sada atque detestanda ut neque scriptore neque auditore digna, non in spongiam incumbere merita sint, sed solis scalig stanmis expiari posse videantur. I wonder he says Poet nothing against the Obscenities of the Cento nuptitude 6 c 5 alis, which have chiefly excited the Indignation of p m 761 several other Authors. See here a sine Passage of Mr Baillet, "(r) It might at least have been (r) Baillet "wish'd that the wretched Cento had been extreminated, that is to say, that wicked Work the Poets, "which he patch'd up of several half Verses of the Poets, "which he patch'd up of several half Verses of virgil. It is with much Justice that the University of Paris complain'd Forty Yeurs ago of the Malice which this Poet had, to make Virgil. liger the Father, found some of Ausonius's Epigrams the Malice which this Poet had, to make Virgil the Malice which this Poet had, to make Virgit speak in a very dishonest manner, that is to say, a Poet that was always most praised for his Chastiry (s) And Father Brief, a Jesuit, has carried (s) The Units Zeal yet further, when he represents the niversity's Action of Ausonius to us as a punishable attempt, judging that there was no less Impudence and the Appear to judging that there was no less Impudence and the Appear to Judging that there was no less Impudence and the Appear to Judging that there was no less Impudence and the Appear to Judging that there was no less Impudence and the Appear to Judging that there was no less Impudence and the Appearance of the Appea

Saw ciness than Impurity and Infamy in a Man, of F Nic. that had been capable to commit such an Infide- Caussin lity, and that there was something more diabolical than human in that pernicious Art of perverting things, that is to say, of changing them from good into bad, to lay Snaies for the Innocence and Purity of Youth (t)" And because (t) Phi "cence and Purity of Youth (2)" And because (2) Philip many Persons will be glad to read lather Bries's Briet 1 4 own words, I am going to Copy them Centones de Poëtis eque Virgiliani non tantum impurissimi sunt, sed & impudentissimi, quibus castissimos versus, libidinose assini p 50 pudentissini, quibus castissimos versus, libidinos asseus materia, opere, quod plus damonem, quam hominem sapere, adolesiem ium pudicitia instance of the Emperor I alentinian, who had made such another He excutes himself on that Order, and he observes that Prince cannot make use of a more absolute Commend in Such Caste show that of a recover. mand in such Cases than that of a request He tound himself much perplex'd, for in making a Poem he exposed himself to the blame of having grosly inclific'd his Reputation to Flattery, and by making a better Poem than that of the Emperor, making a better Poem than that of the Emperor, he expos'd himself to pass for an insolent Man, who had the boldness to be more witty than his Master. He affirms, if That he kept such a Medium, that without pretending to outdo Valentinian, he wrote a Poem that did not yield to the Prince's Work 2dly That he had the Advantage to please him, and that not having conquer'd him, he did not incur the Disgrace which the Victory much have drawn upon him. This is the Lan-

he did not incur the Difgrace which the Victory might have drawn upon him This is the Language of a cunning Courtier But to do that Præf
Poet all the Justice that the exquisteness of his cent nuWit and Pen require here, we must hear himself

(a) Prote Kingley commune dignitation fam. 1884 1884 1884 (u) Piget Virgiliani carminis dignitatem tam joculari 500, 511 deronestasse

oph Ray-Hoploth

(n) The-

are the most specious Reasons that have been alledg'd Rsttershusius * look'd * In Epist upon that Friendship as a great Prodigy Scaliger's (F) Errors, and the Chief ad Solom Editions Pantherum

(a) Omni pudicitiæ cultu domı castus & foris, nullo contagio conscientıæ vıolatus obscenæ, nihil ıncestum hancque obciusim tanguam retinaculis peralantiam frenarat aulæ regalis Amm Marcell 116 30 cap 9 (b)Nupti as quondam eruimodi ludo descripferat (Valgati materia) apter tquident " verfibus. & compofitione festiva Auson ubi Supra (c) See Mr Flechier n the Life of Theodosius, p m 52 (d) Amm Marcell ubi Tupra, & 1bi Valefius (e) Chriquidem Aufonius fuit lantior 20 sive Epithala-John Cundu p m 103 (g) Con-rad Ritterfhuf Epist ad

Solom Peorhe-(a) See the Remark D

of the Article Vayer. (1) See the same Remark

delonestasse materia sed quid sacerem i sum erat quodque est POTENTISSIM us IMPERANDI GENUS, rogabat, qui subare poterat, s imperator Valentinianus, vir meo judicio eruditus qui nuptias quondam ejusmodi ludo descripserat, aptus equidem versibus & compositione festiva Experiri decinde voleni, quantum nostra contentione pracelleret, simile nos de codem concinnare pracepit Quam scrupulosum boc mibi fuerit, intellige Neque anteserri volebam, neque posthaberi quum aliorum quoque judicio detegenda esse adulatio inepta, si cederem insolentia, si ut amului emmerem Suscepi igitur similis reculanti seliciterque & consulas gratiam tenui, nec victor ostendi Is it were true, that the Cento nuptialis ost the Emperor Valentinian did not yield to that of Ausmius, it must be said that that Monarch was not ill skill'd in Poetry, and besides, as he was grave, and of (a) Exemplary Chastity, it may serve much for Ausmius Justification. So great an Example may clearly prove that the most severe and chast Perions give way sometimes to witty Personmances, wherein the Descriptions of the Chief Nuptial Ceremony are fill'd with too much Licentiousness and Obscenity, for there is no question to be made, but that the Emperor Valentinian's piece of Poetry was very Wanton. The Subject requir'd it, the case was about Marriage. (b) and piece of Poetry was very Wanton The Subject requir'd it, the case was about Marriage, (b) and the thing was made to the tune of Gallantry One the thing was made to the tune of Gallantry One may be well affur d that the Emperor's Veries were no less Erosick than those of the Emperor Gallimits It must be acknowledged then, that Auso-nius found some excuse because he made his Numins found some excuse because he made his Nuptial Cento by way of imitation, and at the request of his Master, one of the most Grave and Chast imperois that ever wis, and beside (c) a great Follows of the purest Christian Doctrine. So that the had not (d) practised the Doctrine of Toleration, it might be judged that no Talent, that becomes the most Orthodox Monarchs, was wanting in him. I only remark this to conclude from thence, that those who place Ausonius among the Pagan Poets, under pretence that he made such a Laicivious piece of Poetry as that Cento Nuptialis, do not examine things so maturely as they ought. Without doubt he is to beside, and I do not pretend to exouse him. I say only, that this Action is not a proof of Paganssin, and that it is not sufficient to give just Suspicions that he was not a very cient to give just Sulpicions that he was not a very Orthodox Christian I prove this by the Circumstances, I mean, by the Emperor's Character, that commanded him to Compose such a Writing, and approved of it How many Christian Poets are approv'd of it How many Christian Poets are there, whose Works are more I assivious than this Cento Nuprialis is Many of them must be degraded from the Name of Christians, if we follow the (e) Maxim of Gyraldus, Without having recourse to Italy, is there not an (f) Epithalamium among the Works of a Poet of the Hague, which in matters of fuit Works of a Poet of the Hague, which in matters of fed petulantior Interior This I say chiefly with regard to Rittershusius, who look'd upon the Conduct of Ausonius as a mondaturior thing, I mean, that a Christian Poet, a guam ut interior thing, I mean, that a Christian Poet, a guam ut interior thing, I mean, that a Christian Poet, a guam ut interior apud me monstri instar habet, homicalistic interior moribus, adeo sape lasciva atque interior.

Christianum, &, ut apparet, non nomine tanium, petitaria petitire & moribus, adeo sape lasciva atque interior this petitic much petitic that also in the Purity of his Life, Lasciva est nobis pagina, vita (f) See the proba est I mention this excuse at length in another (h) Article Let us observe, that Ausonius was so sive for persuaded that he should be blamed, that he endeavour'd to justifie himself at the beginning, in so far persuaded that he should be blamed, that he endeavour'd to justifie himself at the beginning, in the middle, and at the end of that small Poem We have seen what he said at the beginning, we shall see (1) in another place what he said at the end. There remains only to observe what he said in the middle. Know then, that after having described the Wedding Feast, the Bridegroom's and the Bride's Walking, the Wedding Presents, the Wishes of the Company; and having honestly enough represented the first Discourse of the married Couple, he stops there, and advertises his Readers, that what he had to say more not being cover'd with a Vail, it is not for them to go farther (k) Haltenus castus auribus audiendum myste- (k) Aurium nuptiale, ambitu loquendi, & circumitione velavi Verum quoniam & fescenninos amat celebritas nuptialis, verborumque petulantiam notus vetere instituto ludus admittit, catera quoque cubiculi & lettuli operta pro-dentur, ab eodem auttore collecta ut bis erubescamus, qui & Virgilium faciamus impudentem Vos, si placet, put & Virgitium Jaciamus impunctions bit jam legendi modum ponite, catera curiofis relinquite He has reason to say, that what he cills (1) immi-will be described in very obscene Terms nutio will be described in very obscene Terms Moreri has been the most indulgent of all Men,

There are some Pieces (says hu) which Ausonius composed in his Touth, wherein he complies too much with the Liberty of the Age he lived in I his (cnture is not rigid enough, and supposes a fallity, to certainly Ausonius was not young when he composed the Nuptial Gento I do not speak of the Veries which he made on a handsom Slave, whose Name was Bissida, and who had been adjudg'd to him for his Share of the Plunder, after a great Victory obtain d in Germany in the Year 368, for we do not know to whit degree of Licentiousness he carried them, they are loft, and we may only conjecture that they were very free, fixing he asks for Readers (m) that had drunk hard. This does not agree in any minner with what remains of this gerit, his Poem, there is no Obiccinity either in the words sapiet or the thoughts, it must be said then that most of Auson in the pieces that compos'd it are lost A Commentation has provid the inme thing by another Reason, p 3400 without thinking of that He Remarks, (n) I hat (n) See that Poem is too short at present to have been pieceded by the Prefaces that belong to it, and confequently that it we much longer when the Author finish'd it, than we have it now However, (a Ausonius who was at that time no longer in the heat of Youth, described in all likelihood the Charms supplied of his Slave very freely. She appeared to agreeable (p) See align to him from the first day, that it was (o) not long. Auson before he fet her at Liberty

(F) Scaliger's Errors] Fift, He believ'd (p) that cap 2 Co-Ausonius was raised to the Other of Prefet of the 12 c 17 Pratorium in the Emperor Valentinian's Lite. This apud Alb is not true Ausonius declares, that he was only in-debted to the Emperor Gratian for that Office Tot gradus nomine Comitis propter tua incrementa congesti ex tuo merito, te ac patre principibus, quastina communis, & tui tantum Prasectura biniscii (q) Sicondly, Scaliger believ'd, without reason, that there was a frult in the Theodosian Code (r), in the place where mention is made of Auronius Prefect of the Pretorium He would have it read Ausonius, and not Auxonius He would not have required such a Correction, if he had observ'd that the person concern'd in that place of Theodofius's Code died about the Year 371, and that Ausonius exercis'd the Confulfilip in the Year 379, and liv'd yet many Years after Thirdly, He would have all the Laws that virorum were address'd to Antonius, Prefect of the Pratorium, Vide Vato be corrected, and that Ausonius should be read in those places and not Antonius This is wrong, Amni for it is certain that Ausonius was honour'd with Marcell for it is certain, that Ausonius was honour'd with Marcell the Office of Prefect of the Pratorium of Italy in the 1 29 c 1 Year 376, five Months after the Death of the Lm- p m 549 peror Valentinian, and that his Son Hesperius (3) (4) Auwas given him for his Collegue We know also fon ubi that Antonius obtain'd the Prefecture of the Prato rium of Gaul about the same time Things remained in the same state the following Year, Auson as tus Petrus and his Son exercised the Prefecture of Italy Rubenius and Antonius that of Gaul, but in the Year 378, ubi supra Antonius had the Prefecture of the Pratorium of p 17 6 Italy, and Ansonius and his Son had that of Gaul, in sequences where continued upril the Year 380. You see Antonius and his Son had that of Gaul, in sequences and his Son had that of Gaul, in sequences are sequenced upril the Year 380. You see Antonius and his Son had that of Gaul, in sequences are sequenced upril the Year 380. You see Antonius and Antonius and his Son had that of Gaul, in sequences are sequences and sequences are sequences as the Year 380. You see Antonius and Antonius and Antonius and his Son had that of Gaul, in sequences are sequences as the sequence which they continued until the Year 380 You (a) Auwill find the proofs of all this in the Author (t) fon in quoted in the Margin Fourthly, Scaliger believ'd Mofella that Ausonius spoke of himself in these two Verses v 407 Aut (u) Italum populos, Aqu lonigenasque Britannos Prafesturarum titulo tenuere secundo

Presentarium titulo renuere secundo

It is a Mistake The Poem wherein these two Verses are, was composed in the life-time of (w) the Emperor Valentinian Now Ausonius was not Present of the Pratorium, until the Death of that Prefect of the Pratorium, then the Death of that Prince (x) Fifthly, What (y) Scalige affirms must ubi supra not be believ'd, That Ausmius after his Consulship p 23 exercis'd the Office of Proconsul of Asia, and that (y) Scil of Vicar of the Diocese of Africa We find in in vita deed one Auxmius that was Vicar of the Diocese of Auson fon in Cent Nupt 513, 514

(1) That is to Jay, the

(m) Admonco, ante bibrs Je-Junis nil 1cribo meum post pocult h quis Le-P 340 (n) See the Autonius of Tollius P 342
(a) Auion ubi lection 1 1 Petrum ta Mallii Theodori pag 16 (4) Aufon in grat (%)one pag 702, 703 (r) Lege iupra (w) This plain from verf 450 Rubenius * See her Article

Editions (G) of Ausonius, will be the Subject of the two following Remarks; and I shall not forget to observe the mistake of Trithemius he pretended that Ausomus (H)

was Bishop of Bourdeaux

AUSTRIA (Don Juan of) Natural Son of the Emperour Charles V was born at Ratisbon the 24th of February 1547 A Gentlewoman of Ratisbon whose Name was * Barbara Blomberg, (A) was willing to pass for his Mother, to spare those who had given life to that Child, the shame that would have been unavoidable to them, if the

(a) Rubemus ubi iupra pag (B) Scaling

(B) Hoc tanto viro nascitur Burdegala Decius Magnus Ausonius nomine au materni, cognomine patris Ausonius's Grandfather by the Mother side was call'd Cacilius Argicius Arborius he left a Son whose Name was Emilius Magnus Arborius So that Scaliger's fault is plain Seventhly, He says, (?) that Hilaria, and Julia Cataphronia, who had made a Vow of Virginity were Ausonius's Aunts on the Mother side. This is only true in regard of Emi-(2) Id 1b

Mother fide This is only true in regard of Emilia Hilaria, for the Nun Julia Cataphronia (1) was

Parent n 26 p 140 (1) Inti-tul'd H1storiaGalfub PræfectusPrætorio Gal- " liarum

(*) Au-

fon in

(3) Journal des Savans of Dutch Edi-11071

typographie, pud Joh Al-bert I abricium Biblioth Lat pag 177

(b)There is a Copy of that Edition in the Catalogue of Thuanus's Library it is in Folio, and perhaps of Aldus his paternal Aunt Not having Father Lacarry's (*) Book, I am obliged to fatisfy my felf with what I find in the Journal des Savans "(?) The double Prefecture Journal des Savans ournal des Savans (?) The double Prefecture of Ausonius, which gave so much trouble to Scaliger, is treated of here very clearly. We find here that in the Year 378, Ausonius was Prefect of the Pretorium of Gaul and Italy, with his Son Hesperius. But he was not Prefect of Italy, till about July, when Antonius was Created Prefect of the Pratorium of Italy, as it is fet down in the Code So that the Prefecture of Ausonius and Hesperius was interrupted by Antonius but he together with his Son reassumed it again in Savans of the 12th of again, and continued with him in that of Gaul, August, are not conform to the Opinion of Rubenius, which I have mention'd If I had Father Lacarry's Book, Dutch Edi-'tis like I might know which of the two has ex-plained the matter most exactly

plained the matter most exactly

(G) The chief Editions of Ausonius] Gesner and his Abbreviators affirm, That Aldus is the first that publisht that Poet They do not say in what Year, but if they understand the Edition of Venice, 1517, they may easily be convinced of falshood, for besides that Aldus was not then living, Mr Van Beughem (a) affirms that Ansonius was Printed at Milan in 1490, and since (b) at Venice in the Year 1606. in 1490, and fince (b) at Venice in the Year 1496, with a Preface of George Merula The Edition of Basil 1523, by Valentius Curio is sufficiently known that which Lewis Mireus caus'd to be made at Lyons by John de Tournes in the Year 1557, is better than those that preceded The Bibliographers make mention of it, but I do not see that they speak of that which Duchers put out, and in praise of which Nicolas Bourbon made four Verses that may be seen on the reverse of the Title of the Edition of Lyons. on the reverse of the Title of the Edition of Lyons, by Sebastian Gryphius 1549 I say nothing of Plantin's Edition 1568, with the Notes of Theodorus Pulman That of Joseph Scaliger at Lyons, by Anthony Gryphius 1575, with a very learned Commentary under the title of Ausoniana lectiones outdid the foregoing No body is ignorant that Elias Vinetus is one of the Commentators that writ most on our Poet's Works He was Regent of Litterature at Bourdeaux, and see-ing himself prest by divers Persons of that City to procure an Edition of their famous Country-man, he endeavour'd to satisfy them, but sound no Manuscript of Ausonius in the Libiaries of Bourdeaux, and all that he could do was to compare the Editi-ons together He restored and corrected several passages, and before the Commentaries, wherein he was to give his Reasons for his Criticisms, were ready, he caus'd Ausonim's Works, such as he had Corrected them, to be Printed His Friend James Goupil had the care of that Edition, which is that of Paris 1551 Some years after Vinetus recover'd a Manuscript that was found near Lyons, and which gave him much light, and as that lessen'd his excuses with those that press him, to get his Notes printed, he caused the Poem de Claris Urbibus to be Printed at Poissers with his Commentary in the Year 1565. He sent a complete Copy of suspenses rinted at Pointers with his Commentary in the a car 1565 He fent a compleat Copy of Ausonius's Works to Anion, Gryphius, who had desir'd it of him, and who promis'd him to print it speedily, but that Edition not appearing, he was exhorted to make use of the Printing-House that was set

Asia in the Year 365, and another Auxonius that up at Bourdeaux during these Transactions He was Proconcil of Asia in the Year 381 (A) But gave then another Copy to Simon Millanges, who betakes the Uncle for the Grandfather in these words

The Year 365, and another Auxonius that up at Bourdeaux during these Transactions He gave then another Copy to Simon Millanges, who betakes the Uncle for the Grandfather in these words

The Year 365, and another Auxonius that up at Bourdeaux during these Transactions He gave then another Copy to Simon Millanges, who betakes the Uncle for the Grandfather in these words

The Year 365, and another Auxonius that up at Bourdeaux during these Transactions He gave then another Copy to Simon Millanges, who betakes the Uncle for the Grandfather in these words ary 1575, and finish it in the beginning of the Summer in the same Year. At that time they receiv'd the Edition of Gryphius, and because Millanges wanted Paper, they could not put Vinetus's Commentary in the Preis. It was not printed till four Years after the Edition Milanges had made of Aufonius's Works (c) Wherefore to speak exactly, (c) Take it must not be said (d) that the best Edition of Au- from the fonius, is that which was done at Bourdeaux in the Presace of Year 1575, with the Convmentaries of Elias Vinesus. for, once again, those Commentaries did not appear but in 1580 Morers has been exact on this point he has been only deceiv'd in faying that Vinetus was of Xaintes, the word Santo fignifies nothing here but Saintongeois The Library of the Archbishop of Reims (e) makes mention of an Aufonius, Printed by Millanges at Bourdeaux in the Year 1575, with the Commentaries of Elias Vinetus I imagine that this fault proceeds from having applicable does of the said the Person having applicable does not be said to the said ply'd the date of 1575, to all the Peices bound to-gether, which only fuits with Ausonius's Works at the beginning of the Volum Borrichius was in the wrong to fay (f), 1 That the Edition of Vinetus is one of the bell 2 That Vinetus has Commented upon Ausonius's Poem de Urbibus Is it not to fay that he made no Commentaries on the other Poems of 1575 & Ausonius? The best Edition of that Poet is that of post ejus Amsterdam 1671, but I have already advertis'd, that obitum the Title promises falsly, that they have whol- Iy inserted there all the Notes of Mariangelus Accur- 4 Joh Al-See (g) in the Margin

(H) That Ausonius was Bishop of Bourdeaux] Tri-cius, Bish themius affirms, That this Bishop was a very Learned Man in Holy Writ, and as much to be commended for his Piety as his Learning, and that he flourisht under Maximus in the Year 310, and did very fine things with St Martin, St Ambrose, and St Jerome in the Synod which that Prince caus'd to felection of the held at Tryers What a heap of Fables are here! Jos Scalific Ch. Vinetus observes, that some Persons will have (h) Vinetus observes, that some Persons will have geri & it that Ausonius was Canonis'd He says also, that Elize V the Inhabitants of Angouleme honour an Ausonius as nets Borone of their chief Saints, who was, as they say, their rish de First Bishop, and he does not think it impossible, Poet Lat but that the Poet Ausonius having been elected Bi- pag 73 shop by the Inhabitants of Angouleme, accepted the (g) I shall Dignity A Manuscripe Change of the (g) I shall Dignity A Manuscript Chronicle of Angouleme, says, (1) that Ausonius a Disciple of St Marical, and Bishop of Angouleme suffer'd Martyrdom when the Vandals ravaged Gaul Alteserra (k) confutes this, by reason that a Disciple of St Martial could not be living in the beginning of the IVth Century, when the irruption of the Vandals happen'd However it be, our Ausonius is very variously Si- (h) Elistuated Some say that he was not a Christian, and Vinetus others, that he is in the Catalogue of the Cano- in vita nis'd Saints

(A) Barbara Blomberg was willing to pass for his (1) A Mother] Famianus Strada (1) says, that Cardinal do serra, la Cueva had reveal'd that Secret to him That rum Cardinal had learn'd it from the Infanta Clara Engania, to whom Philip the II who kept nothing hid from her, had discover'd it That Prince made (m) always a shew before the World that Barbara (k) Id ib Blomberg was the Mother of Don Juan The Sacrifice which that Lady was willing to make of her own Reputation to that of a great Princes, is nothing near so considerable as may be imagin'd it is a shame to pass for a private Gentleman's Missers of Kings and Emperors. I have said that this Sacrifice was made in favour of a great Princes. Strada informs me of it Joannem Austriacum non tax Barbara Blomberga uti creditum ad cam diem, sed ex longe illustriori ac Plane Principe fomina procreatum cujus ut same parceretur pratentam fuise aliam à Carello Casare. The same Historian remarks, that Don Juan being twice deceiv'd in his Mother was never undeceiv'd He believ'd himself first to be the Cardinal had learn'd it from the Infanta Clara Euge

(c) Taken Preface of Elias V1netus (d) Præ reliquis danda luculenta Aufonu editio. mentariis viri docti Eliæ Vineti vulgata, Buidagaræ A 4 Joh Al-bert Fabrigive a supall this in the Article Martelhus (Hu golin) (h) Elias Vinetus Aufon (1) Alte lerra, re quitani-

true Mother's Name had been publickly known The Child was carried into (B) Spain before he was a Year Old, The Emperour gave the Commission of it to Lewis Quixada, before he was a lear Oid, the Emperour gave the Committon of it to Lewis Guixada, whom he knew † by several Tryals to be very capable of keeping a Secret He recommended to him to cause his Wise Magdalen Ulloa to nurse the Child, without any body's being able to conjecture who was the Child's Tather Quixada serv'd his Master in this with all the sidelity imaginable, for he did not only keep the Mystery secret from any body, but he had also an extraordinary care of Don Juan's Education Charles discover'd to his Son Philip upon his Death-bed, that he was the lather of the Young I ord whom Strada advented at Villagarsia. And charc'd him to acknowledge him furthe surpre as Quinada educated at Villagarsia, and charg'd him to acknowledge him for the future as dec 1 1 10 his Brother, and to treat him according to that Quality Philip did not perform that Quod

(C) Order till two Years after, but then he did it genteelly He caused Don Juan to Philippo (C) Order till two Years after, but then he did it genteelly He caused Don Juan to Philip be educated with Don Carlos, and with Alexander Farnese Those three Princes were almost of an Age, but Don Juan was the best shap'd, and had more Wit Philip was not well pleas'd with the aversion which he found in him for an I colosistical State, for latter had describe him. And he was much less the real with a foolable the which his Father had design'd him. And he was much less pleas'd with a foolish Un-victoriadertaking of that young Lord Which was, that without the King's leave he took a fur curJourney to Barcelona with a good number of young Gentlemen, to go to the Wai of Malta But the Letters he received from the King before he embarkt, made him break
Multan But the Letters he received from the King before he embarkt, made him break

Multan But the Letters he received from the King before he embarkt, made him break

Multan But the Letters he received from the King before he embarkt, made him break

Multan But the Letters he received from the King before he construction. off that Voyage He obey'd the Order so speedily which he had receiv'd to return, rum prithat his Diligence appeas'd Philip's anger a little, and he got wholly into his Favour again by being the first that discover'd to him Don Carlos's machinations There was fortunam but very little (D) Friendship between those two young Princes A little while after nunc Don Juan was sent to the Kingdom of Granada against the Moors, and signalized himfelf in that War He was declar'd Generalissimo of the I cague against the Turks, and in quando that Quality he gain'd the famous Battle of Lepanto in the Year 1571 Atter which invafuhe took the City of Tunis, and that of Biserta, and return'd triumphintly into Italy, rum Iden followed by Amidas King of Tunis whom he had made Prisoner He had left i Girrifon in Tunis against Philip's Order, and by the Pope's interposition there was a talk of (d) 'Tis conferring the Title of King of Tunis upon him. The King of Spain was but little pleas'd with all these Prosperities, * the Idea which he form d to himself of that Young tearing.

(=) Id 1b 2.627

(B) On the Hemina of Wine, and the pound of Bread pre-Jeribed by Sr Benedia

(a)p 166

pto Say Ka-Cordonna Her History is in the generalHistory of the bar footed 182 (c) Varilof Francis Son the ? Book 13 1 389 Brother orumque ignarus adeo vixerit obietitque, ut bis in matri deceptus, semper alienam coluerit, nunquam suam I wonder that I ather strada says nothing of a third Person that past for Don Juan's Mother The Author of a leained Dissertation (B) that was printed in 1688, speaks with great praise of catherin de Cardonna, born at Naples in the Year 1519 She went into Sagar with her Cousin the Pinye so went into Spain with her Coulin the Princess of Salerno, in the Year 1559, and by her Virtue and Piety acquir'd the esteem of Philip the II in such manner, that he commanded Rui-Gomez Prince of Evely Governor of Don Carles and of Don Juan, to take care of that Lady Rui-Gomez took her home to his House, and finding her of an admirable sagacity, desir'd her to take the government of his House upon her, and to share the Education of the two Princes with him She acquitted herself of that Charge with all the care imaginable, and Don Juan honour'd her always as his Mother The Author of the Differtation makes a iemark on that word (a) We must not go further (figs he) will out justifying that Saint from an horrible Calumn, by which some abusing that word, would have it believed that she as the true Mother of John of Austra (b) That is Rosberg feems to have given occasion to that Supposi tion, when in his Genealogy of the House of Austria, he de

Son of Magdalen Ulloa, and afterwards of Barbara Blemberg How happy and vigilant toever he was to discover the most secret intigues of the Enemy, he could never unravel that domestick Mystery

(a) Habet profesto unde minus sibi de sua sagacitate placeat humanum ingenium, quando tantus princeps, atque intima quaque vel in hoste rimari solitus, domi sua, su

Strade of But the chaft and mortified life which Katherin de Cordonna always led from her Infancy, could no permit such a suspicion to be had of her Divers other reasons are added to justify Katherin de Cordonna and the Remark ends with these Words It nas another more illustrious Person (that was the Mother of John of Austra) and mhomens are the had also of John of Auftria) and whom our Sant (b) had allo Carmer thou of John of Austria) and whom our Sant (b) had also known, as the Historian of her Life observer, but who for great considerations was not devulged. I et us add Part Book to all this a passage of Mr Varillas. (c) The secret of the Birth of John of Austria (says he) was never wholly discovered, and be it that either the too high on the Hequility of his true Mother required all the precautions that were used, or that more care was taken to avoid the Scandal, than the Sin, it is certain that Charles the Scandal, than the Sin, it is certain that Chailes did only discover so Quichada who John of Austria was, and that he order'd him to make him pass so his Son, till his Imperial Majesty in resigning h. Dominions to Philip the II inform'd him that he had a natural Biother This Moderation of Mr Varillas is more praise worthy, than the liberty that has been taken in the Menagiana of the second Edition, to say plainly that Don Juan of Austria was born of his lather's own Sister This was occasion'd by a most excellent (d) Laying of Charles the V

M m m

(B) Was earry d into Spain before he was a Tear old | Brantome tells another Story, which I will relate in the Remarks of the Article Blomberg, and which ought not to be believed to the prejudice of Strada ten] The Application of an Historian to the prin-Gloss was cipal things is the cause that he does not always made in perceive l'is Errors of Calculation Here is Strada who affirms that Don Juan was born the 24th of Fedition February 1545. That his Father died the 21st of of the Meseptember 1558. That Philip acknowledged Don naginal Juan two Years after the death of his I other, that p 42. he caused him to be Educated with his Son Don Hiller is a Carlos, and that those two Princes had not yet attain'd to their fitteenth Year, annum quartum decimum nondum supergress If Strada had reckon'd well for a Man he would have found above fitteen compleat Years that prov d that prov d It cannot be faid that the Year 1547, is that of the # Knave birth I contess that Mr Moral vouches it, but it all his life-cannot be the opinion of Str d1, since by placing time, and the death of Don Juan on the first of October 1578, who, if he makes him thirty three Years of Age So then flandering there is no fault of Printing in the number 1545 nay be be-The Author of the Differtation on the Hemina in the field of the but have that Rastard on the test had not force. places (e) the birth of that Biffard on the 14th of not fample the lary 1545, and his death about the 1st of Offo- to 13 with bei 1578 in the Army near Namur, and he censure his own 5 the Genealogy of the House of Austria, which stern which makes him die at Bruges in the 25th Year of his Bubua Age He censures likewise Lather Strada, for have Blomhers toly with ing placed the death of Don Juan in the Month of fired for December, but we read in (f) express words in a cover to Strada, Kalendis Ostobis Mr Varillas is not to be that infacredited when he says, (g) That Philip the 11 lit moust rade, eleven Years pase before he personned his 1 tiher; Or-saying, that des and that John of Austria wis alreas; twenty Years for washing to Mother of acknowledge him for lis Brother According to this calculation he would have been twenty four Years of Austria Let us remember that he wis sent Generalissimo to (e) 187 the Kingdom of Granada, in the Year (h) 1569 According to Mr Varillas, Philip the II begun by that important Office to icknowledge him for Charles the Vih's Natural Son This would be to know that Prince very ill to impute such a preci-

(g) H / of pitated (onduct to him

(D) The ma but let be friendship between those two (1) Morejoining Prints | I shall fet down a particularity the

gare alı-

Prince's an unjust which he hadfign d, he faid 1 I ad rather Signature than my Confuence Where-(C) Did not perform that Order untill the Years affollowing

fter, w/ lu

Blomberg

* See the remark F † Majoribus indies pressus angustus ac desertus, uti querebatut à Rege, tradi-tulq, ho-

Prince's Ambition made him uneafy He fent him to Command in the Netherlands, but order'd him to pacify those Provinces He was not pleas'd to see him there at the head of an Army Being thus prejudiced against him, he easily believed all the reports that might make him suspect his Brother's Condition, and some say that to increase the Division, they found " ways to inform him, "Don Juan was going to be Married to Queen Elizabeth. To cut the Story short, " that some star were a long time expected, (E) was kill'd there Don Juan though himself then quite out of Favour. The † vexation he was in to see himself Sacrific'd to the Contempt of the Enemies, by the same still have the same still a sacrific a sacrific described as sacrifications. the impossibility (F) wherein he was to make head against them, caus'd a Sickness of which he died the first of October 1578 It was likewise believ'd (G) that he had been posson'd He did indeed recommend his pretended Mother, and his pretended trerin tusq, ho-frum lu-dibrio, in-Natural Daughters +

mærore of the Complaints that were made against his Conduct, with many of his interceptcontabu It Idem oblig'd the States General of the Netherlands, to proceed the process of the contabuto the states General of the Netherlands, to proceed for their defence at the states of the states General of the Netherlands, to proceed for their defence at the states of the states General of the Netherlands, to proceed for their defence at the states of contabuit Idem oblig'd the States General of the Netherlands, to provide for their defence against Don Julia p 619 of Austria It is a very curious Manifesto printed in Antwerp, by William Sylvius Taken from Strada, in the Count Palatin of the Rhine publisht in the Year following to justifie his Expedition 10th Book He got it printed at Newstad in High-dutch and Latin In the XVIIth Century, there of the 1st was another Don Juan (1) of AUSTRIA, who made a considerable Figure in the Decad

timent falls, & alus jus peccandi fuspicando fece-p 618 (r) Lx mærore contaburo ad hoc quo fatis extingui potuit.

venenum

aliud cujulquam dolo fubjectum fuerit

(namque ın defunp 619 † Täken from Stra-

Decad

(a) Brantom's lives of Foreign
(b) Madditions to Gations to Gathere is to Gations to the King of Form who can defend to the King of Fo

Penefi This deserves to be examin'd Perhaps I shall publish an Article for Escovedo, wherein I shall treat of this more amply, and we shall see whether it was before or after Don Juan's Death, the Machinations which he and the Duke of Guise had contriv'd were known at the Court of Spain Philip the II was not fo much in the wrong as was runt Se- lip the II was not 10 much in the wrong as was neca Epist imagin'd, and Don Juan was able to cut him more work in time than the Dutch. He was no better Man, with respect to his Soverugn, than the Bello Bule of Guist. But it is true that the Jealous Bulg dec. Humour of Philip, and his Mysterious Politicks 1 lib 10 did often inspire those rebellious thoughts (c) inrunt Seto his Family

(F) By the impossibility wherein he was] Thus the King of Spain, as great a Politician as he was, chose rather to lose the Netherlands, than not to fatisfy the Jealousies, and other hidden Passions that diquieted his Soul It is to this that the Dutch are as much or more indebted for their Liberty, than to their good and wife Conduct There are but few great Affairs that do not at least as much succeed thro' the Faults of one of the Parties, as by the Prudence of the other There was no great difficulty to draw Philip the II into the Snare as foon as his jealousies were discover'd Strada imagins that the Prince of Orange with about Don Juan's Marriage with the Queen of England to one of his Friends at Paru, and the promise which the Bridegroom made of Liberty of Conscience to those of the New th corpo. Religion, I say that he wist this on purpose to the extitisting religion in the same of the same of the extitisting religion. I say that he wist this on purpose to the extitisting religion in the same of the same nem vc. nem Regi confirmandam haud sand dubitaverim aspexisse stigia itstigia itstig

(G) It was likewise believ'd that he had been posson'd In the Margin (e) you will find the Words of Strada, ind here follow those of Brantome (f) That poor Prince (fays he) did not long injoy that great Glory and Praise, for he who had so often sought death in the hard field of Mars, died in a soft Bed, as if he had been a Favourite of Venus, and not a son of Mars it was faid that he died of a contagious Distemper which the Marchioness of Aut with whom he was in love had given him, but every body did not say so, no not in Spain, for it was thought that he was posson d with persund

for it mas thought that he was posson d with perference of his time, was moreover very Gallant and Civil Judge whether he was not a firme pudred, and another at Naplet. She at Madrid was elegantified Anne, and her Mother was a Person of the first Quality, (g) and a perfect Beauty. The same Lady (b) who had brought up Don Juan, brought up this Bastard Child likewise privately till she was Seven Years of Andrews took her from thence and sent her to Burgos, where she became perpetual Superior of the Benedistine Nuns. Don Juan's other Daughter's Name was Joan her Mother was a rega incomperand after she was brought up to Seven Years of Age by her Father's Sister the Dutchess of Parma, she was put into the Nunnery of St. Clara at Naples where after having liv'd Twenty Years she was at last married to the Prince of Butero. Those Two Daughters of Don Juan died almost in the same day, in the Month of February 1630. He had caused them to be brought up fo privately (j) that she did not doubt but that the King was ignorant of all the Mystery and he had never consided it to his great Friend the Prince of Parma, who did not know of one of those Bastard Children but the the Month of February 1630. He had caused them to be brought up fo privately (j) that he did not doubt but that the King was ignorant of all the Mystery and he had never consided it to his great Friend the Prince of Parma, who did not know of one of those Bastard Children but the the Month of Particeps filared to Amsterdam in 1690 will have it that (j) Don John discover d his Amounts with the Fair Menalisation, and the Birth of his Daughter Anne to his discover d his Amounts with the Fair Menalisation, and the Birth of his Daughter Anne to his discover d his Amounts with the Fair Menalisation.

Don John discover'd his Amours with the Fair Mendor, and the Birth of his Amours with the Fair Mendor, and the Birth of his Daughter Anne to him the Symphem Prince Alexander Farneze, because but ing at the same time in the same Spanish Court, observed each other very natrowly, and because they were seed as the same time in the same spanish Court, observed each other very natrowly, and because they were seed as a Crime, he had made a Secret of his Amours garita matrix Diana to him. This is to give Strada the lie without Reason or Proof, and it is to alledge a reason of his silence which proves too much.

(1) Another Don Juan of AUSTRIA'] He was the Natural Son of King Philip IV of Spain (m) and was born in the Year 1642, and no body paid the Compliment of Congravilation upon it to Philip the IV with so much forwardiness as James Panzingle the Pope's Nuncio. The King's love to that Child was very tender. In the Year 1642 he decided a feet of General Him to By Sea and Land in the War against Paragal, and some Years after he sent him into Italy against the Rebels of Naples. The last Expedition having provid very forturate, inclined that King to give the same Don Juan a Complision.

1d p 619 (f)Brant ul ilupti

mussion

He was the Son of Philip the IV and of (K) an Actress

AZOTUS, a City of Palestine near the Sea, one of the five * Satrapies of the Phi- c 13 v 3 listins. There they kept the chief of their Idols, which they call'd Dagon, that fell of Samuel down and broke before the Ark which they had taken from the Fews, and placed in chap 5 the Temple of that Idol & It does not appear, that the Jews subdued that Place before v_{2d} Book the Reign of (A) Uzziah v King of Juda It was taken from them by Tartan, General of the Army of Sargon King of Assurance as s Islaiah tells us, who lived in that time of Chap Sometime after it was besieged by Psammittehus King of Egypt, and it was one of the 20 V I longest Sieges that ever was heard of, for they live 29 Years before that Place, early adolt 12 they took in the start the Egypt and the Place, early adolt 12 they took it It is likely that the Egyptians ruin'd it, seeing the Prophet Ferimah? dot 1/2 mentions it only as the remainder of a City It was considerable in the Wils of the 2/2 Cl 25

Maccabees, and the taking of it was not the least of Fonathan's 1 xploits The Enemies v 20 he had defeated retir'd thither, and shut themselves up in the Temple of Dagon He " If Book caus'd it * to be set on fire, so that they perish'd in the same I lame that consum'd the MaccaTemple and City. We read in the * Acts of the Apostles, that when St Philip had b iptiz'd bees c to the Eunuch of Queen Candace, he was caught away by the Spirit of the Lord, and mas found v 83, & (B) at Azotus The Prophane Authors have mention'd that Place as the chief * Γ_{1} - $f_{i}q$ ding City of the Arabians, and it must needs be, that its Inhabitants made a Figure, since below the Strabo + plac'd them in the List of the four Nations that were mix'd with the Calolynians, * Pomp and the Phanicians, the two chief Nations, according to him, that possess Syria Stepha Mela i i nus Byzantinus pretends, that the Founder of Azotus was one of those Fugitives that 6 10 nus Byzantinus pretends, that the Founder of Azotus was one of those rugicives that came from the Red-Sea into Palestine, and that he gave the Name of his Wife to the City of Strab I have been all the constant all the which he built, which Name fignity'd a She-Goat Mi Bochart || has rejected all this See also p

St Ferom lays, 4 That in his time, Azotus was still (C) a considerable I own

16 p 515
See also p

522

(a) Ib p 284

(b)Vita di Don Giovannı d Austria, ibid pag

(c) About the latter end of the Year 1676 (d) Ibid p 629 (e) Ibid p 628

288

(f) See the News from the Repu-blick of Learning, July 1686
pag 827

mission to reduce the revolted Catalans to their thing to cause the Sloth of that Monach to conti-Duty And afterwards he fent him to Command in the Netherlands That Imploy did not much contribute to Don Juan's Glory, that which he had acquir'd by rafing the Siege of I alenciennes, vanish'd away by the ill Fortune that accompany'd him in other Places, and chiefly by the loss of the Battle of the Dames, which was foon follow'd him in other Places, and chiefly by the loss of the Battle of the Downs, which was soon follow'd by the loss of Dunkirk. He was no less unfortunate in the War of Portugal after the Pyrenean Peace, for the Army which he commanded was entirely defeated, and he fell into Disgrace, and receiv'd Orders (a) from the King his Father to retire to Consugra. He had no share in the Government after the Death of that Prince, for all the Authority was in the Hands of the Queen Mother, and the Jesuit Nidhard. They would have remov'd him under the species preferer of sending mov'd him under the specious pretence of sending him into the Netherlands to oppose the Arms of France, but he discover d their Cunning, and would not go thither, pretending to be sick. The Court being offended with that Condust, (b) made him retire to Consuegra. He did not forget himself in that Retreat, but managed so well the dispositions of the Minds of those, to whom the Credit of Lather Nedhand was advoise that at less that dit of I ather Nidhard was odious, that at last that Jesust was forc'd to yield He went from Spain to Rome, and from that time Don Juan's Affairs went better, till at last he was recall'd (c) to Court, and had the chief Direction of the Government dy'd the 17th of Septem 1679, after 23 Days fickness (d) Some faid, that he had been Posson'd (e) Vi sono persone, che assicurano che sosse un colpo uscito dalla mano della Reg Mad e del Cardinal Nitardi coll'assistenza de' suoi partigiani. Others have said, that he was so much troubled at the King's Marriage with the Daughter of the Duke of Orleans, that he dy'd of Daughter of the Duke of Orleans, that he dy'd of it, and yet according to the publick Opinion, he was the chief promoter of that Marriage (f) I remember to have read in some Gazette of the Year 1678, that the Marquis of Agropolo being suspected of having writ a Comedy against Don Juan was confin'd to Oran

(K) And of an Actress | Every Body knows that Philip the IVth was much addicted to the Love of Women He made that Inclination appear very early, and his Governor was so far from holding him up in fuch a flippery way, that he contribu-ted to his fall It was the Count and Duke of Oli-varez, he was also subject to that Passion himself, and as well for that reason, as the better to secure the Administration of Affairs to himself, he fomented the lewd Temper of his young Prince, he mented the lewel 1 emper or his young Frince, he was in hopes that under the Reign of his Pupil he should have the greatest Offices of the State, and he foresaw that if the Monarch didlead a voluptuous and effeminate Life, he could exercise them with much more Authority And besides, that his own Debaucheries should have a more free course under a Mosta when he should easy imitate. This under a Master whom he should only imitate This Management succeeded with him Philip IV ascended the Throne at 16 Years of Age, in the Year 1621, and less the Care of the Kingdom to the Count and Duke of Olivarez, who neglected no-

nue He invented new Delights, he caus d the Sacia / most excellent Troop of Comedians that could be 2 / 12 form'd in Spain to come to Madrid They asked before the King in the Year 1627 There was in Astress among them whose Name was Calderona that pleas dhim much She was not very handsome, but she had a wonderful genteel Curriage, and a charming Voice I he king did no tooner see her on the Stage, but he wis struck with Love, and order dheir to be brought to his Chamber He find he would only hen her speak nearer him. Assoon as the Duke heard this News, he manual the as the Duke heard this News, he managed the Meeting, and caused the Acties to be introduced in the Night into his Majesty's Chamber, from whence she did not return till the next Day, and left the Prince fo much in love with her, that he left the Prince so much in love with her, that he declared her his I avourite. She was but 16 Years of Age. After that they met frequently, she provide with Child, and was delivered of our Don Juan. But after her lying-in, she (g) broke off that I ride, and shut herself up in a Nunnery, and put on the Habit of a Nun, with the Benediction of the (b) Pope's Nuncio (j).

(A) Before the Reign of Uzziah | Look as long as you please in the 11th and 15th Chapters of joshua, to which Moreri refers us, and you will not find you please in the 11th and 15th Chapters of Joshua, to which Moreri refers us, and you will not find that Joshua Conquered the City of Acotus Nor is it more true, that those of the Tribe of Judith, conquer'd it in the time of the Judges I he Author, (k) who says it, and who quotes the first Chapter of the Book of Judges, his no reason to do it. That which deceived either Moreri, or the Author, whom he followed his that in the cash Chapter of the Solomy'd his that in the cash Chapter whom he followed his that in the cash Chapter of the solomy whom he followed his that in the cash Chapter of the solomy whom he followed his that in the cash Chapter of the solomy whom he followed his that in the cash Chapter of the solomy whom he followed his that in the cash Chapter of the solomy has the solomy and the solomy and the solomy has the solomy and the solomy has the solomy and the solomy and the solomy has the solomy and the solomy has the solomy and the solomy and the solomy has the solomy has the solomy has the solomy and the solomy has the solom thor whom he follow'd, is, that in the 15th Chapter of Joshua, that City seems to be in the Dividend of the Tribe of Juda But he ought to have from 1/ taken notice, that they placed in those Dividends, what was already conquer d, and what was to be conquer'd in time It appears plunly by the 3d Austria Philistines, and consequently of Azotus, were not presented that that Conqueror was too old to finish that War, places (1) those same five Governments around the Countries that remained to be conquered. among the Countries that remain d to be conquered. This shews us another fault of Morers, Joshua, fays he, subjected it first to the Hebrews towards the 2586th Tear of the World, and it was afterwards one of the 5 Satrapies of the Philistins Was it not so before soshua's time, by the testimony of God him-

(B) Was found at Azotus] Moreri pretends, that episcopa St Philip was taken away in that City If he had chiepitread the 8th Chapter of the AEI, which he quotes, If he had lissubArhe would not have faid it would not have taid it (() Was fill a confiderable Town] These are his Words, Usque hodie in gne oppidum Palastinae Baudrand (m) will have it, that having been anciently an Episcopal City under the Archbishoprick of Cafarea, it became atterwards a meer Municipium in St Jerom's time But from whence should the ruin of the Bishoprick of Aratus have proceeded by mi Bauruin of the Bishoprick of Axotus have proceeded between the time of its erection and the Age that St drand Jerome liv'd in ?

Mmm 2

. Joshua 4 Hieron de locis

> rona accoppiaili più col Re Fita p 5 (b) John Baptiff Pamphilio, lio, who Pope In-(1) Tiker Life of Don Gio-(k) Chu-ftoph Heidminnus ınPalæftına, p 90 (1) Joshua 13 3 (m) Olim epilcopa-> > copo Cr-

(g) Non

C I only transcribe the words of Varillas, Hift of Charles IX tom 2 p m 147 y Hemeans be Prince of Condi, Chief of fants ...

S A Sown
of Postou, ... pensier ζ In 1568 Altisgreat co bis Iraternity have not plac'd him in the number of their Martyrs 0 That is, they gave no more Quarter Lufeb Hift Lccles lib 6 thryioр 641,669

(a) Brant Memoir ru, pm 261 (b) Suet in Galba

(c) SecJu-

ftin 1 18

figi justit, & Silius Italicus l

2 V 343 Regulus, Vidi cum robore pendens It ilium сгисе

1ublimis spectaret

In the Book of Fither i laman

A B E L O T, Almoner to the Duke on pension, distinguish'd himself so much by his Cruelty, during the Cars of France under Charles IX. that he has acquir'd a very notable part History. It ought not therefore to be thought strange that I should give an account of him. He was a Cordelier C, who had left the Monastery to follow "the Army, out of an implacable Hatred wherewith he was posses'd against the Calvings. Notating his Character and Profession, he was so far from saying the Lives of withstanding his Character and Profession, he was so far from saving the Lives of those whom the Fortune of Arms reduced to the Discretion of Managers, that he sollicited him instantly to punish them with the utmost Severity and could not suffer (A) that any of them should be Pardon'd That Thirst he Calvings. Blood, which the two first Wars could not allay, was increasing third, when the γ Prince's Soldiers being inform'd that Babelot had imprudent thimself up in Champign A, gave such a surrous Assault to that place that they took it ζ The pleasure of finding themselves Masters of the Person whom they look'd upon as their which did "pleasure of finding themselves Masters of the Person whom they look'd upon as their belong to "Executioner, made them more Human to the Inhabitants of Champigm, whom they Mont- Pardon'd, and they discharg'd all their Anger on Babelot They " hang'd him on an (B) extraordinary high Gibbet, and if they gave him time to prepare himself for Death, it was only to have leisure to Reproach him for his Cruelty. The Vengeance which the Duke of Montpensier (who loved him) took for his Execution on the Calvinists, when Chance or Weakness put any of them into his Hands, caus'd for some Weeks an unfair 8 War between the two Parties The Soldiers of Brissac "cut the Throats of the Garrison of Mirebeau, though they had Capitulated in due form, and d'Andelor treated that of St Florent in the same manner" Here was a Man altogether design'd for the Ruin of the Huguenots, sceing his very De ith occasion'd the Slaughter of many of 'em Brantome believ d him Gualty of another fort of Crime, that is to fay, of inspiring his Master with the Brutality of (C) Ravishing Women

BABYLAS, one of the most famous Martyrs of the ancient Church, was me Bishop of Antioch in the Third Century, under the Emperor * Gordian vern'd his Chuich as a good and holy Prelate ought to do, and after having wort acquitted himself of his Function about Thirteen Years, he obtain'd the Crown of Martyrdom towards the Year 251, during the Persecution of Decius Some † say that

(A) That any of them should be pardon'd Brantome deserves to be heard He says, speaking of the Duke of Montpensier, (a) That when they brought him any Prisoners, if it was a Man, he only said to him at first sight, My Friend, you are a Huguenot, I recommend you to Monsieur Babelot This Monsieur Babelot was a learned Cordelier, that govern'd him wery peaceably, and was never absent from him, to whom they brought the Prisoner immediately, and after a short Exmination, he was presently condemn'd to Death, and executed

ceining

(B) On an extraordinary high Gibbei] This puts me in mind of what Galba did to a Man who endervour'd to live himself from Death, by pleading his Right of a Roman Citizen, he caused him to hythe Caiant, quistiff in the fast many of the Criminal, and give him a little Comfort, but all this might rather look like Mockery (b) Tutorem quod pupillum cui substitutus fuo in altissimam leges & civem Romanum se testissicanti, quasi solatio & honore aliquo panam levaturus, mutari, multoque praconspectu ter cateras altiorem & dealbatam statui crucem jussi

urbis sufsufficient figi jussit, of Silius

This puts

This puts

This puts

This puts

The caused him to hor caused him to he caused him to
he caused him to
he caused him to hor and much higher than the rest

This was to honour the Quality of the Criminal, and give him a little Comfort, but all this might rather look like Mockery (b) Tutorem quod pupillum cui substitutus
hares erat veneno necasset cruce affect, implorantique
ter cateras altiorem & dealbatam statui crucem jussit
urbis sufsufficient
hares erat veneno necasset cruce affect, implorantique
ter cateras altiorem & dealbatam statui crucem jussit
urbis sufsufficient
hares erat veneno necasset hares erat veneno necasset cuted perhaps they design'd only to excite a greater attention to the Fantasticalness of the Characters of that Man, without any allusion or regard to the Practice of (c) Antiquity Sometimes there has been a design to expose the Sufferer to the sight of more People, by the excessive height of the Gibbet See the Remark C of the Article of Othe III I shall observe by the way, that (a) those who compute this Cross of Galba to that which Verres made ule of against Gavius, are not exact, for all that was remarkable in the latter was, that it was not plic d where the Inhabitants of Messina used to Crucific Malefactors, but on that side which look d towards Italy Thus Perres insulted over that Man that call d himself a Roman Citizen, "He'll and prepared for Mordecai a Gibbet 50 Cubits high (d) Torrentius does it in Sucton Galb cap 9

ciuce Italiam cernere ac domum fuam prospicere posset It is this last Circumstance which Cicero (e) chiesty infifted upon, though, according to Lastantius (f), who had no need of that for the thing he was about, he only consider'd the Indignity of that Punishment in general

(c) Of Ravishing Women] The Duke of Montpensier used to recommend his Prisoners to his Guidon, viro bene vasato & bene mutoniato Brantome describes this very frankly, and adds what follows "(g) This is the Punishment of those
"noor Huminest Ladges contrived by Managery Ladges contrived by Managery Ladges contrived by Managery Ladges contrived by Managery Ladges contributed by Managery Ladges by Manager llows "(g) This is the Punishment of those (g) Brant poor Huguenes Ladies, contrived by Monsieur de ubi supra poor Huguenes Ladies, contrived by Monsieur de ubs superpensier, which was possibly taken from Nicephorus (h) by Monsieur Babiles, where pag 282, that the Emperor Theodosius took away lish'd a Custom that had been a long the Rome, to wit, that if any Woman had been taken in Adultery, the Romans did not punish her better in Adultery, the Romans did not punish her better quent the coertion of the Crime which she had mitted, but by instaming her Lewd Temporary for they shut her up, that had committed the for they shut her up, that had committed the dultery, in a narrow Lodge, and then suffer d for they shut her up, that had committed the dultery, in a narrow Lodge, and then suffer d her lasciviously to glut her Leachery as much as she would, with every Body that should come, and that was most Villanous and Filthy, which was in this manner Those whoring Fellows were furnish'd with some little Bells, when they were in Company with the Lady, to the end that those Bells making a sound and ringing in the Motion, might not only give notice to the the Motion, might not only give notice to the Passengers and List ners of the business they were "Passengers and Listiners of the business taey were about, but also that by that means, and by the ringing of the Bells, that Punishment might be known to be attended with Injury and Ignominy What Ignominy, which they car'd much for Truly this was a very strange Custom which that wise Emperor abolish'd, as the said Nicephorus says in whom possibly Monsieur Babelot found " it

(e) Cicer

(f) Lact Vin 1 4.

he was actually put to Death for the Christian Faith, and others fay * that he died in * Muty-Prison 'Tis agreed, that he desir'd to be builed with his Chains It is pretented dithinks Relicks imposed Silence on an Oracle of Apollo St Chrysoftom more than once did not blay'd all his Eloquence to celebrate the Memory of St Babylas 'I is pity he was not sufficiently inform'd of the mattern of sufficient of the sufficient of the

(D) general Mutyromai um

" it, and caused it to be practis'd by this brave "Guidon

In Annal ad

ann 253 n 128

(b) Calvı-fius, Pe-

Pagi, &c

(c) See Tillem

tome 3 p 600 (d) That

Saint and 258 Til-258 lem ibid

(c) Id 1b (f) De epochis

293 apud Tillemont ib (g) Printed at Paris

ın 1675

See there

p 642 (h) T11-lemont ubi fupra p 821 (2) Chry-fost tom 1

Orat 48

P 547 #

540 6

550 #

Syro-Mac pag (A) For having excluded a Criminal Emperor from coming into the Church] It cannot be doubted but that Babylas died in the Reign of the Emperor Decus, and therefore, if St Chrysoftom's Narrative was true, it must have been Decus that was excluded from account when the Church have the control of the church have the church have the church have the church control of the church have the church chur from entring into the Church, but it does not appear that Decrus was ever at Ameioch in all the time of his Reign Baronius (a) fays, without proof, that Decius went into Syria in the Year 253, to make War against the Persons, and that it was then that war against the Perpans, and that it was then that Babylas did not suffer his Church to be Prophan'd by the presence of such an Emperor This neither agrees with Chronology nor History, nor with the Prudence of the Bishop of Antioch The best (b) Chronologers place the Death of Decius in the Year No good Historian says that Decius was in the Ess, to make War with the Persians It is true, that the Acts of St Lawrence affirm (c), that that Emperor went to make War against the Persians, and that he took from them the Country of Babylon, Assyria, all Persia, Hircania, and even Bastriana,

Allyria, all Persia, Hircania, and even Battrana, and that he died at Rome being possess of with a Devil a little after the Martyidom of (d) St Lawrence, the those Acts are without (e) Authority, and full of Father Noris (f) did not scruple to say that War of Persia is a meer Fable As contained, the Prudence of St Babylas, we may say that is awould not have suffered him to result a Passay. that it would not have fuffer'd him to refift a Pagan Emperor It was not agreeable to the Condust of the Church, that St Babylas should undertake to hinder him from coming into it, if he came there as a Pagan to com-mit any Violence, for the Church had not, nor exercised any Prolence, for the Church had not, nor exercised any Power but on those that were of the number of her Children, and she suffered the Insulance Persecutors patiently. Thus speaks the Authorities the Life of Tertullian and of Origen. Mr. of Tertullian confirms that Remark (h) In those Occasions (says he) the Church defended her self only with Prayers, and with a peaceable and kumble Patience, wherewith she suffer'd the Insults of Persecutors We find in a Sermon (1) ascribed to St Chrysostom, that St Roman of Antioch opposed a Pagan Governor from entring into the Church, but it is a very extraordinary thing, and the fast is no manner of way certain He observes also, that all the Terms which St Chrysoftom makes use of, shew that the Prince whom St Babylas oppos'd was a Christian So that it is not true that this holy Man resisted Decius, and yet he died under the Empire of Decius It must be said then that

St Chrysosom was deceived, when he said then that St Chrysosom was deceived, when he said that Babylas suffar'd Death for having forbid the entrance of his to an Emperor's Crime like a Man little consulted History] He relates (k) Lin People being in War with this Emlin'd to make an end of it, and to confirm ace by all the most inviolable and frongest ties re among Men, that the Agreement was made frm'd by Oath on both fides, that those People minded to shew their Enemies that they acted fincerely, perfuaded their King to give his own Son as an Hoftage to the Prince with whom they had concluded the Peace, that what follow'd made it appear, that they had put him (whom they believ'd to have deposited into the Hands of a Friend) into a Lyon's Month, seeing that Prince having neither regard to the youth of the Son of his Ally, nor to the inviolable Santity of the Oath which he had taken, nor to that all-feeing Eye of the Divine Justice for cut the Threat of him the punishing of Crimes whom he ought to have cherish as a Sacred Depositum, and as the inviolable knot of the Alliance, with his own hand This, says St Chrysosom, was the Crime of that Prince whom St Babylas treated in the fol-See the lowing manner That great Prelate (1) on this steasion in Life, perfectly imitated the Zeal of Elias and of St John, for he did not consider that he mas then to relist not only a he did not consider that he was then to resist not only a

Prince, or a common king, but him that was Mast rof a great part of the Farth, who lad a very powerful Army, and whom all things seem'd to contribute to make dreadful to him He was not dazl d with all this outband Solendor but that Solendor forwing only to but that Splendor forving only to represent to him in that moment the Supreme Mis I'y of that King whose Minister he was he step wo'dly to that Criminal Prince in the midft of hi Cuards, flops him with his hand against his Stomach, represented his Crime to him, and forbad him in God's Name from entring into the Assembly of the Faithful It is not necessary to observe that St Chrysostom uses the (m) most lively and pathetick Figures of his Rhetorick (m) Frasin the relation of these facts, one may easily think musadoto that knows (and who is ignorint of it?) that sed to read he was a great Preacher, and that he spoke to a this Homily (n) People full of respect and Tout for the Name in the Colors of St. Bahalas. But ought he was a great for the Name in the Colors. of St Babylas But ought he not to be pitted for having imploy'd fo many Ornaments, and fuch Efforts of Lungs and Imagination on I ditties. For what can be more chimerical than that People, who were Enemies to the Romans, and perfuaded their King to deliver his Son for an Holtage into the Hands of their Emperor. It any People did the Hands of their Emperor of It any People did for I ystatis, without doubt they were the Persians. But it is, I ibis svery certain that they did nothing like it, during the Episcopacy of St. Bis I question very the Episcopacy of St. Bis I question very the Manuch whether any Roman Linperor did ever I is I with the own hand a young Prince that was delight wer'd to him as an Hostige, after the Conclusion of the Persian was committed by the Emperors make the Persian was committed by the Persian was committ Perfidy was committed by the Emperors under the substantial whom St Babylas enjoy'd the Bishoprick of Antioch Louv in I don't question in the least, but that St Chrysuston it is the err'd with a good meaning, for he did not only teach those Friors in the Pulpit, (a) but ilso in a 8/1 in Writing which he compos'd against the Gentiles If he could have promis'd himself that his Auditors (n) Io I would forgive him for insisting upon a false and Popies of pious Fradition, he could not have hoped the same A too he savour from the Enemies of the Christian Name (Religion) favour from the Enemies of the Christian Name He believ'd therefore he full nothing that wis

(C) Of that Prince's Submission to the Severe Difitpline of St Babylas] St C/13 softom supposed that City
St Babylas had to do with a Monarch, that punished with Death the holy Resistance which was made Chrysost ed with Death the holy Resistance which was made agunst him. The falsity of this Fast his been dieficiently shew'd by the resion that St. Babylas died in the Reign of Decius, and that Dici is had not found any relistance at the Door of the Church of Antioch See here a new means to thew that same tracentil fallity. The name of Decisis Producessor was tracentil Philip It is believed that it was to him that St and on Babylis, falfity Philip Babylas refus'd the entrance of his Church, not con-Babylis, fidering him as an Emperor, but as a Christian that pag 6,7 ought to submit to the Liws of Penince, and Di- 655, & C scipline Now it is pretended that this Emperor apud At submitted to those Laws, and that he behav'd him-tolem to fubmitted to those Laws, and that he behaved nim-felf towards the Prelate of An o.b much in the to be fame manner as Theodofius did fince towards St. Am tullian & brose at Milan. Eusebius relates, (p) That the Lim-peror Philip was defirous to affish at the Publick p. 632 Prayers on Euster-Eve, but that the Bishop would (p) I used not suffer him to come into the Church betore he. Hist Lehad oblig'd him to confe's his Sins, and place him-clei 16 felf among the Penitents, which the Laperor c 14 perform'd with all the marks of a fincere Piety, and fear of God Eufebius relates this only on a meer feat of God Eusebius relates this only on a meer Hear-say, and neither names the place of this great Event, nor the Prelate that did such a fine Lxploir It is very strange that such things should have been so consusedly known. Therefore we see fome very Learned Men who maintain that the Emperor Phil p was not a Christian But however it be, we must not icpainte the Louringe of Babylas, and the submission of Philip, as St Chrysosom icparates them, they must either be both received on There are some Historians that speak of rejected

leges, as a Pattern which the ougl to 101. 13/1-) t " LOLV UIT. 21 , of the 28 / 1 look

> Les Bifhas of St Ribyl pag 641 Iul [pag 6,7,

A tio h

(k) See the ertulle and Grigen, p 632

* Sec the Lives of Tertullian and of Origen, Pag 757

(D) general Grounds of some of his Mistakes We shall speak of all that in the Remarks, as also of the Request which it is pretended (E) Apollo made to the Emperor Julian, concerning the Relicks of St Babylas. Three * great Victories are imputed to that Martyr over the Pagan Emperors, two in his Life-time, and the third after his Death. The I list is, his Advantage over Philip, by obliging him to keep without the Church in the Condition of a Penitent. The Second is, that which he had over the Persecutor Decius, when he chose rather to prepare himself to suffer any thing for the List than to do any thing unworthy of a good Prelate. The Third is that which Haith, than to do any thing unworthy of a good Prelate The Third is, that which

(a) P 630 apud Tillemont tome 3 p 822

(b) Erasin epist 3 lib 28 р 1586

(1) Idem opist 69 lib 29 p 180, it more precisely than Eusebius The Chronicle of Alexandria (a) notes, that the Empress was no less Condemn'd to do Penance than the Emperor her Husband It adds, that St Babylas made use of that Rigour, because Philip had kill'd the Emperor Gordian's Son Observe, that Erasmus, deceiv'd by St Chrysostom, found a great difference as to the Success, between the Courage of St Babylas, and that of St Ambrose (b) Babylas (says he) param feliciter "I LSUS CHRIST are Slaves to no Body on the the sum of the course of St Babylas, and that they ought to be so realized." Chrysostom, found a great difference as to the Success, between the Courage of St Babylas, and that of St Ambrose (b) Babyla (says he) parum feliciter of St Ambrose (b) Babylæ (lays he) parum feliciter cessit quod Imperatorem impia cæde funestatum templo prohibuit, imo feliciter cessit ipsi qui præsulis autoritatem sua morte consirmavit. At Ambrosio cessit felicius, qui summa constantia suam tuens autoritatem, ipsum etiam Cæsarem Christo lucri fecit. And in another place (c) Ambrosius Episcopus Mediolamensis ausus est Theodosium Cæsarem, ob crudelm ac præcipitatam in Thessalonicensis sententiam, a templi limine secludere, postque sævas objurgationes, post indiëtam satisfactionem in parutentium classem relevare. panitentium classem relegare Tentavit idem Bapantientium ciassem relegare

b) las Antiochenus Episcopus adversus regem innocentis homicidio pollutum, & interfettus est

(D) The general Grounds of some of his Mistakes]

We have just now iteen that it was said, that St Babylas grounded himself on the bloody Disloyalty The Emperor Gordian, under whom he wis Prefect of the Pratorium, had trusted him with his Son After Gordian was dead, Philip designing to Reign in his stead, kill'd the young Prince that had been intrusted with him St Babylas knowing him to be guilty of such an execrable Murther, would not admit him into the Chuich pecimi reveng'd the Affiont put upon Philip, for he put Babylas to Death, by reason of that Affront This we find in the Chronicle of Alexandria, as it had been reported by Leontius Bishop of Antioch, in the been reported by Leontius Bilhop of Antioch, in the Year 348 He did not well understand Philip's Conduct, but did not stray so far from the Truth as St Chrysostom The Emperor Gordian, under whom Philip was Prefect of the Pretorium, had no Child to trust with any Body, for he had none at all So that it was not to succeed that Emperor already dead that Philip kill'd the Son of the decreased and therefore Leontius reports the matter and therefore Leontius reports the matter very ill Philip taking the Advantage of the Emperor Gordian's Youth, caball'd in such manner that he caus'd himself to be declar'd his Collegue and his Tutor The I actions were revived, that of Gordian was worsted Philip caused him to be depos'd, and afterwards to be kill'd (d) This is the Truth of the Fact The Alterations of this I act increas'd in time I continu said, that Philip kill'd the Son of his Emperor, the same Son whom that Emperor had left to his care This is already ftraying out of the way, but it comes something near the Truth St Chrysoftom affirms, that Philip had kill'd the Son of a Prince with whom he had concluded a Treaty of Peace, the same Son which that Prince had left in Trust as a Pledge of his Friendship, and of his sincere desire to live in good Intelligence with him This is a second Error l contius says, that Decius caused Babylas to be put to Death, to punish his Insolence towards Philip Those that knew the Aversion that Decius, had for Philip, fuch an Aversion as was believ'd to have been the cruse that Dicins persecuted the Christians, have found what Leonius faid to be abfurd So that (e) they corrected it by inppoing that Philip himself caused St Babylas to be put to Death, they corrected one Fault with another, and unhappily deceived St Chrysosom They made him lose some Research which he might have set off with the Ornaments of his Eloquence, to repel the Infults of the Pagans, and to let forth the Glory of the I vingelical Ministery An Emperor's Humiliation it the word of a Bishop, would have supply'd St Chrylostom with fine Thoughts 'Tis pity he did not know it See how he takes Advantage of the resistance of St Babylas (f) "Whereas, (siys he) "the Priests of the filse Deities are more Slaves "to their I minerous them so their Gods and we to their Emperois than to their Gods, and are " not assiduous to their Worship but only for fear

Larth, and that they ought to be so jealous of that holy Elevation which God has given lem for their Lot, as the true Character of their Dignity, that they must rather be disposed to be prodigal of their Lives, than to lose that Privilege This same Example, by confounding the Pride of the Pagans, increased the Piety of the Faithful, who were taught by the Conduct of their Pastor to fear GOD more than all Men, and wholly stop d the Mouths of those who durst maintain with an extraordinary Impudence, that there was no true Courage among the Chris stians, but that every thing was false and counterfeit among them, being only cover'd with a "fair appearance"

(E) Apollo made concerning the Relicks of St Babylas] There was a Temple and an Oracle of Apollo near Antioch, in a place that was calld about 40 Daphne Superstition and Debaucher, strove which Sendia, thould out-do each other in that place, it was the sendia Rendezvous of Lovers and their Mistresses. Others went thither to pay their Devotions, and very likely many went for both those ends at a time Gallus, the Brother of Julian the Apostate, was no iooner declar'd Cæfar, but that, to put a stop to this double Disorder he caused a Church to be built there where the I omb of Babylas was brought wis along, by his Order It is faid, that when that was done, Apollo gave no more Answers The Tomb of that Martyr was the cause of it, and not the Interrup-tion of the Sacrifices I or the Sacrifices beginning again in the Reign of fulian, the Oracle continu'd ovusanta ny filent, and when fulian went himself to consult the was informed that the dead Bodies, whereof that place was full, that the Mouth of the Oracle
The Emperor apply'd this only to St Babylas's Tomb, and therefore order'd it to be taken away from thence The Christians of Antioch brought

There was a Procession of Perit into the City There was a Procession of Perfons of all Ages and both Sexes, that sung a Song (g) of Triumph all the way, for the (b) burthen of their Song concernd the Confusion of those that adore Idols (i), and was taken out of the XCVII Plaim One might conclude, a major and tem cætemanne from this History when the Beach at ISSUE minus, from this History, that the Birth of JESUS CHRIST impos'd silence on all the Oracles of Pagamin, if we did not otherwise fee that by the apprime acknowledgement of Sozomen, the same Oracle callebant; of Apollo had given Aniwers till the Reign of Conmultituitiantius, in whose time Gallus had the Dignity of do deinde Cariar The Objection feems stronger against those that do not acknowledge any Diabolical Operation in the Oracles of the Pagans But see what Mr Van Dale Answers He supposes that the & hunc Priests of Apollo being unwilling to be so nearly versicu-observed by the Christians, who came thronging lum sucto Babylar's Tomb, invented an answer that might cinebat oblige the Emperor to take the Tomb of that Martyr from thence Those Priests fear'd nothing so funt ommuch as the eyes of the incredulous, and did not hope to be able to hide their cunning practices adorant from People that were so curious to discover them failth as the Christians were It may be also that the plind Superstition of these Priests perswaded them, antur in that they should do a good Act of Religion, if they should cause a Tomb of a Christian Mertur veneral characteristics. should cause a Tomb of a Christian Martyr venera- chris Soted by the Enemies of their Gods, to be taken out zem of their Neighbourhood Christiani quibus repleta infra mientes, Visitabant quotidie sepulchra Martyrum, atque (1) En So-inprimis quidem Babyla Sub que pratectu dum leca zomeno illa ita frequentarent, cum subreperent etiam huic Ora- 1 5 c 20.

(g) It was

(b) Fine +ax mar xerender, zi EURAMIX et TO Píalmos respondebat cum concentra Confusi nes qui

(1) See Tillem ubi fupi i

(d) See Čapitoli-

Life of Gordian

(f)Contra Gentil de 5 Babyl Oper to 1 p 664,665 apud autorem vitæ Ter-tull & Origenis,

p 639

his Ashes * obtain'd over the Oracle of Apollo near Antsoch Mr Chevreau (F) has * See the

not been very exact in speaking of the Martyrdom of St Babylas

BABYLON Moreri and his Continuators have collected so many things continuing that City, that if I would give this Article a reasonable length, I should be to repeat most of their continuators so that, to spare the Publick the distaste ling the same things in the fame things in the fame things in the same that they have not touch'd I do tamine if what they relate is so exact as it ought to be The Inhabitants of Babylas pretended that their City was very antient, they counted Four hundred seventy three thousand Years from the first Observations of their Astrologies to the coming of Alexander, as the Dealers Scorley informs us. Others their Astrologers to the coming of Alexander, 45 † Diodorus Siculus informs us Others † Lib 11 fixing themselves to a round number, say, that the Babylomans boasted to have pre- P 118

Edit Rhoferv'd in their Archives the Observations which their Astrologers had made on Edit I Nativities () for the space of Four hundred and seventy thousand Years. By this we must Complete (A) Passage of Pliny, which some Author's make use of improperly, culo, oculisque emiffitus omnia perlustrarent, ut sic detegerent imposturas ac prastigias ibs exercitas, neque id ferrent ea tempora, ut vi expellerc cos inde possent An-tistites, illi sub pratextu à mortuis purgundi tocum Dis sacratum, cum Babila alissque, Christianos inde remowere nitebantur. Nihil enim magis aut citius detegere valebat Antistitum ejusmodi imposturas, quam continuus concursus publicaque Panegyres, ob ludos aut festa publica News from ibi celebranda si quarumcunque sistarum Philosophis, eorumve sequacibas ad illa pateret accessus (a)

(F) Mr Chevreau has not been very exast in speaksn March 1684 pag 15, 16 (b) Ghe-

(a) Van Dale de

Oraculis ₹ 442 See the

the Repu-blick of Learning

vreau's History of the World, and of Origen, p

758 (d) This

I writ in the Year 2694 (1) He publiffi'd an

Editron at

and Corre-Kions, but he alter'd

nothing in the paffage

Merriing May las quanus Matthær

Months

Setthe Journal of Moral .

a.r.on (b) Che-Vræana 2d part.

Travoux

uniel Larro.

ing of the Martyrdom of St Babylas] See what he fays of it "(b) Babylas, Boshop of Antioch, suffer'd "Martyrdom with his three Children, for not having permitted Numerian to see the Ceremonies of the Christians, adding, That a Man pollument of the Christians, adding, That a Man pollument of the Christians, adding, That a Man pollument of the Christians, adding that a Man pollument of the Christians, adding the conference of the christians. ted with Blood, and with the Sacrifices of Idols, could the World, "ted with blood, and with the Sacrifices of Idols, could lib a C4 "not enter into the Church, or, as Suidas lays, That p 40% of "he would not suffer the Wolf to enter into the Sheep-the 2d I "fold of the Lord" I St Babylas had no Children, hametical to Cheureau should have faid, that (c) three Broof Hold that were yet Children, or very young, sufland 1687. Martyrdom with him 2 There is above (c) Lover Rentry Years between the Death of Bebylas, and of Tertul the Reign of Numerian the Reign of Numerian 3 The Ancient Authors do not ascribe to that Martyr Mr Cheureau's Expressions We must confess that the Undertaking of a general History is a very difficult matter or a general faitory is a very difficult matter Mr. Chevreau was a learn'd Man, he knew the Defects of those that preceded him in that Design, he took a long time for his Work, and yet He is (d) alive still, and notwithstanding his Age, he enjoys a perfect Health of Body and Mind, and therefore I don't doubt but that he will publish a new (e) Edition, that will be yet more curious than new (e) Edition, that will be yet more curious than the Hague the preceding I ought to give my Readers notice in the Year to confult the Learn'd piece that (f) Mr Larreque actions to be Printed at Leyden in the Year 1688 foveral Under the Title of Matthai Larrequani adversarious for t

Pages of it
I hoped that Mr Cheureau Would not have taken amiss those little Critical Notes we have just now feen, and as I had all the Esteem for him which is due to his great Merit, I would have suppress of them if I had thought that they would have imade him uneasie. But I thought that he was above being concern'd at so small a matter, I fancy d that he would have applied to himself what I faid in the would have applied to himself what I faid in the preface, and he was certainly one of those who need not fear so small a loss. I Matther: Therefore furpriz'd at his unforeseen concernees, and troubled because he was angry

Therefore furpriz'd at his unforeseen concernees, and troubled because he was angry

Therefore furpriz'd at his unforeseen concernees, and troubled because he was angry

Therefore furprize the therefore that when h'd him a longer Life than he enjoy d (g) I ged 87

Therefore for the therefore the thirty had that he must be the there that which I had that he must that the thirty that the former the former the thirty that the thirt had that he might read in this second Edition, the Tokens of my Respect for him, and the Explanation of a thing which had been expiesed in an ambiguous manner. I am apt to think that that Ambiguity was the chief Cause of his Discontent, he thought that the pointed Lane, and yes had some Poison in it. Tis a gap which his own Imaguation fill'd with disobliging Notions, and I was desirous he should know, that according to my urch E- true meaning that Histor denotes only a general

Dutch E-

put three Brothers who were as yet Children, to take away all Equivocation, and that he ought to have explain d himself more clearly, than several Authors who writ it so before him. As for the Expressions which I said the ancient Authors did not alcribe to St Babylas, Mr Chevreau quotes (1) Georgius Syn- (1) Ibid cellus, and Paulus Diaconus, but can these Authors P 321 be call'd ancient with respect to the time of the Martyr we now treat of? Did not they live towards the end of the VIIIth Century? To conclude, he quotes several Writers, most of them modern, who have said that Babylas was slain by Numerian, and sets down these words of Mr Tillemont, (1) We (1) Ibid P must confess, that the History of St Babylas is Embarass'd with many Difficulties which are insurmountable by reason of our Weakness I agree that all this may serve to excuse those who don't speak exastly of the Martyrdom of St Babylas, but it will be always al-St Babylas, Mr Chevreau quotes (1) Georgius Syn- (1) Ibid Martgrdom of St Babylas, but it will be always allowable to remark, that they did not take care to chuse that which was the least unexact in that I am very well perfuaded, that Mr Chevreau has found haults in my Book, any one, who has not the fourth part of the Knowledge of such a Learned Man, may find many faults in it If he had given some hxamples of what he has said in general (k) concerning those effected Faults against our Landon and concerning the fault many hyplesus, absures guage, and concerning those mean, builefque, boscure, p 320 and perplex'd Expressions, I should think my self oblig'd either to dispute about it, or to confess that I am in the wrong, and I should willingly do the latter, if I thought it any way reasonable fince he has pointed at nothing, I may be allow d to take that part of his Book for general and loofe Reproaches He charges me particularly with a kind of a Contradiction, about a Man who had been, as he lays, my Idol (1) a long time I am fure (1) 1bid he would have omitted this, if he had feen how I have justified my felf on that point (m) And as (m) In my for using Words, which, he says, (n) nice Ears cannot Restletions endure, the Reader may see in an Explication at the call of this Book what I have to answer to that, I call d, The should be glad to deserve all that he says (s) by Publick way of retorsion to the Period which ends with and Opinion, And I should think my self very hap- & py if I could be excused on account that 'tis im- (n) Ibid possible, or next to impossible, not to commit a (o) Che-to avoid Mistakes would not have hindred me from being deceived very often, and that very grossy too (p) Cicero (E) Boasted to have preserved for the space de divious foundred and seventy thousand Tars We shall not lib to only quote two Passages of Cicer (p) Contemnation p m 307 mus etiam Babylonies, & eos qui m Gaucaso cali signa servantes, numeris & motibus stellarum cursus perse- (q) Id ib quintur Condemnemus inquis hos aut stultitie, aut lib 2 fol vanitatis, aut imprudentia qui CCCLXX millia 320 A annorum, at ipst dicunt, commentus comprehensa continent Let us see how he laughs at this in another place (q) Quod asist 470 millia annorum in persecutantis experiundise pueru quicunque essentiation, non ras sempeste dessum eminem autem habemus autorem qui aut per arbiteri dicat, a factum sciat

effet desitum eminem aucem in feri dicat, a factum sciat Corret a Passage of Pliny] rias fuisse (A) by his we must Corret a Passage of Pliny] rias fuisse (A) by his we must corret a passage of Pliny] rias fuisse (A) by his we must corret a passage of Pliny] rias fuisse (A) by his we must correct a passage of Pliny] rias fuisse (A) by his we must correct a passage of Pliny] rias fuisse (A) by his we must correct a passage of Pliny] rias fuisse (A) by his we must correct a passage of Pliny] rias fuisse (A) by his we must correct a passage of Pliny] rias fuisse (A) by his we must correct a passage of Pliny] rias fuisse (A) by his we must correct a passage of Pliny] rias fuisse (A) by his we must correct a passage of Pliny] rias fuisse (A) by his we must correct a passage of Pliny] rias fuisse (A) by his we must correct a passage of Pliny] rias fuisse (A) by his we must correct a passage of Pliny] rias fuisse (A) by his we must correct a passage of Pliny] rias fuisse (A) by his we must correct a passage of Pliny] rias fuisse (A) by his we must correct a passage (A) by his we have a passage (A) by his weak (A) by true meaning that Histur denotes only a general representation of the Impossibility of avoiding fealts, in a work that contains abundance of minute and particular things, though an Author be never so learn'd

But to come to the Point, Mr Chew an himself acknowledges the Solidity of my inst Remark, that confesses in the solidity of my inst Remark, that always existed, or that the Association is presented in the solidity of my inst Remark, that always existed, or that the Association is tror Associated to the Point of avoiding the section of the Impossibility of avoiding the section of the section of great many Faults in such a work as this I don't vræana believe that I had ever engag'd in such a Work as ibid par this Dictionary, if I had foreseen that all my care 330, 331 to avoid Mistakes would not have hindred me from

* In lib 2 de cœlo, com 46

123 1 Marshamus pag

5 7 edit 1676 in Childucorum 1-pud Joleph / r contra

Apion

P 1045

(a) Scili-

ger id Graca

I usebu,

pag 407 Voslius

Perizoni

nu npr

(/) Mirib imus

lecul 17

f 474 edit An-glic apud

cundem

(c) Vide Dody ell obligat Cyprian ın Appen p 36, 37 (d) Heretofore Prof raneker

He is now

Profissor in

Gruk, 12

and in Eloquence at

Leyden

Ince the

Lill Year

Differta-

tio prima Philolo-gica de Origini-bus Biby-

Lees me

tome Theles il at mare maintainer in the Moth of 169,

Hiftery .

inti i

either to confute the Antiquity of Babylon, or for other Designs. Which a learned Professor of Leyden has lately observ'd, and I wonder that it has not been taken notice of sooner Aristotle knew, without doubt, that the Rebylonians boasted that they had a series of Astronomical Observations that comprehended a productions number of Centuries, and being minded to inform hunself of it by the means of Callifthenes, who was in Alexander's Retinue, he found a great military in the Account, for it is pretended that Callisthenes let him know that he had seen but 1903 Years Astronomical Observations in Babylon Simplicius * reports this, and borrows it from Porphyrius. If Callisthenes has computed right, it must be agreed that after the Deluge Men made very great haste to become Astrologers, for, according to the Hebrew Bible, there is but Two thousand Years to be found from the I lood to the Death of Alexander There is reason to question what Simplicius reports, and it is remarkable that all the ancient Authors who ascribed the building of Babylon to Semiramis, built † only upon the Authority of Ctefias, whose Histories were full of Fables And therefore we see that Benosus || blames the Greek Writers much for having publish'd that Semiramis had built Bublion, and that she had be autified it with admirable Buildings The Supplement of Morers quotes Quintus Curtius about the Impudicity of the Babylonian Women It may be added that that Disorder was very ancient Jeremiah's I etter inserted in the Book of Baruch touches something of it, but in an obscure manner, and which wants a (B) Commentary taken out of Herodotus.

BACHO-

ways made use of Wilting, so that we must take for the proof of his Opinion, the Testimonies which he borrows from Epigenes and Berosus, concerning the Astronomical Observations which the Babylonians caused to be ingrav'd for the Conclu-sion that he draws from those Testimonies, is the fame thing as the Opinion which he had represented a little before Exquo apparet, this is his Conclusion, Attenus litterarum usus Now there is nothing to absurd as his Argument, if it be supposed that he spoke as he speaks in the Manuscripts and Editions of his Rock. tions of his Book Epigenes, a grave Author, af-firms, that the Observations of the Babylonian Astrologers comprehend 720 Years Those that give them the least extent, as Birosus and Critodemus, assign them 480 Years. Therefore the use of Letters is eternal, and I reasonably believe that it always existed in Affine Pliny irgues thus in the state his natural History is in at this time, I say, he irgues in this manner, after having observed that Cadmus de Histocis apud brought the use of I etters into Europe, and that it was faid that the Invention of them preceded in Ig) pr the Reign of Phoroneus by 15 Years Could a I ool, a Mad-man or a Dotard make a more extravagant Rhapfody? It must then necessarily be suppos'd that this Passage is not in its natural State And it is a great matter of wonder, that a Thou-land learned Criticks should have examin'd those words, without perceiving an impertment Logick in them, that might make em suspect that the Passage was tallified Scaliger, Vossius, Sir John Marsham, and Mr Dodwel have to little mistrusted it, that they have taken it for the I oundation of the Conclu-tions which they would draw concerning (a) the Age of Berolus, or against (b) the Antiquity of Ba-bylon, or for (c) other views I ather Hardoun his Corrected part of this Passage, but it was not chiefly to make Pliny argue well, for if this had been his principal Mories, he would have corrected all his principal Motive, he would have corrected all, and 'tis Mr Perironius (d) who has fully unravel'd the causes of the Evil, and the proofs of the Corrugtion of the Text (e) He has shew'd that the number of a Thousand must be added as well to Epigene, is to Berofus, and in that manner Pliny faid that acording to the Testimony of Epigenes, the Observations of the Babylonian Astrologers comprehended 720 Thousand Years, and, according to the I estimony of chose who like Berofus and Critodemu give them be least extent, 480 thousand Years Pliny is in he right by supposing, as he does, that they are creeble Witnesses, to conclude that the beginning of he Assyrian Letters cannot be found out Now who a thing is so ancient, that the Birth of it is beyond knowledge, one may, without any scruple, in writing as Pliny did, call at Eternal But would any one talifiest so, when the proofs that are given of its Anguity, leave it newer than a thing whereof the againing is known? This is the case wherein my would hive found himself, it he had said what hound in his Woil at this time. Consider well what to faid touching Crimms and Photoneur.

I then H. down's Correction must be explicit. the Testimony Okthose who like Berosus and Crito down's Correction must be expla Fither H down's Correction must be explained feparately. He mends Pliny's Text thus Edivic Epigen a spud haby for oc CCCLXX annorum M object. Applia 694 vatimes file un colt libus laterculis inferiptas docet qui minimum, Berosus & Critodemus CCCCXC annorum On the one side he put 470 thousand instead of 720, and on the other he sets 490 instead of 480 He builds on Manuscripts as to the last Correction, and on the Authority (f) of Cueso as to the first. It is true that he says by the way, (g) that the Passage it self of Pliny seems to require the first Correction, which is a sign that he perceiv'd the wrong Argument which the common reading ascribes to Pliny But if a thousand be added to the 480 of the common reading, we fall into another Difficulty, for then Berosus allows 480 thousand Years to the Observations of the Babylonian Aftrologers, and yet we know that when he mention'd the Diligence wherewith the Babyle nians preserv'd the Memory of divers natural and nians pieter d the Memory or civers natural asset historical things, he spake but of 150 thousand years (h) Bregodos or τη σερότη τη Βαθυλωνιακών οπος γενιός αυτον κ. Αλίξανδερν τον Φιλιτπα ο πλικιαν αναγραφαι ή πολών οι Βαθυλώνι φιλασσεδαι μέλα πολύης επιμελείας λοτο ετήν το καιρ μεριασών ει περιχείας χρουν περιίχεν ή τας αναγραφαι ειτρείας περι του κρανα, μη θασκασικί, μη περίδαγοιας, μη βασκιών, μη τη και αναγραφαί. Η βασκιών με τη καιρίδα συμές του μερικί και βασκιών με τη καιρίδα συμές του μερικί και βασκιών με το καιρίδα συμές του μερικί και βασκιών και καιρίδα συμές του μερικί και βασκιών με το καιρίδα συμές του μερικί και αναγραφαί και καιρίδα συμές του καιρίδα primo libio Babylonicorum ait natum se atate Alexandri Philippi fili: Joripta vero multa servari Babylone ma-gna cum cura qua tempus contineant annoi um supra myriadas quindecim hac autem scripta continere historias riadas quindecim hac autem scripta continere historias circa calum, mare, & rerum primordia, & reges, eorumque res gestas. It must be confess'd that this Passage does equally prove these two things. The one is, that the number 480, or 490, must be put out of Pliny's Text, the other is, that 480 thousand must not be put in the 100m of it, but rather the offend. Note in the 100m of it, but rather 150 thousand Notwithstanding, one may dispute about it, it may be objected, that Birolus being better inform'd of the fact, found 480 thousand Years, and inserted that Calculation in a Book which Pliny follow d. It might also be objected, that the numbers in the Passage quoted by Fuschus have been fallisted However it be I had rather retain the Correction of Father Hardourn, and add to it, as to Berosus and Critodimus, the alteration of 490 into 150 thousand

I shall observe by the way, that Vossius gives a wrong account of what concerns Berosus in the wrong account of what concerns Berofus in the Passage of Pliny, that makes the subject of this Remark He (1) pretends that Pliny says that Berofus writ the History of what had past during the course of 480 Years I quote Vossius words, compare them with the Passage of Pliny, and you will find a very great untruth Whom shall we trust?

(B) Wants a Commentary taken out of Herodotus 1

See here Jeremiah's Text (k), The Women surrounded with Cirds sit down in the Streets and if any one of them be drawn away, and he with any fuch as Hift Gree come by, she casteth her Neighbour in the Teeth, that she was not thought so worthy as her self, and that her Cord was not broke To understand this well, we must have recourse to Herodotus (1), who informs us, That there was a Law in Babylon that obliged Temple of Venue, to wait there for the Opportuble of Venue, to wait there for the Opportuble of the Opportuble of Venue, to wait there for the Opportuble of the Opportuble of Italy of lying with a Stranger They were all to $\times 42, 43$ do it once in their Lives. The Rich fat in their (1) Herod Coaches, and had a great number of Domesticks $\text{lib 1 cap}_1$ to attend them. The others had only at

(f) That sa to Say, on the two Passages of the Tres tife de di-Vinatione quoted here (g) Certè aunörum millia locus iple postulare videtur. non annos Harduin in Pln to 2 pag 134 (b) Beroius apud Alexandrum Polyhistor ab Euseb in ChronicoGræco, p 5 & 6. edit Scalig (i) Plin Nat c 55 (He ought to have laid lib 7 cap 56) refert Berofum tradere memoriam quadringentorum an norum & oftoginra Volhus de pag 86 (k) The Book of Baruch among the

BACHOVIUS (Reinier) was born at Cologne in the Year 1544 You may find his Life among those of the Learn'd Civilians of Germany in Melchior Adam I shall not repeat what Morers has taken from him, I will only lay open the Persecutions that Bachovius suffer'd in Leipsick for his Calvinism At first there were only some suspicions against him, and they were satisfy'd with keeping him out of all publick Employs, but the Times altering he obtain'd the office of a Senator, and atterwards in the Year 1585 that of an Alderman, and three Years after that of Consul The Flector Christian I dying in the Year 1591 Bachovius was uig'd to profess Lutheramsm, and as he would not do it, they compell'd him to lay down his Offices He would not hearken to the advice that was given him to retire, though the danger of a Prison wis represented to a Taken him, he thought that his Flight would give his Lnemies occasion to publish that he from Melfound himself guilty But in the Year 1593, he was oblig'd to yield to popular Insurchior A-rections, and leave Leissick He went first to Servise, and the Yeu ister into the Patrick leightness. latinate, not without having almost lost all his Estate The Elector Palatine prov d a of Circligood Protector to him, he exercised several profit ible and honourable. Offices at Hei-ans delberg until his Death, which happen'd the 27th of February a 1614. He published (A) & See the a Book that had more of the Divine than of the Lawyer in it. Among other Chil-Remark B. dren, he left Reinier or Reinhard BACHOVIUS, whom he saw promoted from the Name of Professorship of Politicks, to that of the Civil I aw in the University of Heidelberg I hat Tabor, Son had a (B) considerable Reputation among the Civilians of the XVIIth Century, and he is above all he had the art to Confute a subtilly what he ingaged to oppose He was he accounted kle on the Point of Religion, for he faid privitely to a ? Lutheran Professor, that if agreen Cities would permit him to read private Lectures of the Civil I aw at Strasburg, he Vite would leave his Professors of Heidelberg and go to Strasburg He declared that he presides detested the Doctrin of absolute Predestination, and that he believed the Corpore al Presence of JFSUS CHRISI in the Sacrament of the Lords-Supper, tho he knew nem onot the manner of it. The Person to whom he discover'd that Disposition communicited it to the Magistrates of Strasburg, who order d him to tell him, that he should Profehrus be welcome Bachovius went into that City with his Libi iry, but not finding a main- in Mautenance for himself there he neturn'd to Hadelberg, where his trusty I nend found him boris vext and Sick in the Year 1629 (a) I make

BACON (Roger) An Inglish Cordelier, lived in the XIIIth Century He was a out of Pragreat Astrologer, Chymist and Mathenittician, which doubtless give occidion to su-spect him of Magick There runs a Tradition among the English, That this I tyer made Tabous a (A) Brazen Head that answer'd all his Questions Mi Silden (B) rejects this is i but in fuch manner that there was liberty to go in and out, that strangers might pass freely in the intervals and make choice of her whom they liked best When they had made their choice, they cust Mony in her Lap, and led her into some by-place to enjoy her. They play d for her to the Goddess of (b) the Temple. Those Women were not sufof (b) the Temple Thoie Women were not suffered to refuse any Stranger, nor the Mony that was given them, tho the Sum was never so small They given them, tho the Sum was never to intall. I hely were to follow the first Strunger that cash them. Money Observe that those Sums were designed for Religious Uses (c) India 28 100 100 m apple of St quidem in sacrum convertitur usum. After the performance of the Act they might return to their Houses, the Devotion or Lypiation which the Goddes required was accomplished. Those that were beautiful or handiom weie soon dispatch d and reliev'd from Centry, but the ill-favour'd waited long for the propitious Hour to Satisfy the Law Some were so unfortunate that 3 or 4 Years waiting did not end their noviciat (d) Real 25 Tepina 25 Tepina policy new 1 Nam que This rel am gra- dam triennium quadriennium que expettant This retum mihi moves the obscurity of Jeremiah's words Fach of quam fe- those Women were kept in a little Cell bound arunt pu- bout with Cords, and did not come out but by breaking the Cord, after which, they infulted over those that were yet in the (e) Inclosure Who can sufficiently bewail the monstrous Alliance that was made in Paganism between the Worship of the It might justly Gods and the most filthy Passions have been call'd an easy Devotion, if the Comedy had contain'd more Acts and more Scenes, and it there had not been a disadvantageous mixture for the illfavour d, for 3 or 4 Years patience for once was a hard penance Martin del Rio retracted what he had faid on the words which I have quoted from the Book of Baruch He thought they were to be understood of certain Ligatures that were practi-fed to make one felf lov'd See his Magical Difquisitions (f) (A) He publish'd a Book that had more of the Divine Adam in than of the Lawyer in it] It was a fort of a Commen-vitis Ju- tary on the famous Catechism of the Palatinate

Melchior Adam fays this of it, (g) Propaganda veri-tatu evangelica fiudio edidis Catechelin Palatinatus, of Cords, that is, (a) they form'd fome Rinks testimonis Sacra Scriptura at sententi s pai im qui pi - that were separated from each other with Cords, mis quingentis a Clifto noto annis in Eccles a Dei clamis quingentis a Clifto nato annis in Ecclefa Dei cla-inerunt exornatam & illustratam, cum epitome vitæ corundem pitrum, & methodica narratione de Conciliis, quorum Canones in illo Catechetico libel'o c m-

(B) Had a considerable Reputation amore the Civi-lians | Convincing (1) calls him, D scipling jurid ce externum dicties tinvins (1) trys he is, subtil ssimul-Jurisconsultins, non tam sue sentintie adstructor, quam distructor aliene. Another (k) tays, to in his que ad solidam nostri juris interpretationim faciunt, acutiorim aux tradit prior atas. Listly the Folthets of acutional vix tradit prior ata: Luftly the Fpithets of accuratifimus, of jubilifimus, of acutifimus, of inevorabilis censor (1) do not fail him The Flogy Finnius gives him, agrees but with too many Persons I here are but too many subtle Writers, and Men of great Reasoning, who prove their own Doctrinill, but intirely overthrow that of others Man is commonly fironger in an offensive, than is defensive Dispute See what an Llector of Cologne said concerning the Quarrel between the Cordillers and the Jacobins. It is Father Paul that relates it See the 4th Book of his History of the Council of Trent, pag 309 of Mr Amelot de la Houssaie s Translation
(A) Made a Brazen Head that answered all his Que-

(A) Made a Brazen Head that anjwered all his Questions | Majer remarks (m) That Rogen Bacon is commonly introduc'd upon the Stage as a great Magican, And that there is a general report, that he and his Fellow-Monk, I homas Bungey, wrought 7 Tears to forge that Head, to know from it, if there might not be some means to inclose all Ingland with a thick it ill and Rampart? Upon which, it gave them an Answer, which nevertheless they did not understand act mell, because not thinking to receive it so speedily, hey needlebecause not thinking to receive it so speedily, by neverth-fied on other things, than to give an iai to it i Oracle These are popular Stories, that do not deserve to be consuted The like are made of Abortus the for great Great

(B) Mr Selden reefte this as a Couldish Fable Men, p m These are his own words, (n) Istiusmodi caput ex are constatum ab eruditissimo Rogero Buchone est in ore nostratis vulgi, sid non sinc injuita in illius Mathesin, quam fummam & a demonum prestigiis puram mon-strant satis illius opera quotquot nos legiste contigi. A quidquid adversus cum uti magum seu rewouas ir 3 Balesus inscitta dicam, an in optimas artes malitia, editione m 38. centuriarum prima fatis incogitanter effutierat, id bene Nan

Name was destitutus

(b) De 111 toritite Juttin in Germania ipud Migirum Lponym p 99 (1)Cap 11 de pact n 9 ipud eundem (k) Hahn in dedic oblesy id Weien-Lec apud (1)Schutz ipud eundem (m) L 1b is Symbol nureı menie, (n)Selden de Dus SVIIS Syntagin

rodotus does not explain particularly enough
(b) It was Venus the Babilonians call'd her Mylitta Herod 1b (c) Herodot 1b (d) Id 1b (e) These words might bave been apply'd to those that out of it I am grarunt pu-ellæ Pereolum tuisse malum Quod zonam fol-Vit diu ligatam Catul

Epigr

(f) Lib 3

g Melch

parte 1 quest 3

a small addition 📂 give the betterlight by a Paraphrase to what He-

* L1b 2 de præno tione cap 1 6 lib 7 pud Naude Apology for great Men, p m 16 p 493 Journal of the 8th of March, 11 I 20 111 1684 See the News from the & Secthe Judgment that Conringius, Baclerus, Blount p 635

(a) Difouilit

Magicar l 1 cap 3 p m 22 (b) Ab hoc numeio icmoveo ut cosmigos Picatri cem Hifmum Par-

menfem. Cicchum

Lículanum, Pe-trum de

Agrappam & Paracel-partim atheos partım hærefum homines

Abono,& Cornel

panum, Aniel-

childish Fable, and observes that no Historian has mention'd it, and that Baleus who had defam'd Roger Bacon, recanted, and repair'd that Injury honourably Francis Picus * fays, That he read in one of Bacon's Books, "That a Man might become a Prophet, and fore-tell things to come by the means of the Lockers and fore-tell things to come by the means of the Lockers and fore-tell things to come by the means of the Lockers and fore-tell things to come by the means of the Lockers and fore-tell things to come by the means of the Lockers and fore-tell things to come by the means of the Lockers and the lockers are the lockers are the lockers are the lockers and the lockers are the lockers are the lockers are the lockers and the lockers are the lockers are the lockers are the lockers and the lockers are the lockers a and fore-tell things to come by the means of the Looking-glass Almuchefi, composed according to the Rules of Perspective, provided he used it under a good Constellation, and had first brought his Body into an extremely by Chymistry. This is not contrary to John Picus Mirandulanus, the who make anin'd, That Racon only busy'd himself with natural Magick. This Fryer sent distribution of his own Invention to Pope Clement IV. Several of his Books have been published. Specula Mathematical distribution of the proposition. † In præ- on to Pope Clement IV † Several of his Books naveween published on to Pope Clement IV † Several of his Books naveween published on the Population of the Apo- iica & perspectiva Speculum Alchemiæ De mirabili potestate artis & naturæ Epistolæ cum log apud notus, &c It is very likely that he did nothing by compact with the Devil, but that he Naudenh Notus, &c It is very likely that he did nothing by compact with the Devil, but that he Naudenh fore there is reason to say, that his Writings are full of (C) Superstition. He was much infatuated (D) with Judicial Astrology

The Letter which he writ to Pope Clement IV and which is in the Library of Lamberth, contains with the Flogies of the Holy Scriptures a strange Design; for he exhorts that Pope to confirm by Apostolical Authority, and to recommend to the whole that an E- Church the Method which he had found to teach every Body Hebrew, Latin, Greek and dron of Arabick in very few Days He pretended, that not only all the Laity ought to read the Scripture, (E) but also to understand the Originals, and he was positive, that his a general Grammar was passionately desir'd, and that divers Prophecies confirm'd it

BACON (Francis) Lord High Chancellor of England under King James I was one of the greatest Men of his Age, and one of those that knew most learnedly the impersection that was in Philosophy He labour'd hard on the means to remedy it, and he form d very fine (X) Models of Reformation The Publick receiv'd his Labours very A compleat Edition was made of them at Francfort in Folio, in the Year Repub of twourably I carning, 1665 The Journal of the Learned ||, did not mention it without much praising that fa-June 1684 mous Chancellor The Treatile (Y) de augmentu Scientiarum that was Replanted at June 1684 mous Chancellor ralogue of Parse in the Year 1624 is one of that Author's best Productions. His Moial and Ponew Books, litical Works translated into French by Baudouin, sold so well, that they made seven ril Editions of them. His Life of King Henry VII of England, & is very much esteemed By labouring to hard for the Republick of Learning, Bacon neglected his Domefirek monitius omne non modo retractavit, verum in ea qua Or made tall & tanto viro digna sunt postrema recognitione etiam of them in prudenter commutavit Nec quod hanc vulgi samam Sir Tho-adstruat, habent Annales nostri John Dee, an English mas Pope Philosopher and Mathematician, made an Apology for Roger Bacon He makes mention of it in the Lpistle Dedicatory of his Propadeumata Aphoristica de prastantioribus quibusdam natura virtutibus. See Naude in the 488th Page of his Apology for great Men

(C) Are full of Superstition] Martin del Rio, who of all Men in the World is least prodigal of his Abso-Jution on those matters to suspected Persons, clears Roger Bacon of Magick, and is contented to make a superstitious Author of him Alchindus (a), says he, Rogerius Baconus, & Geber Arabs multis scatent superstitioss, ideo vetita lestionis etiam hos putarim John Wierus has not the same Indulgence, for he puts Roger Bacon, Petrus Aponensis, Anselmus Parmensis, Cic-chus Asculus, and some others in the same Class, whereas Martin de Rio (b) treats the three last that I have named as true Magicians, and puts Bacon only in the number of the Superstitious. As for the rest, Wierus agrees perfectly with him, that is to fay, he took Petrus Aponensis, Anselmus Parmensis, &c for Sectators of michievous Magick Superiorum (c) magorum nugamenta stidem insulse sequut: sunt Appion Grammaticus, Julianus Apostata, Robertus Angli-tis apud Helvetios misere mortuus, Rogerus Bachon, Pe rus Aponensis Conciliator dictus, Albertus Teutonicus, Ainoldus de Villanova, Auselmus Parmensis, Picatrics Hispanus, vel author libri ad Alfonsum sub Picatrics nomine, Cicchus Asculus Florentinus, & plerique alis obscurioris nominis scriptores, deplorate certe ingenii homines Qui quum se magiam tradere pollicentur, non nisi aut delisamenta quadam nulla ratione subnixa, aut

superstitiones pies omnibus indignas congesserunt
(D) Infatuated with Judicial Astrology] John Picus
(d) maintains, that the Book intitled Speculum Astrologie, which treats of the Lawful or Unlawful Authois, who wrote upon Astrology, is a Work of Roper Breen That Book was condemn'd by Gerson (c) and by Agrippa (f) as superstitious to the utter-most Francis Picus (g) and many others have conmost ticos Ibid (c) Wiei de præstig l 2 c 4. He observes that John I rancis Picus, lib 7 refutes Bacon (d) Lib 1 adversus Astrolog apud Naudé p 526 (e) I ib de libris Astrolog non tolerandis proposit 3 apud Naude p 525 (f) In epistol apud eumdem, ibid (g) Lib 7 de prænot cap 2 apud eumdem, ibid

demn'd it because the Author maintains in it, fubmission, that the Books of Magick ought to be carefully preserved, because the time draws near carefully preserved, because the time draws near that for certain Causes that are not specify'd they must necessarily be perus'd, and made use of on some occasions. Naude adds, That Roger Bacon was so much addited to Judicial Astrology, that Henry de Hassia, Guilielmus Parisiensis, Nicolas Oresmius were oblig'd to inveigh sharply against his Writings, and the Passity of Astrologers (h)

(E) But also to understand the Originals As I have not read his Letter, I cannot say if he lays his Ground-work upon this, That a particular Person, who understands neither the Greek nor Hebrew Tongue is oblig'd to depend on the Sincerity and the Capacity of Translators. Which it may be said is a weak Foundation, and does not deserve that we

is a weak Foundation, and does not deserve that we fhould build our Salvation upon it However it be, his Pretention is not far from being extravagant and contains impossibilities 'Tis the Augant, and contains impossibilities 'Tis the Author's Judgment, who spoke of that Letter (1) Inter Scriptores 13 seculi, qui a Whartono pro Scripturu & Sacrus vernaculu adducuntur, comparet Rogerus Bacon, cujus epistolam de laudibus S Scriptura ad Glementem IV bibliotheca Lambethana tenet Observat autem, Autorem illum portentosa quadam & impossibilia in praises illa epistola comminisci. Non enim tantum negativan esse docet, ut omnes Christiani sacram Scripturan setta quam sidei sua sontem & regulam perfecte sciant, sed the Book attention for the strangent of the constitution of the second setter set suampine investible audestur, ut suggest asserit Et quamvis incredibile videatur ut singuli Christiani linguarum istarum notitiam sibi company possint, id tamen Baconus factu perquam facile esse p Suadere suis Lectoribus cupit, imprimis cum se Gramma matica ticam quandam universalem invenisse glorietur, cujus controope intra paucissimos dies quilibet linguam Hebraicam, versiæ de Gracam, Latinam & Arabicam addiscere queat, & ut Scriptuomnes, quod legunt, etiam intelligant, se opus quoddam ris & Samanuduttorium seupraliminare ad promovendam S Scri- cris Ver pturæ intelligentiam editurum Spondet, enixe Pontificem machinionans, ut artificium Suum Summus omnium votis expetitum & frequentibus vaticiniis confirmatum, apostolica autoritate confirmet, & universa ecclesia commendet, unde innumera in ecclesiam beneficia redundatura minime

(X) He form'd very fine Models of Reformation] See what Mr Baillet faid of them in the 1st Volume (k) of the Life of Mr Descartes, and what Gassendus (1) faid in particular of Bacon's Logick

(1) The Treatife de augmentis scientiarum, is one of that Author's best Productions] See here what

(1) Acta eruditor Lipf meniisJu-P 297 In the Ab Stra& of

(k) Pag 147 & 148 (1) Opp stick Affairs in such manner, and plung'd himself into so many Expences, that he dy'd very poor We will set down (Z) two Authorities on this Subject. His Death is plac'd on the 9th Day of April 1626 He liv'd 66 Years

BACOUE (Leo) born at Castelyaloux in the lower Guienne, forsook his Natural Religion which was that of the Reform'd, and turn da Cordelier He attain'd afterward winifm, to the Prelacy, and was made Bishop of Glandeve He that * informs me of this, obferves, That Father Leo Bacoue is the only converted Huguenot that was promoted to Episcopacy under the Reign of Lewis XIV That Cordelier publish'd a Latin Poem to Episcopacy under the Reign of Lewis XIV That Cordelier publish'd a Latin Poem on the Education of a Prince, about the time that the Dauphin was to have some Preceptors He caus'd it to be Re-printed at Paris in the Year 1685. The Journal of the Learned † mention'd it the following Year

BADIUS (fodocus) firnam'd Ascensius, because he was born in the Borough || of Affebe near Bruffels, made himself famous by the great number of Books which he Printted and Commented He was born in the Year 1462 He perform'd his first Studies quotes at Ghent, he continu'd them in Italy, and made a great progress in the Greek Tongue at makes use Ferrara under Buptista Guarini He tettled himself at Lyons, and taught the Latin and Municipal Muni Greek Tongues there as well in publick as in private Atterwards he remov'd his Tabernacles to Paris, and set up a (A) Printing-house there, which was much to his Ho-It produc'd a good number of (B) Classick Authors, with his Explications and Badius the He took the like pains on some Modein Authors, as on Petrarch, Politian, Ganden-Notes Laurentius Valla, Baptist Mantuanus, &c He publish'd also some (C) Books of his own sis making as well in Piole as in Verse, 4 and they that were good Judges acknowledged, 4 Ex Vathat if his Domestick Cares (D) had not oblig'd him to write as much or more for Jerio An-Gain than for Glory, he would have succeeded much better than he did Erasmus hap-lioth pen'd to compare him in some things to Budæus, and one can scarce believe what Belg p buffle was (E) made at Paris against that Comparison Those that place Badius s 598, 589

(a) Conver fations of Voiture end Co-Star, p. 173 edit of Paris, 1654

1 ft Vol (d) There must be a fault of the 9th of

April,

1626 (e) Sorbe-

Costar (a) wrote of it to Voiture Some Months ago I read the Book which Chancellor Bacon writ about the progress of Sciences, in which I found many valuable things Afterwards he relates some of those things, and by that choice he shews his good taste, for truly they are all fine and great Thoughts I have heard that Bacon's Works was one of the Books that Costar made most use of, and that he took from thence the Ground or Basis of his Collections, that is to fay, That having found some Thought in Bacon that pleas'd him, he wrote it down in a Sheet of Paper, and when he met with any thing that related to it in other Books, he added it to that Leaf, after which he wanted no Repertory, nor Common-places

(Z) We will set down two Authorities on Bacon's Powerty] The first is supply'd me by the Bibliotheque Universelle, and the second by the Sorberiana That Bibliotheque (b) informs me that James Howel says (b) Tome in a (c) Letter dated the 6th of January 1625 (d) 15 P 45 (c) The8th That Chanceller Bacon dy d so poor, that he of the 4th left any thing to bury him with, which made Howel Sett of the judge, That the he had a great Genius for Learning, 1st Vol he was not very Judicious Nevertheless, he imputes (d) There that Chanceller's Poverty either to the contempt of Riches, or to an excessive Liberality Howel fays, That a must be a little before his Death he writ a mountful Letter to the Printing in the "he should be reduced in his latter Days to Beggary, and "less who desired to live only in order to Study, should be oblig'd to study for a Livelihood These words seem described as base to our Author, as those of another Letter, which the same had writ before to the Prince of Wales, were prophane He said to that Prince, "That he hoped, that the 9th of "another Father had been his Greator, the Son would be her Redeemer " be bis Redeemer

Let us fee now what Sorbiere fays, (e) " Bacon's Natural History at Paris 1631, Translated, or ra-(e) Sorberiana, "ther Epitomiz'd by Peter Amboise, Esquire, Sieur 41 edit of "de la Madelaine There is a Discourie of the Holland "Translator on that Chancellor's Life, and at the "end the Translation of Nova Atlantis is added to Those few excellent Remarks that I have seen make me wish greatly for an entire and faithful Version Mr Boswel told me, That he had been paiticularly acquainted with that rare Man, who left him all his Papers by his Will, which was the only thing that was executed of above a million of Legacies which he made by way of Gillantry He bequeathed 400 Thousand Livies to an imaginary College, of which he drew the Plan in his Nova Atlantis." This Dif-"drew the Plan in his Nova Atlantis" This Dif-courie does not feem to fay that Bacon dy'd in Poverry, it rather infinuates that he dy'd fome-what (f) Whimfical But look nearer into it, and you'll find there is a fign of Indigence in it

(A) A Printing-house, which was much to his Henour] Father du Moulines informs us, That (g) Jodocus (g) In the Bad us is the first that brought round Characters into France, and that before him all the Printers of the Kingdom made use of Gothick Characters About the Year 150 he came from Italy into Irance, as well to teach the Cieck in Pairs, as to set up a very fine Printing-house there, which he call d Pialum Aicentianum Father du Moulinet foigets that Badius stopt num Father du Moulinet foigets that Badius itopt (n) unefome considerable time at Lyons, before he came to vill OrParis See the Remark H Mr Chevillier has (h) final of prov'd against that Father, That Printing in France did not begin with Gothick Letters, and that they in Paris, Printed in Roman Letters before Badius stime And p 54 has the this Min (i) made a great number of Editi- (i) Ibid ons in good Letter He made [everal al]o in Gothick

(B) A good number of Classick Authors] Valerius

Andreas gives a (k) List of them, wherein Horace,

Persius, Terence, Juveneus, Theocritus, Sallust, I alerius Maximus, Quintilian, Aulus Gellius, and feveral Treatiles of Cicero appear The List of Swerting is more (1) ample, Ovid and Seneca's Tragedies appear in it

(C) Some Books of his making | Valerius Andreas mentions theie following Pfalterium B Maria Epigrammatum liber Navicula stultarum mulierum De grammatica De conscribendis epistolis Vita Tho-

(D) If his Domestick Cares] Liasmus speaks somewhat freely of it, (m) Necinfeliciter omnino cessit conatus Badio, adest illi facilitae non indosta, felicius tamen coffurus nisi curæ domesticæ, reique parandæ studium interrupissent otium illud Musis amicum hujus laudis candidato necessarium He expresses himself to the same purpose in one of his Letters (n) Aliisliberum erit de Badio judicare quod volunt, ego semper illum habui in corum numero quorum nec eruditionem, nec ingenium, nec eloquentiam possis contemnere tametsi non dissimulo ellum longe majorim fuisse futurum, si fortuna benignior 73 otium ac tranquilitatem studiorum suppeditasset Brixi- (n) The us after having given a very mean Idea of Badius, 28th of the says, He studied much more for Gain, than to be- 2-th Book, come Eloquent (o) Scio Badium non effe pror/us une Lioqueit (0) Stie Baaium non eije prorjus aμασον Verum qualis qualis est talcm se certe hominibus nostris hactenus probavit, ut quottes de doctis sermo inter doctos incidit de Badio plane us as λόχ. Illi, quod non in siciaris, quassus tantum non eloquentia scopus est (E) The bustle that was made at Paiss against that

Comparison | Brivius, who was a Friend of Erasmus, stolas E-wrote to him on that Subject, the Letter whereof rasmi 27 I have quoted some words. He told him plainly, 1 22 pag. That the learned Men of Paris were angry to see 1166 that in some manner Badius was preferr'd before Budeus Quo major indignatio nostrorum omnium animes subst, quod hac in opin one, justa de causa quum sint, existiment illum abs te non tansum Badio collatum, sed Sum animos a tu st side abalenarit, eb id quod existi-Nnn2

* Rocoles r) of Cal-† The 21th Junuary, # Morera to call it a House The Author of the word Municipied of the 1684 pm (k) Commentarii familiares cumfcruntur in Horatium Haccum, & \mathbf{V} aler Andreas Bibl Belg p 589 (l) Swert in Athen Belg (m) In C1ceroniano, p m 1173 (e) In einter epi-

(f) See du Mau-Tier Says concerning the last will of Cerifantes Holland, us in Vi-Elos qui has non videant, & fi Vidici Vau-Privas Biblioth k rauc P 237 † Be/a Hift of the Churches , 16p 149 Ant I 1yroi isthic gia ettim vennor effe qui vocifirentur

ficulis icm di-

Fraim Fpift 28 1 22 pag

our maledicis ver-gnam cx-istiment

1172 (b)I rafm

cpift 72

1 20 pag

1030 Ubi fupra (d) It is the 23th. 1 ttu of th _5th Book, [$375 (e) Sc 11 Caille, H flory of Printing , 74 In the (f) Che- Man vill ubi the De tup p 138

(b) You may read it in licaille ubi tup p g
(1) Rocoles, 111 H flory &

131

Friend of

Badius

Du Ver- Death in the Year (F) 1926 are mistaken He was burthen'd with a great Family, and it is find in his Lpitaph, That it is likely he might have produc'd as many Children as Books, if he had (G) let himself as soon to one of those Functions as to the other; but that he had been an Author a long time when he angag'd himself in Matrimony 1 would not warrant that this (H) was exactly true. It is Son Conradus BADIUS was born in Paris, and settled himself at Geneva. He was early true as a very good Protestant, and show dut by the Alcoran of the Cordeliers. He true the first Book of it, and compiled the second, and adorn'd both with Marginal these which are very biting. He was both a Printer and an Author, and would sometimes make French Verses. He made some against * Nostradamus. Three of his (1) Sisters were marry d to two samples of what a Modern Author marry. mous l'inters. I have been ignorant for some time of what a Modern Author meant, mous Printers I have been ignorant for foince time of what a system of the constant is a finite of what a system of the printing, who feems to accuse (K) Henry Stephens for having Censur'd Jodocus Badius I have nothing to say about one Conradus BADIUS, who dy'd † with all his Family of the Printing, Plague at Orleans, where he was Minister in the Year 1562, and who was a Friend printing of Theodorus Beza from his Youth ||

Mr Chevillier, who collected several Elogies of Jodocus Badius, affects that he bad been Professor of Literature in the University of Paris, and afterwards in the City of Lyons, where he read the Poets in Publick +

BAGNI

dent, ma- mant Budwum eum Badio commiffum perinde effe acfi guis Achillem cum Thersite committeret Erasmus justify d himself, and made it appear, that he had yould himself, and made it appear, that he had very plunly shewed Budeus's Superiority He wonder'd (a) they had not perceiv'd it in France, or if they had perceiv'd it, how they came to make such a stir, and compose so many Satylical Verses I hat Business was so much talk'd of, that it came I hat Businels was so much talk'd of, that it came to the lars of Francis I (1) Si verus est rumor sic fremunt amici Budæi, quasti nineris patris ac matris illius imminizerim. Clamant & Calum' o terra' Budæin cum Badio? Clamant me invidere gloriæ Budæin, meque multis epigrammatiis dilacerant. Caula delata est & ad Regis cognitionem. Volenti cognosciere distinti causam, distum est Budæum me tarasse in lace aundam est me estrassem au estile quadistam. loco quodam, eo me offensum quessisse vindictam, eunque cum Badio contulisse If Erasmus design'd to honoui Badius by that Comparison, he was very much mistaken, for that poor Man was wounded to the Heart, every time that Complaints were mide of the Injustice done to Budaus It had been better for Badius if Erasmus had not thought of him The place was mended in the 2d Edition

(I) His Death in the Year 1526 are mistaken] Swer-tius (i) laid only, that he found that Badius had attain d to the Year 1526 This fignifies indeed that he did not know whether he had liv'd beyond that Year, but he pietended not to affirm, that he did not live longer Kong instead of making use of this Caution, affirms that Badius dy'd in the Year 1526 And others have faid it after him But Brixius & Letter, which I have quoted, was written in the Year 1528, and ipeaks of Badius as of a living Man Valerius Andreas lays nothing concerning the Death of that Man Moreri plac'd it about the Year 1529, or 1530 He is mistaken, for it is very well known, that Erasmus rejoyc'd in a Lettius Ath n ter of the (d) Month of September 1530 that the Belg p 490 news that was spread of the Death of Badius was relates this not true. And we have an Edition of the Fpistles Epitaph, as of Longolius made by Badius in the Year 1533 Gef-if it was net observes in his Bibliotheca, Printed in the Year made b) a 1545, that Badius had been dead about 10 Years He was not dead when the Book of Alphonsus a Cafro against Herefies was Printed at Paris, for Badi-Badius fro against Herefies was Printed at Paris, for Badius He should us was one of those that Printed it in the Year I was one of those that Printed it in the Year I was one of those that Printed it in the Year I was one of those that Printed it in the Year I was one of those that Printed it in the Year I was one for the first page of Peter Lombard in Epistoby the law Pauli contains this, (f) pro haredibus Jodeci Ba-Grand-son dir 1535 Mense December 1535

[G) As many Children as Books, if he had set himself mark as soon I This Thought was the subject of the tollowing Epistoby (g) that one Composed for himself the source of the sollowing Epistoby (g) that one Composed for himself the sollowing Epistoby (g) that one Composed for himself the sollowing Epistoby (g) that one Composed for himself the sollowing Epistoby (g) that one Composed for himself the sollowing Epistoby (g) that one Composed for himself the sollowing Epistoby (g) that one Composed for himself the sollowing Epistoby (g) that one Composed for himself the sollowing Epistoby (g) that the sollowing Epistoby (g) the sollowing Epistoby

lowing Epitaph (g) that one Compos d for him

Hic, liberorum plurimorum qui parens, Parens librorum plurimorum qui fuit, Situs Jodocus Badius est Aicenlius Plures fuerunt liberis tamen libri, Quod sam sinescens capit illus gignere,

A are florens capit has quad edere

This is not the Lpitaph that is to be seen (h) on Helory of This is not the Lpitaph that is to be ieen (b) on Col nj, the 1 omb of jodocus Badius in the Charnel-House of the Collegiate Church of St. Benedist at Paris, (k) pag 5 where he () was bury'd If we may rely upon the fact I puph he follow'd the Maxim of most of the I cained that is, he marry'd late. See the Book (k) intituded tilesiana

(H) Wirrant it to was exactly true. The Sieur de la Californi keyn a doubt of the tells us (l) That

., dela (a fem keen choubt of it, he tells us (1) That Badius at his return from Italy taught several Gentlemen in Lyons, and Compos'd and Printed a great many good Books at the House of John Trechsel, Printer at Lyons, whose Daughter Thelif Trechsel he marry'd That Author goes on thus, It was to him that the Learned Robert Gaguin the twentieth General of the Order of the Trinitarians, who knew his Mit and Capacity for the Correcting of the Press, wrote to Print his Works, as appears by the Letter which that General directed to him, which is before his Epistles in Quito in the Year 1498, which oblig d Badius to go to Paris about the Tear 1498, which oblig a Badius to go to Paris about the Tear 1499, or 1500 after the Death of his Father-in-law, both to teach the Greek Tongue there, and to reftore the Art of Printing, which began to decline It appears from this Pullage, that Badius was a marry'd man in 1500. He was then but 38 Years of therefore it cannot be faid that he defer difference till he was old, jam fenestens capit films hisginere. And yet his Grandion Henry Stephens, affecting from the for Henry Stephens (m) is the Author of phis pagignere And yet his Grandion Henry Stephens, afhrms it for Henry Stephens (m) is the Author of phiis pathat Latin Lpitiph, and of a Greek Epitaph that runs on the same Thought Mr Almeloveen has puthe fame Thought Mr Almeloveen has puthe fame Thought Mr Almeloveen has puthe fame Thought Mr Almeloveen has publish'd both of them, with another of the same Author in Latin, in his Curious Dissertation De vitis Stephanoi um

(1) Were marry dest two jamous Printers] Catherine Badius a Daughter of Jamous was marry'd to Michael Vascosan (n) Perrette Badius, another Daughter of and her Jodocus, was the Wife of Robert Stephens (o), and her Sister Jane Badius (p) marry'd John de Roigny, who of the Mark of his Father-in-law, and fet the Prelum Ascensianum on his Editions for above eleveen de whether her Father had taught it her as Mr. d. vitis Stewhether her Father had taught it her, as Mr Almeloveen believes, (r) or whether she learnt it by much hearing People speak it in her Husband's House. Both these Opinions have their probability, those that are of the second Opinion may ground themselves on this, that a Sister of Henry

Learnt Latin
Henry Stephens, Daughter of Perrette Badius, learnt Latin without the assistance of a Grammar, and only by use Robert Stephens's House was always full of Pcople that spake nothing but Latin, so that the very Servant-Maids acquir'd the knowledge pographiof that Tongue See the Epistle Dedicates. Henry Stephens presix'd before Aulus Gellius, you'll find these words' directed to his Son monia you'll find these words' directed to his Son (n) La tua corum qua Latine dicebantur (nistrarius aliqui cabulum intermisseretur) haud difficilior erat intelligation (n) La quam si dista sermone Gallico sussentia qui de sitte sorore mea, amita autem tua, nomine Katharina (p) Ibid dicam? Illa quoque corum qua Latine dicuntur interpre-Robert Stephens's House was always full of fite forore mea, amita autem tua, nomine Katharine (p) Ibid dicam? Illa quoque corum qua Latine dicuntur interpretem non desiderat multa vero & ipsa eodem loquisermone potest, & quidem ita (licet nonnumquam impingat) ut ab omnibus intelligatur Unde illi hac Latine linguae cognitio? Artem certe Grammaticam haud magistram habuit, nec alius illi hac in re quam usus presvit He explains what he means by that use, which is, that the Printers and Correctors of Robert Stephens spoke nothing but Latin

(K) Seems to accuse Henry Stephens for having censur'd Jodocus Badius 1 was ignorant in this, by not understanding a French Period of the Sieur de la Caille but at last I think I have apprehended it That Period contains these words (s) "Here (s) La Caille is his Epitaph ielated by Henry Stephens in the ille, His Book which he compos'd de artis Typographica of Printing querimonia, printed by the same Stephens in 1699 ing, p querimonia, printed by the same Stiphens in 1569 ing, ?

Henr us Step ..nus, giæ ek bintiam nou Stephen's Book , De BAGNI (Fobs Francis) liv'd in the XVIIth Century. He was raised to the Employs than Morers mentions, as will appear by our Remarks One thing has de Riche been faid of him in the Sorbersane B) which is false in divers manners He had hear?

(C) a ann 16.0

(4) a ann 16,0

(b) Mr Almeloveen, who lends his Books So obligingly, kindnes (to Send methe Artis ty pographi cæ queri-

(c) Bail-

tom I

p 119

monia,

"wherein are several Complaints address to the faid Badius, both in Greek and Latin." At first I believ'd they meant that Henry Stephens reproach'd Badius very much, both in Greek and Latin, for having spoil'd the Trade But considering that he was his Grandson, and finding nothing against Badius in the Querimonia Artis Typographica which Mr Almeloveen has publish'd, I remain'd much in suspence Mr Almeloveen having assured me that he had left out not having assured me that he had left out not have period over again, and then I apprehended that these words, both in Greek and Latin, ought perhaps to be referred not to Complaints, but to Epitaph At last I have been able to consult that (b) same Work of Henry Stephens, I found in it, is, A Preface in prose against the Ignorance of Printers 2dly, A Poem wherein Printing is introduc'd, complaining of its decay 3dly, The Epitaph both in Greek and Latin, or in Latin only, of some learn'd Printers, but I found neither Complaints against Badius, nor any address'd to him, that Passage of the Sieur la Gaille is a Riddle to me, if it is not a mistake Is it to be wonder'd at that dead Languages, with the many Transpositions that are allowed them. should be wonder'd at that dead Languages, with the many Transpositions that are allow d them, should be fo oblicute to us, does not our own cast us into Darkness when we go from the natural Order of Words? (A) Which it will not be amissto observe] He says, if. That Cardinal Bagni was of the House of the Counts de Guidi. This is to pretend that the Name of his Family was de Guidi. But he should not have the parated the Name of Guidi, from that of Basis at a Balneo. Naudé never divides them 2dly, That he was Born the 4th of Offober, 1573. I his does not agree with an Author (c) whose exactness can a far more certain Security than Mayer. That does not agree with an Author (1) whole exactness is a far more certain Security than Mover! That Author places the Death of Cardinal Bagns on the 24th of July, 1641, and makes him 76 Years old So that consequently he was Born in the Year 1565 3dly, That Clement VIII sent Bay into France, to Congratulate Henry IV on his riage with Mary de Midicus It is not so Morers in not understand Thomassin, whom he quoted He might read in that Author that Cardinal Aldobs and m, Legate of Clement VIII in France, as well on the account of the Descartes ment VIII in France, as well on the account of the Marriage of Henry IV as of the Peace with Savoy, had John Francis Bagni in his Retinue And in this the pretended Deputation of that Man confisted 4thly, Moreri multiplies Bagni's Nunciatures more than he ought to do He will have it that he was twice ought to do He will have it that he was twice fent Nuncio into France, once under Gregory XV and once under Urban VIII and that befides Gregory XV fent him Nuncio into Flanders Thomasin is fatisfied with saying, that Bagni was sent to Paris by Gregory XV in the Quality of Nuncio extraordinary, and that he went from Paris into Flanders to perform the Function there of Ordinary Flanders to perform the Function there of Ordinary Nuncio Gassendus says not so much of it as Thomasin's he says, that Bagni going to the Nunciature suffels pass through Parus, and saw there included that was to be seen Transsit subside tempt is to say, in the Month of suly, 1621)

memoratus supra Vicelegatus a Balneo, Pontiscus DESTINATUS in Flandriam, qui cum suffingularia quaque in urbe spesiare, sed tamen quass INCOGNITUS, commodum profesto convaluit Peireskius qui insum varie deduceret ad eruditos, ad Musaa, ad opera omnia rariora (d) I know that he was Nuncio in France, but it was at another time The same Gassendus mentioning the Acgusint si.

Men in the Year 1614, says this of our John Francus Men in the Year 1614, says this of our John Francus 1621

Bagni Unus suit Joannes Franciscus Vidius à Balneo, paracensis Archiepiscopus, & per ea tempora Avenionensis Vicelegatus Singularis enim deinceps necessitude interics suit done ille Avenione degit, seu cum est versus and principal successitude interics suit done ille Avenione degit, seu cum est versus and principal successitude interics suit done ille Avenione degit, seu cum est versus and principal successitude interics successitudes interics successitudes successitudes and principal successitudes interics successitudes successit Flanders to perform the Function there of Ordinary nensis Vicelegatus Singularis enim deinceps necessitude interiossis suu done ille Avenine degit, seu cum est versatus perillustris Nuncius tam apud principes Belgarum, quam apud Regem Christianissimum, seu postquam factus est Caidinalis rara ai spectata virtutis (e) It is most certain that Bagni wis twice Nuncio, for Naude, who was a long time hi Domestick Servant and Library-Keeper, speaks thus to him in the Dedication of his Coups d Etal "My LORD, feeing you are now at Rome enjoying the Honours that serve to reward your Deserts, and living in the Quict which the publick I unctions happily exercised in seven Governments, one Vicelegation, and "two Nunciatures have procur dyou, I did not think, &c" He was fent Nuncio to Bruffels by Gregory XV and into France by Urban VIII Thomasin and Morers are both in fault, they could not unfold the easiest matter in the World to repost it right It was in the Nunciature of France that Bagns was raised to the Cardinalship Gassendus (f) says, that in the Spring of the Year, 1631, he pass through Provence in his return to Rome, and that he went to see his old Friend Mr de Peiresc brought the learn'd Gabriel Naude along with him He continu'd to perform the Functions of Nuncio in Paris for above a Year, after his Llevation to the Cardinalship, and imploy d himself particucularly in pacifying the Differences between the Queen-Mother and Cardinal Richelicu (g) A Manuscript Memorial of Mr Braudrand, contains, 1st, That he was not made a Cardinal at the Commendation of France, though we are told so in the Hi-flory of the Ministry of Cardinal Richelicu, but ments by the Pope, as Nuncio of the Holy See, for tis what is often granted to those who are Nuncios in the Courts of Irance and Spain, and the Court of the Imperoradly, That there is a mistake in the words of Gassendus that I have quoted, accepto Parifies purpurato Pileo Romam redut "The Pope doth not fend the Red Hat to the Cardinals which he mikes, butthey are ob-liged to come to Rome and fetch it, for the Pope fends only the Calor by a Courier, and afterwards the Red Cap by one of his Chamberlains So that Cardinal Mazarine and Cardinal Richeliou never had the Red Hat, because they never went to Rome after their Promotion For these One hundred and twenty Years past none but the Cardinal Infant has had the Red Hat sent to him, "but that was a particular I avour granted upon the account of the King of Spain his Biother? All this is very curious, but nevertheless Mi Baudrand should not have found fault with Gassendur's words fince they don't fignifie that the Car-dinal receiv'd the Red Hat, they fignifie only that he receiv'd the Red Cap Gassendur uses the word Pileo and not Galero

(B) In the Sorberiana, which is falle in disers manners. It is pretended that he cited out at the fight of the Thirty-seven Volumes of the Councils, printed in the Louvre, I wonder that there should be still any Hereticks in Irance, can any Chissian from henceforth deny himself to be a Catholick? Sorbiere admires this I hought (h) Optime Cardinalus Banius in Gallia Nuncius, says he, dum 37 Vol Concil cerneret typis regiis impiessa afebat Miror unde jam in neret typis regiis impiessa asebat Miror unde jam in Gallia hæretici siant, quis enim h) pothessum Christianarum servans potess non esse catholicus? It is false that that Cardinal saw those Thirty-seven Volumes He died in the Year 1641, and that Ldition of the Councils came out in the Year 1644, but if he had said what is imputed to him, he would have spoken a very false Thought For there is nothing less proper for the Conversion of Hereticks than a Work of many Volumes, than Thirty-seven Volumes of the Councils Of Ten thousand Protestants there will scarce be found two that can read stants there will scarce be found two that can read a Page in that Edition of the Louver, and among those that understand Latin, the greatest part have neither the Inclination nor the Patience to undertake so vast a reading. The Inconveniency would not be taken away by Translations into the Vulgar Tongue, for where are the ignorant Persons that would not lose themselves in such a Sea as that? Without the Grace of GOD, and the power of Education, the reading of the Councils would make a great many more Unbelievers than Christians. There is no History that affords more matter of Scandal, nor a more odious Scene of Remark B. Passions, Intrigues, Lactions, Cabals, and Tricks, of the Arthan that of the Councils (1) Those that have time Negularian that stants there will scarce be found two that can read novo Cardinalis a iua legatione fun ctus, & ccepto Pariliis purpurato pileo Romam lid lo4 P 3 7 # 1 ann 1631 (e) Secthe

Hiftory of Richelieu ly Aubery Vol 1 p -64, & of Holland, 12

WHE THFR the Councils in .7 Volumes are able vert Hereticks

(h) Sorberrana of Hol-

281.

known by that Latiniz'd name,than by that of De Bay, which was his true

Name

Founder's Name γ 1 correct Valerius

Andreas

thus, for hisnumber C10 10 most ab-Surd fault of the Prin FEx Valer Andrea Biblioth

670

See the

(c) Baillet

Descartes

tom I p

(d) Id 1b pag 119,

(e) Ibid

pag 119 See also p 161 (f) Id 1b p 253, 254,

300, 301,

302 (g) Tom X p 179 ad ann 1624

Gazettes (b) Palav Histor Concil

Trident

1 15 c 7 (1) An-

Gratiani,

don tranflated by

Mr Flechier, p

m 158 (k) Pala-

VIC ib d

Life of Cardinal Commen-thony Maria

161

(C) a Brother, who was called the Marquis of B A G N I, and was General of the

Pope's Troops in the Valseline in the Year 1624

BAIUS * (Michael) Professor of Divinity at Louvein, was born at Melin in the Territory of Aeth, in the Year 1513 He raised himself so much above others by his Progress, and his prudent Conduct during his Studies at Louvain, that from the Station of a Scholar, he was promoted to that of Principal of the College of a Standonck. Having been three Years in that Office, he set himself to teach Philosophy, and, after having spent six Years in that Profession, he obtain the place of Principal of the Pope's College in the Year γ 1549 In the same Year he took his Degree of Licentiate in Divinity Two Years after he receiv'd his Doctor's Degree, and was made Regime Professor of the Scripture In 1563 he was one of the Divines that the King of Spain (A) sent from Louvisin to Trent He made himself admir'd in that Council He obtain'd the Deanry of St Peter at Louvain in the Year 1575 At the end of Three Years the Dignity of Preserver of the Privileges of the University was conferr'd upon him .

His Epitaph imports that he was Chancellor of the same University, and Inquisitor General in the Netherlands He was a very learned Man, and no less commendable for his good Manners, Piety and Modesty, than \(\zeta\) for his Parts and Learning He had read St Augustin's Works \(\text{† nine times}\) He composed several Works \((\beta\)) of Theology that favour'd || of that Reading, and which contain'd, as it was (C) pretended, a great number of Propositions, which Pope Pius V censur'd He Writ also some Books (D) of Controversie against those of the Protestant Religion He had so much (E) defe-

Belg pag that I have heard several times in the Mercuriales of Mr Menage A witty Man was quoted there, who when he heard fay, Such a one was Condemn'd in Such & See the Remark H a Council, said, It was a sign that he did not know how to Cabal so well as his Adversaries, or that he had not the support of the Secular Arm as they had Can those, † Swert in Athen Belg Val Andreas that know the Religion of Sorbiere, be well edified with his Optime?

(C) He had a Brother that was called the Marquis of Bagni] Mr Baillet (c) assures us, I hat that Marquis was the Brother of Cardinal John Francis Bagni, and that, having left the Sword, he advanc'd him-felf in Ecclesiastical Dignities to the Cardinalship, wherewith he was provided in the Year 1657 He had been Nuncio in France all the time of the Pontihad been Nuncio in France all the time of the Pontificate of Innocent X and the two first Tears of Alexander VII He died at Rome the 23th of August, 1663, aged 80 Tears (d) Mr Baillet thinks it likely that Mr Descartes went to see him in the Valteline He grounds his Conjecture on that Marquis's being addicted to the Study of Natural Philosophy (e) That which is certain, is, that Descartes was very well known to, and much respected by, Cardinal John Francis Bagni (f) The French Mercury says, (g) That the Marquis de Bagni, to whom his Holiness had given the Power of Commanding the Soldiers that were in the Valteline, was known to be a Partisan of Spain, descended from the Family of to be a Partisan of Spain, descended from the Family of the Colonna's, altogether Spanish, chief of the Gibe-

the Colonna's, altogether Spanish, chief of the Gibelins in Romagna, and who had always been a Pensionary of Spain, having accompanied the Constable Colonna as such in his Journey into Spain four Years ago

(A) That the King of Spain sent from Louvain to Trent] See in Cardinal Palavicini (h) all the Springs that retarded or advanced the Deputation of Michael Baius. The History of Commendon (1) past slightly, and with too much Flattery, over it, but that of the Council unravels all Commendon's Intrigues nearly, and gives him only what belongs quoting the Venetian trigues neatly, and gives him only what belongs to him That Nuncio being at Bruffels in the Year 1561, took notice of the Differences that had been at Louvain, because Baim and Hessels did not follow the common Road in the Doctrine of Free-will, of Good-works, and in some others Those two Doctors had kept filence a long time, in conde-fcention to those who advised them, but when they knew that at the folicitation of the Cordeliers the Sorbonne had censur'd Eighteen Propositions, and when they found themselves exhorted by their Disciples to maintain that Cause, they prepared themselves for it Commendon stopt that Pen-war, not by his fine Discourses, as Gratiani affirms, but because (k) the Letters which he writ occasion'd the Pope to give order to the Cardinal of Granvelle to impose filence

(B) He composed several Works of Theology] He publish'd some of them, the Titles whereof are these such as I find them in Valerius Andreas, De meritis operum libri II De prima hominus justitia & curtutibus impiorum libri II De sacramentis in genere contra Calvinum De forma baptismi. All those Tieatises were printed together at Louvain in the Year 1565. The next Year these following were printed there, De libro hominis arbitrio liber I De charitate, justicia & justificatione libri III De sa-criscio liber I De peccato originis liber I De indul-gentia liber I De oratione pro defunctis liber I De indul-

(C) Which contain'd, as it was pretended] I fay, as it was pretended, for the Question of Fact is not yet decided, and I see that Michael Baius is very far from decided, and I see that Michael Basus is very far from granting, that he taught what was imputed to him (1) In his (1) Notwithstanding, (1248 he) among those Propositions Letter to (m) there were some very different from our Sentiments, Cardinal others that we never maintain'd nor treated in any sense, Simonet-but all or at least most of 'em were turn'd and express'd ta apud in such a malicious manner, that the Expressions only Gery, Amight make them suffected, chiefly in the Opinion of those that had not studied those sorts of Ruestions. This is the Centhe usual Game of the ODIUM THEOLO-sures, pag GICUM. That Passion which has occasion'd a Proverh long ago, finds Heresies where ever it pleases. verb long ago, finds Herefies where-ever it pleases, it forges such artificial Extracts, and so proper to A ME-exasperate the People, that it transforms that which THOD is not so much as Heterodox, when it is consider'd of extrawith its Principles, Restrictions and Applications, Eting Prointo pernicious Herefies This Passion is conta- positions gious A Physician, who affects to set up for an out of a Informer only by a zealous Motive, finds himself Book that all on a sudden posses'd with a Secendotal Spirit, one would he brings in sophisticated Extracts, he divides what have cenhe ought to join, and joins what he ought to divide, sure at a propositions such a given as weally and he gives the Propositions such a turn as is able to suprize the Religion of the Judges The Physician Francis Blendel will soon afford us an Example of it. It is not the only Injustice that is observed in Persons that are possess with that Passion The duplicity of Weights and Measures is another Iniquity that accompanies them Desire Gordeliers another Iniquity that accompanies them Desire show'd to 'em to censure those that set 'em on, shew them Gardinal plainly the Justice of your Cause, and they will Graneither lend a deaf Ear to it, or pay you with Nonvelle, and sense It is then, that their Charity suffers all, which were and excuses all

(D) Some Books of Controverse around that it is the sense of the se and he gives the Propositions such a turn as is able

(D) Some Books of Controversie against those of the some to Protestant Religion] The same Valerius Andrews sup. Rosse plies us with the following Titles, Responsie and See the Aquastiones Phil Marnixii de Ecclesia Christi, & Jacra- pology for mento altaris, at Louvain, 1579 Apologia pro rethe Comfronsone contra objectiones ejusamento de veritate corporti sures, pag Christi in Eucharistia, at Louvain, 1581 Epistoda de 42, 643 statuum Inferiorus Germania unione cun su qui se desertores Romana Ecclesia vocant, & de juramento quod eorum jussu à Clero & Monachus exigitur, at Louvain and at Cologne, 1579 He writ alto a Letter de juramento sussi Duis elemania descriptione de puramento que ramento jussu Ducis Alenzonii Antwerpia in pratorio concepto & comprobato

cepto & comprobato

(E) He had so much descrence for the Pope's Consure To comment this Text well, I will make use of (a) Gery's the words of the Sieur Gery, Batchelor in Divinity Historical (a) Speaking of Baius, he says, In the time of that Apology pious and learned Doctor's Splender, and greatest Repufor the two tation, there appear'd a Bull against 76 Propositions, Consures of which the Solicitors of that Consure imputed all to him, Louvain though some of them were none of his, others were turn'd and of in a malicious manner to make them consurable, and the Bull it self acknowledged that some others might be added mith sending it to Louvain in the usual form in 1688

rence for the Pope's Censure, though he did not believe that he had taught any Heterodoxy, that he would not have the Books wherein it was pretended that the centur'd Piopositions were contain'd, to be Reprinted Valerius Andreas has committed (F) several Andreas in Biblioth Faults in speaking of that Censure We are promised a New Edition of Michael Bains 5 Works It will contain several Pieces that were never yet Printed. He that has collected them will illustrate it with many Theological and Historical Notes He has a compar'd the Editions of that Authors Works with the Manuscripts that are found in good Libraries There was a Report † that Michael Bains, to be revenged of the Jesus of the Censure of the Cens imploy'd all his Credit in Louvain to cause the Doctrines of Leonard Lessius to be cen-versities, fured there I ought not to pass over in silence that (G) some care was taken of his publish'd by

Honour Mr Gery

1570, but a second publication was made of it nine or ten Years after, and they affected to have it done by a Jesustin 1580, which the Society had without doubt sollicited to make a some of their Credit What did Baius do, and what did the Faculty? Nothing else but humbly to submit, and for Peace-sake, and the Edistication of the Faithful, to suppress all the Justifications and Explications which they might have made, and all that they could have represented Nevertheless it must not be believed that Basus with nothing for his Junot be believ'd that Boms with nothing for his Ju-flification His Letter to (b) Cardinal Simonetra proves the contrary, for he tets forth in it, that Dr John Heffels and himself put their Afranvelle certain Propositions which Cardinal de Granvelle had communicated to them, into that Cardinal's hands The Scotists forg'd those Propositions to cry down those two Doctors, and presented them to some dignified Persons, without either naming Hef-sels or Baius If I was ask'd why they would cry down those two Professors, I should answer, that it was because those Professors made use of such a Fasti of the University of Louvain
pag 366.

(c) Gery, the content and the explication of the Master of the Sentences, they endeavour'd to reduce the Study of Divinity to the
pag 366.

(d) It is quoted in the Basic and to the Writings of the ancient Faquoted in the Basic and the endeavour'd to reduce the Study of Divinity to the quoted in the Basic and the endeavour'd to reduce the Study of Divinity to the quoted in the Basic and the endeavour'd to reduce the Writings of the ancient Fadid the page 12 the study of Divinity to the quoted in the Basic and the explication of the Writings of the ancient Faquoted in the Circumstance of the Sentences, and to the Writings of the ancient Fadid the page 12 the Sentences,
and to the Writings of the ancient Fadid the page 12 the Sentences, they endeavour'd to reduce the Study of Divinity to the
pag 366.

This sentences,
they endeavour'd to reduce the Study of Divinity to the ancient Fadid the page 12 the Sentences,
they endeavour'd to reduce the Study of Divinity to the Augustin This did the page 12 the Sentences,
they endeavour'd to reduce the Study of Divinity to the ancient Fathere are the Writings of the ancient Fadid the page 12 the Sentences, they endeavour'd to reduce the Study of Divinity to the sentences,
they endeavour'd to reduce the Study of Divinity to the
sentences,
they endeavour'd to reduce the Study of Divinity to the
sentences,
they endeavour'd to reduce the Study of Divinity to the
sentences,
they endeavour'd to reduce the Study of Divinity to the
sentences,
they endeavour'd to reduce the Study of Divinity to the
sentences,
they endeavour'd to reduce the Study of Divinity to the
sentences,
they endeavour'd to reduce the Study of Divinity to the
sentences,
they endeavour'd to reduce the Study of Divinity to the
sentences,
they endeavour'd to reduce the Writings of the ancient Fathey endeavour'd to the Writings of the ancient Fathey endeavour'd to the Writings of the ancient Fathey endeavour'd to the Writings of the ancient Fathey miverfelle lid Foundations of the Scriptures And those persons imatom 14 gined that there was a design to reprimand and mark tom 14 gined that there was a design to reprimary una main p 198 as them, every time that any Body spoke extensise than they being print in any Lessures or Disputts, or whomever simething was ted at the taught different from that which they were used to read end of Ballin certain Authors Bails was not substited with that (d) Letter, but fent an Apology of his Sentiments to the Pope in the Year 1569

(F) Valerius Andreas has committed (e) foveral Faults] 1st, He reports it for a certainty, that Bull of Pius V against the Seventy-six Propositions, was confirm'd by Gregory XIII (f) In the new Edition of Basus it will appear that this is false 2dly, He asserts that most of those Seventy-six Propositions, were extrasted out of Basus is ty-fix Propositions were extracted out of Baius s Books The contrary will be shewn in the New Edition 3dly, He says only that the Bull of Pius V was publish'd at Louvain the 17th and 19th of April, 1570 But besides that he should have said the 16th of November, he has committed some Sins of Omisfion He does not fay that the Bull was publish'd either by the Pope's or Cardinal Granvelle's Order, but the Bull was of the Duke of Alba, and by that of the Bull of Mechlen It was an Irregularity, fixed the Pope had commission'd Cardinal Granule to notifie the Bull to the Divines of Louvain, fuch manner as should be most convenient. Mowever Valerius Andreas should have express who were those that order'd the Bull to be publish'd He ought also to have observed that on the Days which he sets down, I mean the 17th and 19th of April, Michael Baius exposed his Opinion in publick on the condemn'd Propositions The retractation on the condemn'd Propositions The retractation that was drawn from him was extorted by ill means The New Edition will treat of all these tangs 4thly, He says, That some credible Perfons told the Pope, that some Divines in Louvain were making an Apology for the condemn'd Propositions It shall be shewn by the Testimony of Toleras, that they were Impostors who reported those things to the Pope 5thly, He asserts, That He did Gregory XIII condemn'd the same Propositions and the same It will be made appear that this is false of the same It will be made appear that this is false of the same It will be made appear that this is false of the same It will be made appear that this is false of the same It will be made appear that this is false of the same It will be made appear that this is false of the same It will be made appear that this is false of the same It will be made appear that this is false of the same It will be made appear that this is false of the same It will be made appear that this is false of the same It will be made appear that this is false of the same It will be made appear that this is false of the same It will be made appear that this is false of the same It will be made appear that this is false of the same It will be made appear that this is false of the same It will be made appear that this is false of the same It will be made appear that this is false of the same It will be made appear that the same It will be same It will be made appear that the same It will be same It will 6shly, He places the Death of Bases on the 16th of December; he ought to have plac'd it (g) on the 16th of September. I don't repeat what I have already observ'd (b) concerning the wrong Chronology of his Printers I ought not to add to it the Tear 1551, which he marks out as the first of the Text of Bails's Royal Professorship of Divinity, he is not missaken, but the Lpitaph of Bails was not made title on that Date, fince it makes that Professorship to continue Forty Years, two Years more than the Calculation of Valerius Andreas requires That which might have induced many perfors to multiply the Bulls against Michael Baius, 18, that they imagine there is no difference between condemning a Doctrine, and causing the Condemnation that another made of that Doctrine to be published. In that Sense it may be truly said, that Gregory XIII condemn'd the Seventy-six Propositions, for he did not only make a Bull, wherein he inserted the Gonstitution of Pius V by declaring that he sound it in the Pope's Registers, and that an entire belief ought to be given to it, but he commanded also that his Bull should be solemnly publish'd at Louvain by the Jesuit Tolerus, in the Year 1580 Morillon, Great Vicar of Mechlin, notified that of Pius V to the Divines of Louvain in 1567. And in the Year 1570, he notified it to them again with a little more formality

(G) That some care was taken of his Honour in the another made of that Doctrine to be publish d

a little more formality
(G) That some care was taken of his Honour in the Bull of Pope Pius V] The Letter of Bains that his been quoted, adds, (1) That after many long Sollicitietions, which began from the Pontificate of Pius IV they obtain d at last a Bull of Pius V dated the ist of October, 1567 which condimns (k) Seventy-six Propositions It is true, that he who (1) brought the Bull by Commission from Cardinal Granvelle, laid publickly before every body in the Assembly of the Faculty before every body in the Assembly of the Faculty of Theology at Louvain, that the first Sixty of those Propositions were taken out of the Wittings of Bains, but the Bull did not express his Name, and moreover it softned the Note of the Condemnation, feeing it contain'd that part of those Piopofitions might receive a favourable Construction Cardinal Palavicini informs us, that to the end that Baius might be treated with the greater mildness, Pope Pius V was contented to cause his Bull to be privately notified to the University of Louvain by the Bishop of Mechlen, but that because the evil did not cease, Gregory XIII judg'd that it ought to be publish'd solemnly, and that he deputed his Preacher the Jesuit Francu toletus for that purpose, who did not oblige Baim to a publick Recantation, but left him without any difgrace (m) Hic studiet Baium remoure a pravis illis opinionibus, cohortatus, ut Sedis Apostolica judicio acquiesceret & perpaucis colloquis id obtinuit, privata illius retrastatione conientiu atque hoc patto Baius non solum illasus perstitit, sed ipsius etiam nomini verba Diplomatis pepercere, quin per illud ejus errores manum tam mitem experti sunt, ut vix viderentur errores, cum aliqua ex proscriptis positionibus, nullis certis in hac exceptione adnotatis, dicerentur posse sustineri in aliqua minus propria significa-tione We have observ'd in another place the Inconveniency of censuring a heap of Propositions in such a general and loose manner, that the word respective does not teach how to distinguish any thing The Bull of Pope Pins V had the same inconveniency, and besides, it made the Reader uncertain on another account, for, without denoting any thing by name, it affirm'd that among the condemn'd Propositions there were some which might be maintain'd in some manner. It was the least thing that the Bull permitted, and it could not be question'd but that it did permit it, but they might have pretended that it permitted much that was more. The placing of the words produc'd that increased perplexing Obscurity, a Comma was omitted by the other that omission was the case that the Terms were susceptible of two very different Constructions, a Comma and that was the occasion of much Contest

(1) Gerv. ubi supra (k) Palavicin ubi ınfra, Says vem Bais politi-(1) Gery

(m) Pala-Hiftor Concil Trident

A BULL of the Pape. wherein cing of obscurity

He did Biblio-Bel-

(b) 130

Sieur Go

ry, p 40 produces

part of it, which he translated from Latin, print-ted in the Fafti of us's Apolo-gy at Rou en, 1666

Studii

enfis (f) What Isay here and in the Lovanı-

Body of the Article,

concerning the new Edition of Baius, is bands, and which comes from a good

(e) In Fastis Academicis

↑ Swert nis Belg p 565 v Id ib s You'll find it in Sweitius ubi fupra 2 Valer Andr Bibl Belg P 4 1 Swert 16 p 355 † Vilei Andr 16 Id ibid

Sweit 135 Ofto berg (~) Quas quidem fententis ftiicto corain nobis ponderatas,quam quim nonnullæ aliquo pačto iustineu poifint in iigore & iciborum tenfu n' aucto-

11bus intento hrereticas, emontas, suspett is, temerarias.ic indilof is & in & pirten trum autouttte damna-Amour's Journal part 2 p 64 apud Biblioth univerialem tom 14 p 201 Secalfothe Difficulties Mr Steyacrt part 9 p 18 180 new Edition of Bai-

(a) Gery ubi tupia P 37,38 (6) Erant us s Works part 2 p

part 2

ieq

ambo & Icientia & exemplo vitæ conspi-

His last Will was a Proof of (H) his great Cha-Honour in the Bull of Pope Pius V rity, for he left all 6 his Estate to the Poor He founded a College at Louvain, under the protection of St Augustin r He died the 16th of September 1589, aged 77 Years, and was buried in the Pope's College, of which he had been a long time Principal His Nephew James B A 1 U S, Doctor of Divinity, caus'd a Monument to be built for him with 1 fine Inscription of That Nephew did tread in his Uncle's steps. He was made Doctor of Divinity in 5 the Year 1586. He was often deputed for the Affairs of the University of Louvain, and acquitted himself was of the Commissions. He was De in of St Peter's in the same City, and Royal † Professor of the Catechism He publish d (1) some Treatises He gave all his Estate (K) for the use of a College, and publish d (I) some Treatises

died the 5th || of October, 1614

The new Edition of (L) the Works of Baius, which I mention'd as a thing to come, has appear d fince the first Impression of this Dictionary, and has been Condemn'd at the Latin words (2) quoted in the Margin, and admire the Adventures and Hazards of Controversies. That which the Pagans call'd the Humour and Caprichio's of Fortune, is to be found in this Sanctuary the pretended infallible Oracle of Rome does not rectific the Diforder. After having put himself to much thouble to concert all the Syllable of the Arguer, he may fee that his Court or bles of his Answer, he may see that his Copist or his Secretary forgetting one Comma, will be the cause of the Damnation of many Persons Nay, the Comma fignifies nothing there, place it after possibilit, or not, the Equivocation remains still The practice of Writers, or Printers, does not prove that a Comma after possint does necessarily bind that which follows to the word damnamus You may see in the most exact Books an Hundred thousand Comma's plac'd as that which one should put after poffint, notwithstanding which, the words relate to the word possint, or to fuch another from fuch a Comma to the next

(H) His last Will was a Proof of his great Charity]
The Apologist of the Centures of Louvain and Douas opposes that Virtue of Michael Ba us to the pretended Miracles of Lessius (a) It is a great Miracle, lays he, to sec so much Humility accompanied with a great Wit and a profound Silence, that made Toletus bimfilf speak these words which are preserved in Lou-vain by Fradition Michaele Baio, nihil doctius, nihil humilius It is a great Miracle, to fee fuch a Submission and Patience as was scen in him, notwithpia aures flanding what past on his account concerning the Pope's oftensioBull It is a great Miracle, o see a Holy Priest, whose nem immany Studies and Occupations have not dried up his mittentes Piery, and who mele into Tiars at the Altar, being respective thoroughly affected n > the Sanctity of our Mysteries thoroughly affected n in Sanctity of our Mysteries Last's the agreet directed for the Poor that extends so far to them, as to desire no other Heirs, and which for their sakes stifles all Sentiments of Nepotism, how reasonable soewer they might be in him It is this that will make Baius always dear to Posterity, whereas a Reputation, which is only supported, by an Artiscial noise of Miracles and Wonders erounded on nothing, withers away at the end of some time, and vanishes into smooth Cardinal Palavicini reposts that Commendon giving an account to the reports that Commendon giving an account to the Caidinal of Maniua of the State in which he found the University of Louvain in the Year 1561, obferves to him that Michael Basus and John Heffelius had taught some Novelties on Free-will, and that they were two (b) Persons commendable for their Learning, and their good Lives, that Ruard Tapper had taken Umbrage at their Union, and thought that they valued their I earning too much, though they were otherways modest and virtuous, But, adds he, every one places his Vanity in the Trade which he exercises, and bears other things very easily (c) Compertum sibi esse Ruardum in Theologicis disciplinis preclarum dum is in illa Academia docens, in his duobus adbuc atate juvenili observaret infaustam conjunctionem ingenii & audacia, folitum esse dicere se nonnisi schisma ab illis expectare, & Theologicam lauream diu ipsis distulisse eos profecto videri scientia sua nimis amantes, quamvis alioqui probos & modestos & hac ille werba sapienter usurpavit digna qua à nobis repetantur, sed cujulque superbia in ea arte quam profitetur sita est,

(1) He publish'd some Treatises] A Panegyrick on the arrival of the Archduke Albert, and the Infanta of Spain A Catechilm, Sive infitutionum Christiana religionis libri IV and De venerabili Eucharistia Sacramento & Sacrificio Missa libri III (d)

lavic Hift Concil Trid 1 15 c 7 n 7 (c) Id ib n 9 (d) Ex Valer Andrea Bibl Belg pag 401

(R) He gave all his Estate for the use of a College] Swertius afferts, 1st, That James Bassus left the Administration of his Estate to his Nephew Giles Bassus, Doctor and Professor of Divinity, and that he charg'd him to imploy it totally in the Building of a College for young Persons of his Country 2dly, That Giles Bassus in performance of his Uncle's Will, caused a very sine College to be built, which is justly call'd BAIANUM 3dly, That (e) this College had been built but few Years, and he takes notice in what place But Aubertus Miraus, who notice in what place But Aubertus Miraus, who could not be ignorant of what Swertus had writ upon it, affirms only, (f) that he had read somewhere that James Baius had thought on the Foundation of a College where Students in Divinity should be entertain'd Thus People speak when they can only praise a Man for the good Intentions which an Author whom they have read ascribes to him For when they know that they have been perform'd, they take particular notice of it Aubertus Miraus did not know therefore of the Building of the Collegium Baianum Now this Ignorance of such a notorious Fact is something prodigious, in such a Man as he that knew the Spanish Nother-

lands, his own Country so well (L) The new Edition of the Works of Baius has appear'd] This sthe Title of it, Michaelis Baii celeberrimi in Lovaniensi Academia Theologi opera cum Bullis Pontissicum, & aliis ipsius causam spettantibus, jam primum ad Romanam Ecclesiam ab convitiis Protestantium, simul ac Arminianorum caterorumque hujusce temporis Pelagianorum imposturis vindicandum collecta, expurgata, & pluring squa hacterius deliturant opuscuculis autta fudio A P Theologi Coloniæ Agrippinæ sumptibus Balthasaris ab Egmont & sociorum M DC X(VI It is a prety large Quarto divided into two Parts The first contains six or seven Pieces of Baius that had never been publish'd, with those Writings of his that were already Printed. The second is almost wholly company of Writing
The second is almost wholly company of Writing ed The second is almost wholly compos' of Writings that appear for the first time, and which concern the Censure of some of Basus's Propositions One of those Writings is a Chronological Narrative of the Proceedings in that Cause, and was composed by him who has had the care of that Edition The Narrative informs us among other things, (g) that two Reasons ingag'd Michael Basus to form his method of teaching Divinity on the Scripture and on the Fathers, and chiefly on St Anguille. The first was, that the Protestants of the gustin The first was, that the Protestants of the Netherlands boasted to have the Scripture and the ancient Fathers on their side The second, that many (b) Catholick Writers leaving the Hypothesis of St Augustin, came very near that of the Pelagians Ruard Tapper, and Tiletan, Professors of Discourse at Laurana, diapprov'd that new method of vinity at Louvain, disapprov'd that new method of Baiss, as soon as they heard of it after their return from the Council in the Year 1552 And it is affirm'd that Ruard cried out one day, What Devil brought this Dostrine into our School in our Absence? It was the beginning of a furious Storm against Baiss, the Cordeliers chiefly let themselves loose against him The Guardians of Nivelle and Aeth, sent Eighteen Articles to the Faculty of Divinity at Paris in the Year 1560, and desir'd their Judgment upon them That University condema'd them all, some, to the number of three, as false and contrary to the Scripture, and the rest as Heretical Baiss made Remarks on that Censure, and had a mind to vinity at Louvain, disapprov'd that new method of made Remarks on that Censure, and had a mind to communicate them to some Doctor of Paru, but he gave over that design when he saw that (1) it was impossible for him to obtain a Copy of that Decree of the Serbonne He communicated them to the Provincial of the Cordeliers He shewed plainly,

(e) Obse-cutus patrını desigustiffimum(Col ab hinc paucis annıs exftruxit è regione Pædago-gu Falconis & Bai anum meritò indigetatur Ath Belg Pag 355 This Book Bas print-Year 1628

(f) De altero Collegio fludiofis adolefcentibus pariter pie pru-denterq, cogitaffe fcriptum. invenimus Aub Scriptoribus Sacuh XVI pag

(g) Oper Mich Bail part 2

(b) As Bartholomew Camerataus, Albert Pighius, Francis Horantius a Spanish Corde-Ruard Tapper

(1) Ibid p 193

Rome by the Congregation of the Index. It contains many instructive particularities, and several things that would carry the makers of Resections a great way. The Remark

(z) Id ib PME 194

(a) The censures of theUniverfities of Salamanca and Alcala mere not made till after the Death of Tiletan 16 p 195 (b) Ibid

(c) Ibid p 199

P 197

(d) Martin Richtovius Bishop of Ipres, Francis Sonnius Bishop of Boileduc, and Cornelius Bishop of Ghent

(e) Ibid D 200

which was visibly contained in St Augustin The Year following a List was presented to Cardinal Granvelle, of the Propositions extracted from the Writings of Baius, as it was pretended, yet (2) some of those Propositions were contrary to his Opinions, and he had never disputed for nor against some others, and most of them were drawn up so artificially, that the meer turn of the Expressions might make them suspected of Falsity or Heresie The Cardinal communicated them to Michael Baius, who made an Answer, that is not Heresie The Cardinal communicated them to Michael Basus, who made an Answer, that is not to be found The same Cardinal received Orders to impose Silence to the Parties, and by that means the Quarrel was over But it was renew'd in the Year 1564 for Tiletan endeavour'd to obtain that the Universities of Spain (a) should Censure's Writings, and he fent Lxtracts of them to Pous IV that they might be Condemn'd Other Extracts were added to those, and they were sent to Pous V who made a Bull the 1st of Offsber 1567, by which he Condemn'd 76 Proposition. October 1567 by which he Condemn d 76 Propositions That Bull was neither publish'd nor affix'd, but was only (b) read to Baiss, and to the Faculty of Theology of Louvain the 29th of December 1567 by Maximilian Morillon Vicar General of the Archbishop of Mechelen That Vicar General being requir'd to give a Copy of that Bull, refus'd it He declard, that he had Orders to prohibit all the Printed Books out of which it was faid that most of the 76 Propositions were extracted The Dean of the Faculty represented, That for great Reasons, it was very necessary that the Books of Basus should not be prohibited, neither were they That Do-ftor wrote to the Pope the 8th of fanuary 1569 and fent him an Apology, wherein he made it ap-That he had not taught the 76 Propositions, and that most of them were true in a certain sense, and Augustinian The Answer which the Pope made the 3d of May, the same Year, contain d an Exhortation to submit himself to the Censure Basus was extremely furpriz'd when that Letter Pius V was deliver'd to him, to iee himselfused like a Rebel that had incurr'd the punishment of Excommunication and of Irregularity

He requested Morillon to be absolv'd from that Punishment, but could not obtain it without abjuring the Articles which the Bull had conderan'd (c) Summopere autem miratus est Baius secum agi ac si suas vindicias & Apologiam scribendo Pontifici, in eum fuisset rebellus, ac Excommunicationis & Irregularitatis censuras incurrisset a quibus cum peteret absolvi, Morillonus absolutionis beneficium ei impertiri noluit, quin prius Articulos per Bullam confixos ejuraverit From that time every Body was fuster'd to inveigh against that Doctor as if he had really taught those 76 Articles, they exclaim'd against him in their Sermons and in their Lectures. He hole this Adversity very patiently. Lectures He boie this Adversity very patiently, but in the Year 1570 there were (d) three Bishops, who advis'd him to vindicate himself He explain'd himself then on these Matters in his Auditation of Direction of the Matters of the Matter tory of Divinity, and declar'd, That among those 76 Propositions, there were some that deserv'd to be condem'd, but he had never maintain d them that others were maliciously forg'd, that he did not admit of them in the bad sense which they might receive, tho in other respects they were ca pable of a sound Interpretation (e) Capit in Scholis Theologorum quid circa hujusmodi Articulos sen-Jansenjusetiret, cum multa humilitate ac modeftia aperire declarays nonnulles spferum effe falsos ac jure confixos, sed a se nunquam traditos alsos esse arte ac dolo confistos, qui pravum sensum pats possumt, quem nunquam tenuit, licet & in sano intelligi queque facile possens. In the Month of June of the same Year 1570 the Bishops of the Netherlands held a Council at Mechelin, wherein a the instance of the Duke of Alba, they engag'd themselves to cause the Bull of Pope Pius V to be solemnly publish'd at Lewisin, and to be sign'd by all the Protessors of Divinity The Commission for it was given to Merillon, who perform'd it the 16th rays nonnullos epforum esse falsos ac jure confixos, sed a by all the Proteitors of Divinity I he Commission for it was given to Morillon, who perform'd it the 16th of November the same Year Nevertheless he could not obtain the signing of the Formulary, whereby he requir'd the Approbation of the Censure of the 76 Propositions The Faculty of Divinity of Lewisis imagin'd that there was some hidden Design in it, and tho' they were assured by Letters from the Bishop of Boisleduc, and the Bishop of Gheat, that the Serbonne had censur'd that as Heretical that there was no design to surprize them, it does not appear, that ever they agreed to that Signature But the following Year (f) they made a Decree importing that the 76 Propositions should be held for Condemn'd, and that all the Members of the Faculty should abstain from Teaching them, and that all the Books, wherein they should be maintain'd, should be taken away from the Students in Divinity 'Tis to be observed, that Modents in Divinity Tis to be observed, that Morillon did not deliver any Copy of the Bull which he notify'd solemnly This gave occasion to some to maintain, that it was false, or that having been obtain'd by indirect means, it would be revok'd. Others maintain'd the contrary with great Heat Pope Gregory XIII being sollicited by the Spanish Ambassador, in his Master's Name, and by Father There in the Name of some Divines of Lowers. Toletus, in the Name of some Divines of Louvain, to bring a speedy remedy for the Disputes, made a Constitution the 28th of January 1579 wherein he inserted the Bull of Pius V, without approving or consirming the same, and without condemning the 76 Propositions 2-new, he was contented to fay. That he had found it in the Registers of his Predecessor and to order that Credit should be go Predecessor, and to order that Credit should be given to st. He sent the same Father Toletus to Louvain, in the Year 1580. That Jesust notify'd the Constitution of Gregory XIII there solemnly, and ask d Basus whether he condemn'd the 76 Articles, or not &c Basus answer'd, (g) I condemn them according to the intention of the Bull. All the Doctors, Each lates, Batchelors, &c declar'd, That they submitted themselves to that Bull. Toletus informed iubmitted themselves to that Bull Toletus inform'd tentio-Baius in some Conversation which he had with him, nem B that he was accus d of teaching his Disciples privately the Doctrins that Pius V had condemn'd Bains Bulla e deny'd it, and submitted himself to all manner of damnar ueny a it, and submitted himself to all manner of damnar Punishments, if he could legally be convicted of 1b p 206 what he was accus'd No Body going about to convince him of it, Toletus promised to give a good Testimony of him at the Court of Rome, and declar d that it was false that the reading of Basus's Writings was forbidden He propos'd to him the summing of a Engage that was very bear the Writings was forbidden He propos'd to him the figning of a Formulary that was very hard, but nevertheless, Baius did it to piocure some ease to himself He was oblig d to own under his Hand, that he had taught many of the 76 condemn'd Articles, and that they were condemn'd in the Sense that he had taken them (b) Ei prascripsie (Toletus) quandam Confessionis formulam, in qua fateri debuit mulitos ex damnatis 76 Articulis à se esse traditos, ac eo sensu proscriptos quo eos docuisset, cui formula optimus hic Dottor undique lacessitus ac calumniis obrutus, ut tandem pace aliqua fruaretur, subscripsie die vigessma quarta Martii hujus anni 1580 He wrote a Letter to the Pope, wherein he declar'd, the Calumnies that had been spread against him for the space of 12 Years concerning those Articles, and desir da Copy of the Bull of Pius V. This was granted him in June 1580 Father Horantius publish'd a Writing against him the same Year. He complain'd of two thing, one was that (i) Baius had answered Philip de Marnix too civilly (k) Conquerens 1 quòd ejus episola Marnix too civilly (k) Conquerens 1 quòd ejus episola Marnix too civilly (k) Conquerens 1 quòd ejus episola Marnix too civilly (k) Conquerens 1 quòd ejus episola Marnix too civilly (k) Conquerens 1 quòd ejus episola Marnix too civilly (k) Conquerens 1 quòd ejus episola Marnix too civilly (k) Conquerens 1 quòd ejus episola Marnix too civilly (k) Conquerens 1 quòd ejus episola Marnix too civilly (k) Conquerens 1 quòd ejus episola Marnix too civilly (k) Conquerens 1 quòd ejus episola Marnix too civilly (k) Conquerens 1 quòd ejus episola Marnix too civilly (k) Conquerens 1 quòd ejus episola Marnix too civilly (k) Conquerens 1 quòd ejus episola Marnix too civilly (k) Conquerens 1 quòd ejus episola Marnix too civilly (k) Conquerens 1 quòd ejus episola Marnix too civilly (k) Conquerens 1 quòd ejus episola Marnix too civilly (k) Conquerens 1 quòd ejus episola esta di tibid pag 208 (k) Id ib Compare this Man publiche pag 208 (k) Id ib Compare this Man publiche pag 208 (k) Id ib Compare this Man publiche pag 208 (k) Id ib Compare this Man publiche pag 208 (k) Id ib Compare this Man publiche pag 208 (k) Id ib Compare this Man publiche pag 208 (k) Id ib Compare thi that he had taught many of the 76 condemn'd Articles, and that they were condemn'd in the Sense

The Author of this Chronological Narrative takes much pains (n) to inform us, that Mr Lei-decker, and some other Ministers are in the wrong to conclude from that Bull of Pius V that the (1) Id ib Church of Rome has condemned the Dostrin of (m) Id ib St Augustin, and favours the new Pelagians It (n) Id ib validity of that Bull, the Knavery of those that P 210 & made the Extracts, the Negligence of that Pope, and the Precipitation wherewith he condemned that Propositions before he had examind the those Propositions before he had examind the Works from whence it was pretended that they had

(g) Damno fecundum innem Bullæ,& ficut Bulla cos ters to the Prelates of France

* Quil us cerat Bail nuperus editor which I shall make concerning that Edition contains a good Supplement to this Article. The Person that procur'd it, was very ill treated by Father Dez a Jesuit, an a Work compos'd on purpole to defend the Church of Rome against the injuries of that Man.

BALBUS This Name makes such a Figure in the Ancient Roman History, that it is strange that the (A) Historical Dictionaries should be taken so little notice of it If I endcayour to repair their Fault, it is chiefly with the ct to Lucius Cornelius BALBUS, who was Consul in the Year of Rome 714 and who he Nephew whom I shall monthly in the Text or in the Remarks, as occasion there. This Consul was born at He behav'd himself Valiantly in the Wars which the Romans made in Spain 2-† See Ci- gainst Sertorius, and against the Lusitanians, insomuch that Pompey being very well saccio in tisfy'd with his great Performances, declar'd him a Roman Citizen Lucius Gellius and (n Cornelsus, that were Confuls after him, made a Law importing, That all those whom Pompey had made Citizens of Rome, with the consent of the Council of War, bo & the should be confirm'd as such By this means Balbus enter'd fully into the Possession of the Freedom of a Roman Citizen † He took upon him the Prenoun of Lucius from one of those two (B) Consuls, and the Name of Cornelius from the other He was so

Oratione pro Corncho Ba!-Manucium & Nicoliı m Abrı-

(a) Ibid p 235

(b)Ibid p 229, 230

(c) ff de Reg Jur & 6 Decret eod

(d) Ibid P 242

had been taken, &c That fame Negligence appears also in that the (a) Rules of Grammar were not observed in that Bull It may be alledged, that Urlan VIII in his Bull against the Book of Jansemiss publish'd in the Year 1642 confirm'd the Bull of Piss V and that of Gregory XIII But the Author answers, That Urban VIII did not confirm those two Bulls but by supposing false Facts, and therefore that his Confirmation is void (b) Quandoquidem ergo Urbanus cas non confirmaverit, nisi supponen-do qua falsa sunt, er ista confirmatione nullum robur ac-cedit istis suorum Pradecessorum Constitutionibus quod e-nim in sua origine vitiosum ac nullius roboris est, ratihabitione non fit validum, vel, ut jura loquuntur, (c) Quod initio vitiosum est, non potest tractu temporis convalescere nec sirmatur tractu tempo-ris, quod jure ab initio non subsistir. That Pope temporis convalescere nec sirmatur trastu temporis, quod jure ab initio non subsistir. That Pope being deceiv'd by Francis Albizzi Assessor of the Holy Office, and Pensionary of the Jesuits, imagin'd that the Bull of Pius V had been attended with all the Formilities, and had been confirm'd by that of Gregory XIII. These were two false Suppositions, for Pius V did not cause his Bull to be assessor of Pius V did not cause his Bull to be affix d, and did not publish it formally in Rame, And as for Pope Gregory, he was fatisfy'd with saying, that he found it in the Registers of his Predecessor So then they made Urban VIII say a falsity, when they interted in his Bull, That the Articles condemn'd by Pius V had been Proscrib'd a-new by Gregory XIII and to deprive the People of the knowledge of that Imposture, care was taken to leave the Constitution of Gregory XIII out of the Bull of Urban VIII tho' the Bull of Pius V was inserted in it (d) Animadvertendum est quidem a Gregorio XIII constrains surface Pius V Constitutionem, articulosque in ea confixos denue suisse and confixed the proscribe and surface and surf Confitutionem, articulosque in ea confixos denuo suisse damnatos Verum han Urbani VIII Bulla aperte saisse ca saltem in parte convincitur, sicut & ab Joanne Sinnichio Lovaniensis Academia delegato Roma convicta est, ex ipsomet Gregorii XIII Diplomate, in quo nibil de ista confirmatione, aut de iterata hujusmodi articulorum dispunctione habetur Neautem id innotescerer, Albizzius, Jesuitarum stipendiarius, qui Bullam Urbani VIII conscripsit, in ca quidem Pii V Bullam integram inscruit, sed non Gregorii XIII Constitutionem, en qua singulis patuisset ejus mendacium, & quam falso in Bulla Urbani dicatur Pii V Bulla à Gregorio XIII confirmata, proscriptique in ea articuli, iterum a Gregorio XIII confirmata, proscriptique in ea articuli, iterum a Gregorio XIII prohibiti cum Gregorius XIII duntaxat testificictur tenorem Bulla quam inscrit, esse plane conforment tenori Bulla quam in Pii V registro invenit, or isti tenori cam sidim adhibendam, qua institu Bulla protographo debetur All this is much fittered to the Grands that creen into the Condemnation of Back. Frauds that creep into the Condemnation of Books, than to confute Mr Leidecker, for in short, for one Roman-Catholick that believes Baim to be innocent, there are above a thousand that believe him rightthere are above a thousand that believe him rightly condemn'd, and therefore the Church of Rome may with much likelihood be accus'd of holding that Doctor's Opinions for Heretical that are most agreeable to St Augustin's Doctrine This ought to make the Fate of some Men to be pity'd Tho' Pussion Irregularity and Injustice, appear manifestly in the Proceedings that are us'd against them, were they are in the opinions according to the One yer they ue in the wrong, according to the Opinion of the greatest number A Judgment against their Doctiin, is sufficient to keep up the Prejudices of the Publick An Adversary will enjoy the fruit of his Frauds and Intrigues, he will confiantly take advantage of the Folly of the People, who generally presume in favour of Tribunals

A great (e) Work of Basus is promised, if this new Edition goes off the Basus is promised, if this new Edition goes off the Basus is promised, if this Explication of David's test, and his Explication of David's test, and his Explication of David's test, and the Historical Distinance have taken so little notice of it. They are prodigiously barren on the word Balbus Charles Stephens takes notice that it was the Sirname of the Atilia, and that the first of that I amily who was call'd Balbus, was call'd so of the Stephens takes notice that it was the Sirname of the Atilia, and that the first of that I amily who was call'd Balbus, was call'd so of the Stephens takes notice that it was the Sirname of the Atilia, and that the first of that I amily who was call'd Balbus, was call'd so of the Stephens takes notice that it was the Sirname of the Atilia, and that the first of that I amily who was call'd Balbus, was call'd so of the Stephens takes notice that it was the Sirname of the Atilia, and that the first of that I amily who was call'd Balbus, was call'd so of the Stephens takes notice that it was the Sirname of the Atilia, and that the first of that I amily who was call'd Balbus, was call'd so of the Stephens takes notice that it was the Sirname of the Atilia, and that the first of that I amily who was call'd Balbus, was call'd so of the Stephens takes notice that it was the Sirname of the Atilia, and that the first of that I amily who was call'd Balbus, was call'd so of the Stephens takes notice that it was the Sirname of the Atilia, and that the first of the Atilia so of the Stephens takes notice that it was the Sirname of the Atilia so of the Stephens takes notice that it was the Sirname of the Atilia so of the Stephens takes notice that it was the Sirname of the Atilia so of the Stephens takes notice that it was the Sirname trys fo many Persons are call d White, Black, & And since there was an (f) Emperor of the and another Emperor (g) of the West, that call'd by the Sirname of Balbus, or Stammerer, cause they had that desect of Speech, Why may it not be believ'd that in the time of the Roman-Common-wealth a like desect introduc'd that Sirname in feveral Illustrious Families? It is not therefore for this that Charles Stevens deferves to be Criticiz'd, but because he took the Ailir for the Accis, or Aris, and because he emission'd himself so, that he feems to tay, that the Ailir had no other Sirname but that Yet there have an some Reguls, Serrani, and Calatini among them Nay, there was one C. Atilius Balbus Conful in the Year of Rome 508, and 518, which is nerhous the series of Charles Seaton's Paragraphs. Balbus Conful in the Year of Rome 508, and 518, which is perhaps the cause of Charles Stephens's Error Mr Lloyd ought to have been satisfy d with correcting that Article, but he thought it fitter wholly to suppress it, in smiration of those Chyrurgions, who instead of curing a Wound, cut off the whole Limb Or like those Disputants that cut the knot of an Objection, when they find themselves almost in Aexander's Condition with respect to the Gordian Knot Mr Hosman neither cur d nor cut, but retain'd the Article as he found cur d nor cut, but retain'd the Article ashe found it in Charles Stephens

It in Charles Stephens

(B) He took upon him the Prenoun of Lucius from one of these two Consuls] It was the Custom of Romethose who obtain'd the Freedom took upon the Name of him that procur'd them that Ho It is for that Reason that the Historian Theopand his Posterity bore the Name of Pompey I be ask'd, Why them did not Cornelius Balbus take the Name of Pompey upon him? My Answis, Because he would rather ground his Right of Law, than on the Kindness of that General The Law which I speak of, is that which the Consuls L Gellius, and Cornelius made with the Advice Law which I speak of, is that which the Consuls

L Gellius, and On Cornelius made with the Advice of the Senate, in the Year of Rome 682 If Imported, that all those on whom Pompey had conferr'd the Freedom of Rome with the Consent of the Council of War, should be reputed Citical zens of Rome Nascitur, Judices, cause Cornelius as ea lege quam L Gellius, Cn Cornelius ex Senatus sententia tulerunt, qua lege videmus satis est santium, uti cives Romani sint 11, ques Cn Pompeius de confilis sententia suguilatim civitate donaverst (b) Ballius looking upon those two Consuls as the true Authors of the Honour which he enjoy'd, took the Prenoun Lucius from the one, and the Name Cornelius from the other This is much more likeiy,

The ORI-GINAL of the Sirname Bal-but U.S. ther Da. VC IT right to the Atilia (f) Viz Michael II of that name, who was Emperour Constantinople from the Year 820 (g) It was Lewis III of that Name who was also King of France and who dred 12 879

WHAT пате those that k obraun'd the Ro-man Free-mom gave felves

(b) Cice-ro Orat, proP-11-

much esteem'd in Rome, that he had the Friendship of the greatest Heads of the State, as Pompey, Crasses, Casses and Cicero, and was Adopted by Theophanes, who was very adapticularly belov'd and consider'd by Pompey It is by reason of that Adoption, that (C) Capstolinus 4 calls him Balbus Cornelius Theophanes, when he says, that the Emperor Balbunus affirm'd, that he was descended from him The Prosperity of Balbus drew Lino Engages upon him that Betting a Law Size and the balbus have been been said to the State of Size Cicero as the said that the said the said that the Enemies upon him that begun a Law-fuit against him about his Freedom Crassus, See Ciperos, and Cicero pleaded his Cause, and gain'd it. He found himself much perplex'd during the War between Casar and Pompey, tor he had great Obligations to both the appears that he gave the preference to Casar s, but in such manner that he endeanes to the control of vour'd to bring Matters to a Reconciliation Velleius Paterculus notes γ it as a great Temerity, that Balbus was so bold as to go to Pompey's Camp to confer with the Consul Remark G. Lentulus, who was uncertain at what Price he should sell himself. It was by that means γ Lib 2 (as he goes on) that Balbus, tho' a Spaniard, open'd his way for the Triumph, the cap 51 Pontificate, and the Consulship. In effect Pliny observes that Balbus was made Consulship. And that he was the first Stranger σ that obtain d that Dignity, but as for the Honour Lib 5 vour'd to bring Matters to a Reconciliation Velleius Paterculus notes y it as a great Teof a Triumph, he says it was another Cornelius Balbus, a Nophew of this, that obtain d that Dignity, but as for the Flohoui of a Triumph, he says it was another Cornelius Balbus, a Nophew of this, that obtain d that the thing that the the thing that the Unit of all Strangers were for Rich, that the Unit of the same of the two Cornelius Balbus were for Rich, that the Unit of the same of the same of the the the Nophew of the same of the

ly, than what (a) Manutius says, That the Balbus had been made a Roman Catizen by Pompey, yet he mae nevertheless oblig d for that Degree to L Cornelius Lentulus, of whem he berton d the Prenoun and the Name according to that Custom He conjectures also, Name according to that Custom He conjectures also, that this L Cornelius Lentulus is the same who was Consul the first Year of the Civil War, that is to say, in the 704 Year of Rome We learn from hence, that Cardinal Baronius (b) made too long an enumeration of Titus's I avours to Josephus, when he notes particularly that besides the Right of a Citizen, he also conferr d the Name of the Family Flavia upon him For in the first place, it was (c) Vespasian and not Titus that made him a Citizen, and after that the Name Flavius came in of course

(a) Ma-

nut in ar-gumento Orat pro Cornel

Balbo See also

the Notes

Epiftles to

Atticus p 8 edit Græv

Where shere seems so be a fault in the Impression (b) Bason and ann 36 n 12 (c)Joseph an Vita

fua (d) Capit in Balbino p m 147 (e)Cafaub in hunc locum

Capitol

Hiftor Grac p

(f) Vof-

(g) Til-lem Hifto-

rx of the Emperour,

3 p m 489 (h) Strab

Lib 13 (1) Hunc

In ca CIVI-

tate in qua sit natus, hone-

Millimo loco na-tum esse concedis

Cicero pro Cornel Balbo

non pro-

Haftorv

al mit

on the osh Book of Cicero's > zen, and after that the Name Plavius came in or course

>
> (b) That Capitolinus calls him Balbus Cornelius Theophanes] I give you that Author's words (d) Familia wetustissima ut ipse (Balbinus) dicebat, a Balbo Cornelio Theophane originem ducens, qui per Cn Pompejum civitatem meruerat, quum esset sua patria nobilissimus, idemque historia seriptor Causaubon (e) imagines, that this concerns the Historian Theophanes, born at Mytelene in the Island Lesbor Vossius (f). magines, that this concerns the Historian Theophanes, born at Mytelene in the Island Lesbos Vossius (f), Mr de Tillemont (g), and several others, are of the same Opinion I believe they are mistaken, and it is better to find the adopted Son here than the Father Cornelius Balbus was the Son of Theophanes by Adoption The three Titles which Capitalian and the of belong to him and the lest only nes by Adoption The three Titles which Capita-linus made use of belong to him, and the last only belongs to Theophanes If I am told, that Balbus was not the noblest Gentleman of his Country, I answer, That Theophanes had not neither that Rank in M tylene It is true, that Strabo (h) affirms, that Theophanes had a share in the publick Offices, and that he made himself the most Illustrious of all the Greeks But this does not help us to confirm the words of Capitolinus Strabo doth not afcribe to him an antiquity of Family, nor a nobleness of Blood that rais'd him above all the other Mitylenians, and this is the Business in question in Capitolinus So then the Objection fignishes nothing, fince it would prove too much And it is enough for me, that Balbur's Enemies did not deny but that he was of a (s) very honourable Family It is likely, they would not acknowledge all that he afcrib'd to himfelf hereupon There is another Objection to, be fear'd Balbus was Conful, and Theophanus was not Whence comes it then that Capitolinus, who remark'd the Quality of Historian, forgot that of Conful, altogether more proper than the other to fet off the Nobility of Balbinus? I answer, That Capitolinus is not a Man from whom much Accuracy and Judgment is to be expected. The worst Capitolinus is not a Man from whom much Accuracy and Judgment is to be expected. The worst that may come of it, would be to say, That he apply'd Balbinus's pretensions wrong, and that he thought that Cornelinu Balbin Theophanes from whom that Emperor said he was descended, was the same Theophanes of the Island of Lesbes, whose chief Glory was that of having been an Historian. I would not absolutely reject this Conjecture, Men of better parts than Capitolinus might have taken the one for the other in that place, but I had rather say, he knew that Balbus the Gaditan was Author of an he knew that Balbus the Gaditan was Author of an

(D) Wherein Paterculus's Fault confifts | Thefe his Uncle are his words, (k) Tum Balbus Coinclius excedente & Sidonibumanam sidem temeritate ingrissicastra lostium se- us Apol-piusque cum Lentulo collocutus, Consule dubicante quanti linaris, se venderet, illus incrementis secit viam quibus non Hi- lib 9 spaniensis natus, sed Hispanus in triumphum & Pontiss- cpif 14 catum assurgeret, fieretque ex privato Consularis I hat 15, Balbus Cornelius being enter d at that time into the Enemies Camp by a Temerity that exceeds the belief of Man to gain the Conful Lentulus, nhose particular licendhe (k) Patero was, treated several times with him, nho was for some lib 2 time uncertain at what price he should set hinself By cap 5 that means, Balbus clard the way to his Advance. (1) This ment, whereby, the (1) he was not only born in Explicationan, as divers Romans and Italians were, but loss on of the of Natural Spaniards, he found the means to ruse him discence self in Rome to the Honour of a Triumph, and o the that Pi-Pontificate, and of a private Person, as he was, he betericulus came at last a Consul I shall iay nothing of that A-thion of Balbus, into which Ciciro gives us a great tween Hislight, and he may be (m) consulted in the places panus which I quote I will only dwell a little on Paterculus Either he siys nothing that s reasonable, or he panies affirms. That Balbus was rus d to the Consulship, (flustext Natural Spaniards, he found the means to raise him- d ffcrence affirms, That Balbus was rus d to the Confulfhip, as well as to the honour of a friumph, and to the faid fo) Dignity of Pontist, and it would be in van to de- feems as nut under pretence that he did not iny, & Con- good as sulatum, as it feems it had been more natural to say that of fo, to lignify that Balbus was made Conful It does Lipfius, not belong to me to regulate a Man's Expressions who by that ipoke so politely as that Author did, he had Itipanifome reasons for altering the turn of his Phrale, ensis unwhen he had a mind to denote the Confulship But derstood an he was mistaken in the thing, and confounded the Uncle's Honours with those of the Nephew That Balbus, who negociated with Lentulus in the beginning of the Civil War, is the Nephew, as appears Hispanus by Cicero's Letters, which I have quoted It is a natural Balbus the Nephew that I riumpht over the Gara- Spuniard mantes, and the first Stranger that was honoured (m) The with a Triumph, as (n) Pliny informs us, but side Epister that was honour'd with the Consulfnip, as the Book id same Pliny (o) informs us. Those two Balbus's immiliation were distinguished at Rome by the Title of Major tes, and that was given to the Uncle, and by that of Minor, the Contact was given to the Uncle, and by that of Minor, the Contact was given to the Uncle, and by that of Minor, the Contact was given to the Uncle, and by that of Minor, the Contact was given to the Nephew I wonder that (p) ment on Salmassus, who distinguished the Honours of both the 9th left of the 1st of t very well, did not take notice of this Fault of E/file of Paterculus

(E) Bound in a very strict Friendship with Pompo- book to nius Atticus] This cannot be deny'd, considering Atticus that Atticus having reloved to end his Life by (n) Plin Starving, fent (9) for his Son-in-law, and L. Cor- lib 5 melius Balbus, and Sentus Peduceus, to declare this cap 5 last Resolution to them I think, I have read in (0) Id lib one of (r) Cicero's Letters, That Balbus was one of one of (r) Cicero's Letters, That Balbus was one of 7 cap 43 those that ent often at Atticus s I able Which (p) Salwould prove that he was pleas d with hearing good mas in things read

(q) Cornel Nepos in ejus vita c 21 (r) I could not find the place, but I think to have read it in Cicero's Litters to Actions

linend- born there punielis (f his text derstood an Inhabitant of Spain, Spaniard , 2d Epiftle 1/ c 8th

Solin cap

*) Balthafar Bo-

nifacius, Histor

Judicra

lib 16 cap 16 ex Tila quello

leg Con-

(a) Lib 7 (b) De

Histor

Grac lib 1 cap 23 pag 148 (c) Lpift

14 / 9 (d) Suet in Caf c 81 1/1 quo-ted by Vos-fius, c 71

Moreil

(e) A Gellius 1

17 CAP 9

where he Says that

Tulius

writ to each other in Ciphers (f) Cicero ad Attic 1 9

epift 13
(g) Epift
Balbi ad

Ciceron

1 9 ad

Attic p 36 edit Grævii

Cæfar and Balbus

Friendship with Pomponius Atticus. Some Persons have confounded Cornelius Balbus (F) with Cornelius Gallus We are going to shew that Volsius (G) was in the wrong to Censure Savaro, that Lloyd and Hosman deserve to be a little (H) censured, that Paul (I) Manutius ought not altogether to be exempted from it, that Glandorpsus (K) multiply'd beings without necessity, that the distribution of the greater and lesser Consulhip

(F) Have confounded Cornelius Balbus with Cornelius Gallus] It is about a thing that brings no honour to his memory. They (*) make him dye in the veneral Act. Without doubt, the first origin of this Falsity is a fault of Impression. On Pliny's Authority (a) they had put Cornelius Gallus in the List of those that dy'd in that Condition, and the Printer placing a B for a G, was the cause that many have taken one Man for another I find this error in several Editions of Tiraquellus's Commentary on the Matrimonial Laws

(G) Vossius was in the wrong to censure Savaro)

Whilst he was taking notice of a Fault which he believed to have found in Savaro's Commentary on Sidonius Apollinaris, he (b) himself was mistaken. Savaro had affirm d, That Balbus, to whom (c) Sidonius Apollinaris ascribes the Journal of Julius Cafar's Life, is the same with Balbus Cornelius The-ophanes, of whom Julius Capitolinus says in the Life of Balbinus, That he had obtained the Roman Freedom by Pompey's Favour, and that moreover, he was the most Noble of his Fellow Citizens, and an Historian Vollius retutes this Pretention of Savaro, 1st Because Balbus Author of the Journal, was an intimate Friend of Julius Casar, as appears by (d) Suetonius, and by (e) Aulus Gellius, whereas Theophanes was an intimate Friend of Pompey, and it was accounted a Clime in his Posterity, as Tacitus observes in the 6th Book of his Annals 2 Because Theophanes being of Lesbes wiit in Greek, and Balbus did live at

Rome and wrote in Latin Would I be too Critical, I could say against these Reasons, ist That the same Balbus that was one of Cafar's intimate Friends, was one of Pombey's good Friends, and fo far honoured with his Privacy, that Pompey's other (f) Friends were jealous of it.

It is true, that the tye that was then between Pompey and Cafar having permitted Balbus to cultivate the I nendfip of the latter, without failing to what he ow'd the other, it was found at last that Cafar : Tavours were fuperior to those of Pompey

Nevertheles Balbus obtain'd (g) leave of Cafar not to tolking here. to follow him against Pompey, and retir'd to Rome during the Civil War It is true also, that he was (afar's Agent there, and that by endeavouring to bring Matters to an Agreement, he did not appear altogether free from Partiality But after all, it is not lufficient, in order to make a just opposition between Balbus and Ibeophanes, to lay on the one fide, as Succonius does, That Balbus was an intimate Friend of Julius Casa, and with Aulus Gellius, that Balbus was one of Casar's Agents at Rome during his Ablence, and to fay on the other fide with Tatimite I riends, and that Tiberius imputed it for a Crime to Theophanes's Posterity For considering that Empelor's cross Humour, he might have persecuted a Family, under pretence that it had obtain'd the Roman I reedom by Pompey's Favour Now this would be true in a literal fense as to Theophanes, tho' he should be confounded with Cornelius Balbus, seeing it is not only certain that Pompey conferr'd that i reedom upon him, but also that he pleaded for him when they brought it into question, and loaded him with Kindnesses So that Vossius's firm Reason is not good I might say in the second place that the Theophanes, whom Vossius means, liv'd at Rome as well as Balbus, and that because some Romans Rome as well as Balbus, and that because some Romans have written Histories in Greek, it does not follow that Balbus is not Theophanes, because Theophanes with in Greek Nay, how do we know, whether the Balbus in question is not the Cornelius Balbus, of whom (b) Macrobius quotes the 18 Book of the h. Nation 2 Similar does not doubt it (s)

But without trifling on Disputes that might be chaig d with too rigorous a precision, See here the words Vossius imagin'd that Savare confounded Cornel us Balbus with Theophanes born in the Island of Leslos and Author of an History of Michridates's War But he has not done it He only confoundable with the confoundable ed him with the Theophanes mention'd by Capitolinus, and who differs very much from him of Lesbos, tho'he has that common with him, to have also icceiv'dhis Freedom of Rome from Pompey there is nothing more reasonable than to take the

Theophage Conicions for the Cornelius Balbus of Succession for the Balbus of Sidenius Apollinary, for it is thain, that the fame Cornelius Balbus born at Cadiz, and honour'd with the Freedom of Reme by Pempey, was by the Recommendation of the fame Pempey Adopted by (k) Theophanes of Lelbes after which, according to Custom, he nam'd himfelf Lucius Cornelius Balbus Theophanes, as Paul Manufuls and Corradus have observed former in the Summary of Cicero's Oration fame Balbus, and the latter on his Nores on the Balbus for the Historian Cornelius Balbus Theophanes mention'd by Cupsstorian Cornelius Balbus Theophones mention'd by Capstolinus So that if there had been any thing to be Criticiz'd there, Vossus should have censured those Learned Italians, rather than Savare, who came a long time after them

long time after them

(H) Lloyd and Hofman deserve to be a little central fund. I say nothing of Charles Stephens, he has been a little too dry on our Cornelius Balbus, but what he says of him the state of the state were not superfluous, (vik) I Readers are more concern'd for the latter Hofman lengthens the Article, (1) to inform us that there was another Cornelius Balbus of Lesbes, fir-nam d Theophanes, that is, to teach us a falfity Lucius Cornelius Balbus Theophanes differs no ways from him who was of Gadiz, and who is the Salar from him who was of Gadiz, and who is the Significant of this Article

(1) Paul Manutius ought not altogether empted I have already touch'd fome of the flakes, here are yet two more The one is in the Summary of Cicero's Oration for Cornelius Balbus, Atticu and in the Notes on that place of the Oration where mention is made of the Adoption of that Balbus He says there (m) most falsely, That Theophanes was one of Pompey s Freed Men, for it was not the Liberty, but the Roman Freedom that Pompey Saye Theophanes. Quid Magnus his maker (Saye Theophanes). not the Liberty, but the Roman Freedom that Pompey gave Theophaner. Quid Magnus his nofter (fays (n) Cicero) garante perturbate fortunam adaquavit nonne Theophaner. Mitylenaum scriptorem rerum surum in concione militum civitate donavit? The other Fault of Manutius (o) is to refer us among other Authorities to the 7th Book of Pliny, ch 43 concerning the Triumph of the young Cornelus Balbus Nephew to him of whom we ipeak, for Pliny speaks only of the Uncle's Consulship in that place One may be easily mistaken in such like things On the same place of Pliny. Father Hardown refers us the same place of Pliny, Father Hardouin refers us to a passage of Paterculus, (p) where he only speaks stand of

of Balbus the Nephew

(K) That Glandorpius has multiplied Beings without necessity | He ought not to have produced three Consuls called L Cornelius Balbus It is to multiply Beings without necessity He says, the first is (b)

Balbus the elder, whose Consulship he plates the Year of Rome 713 The second is Balbus the er, for whose Consulship he says nothin
er, for whose Consulship he says nothin and instead of the 29th och of Solinus the out, who he says was made Consul for of Balbus the Nephew by Marc Antony, and had such a vast Estate that enabled him to bequeath 25 Drachms to each tizen of Rome The truth of it is, that these three logne, for Balbus the Uncle does tizen of Rome The truth of it is, that these three Consuls make but one, for Balbus the Uncle does not differ from him whose Consulship was of so short a continuance Do but see Dien Cassus To note the Character of that Consulship, Father Hardouin says ingeniously That Balbus was Consul under the Consulship of Cn Domitius Calvinus, and of C Assis Pollie in the Year of Rome 714 (r) Consuls bic fuit, quoniam it a necesse of diesers, Cn Domitius Calvinos secundum, C Asinio Pollione Coss Anno Urbis DCCXIV To conclude, if Glanderpius had had any knowledge of the Passage of Pliny (f), where Balbus the elder is call'd Paternal Uncle, Patruus, of Balbus the younger, he would not have consind himself to the Quotation of such a bad Authority as that of Volaterranus, to inform us that one of those Balbus's was the Son of the others Brother.

doptic Theophi pro Ba Placet ıgıtur (pulfun agrum Campa num p adopta tum p Pleben his Con MESTION COMCCTM rnel

Attıcu (n) Orat pro Ar-chia Va lerius Maximus Says as much, Lb 8 cap 14 (0) In argument Orat Ca cer pro Balbo, where inquoting the

(/) Macrob Sa tuinil 13 c 6 (1) Simler in Epit Bibl Geiner flip (L) is chimerical; and that Morers committed (M) several Faults, tho' his Article of Balbus is very small and very dry

I shall say but little of some other Balbus's nius, lib 2 de origine mention a by the ancient Authors Lucius Lucilius BALBUS Disciple of Mucius Scevola, and Preceptor of the famous Prvius Sulpitius, was an excellent Lawyer He Conomation of the famous Prvius Sulpitius, was an excellent Lawyer He Conomation of the Chart of Rome of Cicero says, that (N) Sulpitius exceeded his such a little slow, whereas the Disciple of Maturity to his Learning, which made him a little slow, whereas the Disciple of Maturity to his Learning, which made him a little slow, whereas the Disciple of Maturity to his Learning, which made him a little slow, whereas the Disciple of Maturity to his Learning, which made him a little slow, whereas the Disciple of Maturity to his Learning, which made him for property stakes to which perhaps his Disciple Sulpine of did not a little contribute, by a inserting most of for one such shadow with gle person functions. In the Intersection of the Stock Philosopher, one of Cicero's Intersections in the Stock Publius Octavius BALBUS was Contemporated. mention'd by the ancient Authors Lucius Lucilius BALBUS Disciple of Mucius Books of the Nature of the Gods Publius Octavius BALBUS was Contemporary cutor of the with Cicero, who praises him for his Knowledge in the Civil Law, for his Wit, and the Gods, Probity, and for many other good Qualities Cicero of does not praise less Lucius the Man Octavius BALBUS, who liv'd at the same time It is likely that one of those two that is Octavius Balbus is he of whom Valerius Maximus? reports, That having sav d himself the Oration of the Trumping and having this the Vice half of the Continuous and having this the vice half the Oration of the Trumping and having this the Vice half of the Continuous and having this the Vice half of the Continuous and having this the Vice half of the Continuous and having this the Vice half of the Continuous and having this the Vice half of the Continuous and having this the Continuous and having the Continuous and have the Continuous and having the Con thro' a Back-door from the Cruelty of the Triumvirs, and hearing that they were kil- on for Cluling his Son in his House, he return'd back again, and caus'd himself to be put to entius, Appear reports , the Matter somewhat differently

BALBUS, BALBI, or BALBO (Jobn) a Dominican Monk, mourined in the XIIIth Century He understood Greek, a rare thing in those Days, and much more the 7th Thin all his Fellow Monks together He was as much esteem'd for his good Lite Verine as for his knowledge, and some a Persons have call'd him Blessed. It was for that reason that his Image ac'd in St Thomas's Church at Pavia The Title of his Works may be seen in the instead of referring us to Vossius's Book on the Latin mild C Historians, work well to remark that John Balbus is incomparably better known by the Name of Joannes de Janua, or Joannes Januensis than by any other 1 rem Oiat shall say why he went by that Name, and enquire whether he be the same with Jaco- have de Vorgoine I shall only make one Remark (A) for all this BALBUS, BALBI, or BALBO (John) a Dominican Monk, flourish'd in the bus de Voragine I shall only make one Remark (A) for all this

(L) The distinction of the greater and lesser Consulship of the diffinction of the greater and teger Consulping is chimerical.] Mark a little to what irregularity of Mind People are subject. Some () on these controls of Pliny, Fuit & Balbus Cornelius Major that control the Chimera of two degrees of this, and pretended that Balbus, was made good Consul, or first Conful. It is easy to see that Major in this passage, does not relate to Consul. mafile ()See The mafile (*) Plin pag 383

(M) And that Morers committed several Faults of It is only on an it is said, that he reports that Cornelius Balbus, composed a Journal or Ephemerides of what happened daily to Casar If he had known that Sidonius Apollius to that Got that Journal, as of a Book that was extended that he mention dit also with praise (a) he will have it, that (b) Symmachus spoke of that same Book, when he writ to his Friend, Si impar cit desides to the Livius, sume machus ipoke of that same Book, when he writ to his Friend, Si impar est desiderio tuo Livius, sume Ephemeridem C Cziaris decerptam Bibliothecula mea ut tib muneri mitteretur. Hac te origines, situs, pugnas, & quidquid fuit in moribus aut legibus Galliarum decebit. That is to say, if Livy does not fully satisfy your desire of having the History of ancient Gaul, you need only take Czesar's Ephemerides, of which I made you a present, &c But others (c) pretend that Sym-machus means only the Memosr, that Casarhad made himself, and which we have still under the Title of Commentaries on the War of Gaul It is nevertheless true, that he made other Memoirs under the Title of Ephemeris, as we learn of Servius Why man Symmachus speak of the latter? 2d The at take heed not to confound that Author with one of the Name, firman d Theophanes, who was of Lesbos, as Savaro and others have done, contains two Faults, chave shew'd the first in justifying Savare from mure of Veffius The second consists, in sup that there was an Historian born in the Island

That there was an Historian born in the Island of Lesbes, whose Name was Cornelius Balbus Theophanes, than which nothing can be more false. The Historian Theophanes born at Mitylene in the Island of Lesbes was indeed call'd Cn Pompeius Theophanes, because Pompey had conferr'd the Freedom of Rome upon him, but he never added the Name of Balbus, or Balbus Cornelius to that of his Family and there are the County's cheek Possible. ly, and there is reason to be surprized, that Vossius should say, that the Historian Cornelius Balbus Theophanes, mention'd by Julius Capitolinus (d) is the Thesphanes of the Island of Lesbes, that writ the War of Mithridates 3d But again, Why must one take care not to do as Savare did? It is because

Cornelius Balbus dwelt at Rome, and because Theophanes was of Lesbos Are not these two Attributes incompatible in the same Subject, and can a better proof be required for a Personal distinction? See how Errors are a less than descent on? See how Errors grow Merers designing to abbreviate Vossius's Proof, made it incomparably worle than it was 4th He goes on thus, I think it is the first that Cicero desended against those who Impeach'd him for taking unjustly the Title of a Roman Citizen upon him Not to iay, that the I xpression (e) is so far from being clear, that one would think by it, that Cicero began that fort of Pleading with the Person in question, which is neither what Moreri intended to say, nor what ought to be said, there is this fault in these Words, that this ought not to have been mention'd as an uncertain Fact, and that there was nothing more easy than to be evidently convinc'd of it by reading the Summaries of Paul Manuclus, of Father Abram, &c., on Cicero's Oration pro I Cornelio Balbo (N) Cicero fays that Sulpitius exceeded his Mafter J Cicero's thought, will be better comprehended by

Cicere's thought will be better comprehended by his own Words than by mine Read then what his own Words than by mine Read then what follows (f) Cum dicendi caussa duobus peritissimus operam dedisse (Servius) R Lucilio Balbo C Aquilio Gallo, Galli hominus acuti & exercitati promptam in agendo & in respondendo celeritatem subsistiate diligentiaque superavit Balbi dossi & eruditi hominis in utraque re consideratam tarditatem vicit, expediendis

conficiendisque rebus Sic & habet quod uterque eorum habut, & explevit quod utrique defuit

(A) I shall only make one Remark for all this] John Balbus, a Noble Genoese, was call'd januensis or de Janue, because he was of Genoa He says himself in his Catholicon at the word janua, that he was of a City call'd Janua, which City is no other than Genoa From Lustprandus's time it was rather call'd faults of Janua than Genea, either to infinuate more clearly thereby that Janus was the Founder of it, or to the tart the reason mention'd by John de Janus, to the tart that City is the Gate of Provence, Lombarathey and Tuscany He informs us there, that he was call'd Frater Johannes Januensis de Balbis, and that he had made some other Books At the end of the Catholicon, he says, That after several Years of great Labour, he sinished it the Day of the Nones. great Labour, he finish'd it the Day of the Nones

of March, which is the 7th Day of March 1286

Mr Oudin, formerly a Monk of the Order of Norbertus, and at present affociated to the Protestant Church, to the great satisfaction of the Party, which has great reason to rejoyce for so good a conquest, and which expects many good Pieces from that Pen, I say Mr Oudin pretends, that (g) Jacobus de Voragine, Author of the Golden Legend, and Joannes Janua, Author of the Catholicon, are one and the same Person His reason for it is, that it is agreed that they both liv'd at the same time, that they were both Dominicans, both of Genos, and therefore both call'd Januenses So that it was an easy thing for those who saw the Name of Januensis at the beginning of divers Manuscripts, preceded by clef's co de origine and him that is BALDUS, de bell civil p 601 6 Non vi ha mancato chi lo riponga mero de' Beati, e come tale Templo di S milo di Pavia, in luogo minente vicino al ioshtat o Alfonso Fernandez apud Michaelem Jultinianum in libro de gli Scrittori Liguri, pag 312 (c) If a Man would oblerve the Bruto, p

264 Whether Joannes de Janua and Jacobus de Voragine and the lame Authois (g) Sup-

ad extremum BAT BI EPHEME-RIDEM FANDO ADÆQUA-VERIT Sidon Apollinar epift 14 i o (6) Symmach Epift 18 (c)Vossius de Hist Lat p 64 where he ascribes to Suctonius what be-operaSue-

(a) Quis

tonii,quis

Juvenci,

Tartialis Histori-

am,quifve

(d) See in Cafaubon and others that neve somfault

BALDUS, a famous Civilian in the XIVth Century, was the Son of (A) Francis Ubaldus, a Physician of Perugia He study'd under Bartolus, and being but sisteen Years of Age, he propos'd fuch a puzzling Objection to him, that he requir'd time to think of it; and the Answer to it was not given till the next Day. So that those that say that Baldus (B) began his Studies very late, are grosly deceived. A little after his promotion to the Doctor's Degree, he maintain'd some Theses which Bartelus opposed for five Hours together, the Letter 7 the first of the Christian Name, Joannes and Jacobus, to ascribe them sometimes to Jaco-bus Januensis, and sometimes to Joannes Januensis; whereby they made two Authors of one

But he will give me leave to tell him, that his Conjecture does not well agree with the enumeraof his Works at the Word Janua, for tho' there might have been a great space of time between his finishing the Catholicon and the Article Janua, yet it is not at all likely, that if he had compos'd any Books during the time that past between the composition of that Article, and the closing of the Dictionary, he would not have added them to the rest in that Article And therefore it may be suppos'd that the Catalogue which he gives under the Word Janua, is of the Year 1286 in which he single'd the Catholicon. Now it is certain that he finish'd the Catholicon Now it is certain, that Jacobus de Voragine publish'd an Italian Translation of the Bible in the Year 1270 What likelihood is there, that if at the end of 16 Years he had spoken of the Books which he had given to the Publick, he should have forgot one of so new an undertaking, and in all respects so remarkable as the Tran-flation of the Scripture in the Vulgar Tongue? And therefore it is not likely that Jacobus de Voravertheless let us not decide it Let us wait for the Information of the Learned, and particularly of Mr Oudin Dr Cave (a) remains likewise in uncertainty about it This is what I said in my Projett, but at present I will be more positive against Father Oudin's Conjecture, I am grounded on several good Reasons, that come from a very good (b) Hand Here is the extract of a Memorial that came from Dijon "I believe, it may be "clearly decided that the Taranta de Company of the several decided the Taranta de Company of the Co clearly decided, that Joannes de Genoa ought by no means to be confounded with Jacobus de Vora gine The first, who is the Author of the Di-ctionary intitled Catholicon, was never cited un-der the Name of Jacobus The second, who is der the Name of Jacobus The fecond, who is Author of the Golden Legend, was never cited Name of Joannes The first is always call'd Joannes de Janua, or Januensis, because he was of Genoa, of the Family of the Balbs The fecond, whole Family is unknown, is generally "call'd facobus de Voragine, very rarely Jacobus Ja"nuenfis, and then Archiepiscopus must either be "understood, or we must believe, that he was "call'd so by reason of the small distance between "the Borough of Ligaria, call'd Voragine, the place of his Birth, and Genea. The first was only a Dominican Monk The second was rais'd to the Archbishoprick of Genes All Authors, and the Dominicans among others, have always distinguish d the Names, the Country and the Works of those two Writers This is carefully observed. by Leandro Alberti in his Description della riviera di Genous di Ponente James Bracelli a Genoese, who wrote in the Year 1431 and of whom we ' have a little Book de claris Genuensibus, makes no mention there of Jacobus de Voragine because he was not of Genea, but he speaks in it with praise of Jeannes Belbus, the Author of the Cathelicen, to whom he would not have fail'd to have Janua in- "given the Quality of Archbishop of Genea, if he to several "had had it, as he ought to have had it, accord-Authors "ing to the Opinion of those who consound him with Jacobus de Veragine Simler (c) is 10 far from confounding two Authors into one, that on the contrary, he made three of one; for he speaks of Jeannes de Janus, of Jeannes Januaris, and of Jeannes Balbus, as of three different Authors He is besides mistaken in writing Baldus for Balbus, a fault that Quensiale follow'd in his Treatise (d) of the Country of Illustrious Men Martinus in the (s) Catalogue of the Distinguishment, which he made use of to make his own, falls also into faults of multiplication. He ledges the Catholicon that was finish'd the Day of the Nanes of March 1286 and overes the very Words. Nones of March 1286 and quotes the very Words that are at the end of the Dictionary of James de nus, and printed at Vinice in 1487 It is plain, that they are only two different Editions of one and the fame Book, and that the first ought no less to be ascrib'd to John de Janus than the second Martinius would not have fail'd of it, had he known what is in the Article Janua in the Catholicon that was fimsh'd in 1286

I see that it is not yet agreed, who is the Author OF THE of the Dictionary, that was first intitled Catholicon Book inti-Mr du (f) Cange ascribes it to our John de Janua, et d' Cange ascribes in the our John de Janua, and fays, that neither Papies nor Ugueso (who had tholicon made some Compilations before) us d that Title (f) Præ made some Compilations before) us d that Title

(f) PræBut (g) Mr Borrichius, who wrote after him, having read Mr du Cange's Presace, maintains nevertheless, that Papies is the Author of the Catholicen, and that he finish d that Work in the Year 1286 He had seen, that it was affirm'd in that Presace, pend de that Papies did not flourish in the Year 1200 as Lexicis Trithemius will have it, but in 1022, as the Chemic that Papias did not flourish in the Year 1200 as Trithemius will have it, but in 1053, as the Chronical Græcis & Cle of Albericus justifies, and nevertheless he takes it for granted, that Papias finish'd his Dictionary in 1286. He ought eithers have refuted Mr du Cange, or at least to have observed that he was missage, or at least to have observed that he was missage, or at least to have observed that he was missage have conjugated the Reader However, it is a strong presumption against Mr Borrichius, to see that he places the conclusion of Papias's Dictionary exaction in the same Year 1286 that Joannes de Janua sinish'd his Catholicon. The above quoted Memorial, assures me, that Papias did not make the Catholica con that was sinish'd in 1286 and that John Balbi is con that was finish'd in 1286 and that John Balb: 18 the first that made use of the Title of Cacholicon in the Title-page of a Dictionary

It was a long time ago, that Barthius without having confulted the Manuicript Chronicle of Aberical Cording cus, judg'd that Papias was more ancient than fome to Barthmake him to be Platina gives it for certain, that us The he liv'd in the time of Pope Innocent III that is in Neglithe beginning of the XIIIth Century, which agrees with Trithemius Borrichius places him at the end the control of the XIIIth Century. with Trithemius Borrichius places him at the end the contiof the XIIIth Century But Barthius in the 3d tinuators Chapter of the 3d Book of his Adversaria, plac'd of Comhim in the Empire of (h) Henry II because that Author carries the List which he gives under the Word Eise of all the Princes of the past Age, no died in the farther than Henry, whom he calls minorem, which he would not have done if there had already been so that it shows two Emperors of the Name of Henry

It is seems that above two Emperors of the Name of Henry true, that Barthius raises a Doubt, which generally Barthius's the prodigious neglect of those that continue or reason amplify Compilations, may justify, generally speaking Which is, that perhaps Papias less the Article prove too at an just as he found it in some old Dictionary, withmuch out continuing the Catalogue to his time Thus we find in the Chronicle of the Abbot of Ursperg, in one place, (1) that the Author was at Rome in the Year 1102 in another, that he was very young in minoric etate, in the Year 1198 and in another that he ri etate, in the Year 1198 and in another that he was made an Abbot in the Year 1215 If the Continuator had clear'd the matter relating to his Additions, we should not meet wish first nuator had clear'd the matter relating to his Additions, we should not meet with such consused things (A) The Son of Francis Ubaldus | Observe themschaft Baldus is the Christian Name of that Civilian, and Ubaldus his Sirname Moreri calls him besides, Peter; owhich is to consound the elder Brother with the younger Petrus Ubaldus, was the 3d Son of the Physical decided fician Franciscus Ubaldus, and was a good Civilian Histor p His Brother Angelus Ubaldus, was also a great Jurist See Panziralus. In the 70th, and following Chapters See Panzirolus, in the 70th, and following Chapters of the 2d Book de claris legum interpretibus

(B) That Baldus began his Studies very late] It is number reported, that he was 40 Years of Age when he began to Study the Civil Law, and that Bartolus hafulfiled ving faid to him, tarde venifi Balde, Baldus an(k) Panfwer'd him, situs recedam (k) According to La Mozirof de the le Vayer, Bartelus faid, You come late, Baldus, you'd Claris lebe an Advocate in the other World Sero wons Balde, gum ineris advocatus in also faculo I don't believe, that if terpretiables faid this, he made any allusion to Cate's bus, 1 2. Jest That Cenfor faid to deride Secrates's School, (7 7 201 (1) That the Scholars grew old in it, that they might (1) Plu-exercife their Elequence in Hell at the Bar of Mines This Story about Beldus, has no foundation Panarelus proves, that at the Age of lifteen Years he ? 350.

Glof-

A PIA sa cording gence of the conti-Seems that (1) See Vossius de Hiff Lat leb 2 and baving be (a) Cave de Script Lcclef PAE 750

(b) From the Learn. ed Mr de

(c) Fpi-tome Bibliot Ges-(d) P 307

MULTI

ON of Joannes de " (e) In the beginning of his Lexicon Philologicum brinted at Bremen in 1623 and at Francfort en 1655 and re rinted at 107 A.

ther, we hout obtaining the Victory He often pleaded some Causes against Bartolus, and such an Emulation was raised between them, as soon degenerated into Hatred This cannot be question'd, when it appears that Baldus endeavour'd to eclipse his Ma-Per's Reputation What has been faid, that the Pandetts of Pisa having been consulted as convinced of divers Falification and that he was (C) punished for it in an ignominious manner, ought only to pand a Fable He taught at Perugia, and Cardinal de Beaufort was his Scholar there, was afterwards Pope Giegory XI. He was call'd to Padua about the Year 1378, the left that University when Galeazzo Visconts being minded to resettle that of Pavia, drew thither by Money the ablest Professors that he could meet with A quick Repartee (D) that Baldus made the first time he appeared to the College of Pavia and the part of the part of the college of Pavia and the part of t in the College of Pavia, caused him to be admir d. He had a formidable Collegue there, whose Name was Philip Cassolus, who had an excellent Memory, and was a Man of great Parts, but the good Opinion that he had of his sufficiency having mov'd him to make a Challenge, he was overcome, and his Honour was sacrific'd to (E) that The Death of Philip did not fice his Concurrent from trouble, for there was such a hot Emulation between the Professor, who succeeded him, and Baldus, that they introduc'd the shameful and permicious Custom of Bribing the Auditors by upplications Baldus got a good (F) Estate He composed many Books, and there is no likelihood that he studied only (G) two Hours in a Day He must not be alledged an Author without Faults, had he only had that of Conti idicting himfelf, he would all very short of Pertection, but he (H) had many other Faults. The Excuses

(a) Panzirol pag (b) Ibid p 200, 201

(c) Apud ubi infra (d)Turaq. de Jure primige. morum Praf n (e) Baillet Tamous Children. pag 420 He quotes la Mothe le Vayer, Letter 32 pag 420 and Bartoli Car Hom Ist P 248 (f) To 76 Tears of

(g) Pan-ZH 9 210

Age

IN WHAT manner anAuthor ought to report a made a very puzzi the famous Bartolus, that at the Publick Lectures, and that four the read fome Publick Lectures, and another de Confituto See here the words of that Writer (b) Opinioni Bartoli adeo argute contradicit, ut ille argumenti acumine percerritus respondere non poruerit, commendatoque juvene tempus ad solvendum petiit, & sequenti mane respondit Deinde 17 annum ingressus solenni interpre-tatione dissicilimam legem publice Baldus explicuit, unde fabulosum est quod vulgo fertur, Baldum quadragena-rum ad legum studia accessise The Civilian Zasius tamorts the inme Story on the Credit of Paul at Tiraquellus rejects it as a Fabl. Alfanda fayen lus rejects it as a Fable (d)

Alfanda fayen has effe commentities of prorfus fabulofa, ut ev iis confiar que supra diximus Mi Baillet Obscives, that la Mothe le Vayer, and Father Bartoli feem to have adopted that Opinion, as if the Fatt was well averr d and not a Story made at random He refers to Tiraquellus, and to the Eighth Chapter of the Llogies of Paul Jovius (e) The latter observes that gies of Paul Jovius (e) The latter observes that Baldus had a forward Wir, and which was of a long continuance, Pracect ingenie pape puer, non ad optmam mode frugem, sed rarissimo enam natura dono ad longam senestutem (f) pervenit

(C) And that he was punish'd for it ought only to pass for a Fable] Some say that the Digrace which he receiv'd, oblig d him to exile himself, and to say, as science Assume did that he would and to fay, as Scipio Africanus did, that he would not have his ungrateful Country to supply him with a Grave Publice traduttum patria excessife ferunt, & abeuntem Scipionis Africani verba protulisse, ingrata patria ne ossa quiden mea habebis, ac in voluntario existo senem defunctium fuisse (g) Others say that he was condemn'd to be mark'd with a hot liron on the Forehead, and that Bartolus protected him. him Jason had heard of it, but he was much in the wrong to immortalize that Hear-say in his Wooks. That Honour must never be done to such Works. That Honour must never be done to such Remover the form of the two Cases, the one is, when the very likely, and the other, when they are the word likely, and the other, when they are the word likely, and the other, when they are the word likely, and the other, when they are the word likely, and the other, when they are the word likely, and they can be the called the word likely of the foregoing the word likely of the foregoing Ages. To prove demonstratively that Jason's Hear-say is a lable, there needs no other reason than this Jason knew it only by Hear-say, if the thing had been handred places. knew it only by Hear-say, if the thing had been true, he would have read it in an hundred places Balaus lived a very long time with a second true. Baldus lived a very long time with great Honour the made Books, he confuted whom he thought fit, he had some formidable Antagonists and Enemies Take it for a great certainty, that if they could have reproach'd him with any Infamy, it would have been done in more than one Book It is there that Jason and every body would have learn'd that Drigrace It is the Misfortune of learned Men that make themselves eminent, and write much, early or late they shall be publickly reproach'd with the least faults of their Youth. If other Authors become their Enemies, they ought to expect fatyrical Romances, rather than the Different of an Adversary Thus Panearolus should have Apologiz d for Baldus, he should expressly and in in open manner have made use of this Observation, and not have only faid , Que omnie fulle effe & ulii po'ius evinisse non dub to, cum nulla de hoc certa exter aucioritas, & eum Ticini decessis constet (h)

(D) A quick Repartee that Baldus made] He was of a small size, so that is soon as he appeared in the Auditory they cried out, Minust prasentia summing. He answer'd without altering his Countenance, Augebit catera virtus Panzirolus (1) adds, Quo ditto (1) Ibid

omnibu. fui admirationem injecit

(E) His Honour was facrified to that of Ballus] Caffolus had ingaged himielf to iniwer immediately to all that could be ask'd of him concerning the last Wills The day and hour were appointed to verifie whether he had reason to boast of that The Assembly was numerous, Baldus stood up, and asked a Question which Cassolus could not unswer Judge whether the Challenger was mortified (k) Philippus qui, ut memoria cateris anticellebat, ita superbo titulo Doctorum Doctor vocabatur, ingenio fretis, se ex omnibus ultimarum voluntatum quastionibus ex tempore responsurum prosissus est. Statuta ad dicendim die, cum in magna expectatione effet, surgens Baldus interrogavit, Ubi in jure cautum reperiretur, parem non esse essus, qui non vult, ei, qui non potest, conditionem Ad primam interrogationem hæstfante Philippo, eum Baldus de proposita quastione legem ostendisset, magnam

(F) Baldus got a good Effate] The Counsels (1) which he gave only on matters of Substitution, were worth to him above Fifteen thousand Crowns He had several Lands, and lived in a pleasant Country-House near Pavia, from whence he came on his Mule to the Auditory Panwirolus (m) adds, Domus vetustate vitiata adhac hodie pro re memoranda

osten atur

(G) That he studied only two hours in a day] (G) That he studied only two hours in a day | Panzirelus confuting this, says among other things, this Baldus going a Journey, which hinder'd him from spending in reading the time that he wasnied the imploy in it, said, Livery step my Horse makes, are as many Laws that go out of my Memory (n) Quot gradus equus ambulubat, tot leges shi excidere guerebatur. It is a sign that he had acquired, and preserv'd his knowledge by much reading

(H) But he has many other Fault. He advances to

(H) But he has many other Fault] He advances a thousand things, that are singular and contrary to the Opinion of other Civilians, and without quoting any Law, they are his own lancies quotes Laws that do not concern in the least the quotes Laws that do not concern in the leaf the perampions in question, he treats of divers things out of their Order, he is too barien on the necessary part, and too profix on the uselest. He inswers Questions that never my body ask'd, and answers nothing to what every body asks. He confounds himself by his own Subtilities, and gives himself too much liberty. The vivicity of his Wit is the cause of the vant of Uniformity in his Opinions Cum parum fil constans Sapenumero contra, s repera

zirol p

(k) 11 16

(1) De jure reipondendo immentini pecuniám coegit, qui ex fo-lis fubstitiffionum speciebus Jecim plu quinmillia aureorum lucratus fuisse traditur Alunde preterea cx innumeris aliarum fuccuffinnum crique causis & contra-Etibus peramplas cumul1-Vit 11

Taken from Panzirolus ubi fupra † Paulus Jovius, Elog c 8 p 27 || Panzır ibid | Id ib | B Hanc cobusDer para Virgini ana-thema appendit, ut palam ficcret cui Palladı ipie iuos labores confecraret Sotuel Biblioth Societ Je-Ju, p 356 v Taken from Sotuel ibid & HisGreat Great Grand Father left the Name of Canta-

gallina, an illustrious Family of Perugia,

and took

this Fabr Scharlon-fromwhich ne was de-∫cended, ınfra (a) Pan-LIT PAG 203 (b) Ipfe quoque fe exculat, quòd intellectus. qui ratiocinatur, non femper fit idem, fed varius. & Episcopo Ticinensi fæpe interroganti, cur toties leges mutarentur, re-fpondit, flagrante bello permittitur, quod pacis tempore non licet, id n i juffum esse quod cuique tuo tempore expedit exemplo enim me-

tempora

wherewith he colour'd (1) his Contradictions deserve to be consider'd. He died the 28th of April (K) 1400 His Death was somewhat Tragical He had a little Dog which he lov'd very much, he plaid with, and kist him very often In one of those Careffes he was bit in his Lip, and the Dog being mad at that time, he spread a subtle Poison in the Body of Baldus, which had no effect for a long time, but at last it produc'd the fear of Water, and caused an incurable Distemper * Baldus lived † 76 Years, and less | two Sons, who proved good Civilians Zenobius the Eldest was Bishop of BALDUS (fames) one of the best Latin Poets that Germany produc'd in the XVIIth Century, was born at Ensisherm, in 1603. He turn'd Jesust in the Year 1624. He taught Rhetorick and Literature for six Years, he was a Preacher many Years, and preach'd also at the Court of the Elector of Bavaria, and acquir'd an extraordinary Reputation by his Poems. There were none, even among the (A) Protestants themselves, but praised them in a singular manner. One of his last Works was his Hearing suffering angular surgery surgery surgery surgery. was his Urania victrix seu animæ Christianæ certamina adversus illecebras quinque sensuum corporis sus Pope Alexander VII was so pleased with it, that he sent his Medal of Gold to the Author Father Baldus consecrated it a to the Holy Virgin Some Senators of Nuremberg disputed (B) which of them should have his Pen, and it is said that he to whose share it fell kept it in a Silver Case That Poet died at Newburg the 9th of August, 1668 His Poems are of a different Nature, they contain Panegyricks, and Treatises of Morality, Pieces (C) for the Stage, and Pieces of Devotion, Odes γ , δc BAI DUS (Bernardin) Abbot of Guastalla, born at Urbino in the Year 1553, was one of the most Learned Men of his time. He made such great Progresses under his first Tutors, that he found himself able to translate the Phinomena of Aratus into Italian Verse, while he was yet but a young Scholar. His Lather (1) perceiving by those early Trials that he had a very hopeful Son, sent him to Padua in the Year 1573.

tur, id tamen non levitate, sed ingenii subtilitate evenisse Paulus Castrensis autumat (a) Those that have a quick Imagination have commonly but a short Memory, and that's the reason why they do not remember, when they look on a Question on one side, that formerly they maintained it in another sense They contradict themselves without knowing it Add to this, that a subtle Wit easily invents the means to prove and refute the same things. But it is a great defect not to be capable of suspending the Liffects of that subtilty, till one can set his mind steddy.

(1) The Excuses wherewith he colour'd his Contraditions] He said (b) that our Understanding alters, and therefore that it argues one day after one man-ner, and another day after another I believe that he reserved to himself in petto the privilege which he attributed to the Legislators I he Bishop of Pavia ask'd one day why the Laws were fo change-able, Baldus answer'd him, that the same things become either lawful or unlawful according to the Times, in time of War fome things are permitted that are forbid in time of Peace Wherefore Juflice concerns all things that become proper to the Times, such a Conduct is proportioned to the present Circumstances, therefore it is just Those that make Laws imitate Physicians, who permit, order, and forbid the same things according to the order, and forbid the lame things according to the Time and Seasons, 'tis the time they observe This was Baldur's Answer, and this is either implicitly, or explicitly the Principle on which Authors argue who constute themselves, when they are to dispute against two forts of Enemies This Proposition is true and good this day, when I Dispute against Pelagius, in a Year's time it shall not be so if I dispute against Calvin I remember to have read, that certain Controversists not being able to deny but that the Church commands cerable to deny but that the Church commands cer tain things that don't feem agreeable to Scripture, nor to the Primitive Church, have maintain'd that they were nevertheless just and true, because the Holy Spirit, who guides the Church, inspires her in every Age with such Interpretations as are most proper for the good of Souls Scripturas ess ad tempus adaptatas & varid intellectas, it a ut uno tempore secundum currentem universalem ritum exponerentur, mutato ritu iterum sententia mutaretur (c) Non est nutato vitu iterum sententia mutaretur (c) Non est nirum si pravus Ecclesia uno tempore, interpretatur Scri-pturam uno modo, also tempore also, nam intellestus (n) it cum pravi (d) I love this plain dealing (k) He died the 28th of April, 1400] His Epi-tuph confirms it, so that Bellarmin (e) is deceived in placing the Death of Baldus in the Year 1420 Dithemius, who placed it in the Year 1423, said a à legum Intoribus dicebat observari Apud Panzarol ibid Cusanus Epist 2 ad Bohemos (d) Hem Ep. st 7 (e) Bellarm Scriptor I celes p 22 382

Falsehood, but Morers who said that according to Trishemius, the Death of Baldus ought to be placed in the Year 1423, was not in the wrong. The Year 1403 should not have been put in the Dutch Edition of his Dictionary instead of the Year

(A) Even among the Protestants themselves, but praised them] Father Sotuel expresses himself sipon this in these terms less Acatholics etiam adeo plants euerunt, ut publico typo eum Horatium Germanum nominare non dubitarint If I am not mistaken, this is grounded on a Letter of Barlaus Father Baldus having seen the Verses that Barlaus had made in of the Duke of Bavaria, wrote a very obliging Letter to him, and fent him a Volume of his Poems Banleus thank'd him for it with large Encomiums, and writ to him among other things, (f) Restituisti nobu lyram neglettam diu & intermissam, ut Jam merito vocari possis lyricorum scriptor, aut potius ter, p 911 Bojorum sidicen lyra, ut ad Horatii verba alludam See also the
This Letter was written the first of March, 1644 489th, This Letter was written the first of March, 1644 489th, The Jesuit was then (g) Rector of the College of written to Munich

Mr Baillet says (h), I do not know whether he that preserv'd it in a fine silver Case made on purpose for it, Table of did not commit a Sacrilege, because it seems to Barleus's me that Father Baldus had consecrated it to the Letters Holy Virgin, and that his intention was that it floud be hung up to one of her Images, or to one of her Altars, as Lipsius had formerly done in the heat of such a-like Devotion"

(b) Judgm on the Poets on the Poets

(C) Pieces for the Stage There is one of them that bears this Title, Poess Osca, sive drama Georgicum de belli malis & pacis bonis carmine antique, Attellano, Osco, Casco (1) How rustick soever this piece, and the Gibberish in which it was composed, may seem, yet I do not question but that pare this it cost the Author both more time and Wie with the it cost the Author both more time and Wit with the than a grave piece in good Latin We must not therefore believe that it was printed at Munich in the Year 1617, as F Sotuel asserts James Baldus Accursius was not able to perform such a Project at the Age of 14 Years

(A) Hu Father perceiving by these early Trials

sent him to Padua] Correct by this a fault of Niciss Erythraus I am sure he did not intend to lessen the Honour of our Baldus in any thing, and yet he did lessen it very much, but it was without thinking of it, and for want of minding the order of Times He says that after the Lectures of (k) Marganius, Baldus thought homes into his Mo-Marganius and come Greek Poems into his Mo-Marganius and greek Poems i ther-tongue Apud quem tantum profecit, ut es duce nius, as it O cereum quedammedo lucente obscurissma Gracerum is in Ery-querundam poetarum loca penetraverit Quam-obrem ea est incensus animi alacritate atque siducia, us.

(f) See hus 467th Let-

on the Poets tom 5

Bernardin studied Homer there under Emanuel * Margunius, and in private almost all the *He was other Greek Poets, and understood them very well. He composed a Book at Padua; of Candia, about the Machines of War, which made his Name fly beyond the Alps, and increased and a Prohis desire of understanding French and High-Dutch, for he thought it decent to learn the Language of those whose Assection he had acquired. He learn'd those two Languages with an extraordinary Facility. The Plague tore'd him to leave Padua, and Pidua being return'd to Union he applied himself for sive Years to Fadurah Commendation. guages with an extraordinary Facility The Plague forc'd him to leave Padua, and being return'd to Urbino, he applied himself for five Ye irs to Frederick Commandin, an excellent Professor of Mathematicks, and learn'd of him ill the parts of that Science He was extreamly forry for the Death of that learned Man, and having applied bellies himself to write his Life, it created a design in him to compose those of all the Ma- & corum thematicians He labour'd twelve Years about it. The Commentaries which he puniventoribus blish'd in 1582, on Aristotle's Mechanicks, shewd his Cipacity in that fort of Knowledge To divert himself in those painful Meditations, he made a Poem in his Mother-Tongue concerning the Art of Navigation Finding de Gonzague, Prince of Molfette, and Lord of Guastalla, being a great lover of Mithematicks, would have In that Court he began to write on Vitruvius, and made the our Baldus near. him Book intituled, De verborum Vitruvianorum significatione A fit of Sickness having hindred him from taking a Voyage into Spain with his Mister, he imployed the leiture that the absence of Firdinand de Gonzague gave him, in making a very Methodical Treatise of || the Court, and several (B) other Works He was made Abbot of sex de au-Guaftalla in 1586, without having made any advances towards it, and from that time la erudi-he applied himself wholly to the Study of the Canon-Law, of the Fathers and Coun-tiffimos composed five Book. De nova Gnomonice, in the Year 1593, he translitted in the following Year the Chalaick Faraphiase on the Pentateuch, and accompanied it with Commentaries, after which he translated the Book of fob, and the Lamentations of fere scharling much from the Hebrew, and added Notes to them He spent some Hours in explaining continuous with the scharles of the scharles (D) 3 Plate that is at Eugubio, on which there are some Inscriptions in the old infra Tuscan Language. He began a very great piece of Work in the Year 1603, I mean the Description of the World. His Plan was no less Historical than Geographical, and extended to the least Boroughs of which the Modern Writers have said any Order He died the 12th of October, 1617, after a great Rhume that had lasted

ausus sit poemata Graca in nostrum sermonem conver-tere (a) He translated a Poem of Aratus before he went to Padua

(B) And several other Works] This Remark shall only contain the Titles of some of our Baldus s Writings, I mean those that have not been mention'd in the Text of this Article, whether the Author made them during his Master's Voyage, or the nother time. If sy then a left he concluded the at another time. I say then, that he translated Heronem de automatis & balistis, the Paralipomena of Quintus Galaber, and the Poem of Museus, and that he made a Book of Mathematical Paradoxes, another translations of the property of the p he made a Book of Mathematical Paradoxes, another, de Scamillus imparibus Vitruvii, another, de Eirmamento & Aquis, another on the Description of the Temple by Exekiel, another, de Historia scribenda legibus, another, of the Antiquities of Guafialla, the Life of Frederick, and that of Gui Ubaldus, Dukes of Urbino, Oeconomia tropologica in S Mathaum, divers Latin and Italian Poems, among which that intituled Deiphobe, is an imitation of the Cassandra of Lycophron The following Remarks will give the Title of some of his other Books I shall say here, that Nicius Erythraus has reason to say that the Description of the Temple is a very difficult matter, but he was in the wrong to take difficult matter, but he was in the wrong to take jeremiah for Ezekiel Jerosolymitani templi descriptionem, says he, per Hieremiam literis consigna-tam & traditam, rem involutam & multis difficulta-tam be traditam, rem involutam & multis difficulta-tam be obsessed in the same of the same of the same (b) Id ib ligentia aperuit (b)

(C) Without excepting the Arabick | He studied

it at Rome with John Baptist Raimondi, and applied himself so much to it, and likewise to the Selavonian Tongue, that he enquir'd almost after no manner of News Roma dum viveret fere nescivit manner of News Roma and viveret fere rejeivit quid gereretur in aulis Arabica enim lingua cum Jo Baptista Raimondo diligentisseme studuit, & arcana industria Sclavonica, quam perfette callebat (c) He translated the Geographical Garden of an anonymous Author out of Arabick, and composed a Dictionary of that Language He believed that that unknown person lived towards the end of the Xth Century If Mark Vilseus and not been dead, he would have caused the Translation of that Geographical Work. caused the Translation of that Geographical Work, and the other Writings of Baldus, to be printed (d) (D) In the explaining of a Plate that is at Eugubio] Schoockius having but a confused Notion of this Work of Bernardin Baldus, ascribed another to him that is none of his "Literquilinio Anniano Bernardinus Baldus nuper collegit Antiquitates Lthruscas anno 1637 Florentiz cvulgando volumen typis perquam elegantibus cujus hæc inferiptio, Ethrusearum antiquitatum fragmenta qui-bus urbu Roma aliarumque gentium primordia, mores " & res gesta indicantus, a Gurtio Inchiramio reperta

" Scornelli propi Vulteriam anno salutis M D C XXVII
" Ethrusco vero CID CID CID CCC XCV" (e) Could (e) Schoola Man who knew that Bildus died in the Year 1617, kius de sahave committed such a Fault? That which is the bula Hamore furprising is, that the same Schoockius, havmore surprising is, that the same Schookhus, having fpoke after that manner in the 67th Page, pag 67 fpeaks as he ought in the (f) 217th Page. Why (f) Simils then did he not correct his Illusion? Perhaps he satione had forgot it, as it happens but too often to those who are for Wisting much. They can hadly maintain that Character without Copying in haste what Scharlowerus says concerning that Work of require what Scharloncinus fays concerning that Work of Baldus Tabulam Etruscam Lugubinam interpretatus fuit in ea autem divinatione, ut ajebat, subcissivas uni-us mensis horas consumpsit. Our Baldus appears in the new Edition of the Eponymologium of Magirus, only that we may know that he publish d a Book in the Year 1637, the very fame that Schoockius quaginta airribes to him. A very good Choice indeed evulgan(E) He finish'd that Book as to the Matter] These do sum are the Words of his Historian. Totum opus ad umquass discountry.

are the Words of his Historian Totum opus ad umbilicum perduxit non digessit tamen universum, quatuor vinatioaut ni fallor quinque tantum tomi sucrunt ordine alphabetico dispositi superessen septem aut osto disponendi, tabulam quantum ex chartarum & fasciculorum mole conjicere Aneam licet I do not believe that Fabricius She arlonoinus Lugubihas given an impersest List of our Baldus's Works, nam linbut according to the ill Custom of most of those guasseries but, according to the ill Custom of most of those guaEtrus that give those sorts of Lists, he does not distinct a veteri guish the Books that have been printed from those perscripthat have not I have not transcribed all the tam, si-

(F) After a great Rhume that had lasted Forty Days tendo OI thought I might thus translate Scharloneinus's pera Mar words, Posteaguam dies 40 veheminti Distillatione vewatus suisser Vossius understood a Catharre by Distilviri calatio, and he is not in the wrong to pretend that teroquin these two words are Synonymous That of Rhume judicio-seem'd more proper to me, for commonly a Ca-sissimi la thare does not continue forty Days More i found ibid paghere by a great militale an Apoplexy of forty 217 Days P & B

melensi, roquin longe dohinc ferme quinquaginta pera Marcı Velseri

(c) F1britius Scharloncinus in cjus vita

• Order

Jic

hr

* Taken ter of Fabricius Scharloncinus ad ıllustrisimum & reverendiffimum num Lrfcopum Balneoregicniem ex Nunti um Apofolic um ad Polonæ (c/(m see also NICIUS Ery th tus, Pinacoth

1 p 4 and the Funera' Oration of Baldus by MukAnthony Virgilius, not Printed in the Year 1607, as Mr Teilfier lays, Biblioth p 220 but mile Year, 1617 t See the Hiftory of the French Academy, pag 23c, & 258 I The State of I rance of the dead

A. rdemists between

Contart

and des

Marets

Conrart

died in Septembur 1675 (a)Scharloncinus ubi fupra (b) A piandio Luclidem arabice editum vel libellum alıguem Germanicum aut in manus

Gillicum " fumebat It it (1) Id b (d) Se t/ Prefice of Mr Chinut's Memons nut's Memors (c) In the Comparison of Demoinenes with Cicero (f) It as I trinslate diebus tests omnibus factum factebat Which Bore not appearant only that he officiated every Holy-Day But it can to be demed that Way is contain d in the Latin Words of Scharloncinus (g) The Latin Words of Scharloncinus (g) Pellision Hist de l'Acad Franc p 229 (22) Edit 1852, in 12

He was extreamly (G) laborious, without Ambition, or Vain-glory, Forty Days * always ready to excuse other Mens Faults, (which he grounded on (H) a very good Reason), very Devout, not only for a (I) Mathematician, but also for a Church-

BAIESDLNS (John) Advocate in the Lament of Paris, and in the Coult, was of Paris. He was admitted into the Free Lademy about the Year 164, the 100m of Malleville, and if he had not yield his (A) Pretentions to Mr Corneille, he had increded Mainard who died before Leville. The Chancellor Sequier was his Mecenas † He publish'd several (B) Wo of which he was not the Author. I think he lived || till towards the Year 1676. I have not found his Name in the Request of Differences. num Epi- the Request of Dictionaries, and yet it (C) ought to be there according to the Me-

(G) He was extreamly Laborious] He would rife at Midnight to study, and he read also while he was eating In studies sie assiduus fuit ut sepe & legeret & comederet S Augustini de civitate Dei ter inter prandium evolvit, statim à nostis meridie dum ei vires sirmiores essent ad lucubrandum surgebat (a) He reckon'd an (b) Fueled translated into Arabick for one of his Books of Recruition Happy those that can labour to much without impairing their Health Felices quibus ista licent, miramur & illos, Et nostr

(H) Which I e grounded on a very good reason I If we knew those openly, said he, whom we take for the best Men, we should not find any that should not appear to us to deserve to be whipt, Facile parcendum esse dicebat (c) iis maxime qui in re levi impegissent, quoniam si juos censemus optimos, nudos confrice-remue, nullum cosum non judicaremus multis dignum verberibus. I his may teem to be stretch'd too far Perhaps it were better to keep to Cardinal Mazarin & Maxim, he find, (d) That the grea of Mon were like Listims, which being never to exactly chosen, had always fomething bad when their Intrails were examin d On this occasion I remember a Passage of Father Rapin (c), which feem'd very judicious to me the first time I read it It is a thought which he makes use of in order to make Giero's Apology There are certain things in the bottom of the Souls of the greatest Men, which if they could be perceived, they would be found to be as mak as others and that often times the Keputat on of a Hero does not proceed so much from the Industry wherewith he shews his good Qualities, as from that of hiding his bad ones, and not suffering I imfilf to be penetrated

in 1650
(1) Lity devout, no' only for a Mathematician, but placer also I He fisted twice a Week, he communi-Balesdens cited (f) every Holy-Day, and he was very chain the Lift intable to the Poor His Mother said that when he was but a Year old he did not only look upon the Altars and the Images with Joy, but also with Veneration (g) With joy, I do not question it, for it is usual to Children to start at the light of Gildings, Ornaments, and Images but as for Veneration, that is another thing, they have at most but machinal Motions to which they are used Our Baldus died well furnish'd with all the Sacraments of the Church, and in the Arms of Iriars Spiritum Deo reddidt Sacramentis Ecclesia omnibus rite munituc (b) Quemadmodum santtissime vixerat, ita etiam fanctissime in complexu cucullatorum patrum extremum

vite spiritum edidit (1)

(A) If he had not yielded his Pretensions to Mr Conneille | See what the Historian of the Academy fays of it (k), "Mr Corneille was afterwards re"ceived in the place of Mr. Manual Mr. ceived in the place of Mi Mainard Mr Balef-dens had also been proposed, and as he had the Honous to belong to the Chancellor, the Academy had that respect for its Protector, as to depute five of its Members to him to know whether those two Propositions were equally pleasing to him. The Chancellor left the Company at their full Liberty, but when they began to deliberate on that matter, the Abbot of Cerify presented them with a Letter from Mi de Balefdens full of many Civilities for them and for Mr Corneille, whom "he defir'd the Company to prefer before him, protesting that he yielded that Honour to him, as being his due by all manner of Reasons. The Letter was read, and praised by the Assembly (1) In the Comparison of Demosthenes with Ci" and he (1) was fince received into the first Vacancy, which was that of the de Malleville; but I do not find on what time, the long and frequent appointions of the Secretary of the Academy, the left many Blanks on the Regulace?

in the Registers

(B) He publish d soveral Works, of which he was not the Author] Mr Pillisson (m) gives the List of all that Balesdons publish d, "He Translated the Book nat Balefdens published, "He Translated the Book intituled, The Penitent Sinner's Looking-g'ass, and among other Manuscripts which he had collected, he gave the following to the Publick Cartille dium Logica, seu Language of Conjectures, Redimenta cognition of the Public of Conjectures Rudimenta cognition of the Pierrorum Joannis Papiris Massonis, in Two Volumes Gregoris Turonensis opera pia, cum vistis Patrum su temporare in nensis opera pia, cum vitis Patrum sui temporis, in two Volumes She Atts of the Conveyance of Dauphine, made over to the Grown of France A Treatise of Brandy, by Mr John Bronaut, the King s Phyfician He publish'd also Æsop's Fables, corrected by himself, in Irench, for the King's Instruction, with Politick and Moral Maxims" Mr de Marolles

"with Politick and Moral Maxims" Mr de Marolles
(n) lays, I hat Balefdins gave him several Letterant a figurative Style, without mentioning a very number of others, of which he proposed to make very volumes, there was such a prodigious number of them. Vers curi(C) It ought to have been there according to the Wenagiana I In effect these words are found there, intheAntiThe first Verses that I made (lays Mi Menage) are the Request of Dictionaries I was looking for Rhimes to finish it Mr du Puy sent me Claquedent to Rhimes to Balcident (o) Mr Menage had the best Memory in the World, but notwithstanding he might take one thing for another in those very things that perone thing for another in those very things that pertonally concern and in I do not believe that he ries ask'd for the Rhime in question to finish his Request of Distionaries; for that in company the quest of Distinuaries; for that incomparable Satyr was finished before Balesdens came into the Academy He did not come in there before the Year nostris 1647, or 1648, and that Request was finish'd about ponaris the Year 1642, I prove it by the History of the amice li-Academy Mr Pellison says (p), That Mr Menage bellis, No suppress d that Request after he had made : he goes minis effion thus, It remained above 10 Years hid among his Papers, till a person that had them all in his keeping suffer'd himself to be robb d of that by a person not un-Infer a nimjet to be roov a of that oy a person not un-known to us, who soon gave many Copies of it. Mr Pel-lisson had faid in the same Page, I hat a Printer had lately pullish d that Request in a small form, with many faults, and that it had been since more correctly Printed, in Quarto. Without doubt he means by Printed, in Quarto Without doubt he means by that more correct Impression the Edition Menage's Miscellanes, that appear'd in the Year 1652 is the Epoch Confederal of Dictionaries was finish'd in 1642. It is be faid, that when Mr Menage was tired keeping that piece which he had suppressed when he resolved to publish to himself amounts. when he resolved to publish it himself among other Poems, he went about to inlarge it, and to put the new Members of the Academy in it, and that if Balefdens is not feen there, it is because the Rhime which Mr du Puy fent, did not please bale, mollically the so, Mr Balefdens was obliged to his Name for not receiving a terrible blow in the Request of Dictionaries, and that Name so untractable with respect to Rhiming, produced a much more savourable affails then that of (s) Triviamus and that of (s) Sed tu able effect, than that of (r) Tuticanus and that of (s) Earinus did But I do not think that recourse ought to be hid to that Supposition, for the Request, printed in the Year 1652, does not contain the Name of any Academist that entred into the Academy fince the Year 1640, and yet there were some among lib 9 1 those that entred into it since that time that lay open 12

(1) Mr Baleidens

(m) Pçlliffon whi. fupra, 358,

NO Catas those that had given of their Books

(o) Menagiana pag 109 of the first Edition of Hol-bel 15, No citur conditione tui Lex pedis of-ficio, fortunaque nominis Quaque meos adeas eft via nulla modos Ovid. 6 4 de Ponto eleg 12

(s) No-Sed tu Syllaba contumax 🐉 repugnas Martial

He had lived in the (D) College of Harcour nagiana. He had lived in the (D) College of Harcour

BALMIS (Abraham de) a fewssh Physician, born (A) at Leees in the Kingdom • Simon, of Naples floursh'd at Venice in the Beginning of the 16th Century. He composed an Critical (B) Hebrew Grammar that was Printed at Venice in Hebrew and in Latin by Daniel History of Bomberg in the Year 1523 He translated several Commentaries of Averroes on Arifootle into Latin, as also some Worksof Avem Pace, and writ a Book of his own, De m 536. Demonstratione, and another De Substantia Orbu See Gesner's Bibliotheca, and the Biblio-Let us not forget that he * taught in the University of † It was theca Rabbinnica of Bartolocci Padua, and that he was much more pleased (C) to confute what others had said, than the King's Ad-

to lay down any thing as certain BALTHASAR (Christopher) was a learn'd and worthy Man in the XVIIth He applied himself chiefly to the Study of Ecclesiastical History, and that His name Application gave him a very great Disgust for the Romsh Doctrines, and a great desire Faur to embrace the Protestant Religion He had a † considerable Post in the Presidual of Auxerre, and because he must either resolve to leave it, or not to change his Religion, + It was at he was for some time perplex'd about it But at last Conscience gain'd the upperhand, and oblig'd him to leave Auxerre, his Estate, Office, Relations and Friends, and to go to Charenton, where he was publickly received into the Reform'd Church He meny of the persever'd in it until his Death, and edified his Brethren as well by his good Life, as by syned of his Discourse The Expences that he was obliged to be at in Para being too great for the Upper the Condition he was in, and his Conversion exposing him too much in such a City as that, he consider'd that it would be better for him to retire into some Province, and she Upper was very well pleased to find himself invited to go to Castres by a || young and rich Guienne Counsellor of the Burtite Court of the Edict, who lodg'd him in his House, and allow'd him a reasonable Penna. That Counsellor thought himself very fortunate for having a Learned Man with him, who might teach him many fine things by his Instructions and Conversionance. But Mr. Political addition to the Bullion to the Bullion would be a set of the Conversion of the Conversionance. and Conversation But Mr Baltbasar desiring to labour for the Publick, would have were all his time at his own disposing, and for that reason he took leave of his Counsellor the Alls of His Design was favour'd by the National Synod of Loudun in the Year 1659, for that the National Synod of Loudun in the Year 1659, for that the National Synod of Loures, to be paid by all the Churches of the France, according to the Repartition that was made of them Before that Synod dun, in the was held, he had prepar'd a good number of 2 Differentions on material things against Synodi-Caidinal Baronius He gave four or five of them to a Minister of Castres, who was one of the Deputies of the Province of Upper Languedoc and Upper Guienne They were tom 2 ?. presented to Mr Daille, Moderator of thit National Synod, who of all the Ministers 572 was best able to judge of the goodness of those Pieces Mr Daill was very well pleafed with them, and gave all the Company a very advantageous report of them. He them the brought them to Para, where it was hoped they would have been Printed, for they were thought worthy to be published. But the Event made it appears along the published. were thought worthy to be publish'd But the Event made it appear, that no Mea-Diatribæ sures were taken, or could be taken for it The Author, who was very old, and troubled with the Stone, died; Mr Daille died also, after which the Church of Castres from a Mea-write several Letters to recover those Dissertations, but they could not so much as morial. hear what was become of them Mr Balthafar left some others that were not yet si- communinish'd, and many Collections, most of which consisted of separate Notes, wherein he cated by had fet down the Authorities and Testimonies which he was to make use of against Deveze, Cardinal Baronius It is pity that all this should remain in a Chest or Trunk, in the beretofore Possession of I know not who Mr Balthasar wrote very well in Latin, his Pane-Munister of gyrick of Mr Fouquer is in a fine Style, which is all that I have seen of him, and I Castres, gyrick of Mr Fouquer is in a line style, which is at that I have been less scrupulous about and at precannot tell whether he publish'd any thing else If he had been less scrupulous about fent of the the Language, he might have made more speed in his Refutation of Baronius. Never- Hague theless, was Mr dt

the request good Teft:-Langue-

1616
(b) That w to Mr Menage as much as he could desire Was good in the Preface of his Mr du Rier a Translator without Reproach [O) He had lived in the College of Harcour] Mr Translation de Marolles, who informs me of this (a), adds, That of the Commentaries le Landez, since Doctor of Divinity, and Uncle to the Mazures, Rectors of So Paul one after another roes in A- He says, That Balesdens was of a merry Humour, and nalytica, of a diverting Conversation at that time topica, (a) Born at Lecci] You will find these words for Arian Gesner's Bibliotheca, (b) Ibidem hic author natum se stribit in Little civitate agri Salentini que a Brundusto fribit in Little civitate agri Salentini que a Brundusto Wenice in loco sita ubi olim Rudia patria Ennii, ex reliquiis in loco sits ubs olim Rudia patria Ennis, ex reliquiss Rudiarum natta originem (c) I wonder that Topps nor Leonard Nicodemo made no mention of him in nor Leonard Nicodemo made no mention of him in the Bibliotheca Napoletana

(B) He composed an Hebrew Grammar] He intituled it Mikne Abram, that is to say, Abraham's Possifien Tather Bartolocci (d) is mistaken when he says that Daniel Bomberg translated it into Latin If he had consulted the Preface, he might have seen that Daniel Bomberg caused that translation to he (c)Geiner verso (d) Julius that Daniel Bomberg caused that translation to be made by others. In the first place he made use of the Author himself, and desir'd him to translate word for word. That Rigour was observ'd for some time. Afterwards the Author gave himself more liberty to have some Elegancy. After his Death Calonymos, who finish'd the Translation, gave himself a much freer scope, and Bomberg did not oppose it (e) This shews that de Balmis was no longer living in the Year 1523 Mr Simon (f) fays that the Translation of that Grammar is word for word, and very barbarous, (g) that in truth there is but Biblioth. little method in that Author, but that otherwise be shews fol : a a great Erudition, and that in a great many places be reproves the Errors of the Grammarians that writ before of the Pro-him Mr Huet (h) mentions what belongs to the face that Latin Translation very faithfully He says that fays the de Balmis began it, and that Calos Calonymos finish'd (f)Simon, it, that the first made it barbarous and more ob-four than the Original, and that the second, think-ing to avoid the Defects of the other, ran into the opposite Extream opposite Extream

(C) He was much more pleased to consute.] Munster charges him in this manner, (1) Abraham de Balmis, says he, nihil aliud agere mihi visus est quam veterum lib I sub doctrinam perpetuo convellere aique impugnare, magu in sinsestando occupatus quam in docendo. At in dubium tantum vocare priscoium praceptiones, cum interim nihil tius de certi statuas non doceie est sed ridere.

bus, p m 186, 187 Mr Baillet's Judgment of the Learned, tom 4 n 724 p 206 makes him say, that that Transaction was made by an unknown hand (1) Muniter in Prefat. Grammac. Elice apud Spizelum for liter p 958

P p 2 (4) Can

(e) See n Critical History of the Old Teftament, printed at Venice in ın Bıblıoth fol 1

Bartoloc-cius, Biblioth magna Rabbin

the Year

moirs pag 32 ad ann 1616

BALTHASAR. BALZAC

theless, I believe that what has been faid concerning (A) his Scruples about the Lami Tongue, as somewhat Hyperbolical. What as reported of his Ciedulty about (B), Wirchciaft, feems to me more likely

BALZAC, a finall Country Seat in Angoungle on the River Charante, is famous—for hiving (A) given its Name, and for having fer the long time for a dwelling-place to one of the most Eloquent Writers of the XVI.

Mr de BALZAC. His Name was fohn Lewis Garden and he was the Son of Williams
Mr de BALZAC His Name was fohn Lewis Garden and he was the Son of Williams Guez, (B) a Gentleman of Languedoc, who was very therwing, and who having at first applied himself to Roger de Bellegarde Mareschal of France, and Governor of the Marquifore of Salueer manage'd several Affairs very wisely. Before he was 26 Years of Are he fate of Salucer, manag'd several Assairs very wisely Before he was 26 Years of Age, he was sent to the Court of Philibert Emanuel Duke of Savoy, about some Negotiations of Consequence, wherein he had good Success, and gain'd the Listeem of that Prince Some time that he was Governor to the Son of the Mareschal de Bellegarde That young Lord was kill'd in the Battle of Coutras, * in the Year 1587 The Father died t in the Year 1579 of that William Guez having lost those two Patrons, went to the Juke of Epernon, who deind to have him near him. He did him great Services in the eral trouble-stone Occasions. Henry IV having seen the Dexterity, Probity, and Firmness which that Gentleman showed in the Butinesses for which the Duke of Epernon sent him to the Court, would | willingly have oblig'd him to keep in his Service, but found him more inclin'd to a Provincial I ise than to that of the Court, with which his Virtue could not early agree. That good Gentleman fix'd himself in the rovince of Angoumois, where he died the 20th of September, 1650, aged an himself in the rovince of Angoumois, where he died the 20th of September, 1650, aged an had

felm Hist of the great Offic pag 194 † Id ib | See choice Letters of Balzac, p 364 Edit of Holland

x 1 480

> (A) Concerning his Scruples about the Latin Tongue] Among leveral pieces that the Abbot of Marolles caused to be printed in the latter Years of his Life, there is one that contains the Names of those who had presented him with their Books, or who had extraordina-rily honour d him with their Kindnesses. There we find the following Words. "Christopher Ralthazar who the following Words "Christopher Ralthazar who had writ fo many Collections with his own hand " for divers Historical Manuscript Treatises He defign'd to make fome Animadversions on the Annals of Baronius, but went a little too late about it, and had not yet form'd his Style, intending morcover to turn it after too elegant a manner, infomuch that he could not make a whole Page in one day, though he was above 63 Years of Age" If the Abbot of Marolles had dated the time which he pointed at, we had known at what Age Mr Balthafar obtain'd a Pention from the Synod of Loudun (B) Concerning his Credulity about Witchin aft] The fame Abbot of Marolles supplies me with all the Commentary of this Lext—The Passage is some-Commentary of this I ext I he Passage is somewhat long, but I will not abbreviate it What is not useful for one thing, may serve for another Let us return (a) again into our Closet, where one day in a Company of learned Men, where Mr Balthasarwas, who is o skiltul in the knowledge of History, and Mr de Soibieres, whole Affability and Learning deserve also much commendation. The one, who being a Catholick, imbraced the (b) pretended reform'd Religion, and the other, who being a Piotestant, return d to the Catholick (hurch. Whereupon the first having been taken in land. It can be the motives of ving been taken in hand, because the motives of his Change could not be comprehended, considering his great Knowledge, faid, he was brought to it by the Persuasion which he had conceived that there was more Purity and Simplicity in the other Communion than in ours. That the Holy Liberty of the Gospel was re-establish'd in it, under the mild yoke of the I aith of our Lord's Promises, and that the Abuses and Superstitions agreeable to the use of the Primitive Church All the parts of his Answer were denied, but that being to no purpose, other Matters were deficured, and from Miracles they came to salt of a great many Stories that we salt of Sor talk of a great many Stories that are told of Sorcerers, and of divers Apparitions that Children would hardly believe, whereby it appear'd that he who had thewn himself to be such an Enemy to Superstition, admitted it in some measure by a fufficient Credulity for those things, besides, having explain d himself on the vain Predictions of Aftrologers, he shew'd plainly that he adher'd but too much to them, as also to those of Nostrabut too much to them, as allo to those or Noura"damas in his Centuries, than at she nothing can be more barbarous. This was a udgment of the Thole Company as present the "Abbot () Talman, a carts, Mr Bauthe Abbot of Verdus, who are so free popular Errors, with Mr de'a H "piniers" so reasonable in " all his Opinions, de la le Bossa, Gover" nor of Gen, who knows to many good things,

" and delivers them so nobly, and some others,
" whereof one alone endeavour'd to maintain the Opinion that had been rejected "

"Opinion that had been rejected"

(A) For having given its Name] I cannot tell what Morei builds upon, when he fays that those of the Family of Guez have bore the Name of the I ordship of Balsac First of all he ought to have known that that Village must be (e) written Balsace, and that Balsac with an sis the Name of the ancient Family of Balsac d'Entragues Sections. ancient Family of Balfac d'Entragues Second difupr none but John Lewis Guez bore the Name of the Se ex So his Father always kept the Name of this Family (7), tello m and if after the Death of John Lewis some of the the Judg Relations caused themselves to be called Balzac, I do not believe it came to Mr Moreri's know-ledge What has been faid by some Persons, (g) That if Mr de Balzac had not taken the name of his Lordfip, his Family Name being put on the Front of his Works would not have being fuch good success in the World, and that People wealth was have had so great an Idea of his Letters, if they had been intituled Monsieur Guezs.

Letters, and that "tis believed that the Name of Bal-Zac being taken for that of a Noble and Ancient House fufficiently known, gave him the more Authority, this, I say, is partly likely, and partly very false it is likely that such a plain Name as that of Guez, (b) might have prejudiced an Author in the Title of a Book; but it is very false that John Lews Guez 22d Let-put the Name of Balzac at the Title Page of his ter, p 764 Books, to avoid this Inconveniency, and to make a Passage People believe that they came from a great Lord, that was the thing which sored would be at with his confused and perplexing Expressions Once again, this is false, for John Lewis Guez had taken the Name of Balzac, before he thought of Printing his Letters I cannot apprehend from whence it came valuer d'that Mr Menage, who caused that Author's Her and Latin Letters to be printed, where is (1) Meat the top of the Title, and it the top of the rate where is the top of the Title, and it the top of the rate where the rate wh Page, the Name of Joannis Ludovici Guez , Balkacii, Jupra and (1) that there is there the Name of Joannie Movici Guefai Balzacii I should think that the ter of the Anti-Baillet put Guelai instead of Guel I did not see the same (k) fault in a very con Edition of Mr Menage's Poems

(B) William Guez, a Gentleman of Languedoc] arAmster Sometimes Mi de Balzac represents his Extraction, io as to give us a high Idea of it He fays, (1)
That those to whom he has the Honour to be related have founded some Monasteries in several Parts of the Kingdom, and that Angouleme and Toulouse are proud of the tokens of their Piety. He tells us in another place, (m) That the Great Grand-sather of his Great Grand-sather was gratified by the Countels. Alix with three Parishes in Languedoc. Theophile gives his a quite contrary idea of Mr. de-Theophile gives us a quite contrary Idea of Mr de Balzae's Family

(C) Aged an Hundred Years] I have made use of Lette a round Number after Mr de Gira, whom I have Balza quoted, but I ought to restrike the thing a little Edir by the means of a (n) Letter of Mi Guez to his Son, Holy

(a) Sorel's He knowledge had of good Books, p 28 edit of Holland, and Meti-Baillet tom I p 4 have ob-Served st (f) Anti-Badlet, 16 Apred Sarefram bi fupra, & ex Soment of the Learned, tom 1 p 484 (b) Secthe Preface of History of C lvinism, of Maimcure Galant about the Letters of the Che-> tt tion of Wetstein dam,168 (l) Muscel land Vork Letters. p 36/ (n) It is in the 36 Page of th

Choice Letters

(b) The Memours of the Abbot of Marolles were printted off the 5th of January, 1655 M Balthafar had therefore made bis Abjuration in 1658, at

(a) Mr

mours of the Abbot

P 276

Marolles,

(c) He ought to rue faid THIS mant

(d) He ought to home facil Bourdehad married a Gentlewoman of the Family of Nefmond, with whom * he lived Sixty-, * Sheliv'd folir Years in perfect Concord Among other Children he had the Lanious Mr de until the Tean 1653 Belgiae by her, of whom I am going to ipak See the Latin Elogy of William Guez, See the Belgiae by her, of whom I am going to ipak See the Latin Elogy of William Guez, See the booked by Mr d Grine, and printed at the end of the Christian Secretes. I have 1, th Letter from it white was just now read, to which I add, First, That William Guez did to of Balaton in the first time his de Bulzae saw that fimous are companied by the Father had a guised bimself as a Casuchin. Secondly, That 11 - Book 3 mong several other vertues of William Guez, Don Peter de St Romanda praises the Magnithesia Book 3 to Balance, and in that of his Letter 27 than the House was surnelled with such examples and particular to Chape-House at Anrewseme That House was furnished with such enquisite Rarius, and particu- to Chapelarly for the Pittures and other Ornaments that the Quent Mother Many d Medes would be made no where the during her shode in the work with a particular of the other body. hodge no where else during her abode in Ingouleme I midh, in a call of his other Chronol Sons was call'd' Mi de Roussines Fourthly, That he had a Daugher, who (D) is cit- ad ann ten mention d by Mensieur de Balzac

BAIZAC (John Lewis Guez Siet r do) was Born it zinge derie in the Year (A) Har a Balzae

1595 He acquir'd in extraordinary Reputation very early Indie v et to firm, i I an write the by, so much Eloquence, and so many uncommon Thoughts in the Lecters which he 4 rh Let wrotein his younger Yours, that those who saw them were chained with 'can, and terrof the wrotein his younger Yours, that those who saw them were chained with 'can, and terrof the wrotein his younger Yours, that those who saw them were chained with 'can, and terrof the saw to the Candida de l. Unlarge state Book pidis'd 'em every v'here So that being in the H Service of the Cudic 1 de l Val tie, to him

ligned Guez, and dated the oth of November 1642

He was then enter A not good Year of his Ag. He was not therefore the country of his Death September 1650 the dry of his Death
I hat Letter is a printed, at the ell the Apologies against Phyllarchus

Manufcripts to be printed, but affect ill the Ajologies ag unif Phyllarchus

(D) A Daughter, who is often nention'd by Mi de Balzac] She was Murved to Mi de Campagnolle, who died Captun of the Guards at the Siege of Montauban, and who was the Brother of a Riave Man whom Mr de Thou mentions (a) fometimes

That Captun of the Guards left a Son who was kill d (b) at the Seige of Lens, and a Daughter who is the I ady of CAMPAGNOLLF, that is fome-time that we much Love for that Niece, and give.

The Captun of the Guards left a Son who was kill d (b) at the Seige of Lens, and a Daughter who is the I ady of CAMPAGNOLLF, that is fome-time of the I advice for her Education See his choice Letters of the 7th Book in the Ldition in Folio I have found a passige in a I citer of Costar that concerns the Lady of Campagnolle Ar Balzac (says he) (d) You wants not low for you, but that you should love her a little rine. I his he want to be street in the thirty of the start of the thirty should be seen a little rine. I his he want to be street of the thirty should be seen a little rine. I have feel the street of the thory thirty should be seen a little rine. I have feel the street of the thory thirty should be seen a little rine. I have feel the street of the thory thirty should be seen a little rine. I have feel the street of the thory thirty should be seen a little rine. I have feel the street of the thirty should be seen a little rine. I have feel the street of the thory thirty should be seen a little rine. I have feel the street of the thory the street of the street of the thory the street of the thory the street of t of the 6th little 110 ef th 6th little time. This he will to there I have feen mother Brok wherein there is iomething that the Ard of the 9th I anglade (4) one of those whom (udinal Marain (d) See the 1 polony d most in his private Negotiations, had f) lock 29th Letter of Voic Court, that was called Midemostelle de Compagnol 11ed did not dare to propose Minimum to her how He did not dire to propose Marriage to her, but he had exacted a Promise from her that she ture's and " should not Marry, promiting also to let her know when his Fortune should be in a condition to make her happy. He trufted Gourville with the Promise he had made to that young I ady, and told him with some discontent, that tries of the a he thought he had not a fufficient Istate to pretend to that alliance, having in all but Forty thousand Crowns Gourne He told him that he about that, and that is might go with all assurance and conclude his form the might go with all assurance and conclude his form the might go with all assurance and conclude his form the might go with all assurance and conclude his form this assurance. I anglade departed, and response of the found that he had not forgot her. They were some of the found that he had not forgot her. They were some of the found that he had not forgot her. They were some of the found that he had not forgot her. They were some of the found that he had not forgot her. They were some of the found that he had not forgot her. They were some of the found that he had not forgot her. They were some of the found that he had not forgot her. They were some of the found that he had not forgot her. They were some of the found that he had not forgot her that the lumination of the found that he had not forgot her that the lumination of the found that he found that Gourville had taken a fine House for them, and furnished that he lumination of the found that he found th " tend to that alliance, liaving in all but Forty new Married Couple lived yet a long time very

"lovingly together

(A) Uni Born at Angouleme is the Year 1595

I have not found this in any Book, but ice how I have interral it out of two Letters of Balzac He the thanks ment one (n in one of these two Letters the thanks which he had given to Mr. S. 11/2 min 149, Spanheim for the fine Speech which he had received from him, and n bich I had received an I im a Fr. no. i' expects by the Pars I ad intention from Without cloubt, that he had not a still he had been been considered or the fine of the formal or the fine of t Hem), Prince of Orange it may be supposed that France herecord at in the Year 1648, for he was nor p 121 quick in uniwering, he was therefore 53 Years of the 2d quick in influence, he was therefore 53 Xears of the 2d A c in 164°, and in fi configurately be Born in ed t 1595. In the other letter () die d the 1, 1 Octo- (1) It is bo 1637, he fich of Writing which he made at 17 Years of Age, and he frys, that it was 25 the 1dBook whole Year fince he made it. So that he was 4 Years of Age when he write that Letter, and therefore he must be Born in 1595, St Romusald (1) Chron (1) places his Brithin the Year 1598. For he was, Abridgenius his 25 Tears of Ag. in the 7 at 1626, but he forment at

(k) places his Birth in the Year 1598 For he was, Abridgings he, 25 Tears of Ag in the T at 1626, but he forment ad pot to prove that Reidor. I do not differable that ann 1598 I have found a passage which proves that Balzac vas Born in 1596. I quote it in the kemaik B. The imaliant vitting which he composidat i Years. A WRI-of Age, is worth a Digicshor II owns, (I) that in TING making of it, he committed both is fault in day tellogible, and excuses himself the best he can on his by Bileac Youth, and on that he carroos die in Holl and without at 17 Youth, and on that be corrossed it in Hollind without at 17 assigning to publish it in print. He took it very ill Yous of that He nsur revived that Fault. This is an incom- Age venience to which Authors that are any thing the mous are commonly hable. There arises a Quarrel 1 orh I erthat coules their Antegonists to search enefully to the total the tot for the least fault of their Youth to reproach them publick's with it I do not wonder that fome have pelain, believed that at that time Balzac would not have refer to do make his I outune in Holland under the Profession of a Hugi cnot. Before I read the Writing in our thou I read at the Writing in question I took it to be a rash Judgment, but I have alter d my Opinion since Mr M nately (n) tavour d (n) H alter d my Opinion fince Mr Mnatoli (n) tavourd (n) H; me with a transcript of that Piece He has a print-provided ed Copy of it of the I dition that Heinstein caused to with a be made at Legden in the Yeur 1630. The Title of great numit is, A Political Discourse on the State of the United ber of such Provinces of the Netherlands by I I D B a trench rare pieces, Gentleman It is always Piece of 4 or 5 Pages, which he substant has full of Wir and Thoughts but takens. Work is very fine, full of Wit and Thoughts, but rook great Office at Leyden, and who received a Salary from lest the States of Holland, would not have decided fo strongly for the Justice which who received a balary from lest the States of Holland, would not have decided so strongly for the Justice wherewith the States degraded Philip II and would not have sought such refin'd Praites for Holland, nor fuch piercing Invectives against the Spanish Government, nor in short such studied Maxims in favour of Liberty of Conscience. So that it is an excusable thing to suspect that the brench Gentleman sounded per hips the business by that stying Sheet, and that if the Republick struck with admiration for such time Pen, and so well affected, had offer'd a good Oshee, the Author of 17 Years of Age would have preferred it before his Country and his Catholi-

Mi de Pil~ai travell'd into Holland in the Year 1612 with In ophil, to who n (i we may believe I wher (o) Gouli) ne play da scor vy In k at that time, (o) I otter thich occ though the Discord tha was between that of Phyll Pue in l Balwae The terrible Letter that Theophile I part couse to be wanted against his I ellow-I raveller, pag 257 167 Cache had worth two or three unpleasant Advent restricted flock itys he, of the plundering of Artlors, Done had be son-in-law accuses you of inorly to f The four trapent to lave formerly you for he ing cudgell d (n) H

he H Sorel,

(b), It is the 14sh of the 1st Book to Conrart -

Coftar's

Conferences p 249 (e) Galan-

Kings of France,

tom 2 p

he was foon known to the Court; and so far, that Cardinal Rechiles, to whom he had written several times, did him the honour to answer him very obligingly fwer was printed with Balzac's Letters, the first Edition whereof is of the Year 1624. He thought himself to be in the way of a very great (B) Fortune, his Letters sold so well that several Lditions of 'em were made, they were prais'd beyond measure, but not with the unanimous consent of all Readers. Some Men of a contradicting Spirit started up, whether they were excited by Envy, as is not unlikely, or whether the weak Passages of Balzac's Works were discover'd Those Dissentions having reign'd for some time in Companies, became a publick War in the Year 1627. but one of the most cruel Wars that ever was seen of that kind It was begun by a young Monk, who compos'd a little Book intitl'd Conformity of Mr Balzac's Eloquence with that of the greatest Persons of the past and present times. Tho' that Piece was not made publick, it went nevertheless from Hand to Hand, almost as if it had been Printed, and no Body was ignorant that a Feuillant call'd Brother (C) Andrew was the Author of it. Mr. de Balzac desir'd that it should be publickly Consuted, which was done in the Apology (D) publish'd by Ogier in 1627 The General of the Feuillants, whose Name at that time was I ather Goulu, took Brother Andrew's Cause in hand, and under the Name * of Phyllarchus wrote two Volumes of Letters against Balzac with an extraordinary Heat, as I have faid in his Article That Quarrel was the occasion of many † Books, and was fuch a Storm as almost overwhelm'd Mr Balzac, as well because of the Artisices of his Enemies, as because he had given some hold to his Criticks by some bold Hyperboles, vain Sallies, and ticklish Propositions He let that Storm pass without answering (E) his Adversary, upon whose Death, which happen'd in the Year 1629.

That is to fay Prince of Leaves, by way of allusion to bis quality of General Feuillants + Bibloth Franc de Sorel uba lupra See the Article Vaverfac

(d) Entret

8 p 132 Edit in

(e) That falls in the Year

1618

12

(B) He thought himself in the way of a very great Fortune 1 It is a pleasant thing to hear him relate the reasons of his great Hopes Read then the 2d Story which he tells in (d) his Entretient, it concerns him Among other things, you will find there the proof of what I have faid concerning the Elogies that were given to his Letters, tho' they were not yet printed. He tells us, That the Bishop of Luçon being recall'd from his (e) Exile, exercial him entraordinarily, and called him an Illusarejs a him entraordinarity, and called him an Illustrious Man, a rare Man, an extraordinary Person, and that having invited him to Dinner one Day, he said to many Persons of Quality, that were at Table with him, Here's a Man (that Man was then but 22 Years of Age) to whom we must do good) when it lies in our power, and we must begin with an Abby of Ten thousand Livres a Year Is it not true, that a Man hall searce see a from heavening? Man shall scarce see a finer beginning? Money would Man shall scarce see a siner beginning? Money would have been lent him upon this at Rome, and Wagers would have been laid on his future Advancement Nevertheless matters went no farther Cardinal Richelieu did not remember what the Bishop of Luçon had said This puts me in mind of a passage of the (f) Menagiana "Monsieur de Balzac aspir d first to be a Bishop, afterwards would have been "contented to be an Abbot, but he did not suc-"ceed in either of those Designs Nay, he said
"in one of his Works, that he should never be "an Abbot, unless he built the Abby (C) A Feuillant call d Brother Andrew] He was of Mans, (g) he reconcil'd himself afterwards to Mr Balzac, and went to fee him at Angouleme Mr Balzac entertain'd him magnificently, and contracted a cordial Friendship with him, which con-tinu'd as long as he (b) liv'd He wrote several Letters to him, wherein he styles him, The Reverend Father Don Andrew de St Dennis See particularly one of the Differentions printed with the Christian Socrates, and among the Latin Letters the Poem intitled, Iter speratum, preceded by a Letter wherein Balzac relates the change of that Monk with much Joy, and makes use of this fine exclamation

O super: tanto-ne placuit concurrere motu Another Latin (1) Letter which preceds that, informs us, that Brother Andrew, who according to Possure's expression had been the Helena of that War, having heard that Mr Balzac was dead, mented and prais d him Now having been after-wards inform'd, that the news was talk, he be-came a good Friend of that pretended deceas d, and therefore made it appear, that he was not in the Case of this Sentence. Case of this Sentence

Virtutem (k) incolumem odimus, This circumstance must not be forgot (1) that this Religious, who was then brior of the Convent of St. Memin near Orleans, had no sooner heard of Mr. Balzae's dangelous dekness, but that he affembled all his Monks to key with him for the fick Person The latter being recovered gave a Persuming-pan for the Altar of their Church of 400 Livres value, and an Annual Revenue to supply it continually with Perfumes If Morers had menti-on'd the evident Marks of Balzae's sincere Reconcilion'd the evident Marks of Balzac s sincere Reconcilation with Brother Andrew, and with Father Garaffe, this place of his Dictionary would not have been found destitute of Judgment He past at first for the most Eloquent Manin France That Reputation, the Envy of Some Men against him, and the Quarrel which he had toward the Tear 1627 with Father Goulu General of the Feuillants, and others, is sufficiently known Novertheless, every Body was persuaded of Mr Balzac s Sincerity and Generosity, who dy'd most Christianly as he had liv'd What a strange leap from the Year 1627, to the Year 1654 in so few Lines! And besides, what is that Sincerity and that Generosity which every Body was nevertheless persuaded of, good for? Was that the Business in question? The question was, only to know, whether Balzac was a good, eloquent, and orthodox Author

quent, and orthodox Author

(D) The Apology publish'd by Ogier] There have been various reports on the true Author of that Work Some believ'd that he who father'd it upon himself was really the Author of it Others beon himself was really the Author of it Others believ'd, that he only lent his Name to a Piece Compos'd by Balzac himself. See here what Mr. Manage says of it, (m) Prior Ogei Answer'd those Books of Father Goulu against Mr. Balzac by a Book which he intense the with some Learning and Elegancy. But Oger astensited only the Dottrinal part of it. And all that was Peter Ay-Elegant in it, was written by Mr. Balzac. I have heard Mr. de Racan, and Mr. de Gomberville, say so several times. They had seen Mr. Balzac I have have seen that Work Moreover, I have read, that Mr. de in the Balzac speaking of that Work, said, that he was the Remark & Father of it, and Oger only the God-sather, that he of Father had supply'd the Silk, and Oger only the Canvase It is. Goulus's likely, that because it was thus publickly spoken Article of, the Sieur de la Moster-Aigron sear'd such another that Mr. Destiny, and endeavour'd to prevent it by declaring in his Presace to his Answer to Phyllarchas deceived in that the Advice which he had received from several places that they would give his Book a Master, she Apoleoblig'd him to advertize all his Readers, That there gy publishs was no Roger there that fought under the Amis of Leo, by the Prithat he had not the Complatiance of those that er Oger will suffer themselves to be provided with Chilwas no Roger there that fought under that his Books should be made for him, and as that in this respect, Pather his Friends were as much strangers him, as those Goulus's that liv'd in the remotest parts of the World He Books than himself. This will be shew'd at length in (a) the Advice will be shew a the remotest parts of the World He Books. Letters had been very falsely ascrib'd to others. liev'd, that he only lent his Name to a Piece Com-

his Article

(E) He let that Storm pass without answering his of the ArAdversary I consels, that at that time he took Pen in Hand to compose his Relation to Menander, but that Piece was not printed till a long time asgran

his Article

(g) St Romuald, Continuad ann 1627

(f) pag

at Chron Ademarı (b) See bu care for Fa Andrew's interest in the 17th and 18th Letters of the 4th Book to Conrart written in the Year

1653 (1) Pag 268 k) Horat 04 24 l 3 (I) Preface to Mx Balzac's Works, and the Relation of his

Death

The Publick began to recover from the projudices wherewith they Balzac a Calm enfu'd had suffer d themselves to be inspir'd against Mr Balzec, who making a good use of his makes me Disgrace, and of the small Success of his (I) Prime, settled himself at his Countrytransfer House, where he did not only purify his Mind and Style, but his Heart also, and by not some his Gommerce (G) of Letters, and by the Writings which he publish'd there from the time to time, he picserv'd the Reportion of a Man of very great worth, and who was the best Pen of France Novembeles it must be consessed that his Style savours too much of Labour, and that the thrush his Thoughts is sometimes too much affected, and feldom natural enough but without his Letters have not that easy An, and that happy a fracet Sprightfulness that shines in those of Voiline, yet they are very pleating, and have a and ingecert in lively and serious Gaicty that is almost inimitable. There appear also many lancholy choice strokes of Leaning, and well-apply'd in all his Writings. In a Word, one canas appears not sufficiently admire, considering in what condition he found the French Tongue, in his Leshow he could trace such a fair way to the neutrons of the Style. It must not be wonder'd at that his Writings savour of Labour. His chief Character was Flevation and he never speaked in Grandeur, which cannot be attain'd to without Meditation. It is very likely, that mithous future Ages will do him Justice for the Discredit wherein some Citticks kept his Pro- tickling ductions for a confiderable time Which did not hinder a good number of very exthe Heart, cellent knowing Men to persevere constantly in their first Admiration. He was a and inspected good Latin Poet, and his Latin Letters make it appear that he writ very nicely in There

The reason of the confidence appears by these Words of Balzac's at conference Tou may remember the cruel Personne the was kindled against me above 20 Years against may be seen kerre, if he had come down to plead my Cause The Fastion was too strong, and too passionate to expect a right Judgment from the and too passionate to expect a right Judgment from the God be thanked, the Storm is over, and after it a Calm is come Things being chang d, it is to be behev & that Right will also take place again I he Author finding himielt at that time importun'd again thor finding himself at that time importun'd again to publish his Defence, yielded to it Menander, to whom he Addresses his Relation, is (b) Mainard Though that Relation be accompany d with the factoric of fome of the passages which Father Goulu has Criticial, yet it is rather a general Answer two Volumes of Phyllarchus Balzae justify'd also (c) some passages that a Destor of Louvain and Dostor of Bezançon had Criticia'd I find something amis in his Calculation. It appears by his 27th Conversation that he did not resolve to pub-27th Conversation that he did not resolve to publish his Apologies, till above 20 Years after the Persecution that Phyllarchus rais'd against him Nevertheless, it is most certain, that the Volume of his Micellaneous Works, of which the Discouries to Menander are a very confiderable part, was printed in the Year 1645 and that his Bookieller fays in it, That the Author could not refuse the Publication of it at the repeated Instances of his Father, who was 91 Years of Age If you compare Mr.

Guez s I etter, which I have mention d in the Remark C of the foregoing Article, with that Advertisement to the Reader, you will find that the refolution of printing the Apologies against Phyllarchus is of the Year 1644. How can this agree with the 27th Conventition?

(1) Of the small success of his Plince] The Author's I riends had promised that Work as a Master-piece that would silence all the Criticks, espefter-piece that would filence all the Criticks, especially those who accus d Balzac of being incapable of thing any thing but Letters. The Event did aniwer those expectations, that Book added ing to Balzac's Reputation of Fortune, and him some trouble from the Sorbonne. Those Marquis of Aytona, had (a) caused it to be Letter 4. The Line at Brussels, nevertheless it was mentioned in the utmost Contempt, in an Aniwer of the versations, abbot of St. Germain, and as a Book that had been supplied by the Censure of the Doctors, and the Sentence of the Judges a Month after its birth. Mr. Pellison (e) says that in the Year 1636 Balzac read some part of his French, which he call d then the Minister of State to the French. Academy. Which might make one believe that it first he had only a mind to make the Cardinal's that at first he had only amind to make the Cardinal's But you must know that Mr Pellison was Elogy But you must know that Mr Pellison was mistaken The Prince was printed in the Year 1631 That Book was to have been followed by two other Books, the last whereof was call d Minist r of State Some find that he praises the Cardinal more in his Some show the King. (See the 7th Page of the Prince, than the King (See the ,7th Page of the 15th Volume of the Bibliotheque Universille) but that is false We find in the 8th Book of that Author's Letters that which the Faculty of Theology wrote to him, to notify to him, that they were fatisfy d with his offers to alter what they had found worthy of Censure The Latin Letter which h full of he writ to a lather of the Christian Dostrin concerning that Sorbonnical Process, is admirable It is that is but in the 187th Page of his En fola fileta in the Lditi- terthanal on of Paris 1651 in 12

OBSIRVL, That fome Perfons have affur d, in that that Work was one of the Author's best Writings It is thus, Sir, that yourfelf have practisd Richelet, it in your Prince, and in your Relations to Menander Letters, which are the two great Miracles of your Art, and the utmost strain of Hook Floquence. I have trys Costar in his Detence of Volume. Mi. R. ch. let frys in his Remarks (f) on tome 1 etters 11 at the Prince and the Aristippus are two of the most bloquent Pieces of Balzac. If a Judgment of the Metit of Balzacs Prince was to be made by the number of I ditions, it Menigra-would be very advantageous "At first came ni, p 112, " our two I ditions in Parata it and a first came ni, p 112, out two Editions in Quarro it one time, tich an other in the fame form, but in finaller Chaia- See Mr. Eters, and full of Faults, which I believe was Permult printed at Niore, of at Poitiers Afterwards there also in was one in the latter and out that of Bouillerot Elocy in 8 but Corrected, and laftly the I dition in 12 of Courbe? These words we tale in from 1 (f) Page "In 8 but Corrected, and lattive the Lattion in

"12 of Courbe". These words are talen from a (f) Pa

Letter which Mi du Rondel was pleas d to write to m 97 me the 10th of May 1698. I will quote mother part of it I have lately bought, tays he, the Prince of the 1st Flatton, wherein I found with unsprakable delight what Mr de Balzie had written, and what he afterwards after d and took out, and it wa only a this time that I rightly apprehended what Scaliger meant with his detrahendo techrauctiorem. Balzac by cutting off 5 or 6 places supprest Laintness, re-anima ted Weakness, increased his Stringth, and excited the Attention that was going to for sake the Read: I make use of an Edition in 4 which is of the Year 163.

The place where it was printed is not set down, but doubtless it was at Rouen I have seen one There is in the Title, The second Edition corrected Mi Perrault, who prais d Balzacs (g) Arist ppus 10 much, Ind nothing advantageous of the Price Illerians only, that that Work appear d after the Missellancous Works. I am certain he will not cellaneous Works I am certain he will not the it amis, it I observe that he is mistaken. I of the Miscellaneous Works did not appear till a long time after the Prince (h) Let us end with a passage of Gabriel Naudé (1) Quibus omnibus velut coron dem accessisse ferunt Balsaci, Viri Glarissimi, Principem, Gallica modo pumice deligenter expositum Verum enimolica modo pumice diligenter expolitum Verum enimoro, quoniam ipfe liber post meum è Gillia d fiessam typis fuit demandatus, ut propt rea nondum in manu m as pris fuit demandatus, ut propt rea nondum in manu m as pervenerit, variaque, ut audio, ac prorsus ancipiti ju diciorum alia fuit exceptus hoc solum de illo pronunciare possum, quod fuit ab antiquis in simili occasione exformula usurpatum, Non liquet

(G) Commerce of Letters | That Commerce was so great that it overbuiden d Mr Balzac For besides that he compos d with an extraordinary difficulty, he knew that his I esters were shewed to every body, and this therefore nothing must be wanting in them See that he feetings his Condition in them see that he feetings of the good ones, that give him yant believed to every him the bad Compliments of Conversation, 7

that wacertain melancho-It is that is butthe gazety World p 81 82 †Se what Mr Mimage faid 113 214

(7) Perrault, 11lustrious men pag (b) The Privil dee Prince 15 tember, the Approdated the 3 of Ollober follow-

age, a vrault.

ae 252

c) See the re af er tian So-

letter to that (ardinal in

1 etters to Coprart See the Tith Ichres to (on-

Tart 1 3

al others in the same

& I has he maspleas'd to call h refidence

bundred

places of bis I etters Fp.ftle

Dedicat of Balinc's

Conversa-

(a) The 71h

Letter of Book in the Polume to Scealfotle

shoule Letters, p 15 and the p 8i if t of Hol-

(b) Select

Biblioth Franc p

(d) Preface

(e) it is the

I etters

land

Epift p 288 (r) Sorel

the 5th

2 This ap.

pears in an place of h s

The great that Language If he had many Enemies that writ (H) against him, he had also a very DFS- great number of || Friends and Admirers, and there were but sew Persons of Merit, French or Strangers, who travelling through France, were not pleas'd to go and (I) fee him. He was one of the (K) forty Members of the French Academy. Cardinal Mazarin + endeavour'd to recall him to the Court. Queen Christina was very kind to a him, and defir'd him to write to her. The greatest Lords of the Kingdom gave him. CARTES lov'd and esterm'd much See in his c Delart many ? Tokens of their Esteem That which is most excellent in him was, that he not only liv'd and dy'd in his Ketreat as a good Man, but also as a good Christian * While he was living he set a-part Eight thousand Crowns of his Estate bis Life by Mr Bulp 1,9 & feq + Se Bil-1,9 6 zac's ift fled with the Civilities that come to him from the four parts of the World, and last Night there lay 50 Letters on the Table in his Chamber, that required Answers of him, but cloquent ones, and such as might be shew'd, copy d and printed He says (a) in another place, At this time that I am speaking to you, there lie a Century of Letters on my Table that wait for Answers I owe some to Crown'd Heads As he was the first in France that acquired a great Name by that sort of Writings, he isso obtained the Title of great Epistolary, and so he called himself sometimes, sciat (b) se dignum suisse invide a magni Francia Epistolarii. I he first Letters that he published, were not by much worth those that he writ after his Retirement, and yet the latter did not Sell off so well as fled with the Civilities that come to him from the four ment, and yet the latter did not Sell off to well as the first sorel (c) had reason to make that Observation, and the Critick of (d) Maimbourg did not amils to repeat it. This shows the capricious Huamils to repeat it

mour of the Publick (H) Many Enemies that writ against him] I he Chancelor Seguier having prevented the publication of a Book that was compos'd against Balzac in 1636 received a little while after a (e) Letter from that Author, wherein the following Words are found so long as there are none but these Fen-gladiators that present themselves to appear in print, be not sparing of the Prince: I avours, and abate a little of your Severity
If it was a new thing, it may be I should not be displeas d with the suppression of the first Libel that should abuse me, but now that there are enough of 'em to make a small Library, I am almost well pleas d to see the number increas'd, and I take delight in raising a heap of Stones that Envy has cast at me without doing me any harm A mong those that wrote against him, besides them that I have already mention'd, Daniel Heinsus may be reckond, who answer d with some bitterness the Criticisms that Balzac had made on the Herodes infanticida See the 35th Convertation of Balzac upon this, and the 20th of the 2d Book Salmasius, who was Hensius & Luciny and Balzac's Friend, writt on that Dripute, and adjudged the Victory to his Friend, Chapelain but I Minister of Languedoc, whole Name was Cros, (f) inveigh dagainst Balzac in savour of Heinstein Yet a little while after he wrote very sharply against Heinstein, but it is true that it was on other matters. Reckon also Nicolas Bourbon of the French Academy See what the Historian of the Academy tys concerning it (r) Do not forget Coffar, who thinking that Balzac had by way of Jealousy ingag d Mi de Girac to Criticize Voiture, address Voiture's Defence to him, and stust it with a hundred stringing Rulleries The Blow was felt, and the flinging Rulleries The Blow was felt, and the matter came at last to an open War Costar pull'd the Mask quite off See how Mr Girard reto the new proaches him for it in the Preface to Balzac's Con-and the 25th Letter of the first Book of Chapelain, versations There are some I acts in the Menagiana 43d of the 3 d Book of that may very properly be imploy'd here (h) Mr the 2d part de Balzac after having oblig d Mr de Girac to write of the choice in Latin against the Letters of Voiture, ingae'd also letters Mr Costai in the define of Voiture, and to write against Mr de Gilac, it was to draw the Praises of both (f) It is he that is the Parties upon himself I past through Mans in my reAuthor of turn to Paris at the same time that the Detence was ite Anonymous to be sent to Mr Costar gave me two Copies of it, the one nymous to be sent to Mr to Pinchesine, Niphew to Mr Voiture, answer to and the other to Mr Connict the told me, that he would willingly submit to all the alterations that should tetter be made in it, either by adding to, or d minishing any and Disting of it. One of the Copies was communicated to Mr courte on Balrac, who sent some Corrections, in the mean while a Irage-tle thou the mass printed. And because his corrections came the of He-when the Impression was finished, word was sent him influs, in-that they came too late, and the Book appear a such as it itteld,

Herodes Infanticida, a lich Answer was printed at Geneva (the the Title does not minitial ii) in 1642 (g) Pag 269 edit 1672 Ace also the 28th and 30th Letter of the 2d beek to Chapelain (h) Menagiana, p m 166 167 was, which vex'd him a little I pass over the biting Words that are given to Balzac in the Hexameron rustique See the Complaint that Mr Menage makes (1) for having been introduc'd in it to having been introduc'd in it to have a Mr. Palace I leave also what and have a Mr. Mr Balzac I leave also what past between Mr du Moulin and him, for it was only a light skirmish of Contioversy, wherein each Party was prais'd Other (k) Disputes proceeded from it that were more violent, but as sar as I can remember, Mr Balzac receiv'd only this Blow in it, Vir ingenio Balzac received only this Blow in it, Vir ingriso compto of Gallica elequentia laude clarus Balzacus, sed in religions negotio plusquam infans. It was Mr du Moulin that give it him in the Dedicatory Epistle of his Answer to Petra Canifa. No notice was taken of it, as if the Instit was not known See the 11th Letter of the 12th Took to Chapelain. I should be too tedious of should undertake to speak of a certain de Vaux (1), and of all Balzac's other Adversaries.

(I) Were not pleas'd to go and fee bim] He found it a very troubletome thing, as appears by these words of his 7th Conversation Some troublesome Persons come here sometimes from above an hundred Leagues distance, on set purpose, if they may be credited, that give him almost a Death wound, by saying to him in their first Compliment, That his great Reputation, and the Celebrity which he has given to the Place of his abode, have oblig d them to come and see that Person so well known, and that Village which is so same so, so that he ought not to take amiss so just and obliging a Carrosty as theirs Some Days fince one of those curious Persons began hu Harangue with, The respect and veneration which he always had for him, and for the Gentlemen his Books There is nothing more Historical than this, by which you may see how far the Style of Compliments can go They were not only Learn'd Men that went to see him, but great Lords also, and I am much deceived if the Count de Pigneranda did not do him that Honous, when he past through that (m) It is Country in his return to Spain Mr Balzac in- printed at forms us with delight, that the fame Count had the end of reproach'd him for the aident Zeal of his Pen in the Christian for the Aident Zeal of his Pen in the Christian for the Aident Zeal of his Pen in the Christian for the Aident Zeal of his Pen in the Christian for the Aident Zeal of his Pen in the Christian for the Aident Zeal of his Pen in the Christian for the Aident Zeal of his Pen in the Christian for the Aident Zeal of his Pen in the Christian for the Aident Zeal of his Pen in the Christian for the Aident Zeal of his Pen in the Christian for the Aident Zeal of his Pen in the Christian for the Aident Zeal of his Pen in the Christian for the Aident Zeal of his Pen in the Christi the defence of the Honour of France This we find ftian Soin the Letter (m) wherein he confutes the current Report that he had compos'd a Manifesto for the

Prince of Gonde in 1651

(K) He was one of the forty Members of the French Academy] Mr Pellifon having faid (n) pursuant to the Registers of the Academy, that on the 13th Day of March 1634 Mi de Boisrobert shew'd a Letter which he had writ of his own motion to Mr de Balzac, wherein he advertis'd him, that if he defin'd the Company by his Letters to be admitted titled the imong them, it should willingly be granted I Explicative, Mr Pellison having said this, adds, That he did tion of not find in the Register what followed, but that Mr Baltham the Times LAC was upon his Answer infallibly admitted a little while to the Academic Mr Baltham to the Mr Baltham to the Academic Mr Balt after into the Academy Mi Balzac did not find Mr Pel- demy with lison a faithful Historian in this matter He acknow- this Title, ledges that Mr Boisrobert had exhorted him several To the times to write a Complimenting Letter to the Academy, and had also threaten'd him from the Cardi- He plac'd if he should refuse to write that Compliment the Cardi-But he maintains, that he made no Answer, and that nal's piat 5 or 6 Months end he was inform'd that he was Eture in it made a Member of the Academy, and that his Name in a brafs had been feen in the Sun (o) of the little good Man, cut, with a Mr de la Peyre From whence he concludes, that crown of if a Letter had been presented as from him to the rays gound. Academy, it was a falle one. This is what he writ about it, to Mr Conrart the 22d of September 1653 It is each of not known what aniwer he received from him to which was clear the matter, but it appears by a Letter of markt the 3d of November of the same Year, that Mr Con- with the rart had undeceived him One would almost suspect name of an that Mr Conrect writ to him that he hadfeen the othat Mr Conrect writ to him that he hadfeen the o-Academist riginal of his Compliment, from whence we might Hist of conclude, that the greatest Wits do not sometimes the Academist the Academist with the greatest with the concluderation of the Academist with the greatest with the greatest with the concluderation of the Academist with the greatest with the property of the Academist with the concluderation of the Academist with the concluderation of the conclud remember the Letters which they was some Years pag 195

(1) Menagiana, p

(k) TheJe-∫ust Silvefter à Petra Sancta Written sharply and gainst du Moulin s answer to Balzac, was paid in the same coin by du Moulin and Rive. tus (l) He pub-lisht the tomb of the Franch Orator crates (n) Hift of the Academy, p 221 (o) In the Year 1635, La Peyre dedicated his Book im-

Sce

the Prench

d edit

Bandellus

Par de are rood for not line Moteri indes il

me I Bun-

1 Vollars ulitumi

Sectle 1 mark A

Indy s zn t chi

(g) Par

Biogi 1-

phic id ini 1654 (b) folephus Scaligei in confu-fibulz Burdoni

delli

for Pione Effer. He? had caus'd two Chambers to be built for him in (L) the Convent & Monstof the Capuchens of Angouleme, and often made his abode there. It was there also that tion of his composed his Christian Socrates He spoke very fine things on his Death-bed, and by death his Will he order'd himself to be bury'd in the Hospital of Our Lady of the Angels in & St Ro-Angouleme, at the Feet of the Poor that were bury'd there He beque th'd twelve thousand moved, Livres to that Hospital, and left a Fund of an hundred Livres & Year to be given every two Years for a Prize to him that by the Judgment of the French mademy should best compose a Discourse on a Subject of Piety * He dy d the 18th of (M) February 1654 1654.

The Sieur * Moriset a Canon of Angoulème made his I uner il Oration, and another *11 ct/ng Morifeet, Brother of the former, and Advocate in the Presidual of the same City, caus d was not a Discourse to be printed in Praise of the Dece is d An Ldition of all Balzace's Works be evecuwas made at Paris in the Year 1665, in two Volumes in Folio, with a Preface of the Ab- red vi fore

bot Cassagnes, a Member of the French Acidemy Consult the Illustrious Men of the real Mr Perrault, and you will find there an Llogy of John Len is Guez

BANDEL (Matthew) Born at Castro-novo in Lombardy, flourish'd in the XVIth the Hist Century
He was a Dominican Morer: * said of him most of the things that help Academy us had faid, but he ought to have added some other curious matters of 1 ict, and not to have omitted two Circumstances that † Vollius mention d, viz. That the lain pag 555 flation of Egesippus is in Italian, and that the Inhibitants of Fermo caused the Special which Matthew Bandel made in prince of their City, in the Year 1513, to be plied ubit tupra in their Records Here follow some Supplements. That Fryai being at Mantua contracted a very first Friendship with Julius Cassa Scaliger (A) which continu'd all his Profession, and which he carefully Cultivated in Guienne. He was some Months Bishop of Agen, and here he compos'd in the Italian Tongue the Histories, of the Gallant Novels that made him so famous. I have quoted them in the Remark M 1500 Violette of the Article Leo X and in the Remark I of the Article Mahomet II. They are leach of them Dedicated to some Person of his Acquaintance. The 21st of his Scaling and Part is Deducated to some Person of his Acquaintance. The 21st of his Scaling and Part is Deducated to some Person of his Acquaintance. The 21st of his Scaling and Part is Deducated to some Person of his Acquaintance. cond Part is Dedicated to * Lucretia de Gonzague, whose Preceptor he had been He in the 677 Dedicated another to his Friend Scaliger They were translated into French, and we must say a word about the Judgment (B) which the Translitor mide of them

Cat llogue Litinis

(b) Ibid, pag 721 (c) Ibid pag 106

(d) Menagiana, pag 238

.. before That which is unquestionable is, that Mr de Balzac took himself to be a good and true Academist, for the Register of the 14th of April 1636 (b) testifies that he read some part of his Prince in the Academy, and it has been plov'd (c) by his printed Letters, that he sent some Works of his own making to Monsteur du Christelet, desiring him to read making to Monsieur du Chreeler, acquing nim to reach them in the Academy, and to accompany them with some of his Words, which he said would not only suffice to excase him to them for the Thanks, but also for the Speech which he ow a them. He had laid just before, That the Honour which the Academy had done him, to admit him into their Body without obliging him to go to Paris, were two singular Favours at one time. I re-Paris, were two ingular Favours at one time I remember two passages in his Letters, wherein he acknowledges the Gentlemen of the Academy for his Brethren The first is in the 16th Page of his Choice Letters, and the last in the 95th Page of his Letter to Chapelain

(L) Two Chambers to be built for him in the Convent of the Capuchines of Angoulome | I have not read any where but in the (d) Menagiana, that he had a design to put on the Habit of that Order "Mr "de Balzae was so affected with Devotion, that he "enter'd into a Convent of the Capuchine where enter'd into a Convent of the Capuchins, where he had a mind to put on their Habit Nevertheless, he did not dye there "Perhaps he desir'd, like many others, to due in the Habit of

(M) The 18th of February 1654] The I ist of the Academists printed at the end of the 2d Edition the Academists printed at the end of the 2d Edition of the History of the Academy, makes Mi de Balzac live till the Year 1657 since in that Year it mammes Hardonin de Perefixe, Archbishop of Paris, as his Successor. On the contrary, the List of the deceas'd Academists, printed at the end of the State of France of the year 1680 mentions Mr de Balzac as dead a considerable time before the Year 1654, since it places him before Baro and Bandoin, who dy'd before the Year 1651. If Mr Pellisson had been concern'd in the 2d Edition of the History of the Academy, the two faults which I have quoted, would not have been seen in the List, one whereof relates to the time when Balzac dy'd, the whereof relates to the time when Balzac dy'd, the other to the Perforence Grand Balzac dy'd, the other to the Person that succeeded him, who is not Mr de Peresine Moreover, Mr de Peresine was not Archbishop of Paris in the Year 1657 But Mr Pelliffon has no hand in all this Mr Baillet, who without doubt believ'd the cortrary, is very excusable, for having thought that on such an Authority he might (e) place the death of Balzac in the Year 1657 As to the Day of his death, Merers, (f) St Remuald, Henningis d (e) Hitte, Mr. P. mailt, and feveral others fay it was the 28 of February. But the Perfons whom I have confulted, univer dime, the Persons whom I have consulted, univer d me, that it was the 19 of February, according to the Contract pass with the I rench Academy concerning the Fund that Balzac left it, and a cording to 1 Manuscript I etter of the Sieur Morsset I assiy, It was the 18th of February, if we may rely on these two things, the one is that in the Preface to Balzac s Works it is assirm'd, that the relation of his Death was written the very next Day after, the other is that that Relation is dated the 10th of February is, that that Relation is dited the 19th of February

1654

(A) A Friendship which be cultivated in Guienne it was in Agen | I his is scarce known but from these Words (b) Fodem tempore Mantua degebat Matthaus Bandellus Insubir Dominicanus, vir eloquentissimus, & optimus, qui postia per aliquot menses Episcopus Aginnensis fuit, & Mantua Mirrum Aguicolum summa observantia coluit, atque ibi cum Julio Casare ai stissima amicitia necessitudine conjunttus fuit, quam ab co tempore, ad supremum usque junteus fuit, quam ab co tempore, ad jupremum ujque ana, pag vite diem, in Aquitania perfectuavit Is, quum unam ana, pag bistoriarum suarum, quas riginni Etrusca lingua Boc- (1) It isim lum Scaligerum agnoscit, sed etiam illustrissimum voicat the 61 pag in epistola dedications. Et quum in quatuor tomis in- of the Ict-gentibus, singulas singulis summis, or nobilissimis, at 1015 of ugencrossissimis viris dedicavirit, nemine eorum majori cietti de generofffimis viris dedicaverit, neminem eorum majori honore, quam fulium affecit, quam tamen aliquot ex illustres vocare nulla fusfit invidia. I ucretia de Gonzague wrote two Letters to I ather Bandel, which infinuate to us, that he was rais d to some Office. The first (1) says, that he was in France, and the second (k) that he was in Guienne. In the first he is call'd Reverendo padre, but in the other he is call'd Reverendo padre, but in the other he is styl'd Monsignor P Bandello, and he is congratulated on his new Dignity. There is no date of the Year to it. He was not yet a Bishop when fulius cessariant to it. He was not yet a Bishop when fulius cessariant to it. He was not yet a Bishop when fullus cessariant to it. He was not yet a Bishop when fullus cessariant to it. He was not yet a Bishop when fullus cessariant to it. He was not yet a Bishop when fullus cessariant to seally of the state of the Year and the grant the Answer (m) which he made him, is dated Basseniu 22 November 1553.

(B) What Judgment the Transsator made of them delict of Leyden.

Observe first of all, that the first six were done into French by Peter Boaisteau, and the other by Belleforest The Advertisement to the Reader prefixed (m) It s to the first Volume (n) contains these Words the 57th Desiring thee furthermore not to take it ill, if I have I letter to not subjected myself to the Style of Bandel, for his non that Observe first of all, that the first six were done in- Leyden

Cæsar Scaliger (n) It was printed at Paus in the join 1567 and reprinted the same Year at Antwerp

Q q q

Phrises

(e) Baillet, Judg on Poets t 4 n 1487 (f) In the table of his Chronel Journal, printed in 1664 for he fays noting of Balzac on she 28th. of Feb

a In the 408th pag of the 2d part B It is at the end of Antı-Baillet y Flemlo-fiæ Finorum chuse rather to fet down the , ame of his Latinthan to milake she vulgar name • He taught then at Paris. ZThatTemfign'd for the Religi-Ses of the Students 3 Taken from bis funeral Program-27A COMPOnius Redor of the Uniwerfity of Coppenhagen, a-pud Witte, Memor Theolog renov P 1387

Catalogue a of Thuanas s Library informs me, that the three first Parts were printed at Lucca in the Year 1554, in Quarto, and the fourth at Lyons in the Year 1573. in Office

Lucca in the Year 1554, in Quarto, and the fourth at Lyons in the Year 1573. In Octavo. I wonder that Mr Menage did not place this Monk in the a Catalogue of the Ecclesiasticks (C) that made Verses of Gallantia.

BANDOLE (Anthony de) Advocate in the character of Provence, composed a French Translation of Xiphilinus printed at Paris Year 1610 in Quarto. He printed also in the same City in 1609, in Quarto, a chel between Casar and Henry IV. before Casar's Commentaries Translated into French Commented by Vigenere.

BANGIUS (Thomas) Doctor and Professor Commented by Vigenere.

Penhagen, was born in the Y Year 1600 He finish'd his School Leaven in the penbagen, was born in the y Year 1600 He finish'd his School Leave by him At the same time, Bangius was Preceptor of Christian Friis, the Chancellor of Denmark's eldest Son Having had that Employ above 5 Years, he place de Pension of the King, and went to Rostock, from whence he repast to Communication when the on of the King, and went to Rostock, from whence he repast to Constitutes when the Emperor's Troops drew near the Baltick Sea He sinish'd his Course of Theology under the Professor Brochmand, then he went to Francker, where he learnt the Rabinssim and Chaldaism under Sixtinus Amama, by whom he was much esteem'd Afterwards he Study'd at Wittemberg, where he receiv'd a Letter in the Year 1630, from the Rector ple wasde- and Academical Council of Coppenhagen, whereby they offer'd him the Profesforship of the Hebrew Tongue He excus d himself from it, alledges he was not Learned chough to acquit himself worthily of that Office himself exhorted by the Sieur Brochmand, who was then Rector, not to have as offer'd him, he accepted of it, provided he might be permitted to study the Arabick and the Syriack Languages forme Tears under Gabriel Sionita That Condition having been agreed upon, he went to Coppenhagen, and in the Month of September 1630, he took possession of the Professorship in Hebrew, and afterwards of the Doctorship in Philosophy He exercised that Profession to the Adfed by Pe- vantage and Improvement of the Students till the Year 1652, when he was promoted ter Scave- to the Professorship of Divinity vacant by the Death of Brochmand He was made Doctor of the same Faculty in the Year 1653, in the King and Queen's Presence.

Three Years after the Office of Library Keeper of the University was conferred upon him, and he performed the Dedication of the Church of the Trinity in a Latin Sermon Being fallen sick the 11th of October 1661, his chief Care was to think of his Soul He Confess'd himself and Communicated the 6th Day of his Sickness, and dy'd the 27th of the same Month. He marry'd in 1638, the Daughter of a Senator, by whom he had 14 Children, 8 Sons and 6 Daughters. His Writings (A) testify his Learning

BARANZAN

gical Hiftories, tom 3 P 53, 54 Roan, 1604

(c) Henry the VIII King of England

(d) Id ib PAG 55

Phrases seem'd so harsh to me, hu Terms so improper, his Discourse so ill put together, and his Sentences so barren, that I chose rather to new-mould his Work, and put it into another Form than to be such a Superstitious Imisator, having only taken the Subject Matter of the Hiflory, as then may it easily discover, if then hast the Curiosity to confer my Style with his Observe here a Fact that is pretty curious Belleforest working on the 37th Novel was seiz'd with such a remorse of Conscience, that he resolv'd to leave off his Translation (b) I will lay down the Cudgels, says he, and forestraleave from beneforth those Subjects that may be turned accel History way, and from which some may receive benefit, and every way, and from which some may receive benefit, and others take an Example to make use of in their Follies, for what I have done of it at this time, was rather to gratify a Friend of mine, than out of a desire that such a Piece should come out by my means. Not that Age dispenses me with speaking merrily and pleasantly, but there are different times for those Merriments. And before a characteristic and because there are different times for those Merriments. there are different times for those Merriments. And besides, I have other Designs of greater Consequence than Bandel's Histories, or the Amours of those, who by these Example should have deterr'd us from following our Same sual Appetite so far, as to become at last the Talk of Pai sterity by the memory of our Follies (c) This King then shall put a stop to our Discourse, and from henceforth make an end of any thing that is prophane, if some rimes a more solid History does not brisk up my Soirits, and a more scrious Discourse does not cause me to think longer than I have done to follow the Author's foosthink longer than I have done to follow the Author i foot-fleps, whom I have more adorn'd and amplify'd, than follow'd or imitated To excuse what is pass, he adds this Remark "(d) I do not write Love Stoadds this Remark ries as being Lascivious, but as one that laughs at Fools, and those that are transported with, and fuffer themselves to be conquer'd by their Lusts And I accuse Adulterers, detest the Infamous, abhor Murtherers, and am forry that "here are fuch senseless Men in the World, that "infer themselves to dye to short a pleasure as the ease of the Body that, I praise Vertue, and blame Sin, with the I myself growing better by this Reading. I myself growing better by this Reading.

" at the end of their Folly, by the amendment of their Lives If any Body take more delight in " the merry Stories that are in Bandel, let him "(as I have faid) I yield him my share of it, and "leave him also the happiness and glory which he "may receive by it" See here a Lay French Man that scruples to translate what an Italian Monk had written about Love But that Scruple did a ticle Gonzagne written about Love But that Scruple did not continue long, for Belleforest finish'd that Translation, and added also some Supplements to it

(C) Ecclesiasticks that made some Versus of Gallan-try] Bandel made some, and was Congratulated for them by his Friends See (e) Julius Casar Sca-liger's Epigram, de Bandelli amoribus Thusca langua decantatu, and the four Verses that I am going to

decantatu, and the tour veries that A and B and ellus transcribe

Dum (f) teneros loquitur dulcis Bandellus tis 1 poematum Ipse sui comit Aonium sontem sontisque sorres, Seu comit Aonium sontem suit suit suit sontem seu comit sonte sorte sontem seu comit suit sonte sont Is a like the second of the se after with the Tropaum protonangelicum quo en Seri-piis Pontificiorum oftenditur vorum effe lettionem, Iplum conteret

(Lucretia de) (f) Julius Cæfar Scaliger ın Herojbus p m 327 par-tis i poe-B Book, she st

BARANZAN (Redemptus) A Barnabite Fryer, was one of the first in the XVIIth a Christian Century that durst swerve from Aristotle's Road in Philosophizing La Mothe le Vajer Discourse says, a that he can place him among the first Wits of our Age, and that the Works (A) of mortal ty his Youth are sufficient for it He adds, that this good Barnabite had many times promised of the Soul, him, but always under the good pleasure of God, That he would appear to him again, if he in the 4th should depart this Life first He did not keep his word, Providence having ordered it otherwise, and he verify d the Sentence of a & Latin Poet I shall mention in another his Works in 120 p p place, fome Perions that have made fuch Promises Baranzan was of Verces He 172 p taught Mathematicks and Philosophy in the City of Anneci in Savoy Naude in the P Qui 79th page of the Instruction which he publish'd in 1623, concerning the Brethren of nunc it

the Rose-cross, mentions him as a Man already dead

BARBARUS (Francis) a Noble Venetian, was a fimous Man in the XVth Century He was not only very learned, but also very skilful in the managing of great Affairs He was no less a Statesman, than a Man of Letters, which he show'd in all the publick Employs that he was intrusted with, and chiefly when he was Governor of Brescia The Vigilance, the Courage, and Activity, and other great Vertues wherewith he quam defended that City against the I orces of the Duke of Milan Commanded by the fadefended that City against the Forces of the Duke of Milan Commanded by the factuall mous Picinin, cannot be sufficiently admired. He had Enemies within and out of the epigr 3. Town, and compast them all The Divisions were very great in the City, the Avolation and the Martinenghes were the Heads of two opposite Factions, he engaged them by his Eloquence to unite and labour together for the Publick-good. The length of us the Siege, or Blocked, aus'd a Famine in the Town, and the Famine caus'd the Plague, and yet arrong all these Troubles he had the idvantage to irrustrate all the from Vianoli in the Attempts of the Eloquenies for three Years, and force them to retire. This happen'd about the Year 1439. Some Authors believe, that our Francis Barbarus is he that of the Histmade a Book de re Uxoria, some Letters, and some Speeches. It is the opinion of Volaterran 1, who adds, that he had been a Disciple of Chrysoloras, and that he forgot all his Greek in his Old-age. Volaterran (B) might perhaps be deceived in something what he all his Greek in his Old-age Volaterran (B) might perhaps be deceived in something what he Francis Barbarus dy'd in the Year 1454 ||

BARBARUS 20th Book

(a) In libro de Scriptis Danorum

(b) See Heidegger de concord Fcclef Prot pag 209

(c) The Oxford Catalogue Says Uranoscopia feu universa doetrina de cœlo 1617

768

(e) Lib 21 p 777 (f)•Ex fratre nc-conteret tibi caput, & soli Christo convenire The Exercitatio elenehtica de Nephilimis, Gigantibu, vulgo dictis, opposita Jacobo Boulducco was a product of the Year 1652, and the Oliva Sacra pacis repurgata, a product of the Year 1654, and the Calum Orientus & prisci Mundi, a product of the Year 1657 I leave the Titles of some other Works which have not been omitted in the Funeral Programma, nor by (a) Albert Bartholin Some of the Books whose Iitles I have mention'd, are only Speeches, of which number is the Ol va Sacra pacus repurgata Nevernumber is the Ol va Sacra pacu repurgata Nevertheless, the Author has been placed, for that Reafon (b) in the Catalogue of the Reconcilers of Religion, and that Piece has been wholly inserted in the Irenicorum tractatuum prodromus by John Duraus

(A) The Works of Is Youth] means the Book de novis opinionibus Phylica, printed at Lions in the Year 1619 Konig mentions two of that Fryer's Works Edidis, says he, Uranoscopiam & campum Philosophicum, an (c) 1620 I have had in my Hands a Copy of the campus Philosophicus, printed at Lyons in the Year 1619 It contain'd but one Volume, and treated only of Logick, and almost conformably to the manner of the Peripateticks, but the Approbation makes me believe, that that Volume is but the first Part of Baranzan's Course of Philosophy, and that the general Title of that Course is Summa Philosophica Anneciacensis which confirms what I have faid, that that Author

Taught in Anneci (B) Volaterran might perhaps be deceived in some-thing] See from whence I have such a suspicion (d) History I find in Vianoli (d) that Francis Barbarus, who so of Venico happily defended the City of Brescia, was the Fa-ther of Zachary, and that Zachary was the Father 1 20 pag of Hermolaus Barbarus I find in Gesne's Bibliothe-ce that Francis Barbarus Author of the Rook do reca that Francis Barbarus Author of the Book de re Uvoria, Translated the Lives of Arifides and Cato from the Greek of Plutarch, and Dedicated them to his Brother Zachary I find in Volaterran (e) that Heimolaus Barbarus was Nephew (f) of that Francis Barbarus that defended the City of Brescia Volaterran had mention'd this Francis Barbarus in the nord Page and among other things had God of 773d Page, and among other things had faid of him what follows He understood the Greek Tongue well, but as I have heard by Relation Hermolaus Barbarus Say, he forgot it quite in his Old-days Hic po-fireme Senescens uti ab Hermolao ejus necessario accepi, literarum Gracarum quas probè tembat erat omnino ob-litus The other things that Volaterran had faid of this Francu Barbarus are, that he had been a Disciple of Chrysoleras, that he had written a Book de re Uxoria, some Speeches and some Letters, and that the City of Brisca This may ciuse a suspicion that Volaterran has 10 yr d what concern d the Father, and the Son confusedly together fage of Gesner testisses that Francis Barbarus Author of the Book de re Uxoria, and I ranslator of the Life of Aristides, was the Brother of Zachary Barbarus Now, according to Vianoli, Zachary Barbarus was the Son of him that defended Brefeia, and Father of Hermolaus, it must be faid then that he who defended Brescia, had a Son whose Name was Francis Barbarus, who made the Book de re Uxoria, Philippi and Translated the Lives of Aristides and Caro out of the Greek of Plutarch, and who was Uncle of Hermolaus Barbarus According to this, Volaterian attributed certain things to the Father that belong only to the Son Moreover, he that defended Brescia might have had a Brother whose Name was Zachary, to whom he had Dedicated his two Translations, and then all Volaterran's fault would consist in not having known that Francis Barbarus was the Grandfather of Hermolaus If I had the Works of Francis Barbarus, it is likely I might find wherewith to decide the Question But not having them, I desir'd Mr de Larroque to clear Doubt, and this was his Answer "Mr Joli (h)" proves, that the Author of the Book de re Uxoria "was the Grandfather of Hermolaus and that he was the Grandfather of Hermolaus, and that he publish'd it about the time of the Council of Constance, for Poggio and Paul Vergerio mention that Book in some Letters dated from the City "of Constance, Poggio's Letter is written to Gueri"ni of Verona, and that of Vergerio to Nicolas Leon"tinus" They piaise Fiancis Barbarus for having "written so well concerning Marriage, tho' he "was very young, and not marry d. He Dedi"cated the Translation of the Lives of Arisid's "and Cato to his Brother Zachary, and dy'd in the "Year 1454 Mr Joli distinguishes two Daniel "Barbarus's Observe, That I have been told, that this Preface of Mr Joli which I have quoted, contains several Elogies of the Author of the Book de re Uxoria, and the clearing of many things that concern Learned Men Gesner and Vossius quote a Letter of Andrew Brentius, of Constance, Poggio's Letter is written to Gueri-Gesner and Vossius quote a Letter of Andrew Brentius, Hermola-by which one may learn that Francis Barbarus, us was the Grandfather of Hermolaus, and Tather of Zachary, had Son of compos'd and translated many Books (1) Nimirum in ce omnia trancisci Batdari patris virtutum lumina elu-cescunt cui certe multum Latina lingua debet, tot tan-tisque ab eo libris partim compositis, partim conversis, à quo minime degenerat Hermolaus filius, te tanto pa-tre non indignus. It is most certain, by the Testi-mony of Hermolaus (k) himielf, that his Father's Qqq2. Name te omnia Francisci Barbari patris virtutum lumina elu-tenebricoium, Illuc unde negant

Says in the p 768 † Volater 773 Voffius || Vossius de Histor p 62, (ε) Dum Philippi ducis obfidione magna cum laude libera-(h) In the Preface of the French

Translation of the Book de re ux-Oria,printed at Paris in the Year 1667 (1)Andieas Brentius, Patapistola ad Zachariam Barba-1 im 1pud Vollium de Histor Lat p 621 It is affirmed in the

Francis (k) see the 32 / Letter of the 12th Book of thole of

Appendix
of Dr Cave

157 that

* Gefner ın Bıblıoth fol 246 ex Trithemio

† Gesner ın Bıbl

& cur Oracula deficrunt Gifner ib

Hermol Baibarus in Prafat

(z) Apud Voffium ibid

(1) Gefn Biblioth fol 317

(/) Jeifher Addit to be Hlog er of Mr de I hou, tom I p 354

(c) Vossius de Hift Lat pag

(d) Herm Baibu Epist 31 anter Politiani Lpistolas

(e) Heim Barbarus opist ad

BARBARUS (Hermolane) Grand-son of the foregoing, was one of the most BARBARUS (Hermolam) Grand-son of the toregoing, was one of the most Learned Men of the XVth Century He was Born at Venuce the 21st of May, * 1454. He made great Progresses in his Studies, and so specify, that he began to write Books (A) at the 18th Year of his Age. The publick has oys that were early laid upon him, did (B) not hinder him stom Cultivating Literature with eagerness. He was sent by the Venetians to the Emperor Frederick to his Son Maximilian King of the Romans, and that Deputation was so far from thing a stop to his Pen, that it supply d him with matter to exercise it, for he was not only publish the Speech (C) which he recited before those two Princes at Bruge in the Year 1486, but he made also a stream of the Agreement of Astronomy with Physick, I say, he composed it the same Year, as he went through the City of Cologne in his way to Mentz, at the desire of Theodorick Flas a Physician of Nuis † As he understood Greek very well, he unof Theodorick Flas a Physician of Nuis † As he understood Greek very well, he undertook the most difficult Translations, and began with a famous Paraphrast of Arrfol 317 stotle, I mean with Themsstrus Afterwards he set upon Dioscorides, whose Text he Corrected as well as he could, and of which he made a Translation, whereunto he Do Iside added a very learned Commentary It is said, that he writ also on two || Treatises of & Olivide Plutarch that are the most difficult, I cannot tell if that Translation ever appear'd in He had a defign to translate all (D) Aristotle's Works, and he says in one of publick his I piftles Dedicatory, that the Execution of that Defign was already much advined He had in extraordinary facility in making Verses, and it is pretended that he Composed (E) above Twelve thousand But of this Works there is none that gain'd him so much Reputation as that which the corrected near lave thousand Passages in it 1, and of the corrected in Pomponius Mela That noble Work (F) has the corrected, as well

Name was Zachary, fo that Philip de Bergamo was much mistiken when he made him him the (z) Son of Francis Barbarus, and Grandson of Zachary Irancisci Barbari silius, Zacharia Barbari nepos Moreri, as well here as in a thousand other places, translates Nipos for Nephew, which is a very great fault. Those that pietend to write well in Latin, Those that pietend to write well in Latin, make use of Nepos only to signifie a Grandson Those that are not so scrupulous in their Latin Style, make use indeed of the word Nepos for Naphem, but they commonly add exfratre, or exsorre, to take off the I quivocation, if they say Nepos short, they mean a Grandfon

(A) He began to write Books at the 18th Year of his Age | Gefner (a) tells us so, Ab oftavodecimo atatis sua anno scribere exorsus multa elegantissima opuscula composuit I ossus meint the same thing, but because his Printer forgot two Letters, it was the tenton why Mr Teister (b) laid, that Hermolaus Barlaius legan to write at 22 Years of Age. This is his I inflation of the few oids of Vossius, (c) Ab anno ataus duo vigestimo seribere or sus fuit. And thus you see of what consequence the I aults of Printers are some times It is plain that Vossius had faid duodevige-simo So that two Letters suppress in this word have taken four Years glory from an Author Mr Lissier s fault is to be seen in the 157th Page of Dr Care's Appendix

(B) Did not hinder him from Cultivating] Let us understand this with some restriction, for it is certain that those Imploys interrupted his Studies (a) Honores fiys he, in republica ceffi multos & magno qua fide, qua opinione, qua gratia non dixerim Placet quidem impinissse annos penitus duodecim, sed offo respubsiontinuos totum id tamen tempus literisfere

(c) The Speech which he recited] It was dedicated to Carondelet, who was then Chief Secretary of the king of the Romans. The Author confelles that he does not publish it altogether such as he recited it but he declaies at the same time that he gives it such as he had prepar'd it. If he did not speak all that he had prepar'd, it was because the Courtiers desired him to be short, and to come speedily to the main thing. They were not ignorant that the Study of Police Learning slourish d at that time in Italy, and that the Ambassadors from that Country pleased themselves with making long Speeches, try pleafed themselves with making long Speeches, set off with all the Ornaments of Rhetorick Nay, He rmolaus was obliged to reduce the two Speeches which he and his Collegue had prepar d, into one, and is the Abridgment and the Reduction were to be made in the space of in Hour and a half, judge of Himolaus's presence of Mind, who happily overcome all those Difficulties (e) Observe members the state of the most time of the m opilt ad overcome all those Difficulties (e) Objecto ne mi-cronderespondent in the least of the long of the least of th fiderans hoc & astimans quod sesquihoram antequam Principes adiremus significatum nobis fuerit non duas orationes seorsum, ut cogitabamus & paraveramus, sed unam duobus junstim habendam & recitandam esse (D) To translate all Aristotle's Works] See what

(b) To translate all Aristotle's Works] See what he fays in the Preface (f) to his Pomponius Mela (f) Apud Vocant nos majora quadam studia, urgenusque nostrum cesner. illud vetus, omnes Aristotle libros in latinum vertende perponendique propositum Quod si ad exitum perdunare sur nam bona ejus pars jam pridem perasta cst) who were bito suturum, quin de reliquo in literis labore grans mihi siat His Translation of Aristotle's Rhetorick was publish'd after his Death See the following Arricle

(E) That he Composed above Twelve thousand] A mong other pieces of Poetry, he made a Poem of 600 Verfes, the Title whereof is the same with that of the Work of his Grand-father Francis Barthat of the Work of his Grand-father Francis Barbarus, I mean, that it is intituled de reUxoria, but it differs much from the Work in Profe that bears the fame Title Frantis Barbarus prescribes not only Rules (g) to those that would marry, but also to (g) Saeth those that are already married he enters into so Titles of many particulars, that he has a Chapter de coitus the Chapratione Hermolaus confines himself to this Question, Whether a Wise Man ought to marry, (h) and concludes for the Negative

(F) That noble Work has been criticized I It has Ribborth

(F) That noble Work has been eriticiz'd] It has Biblioth been pretended that he had too much indulged his fol 246 been pretended that he had too much indulged his fol 240 Conjectures and Memory Pintianus used him very rudely upon it Those that pardon him the Defects of his Memory, do not pardon him his strokes of Temerity, and say very freely, that he went about to correct many things that were no faults, but surpass his Understanding It is true, that in several Edutions of Pliny great regard has been and for Hermolaus's Corrections, seeing they have inserted in the Text, but it has been said long. for Hermolaus's Corrections, leeing they may inferted in the Text, but it has been faid long that that pretended Physician of Plmy, had given han finore Wounds than he had cur'd Let us fee han finore Wounds than he had cur'd Let us fee had sure expresses it (1) Ipse (1) molaus) in its que attigit, sape nimium conjecture Pinium monaus plus que attigit, sape nimium conjecture Plinium paulo acerbius eam ob rem invettus in eum Pintianus ad ulum olim exprobravit Sed concessa facile venia μνημονικών Delphini. duagrometwo, quod minus mirum sit memoriam exci-dere aliquarum rerum, quam constare omnium at non venia dignus aque, cum neglestis veterum exemplarium vestiguis, & priscarum ante se editionum securus, plu-rima pro arbitrio, erudite magis quam caute ac vere, mutavit, vel plane pessumdedit cum plurima ex iis qua castigavit, non errata illa sint, sed parum intel-lesta Tantum nibilominus austoritati Barbari subsecuta atas, eruditionique tribuit, ut conjecturas illius, ceu totidem nuelas d'agas in contentum inferuerit, unde climinanda à nobis varis argumentis fuere. Sensii jam dudum hanc labem operi Pliniano illatam autror Epi-grammatis alias haud perelegantis, in Commentarios a Stephano Aquao editos, de quobut agendum mox erit Sic enim ille

(f) Apud

(g) See the

(b) Gefn

(1) Hard

as his (G) other Books He was Ambassador from the Republick of Venice to Pope Innocent VIII when the Patriarch of Aquileia died The Pope immediately confeired that Patriarchate upon him Hamilaus was so imprudent (H) as to accept of it without waiting for the Approbation of his Superiors, though he could not be ignorant that the Republick of Venice had made I aws, to forbid all the Ministers that they fent to the Court of Rome to accept any Benefice Hermolaus's Excuses grounded on that the Pope had forc'd him mimbrace the Piclature were not heard. The Council that the Pope had forc'd him mainbrace the Piclature were not heard. The Council go Operis of Ten fignified very roughly him, that if he did not renounce the Patriarchate, pag 425 his Father should be degraded of all his Dignitics, and would speedily see his ensisted. They were inflexible Zachary Hermolius made use of all imaginalists. nable means to obtain the Consent of the Republick for the Pitriurchite of his Son, and not being able to gain any thing, he died (I) of Grief for it. His Son follow'd him foon after. Some fay that he died likewife (K) of Grief, but it is more likely that he died of the Plague Pierius Valerianus has plac'd him at the head of his Leuned

> Dum facere Hermoleos medicinam Barbarus optat anteq ex Hermolai literis, quas ad Senatun d Barbi Non paucis lacero vulneribus Plinio, Perlæsum gravius conjecta vulnerat nite Nec minus incauta plurima turba manu

In tantum ut Latio jam deplorque abiret, Ob multa in Stygien Timere Tessus aquas, &c Felicior aliquanto SIGO ENDUS GLIINIUS, qui uno duntazat arenetyporum prasidio, collatis inter se exemplations an eauca restituit, qua Homolao latuerant lave set and to, this long Pussing, the better to convince Mr Prilles that he was nustaken in a thing that was pretty well known Nevertheless I am very much persuaded that Hermolaw's Work on Plan's Natural History is northly pus pertinaries of Admination, confidering the great number of Admination, confidering the great number of Authors that he was obliged to confult, and the little time he had for doing it He flys, that 20 Months were fufficient for it. He broke the Ice for others, he found Pliny in a very bad Condition, and like a Land that has lain waite a long time, Plantage or a House infected with the Plague, or haunt-casting and like a Land that has lain waite a long time, or a House infected with the Plague, or haunt-casting are by Hobgoblins (a) Hac erant in Pliniano codice ones qualifying tia, propter qua non parum multi divinum opus tanguam senticetum, imo vero quasi pestilens aut limurius infame domicilium vitabant. Ea nos Gracis de Latinis auttoribus perlettis omnibus lucubratione viginti mensium revellere ac publicare curavimus. As to kolalaw's Work on Pliny's Natural History is worthy Latinis authoribus perlettis omnibus lucubratione viginti mensum revellere ac publicare curavimus. As to Volaterran's thought, that it was an Occupation little suitable to the Character of Hermolaus Barbarus, opus (b) impar ejus dignitati & unta institute, it has been mest justly Condemn'd, as well because Hermolaus had undertaken that Work (c) before he was a Churchman, as also because it were to be wish d that many Prelates would commit the like faults. Utinam he a multis euge dignitation at one institution per-Utinam sic a multis ejus dignitatis atque instituti pec-casetur kossius adds another Reason, which is, that Pliny made him not neglect the Ipsicopal Functi-ons, and that his Sermonis that are kept in Manu-feript at Padua testify the contrary I had rather tanta con Year 1492 he added an Appendix to it, which he serious est calls Secundae costingationes, and which is dated from Rome the 13th of January, 1493

(G) As well as his other Books] If we believe (d) Vossius, his Translation of Themissius is not faithful, and has shew'd by the Translation of Aristotles Rhome inch, that he did not understand Greek well enter that he was so full of Pliny, that he fitted too this words those of Dioscorides, in translating the latter That Translation has been often to his words those of Dioscorides, in translating the latter That Translation has been often the latter That Translation has been often eliganter translation, sed (ut nounculis videtur) nimis ad imitationem Plinis, quem dum ubique sequitur a Dioscorides dis verbis aliquando recedere videtur Marcellus Virgilius qui post Hermelaum eosdem libros transstulit, plerumque interpretationem esus carpit

fay that fince the Venetians would not fuffer him to accept the Patriarchal Dignity, he could not neglect the Patriarchal Functions in favour of Pliny Ob-ferve, that having publish'd that Work in the Year 1492 he added an Appendix to it, which he rumque interpretationem sque carpit

(H) Hermolaus was so imprudent as to accept of it] None that I know has related this Fact better than Peter Bembus, wherefore it will be convenient and pleafing to all those that have not that History in Bibliot to see here what he says of it (g) Eo mortuo Imofol 317 centius Patrinichatum (sic enim appellant) Aquileiengerso sium Hermolao Barbaro, legato apud se bineto

g) Bem- attribuit Quod ubi civitas intellexit, tametsi Hermous Hi- laus ad Senatum scripserat, coastium se a Pontissic voper Ve- siem senatoriam mutavisse quoniam tamens sacridotiis

ve la coastari civita Venet, que legati Roma essent, lega probicooptare cives Venete, qui legate Rome effent, lege probibebantur, graviter tulit, ausum illum contra leges pa-trias facere dunit ejus rei magnopere invidiam, quod morte dederat, more institutoque majorum comi in finator is prajudicium Pares fecerant, cujus p/1 110 nomen ad id ad p scendum sacerdotium Innocentio commendarent Itaque diceptos in co sese, ac prope delusos querebantus Esat omnino Hermolas propter esus summam in literarum, at que op imarum aitium studiis pra-stantiam magnum apud exteras nationis nomen, apud Suos quidem cir e maximum nam ad doctrine singularem opinionem, etiam vita perpetuam nuocen iam ad-1 inacrat Simul is multum patris opibus & gra ia, qui summo proximum in civitate mapifratum geribat, multum clientelis, necessitudinibus, propinquitatilusque pollebat. Quibus tamen in rebus on nibus satis sibi præsidi, non habuit cim pluris a Patribus una legum charicas, majestasqui, quam ullorum civium omnibus autia rominibus dignitae, atque elivitae fieret Decembiri enim l teras ad cum se vere script is dederunt, moi i omni, excusationeque subla a, sa cidotium repud aret id se non sacerct, paciem magistratu remoturos, & bona ejus publica uros præ se tulerun. At pater prspe sa civitatis voluntate, omnibus tentatis relus, cum jum eam fletti, & leniri posse disfideret, agritudine animi est mortuus Filius non multo post Roma, editi Plinianis castigationibus, immensi prope laboris opere, pri- (1) Vervatus plebeio mosbo periit Eum vita sinem H 1mo- lib 1 laus habuit, omnium ex sua civitate, qui ante il- p 177 lun nati essent, Latinorum & Graeorum literis plane doct:[[imus

(1) He died of Grief for it] We have just now the Corre-feen that Bembus assures it. The thing is likely Efion of enough, for he was an ancient Man, and he en-joy d one of the chief Posts of the Republick Such a hard Experience of the decaying of one s. (1) Crimit Credit in one's old Age and to the prejudice of a de honefamous and dearly-beloved Son, is generally a morfit difertal blow Zachary Barbarus died in the Year 149, plint 1 s much refigned to the Orders of Providence He c 7 was in the 70th Year of his Life. He was much lamented, and his Tuneral-Pomp was very magnihis Friend Antonius Calvus Accedit quod septuagesimum ingressus annum, quamdiu in familia nostra vixit nemo, quod suntius omnibus honoribus, quod republica incolumi, quod liberis bonesto loco positis, incredibili desiderio & amore civitatis excesso, frequentia funeris tanta (ut audio) quanta in cive nunquam

(K) Some say that he died likewise of Grief \ Volaterian (i) affirms it, Roma decessit ex animi dolore exacerbante quod orator a Venetus missus, pratir ejus autoritatem Senatus, Patriarcha Aquileiensis ab Innocessio fuerat creatus, ai propterea contumax & exul abelieve that he died being accounted a Rebel, and a banish d Person, for he took always the little of Personsh worthish deading a banish d. O. Litle of Patriarch, notwithstanding the strict Or ders that he had received from his Sovereign to it nounce the Pati tarchate, but I believe he died of mile po the Plague, and not of Grief My Reason is, testatis it, That since the time of his Disgrace until his antido-Death, he went about (k) a Work that required a turn, vegreat Liberty of Mind, and a good Constitution neni ce-of Health 2dly, That Peter Grin tue, who lived in leritate that time, says, (1) That Hermolaus died of the præverte-Plague He does not fry fo in a general manner, rit fouriss for he adds a very formal Circumstance, which is, else cap that Picus Mir andulanus having heard it Florence that 36 Hermolaus was fick of the Pligue, fent him an Antidote with all speed but the Messenger came too (n) 5 1/6 late Paul jo us (m) reports the fame I act to that I can casily believe what Hermolaus Barlarus of that I can casily believe what Hermolaus Barlarus of the supported his Disgrace withous Book of Grief, and even the was pleased with an Injury those of that put him the liberty to Study His Politian

(h) It is the 12th BOOK of Politin

(1) Volu P /77

(1) VII

(m) Mois inte diem irreplit & pestilente quidem morbo properata, adeo ut quod a Pico Po-Ittimoq Horentin labor inti per d tpo fitos e quos mittebatur muz po-

(a) rierm Barbarus ensis 1534 (b) Volaterr 1 21

777 (c) Cog1tare debuerat Volaterranus, jam antequam ad Epis-aspatype provectus effet, parata majori ex parte habuiffe, quæ ad iftud opus pertifacilis initiatus inchoavead Alexan-drum VI

(d) Iple mistius ab Heramolao Barbaro dum nı-Studet elegantie, tanta con

Biblioth

High P 333 (f) Gen

tæ l 1 m 18 Vo

Unfortunate Men It seems to me that he overstrain'd things, when he said that it is not certainly known whether Hermolaus (L) Barbarus was buried That great Mar died at Rome in the Year 1493 He expresses a great Resignation in his Letters. * See the and a great I ranquility of Mind as to the treatment which he had receiv'd from his Remark K I do not believe that it can be faid, that he (M) was made a Cardinal Country is reported that he had recourse to the (N) Devil, to know the sense of a Greek word that Aristotle made use of Let us not forget that Laurence de Medicu gave him some marks $(N\Delta)$ of a fingular Esteem Varillas (O) has given us a very pleasant and elabo-

That great Man

Friends were afraid that he would fink under his Difgrace, and his Enemies made it their Business (a) Pier Valerian to publish it every where Doubtless the latter de littera were those who to rob him of the Honour of his (onstancy and Tranquility, imputed to Grief what they ought to have imputed to a contagious Disease See in the Remark P what I quote out of torum in-(b) Jovius ubilupra (1)Roche OZNI IN Nomenclar Cardinal (d)Oldor ni in Athen Roтапо (e) See bere below the Pallage of Alcyonyus (f) Tulia quo animo fuffra giorum feveritatem, quum ex pair me-ub: [upra (g) Voss de Hist Lat pag (b) In compendio histo-(1) Præf ın Plin (k) Crin de honesta disci-

I aler an

Plin 16 c 11 (l) Father Rapın, Reflect on Philosophy p m 350 Teislier, Flog tom (m) 1 bar not bad lessure to look Page after Page for this, but I I True not found it in the places where it was most likely that I should find it (n) Du Verdier.

(L) Whether Hermolaus Barbarus was buried]
Once again, I believe that Pierius Valerianus has overstrain'd things, when he said, that that Patriarch dying in Poverty, and forsaken, was depriv'd of Burial (a) Ob susceptum inconsults Senatu fuo Aquileiense sacerdotium exsul factus, & de possessiones. Suo aquileiense sacerdotium exsul factus, & de possessiones.

egictus vitam inopem aliquandiu traxit, Alexandri Pon-tific s fummi fortula quodammodo fuftentatus paucis vero post mensibus pestilentia contactus, descrius ab omnibus, infelicissimo mortis genere oppressu est, yuique laudatione, & eloquentia sua innumeros ætatis suæ homines illustræverat, & funere, & honose sepulchri ita defraudatus est, ut ubi sepultus, quove hominis cadaver conjectum fuerit, ignoretur Paul Jovius, who writ after Pierius Valerianus, does not only fay, that Hermolaus Barbarus was buried, but also mentions the place of his Burial (b) Scilicet ut nimus severa patria optimi civis ossa non haberet, qua sub colle hortorum ad Flumentanam portam sepulchro condita è Campo Martio ab erudita Romana juventute salutantur de la Rochepoza: (c) and Father Oldoini (d) shew the place of his Sepulture more clearly, they place it at Santa Maria del Popolo It Valerianus had faid only

pair merito tibi
purpura
pararetur Sed mors ante diem arrepfit

at Santa Maria del Popolo It Valerianus had faid only that the fear of the Plague caused those, (e) who should have assisted the Patriarch, to forsake him, he would not have fallen into an Hyperbole

(M) That he was made a Cardinal | Pierius Valerianus does not affirm it, he says some things that are inconsistent with it, but does Paul Joouis, who has so clearly given him the Lyon as to the hurrying has so clearly given him the Lye as to the burying-place of Hermolaus Barbarus, say, that that Patri-arch had obtain'd a Cardinal's Cap? in no wise, he says only, that there was a design to bestow that Dignity upon (f) him The Author of the Nomenclator Cardinalium reports, that Tri hemius, follow'd in this by Pierius Valerianus and feveral others, affure that Herrolaus Barbarius attain'd to the Cardinalfhip As for him he affirms nothing, but is satisfied with these words, Cardinalis designatus, sed ut fertur nondum evulgatus Vossius (g) quotes the Condelier John Rioche, who assures, (h) that Hermo-laus Barbarus was made a Cardinal Father Hardoun (1) affirms the same thing

(N) That he had recourse to the Devil, to know the sense of a Greek word | This word is so essential to the Peripatetick Philosophy, that while it is uncertain what it signifies, it cannot be known what Aristotle meant concerning the Nature of the Body I speak of the word erreneyea, which some Latinists, finding no other word which they did like, have at last rendred perfectihabia Peter Crinitus speaks as if Hermolaus himself had boasted of that magical Confultation, and as if he had faid that the Answer was given with such a weak Voice that he could make nothing of it (k) Et revera perexilis vocula demonum & exigua est, quod olim no-ster quoque Venetus Hermolaus dicebat, vocem se damonus prætenuem & pene subsibilantem andisse, qua ille de Aristotelis sorte entelechia interrogatus, sibi ipsi & Georgio Placentino responsitavit I believe Peter Crinitus is the first Author who mention'd this Most People (1) quote only Bodin's Damonomania, where I have not yet found (m) that Action of Hermelaus Some quote Monlorius, who mentions it in his Treatile de Entelechia. And lastly, some pretend that Budaus is the Inventor of the Perfestibabia. You'll find thele words in Du Verdier Vau-Privas, And (n) also those that were minded to praise him have said of him, Est soulcissimus quidem, sed audacissimus in novandis vocabulis, as when he render'd Aristotle's

Biblioth Franceise, P. 472 reporting what Genebrard Said of Entelechia by the word Perfectihabia Note, that

Entelechia by the word Perfectihabia Note, that some (o) maintain that Givero has translated that Word of Aristotle very ill (Na) Lawrence de Medicis gave him some marks of a singular Esteem] He went to meet him notwithstanding the ill Condition of his Health, and received him very magnificently in his Country-house (p) Cum Hermolaus Barbarus Reipu Veneta nomine legationes forte per Italiam obiret, & ad urbem Florentiam obster accederet, Laurentius Medices (qui Florentinam Pempuhlican non minore tum consisten quam Florentinam Rempublicam non minore tum consilio, quam Florentinam Rempublicam non minore tum confilio, quam fortuna gubernabat) statim tanto viro cum amicus pluribus (ut sit) obviam procedit nichi veritus, quod agros pedes haberet, ac summus doloribus vexaretur Tum in Caiana villa (quam infinitus prope sumptibus adisicabat) honorisicentissime illum accepit simulque tanti hominis ingenio, & doctrina singulari provocatus, eam quoque liberalissime studiorum nomine illi obtulit, cum insigni atque instructissima bibliotheca, quam ad exemplum Philadelphi mira tum industria paraverat, ut in eo quasi Mularum secessi simul cum Pico Miranexemptum entiaacipii mira ium inaujiria paraverat, ut in eo quafi Mularum secessu simul cum Pico Mirandula honestioribus disciplinus, ac philosphiæ sacru pro arbitrio incumberet in quo Hermolaus Barbarus (ut homo maxime humanus) libenter se dixit & studiorum causa, & Laurentii merito talem animum aguoscere villamque ipsam, si per publicas curas liceret,

(O) Mr Varillas u mistaken in many things, and oftner than Moreri] He says, (q) 1st, That Hermolaus Barbaius past at Venice for him of all the Nobles that made Profession of the highest and nicest Gallantry 2dly, That no Body ever saw him sence, p Study, and that no Books were to be seen in his 187 & Chamber or Closet I question the first of these seq things, and the second I take to be false 3dly, That having taken upon himself the greatest Labour that was then in the Republick of Learning (this was (r) Pliny's Correction) he made use of the Authority of Manuscripts, and of the Greek and Roman Writers that had writ on the same Subjects, and that in the places where those two assistances fail'd him, he made use of his own Conjectures with so much likelihood, and such good Luck, that not one of them have been rej sted See the Confutation of this in the Remark F 4ly, That by that ingenious way he discovered that Pliny was born at Como, and that he composed a Dissertation about it, which convinced all those that read it. Of all the Authors that I have confulted on the List of Barbarus's Works, I found none that ascribes such a Dissertation to him. It is true, that in his Preface to Pliny he feems to prefer the reading Catullum congerronem meum, before that of Catullum conterraneum meum, whereby he eludes a most strong Argument that is taken from that Passage to prove that Pliny was of Verona It is true also, that independently from the reading Congerronem, which he will neither absolutely admit nor reject, he declares that Pliny was of Como, and not of Verona, but he does not enlarge upon this, three Lines are sufficient for him It is not then what is call'd a formal Differtation Now though Varillas were in the right as to this point, yet he tells a great falfity, for there is fearce any Learn'd (s) difinterested Critick, but always adjudg'd Pliny to those of Verona It is likely that Paul Journ's Words being ill understood have deceived Varillas (s) Nanocomposition C. Plinger, Learn'd Varillas (s) Nanocomposition C. Plinger, Learn'd Varillas (s) Nanocomposition C. Plinger, Learn'd Varillas (s) Nanocomposition C. Paul Jovius's Words being ill understood have deceiv'd Varillas (s) Novocomensibus C Plinium secundum civem suum ab imperitis invidiose surreptum, erudita praclaraque sententia reddidisti sthly, He tells us in the Secret History, That the admirable desire that Barbarus had to remedy the Disorders in Physick, made him undertake to do the same thing on Dioscorides which he had perform d on Pliny Which is to confound the Order of Times Barbarus liv'd so short a time after the publication of his Work on Pliny's Natural History, that he form'd no new Designs. Natural History, that he form'd no new Designs, he had Books enough to finish, and I do not doubt but that he wrote on Dissertes (w) before he applied himself wholly to Pliny 6thly, Hermo- end of the laws I riends advis'd him quietly to enjoy the Honour following which he had acquir'd by his Pliny and his Diosco- Remark

(o) ToannesFerrerius Pedeconfutes theminthe Trestise de Entelechia (p) Petrus Crinitus ubi supra 1 15 69

(q) Varil Anecdotes de Flolays, that Pliny's Natural H: ftory 36 Books. he ought to have faid

(s) Cau-fam dudumadıudicarunt Veronenfibus eruditi.inter quos præcipui Polycarpus Palermus fingulars opere de Plunu patria, & Scaliger in Euseb Chron pag 190 Hardouin in Plin

ubi fupra

rate Account of Hermolaus Barbarus, but he is mistaken in many things, and oftner than Morers

I shall set down a Passage of Alcycling, (P) whereby it will appear that our Hermo- A Takin congratulated himself on his Distrace, and that he never studied with so much from Gesapplication as since his Country had the him ill

BARBARUS (Daniel) Grand Mephew of the preceding, made himself esteem- fol 192 ed by his Learning He published a Commentary on the Live Predicaments of Porphyrius in the Year 1542 Two Care after he publish'd a Commentary on the Three from I huBooks of Aristotle's Rhetorick to Theodettus, which had been translated into Latin by anus Hermolaus Barbarus He had written to Casara that he had been translated into Latin by anus Hermolaus Barbarus He had written to Gesner, that he hoped speedily to publish se- Book 46 veral Works of Hermolaus β. We are indebted to him for the Edition of the Dialogues Palavic of Speron Speron B A R US (Daniel) of the fame Family as the preceding, was Patriarch and I find the Lagrange Lagrange Lagrange and the Lagrange Lagrange and the Lagrange Lagrange and the Lagrange Lagrange Lagrange and the Lagrange Lagrange Lagrange and the Lagra of Aquelesa, and famous for his Learning He had much addicted himself to the Ma- 1 16 c 4 of Fidelity to him, had he not been a Christian He was Ambassador of Venice ann 1562 in England, when Pope Paul W. named him * Coadjutor of the Patriarch Grimani de scient was one of the Fathers of the Council of Trent, and express d there a great Zeal Mathem the Pope He voted † strongly against those who desired the Communion in pag ,55 Kinds He died in the Year 1569, aged 41 Years || He had publish'd several Thuan ubi supra † Thuan the Works, and doubtes if he had lived longer, he would have ‡ publish'd many † Thuan

BAR-

rides, but he himself told them, that he ought (a) Themistu Peripatetici paraphra-fes in aliquot Ari-ftotelis libros ed moduma (adolefcens Latinas effe-Cit Gesner fol 318 (b) These words,Hos libros Them:ffii para-phrafticos Fiermolaus Barbarus Venetus A 1570 in fol edidit, in theJournal of Leip-fick ann 1685 pag 461 are not ex-#Et. for Mostiediti-

to translate what Themistius had left us on Aristotle, and he perform'd what he had proposed. Here's a new Anachronism, for the Translation of Themistius is (a) one of the first that Barbarus publish'd (b). He dedicated it to Sixtum IV who had been dead eight Years when he publish'd his Notes on Phny 7thly, Mermolaus did the Republick Justice against his own the same confess of that they had reason to be against his wife intreated the Pope occupier the Benefice on him that should be presented to him by the Ambassador of Venice, and declar'd formally, that he would have none of it, if he must at that price incur the Envy of his Citizens. This items to be a pure Romance. We have seen already in the Passage of Peter Bembus, that Hermolaus's Father would never let go his hold, to translate what Themistius had left us on Aristotle, that Hermolaus's Father would never let go his hold, and that he only endeavour d to foften the Repuand that he only endeavour d to soften the Republick Moreover it is certain, that the new Patriarch always preserved his Titles and did not submit to his Temporal Superior by It do not know where Varillas read, This the only remedy for Hermolaus's Cure, was to send him right Becoar, and that there was some of it in a Vessel of Agate at Florence, which the Soldan Caitbey had presented to Lawrence de Medieis Peter Crinitus, who ought to know it as much as any Body, says that the Anti-dote belong d to Picus Mirandulanus, who knew the Composition of it. (c) Pharmacon contra pessem quad Composition of it (c) Pharmacon contra pestem quod ille sibi si quando incidisset asservabat diligentissime, curat ut Romam quam celerrime ad Hermolaum devehatur Dicebat autem Picus illud ipsum ex oleo scorpionum linguisque aspidam, & aliis ejusmodi venenis confession

Mr Moreri's faults confift in faying, 1st, That the Senare did not approve the Choice which Innothe Senate did not approve the Choice which Innocent VIII made of Harmolaw Barbarus for the Patriage of Aquiles 2dly, That Hermolaus Barbarus de Pliny's Natural History The Senate would have no less disapproved the Election of another Person, and the Republick was not disappeared for what Innocent VIII had done in favour Termelaus Barbarus, but because the Pope pretended to dispose of the Patriarchate without confuling them, and because Hermolous had acknowledged the Pope's pretended Right, in accepting of that Dignity against the Laws of his Country He published his Corrections on Pliny without Pliny's Text

Text

(p) A Passage of Alcyonius, whereby it will appear of See the Passage here, it is Cardinal (d) John de Medicu that speaks (e) Exilium igitur Barbaro mon solum calamitatem detrant, sed etiam dignitatem anuit, quod quidem ita constanter, moderateque ferebat, ut facetissme jocaretur Musa illud sibi à patria impetrasse, quoniam agrè ferrent hominem suis sacris initatum andice Lemande cui anno compationibus impedire stange plura scriptic biennio exsul quant XX ante annos cum patria frueretur & homorobus illius strentissmus eset, recognitionem erratorum Pliniane codicie, explanationem illiania. noribus illius florentissimus esfet, recognitionem erratorum Pliniani codicu, explanationem librorum de anima Ari-flotelis, cum tamen ante ojusdem Philosophi libros talis

argumenti in Latinum convertisset, & XVI libros de ratione disserendi, veteres Peripatetici organon cos appellant , & V Rhetoricos & unum Poeticum, octoque Dioscorida Medicos, quos also etiam opere instrucerat quod Corollarium inscribebat Adjecerat quoque pulcerrimam expositionem ad libros analyticos posteriores Aristotelis (f) In the ante in Latinum tralatos. This items to retute what RemarkO ante in Latinum tralates. This icems to refute what I have faid (f) before, but if you observe it well, it does not, for besides that, there might be some fault of exactness in this enumeration of Aleyonius, it is certain that part of the Writings which he mentions, are rather a Revision, or a more ample Exposition of what Hermolaus had already made, tl an a quite new Undertaking, and it appears plainly, that Dioscordes had past through his hands before his Exile, and before the Correction of Pliny's It is a confirmation of what I have faid against Varillas Moreover it must be observed, that the Writings of that List were not publish'd before the Death of the Author, therefore he could not be exhorted to idleness, because his Pliny, and nius supasterwards his Diescorides, had acquir'd him Honour poses that enough We shall see that Alcyonius observes that Cardinal enough We shall see that Alcyonius observes that Gardinal these Works of Barbarus were preserved in Manu-John de script in a Library (g) Et hac quidem (h) omn a Medicis adhuc diligentissime asservatividia fratribus illius cum sadout the seeding abhine (i) annos Venetiis Biblio hecam illius ex mount to the seeding and the seeding abhine (i) annos Venetiis Biblio hecam illius ex mount to the seeding and the seeding and the seeding about the seeding and the see cuterem, atque incredibili sum latitia elatus cum cognovi doëtissimi amicissimique hominis elucubrationes non inter-cidisse, quod ne evenisset magnopere verebar cum in sub-urbano Oliveris Carapha Collega mei ex pestilentia obi-isset, & domestici intimique familiares suga saluti sua consuluissent, omniaque tanquam bona caduca in medium reliquissent Sed ejus generis scripta ab interitu & furto vindicata fuisse narrabant Zenotelis cujusdam opera, quem ille habebat ad manum I cannot deny but that Barbarus in the Epilogue of his Corrections on Phiny does promise an Edition of Dioscorides, (k) Serra aportet, lays he, annotamenta hac Diofcor ridi sueque propediem emittendo profutura But I per-A Work of that Author on Diescorides had been seen, before he gave that which he had made on Pliny, and after he had given a Paraphrase of Themistius See what follows Primum quidem dum Themistii nobu paraphrasin atque ed juvenis adhuc tam eleganter Latine loquentem producit mox edito in Dioscoridem corollario tam variam ac reconditam dottrina rerum omnium supellectilem depromit postremum Plinio P 425
(n) De Succurrit (1)

(Z) He had publish'd several Works] A Commen-(Z) He had publish a several Work; A Commentary on Vitruvina, that was Printed at Venice in the faculi Year 1567 La prattica della perspessiva, printed at XVI the same place in the Year 1559, and in the Year (a) Teiss (m) 1568 Catena Gracorum patrum in quinquaginta Addit to Psalmos latine versa Aubertus (n) Miraus, Moreri, Thuanus Teisser (a), Konig, Paul (p) Freherus, &c ascribe to tom 1 p had been commentary on the Five Predicaments of 357 Regularity and the Commentary on Acadesis Plan (p) Ireh Perphyrius, and the Commentary on Aristotle's Rhe-torick, which I mention'd in the preceding Ar-ticle. But because the first of these Commentaries

nus ibid

(g) Id Al-CVODAUS (h) The Pliny puhimself, Should have been (1) Alcyo-John de Medicis (k)Herm Barbarus ctor ad castigat p m 521 (1) Jo Oporinus epist de-dient Cafligat ın Plin Mathem P 355 & fcriptor

the Death of the Au-ther at a sta discip

lub I 67

4 Æneas Silvius in addition ad Anton Panormitam de dictis & factis Alphonsi l 3 n 44 p m 69 * Ex Mathia , I heatr Histor in Sigismun do, pag m 998 7 Æneas Silvius ubi iupra, n 5 p 56

BARBARA, Wife of the Emperor Sigismund, was the Daughter of Herman Count of Cilia in Hungary Sigismund had been taken by the Hungarians, and plac'd under the Guard of two young Gentlemen, whose Father he had put to Death While he was under their Guard, he persuaded their Mother to let him escape. It was not without having made many Lycules to her for the Death of her Husband, and many Promiles Among other things he promis'd her to marry the Daughter of the Count of Cilia, a near Relation of that Widow, and he perform d that Promise 4 She prov'd the most extraordinary Wife that ever was seen. She had no manner of shame for her lewd Life, her great Singularity did not confift in this, there are but too many Princesses that ire not concern'd for their Lewdness. That which was extraordinary in this was Atherim, (A) which has almost no Example among Women. She neither believed (B) Heaven nor Hell, and laugh'd at those Religious Persons that renounc'd the Pleasures. of this I ite, and mortify'd their Bodies Sigismund found himself ill marry'd upon another account, for his Wife Barbara plotted with some great Lords of Bohemia to drive him out of the Kingdom, and procure herself another Husband He discover'd He discover'd that Plot, and Condemn'd the Empiess to perpetual Imprisonment. When he was dead she was set at liberty *, and as she thought of marrying again, some Body represented to her the Lyample of the Turtle-Dove, which lives Single all her life-time after the death of her first Mate But she answer'd, If you propose the (C) Example of Beasts to me, propose that of Pigeons and Sparrows † She grew old at Gratz in Bohemia

(u) According to Thu mus and Voffius (β) I reher ibid

was printed in the Year 1542 and the Second in the Year 1544 it is visible that they are not the production of our Daniel Barbarus, born in the Year (a) 1528 Preherus (B) fays by a very strange missing at 40 Years of Age, had obtain'd the Patriaichate of Aquileia from Pope Innocent the VIII to whom he was sent Ambassador from Venice

(A) Athersm Which has almost no Example among Womin | I am not ignorant of what has been but newly tublish d in a Satyr on that Sex, which seems to be Mr Despreaux's Master-piece In this new Piece Impiety itielf is made one of the Irregularities of Women,

Dans le sexe y at peint la piete caustique

Et que seroit-ce donc, si Censeur plus tragique

J allois t'y faire voir l'atheisme etable, Et non moins que l honneur le Ciel mis en oubli Si j allois ty montrer plus d'une Capanei, Pour souveraine loi mettant la destinée, Du tonnerie dans l'air biavant les vains carreaux, Et nous parlant de Dicu du ton de Des-Barreaux?

But all this may be true, tho' there be not above four or five Women in France that are fallen into those impious Maxims I would not deny that this Prodigy is become somewhat less extraoidinary, since Women do not pretend to be so ignorant as they did heretosore. There must be a certain degree of false Metaphysicks, to fall into the unhappy abyls of Irreligion However it be, I am very well persuaded with the Author of the Thoughts on Comets, that Women do not deleve to be censur'd upon such an account Atheism is not their Vice, they make it a Vertue not to enter into deep Reasonings, therefore they flick to their Catechism, being much more inclind to Superstition than Impiety, they are great lovers of Indulgences and Sermons, and so much possels with a thousand Passions that fall as it were to their lot, that they have neither the necessary time nor capacity to call the Articles of their Faith in question (a) It is centiin they disconer find the fecret of reconciling

Passions and Religion together, even in Mòlinossim itself, than the expedient of believing nothing

(B) She neither believed a Heaven nor Hell] See the description that Bonsinius (b) lest us of that Woman, Barbaram Imperatricem ea tempestate Grace diem obisse ferunt, indomita libidinis mulierem, que inter adulteros publice vitam duxit, profitutoque pudore viros sapius petiit quam peteretur. Quum ab omni religiosas sancillas, sejuniis aut orationi rebusque divinis autoras araquius increabatt. nullis asseverans molestiis. intentas gravius increpabat, nullis asseverans molestiis ac incedia corpus se macerandum immo laute pascendum, in delitiis & voluptatibus alendum, & post mortem, cum nihil supersit, nullam deorum animorumque cu-

am esse subsundam

(C) If you propose the Example of Beasts to me] It is one of the best common places of Morality to make Man see his Disorders, by comparing his Men tear each other to pieces, Man is (c) a Wolt to Man, but Beasts of the same Kind do not fight with each other. It was by this means that Horace endeavour'd to make the Romans asham'd, who engag d themselves into Civil Wars, he says, That Wolves and Lyons did no do so He supposes that his Objection is so strong, that those to whom it is propos'd find themselves reduc'd to a shameful

Neque (d) hic lupis mos, nec fuit leonibus Unquam, pifi in dispar, feris Furorne cacus, an rapit vis acrior? An culpa? responsum date Tacent, & ora pallor albus inficit,

Mintesque percussa supent

Juvenal made vie of the same Morality in his

15th Satyr

Sed jam serpentum major concordia Sed jam serpentum major concordia parcis Cognatis maculis similis fera quando lioni Fortior eripuit witam leo 3 quo nemore unquam Expiravit aper majoris dentibus april Indica tigris agit rabida cum tigride pacem Perpetuam, favis inter se convenit ui sis

Ast homini, &c., Mr Despreaux has Translated the (e) Latin of those (e) See his two Poets very well, and joyn'd other Examples 8th Satyr

Voit on les loups brigans, comme nous inhumains, Pour detrousser les loups, courir les grands chemins?

Un aigle sur un champ pretendant droit d'aubeine Ne fait point apeller un aigle à la huitaine jamais contre un renard chicanant un poulet Un renard de son sac n alla charger Rolet Jamais la biche en rut n'a pour fait d'impuissance Traine du fond dis bois un cerf à l'audience Et jamais juge entre eux ordonnant le congres,

De ce burlesque mot na sali ses arrets

Tho' this is a very fine Common-place, and such as will make a great impression on the Mind, yet it has its weak side For first it may be eluded by a Jest, and in the second place it may be eluded by crassoque a Jest, and in the second place it may be seliciously subserved opposed by the Maxim, Nil (f) agit exemplum litem nascingued lite resolvit, that is to say, It may be retorted, Juven and by turning the Tables, the Moralist may lose sat 10 his Advantage I don't pretend to approve of v 50 those that oppose Jests to Arguments, but I say, it is a very great disadvantage to an Argument, to discuss the able to be turn'd into Ridicule by People that love jesting Let us prove this by an Example It any Body had undertaken to make Mr de Baular is fur believe that it is better to chuse an old Miller que tru believe that it is better to chuie an old Mi-ftreis than a young one, and had quoted the place fireis than a young one, and had quoted the place of Pliny, where it is faid, That the Rams seek ration after old Ews than young ones, would he not have been confounded by this bantering Aniw, (g) It is because Rams are (h) Rams? A Roman Lady made use of the like Thought, to a Man who could not apprehend for what reason the Females among Beasts did not desire the Male, but when they had a mind to become Mothers The Lady (1) answer'd, It is because they are Beasts. Was not this a contounding stroke? So much for the first inconveniency. The other is not less, for in short, a Man that you would send to the School of Beasts to learn his Duty there, will tell you that he deto learn his Duty there, will tell you that he de- fieri, re to learn his Duty there, will tell you that he defires no better For there, says he, I shall learn so submit Right to Force The stronger Dog does not scruple to take the weaker's portion from him What is there more common than to see Dogs sighting together? Do not Chickens sight together in sight of their common Mothers? Do not Cocks sight so exuely against each other, that ham many times the Battle does not coase before the death of in sine.

(d) Horat Epod 7

(f)Horat Sat 3 1 2 (g) See Menagiana, p 323 of the Ist edition of Holland (b) Vervecum in patria crassoque (1) Simile liæ quæ cuidam quid effet quapropbestiæ nunquam marem desideracum prægnantes vellent

(a)Several thoughts on Comets, 78 142 pag 421 (b)Rerum Ungaricar decad 3 lib 7 p m 344, 345 THE IN-CONVENI-INCH's of the moral Precepts taken from the conduct of Beasts (c) Homo homini lupus

Fraim Chil r

Centur 1 " 70 p " 48

without fortaking her Debaucheries*, and died there about the Year 1451 Nevertheless the Bohomisms buried her very magnificently at Prague in the Tomb of their Kings, in Bohemisms as Bonfloids affirms it in the 7th Book of the 3d Decad Prateolus does not forget her in the turpi his Alphabetical Catalogue of Hereticks, which makes him very ridiculous, for she & fædis hid not forge any new Doctrine nor set up her self as the Head of a Sect, She fell into libidinate impieties of all times. In all Countries Profine and Impious People have always mi conse taught † at those who exposed themselves by a principle of Religion to the burning of nuit. Man the Flesh, instead of following the inclinations of Nature

BARBERINI (Francis) one of the best Poets of his time, was born in the Year

Barbara fullas

And at Barberino in Tuscamy

His Mother being a Native of Florence, he went and set appella-1264 at Barberno in Tulcany His Motner being a Native of Florence, he went and recompleted himself in that City, where the profession of the Law, but above all the beauty of bat virgings has Poems made him very considerable. Most of his Works are lost. That, which he que was intituled (A) The Precepts of Love, had a better destiny. It came out of the Press profession and the profession of the profession o at Rome in the Year 1640, udorn'd with fine Figures It was done by the care of Frence passes who took that occasion to court the higher Powers, for the House of fuillent, Barberins which was descended from this Poet, enjoyed the Papacy at that time At propteres the beginning of that Work he placed the Author's Life and some Elogies, and because and vocation to the beginning of that Work he placed the Author's Life and some Elogies, and because a luptures the sadded a Glossfary that explains them. there are several obsolete words in those Verses, he added a Glossary that explains them, gaudia and clears or proves the Sense of them by the Authority of contemporary Poets ||

BARCLAY (William) a Learned Civilian in the XVIth Century, was of Aberdeen in Scotland, and of a very good (A) Family Though he had been in favour with Praceolus Queen Mary Stuart, he could not make any Fortune at the Court of the King of Scot- P m 85 one of them? Do not Pigeons, the symbol of meckness, come very often to blows? What can be more furious than the fighting of Bulls? Is it not Force (a) that decides their Right in amorous matters?

Illi (b) alternantes multa vi prælia milicent

Vulneribus crebris lavit ater corpora fanguis, Versaque in obnixos uigentur cornua vasto Cum gemitu ieboant silvæque & magnus Olympus

Nec mos bellantes una stabulare, sed alter Victus abit, longeque ignotis exulat oris Multa gemens, ignonuniam plagasque superba Victoris, tum quos amisti inultus amores, Et stabula aspectans regnis excessitavitis

Hanc venerem pietas, coeuntque animalia nullo Cætera delicto, nec habetur turpe juvencæ Ferre patrem tergo fit equo fua filia conjux, Quafque creavit init pecudes caper, ipfaque cujus Semine concepta est ex illo concipit ales Felices, quibus ista licent humana malignas Cura dedit leges, & quod natura remittit

Invida jura negant
Shall I not learn there to feize on every thing that lies within my reach, that I may lay up Provisions I ke the Ant?

(d) Sicut

Parvula, nam exemplo est, magni formica laboris Ore trahit quodcunque potest atque addit acervo Ore trainst quodeunque potest asque addit acervo Quem struit, haud ignara at non incauta suturi Shall I not free myself from the hard Slavery under which so many People groan, and the weight whereof makes'em break out into these mournful Complaints?

Que (e) vôtre bonheur cst extrême, Cruels hons, sauvages ours,

Vous que n'avez dans los amours

Vous qui n'avez dans vos amours D'autre regle que l'amour même!
Que j'envie un temblable fort! Et que nous fommes malheureuses Nous de qui les loix rigoureuses Punissent l'amour par la mort de la Suze It cannot then be deny d, that the Examples of It cannot then be deny d, that the Examples of all manner of Irregularities which the School of Brutes may afford, do somewhat weaken the itoralities of which I have spoken in the beginning of this Remark For since according to Theology, all Beasts are free from Sin, it cannot be said that some are grown disorderly for a Punishment of their Faults, and that others have been kept in a regular course for a Payment of their Coad works. a regular courie for a Reward of their Good-works a regular course for a Reward of their Good-works So that whatever they do is equally regular, and if any one should ask you, as Sigismund's Widow did, Why will you rather have me imitate the Turtle-Dove, than the Pigeon or the Sparrow? You can give no good Aniwer, unless you consult the Grounds of Morality, which you would be obligd to consult, if you did not make use of the Example of the Turtle-Dove What Answer would Mr Despressive give to a Sophister, that should maintain, that his rutting Hind is a very false Comparison?

For to make it good, it were necessary that such a Leipsic in Beast might be in such a Case as those Women are the 7th that Sue a Man at Law for Impotency Now can a Settion of Hind be in fuch a Case? Does she ingage her I aith the 1st volto a single Stag? If one fails her, does she not find of the Supothers? Mr Despreaux's Investive and biting Cenplements fure would be well-grounded in a Country where the Laws of Marriage should be unknown, but it is very certain, that in such a Country Men would be no more Su'd for Impotency than the Stags, and that no Body would be condemd to a Con-grefs by a Decree of Parhament

What I have faid does not hinder me from be- dustron to

What I have faid does not hinder me from believing that the Moralities I speak of are very and voint proper to affect most People. Therefore I do Long do not blame Francis de Saler, who propos'd the Llephant for an Example of Chistry, and I condemn the Answer of the Empress Barbara. A thousand Chastity things might be said on this Subject. The Actions of Beasts are perhaps one of the most profound. Nuprint Abysses on which our Reason can be exercised, Bed What and I am surprized that so few Persons do perceive it But let us set down the Words of Francis de Sales, The (f) Elephant, says he, is only a great Beast, phant is Sales, The (f) Elephant, says he, is only a great Beast, phant but the workiest and most sensible that lives upon Earth taken so I shall say one word of his Chastity, he never changes Aristot his semale, he loves her tenderly whom he has chosen. Histor with whom nevertheless he does not cohabit but every Animal and the Days and so projected that the third Year, and only five Days, and so privately, that 1 5 c 15 he is never seen in that Ast But on the 6th Day he ap- from Pliny pears, when before all things he goes directly to some Ri- 18 c quer, wherein he washes his whole Body, without return- from Aliing any more to the Herd before he is put fyd Is not this a fine and a chaste Incl nation of such a Beast, whereby he invites marry d People not to set their Assemble Etions on the sensuality and voluptuousness, which they have exercised according to their Vocation, but as soon as they are over, to wash their Heart and Affection, and purify themselves as speedily as may be, that they may afterwards with all freedom of Mind practise more pure afterwards with all freedom of Mind praif Je more pure and elevated Actions, &c

(A) Which was intitled, The Precepts of Love]

This is equivocal, one might think, that this Poem is a School of Coquetry, like those of Ovid de Intake of arte amandi, but it would prove a very great minstake. There is nothing more Moral than this Poem of Barberini. It contains nothing but Rules which teach those their Duty that love Glory, Versure and Freenity (a)

State of Widow Monogra
my, had already ob Jeru d this of the Elevand Freenity (a) tue, and Eternity (g)

-(A) Of All very good Family To wit, that of phant, and Barclay, which is related to all the giest Families had given of Scotland, as appears by a Patent from King James it with the printed before the Argenis I make use of the word Turtle dove Printed before the Argenis I make vie of the word furtledove Patent, because it is not a meer Letter written to for notable the Duke of Lorrain, as Mi Mnage (h) affirms, but examples a Letter seal'd with the great Seal of the Kingdom, an Profitand address to every Body in these usual Words, an Profitand all to whom these Presents shall come, Greeting Mr of modely Menage is very excusable in his mistake, but he and chasti-

in Boheland, from the tournal of > (f) In+10-Bed What taken from Aristotle Anımıl an Histor Anım Claud Spenceus in by Treatife Of the

(g) Journal of I ciplic, p 3+9 of the 1st Volume of the Supplement (h) Mcnage, Remarks on the Life of Ayrault, page Rrr

(2) Ignotis perie-Tunt mortibus ilh Quos Venerem ancertam repicates MORE FE RARUMA Viribus editior cædebat ut in grege Laurus Horas Set 3 /1 (b)Virgil Georg 13 v 220 (c) Myrrha apud Ovidium Metam 1 10 (d) Horat

(c) Thefe Verses are of the Pa-ftor Fido according to the Translation in the Countess of John Barclay, prefixed to the Argomis put the Year 1571 B See the Remark A of the following Article y Her name was Anne de Mallevil-S Taken from Mr Menage, Remarks of Peter Ayrault, 228 &

Sat I l I

W 32

(A) It 15

printed be-fore the

Argenis

(b) His

Name 15

Francefco Pona

he wrote the life of John Barclay, and prefix-

ed it to bus

Translation

of the Ar-genis (c) In Lotharingia confedif-se, ibique

tem genere, mori-busque fuis non contrax-ındıgnam

iffe
(d) The 19
March,

1582 Moreri

makes it the 28th

(e) Menage ubi

fupra
(f) Francesco Po-na in Vita

Jo Barcfixed to the

Translation

of the Ar-

nage, ibid (b) Nic.

Erypter Parageth

lan pre-

Italian

a The Life land, the Son of that Princess. This made him resolve to retire into France in Year * 1573 and tho' he was near 30 Years of Age, yet he went to study the Cistic Law at Bourges Sometime after he took there (B) his Doctor's Degree; and as he Law at Bourges Sometime after he took there (B) his Doctor's Degree; and as he had a great deal of Wit, and apply'd himself very much to Study, he soon made himself capable to teach the Civil-Law His Under the Jesuit Edmund Hey, procur'd him a Prosessorian in that Science in the University of Pontamousson by the Credit he had with the Duke of Lorrain, who had lately founded that University That Duke did not only confer the chief Chair on Barclay, but the him also a Counsellor in his Councils, and Master of Requests of his Palace the Year 1582 Barclay married a resolution of Lorrain, by whom he had a Son that became the Man, and was the innocent cause that his Father fell out with the Jesuits Man had so much Wit that they us'd their utmost indeavours to enter him they Man had so much Wit, that they us'd their utmost indeavours to enter hun their their Order His Father was vext at it, they were angry with him, and did him to many ill Offices with the Duke that they oblig'd him to leave Lorrain He went to King James at London, who offer'd him a place in his Council with a very good suntenance, but he refus'd those offers by reason of the condition that was added which was that he should imbrace the Religion of the Church of England In the peginning of the Year 1604, he return'd into France, and accepted the Piofessorship of the Civil Law that was offerd him by the University of Angers He taught there (C) with great glory until his Death, which happen'd towards the latter end of the (D) Year 1605 He was buried in the Cordeliers Church • He publish'd (E) some Books, and one N AND that caus'd this Superscription, Epistola Jacobi Scotie Regis, Carolo Lotharingia Duci, to be put to King James's Attestation, is a Deceiver or an Ignoramus that cannot be excus'd He ought to have read that Writing, since he caus'd it to be printed (s) in the beginning of a Book, now he could not find a Line there, but what shew'd him that it was not a Letter written to the Duke of Lorrain The (b) Italian Translator of the Argenis tells us, That the Relations of the Lady Malleville, would not agree to her Marriage with William Barclay, before they had feen proofs of the Nobility that he boasted of He adds, That this vex'd Barclay only by reason of the amorous Impatience that transported him, for he was oblig d to wait for the arrival of a Certificate before he tafted of the pleasures of Injoyment He goes on, and says, That when the Relations of the fair Lady saw the That when the Relations of the fair Lady faw the Royal Attestation, they were the first that hasten'd the conclusion 'Tis a Subject of wonder to find those things in the same Page where the King of Scotland's Certificate is to be found, for that Prince declares expressly that (c) Barclay had a Wise already, and this is moreover certain by the (d) Date of the Attestation That Date is above a Month after the Birth of John Barclay, the Son of William, and of the Lady Malleville The Author William, and of the Lady Malleville The Author of John Barclay's Life in Latin was in the same Error He says, The Attestation was required, that he might shew himself under the Title of a Perfon of Quality to his future Spouse Cum Anna de Malavilla contracturus nuptias ex Scotia regias literas accercivit, quibus ingenua nobilitatis titulos futura spon-

accersivit, quibus ingenua nobilitatis titulos jutura jpon-Ja approbaret

(B) He took there his Dector's Degree] Cujas pre-sided at that Act (e) It is a great falsity to say, that Barclay's Marriage did not interrupt his Stu-dies, and that having continu'd them after his Wedding, from a Scholar he became a Doctor, and from a Doctor, a Professor of the Civil-Law, (f) Leguals (nozze) non rompendo il bel filo de gli studis di lus, successe che di scolare ch' egli era, passato al grado del Dottorato, riceve una lettura prin-cipale di Leggi cipale di Leggi

(C) He taught there with great Glery] "When he went to his Lectures, he was follow'd by his Son and two Servants, in a magnificent Gown, with a great Chain of Gold about his Neck (g)"

(D) Towards the end of the Year 1605. Morers being deceiv'd by Nicius Erythraus and others, has set the Year 1609, instead of the Year 1605. He begenis (g) Melieved with reason that our Barclay went to teach the Civil-Law, at Angers in 1604 and he found in Nicius Erythraus that this Professor liv'd five Years after having taken possession of that Place Ab (h) Andibus optimis conditionibus evocatur, ut in iploium gymnasio primariam Juris civilis cathedram ob-Page to 3.76 I re-In was easy to conclude, that he did not dye till about the Year 1609 but the Italian Author is mistaken, Theatr page 1515 makes the Professoring so continue 5 Tears. He quotes Imperialis and I homain feeing besides the Authority of Mr. Menage, I can ubi Supra alledge this Reason Plan was dead be-pag 228 fore the Difference between and the Ve-ascribes netians were ended According to him netians were ended According to him netians were ended to the second of the second the sec & jam senecta liberiorem illa turba quas multi omina- face to bantur, cum Pontifex in Anglum Venetosque districtus, John I illum quidem jam a sacris nostris alienum acerbare, hos autem alienare quelebatur Sed tam pium conatum in-tercepit felia & in Christo obitus. This we find in the (1) Preface to the Book De potestate Papa. The Differences between the Pope and the Republick of te and the Penice were ended in the Year 1607 Witte being perhaps deceived by Moreri only, has placed (k) the publish of fome Books] Among others to ci metia on the Life of Agricola, and a Commentary (1) Et quion the Title of the Pandetts de rebus creditis or de metia on the Life of the Pandetts de rebus creditis or de gurejurando He publish d it in the Year 1605, at regno lipearies. But the two Pieces that made him most to be bros quie Paris But the two Pieces that made him most to be spoken of, are the Treatise of the Pope's Power, and that of the Power of Kings The Title of the first 1s, De potessate Papa, an & quatenus in reges & princi-pes seculares jus & imparium habeat The second is in-titl'd, De regno & regain potessate adversus Buchana-num, Brutum, Boucharium & reliquos Monarchomachos He publish'd this latter Work at Paris in the Year 1600, and Dedicated it to Henry IV The other did not come out of the Preis before the Death of the Author, who durst not (1) say that he was writing such a Work He undertook those two pieces when he saw the disorders of the League, the Subjects in Arms against their King, and the legitimate Possessor of the Crown declar'd to have forfeited their Throne by the Papal Bulls Lorrain, where he was advantageously settled, follow'd the Stream, and approv'd the Revolt of the Subjects, and the Attempts of the Court of Rome against the Temporalities of Princes He remaind firm in his Principles, for he had learn'd them in a good School, neither must it be question'd, but that the Seditions of the Scots had been his chief Caretaism in this respect Nothing is more proper the Republican Maxims hated, than to see the have produc'd Troubles that have destroy deligion that one believes the only true one, and the way belov'd thron'd a Queen by whom one was belov'd ever it be, the Professor of Pontamousson shew uncommon steadiness Most Persons alter Principles as they change their Country and Interests, as for him, he preserv'd those Maxims in Lorrain which he had in Scotland, though the fitua-tion of Affairs was much alter'd The Authority of the People rais'd on the Royal Power ferv'd in Scotland for the ruin of Popery, and in France for the ruin of the Protestants Nevertheleis Barclay did not change his Opinion He had found it unit just in Scotland where it was contrary to the Catholick Religion, and found it no less unjust in France where it did much good to the same Religion It is rare to find such a Constancy in a Doctor, but we find every-where Persons whose Principles are like a Weather-cock I have said that Barclay durst not discover that he writ against the Maxims of the Ultrameuntains, but this ought on-

(1) Mr Menage John Barclay the (k) Wit-bros quibus popularem ambitum exagitabat nulla diffimulatione conopus (de potestate Papa) fecreto aggressus est, cum tunc aliquid Pontifici negare hærelis cenferetur In prafat Operis de pot Papan

LEAGUE did not alter Bar clay s Hypothefis concerning the

among the rest wherein he resuted some Authors, who tho' of different Religions, did * Quas nevertheless agree about Republican Maxims (F) in favour of Religion. He had (G) an (Interes) cum idem aversion for the Calvinists, and it is likely that the condition wherein he saw his Country which he had lest * for the Catholick Religion, entertain'd that Spirit of Bitter-mus vide-

BARCLAY (John) the Son of the foregoing, was born at Pontamousson the cum avita religione fordescending the state of the s (A) 28th of January, 1583 The Jesuits of that I own under whom he studied were fordescefor charm'd with his Wit, that they us'd their utmost endeavours to draw him into their refrinci-Company I have faid already that this was the reason that his Father went to King pem vero James, who was littly come to the Crown of England He brought his son along marcescewith him; his Son I say who, was (B) already an Author, and had some new Works ready for the Press. He had publish'd a Commentary on the Thebass of Statius in † mis car-1601 and he publish'd a Latin Poem on the Coronation of King fames, and the ceris situ first part of the Euphormio in the Year 1603. Those two Pieces pleas'd his Britannick Majesty very well, who lov'd and understood Learning folin Barclay dedicated that beginning of the Euphormio to him. He return'd into France with his Fither, who anno would not leave him with King Fimes, for feat that Prince, who would willingly have 1571 Luretain'd him, should ingage him to abjure the Romin Faith He continu'd at zingers, tetiam untill his Fathers Death, afterwards he went to Paris where he took (C) a Wite, and went soon after to London He was there in the Year 1606, and it was then that he the was came acquainted with Mr de Peirese He had lately published the History of the Gun-Printed a Powder-Treason It is a Writing | of Six Leaves which was Printed at Amsterdam In Ponti-

(a) Ibid

ly to be understood of the times that the League continu'd, for when it was distipated, he made no longer a Mystery of his Work, (a) but gave it to the Printer, and Dedicated it to Clement VIII But he took it away again from the Printer, and kept it near Ten Years, during which time, he added several things to it, and cut off more. He was making all the haste he could to finish it at the sight of the Differences that were like to arise between the Pope and the Vinters, but Death hims (b) 18.d. the Pope and the Vinetians, but Death hindred him from fetting the last Hand (b) to his Work

(E) Do nevertheless agree about Republican Maxims in favour of Religion. He confuted two Protest ints, Buchanan and Hubert Languet He confuted Boucher also, one of the Rectors of Paris, and a very violent Leaguer I his Main submitted the Sovereign Authority to the People, for the good of the Catholick Religion, the others did the fame thing for the good of the Protestant So that they were all three reunited in the general Thesis, and all three Barclay's Adversaries

(G) An Aversion for the Calvinasts] This appears by his Writings Read these Words of Mr Menage, (c) "He was a great Enemy to the Calvin strain "Lutherans In his Commentary on the Title in "Lutherans of the Roll of the the Digests de rebus creditis, he lays, speaking of Doneau, Regent Doctor of the Civil-Law in the University of Bourges, Hugo Donellus unus ex præ-ceptoribus mess vir civilu Diciplina peritus, scd

"malus quia hareticus Calvinista"

(A) Was born at Pontamousson the 28th of January 1583 I have blindly follow'd Mr Menage, but reserv'd to myself the liberty to rectify him here by referv'd to myself the liberty to rectify him here by himself He mentions Page 228, that which serves for a Text to this Remark, and afterwards he affirms, Page 232, that John Barclay dy'd the 12th of the Month of August, in the Tiar 1621, aged 39 Tears and 6 Months. He was therefore born in the beginning of the Year 1582 This is confirm'd by another Fact which Mr Menage mentions (d) In the Year 1603 John Barclay Dedicated the first Part of the Euphormio to the King of England, and (d) he declares in the Apology for the Euphormio, that he was but 21 Years of Age, when he caus'd that first Part to be printed An Author that is but 20 Years and some Months of age, does not say that he is but 21 Years of Age, he only says so when 20 Years and some Months of age, does not say that he is but 21 Years of Age, he only says so when his 22d Year is not far gone Barclay had therefore at least 21 Years compleat in 1603. He was not then born in the Year 1583, but in the Year 1582. So that if his Birth-day is the 28th of January, his Father's Marriage must be plac'd in the Year 1581, and not in the Year 1582, as Mr Menage would have it Draw the same Consequences from what he says (f) that Barclay being but 19 Trans of Age in 1601, caus da Commentary on Statius to be print-1601, caus da Commentary on Statius to be printed. He remarks (g) that he who wrote the Life of John Barclay printed before the Argenis, is firangely deceived in saying that John Barclay was born at the Place of the Piret.

Aberdeen If he was mistaken about the Place of his Birth, he was not mistaken about the time, which he fays was the 28th of January 1582 read under the Stamp of John Barelay, plac'd before the Argenis, that he was Born the 28th of January 1682 And thus the Ingravers deceive us as well as the Printers

(B) His Son, I say, who was already an Author] We have seen already that at 19 Years of Age he publish d a Commentary on Statius, he describes then to be inserted in the 2d Edition of the Famous Children, he would deserve it yet more, if his Age had been well-known to Nicius Erythraus for in that Cife he must have been an Author at 15 Years And indeed, Enthraus says, (h) that Barclay was but 17 Years of Age when he made a Poem on Aing James's Coronation, that is to fay, in 1603 At that late, he should have been but 15 Years of Age when in 1601 he publish'd a Commentary on the Thebais of Statius Let us observe here a new militike of that Italian Author, which prov'd contagious to Moreri, and so contagious that it has produc'd mother. Moreri was not satisfied to say that Barclay was but 17 Years of Age when King James was Crown d, but he has converted the printed Poem of that Author into a Speech that he spoke. Paul Freberus (1) places John Barclay's birth to the said of the said printed Poem of that Author into a Speech that he ipoke Paul Freherus (1) places John Barclay's birth in the Year 1585 and the Pauegyrick on the Coronation in the 17th Year of his Age (C) Where he took a Wife] "He married (k) "Louise Dehonnaire, Daughter of Michael Dehonnaire," I readurer of the old Troops, and of Ursina Demostration of the went afterwards with his Wife into "England, where he had two Sons and a Daughter by her' He did not marry at Rome Morers, who says so, did not well understand his Nature who fays io, did not well understand his Nicius Erythraus, who might have inform'd him easily that

Erythraus, who might have inform'd him easily that Barclay escaped from England with his Wife and his Son, and retir d to Rome, where his Wife brought him another Son Ibi (1) Barclaius, ex uniore quam habebat masculam prolem suspent Sed aliquanto post clam ex Anglia una cum uvore of filio se sugar furripuit, ac Roman venit Roma (m) novam ex unior suspent s of Erythraus, one would never think that Barclay's Erythr Wife did not come to Rome but 4 Years after her ubi supra Husband, and yet Gaffendus affirms it to be true pag 76 Read the place where he mentions the good Offices (1) Theat that Mr de Peirese did her Husband in the Year p 1515 that ives as recreix and ner flusband in the Year 1620 Pratereo fuisse Petreskio non minorem circa Barclass uxorem, filium, & so Ludovicum Debonarum uxores germanum, cum QUARTO post ANNO profesti Roman ad illum sunt (o) If Mr Menage had well weigh d these words of Gassendus, he would not have faid that Rarrian went to Roma in the not have faid that Barclay went to Rome in the E Year (p) 1617 and that his Wife, his Son, and p his Brother-in-Law came to him there (q) in the (s Year 1619 He adds that Barclay's Son came to p 79 Paris with his Mother in the Year 1652, that he (n) Ibid was no eminent Person, that he made Latin Verses, (o) Gas-ret una re in infaceris fitu, Vita 70 Barclass the mousion, and dedicated to Charles III Duke of Lor-Intitul'd Series pa-Vinitus . parricidii in maxigem, regnumque Britanniæ cogitati, & instiu-

(b) An num tum Toannes decimum feptimum. Regis inauguratigantiffimum carmen edimo verborum fententiarumque folendore ıİlumına tum.quod rex adeo probavit ut, &c p 1515 (k) Menage ubi fupra, p 230 (1) Nic Èiythr was no eminent and ann 1616 pag m 283 See a'/o p vita Peireskii ad ann 1616 pag m 283 See a'/o p ze-name iibi fupra, pag 231 (1) Id ibid pag 232 and See a'/o p 288. (p) Menage ubi supra, pag 231 R r r 2

nage ubi Supra, PAE 229

(c) Me-

(d) Id 1b

(e) Ibid PAS 231

(f) Ibid p 228,229 (g) Ibid See the end of the Remark D † On the print before the Argenis they have 12th of April || Taken from Mr Menage's Remarks on the Life of Peter Áyrault ubi Kupra 1 Nicius Erythræus, Pinacoth 3 148 80

(a) Ibid

par 231 (b) Joan-nes Barclarus qui post edirum de Summo Pontifice opus, nec jam foli-

ta apud Regem, fuolque pollens ratia fubduxit fese ex

Anglia Gaffend 1b pag 282 (c) Eudæ-mon Jo-annes epist monitoria ad Jo Barclasum n 1

(d) Id ib
(e) Gaffend ibid

pag 288,

290 (f)Cadem

ingenii fæcundı-tate peperit egic-

gium il-lud opus,

Argenida

nomine.

argumenti novita-te & verborum iplendo-re, ac re-rum varıetate, tantum commendati-onis ha-

rum eti am quæ il the Year * 1610, he published an Apology for the Emphormic at London, and his Pather's (D) Treatise De potestate Pape. In the Year 1612 he caus'd a Book to be Printed at Paris (E) which he intituled Pieras. It is an Answer to Cardinal Bellarmin, who had Paris (E) which he intituled Pieras It is an Aniwer to Cardinal Bellarmin, who had writ against William Barchay's Book concerning the Pope's Power Two Years after appear'd the Icon Animorum, which he Publish'd Condon From whence he went in the Year 1616 to Paris where he was presented this good Friend Mr de Peries to Mr du Vair Keeper of the Seals He went this good Friend Mr de Peries to Mr du Vair Keeper of the Seals He went this good Friend Mr de Peries to Mr du Vair Keeper of the Seals He went this good Friend Mr de Peries to Mr du Vair Keeper of the Seals He went this good Friend Mr de Peries to Mr du Vair Keeper of the Seals He went this good Friend Mr de Peries to Mr du Vair Keeper of the Seals He went this good Friend Mr de Peries to Mr du Vair Keeper of the Seals He went this good Friend Mr de Peries to Mr du Vair Keeper of the Seals He went this good Friend Mr de Peries to Mr du Vair Keeper of the Seals He went this good Friend Mr de Peries to Mr du Vair Keeper of the Seals He went this good Friend Mr de Peries to Mr du Vair Keeper of the Seals He went this good Friend Mr de Peries to Mr du Vair Keeper of the Seals He went this good Friend Mr de Peries to Mr du Vair Keeper of the Seals He went this good Friend Mr de Peries to Mr du Vair Keeper of the Seals He went this good Friend Mr de Peries to Mr du Vair Keeper of the Seals He went this good Friend Mr de Peries to Mr du Vair Keeper of the Seals He went this good Friend Mr de Peries to Mr du Vair Keeper of the Seals He went this good Friend Mr de Peries to Mr du Vair Keeper of the Seals He went this good Friend Mr de Peries to Mr du Vair Keeper of the Seals He went this good Friend Mr de Peries to Mr du Vair Keeper of the Seals He went this good Friend Mr de Peries to Mr du Vair Keeper of the Year of the Seals He went this good Friend Mr de Peries to Mr du Vair Keeper of the Year of th rence's Church on the way to Tivoli \ We shall say in the Religion of the Husband's Busto to be taken from thence. Many behave that Folia Barcley made Profession (H) of the Protestant Religion in England (I) pub-

and that at that time he caus'd a Latin Elogy to be Printed at Paris Erythreus speaks of Barclay's Widow as of a presumptuous and haughty Woman See hereafter the Remark G In the Latin Life of John Barclay it is falfly faid that he was Marry'd with Louis Debonnaire, after he had been imploy'd in divers Ambasses by King James

(D) His Father s Treatise De potestate Papæ] If we believe Mr (a) Menage the Printing of that Book made him lose part of the King of England's fa-vour I cannot apprehend from whence this should come, seeing this is a Book that strongly consutes the Pretentions of the Ultramountains, and particularly Bellarmin's Arguments, and wherein the in-dependency of Kings is strongly maintained Could any thing be written more pleasing to King James? I conjecture that Gassendus's (b) Latin has deceiv'd Mr Menage, and this shews us more and more how difficult it is to write very clearly in Latin When it is nearly look'd into, one may apprehend that that Author does not affirm, that the Book concerning the Pope's Power displeas'd King James but one may think so, if a due attention be not given to it. The Jesuits did not believe that the printing of that Book had displeas d the King of Carte Britain. of Great Britain But on the contrary, they re-proach d John Barclay for having put it in the Press with that Prince's Consent, and with the Correctiwith that Prince's Consent, and with the Corrections of the English Divines (c) Neque vero nist ejus (Regis) nutu patris tui librum à Britannici Evangelis ministris ad libidinem desormatum, Londini typis excusum Mr Menage has not rightly mark d the Year of the Impression That Work was Printed in the Year 1609 The Congregation of the Index condemn dit the jame Year by their Decree of the 9th of November

(E) A Book at Paris which he intitul'd Pietas]
Here is the remaining part of the Title, Sive publica pro regibus ac principibus, & privata pro Gul Bar-claio parente, vindicia contra Bellarminum The Letter of Eudamon-Joannes which I have quoted, testifiesthat Barclay took a Journey to Paris for the printing of that Work to do more service to the Protestants of England for it was faid, that he thought he should be less suspected of Intelligence with the Enemies of the Church, if he publish d that Work out of England Ac (d) nunc quoque non dissimili consilio te Lutetiam e Britannia demigrasse, ut cum & coram apud viros principes, & scriptis apud cateros, Ecclesia causam calumniis tuis traduceres, tamen quanto majore locorum intervalle ab Rege disjungereris, hec longius abiffes à suspicione fraudis. This is one of the most. abiffes à suspense fraudes. This is one of the most cunning and ordinary touches of the ODIUM THEOLOGICUM. Those that know not how to answer the Objections that are rais'd against the common Doctrines, fall upon the Persons that propose those Objections. They are so many private Enemies who agree with the Adversors and only retain the outward. faries, and only retain the outward Profession of Orthodoxy that they may be the better able to give more dangerous Blows

(F) While his Argenis was printing in France] His good Friend Mr de Peirese, to whom he had sent the Manuscript, took care to find him a Printer at Paris (e) The first Edition of that famous Book is that of Paris 1621 It has been Translated buit, ut mulie-Iud miris into several Languages, as French, English, Italian, in cœlum Duici, &c Nicius Erythraus Observes, (f) that it efferri audiebant, ad cognoscendum, quid illud afferret, studia commoverit, adeo ut quidam quo animum illis expleret, in Italicum fermonem illud converterit Nic Erythr. Pinaceth } PAE 77, 78 was Translated into Irahan to latisfy the Currosity of Women Hearing that this Book was very much cry'd up, they express a great desire of knowing the Contents of at. Mr de Peiress (g) (g) Gass Caus'd the Author's Established before the ubt supra, Book, with a District the desir'd Grains to pag ago add to it. It is this, Gass Caledonius, Gassin natalibus, his est Roman Isahan qui decat are loqui.

(G) Why his Work was a harmon's mb was at the Gate of the Canada and, our significant another. Tomb that Cardinal Francis Barberini had caus'd to be made for his Preceptor Bernard William. Both be made for his Preceptor Bernard William Both Tombs were alike every way. John Barclay's Widow being offended at fuch a great likeness, would have demolish'd her Husband's Tomb, but not being able to do it, she can'd at least his Busto be refer from it can'd at least his Busto to be taken from it, and brought to her House to be taken from it, and brought to her House ther Pride could not endure, that her Husband who was Illustrious by his Birth, and more substant with an an allustrious by his Birth, and more substant with an allustrious by his Birth, and more substant with an allustrious by his Birth, and more substant with an allustrious with a pitiful Pedagogue Quod (b) uxor with a pitiful Pedagogue Quod (coth 3 pag 81 (i) Nam setting seniis substant pitiful ac domum sum te quidem allusenii, co, ut ipsa dicebat, padagogo, componi (h) That John Bundlay made prossission of the Protession of the King of England he was a Heretick, or taken for one He adds, that it was said that Prince made use of him, to Translate his Pression of the King of England he was a Heretick, and thereticus and to carry it to several Princes Erythrain not harries and to carry it to several Princes Erythrain and the pitiful Protession and the pitiful Protession and the carry it to several Princes Erythrain not haberere to be taken from it, and brought to her House

Prince made vie of him, to Iranilate his Freface concerning the Oath of Allegiance into Lasin, and to carry it to several Princes Erythraim not daring to say positively that Barclay was a Heretick in England, or at least that he profess'd Heresy, does nevertheless affirm, as being the Opinion of all the Papists of that Country, that King James made use of John Barclay's Pen to compose the Book intitul'd Funiculus triples, & cuniculus triples. These are his Words (k) Urrum autem, apud regem, incorruptam catholicam religionem semper conscruavers, wel saltem, si non animo, specie tenus harestocum se erroribus oblinierit, incertum est mish: illud autem certum, catholicorum omnium in Anglia suisse optimismo, Regem illum in eo libro, cui titulus est Funicula plex, & cuniculus triplex, Componendo, usum Barclaso adjutore atque magistro. None that I has been more decisive on this Question that perialis. He says, (1) plainly, that Barclay intended of the sincerity of his Conversion at Rome, that after his Death, they caus d the Inscription and that Scarce which his Son had not on his Torib to the Statue which his Son had put on his Tomb, to be taken away Paul Freherus imputes it to the Jesuits, (m) Statuam & inscriptionem quam ejus demortus gloria filius in templo S Laurentii extra mures erexerat, patres Sec Jesus substant & deletam volucrum The truth of it is hard to be known It may be that something was found among his Papers or elsewhere, whereby they might discover that he was a protestant in his Heart, and that thereupon they order'd some Punishment against his Tomb It may be also that the Vanity of his Wise was the only cause of the disordering of his Tomb; and that this gave occasion to suspicious Men, and idle Commentators on Town-talk, to find a Mystery in it, and an occult proceeding of the Tomb Mystery in it, and an occult proceeding of the Tomb Mystery in it, and an occult proceeding of the Inscription and the commentators on Town-talk, to find a Mystery in it, and an occult proceeding of the Inscription and the commentation of that after his Death, they caus d the Inscription and the Statue which his Son had put on his Tomb, to be taken away. Commentators on Town-talk, to find a Mystery in it, and an occult proceeding of the Tribunal of the Inquisition

(1) He

esses, aut haberere quidem certe Cua nonnullam etiam Latine reddenda deferendaque ad principes præfatione ejus monitoria operam abs te na-Vatam mento Tant Budam Jounnes

lis, and

(s) In Præfat 1617 b) In rezis famiia effe nter donesticos Erythræis says, hat the ling made his ecretary, b epittoıs,& conliorum mnium artici-em la-uit reherus soho quotes lis and Tomasin Says, that hu place masthat of Gentleman Chamber, titulo nobilis cubituli ret fratus. (a)Confura Austhorum pag 695 (d) Judg-Roets # 4. (e) Here is a repu looks very a Fablo. (f) In Barclay's life before the Argenus (g) Mer nage, Rethe life of Ayrault p 232,233 (b) See Mr Managa's Second additions. p. 539 (u) Mr. Menage Said page 231, That 231, That Barclass publish d arLandon the Apology for his Euphorted to Charles Emanuel Duke of London ın 1610

Hors com

(1) publickly. His Books of Controversy had no great Success. the others had many Prefat

(K) admirers, and have not wanted (L) Confurers. As for the Fortune which he parameters in a many made at Rome, it is variously spoken of Some * say that Maphen Barbersin, who loved him very well, having been created Pope, was a great Benefictor to him, and conmainus fer'd a good Benefice upon his class. Son, and the Office of his Holiness's Chamber-land to be there.

Others † say, that he wanted it is please himself with the culture of Flowers, herim theatrem.

(1) He deny'd it publickly] We must eacher lay asside the surest Maxims by which we judge of Facts, a schoolick Profession in England He declares publickly (a) that he was born, and always was a Catholick, and that tho' King James (b) had given him, an Office, he did not assist at the Exercises of the England, and did not absent himself and Catholick Assemblies He calls the Prenament Transfer Ambassadors, and their Fathers Confession, who were also his, to witness Here is something of more force. Here is something of more force. He calls King James to witness, of whom he boasts to have receiv'd the Priviledge not to be disturb'd concernceiv'd the Priviledge not to be disturb'd concerning his Catholick Religion King James was yet living when Barclay publish'd these things, the Ambassadors which he casta to witness were not all dead. How can it be traited that he vents a Lye? He clears himself them another thing of which he was accus'd, which he yof having been the Author or Favouser of a bardy Libel that appeared against King james, as food as Barclay left England Lassly, he declaies, that he revokes certain Doctrines that are in the Book which he had written against Cardinal Bellarum. He does not forget to say that he went away with good leave Neaue surrum mei see: impetrata regis pace publice cum Neque furtum mei feci impetrata regis pace publice cum familia a Britannia ora folos

(K) The others had many Admirers] See many fine Elogies that have been made of Barelay in Sir (c) Themas Pope Blount's and Mr Bailler's (d) Books Themas Pope Blount's and Mr Bailler's (d) Books Themas It is reported, that Cardinal Richelieu did anneurually read the Argenis, and that from it he took all the Counfels and Political Expedients wherewith he put Franceinto such an advantageous Situation Ad immertalitatem Barolau una sufficiet illius Argenis, quam Richelaus avi nostri miraculum af-fiduis, ut ajunt (e), versabat manibus, habebatque quasi pracepiricem ac directricom ullius regiminis, quo deinceps Galliam venerabilem juntamilialemque genti-

bus cateris fect (f)

(L) And have not wanted Constant. We have feen the Diffich that Grotius composed to be placed under the Distict that Grossus compos a we be placed under Barclay's Picture It is a great Elegy of that Author's Lasin Style (g) "The Anonymous Author of the little Book initial'd Censura Euphor"mionis, printed at Paris in 1620, speaks of the Style of the Euphormio in these Terms, & quod miretur aliquis, latinitas queque ipsa Romanas aurei peregrinitate radit, & veteris saporis imbutum pala-tum offendis. It is thought (to say so by the way) that Same a Scotchman is the Author of that that Same a Scotchman is the Author of that little Book. Joseph Scaliger does not speak more advantageously of that Saryr of Barclay in his 311th Letter to Charles Labbé, Quanti Eupharmionem Barclas faciam ex eo cognoscere potes, quod vix sen folia eque legere potusrim. Thus speaks the omiginals of that Letter, which I have seen in "Oniginal of than Letter, which I have feen in "Charles Labba's Hands, for in the Edition of Sca"Letters there is an Afterick in the place to planminene Barclas. He speaks (b) almost the same mainer of it in his Scaligerana funds.

There is a Pedant as Angers, who made a assyrican, which seems at the beginning to be some

"Soing, but afterwards is is nothing at all Peton
"Mujmer, a Camon of Vezela: answer'd the Book intitul'd Cansura Embanesians, by another Rook intitul'd Consum Euphormionis, by another Book in-titul'd Consum consum Euphormionis, but he an-swer'd ill, and it is likely, that this made John Barclay himself write (1) an Apology for his Euphormia But as it has been observed, John Barclay was but 21 Years of Age when he caus'd the first Part of that Satyr to be printed His Argens that was written in his riper Years "His Argens that was written in his riper teas
"is better done And if he that writ John Bar"clay's Life, that was printed before the Argens, may be believ'd, Cardinal Richelieu esteem'd that "Work extraordinarily There remains only for me to remark, that a Beneditine, whose Name is Bugnes, and who taught Rhetorick in the Abby et the ill auswer that was made to a Censure printed

Far 1620, oblig'd Barclay to write his own Apology

ofi Tiron, made Latin Notes on that Work Those Notes were printed at Leyden in 1664, with the

This is the Harvest of the I earned Mr Menage, let us see if we can find some Gleanings after him, and let us begin with these Words of Balzac, (k) An Academist of Rome a confident of the formidable Sciopius, knowing the Friendship that was between Mr Barchy and myself, and the love I had for his Argenis, in order to moderate, as he said, the volence of nis, in order to moderate, as he said, the volence of my passion, offer d to show me 1500 improprieties in that works new History, which we had then in Manuscript, and I know not how many Faults and strange Phrases. Sorel, an Enemy of Balzac, judged like him of the Style of the Argenis (1) As for the Argenis, says (1) Extrahe, its Latin is esteem'd I am of the contrary mind, vagant for there are an infinite number of new Words in it that Shepperd were never used in Rome, insomuch, that if Salust retired in the World again, he could hardly understand m 83 them He pretends (m) to follow only the Opinion (m) Resofther most Learned herein, so far that somebody marks on said, That Barclay spoke rather French than Latin He the Extrans not contented to blame the Style, but he also vagant laid, That Barclay spoke rather French than Latin He the Extra is not contented to blame the Style, but he also condemns (n) the Oeconomy of the Work, and does not spare the Euphormio (o) It is, says he, make History of a Person of a mean Quality, but it is extreamly silly 'I hat (p) Book has been read because it is in Latin, and because People had because it is in Latin, and because in that not been used to see Modern Romances in that they have not considered that it are in the Language, but they have not confider'd, that it pag 182 is well for the Author that he did not write it in (n) The a Vulgai Language, because it is not observed, 13th Book that he does not understand how to make each of the Ex-Perion speak according to his Chaucter, which travagant is the grace of a Saryr Instead of it he uses Shepherd, pedantick Discourses, and makes a Servant and in the speak as a Schoolmaster that understands Greek Remarks and Latin Heltory, fo that all this being confi- on the 13 der d with the meanness of the Adventures, it Book and appears that the Saryr of Euphormio, is the Work of superre "of a School-boy that begins to learn Wit (0) Rr-When he grew old, he did not appear (q) fo cri-manks on tical, but he preserved a Disgust for the Euphormio, the Extratical, but he preserv'd a Disgust for the Euphormio, the Entra(r) That Satyr, says he, was composed in Latin by vagant.

John Barclay, and Translated into brench by John Shepherd Berault Doctor of Physick of the Faculty of Paris, p 763 there is much Learning to be found in it, with the Cen(p) Ibid sures of some Vices of the Age, but the Invent on is pag 765 not the most Ingenious and pliasant that is to be found (q) BibliWe have already seen what Scaliger thought of other the Work itself, let us see the Judgment which Franc he made of the Style There are many (r) Faults in pag 182. he made of the Style There are many (s) Faults in pig 18 it which every Body does not know As there are many (r) Ibid Gallicisms in Bezz's Verses Let us not forget p 193 that this Book had the same fate with the Treatise of the Pope's Power, it was condem'd by the Inquisition The Decree imports, that certain things quisition The Decree imports, that certain things should be cut off from it, but Nicial Erythreus informs me, That the Bookfellers were forbid to fell at, and all particular Persons to keep or read it, and that before that Order, he had read something of Words be well observ'd, and compar'd with some others that are in Page 77 One will be surprized that the Court of Rome did so much despite the Congregation of the sent that are in Page 77 The will be surprized that the Court of Rome did so much despite the Congregation of the sent that are in Page 77 The will be surprized that the Court of Rome did so much despite the Congregation of the sent that are in Page 77 The west appearance of the sent that are in Page 77 The west appearance of the sent that are in Page 77 The west appearance of the sent that are in Page 77 The west appearance of the sent that are in Page 77 The west appearance of the sent that are in Page 77 The west appearance of the sent that are in Page 77 The west appearance of the sent that are in Page 77 The west appearance of the sent that are in Page 77 The west appearance of the sent that are in Page 77 The west appearance of the sent that are in Page 77 The west appearance of the sent that are in Page 77 The west appearance of the sent that are in Page 77 The west appearance of the sent that are in Page 77 The west appearance of the sent that are in Page 77 The west appearance of the sent that are in Page 77 The west appearance of the sent that the Court of Rome 18 The west appearance of the sent that the Court of Rome 18 The west appearance of the sent that the Court of Rome 18 The west appearance of the sent that the Court of Rome 18 The west appearance of the sent that the Court of Rome 18 The west appearance of the sent that the Court of Rome 18 The west appearance of the sent that the Court of Rome 18 The west appearance of the sent that the Court of Rome 18 The west appearance of the sent that the Court of Rome 18 The west appearance of the sent that the Court of Rome 18 The west appearance of the sent that the Court of Rome 18 The west appearance of the sent that the Court of Rome 18 The west appearance of the sent that the Court of Rome 18 The west appearance of the sent that the Court of Rome 18 The west appearance of the sent that t that the Court of Rome did to much usignate that the Court of the Index It will appear that John Burelay was very kindly received at Rome, and that the Pope bestowed great Favours upon him, because of the great Reputation which he had acquired by his Euphormio (u) Roman vinit, ubi cum (t) Nicipro edidonat, celebratum ejus nomen esser, established usignate enceptus, & Paulo V qui tum Romanam but supra pag 47 celesiam Pontifex administrabat, bonis omnibus, quibus somnibus ad vitam necessarii, magnifice ac liberaliter pastitus Mr Monage (x) has found fault with a (v) Mething in the Epistle Dedicatory of the Argenis nag ubi Earclay addressing himself to king Lewis XIII says supra, pag 22 Barclay addressing himself to king Laws XIII lays support, to him, That the Prince of whom he was born, p 2,12 deserved in his Life-time to be call at by the Sirnamo

- Ibid. theatr A 1515

(k) The 16th Difcourse a mone the let and Sir Thomas Pope Blount in the places auoted in the Rey Ha Inf-Cinto dopose l Hi for a de bello lacro, che la medelima cha il Taffo cantato nel fuo Coffiedo Francesco Pona in the Life of John Barc 1ay In Piafit lartnef ad Se Curos † Ibat is teln, Son of the applied to of Jupiter Capitolinus, to whom he caused a Temple to be built there

(z) Baicl epift dedic Atgen
(a) I rancif Pona in the L.fc of John Birclay (b) This Proposition 15 very uncertain, and often wery faile See the haud facigunt quorum virtutibus obstat res angusta domi & curta fupellex of Juvenal, Satyr 3 Satyr seeBail- to divert the Vexation (M) of feeing himself so hittle advanced That which is certain is, that he died before Barberini was elected Pope. He made Verses, and many skilful Persons pretend & that his Latin Verses are excellent His Works (N) have been confusedly spoken of in Moreri's Dictionary He revis'd his Euphormio to publish the left behind him γ the History of the Conquest of Ferusalem, and some Sheets of the History of Europe \(\circ\) It could not be said that King Fames sent him (0) Ambission to the Limperor's Court, to that of the King of Hungary, and to that of the I use of Savoy He makes no mention of it, when he describes the * Life which he I d with King Fames, and it stems to me, that all that could be presum'd would be, that that Prince made use of him to send to some Princes and Sovereigns some Copies of the Book which he compos'd for their common Interests, against the Preteniions of the Court of Rome

BARCOCHEBAS, or † Barcochab, excited many Disorders in Judea by his Impostures, and drew a dreadful Calimity upon his Nation under the Empire of Hadrian He was a Few, that gave himself out for the Messas, and who found a famous Rabbi || who applauded that impious Pretention This false Messas suited himfelt to the Preposfessions of that miserable People, he spoke of nothing but Wars, Battles, and Triumphs, and the first Lesson of his Gospel was, that they ought to Robel against the Romans He had so much the less trouble to persuade that Doctrin, because he took his time, when the Zeal of Religion had put the Jews into an ardent Psilion against the Emperor That Prince had newly Founded a 4 Colony near Jerusalem, where he had settled Idolary The Jews look'd upon this as an intolerable Ab minition, and is a prodigious Prophanation of the Holy Places, wherefore they were much dispos'd to Rebellion Some pretend that (A) Circumcition was forbidden The Talmud alledges another (B) reason them, this was to force their Consciences

Stat He of Great which was not conferr'd upon him till applied to after his Death Eo es parente genitus qui vel confissione hin silf the hostium, saculi sui summus Magni cognomen serre vivus Prophecy of debuerat, quod vos modestius extinte addid flis (z) It is 11 Book of a fallity sohn Barclay's Father Dedicating his Book Numbers, de regno to Henry IV in the Year 1600 gives him the Ch 24 v Title of Henricus Magnus Mr Menage confesses that he owes this Observation to Mr Nuble

(M) Of feeing nin felf lo little advanced The Aua Star out thor of the Ital an I ranslation of the Argenis conof Jacob felles (a) that the Favours of Paul V and Gregory | H r name | XV were no ways proportionable to the Merit of | John Barclay, whether it be, fays he, that Fortune | base his | lealed to perfecute Vertue every where, or that Article

Article

the Pope thought that Poverty was the true Mother (b) of Knowledge He infinuates that Barclay was no good Husband, and that his Liberality and his numerous I amily brought him somewhat low tolini, af- Ivi dunque si tratteneva il Barclaio con facolta non poco ter beronn anguste respecte la numerosa famiglia, e gli suoi spir ti Name, and generosi in some Latin Verses where Barclay intioduces his Wife that hath her Picture diawn, he fiys he had but two Sons In his Latin Life, those Verses are quoted to prove that he had two Sons and one Daughter What Judgment!

(N) His Works have been confusedly spoken of in Moreri's Distinary] 1st, I have said already in the Remarks B and C, that that Author converted a piece of Poetry into a Speech 2dly, And that he fally hid the Scene of John Barclay's Marriage at Rome, 3dly, and his Birth in the Year 1586 4thly, He is in the wrong to believe that Barclay's Sation Euphormionis Contains Tive Books Properly speaking it does not contain above two, for the third is but the Apology of the other two, the fifth is not of Barclay, but of Morifor, and the fourth is not built on the Model of the foregoing It is the Book which the Author intituled, Icon animorum 5thly, Moreri knew nothing of it fince he spoke of that Icon animorum, as of a Work that had nothing common with the five pretended Books of the Satirison Euphormionis 6thly, If I am not mistaken, all the Works that John Barclay publish'd against the Protestants, are only the Paranesis ad Sectarios, which he carried ready made into Italy, and publish'd it at Rome as soon as he arrived there. and publish'd it at Rome as soon as he arrived there Nevertheless Moren tells us, that Barclay publish'd some Books against the Protestants, during his melancholy and solitary Life which he led at Rome unisht the Favours of Paul V and of his Successor Gregory XV The Paraness ad Sestarios was printed in the Year 1617 Gregory XV was not elected till the Year 1621 7thly, He adds, that Barclay pullish'd is at that time the Icon an morum This is filse. That Work was printed at London in 1614 two Years before the Author went to Rome ny 164. See also the 56th and following Verses of the 7th

(O) That he was sent Ambassador] An Elogist, 2 Writer of Lives, makes use too willingly of great Words If a Prince makes choice of any Body to carry a Packet of Importance, you will soon see that a Courier's Journey will be converted into an Ex-traordinary Deputation, or into a true Embafly I am willing to believe that if the Presents that King James made to several Princes, as an Author, were trusted to Barclay, it was not as to a meer Beafer, 'Tis likely that the King, who knew his Merit, made that Commission very pleasant to him, but after all, that Message makes so little noise, that it is a Jest to say, (c) Illius (Regis magnæ Britanniæ) nomine legationes obiv t ad Rodolphum Imperatorem, ad Matthiam Pannonia Regem, & ad (d) Emanuelem Philibertum ducem Allobrogum

(A) That Circumcifion was forbidden them] Spartian (e) imputes their rising, to that Prohibition Moverunt ea tempefate of judai bellum quod wetabantur mutilare genitalia. It is not unlikely that the Circumcising of their Children was forbidden them, iceing we read in Mod finus, that they obtain'd from Antoninus Pius the Liberty of doing it, they had been disturb d on that account, and they had been oblig'd to have recourse to the Emperor's Justice Circumcidere Judeus silios suos tantum, rescripto Divi P i permittitur in non cjusdem religionis qui hoc sicerit, castrantis pena irrogatur (f) The Decree which they obtain'd seems to lay that sometimes they circumcis'd Children that were not born of their This was forbidden them on the Penalties establish d against Castration

(B) Another reason for their taking up Arms] It is reported that the Jews had a Custom to plant a Cedar when they had a Son born, and a Pine when a Daughter, and to make the Bridal-bed of the Wood of those Trees when their Children marrial. ed It is added, that in a Journey which the Emperor's Daughter made into Juden, a piece of her Chariot broke, and that her People cut one of the Cedars and brought it to her, that the Jews could not suffer that, that they rose up in Arms, and kill'd those who had cut down that Tree The Emperor understanding that the Jews were revolted, marched in great Wrath against them, and exterminated them (g) Ob crus carpents vastata est 18, p 7 Bethara In more fust ut cum nasceretur infans plantarent cedrum, cum infantula, pinum, cumque nati con-traherent matrimonium, ex iis conficerent thalamum Die quadam transist filia Casaris, & confractum est ei crus carpents Gedrum iftiusmodo exciderunt atque ad eam attulerunt Insurrexerunt in eos Judai atque eos cecide- vonit ferunt Relatum est Casari rebellare Judaes Projectus ille ille in est iraculum cost iracundus, excidit totum cornu Israelis. The Jews ra nepowould be altogether inexcusable is they Revolted on tibus umfo slight a matter as that These poor People cannot bram so much as lye for their Advantage. What Ignorance Virgil to give the Emperor Hadrian a Daughter? Furthermore, Pines are Trees that grow (b) too slowly, to isrve runt Relatum est Casari rebellare Judaos Profettus ille ris factu-in eos iracundus, excidit totum cornu Israelis The Jews ra nepo-

(c) in the Eife of Barclay, Argenis.

(d) The Duke of Savoy s Name was at that Charles Emanuel driani. CAP 14. (f) Modestinus libro regularum apud Ca-faubon in Spartian ubi fupra.

(g) In tra-ctatu Talmudico Babyl Gittin fol 57 apud Joh à Lent, de rumPfeudo-Meffi-

(b) It may be said of them. Arbos Lenta

It is faid that their Impostor made use of the same Trick for their taking up Arms (C) that Euras had practis'd in Sicily, to make the Slaves revolt, viz that he kindled Straw in his Month, that he might feem to vomit Flames He fortified himself in several places, but he made the Town of Bitter his place of Arms, and the Seat of feweral places, but he made the Town of Bitter his place of Arms, and the Seat of his Empire It is faid, that to try the Courage of his Sectaries, he required them to cut off one of their Fingers, and the courage of his Sectaries, he required them to cut off one of their Fingers, and the courage of his Sectaries, he required them to cut off one of their Fingers, and made up (D) another Invention. He ravaged a great number of places, and maffacred to Persons. He was chiefly Barbarous (E) towards the Christians. The Emperor arving notice of those Ravages, sent some Troops to Ruser, Governor of Judea, with Orders to suppress that Sedition with all speed To observing Order, Rusus exercised a thousand Cruelties, nevertheless he could not obtain its Design. The Emperor was forced to recal Julius Severus I, the greatest Captain of those Times, from England, and gave him the case of all that War. That General attained his end of the Jews without giving them a general Battle. He at-General attain'd his end of the fews without giving them a general Battle He attack'd them after another manner, as well because of their great number, as also because he saw a fight like desperate Men. He chose rather to charge them separately, to cut of their Provisions, to shut them up, and straighten them *, and at list all was reduc'd to the Siege of Bitter, † in the 18th Year of Hadrian. The great number of the segment o ber of Tews that threw themselves into that City, was the cause that they detended themselves a long time, and that Scarcity reduced them to hard Etremities || After rar of the taking of the wing the War was not quite ended, but did not continue long Barcochebas perish that 4, and the Jews have not fail'd (F) to invent Lables about it The manner when Hadrian dispers'd the Remains (G) of that unhappy Nation 4 Id ib

y Euseb Hist Ecclef / 4 c6 p 1 1 8 driano

* Id 1b † It 11 #bout the 134tb After riar of Lufeb ferve for a Bed stoon as a Maid is ready to share it with a Man, and many would have deferv'd to be , if they had been obliged not to Marry till their Pines were grown to the requisite heighth

(C) The same Trick that Eurus bad praftsed] This we learn from St Jerome (c) Tu widelicet flammeus, immo fulmineus qui in loquendo fulminas Atque ut ille Barcochebas autor seditionis Judaca stirsus Atque ut ille Barcochebas auctor Jeditionis Judaica strum pulam in orc succensam anhelitu ventilabat, ut stammas avomere videretur. Here's a Man, whole words were there and I lame, as well in a proper as in a figurative there. As for Eunus, see what Florus says of him (d) Florus with a guidam nomine Eunus (magnitudo cladium l' 3 c 19 stati ut meminerimus) fanatico surve simulato dum syria Dea comas sactat, ad libertatem & arma surve surve deasch numinum imperio concitavit, idque ut divinitus stasch survey surv debat It is an Example that teaches Sovereigns how much those are to be fear in a State that boast of Inspiration That Chear, by counterfeiting the Fanatick, made above Suxtyathousand Men take up Arms, and gave the Ruman People much trouble

(D) And made use of another Invention] It is storied that he drew Two hundred thousand Men after him, that had cut off one of their I ingers to make proof of their Courage. The Wife Men not approving such a mutilation, deputed some Persons to him to know how long he would thus mutilate the Jewish Nation, usque quo tute Judges mancos efficies? He answer d, How then would ye have me try their strength? They replied, that he should enroll none but those that could pull up a Cedar from Mount Libanus with Their Hands He took an Abjuration, or of this Counfel, and found yet Two hundred thousand Men that gave that proof of their Strength (e)
You will say, these are Jewish Fables It is true, been a less and for such I relate them, and for that reason belong the better to this Dictionary what me the was chiefly barbarous towards the Christians I done Trained
The made a great Butchery of the Gentiles, France
the did not exact from them that they should the Dra-

the Drageoms in the grant 1685

Converter, and perhaps worse (f), for he condemn'd all those to a Capital Punishment that would not forsake Jesus Christ, and load him with (g) In A- would not toriake Jeius Christ, and load him with pologia Curses Whereupon Justin Martyr complain'd thus pro Christ (g) Proximo namque bello Judaico Barcochebas descrittuanas ad onis Judaorum dux & princeps, folos Christ anos ad Anna gravia supplicia niss Christium abnegarent & maleditis num incesserent, protrahi justit David Gans (h) does not (h) In deny but that those of his Nation made a great formation. flaughter I believe also that he represents it more Davidis dismalthan it was He pretents it more dismalthan it was He pretends that in the City ad anno Alexandria alone they kill d above Two hunsels millenari, and the parts adjacent, they left not a Man quart, alive Tune Jude: Bitterrenses unverunt eum (Barcocheban) & elegerunt issum in regem superse, jugum Romanium abjicientes Occiderunt ex Romanis &

(g) In A

Gracis qui in Africa innumerabiles instar arena maris, (i) In the similiter fecerunt Ægyptiis incola urbis Alexandrina ctiam ex Romanis interfecerunt ultra bis centena millia Qui in Cypria, occiderunt omnes plane gentes vicinas, ut ne superstes quidem remaneret See what what will be faid heientter (1) concerning the omission of a set Form in Hadrian's Letter O Religious Wars, how horrible are your Cruclties!

(1) To invent Fables on the Death of Barcochebas J.

They fry, that (k) after the tiking of Bitter, Barcochebas S. Head was brought to the Emperor Hadrian, and that he ask'd who had kill'd him? and that he order'd the Soldier who aniwer'd it is I, to go and fetch the Body The Soldier being come there, found a Serpent round Barcochebas's Neck The Emperor having seen the Body taid, If hat p 34- b Man had not been k ll'd by his own God, who could have (n) Chrodone him any harm?

(G) Disposed the Remains of that unhappy Nation]
I have good reason to make use of the word Remains, for the number of the Jews that perish d in that War is innumerable. The Abbreviator of Dion (1) relates that they had 50 Fortresses, and in Zach 985 very considerable Boroughs, razed, that they cap 11 had lost 580 thousand Men in Battles and Inroads, p 272 d and that the number of those that perish'd by I amine, Sicknesses and I ire is infinite. So that I is 6 most all Judes remain'd without Inhabitants us fee what was done with those that could fur-vive fuch a Desolation An (m) incredible number of all Ages and Sexes were fold at the same price as Horses, in (n) a very famous Fair called the Jerebinthus's Fair

Wherefore the Jews have an horror for that Fair Lvang Those (a) that could not be fold there were brought to l 2 c 38 Graza, and exposed to Sale in another Market which H2- p 71 a drian had settled thire, and which is yet called Ha- Justin drian's Market, as the Chronicle of Alexandria says Apol 2 Those (p) that they could not sell in Palestine were p 8 b c transferred were Egypt where they persisted hy Ship-Those (p) that they could not sell in Palestine were p 8 bc transported into Egypt, where they perish d by Ship- Dial p wracks and by Famine, or were killed by the Pagans 2,4 a. When the War was ended, Hadrian forbad all (s) Justin the Jews by an Editt (q) publickly affixed, to (r) re-sum to Jerusalem on pain of Death, and (s) Guards were purposely placed there to hinder them from entring That Law (t) forbid them also to come near it, or to be in any place where they might have a fight of it (t) I use Fertullian (u) and St Jerome (x) go yet further, and Hist Ecextend that prohibition over all Judga, and the Jews clei page (y) seem to agree to it, when they speak of the Fast 118 d which they instituted because of that Decree, whereby Hier in their Fathers had been forbidden to come into the Coun- Is 13 p try of Judea The (z) Author of whom I boriow 227 try of Judea this, with all his Quotations, makes a Remark on (u) Apol the Terebinthus's Fair He observes, that St Jerome c 21 p (a) says in a certain place that the Jews were sold at 20 d Abraham's Tent, where, he says, a Fair is kept every (x) In Ju-Tear that is much frequented This is not difficult to be die e i, granted, for in the place where Abraham had lived in P 2-4, 31 d In Daniel c 9 p 595 (y) Scaliger Ising l 1 c 6 45 (z) Tillemont Hist of the Emperors, tom 2 pag 501, 02,503 (a) In Zachar c 8 p 262 502,503

Remark I (k) To à Lent ubi fupia pag 14 ex E-chi Ribbatı (1) Xiphilin in Adriano (m) Hieronym in cap 31 p 596 (0) Chro Alex 16 Let p 31 d fur- (r) I uieb ubi fupr i, & De-nic Alex

p 84 b Sever 12 p 149 (t) Lufeb Hift Ec-

If 13 p

Megillot fol 67 apud Jo à Lent

ubi fupra p 10,11

(f) Imake

erhaps, because seweral per-

Sons pretend that use of a

Germane

* See the Remark E

But all the Stories which the (H) Rabbins well on that Subject was very grievous That War cost the * Romans much Blood. If I mention in the must not be credited Remarks several Facts that concern that War, it is because the Arcicle of Hadrian refers my Reader hither, and there was a necessity of making use of that Reference, to make that Limperor's Article less tedious. The Lewish Authors suppose that Hadrian (I) was personally in that War, that he Besser and took the Caty of Bitter, and that he disputed with a Rabbin (K) about the Domaine of the Resurrection of the 4 W/10

(b) Apud a Lent P 17

in Chron

(d) Euich Demonst

1 8 6 3 p 4 6 (e) Iter

Burd p 43 2 Sulpic Sever 12 p 149 (f) Lpist XI P 134,

(g) Epift

33 p 102 (h)Paulin

ubi tupra

(1) Tillemont ubi

iupra p

Rablati

fuper Thien in 2 2 apud Noldium de viti & ge ftis Heio-

dum pag 453 (/) In

Ì 1actatu Talmudico Guffin, apud a Lent p 16

(m) Ibid

the I alley of Mamre [near Hebron] and where he rec i difree Angels, there was fill in the Fourth Centry a Tunpentine Tree, and that the People of the Country and it had been there from the Creation of the World See the Remark G of the Article of Abraham Let us return to the Misfortune of the Jews Some (1) Authors say, that Hadrian caused their Ears to be cut off, and transported them into Spain. It is very likely, that part of the false Worship which that Emperor established in the new City of Jerufalem, did not begin till after the Ruin of Bitter, and the Death of Barcochebas It was one of the most sensible blows which that unhappy Nation was to beat Hadrian knowing what Aversion they had for Swine, caused (c) one of Marble to be set up over the Gate that led to Bethlehem He made use of the (d) Stones of Solomon's Temple for the Building of a Theatre and several Temples Two (i)Hicron Building of a Theatre and several Temples Two of his Statues and some Idols were let up in the place where the Temple stood (e) The Statue of supiter was set up in the place of our Saviour's Passion This (f) St Paulinus says but (g) St Jerom says, supiter's Statue was set up where JESUS CHRIST arose again from the dead, and that of Vinus where he died The Cavern where he was born was (b) profan'd by the I'emple and infamous Worship of Adonis See Mr de Tillemont, (1) of whom I borrow these things

(H) All the Stories which the Rabbins tell on this

(1) of whom I borrow these things
(H) All the Stories which the Rabbins tell on this Subject must not be credited] They say (k) that the Slaughter was so great in Bitter, when the Romans had made themselves Masters of it, after a Siege of thice Years and a half, that the Horses march d up to the mouth in Blood They add, that the Blood run with such a force that it carried Stones of four pounds weight along with it, and that it run the pounds weight along with it, and that it run the space of four Miles into the Sea Now there was four Miles from Bitter to the Sea Hadrian had a 509 (k) See the Book Echa Vineyaid-plot 18 Miles long, and as many wide, (it is the distance of Tiberias to Zipporis) where he made a Hodge or an Inclosure of the Bodies of those that were killed in Bitter For he would not suffer them to be builed, and they were not buried until the Reign of his Successor There (1) were two Rivers in the Valley of Jadaim, whereof the one iun on one fide, and the other on the other fide, the Rabbins computed that the Water made but two thirds, and the Blood the other third of those Rivers For seven Years the Gentiles had no thole Rivers For levels a cars the General Rad no need to dung their Vines, they were so fertile by the Blood of the Jews The Blood carried Stones away of an unmeasurable bigness, and enter'd forty Miles into the Sea (m) Quinimo sanguis rapiebat Secum petras magnitudinis quadraginta modiorum, donec ad quadrag nta milliaria usque in Oceanum flueret Three hundred Skulls of Children were found on one Stone I here are in these Rabbinical Expressions some touches of the Style that Rabelau makes use of to represent the Qualities or Prowesses of his Garagantua and his Pantagruel But let us mention another Story concerning the Slaughter of Bitto. In that City there were 400 Colleges, and in each College 400 Teachers, each of which had 400 Disciples of Scholars in his Class. In the first Attack the Scholars made use of their (n) Bodkins to kill the Fuerness. but after the taking of the to kill the Enemies, but after the taking of the Town, they were pack'd up with their Books and thrown into the I ire Isla pubes principle hosses impetum facientes graphies sus confodiebat cum were he pravalerent, urbem capissent, involverant puerules illes cum libris suis, cosaue igne sie cremarunt (0) The Jews say that Hadrian destroy'd twice more People of their Nation, than Moses brought out of the I and of Frent, and they take him for a greater I and of Egypt, and they take him for a greater destroyer than Nebuchadnezzar and Titus (p) One of their Less Chionologe's affirms, that the loss which their Nation sustain'd in the time of Nebra faradm, or in the time of Titus, does not equal that which they fustain'd under the Empire of Hadrian, for the Talmud says, that Four Millions of Persons perish days, and programme a manual says.

Persons perish d at Bitter, quadringentae myriadas Nevertheless there is an Hymn in the Ritual of the Jews for the 9th Day of the Month Ab, wherein the Edict of Hadrian was published, that forbid them to fet foot in Judea I say there is an Hymn wherein Nebuchadnezzar and Hadrian are equally looked upon as two great Scourges of the Nation That Hymn names them often, but speaks but once of the Jews and Trees it mentions 480 Synagogues llymn names them often, but speaks but once of Vessassan and Titus, it mentions 480 Synagogues burnt by Hadrian (q) Recordere Domine quality sucret Adrianus, crudelitatis consilius ampleaus, consuluit idolasse pervertentia. Et susulit, combussique quadringentas & astoginta synagogas.

(1) That Hadrian was personally in that War] Buschus says express, that the Emperor sent some Tioops to the Governor of Judaa, to chassise the Revolt of Barcachesa, and does not say that the

Revolt of Barcochebas, and does not say that that Prince came afterwards hamself The Abbreviator (r) of Dion speaks only of the Generals that were fent by Hadrian into Judas. He remarks, that while that Emperor abode in Egypt and in Spisa, the Jews being discontented at the building of Elia Capitolina, durit not fir, but as soon as he was gone from thence they took up Arms openly He adds, that Hadrian fent Julius Severus, and the best of his Generals, against them It was a proper place to fry whether he was personally there to punish the Rebels, and yet that Writer does not say it From whence it seems it may be concluded, that Hadrian did not at that time go into Judea But I must observe that Dien makes a Remark which intimites that Hadr was in that War He fays that the Romans loft many Men in it, that that Emperor writing to t Senate did not use the common Preamble, State liberique vestri valetis bene est, ego quidem & exerci valemus. It seems that a Prince, who begins mis Letter with those words, must be in the Army, and if he is not there, he ought not to make use of that Compliment neither in time of Prosperity nor in time of Adversity 'Tis not therefore likely, that Dien would have made that Observation, if he had believed that Hadrian was near Rome, or very far from the Army when he writ to the Senate This Objection may be easily answer'd, for in the first place it may be faid that Hadrian's absence was the reason why he did not use that Formality, from whence it would follow, that Dien did not know whence it would follow, that Dien did not know all the Reasons of that omission, since he believ'd that it proceeded only from the loss which the Roman Army had suffer'd. It may be said in the second place, that an Emperor, who is a great way from his Army, might very well make use of that Formality in a Letter wherein he acquaints the Senate with the good News which his Generals have writ to him. In short, it might be maintained against Dien, that the Victory obtain'd over the Jews was so compleat, and did so effectually remove the Causes of a new Insurrection, that the the Roman Army had sustain'd great Losses, there was room to write to the Senate according to the Style that was used in the News of Prosperity. It Style that was used in the News of Prosperity It may be therefore that this Writer has made a false

Observation (K) That he disputed with a Rabbin about the Do- WHAT Hrin of the Resurrection of the Dead] This Fable the Jews says, that the chief difficulty of Hadrian was to say report of that the parts of a dead Body were scatter'd in a a little that the parts of a dead Body were leatter d 118 a 2 little thousand places He was answer'd that there was Bone calas small Bone in our Body that was incorruptible, led Luz, and that God would make our Body again out of which that little Bone The Jews pretend that a celestral they say Dew will soften that Bone, and make it grow in is in the the same manner as a little Leaven raises all the Back of Dough. Dough, (s) Ossiculum illud dicunt rore quodom cælesti Man molliendum & extendendum ad instar ferment: quod in (s)Hoorn-totam se massam dissundit, vel quemadmodum granum boock con-aliquod tritici in cristam se exporrigit Hadrian Would tra Judæaliqued tritici in cristam se exporrigit Hadrian Would tra Juamnot believe any thing concerning the Incorruptions 18 c 5 bility of that Bone, but the Rabbin, with whom p 556 he disputed, made a trial of it, that Bone resisted (s) Maevery thing, Fire, Water, the Hammer, &c Here is a long Passage of Manasses Ben-Israel (t) Ajunt in spina dorsi aliqued officulum esse, quod nunquam perest ex isto officulo solo post interitum & annihilatium omnium cap 15

(4) Apud eumdem à Lent p. 18, 19.

(r) Xiphi. driano

(n) An In-Arument wherewith they used to write in thosetimes (o) Ibid apud eumdem a l ent p 13 (p) See Jo à Lent P 14

The matter is curious See the Remarks Eusebins & supposes that Hadrian & Hist made that War by his I icutenants It is it leaft very certain, that Hadrian did not command his Unkle Trajan's 1100ps in Judga during the Rebellion of Barcochebus 1 to 6 plandem David Gamey, the Jewish Historian, is much milliben therein Some sty that there fraginus have been two Barcochebas's, one under Titus, and the other in der Hadren, and that Imperite the first, not being able to stand the Trial that he was pur upon vis kin'd is in Important postor, and a talse Messas As soon as he had boasted himself to be the Messas, a d I is nor in in-Postor, and a line Mellias. As food as field boated finite to be the Mellias, as a line of large of the Scripture was alledged to him, which imports, according to the Jewith i his tux. Exposition, that the Mellias should discern $(K\triangle)$ by the Smell at an accorded Lerson shaum was Innocent of Gralty, and it being found that this pictended Mellias had not a Note that M is good enough to make that distinction, he was put to Death. This Opinion is not M is not M. much follow'd BARDL (John de la) Councellor of Stite, Muquis de Mareller, on the River ena con Scine, was Ambiffador of France in Suitzerland in the Reign of I cans XIV II. till iplos was chief " Deputy of Mi de Chavigm, Scoretiry of St to He issued it the Cen , is in ferences of Munster, as a Minister of the Second Order, and some Independs were Germine used to (A) to have the Istle of Excellency below dupon had been written in Davids He had already been named for the Ambathy of Suntzerland. He tervil 1 me 11 m furthfully and with great Ability in the whole course of thir Ambility. He will the pud I ent History of France in Latin, from the Death of Lens XIII to the Year 16 2. In the de Pieur History was long (B) expected, as a Master piece of Weak, it was printed a last in do-Message the Year 1671 θ , and well received by the Publick. The Style of it is good, Matter $\frac{18}{110} \frac{p}{q}$ are related in it without lastery, and with a great Knowledge of the Intergues of the City.

Cabinet. The Author has Latinised his Name by that of Labord our. The Latin Names v. which he uses would puzzle the Reiders, has he not taken one to place the Liench $\frac{2NH}{4\pi}$ Names in the Margin * Being very learned in Matters of Divinity, he published deviate a Book of Controverse in Latin, against the Opini in $(B\Delta)$ of the Lietesthiats confedent. " cerning the Luchunt" The Dutch Gazettes have informed us that he died in the property Year 1692, being 10 7 uset Age

BARLE 1 1 E (Gabriel) a Deminion Monk, made hin felt remarkable to- the Opwards the end (A) of the XVth Centity, by a minner of Prene 110 more bee ming a $\frac{n \cdot n^{-1} + c}{u^{(1)} + 1 \cdot pra}$ Buffoon, than a Minuffer of the Gaipel. The was Bern at B shells, in the Kingdom of $\frac{n}{pr} = \frac{a}{4}$ anus (cujus offa comminuantur) quasivit ex R sco-suah filio Hanina, undo Deus benedictus perminare fi-cict hominem in futuro seculo i respondit ille, ex lux, seu ossiculo shina Russus alter, undo nossi hoc? da mihi illud, inquit ille, ossiculum, & te docebo contud t illud in mola sed non tusum est, consect in er m non conflagravit, conjecti in aquam, & non atti tum est, imposuit incud, malleoque eccidit, sed ne bilum comminutum est Imperator Romanus, five quod rideret resurrectionem mortuorum, sive quod audivirat aliquod sucorruptibile officulum est in corpore l'umano, cupiditate equs sicendi, vel quia, uti virisimilius est, hastabat ob dissicultates cas, quas sam recensumus, quasivit ce R Jeosua fil o Hanina, unde, vel quomodo restituerentur mortui, quorum membra tam lonce, lateque dispersi es-sent ac d spipara? Respondit illi R siosuali, ex ossiculo fina dos si, appellato luz, quod incorruptibile est Qui cum non posset facile adhibere sidem, exper mento ei ostindit ita esse Hac opinio, si quid antiquis riedimis, non improbabilis est. Istud enim ossiculum tale est, ut ne-que at interire, quamvis hodie nullus sit, qui illud noverit Sunt qui arbitrintur, Davidem hujus officuli mentionem facere, cum ait, Custodiens ossa ejus, unum ex in non consump um est. Pirlm xxxiv 21 I hose is non consump um est Pfalm xxxiv 21 I hose doting I ools shoul! have faid that that little Bonc true Seat of the Soul

(KC) Discirned by the smell if an accused Person was Innocent | Compare this with the Remark C

(a) Trea-

tisc of the Amballa-dor. tom I p 360

the of the Article Democritus

(A) Endiavours were used to have the Titl of Excellency, &c | Mr de Wicquefort (a) lays 10, and adds, that the Plenipotentiaries of Fiunce made their first attempt with the Nuncio, who answer'd, that he would not do it They would have had him he would not do it They would have had him give Mi de la Barde that Title, and the first Visit The reasons for his refusal were, That he would not give an Example that no body would follow, nor make Mr de la Barde uscless, who did the Affembly good Services He would have made him useless, because of he had done him the Honour that was demanded, he would have put him in a kind of Necessity to have requir'd it of all the other Ambassadors, and not to appear any more if they had refused him, not to appear any more it they had refued thin, as it would infallibly have happen'd. The Venetian Ambassador imitated the Nuncio, Thus Barde was oblig'd to be satisfied with the Honour that they were will ng to do him. He desired the Emperor's Ministers that were at Oinabrug to distinguish him.

nium aliarum partium, dicunt, nominem instauratum, from the other M n st is of the scould Orice in the restitutumque iri, in resurrestione moituorum, junta to vold not treat him as an Amissi in no on is allud, quod in Beresst Raba Paras 3 legitur, aidi - him as a Resident, and provided him was intitud. thad Perfore feer the Itilia Fall on b I l not ir tend to the place of Honor in the Vifit and Confronce And indeed he could expect no great diffu tion, at Muniter or Olinding, ly write of his Credential Letters for the Suits Cincon Mi de la Barte com-pluit d of an Italian Writer who did not speak of those things as he ought, and pretended to con-vince him of it, by from that the Plenipote itieries of France tie red him always as an Ambillider, (11 ocne and that they could not dit, e ife with it, seeing the of su hors King's Pitents, and all the Court Letters give him that Character (b) Aranxins at Servi mus hand hand Birulum lecus ac serpsos invicem habiter e neque thier poter in, cum regio diplomate at que omnibus R en atque Mirarini ad f atque ad alios litteris limatus off t app listus Ideo accurating m bid condum fuit quad homo qui fam Italicus ea de resteus scrippit in aliena lubidine, atque invidia in Labardeum nam i illi ipje tribu ve nolim, qui in liquicemodi relus et am Jupi e verum alies fa-vit, hos cum Residentes, aut al minor s Principes absque ullo Te ulo messe il ne, Legatos nebelo feccus appel-

(B) I ong expected as a Mission-piece of Work] "Mr" de la Barde is preparing it in Mission, where—"in we are to have a French Sillust, or Figit. I his is what Pather le Moine was willing to inform the Publick of, in his Licitile of History

(BA) Against the Opinion of the Protest ints concern-Ing the Eucharif | I his puts me in mind of what I have heard his Grandion, the Abbot of Bron, Canon of Notre Dame at Paris fix, wie That he applied himtelt teveral Years with great diligence (.) Appato examine the Opinion of tome Fathers about 13t Sacr that Question, and to compose a large Volume of tom 1 fol great Lea ning, but all of a fudden it came into 521 apud his Fancy to destroy that great Labour, so that one Morning he threw all that he had writ upon that pag 518 have fault. Subject into the Lire

(A) Towards the end of the AVth Century] Alta- is not to be mus a in his Biliothique of the Dominicans, places found in this Man in the Version Committee of the Dominicans. this Man in the Year 1470, from whence it appears the Edit of that Possevin was only missaken by 200 Year (c) Cologne, Gabriel Bai letta, fays he, Neapolitani regni, Apulus, Or- 16:7 din sautem Dom nicani, Incologis & concionator utilus, There is cum floreret anno 127 He alds, that his Sermons Inge 61) were printed leveral times before the Laition of cum flo-Fanice, 1571

icict um 147

CC HCXCI-N ples 1 10 " 1 0/ 150 to Mi-Hes

> (/) Labarde rebus Gilliers 14 p 189

* See the ny scraps of Barlette are found † Poslevin Appar Sacr tom I p m 610 Biblioth Ordin Prædicat p 195

4 Taken trom (12ipar Barleus's Funeral Oration spoken at Amfterdam by JohnArn (orvinus the 18th of Tan 1648

thofe ought to . follow that im-pute cer-

(s) Pessi-mè igitur à Valle lettæ fententiam exfcribendo.

nam co-

dæum vıdendo eum esse circumci-

Naples. Henry Stephens was not the only Person that exclaim'd * against that manner of Preaching, full of a great number of mean Explications, only proper to expose our most venerable Mysteries to contempt, some (B) Roman Catholicks have not spar'd most venerable Mysteries to contempt, some (B) Roman Catholicks have not spar'd Gabriel Barlette about it. And that is much more difying and glorious for the Catholicks, than the trouble that the (C) Dominical Lave themselves to justifie that Preacher. His Sermons were Printed at Venice, in To Volumes in 8°. The First Volume contains † the Lent Sermons, the Second contains the Sermons of the Advent, Whitsuntide, Ascension, and other Festivals. He was a living when the Turks took || Otranto, in the Year 1480 Some of his Friends in the Year 1480 Some of his Friends in the Year 1480 Some of the Sermons that went under his Name.

BARIEUS (Melchior) Born at Antwern, a Latin Poet in the YVIth Catholicks.

BARLEUS (Melchior) Born at Antwerp, a Latin Poet in the XVIth Contury, and Son of Lambert Barleus, who was Keeper of the Records of Antwerp above Forty Years, was Educated under good Masters, and shew'd by divers (A) Writings, as well in Verse as in Prose, the Progress which he had made. One of his Brothers, whose Name was James, left his Country for his Religion, and made his Escape into Holland, where after having been Regent of the Second Class in the College of Leyden, he was call'd to the Brill, to be Rector of the College there Gaspar Barleus, (B) elder Brother of Melchior, succeeded in the Office of Archivist which his Father had, but when Antwerp was put again under the Yoak of the Spanish Government, he left his Country, and retind into Holland He brought his eldest Son along with him, who was yet in the Cradle 4, and of whom I shall speak in the follows

(B) Some Roman Catholicks] Theophilus Ray-nand, under the Name of Petrus a Valle Claufa, Wit tharply against Barlette, and reproach'd him name-The Woman of Samaria knew that JESUS CHRIST was a Jew? She knew it, fays he, by the Circumcision It must be confess'd that this Critick was not so exact as he ought to have been, for he does not only torget to speak of the two other marks whereby, as Barlette says, that Woman knew that JESUS CHRIST was a Jew, but he imputes also to Barlette to have said that she faw that our Lord was Circumcis'd, but it is certain that Barlette did not express himself in that manner Prima ad habitum quem portabat

Secunda quia Nazar aus in cujus capite novaculum non ascendis tertia ratio ad circumcissionem nullus alius populus erat circumcisus. It would be of no use for the Justification of that Critick to say, that what he imputes to Barlette may be inferred from the words. his words, for what a Man fays ought never to be confounded with the Confequences that may proceed from what he fays How many things do not only escape an Orator, but an Author also, whereof he does not perceive the nearest Consequences?
It may very well be therefore, that this Critick, by imputing to him those Consequences, imputes to him what he never thought of So that if a Man him what he never thought of will be an exact and a fincere Critick, he must pre-fer this Rule to himself, Accept others of having which faid precifely what they have said, but observe religiously not to take any thing from, or add any thing to it, show them the Consequences that proceed from it, but do not affert that they have seen those Consequences, and that they have admitted them, wait for what they will say, when they are told, that they proceed naturally and mecessarily from what they have said I cannot believe to an As that Barlette should have been so impudent, and so extravagant, as to utter the impudoratam blaffhe-miam, which his Critick imputes to him in fuch fine Latin It is enough to accuse him of not knowing what he said with his third mark I will therefore leave his Critick to (a) Aliamura's Anger There was more exactness in the Censure of another Sermon In that other Sermon the question is clausa falto know why the Holy Ghost deferr'd his coming favit calumniathe feat of being ferr'd in the same manner as the Son of God was, and makes the Dispute between the Father and the Holy Ghost to end only by this expedient The Holy Ghost bethought himself to expedient The Holy Ghost bethought numera to take upon him the form of Wind and Fire, that responder can be said meaner, and more unworthy of the Samarita- Majesty of God?

(C) The trouble that the Dominicans give themselves]
To begin with the Sermon of Whitsunday, I obgnoville To begin with the Sermon of Whitfunday, I ob-Chillium ferve that Aliamura is so far from owning that there is any thing there to be reproved, that on the contrary he finds a wonderful Art in it to represent the hardness as Man's Heart, and he is much surprized that any Body durst find fault with ium Ubi fraudulento filentio praterivit duas priores illius &C Altamura pag 519 fuch a Preacher about it. (b) Tanti nominis conciomaterem, tantoque com fruit verbum trei diffeminantem, ut adhic vigeat and fruit verbum treis diffeminantem, ut adhic vigeat adiffeminantem, ut adhic v

(D) That he was not the Author] Leander (A) De-bersus pretends that in his Youth he knew the sono- feript Ital rant Person that forg d those unworthy Productions, that went under the famous Name of Barlette One may very well wonder that the new Biblio-thecary of the Order has not alledg'd that reason to justifie his Brother, and one would think that he durst not make use of it, because it was found out that what Leander Albertus said of it is not true But whether it be or not, it is at least very certain, that there are impossible that things in the Sermons that were unquestionally written by Barlette We have seen the Censure of Father Raynaud Moser is in the wrong to say, That several Protestant Authors have made use of his pretended Sermons to ridicule the Catholicks, and that Henry Stephens is one of the first among them, for I dare be positive, that the Sermons from whence Henry Stephens took his Railleries, are none of those that Leander Albertus imputes to an Impostor The Dispute between the Father and the Holy Ghost is one of Henry Stephens's Gaieties, now Altamura acknowledges that that what Leander Albertus faid of it is not true phens's Gaieties, now Altamura acknowledges that Barlette is the Author of it

(A) By divers Writings, as well in Verse as in Prose]
These are the Titles of them, Brabantiados libri 5 These are the Titles of them, Brabantiados libri 5

Or Antwerpia encomium De Diis Gentium libri duo, (e) Valein Elegiack Verses, at Animerp in 1562 (a) De rius Anraptu Ganymedis libri tres (f), Or bucolica, at die dreas Bibl merp 1572 A Speech De vita humana felication Belg pag cum adjuncto carmine, De rerum humanarum de 669 fitudine, ad Caiparem fratrem, at Antwerp 1566 (f) CorviHistoria de domus Austriaca eminentia (h)

(B) Gaspar Barleus, elder Brother of Mela nus in

(B) Gaspar Barleus, elder Brother of Mela nus in this Gaspar for him that Valerius Andreas had nebri Cathis Gaspar for him that was Professor at the form Bardam, and whose Latin Verses were so much cried to this Gafar for him that was Professor at harden for Bardam, and whose Latin Verses were so much cried less up If he did, he was grossy mistaken That Programmer and the Bardam Andreas If it be said in order to excuse Valerius Andreas, ibid that he does not take things as I suppose he does, (b) Carvible would be still in the wrong on another account. For when an Author is made known by his count For when an Author is made known by his Relations, those ought not to be quoted that are unknown either in the Commonwealth of Learning, or in the World, and consequently these words of Valerius Andreas, Melchiar Barleus Antverpiensis, Gasparis frater, would be frivolous if they were meant of Melchiar's Brother, for that Brother, though he taught at Bommel, is an unknown Person Morers committed the same fault as Valerius Andreas

(A) If

BARLEUS (Gaspar) Nephew of the foregoing, was Professor of Philosophy It Amsterdam, and one of the good Latin Poets of the XVIIth Century. He was $\frac{1}{2}$ By the Born at Antwerp $\pm$ in the Year $1584$ His Father, who was a Protestant, sted into Epistle De-Holland when the Duke of Parma had made himself Master of that City He stand dicatory of three Years in Leyden, after which he was call'd to Bommel to be Rector of the College it appears in the protest of the College in the part of the College in t He flaid dicatory of three Years in Leyden, after which he was call to nommer to be Rector of the College of that place fewen Years, and then he died, having design'd his that he son Gaspar for the Ministry of the Holy Gospel This Gaspar studied eight Years in was born the College of the Province of Holland at Leyden, and, being a Minister, he serv'd a the 12th of February Country Church near the Brill . Bertime being advanc'd from the Office of Sub-Principal to be Principal of that College, thought no Person so fit to succeed him as our † Taken Barlens. His Recommendation was effectual, Barlens was made Sub-Principal, and from his sometime after the Professorship of Logick was given him in the University of Leyden Funcral He concern d himself so far in the Disputes of the Arminians, that he was depos'd Oration from all his Offices when the opposite Party had fully triumph d in the Synod of Dor- John Ar-drecht in the Year 1618 Barleus began then to study Physick, and in two Years nold Cortime he thought himself fit for the Doctorship He took his Degree it Caen, but did vinus not practice it much Some young Persons desired him to instruct them in Philo-sophy and Literature, and having been accustom'd to that he took to it again After Steam war is the Magistrates of Amsterdam having built a fimous School in the Year 1631, Witte war is the Magnitrates of Amsterdam having built a rimous school in the real 1031, write offer d him the Professor's Place of Philosophy. He accepted of it, and exercised it places he honourably until his Death, which happened the 14th of January, 1648 † He was a dia him the made on divers. Man of great Merit. There is a Volume of Speeches which he made on divers. Subjects, and which are not only commendable for the Style, but also for the turn and many Strokes of Wit. Poetry was his chief Talent. His Muses were very copious and *lofty. During his I ise-time there was almost nothing great whereof he Bourehald not make a populous Flory of Reasons of State (A) were not in obstacle to it. did not make a pompous. Elogy, if Reasons of State (A) were not in obstacle to it us gives Cardin il Richelieu, and Chancellos Oxenstres n were not torgotion, much less did he bim, Difforget the Conquests and brave Exploits of Frederick Henry Prince of Orange Queen fertat de Poet pag Mary of Medica, and the magnificent Reception that was made her | it Amsterdam, 140 gave Barleus occasion to exercise his Llequence. He published some very sharp pieces of Controversic (B) against the Advertures of Aimmius. That Wound was | In 1637.

bis Letters

(A) If Reasons of State were not an Obstacle to it I make use of this Restriction, Lecause I have sead in Barlen's Letters, that he would not make a Poem on the Coronation of the Emperor Ferdinand III as he was defir'd to do He confider'd that he had to do with suspicious Persons, that would not fail to do with julpicious Persons, that would not fail to cry him down as a Pensionary of the House of Austria, besides, after having so much sung the Victories of Gustarus over the Emperor, he could not piacle serious over the Emperor, he could not piacle serious Was with the swedes. He was an horest Poet How many of his Protession are not so unce? They have a two-handed Pen, they do not only prepare Acclamations for the conthey do not only prepare Acclamations for the conquering Party, wholoever (a) he may be, but also after the Event they make Verses for both Parties

I do not question but that there are Poets in Italy that have praised, or will praise the Dauphin, and Prince Lewis of Baden on the Campaign of 1693 These are the words of Barleus, (b) Literas accept Vienna, quibus petitur uti laudatione aliqua velim pro-

Segue Coronationem Ferdinandi tertii Imperatoris Sapram abstruebo ab illa laudatione religiosissime Quanquam enim ea possim scribere qua ad laudes Imperatoris faciant, nec Reip nostra adversentur, tamen prout sunt nostratium ingenia, judicarent me beneficio obstrictium Austriacis Scimus Casarem non quidem aprito Marte nos petere, scd per latus Hispani nobis gragratulate Augustus, vem effe Laudavi etiam non ita pridem Gustavum Suema Regem, ejusque adversus Casarem bella probavi

Marc Antony

Jam ut laudem Ferdinandum tertium ob gesta adversus

Suecos seliciter bella, à prudentia mea impetrare non cost possible.

Casp Barleus

Cuperim obsequi petitioni illustrissimi Legeti, sid hoc cavindum ne dum forus benè, domi male audiem Forte nimu sum meticulosus, sed & illud certum illam Casaris laudationem a me professam calumnia suspicionibusque oportunam fore Barleus's fear was not groundless, and if Reason would not suspicion but a professam can be seen and if Reason would not suspice the professam to the seen and the second seen and the second seen and the seen fer him to make the Panegirick of Ferdinand MI sceing Holland was in War with the House of Au-for a, and in Author should not blow hot and cold, Prudence did not less require of him that he should not meddle with that Elogy Those that believ'd him a I mend of the Arminians would have defamed him is an Fnemy of God and the State, and would not have been contented to fay so, both in private and in publick. To conclude, if all the Heroes whom he praised paid him as well as (c) Cardinal Richelieu, he had no reason to say, that the Culture of Parnassus is that of an ungrateful Soil

(B) Lay sharp against the Adversaries of Arminius] In the Yen 1615 he publish d a piece at l cyden intituled, Bosermannus de vei &, sive enamen epistole dedicatorie quam suis ad pietatem illustrium Ordinum Hollandia & Wests is on present in lustrium Ordinum Hollandia & Wests is notis prafixit Yoannes Bogermannus Ecclesiaste. Leovardiensis, in quo etiam crimina a Matthao Slado mpatta Erasmo Rotirodamo diluuntur The Year following he publish da little Book, the Title whereof was, Dissertation (d) Pag 4 cula in qui aliquot Pati e Theologorum & Ecclesiasta-rum male sana consilia & studia justa orationis libertate reprehenduntui. There was too much tartness in that piece, and it was too injurious to the Preachers, for he pretends (d) that Holland afforded, Viror pradicator: ordinis vocales plus satis qui ad scri-bendos salutisferos libros inepti, ad pradicandam Christi Sapientiam elingues, tamen ad obtrestandum cum Magisapientiam elingues, tamen aa oorrectandum cam Magistratibus, tum dissentiintibus eirca res religionis symmistis diseiti sint & copiosi. In the following Page he says. Si templa aliquot Hollandia peragrare libeat, Theologos quamplurimos in speimologos, concionatores in comutitatores, pacis pracones in factionum principes & schismatis faciundi buccinatores transformatos mirabere, nec tam reformata amplius, quam pessimis aliquorum moribus desormata religionis antistites esse jurabis. This was to abuse those excessively, whose Character he should have respected. That invective was immediately translated into Dutch I cannot well tell whether it was in that Differtation that he call'd one Vincent Drielenburch, who had fet up for a Prophet, by the Name of Nebula, but either in that or phetical fome other Writing he made use of that injurious sua dig-Expression, which (1) exasperated that Man to nitati pufuch a degree, that he publish'd a Book, wherein he calls Barleus a Knave and a Rascal, Nebulonem & Scelefum, and ingag'd to give 100 Livres to the Deaconry of Leyden, and to deliver himself up into the hands of Justice that his Punishment might be exemplary, if it could be prov'd by folid Reasons that he was a Knave, Nebulo A little while after there came out a Book, wherein it was pretended to prove came out a Book, wherein it was pretended to prove it by ten incontestable Reasons Drillenburch and swered those ten Reasons, and slew out extreamly against Barleus. The latter Compos'd a Remonstrance to the States General during his Like. It is dated from Fransfort in the Month of August. Salon on 1620, and intituled, Fides imbells, sive epistola parametrica ad illustrissimos & porentissimos Faderatarum Provinciarum Ordines. It is a piece very well written, extor ou substanting the Rights of Conscience, are gravely represented prig 176. the Rights of Conicience, are gravely represented prig 176, SII 2

elenburch phetande partibus non defuit, name anno fuperiore a Casparo Barlæo in quodam Nebulones nomine adeo Promuriofum ut editomor dem BarlæumSce You 177 and the ogratulate Marc An-Barlæus, epist 334 pag 668 the Letter was written in the Year 1636

(a) Com-

south what

Macrobi-

us Saturn

11b 2 c 5

pm 337

Man who had taught two Ra-

vens, the one to con-

(c) If webe-lieve Sorbiere,that Cardinal gave him 5000 Liwres for his Elogy Sorberia-

", p 40

most consider able are to be Seen in the Col-

Icetion of Letters ei uditorum VIIOrum pubth Aimi-กเวกระท8 in the Year 1660, and be Year 1684

lius leniula, feriprum repentur in ipecimine, a se profe-ctum esse, reliqua asperiora collegarum esse Barlaus epift 156

pag 356 (c) Ibid

(d) Confili i agitari uti libellus iste Cenforis Ordinibus Hollandiæ exhibeatur ut appareat Barlæum &Remon Arantes esse Socinianos Ibid epift 388 pag 675

(f) Ibid gag 679 (g)Martin Schoockius Sie Voetius Selett Disput Vol 1

PAE 1156

(e) Ibid PAR 674, 675 Sec

Aljo p 678

*His Sonnever closed: He was look'd upon (C) all his Life-time as a favourer of that Sect, and many Persons murmur'd against the Magistrates of Amsterdam, for entertaining and many Persons murmur'd against the Magistrates of Amsterdam, for entertaining such a Professor All his Proceedings were narrowly look'd into, and nothing was pardon'd him He was terribly exclaim'd against for certain Verses that he had made pardon'd him He was terribly exclaim'd against for certain Verses that he had made on the Book (D) of a Rabbin. After his Death, Letters were publish'd in Two Volumes, but the Sextus Empiricus, that was expected from him, never appear'd He show able he was to write History by the Relation of what passed in Brasil, during the Government of Count Maurice of National He publish'd that History in Some of the Year 1647 Strange Reports were rais'd about his (E) last Sickness, and about his

1 orum epsftolæ (a)

(G) He was look'd upon all his Life-time as a favourer of that Sett] It is certain, that fince he was restor'd into the University of Leyden, he did not break off his Correspondency with the Arminians His 156th Letter informs Uytengobard, that Polyander, Professor of Divinity at Leyden, had discover'd to his Friends, that (b) all the moderation of the Witting, which the Faculty of Theology had publish'd against the Arminians, came from him, but that he desir'd that if the Arminians knew it they would keep it secret, seeing it would expose him to the Indignation of his Collegues (c) Rogavit me obnixe per D Vossium internuncium, vobis uti scriberem, ne si forte hac res ad aures vesti as pervenerit, cius in responso vestro meministe vestitis, ne collegarum (a) In the suorum invidia ac odiis, quorum jam semina jatta, mi-6, eth and se objiciatur The following Letter testisses that one of Polyander's Collegues reproach'd him for hiving told this to Baileus, an Enemy of the the Fdit on (hurch, Tu boc dixisti Barleo, quem scis esse hossem 1684 Ecclesia, qui illud ipsum ad Uytenbogardum, & Epscopium perseripturus est These Letters were written in the Year 16,0 It appears by Barleus & Letters, that he was always in the Opinion of the Reliance and the second an monstrants

monistrants
(D) That he had made on the Book of a Rabbin Manasses Ben-Israel, one of the most Learn d Men among the Jews in the XVIIth Century, published a Book on the Creation in the Year 1634 Barleus made an Epigram upon it, and according to Custom, suffered it to appear at the Head of the Work He declared too plainly, that he preferred a good Life before the Truth of Speculative Doctrines A Divine of Deventer published a Writing, wherein he maintained that the Epigram was full of Blasphemies, and that the Author of it was a Societa Nay, there was a design (d) to bring the matter before the States of Holland, to convince Barleus, and all the Arminians, of Societaism Bar-Barleus, and all the Arminians, of Socianism Bar-leus defended himself with Heat, and was very angly He maintain d that his Words were maliangly He maintain d that his Words were mali-cioully interpreted, and even fallified, that they might the better colour the Tricks which they made use of, to find such a Meaning as he had never thought of Epigramma (e) quaddam meum quasitis & perversis detorsionibus maligne in-terpretatur Dicit illo epigrammate contineri varia qua Ecclessa perniciosa, religioni Christiana probrosa, & in Deum ac Dominum nostrum Jesum Christum impia sunt Socioianismum adhac auteri epigrammatic imp or in Deum ac Dominum nostrum Jesum Christum impias sunt Socinianismum adhac autori epigrammatis impingit, Orc. Censor pessima side voculam à carmine sustiulit, Or suam substituit, maneamus pro vivamus Sensus assingit versibus meis de quibus ne per somnium quidem cogitavi. He protested that he was no Socinian, that he never had been one, and that he detested the Doctrines of the Socinian; He added, that some would be glad, if he was a Socinian, that their Hatred might the better Triumph (f) Non sun Socinianus nec sui unquam, imo hostis sum (f) Non sum Socinianus nec fui unquam, imo hostis sum (f) Non sum Socinianus nec fui unquam, imo hostis sum istorum dogmatum accerrimus. Vellent quidam me esse qui explendi in me odis materiam soliciste quarunt. If that Judgment was false, it was not unlikely, for those that find themselves ingag'd in Quarrels about Doctrines, accuse their Adversaries of so many things, that commonly speaking they cannot do them more Spite, than by appearing quite other Men than they make 'em to be However it be, it was lawful for Barless to repulse the Calumny, bur he ought not to have made such ourlumny, but he ought not to have made such outrigious Verses against the Divine of Deventer, that perhaps Archilochus would not have made worfe I hat Divine's Name was Vedelius, and he intituled his Book Deus Synagoge A Professor (g) of Usrecht seconded him in that attack by a Writing which he intituled Verstius redivious, and Vedeleus took care to get it Printed Vessius believ'd that Barleus fell lick, for having taken the Insults of those

You will find it in the Pressantium & eruditorum &- two Antagonists too much to Heart See what he (b) 1/e two Antagonists too much to Heart what he (h) 1/e writt to Gretius the 15th of December, 1637 Collega Event did Barleus jam tertium mensem laborat quartana Menot consirme tuitur ei à μαρασμῶ Ut convalescat non videtur idem this Contuitur quondam Afflicit valendinem opere projecture perando quod nunc excuditur la laborat pompa ci example to matris in urbem nostrama la laborate pompa ci example thibito. Typis prodibit augustis planimis exornatum province every day thurs Atque hoc quod dixi non dissimulat apud anni that prove cos Sed multum metuo ne morbum hunc inde contraxe- fall. Eturis Atque hoc quod dixi non dissimulat apud amicos Sed multum metuo ne morbum hunc inde contraxerit, quod nimis ad animum researct qua advirsus eum (1) This m scripta sunt à Dott Vedelie. Mag Schoockio (k) I our tradisbelieve that Barleus's beautifus ands in general found Galitessen him too much concession the Centure of his Cieft ciEpigram, for he will de to despite his Ciiticks Tibi sum (l) for ut cos stoac prateritione entree multes Acerrima est constitute in malam (k) Epist rem homines ad civil since verante natos Excepgrammate scilicet qui manassen Indaum non prosinalis convitis, totus in te Theologorum ordo asperatus omnem Hareticorum sentinam in caput tuum insundit pag 795 Si verpum, apellam, recutitum eumden cd iisol dixisses, & virum, at videtur, non malum poeticis scom- 16 dixisses, & virum, ut videtur, non malum poeticis scommatibus exagitasses, palmaium meruises (1) Rosi quid mini apud te est sidei crabrones isos iterum dico chus Hoposthac negliges. Acrius enim post iepullam instint, & neiduti, ubi excusseris venenum omne in aculeos advocant tanquam ipsi last. Barleus s Epigram, that was the cause of so much stir, would find its place here, if it is not lately been inserted in a little Book (m) which is in every Body's hands. I wonder to find in it but a very small part of Barleus's Verses against Vedelius, but I wonder yet more thow Sorbiere could think that the Passage which he mentions, shews that the Author scoff'd at both Religions. These are Sorbiere's words. (n) Cum.

Holland,
Vedelius nomen sum in priori scripto analytico epigram-Vedelius nomen suum in priori scripto analytico epigrammats Barlaani (o) resisams s, ait

- 4 State tenebroso

Calumnator prove delites antro,

Et exoleta save tergiversator

Auctilia and amattan tendita surdita sessa ?

Arcessis orco monstra perdita secta? Cur versipellis Sarmata malas voces Portenta fidei, exsibilata Senensis Commenta verbis affricas serenatis?

Que sane nec Calvinianis satisfacere nic aliis, sed utri- had said usque religionis ludibrio habita poetam merito suspectum Silvisset; reddidere AMan must be Mad or Drunk to judge so, for besides for the Verses which we have just now read are the that it is sharpest that can be made against Socinianism, and no Body can testifie more lively than Barleus does, how much he detested to be suspected of that He-named resie That Author's Prose, which Sorbiere quotes himself in a little before, does not Thunder less against that the fost Sect

(E) Strange Reports were raised about his less side the Versoness I have heard say that he thought him that are be of Glass, and that he was afraid of being alledg'd be of Glass, and that he was afraid of being alledg'd to pieces, when any Body came near him On hat he in the profession of Butter, or Straw, and that he durst not compared the first and the first and fupnear the Fire This is inconsistent with his press d h, neral Oration, spoken by Corvinus Professor of Name Law, for it is affirm'd there, that he read a (p) Id Lecture to his Scholars the day before he died, quod do-and that he was going (p) to read another when a lemus, eo Faintness took him, from which he never reco Faintness took him, from which he never reco Ver'd Antecessit quidem eum morbus cum que lustaba Trompento ver'd Antecessit quidem eum morbus cum que luttaba- momanto tur subinde, non tamen tantus quin aliquomodo consuetis adhuc sufficeret laboribus. Audiverant eum pridie dies quo eum mors invasit, discipuli docentem audivissent subicomendem qua occidit, nisi ipsis eum abstulisset, ita ut (q) sibi commissa d cendo debitum præstaret officium Corvinus in Orat funeb (q) He had made use a little before (quod notandum) of the sa, Circumspection, Inopinata eum extinxit, UT NOBIS R1 LATUM, lipothymia Inde tactum ut eum extinctu ante audiverimus, quam morti esse propinquum morbus pre

pag 39 (o) Doubt= less it is a fault of Printing Perhaps the Author false that Vedelius Writing, the Verfes his (F) Death, but the Truth of it is hard to be known. There is but little Credit to Witte be given to Reports of that Nature, for it is known by an hundred Examples, that in Diario if an Author has distinguished himself never so little, Fame does very much magnification. the Corporal or Domestick Disgraces that happen to him And those that know all the Mystery, are commonly Persons that do not publish what may be the Cause of any

1694 (n) Ibid

Dutchgive the Name
RLEUS (Lambert) Brother of the foregoing, was Born at Bommel y in of ConreGuestland in the Year 1595 He was Greek Professor in the University of Leyden the Second Class * in a College of Amsterdam, and before he taught that Class he had been Minister of the Baron de Langerac, Embassador of He was called to Leyden to fill up the place of ferensiab the Hoelzlin, which is new Addition was made to that Office, for it was given him with the much as if Tield of Professor for in Ordinary, which is attended with several Advantages. Title | of Professor in Ordinary, which is attended with several Advantages He made his first Speech De Græcarum literarum præstantia ac utilitate, the 22d of October, 1641 In 1652 he publish'd the Timon of Lucian, with divers Notes that have nothing very exquisite, or protound in them, but which may be useful to Youth He died the 16th He that of June, 1655 his Commentary on the Theogony of Hesiod was printed in 1658 teacher the BARIOW (Thomas) Bishop of Lincoln in the Reign of Charles II was a very in Hol-

Learned Man He was a long time Professor of Divinity in the University of Ox-land 15 ford, and somebody suspected (A) that he was removed thence because he was too call'd Re-Orthordox. He was very Zealous against Popery, and he shew'd it (B) by his for He Writings He had many Books, and was a Man of great Reading He died in the free fine Year 1690, or thereabouts Some small Pieces that were found among his Papers have over the been publish'd since his Death Some Persons confound him with (C) William Barlow, other Teachers Bishop of Lincoln, who stourish'd under King James I and who wrote for that Prince accepimus, plurimis hodie exemplis fere epidemica lipothymia. O bserve, that Coro nus had just before turned his Speech to the Disciples of the deceased. Would be have told them fally that they affisted at one of his Lectures the day before his I cath.

(F) And about his Death. Morhofius reports, that Barleus died in a Well, and that it is not known whether he fell into it accidentally, or threw him-Miscro fato periit, puteo submersus, an form of this he faith in the 300th Page of his Polyhifter Doubtless he refers us to Page 155, when he says, that he had already mention'd that Death But in the 155th Page he does not ascribe it either to an Accident, or to a premeditated Design, but he affirms that Barleus became Mad, and cast himself into a Well, and quotes the 64th Letter of Sorbiere for it Eo nonnullorum excrescit è siducia ni-Sorbine for it Eo nonnullorum exercect è fiducia nimia ambitio, ut finistro aliorum judicio in extremam incidant insaniam Quod Barlao accepti, qui ob pralatum sibi Spanhemium in maniam incidit, seque ipsum in puteo suffocavit, quod di eo Sorbierius refert Epist 64 extatque apud Dupertum Musarum subcisivarum, I ib i de co Epigramma (a) That Quotation is very falle, for here is what Sorbiere says. "The "Death of Barleus, of which you require some "Circumstances from me, is not of that importance (b), though he was a very Gallant Man, "for there will always be found more excellent "Poets than Physicians When I was at Amsterdam they spoke variously of the end of his Life, as if Melancholy had advanc'd it It is true, "dam they spoke variously of the end of his Life, as if Melancholy had advanc'd it It is true, that having made a Funeral Oration in Verse on the Death of the Prince of Orange, and Dr Spanheim having spoke one in Prose, he bore the inequality of their Reward very impatiently For as Monsieur de Saumaise said very pleasantly, and a great mistake in giving the Trooper's the I oot Soldier, and that of the Foot Solution the Trooper Barleus had but soc Labra and the other had soo Crowns" There is and the other had soo Crowns There is and indeed, that, according to the common Report, Barleus was subject to some Fits of Mad-Report, Barleus was subject to some Lits of Madness Ferebatur intervalla quadam minus lucida habere, nec aberat conjectura oculorum qui non bene sanam cerebri particulam indicabant

(A) Somebody suspected that he was removed thence because he was too Orthodox] This somebody is a famous Minister and Professor of Divinity at Gro-Iningen, in a word, it is James Alting He says in a Letter (c) dated the 13th of March, 1676, That Dr Barlow was lately rais'd to the Bishoprick of Lincoln, that they might take him from the University, where he taught the Orthodox Faith, for, adds he, the English are much inclin'd to Pelagianism and So-cianism. And thereupon he speaks of a Book, De unione & communione cum Christo, whereof the Au-thor's Name is Sherlock

(B) And he shew'd it by hu Writings] When there was fuch a great Discourse about Titus Oates, and the hornble Conspiracy which he discover d, this Bishop publish d a Book, wherein he maintain d against all Shufflings, that it is an Aiticle of the Roman I aith that the Pope may depoic Sovereigns, and give their Dominions to others. It was a very good way to shew that he design d to do the Papists tome prejudice, for of all the things that are capable to flir up the Zeal of the Nation gainst them, there is none that can do it more effects ally than to shew that they are always ready by a Principle of Conficience, to take up Arms against Protestant Princes. The Book which Bishop Barlow published on that matter was immediately translated into Frince, and published under this Title, An Historical Treatise applies to the protest of the published of the published under this Title, An Historical Treatise applications of the published t bout the Excommunicating and Depoints of Kings At (d) I need Paris (d) by Claude Baibin, 1681

(C) Some Persons confound him with William Barlow I she two Authors who have added some Supthe place of plements to the Treatile of John Deckherrus, De fer th Edition

pru adesporis, have committed that fault Deckherrus had faid that the Jesuit who wrote in English against King sames, concerning the Apology for the Oath Deckherrus of Allegiance, was refuted by Mr Baclo, Bishop of Lincoln One of (e) his Friends writ to him, that that Prelate's name was not Baclo, but Thomas Barlow, Is si placet est Thomas Barlovius magni apud Anglos nominis, & de nostratibus optime meritus Optandum foret videre aliquando avendo a ipsius, quorum tis adel-magnam in instructissima sua Bibliotheca copiam habet, potis, p on uperrime uno & altero opusculo presertim contra Curiam Romanam magnum litteratus desiderium excitavit Historia ejus de conspiratione contra Jacobum Angliæ Regem, vulgo The Gun-powder Treason, non sta pridem publicum vidit. The Letter, from which I have taken these words, was written at Strasburg in 1681 It is plain therefore, that Mr Deckherrus's Friend imagin'd that the Bishop of Lincoln, who Friend imagin'd that the Bishop of Lincoln, who had writ for King James against a Jesuit, was yet living Now this is a great Mistake. It was in the Wear 1609, that King James made use of Dr. Barlow, Bishop of Lincoln's Pen to write against Robert Parfons an English Jesuit. If that Doctor had been yet living in the Year 1681, his Age would have been a thing altogether extraordinary, and those would have been inexcusable that should have mention'd his Learning and his Books, if they had forgot to his Learning and his Books, if they had forgot to speak of his great Age It would be to no purpose to say that some Learned Men live 100 Years, seeing it is very well known that the Bishop of Lincoln's name that wrote for King James was William, and not Thomas I don't know whether 100 Years would have been sufficient for Thomas Barlow to be living in 1681, and to have been a Bishop in the Year 1609, for it is very rare to be a Bishop in (f) See the England before the Age of 35 or 40 Years. The Book init-Author of the News from the Commonwealth of Learn-tul d ing, who took a small review of Mr Deckherrus's De scripand Mr Vindingius's Faults, did not only oversee tis adelable.

this, but, which is worse, adopted it (f)

Dutchgive one should Say, the Rector's Affeffor teaches the BAR- † Corvinus in Obri Cifp Barlæi

> Frift Didicatory of huT imon

+ Witte, ubi supra

(e) Paulus Vindingius See

Alcine Oper sems 5 P 391

(a) Mor-hof Poly-

hyst pag 355

(b) That us to Say, of the Same

1mportance as that of Wallæus and Ves-Lingius,

which he had mention'd just before potis,

(A) Pro- p 372

* See the BARNES (Robert *) Professor of Divinity, and Chaplain to (A) Henry VIII.

Remark A King of England, was sent by his Master into (B) Germany in the Year 1535. He conferr'd forthwith with the Protestant Divines on the subject of the Divorce He had afterwards some audiences of the Elector of Saxony, and joyn'd with the English Embassadors that propos'd an alliance to that Elector against the Pope, and who desir'd that Henry VIII might be associated in the League of Smalcald They gave hopes of a Reformation in England, but at the bottom their only aim was to obtain an approbation of their Master's Divorce, and a Politick Alliance to give the Emperour more trouble, who threaten d to revenge the injury done to his divorced Aunt They (m) Anwent away with the Opinion (C) of the Divines of Wittemberg, which was not altogether favourable for them, but they supprest the conclusion, when they shew'd it to so have the King. That which could not please that Prince was in the Conclusion † The non-est conduct of Barnes pleas'd the King of England very well, for which reason he was adscri-

† Seckendorf Hift Lutheranılmı 13 p 110 & fequent

(b) See Secken-

dorf, Hift of Luthu-

13 p 110 in the addition (,) Id in fupplementis ad Indicem

I n 10 (d) That which he prefix'd to

on of the

Martyrdim

of Bunes inscried in the 7 h Volum of his Works See Sec-kendorf,

13 p 262 (e) Tis the 26 h of the 1st Book (f)I uther apud Seckendorf,

(g) Bur-

net's Hft

Book 3 pag 689 (b) Seckend ubi

pag 26. (1) Id 1b

fupra

in ifm,

(A) Professor of Divinity and Chaplain to King Henry VIII | He had (b) those Titles given him in the credential Letters which the King his Master in the credential Letters which the King his Master gave him to negotiate in Saxony, and those Letters are dated from Windsor the 8th of July 1535. His Christian Name does not appear in those Letters before that of Barnes. In Germany he gave himself the Name of Antony Amarius, tho' his true Name was Robert Barnes. When he dedicated his Lives of the Popes to the King of England in the Year 15,5 he sign d R. Barnes Doctor (c) There is 11 a Pretice of Luther (d) that Barnes conceal'd his Name and his quality of Doctor in Wittemberg, for four of the Persecutors. fear of the Persecutors Melanchibon calls him D Antonius Doctor, on D Antonius, in a (e) Letter which he wrote to the King of England the 13th of

March, 1535
(B) Was fint by his Master into Germany] The Prefice which I have quoted informs me that Barnes lived at Wittemberg, about the Year 1530, and also that he lodged in the House of Luther (f) Quis ante annor decembor deves n Barnesio quasirvisset, & quod Christus ipse in co nobiscum versatus esset domesticum unim & commensalem habumus Barnes might have liv'd in Germany till the Year 1535 and might have receiv'd Credential Letters there trom Henry VIII to negotiate with the Elector of Saxony According to that account the Author of the History of the to that account the Author of the History of the Reformation of England might very well lay, (g) That at last while the Bishop of Hereford was at Similcalde, that is, in the Tiar 1536, Barnes was sent by that Minister into England, where he was very well in a coording to that account these words would be exact, for all the reason that Mr de Seckendorf illedges (h) against em, is that Barnes came from England into Germany in the Year 1535 with a Commission from Henry VIII He was therefore return'd into England before the Bishop of Hereford sent him thither, and therefore the Meisage wherefent him thither, and therefore the Melfage where-with that Prelate chaig'd him ought not to be ta-ken for his return into his Country But can it be prov'd that the Credential Letters were not fent to Barnes into Germany, and that he himself was fent into that Country? Yes, it may be done Seekendorf proves it by the Records that have supply d him with many good Pieces (1) Venerat Wittenbergam (Reg x sol 99 n 42) verne hujus anni 1535 tempore, Dostor LX BRITANNIA ab Henrico Reg. MISSUS Melanchthon confirms the same thing in Greek, for he made use of that Language to inform his good breard. iame thing in Greek, for he made use of that Language to inform his good Friend Camerarius, that there was an Envoy from England, who spoke of nothing but of the King's second Marriage, and who said that Henry VIII cared but litle for the Affairs of Religion "Hade to more space these the masses of Religion "Hade to more space the transminguage of the Best of the masses of the said of the masses of the Best of the said that the Best of Historian says only that the Bishop of Hereford sent Barnes into England, he does not deny that Barnes was return'd thither before was returned thirtner before

(C) The Opinion of the Divines of Wittemberg]

Dr Burnet gives the particulars of it exactly (1),

The first thought which they had about that business was, that the Ordinances of the Levitical Law were not Moral Afterwards they alter'd their Opinion, when the Question had been a listle more agitated, but they never agreed that a Marriage already confummated could be disamul d, and they confirm'd themselves more in this last Opinion, so that they condemn'd the King's two Marriages. He mentions this under the Year 1530 Not that he was ignorant that that Opinion was given in 1536, but he did it without doubt to shew his Reader all at once the different Opinions ter acta of the Divines on the Divorce of Henry the VIII anni Mr Seekendorf thought fo, for when (m) he remarks that the Opinion of the Divines of Wittenberg is to be found in the History of the Retormation of England, in the Volume of the Original tuilt. Pieces, among those that belong to the Year 1530, 11 fol 94 he adds this Parenthesis (forte per occasionem) The Secken-Bishop of Meaux did not know that the Decree of dorf ubit Wittemberg is of the Year 1536 He speaks (n) only supra, p of Melanchthon's Opinion as to that Year, and does 112 not criticize Di Burnet for having plac d the Anfor criticize Di Burnet for having place the Anfwer of the Divines of Wittemberg in the Year 1530 History of Mr Seckendorf observes that the Copy of that Anfwer which he read in the Archives of Weimar, is tione 17 longer than that which is to be found among Dr n 58 Burnet's Original Pieces Here is the passage that was suppress by the Fmbassadors of Henry VIII W H E-Etste consentiamus cum Dominis legatis servandam esse THER ligem de uxore fratris non ducenda, mansit tamen inter the Dinos controvirsum quod legati statuunt dispensationi lo-vines of cum non esse, nos vero putamus esse illi locum Nequi cnim Wittemstrictius obligare nos lex potest quam Judaos si autem lex berg did dispensationim admissit, vinculum matrimonii utique argue fortius est quam lex illa altera de uxore spatris conse-Mr Seckendorf conjectures, that the Embassadors quently supprest those Words, that then Master might have still some hopes that the Divines of Wit- (1) How emberg would at last approve his Second Mariage That thought is very reasonable, and in general flum est, those Divines might rightly suppose, that there are things that ought not to have been done, and which ought nevertheless to be maintain'd when once they have been done. But I confess I can't well lox tradiapprehend how the beginning and the end of their to Levit Opinion can be reconciled. They own on the one xviii acfide (a) that the Ordinances of the Levitical Law prohiber are Divine, Natural and Moral, that no Law can be made in opposition to them, and that the Church has always judg d that a Man's Marriage with his Brother's Widow is Incession, and on the other side they maintain, that that Levit cal Law may be dispensed with Legati statum different levels of the same of Law may be dispensed with Legati statuant dispensationi locum non esse, nos vero putamus esse illi locum Is it may be dispensed with, Henry VIII might very well believe that he was lawfully married with Catherine of Aragon But is it be Divine, Natural and Moral, and such in a word that it cannot bear any contrary constitution, in short is the Church always judged that a Marriage not conformable to that Law is incessions, then Henry VIII ought to have look'd upon his Commerce with Catherine of Aragon no otherways than as an Incess, and the Divines of Wittemberg ought not to have been uncertain whether they should approve or disapprove his Divorce The Maxim, That there are things that ought not to have been done, but when lex siers they are once done they must not be undone, could have no place here, seeing the question was about the continuation of an Incess Some malicious Persons, whose interest it were to recriminate, would not Seekenders, whose interest it were to recriminate, would not easily agree with what Dr Burnet observes (p), That if in the conduct of the Saxon Divines there does not appear that Cunning, that Policy, and that Dissimulation of the Court of Rome, yet there appears in it at least the Sincerity and the Conscience of the Apostolick Times. As for me, I had rather believe that they did not argue consequently, than affirm that whilft they were reflecting on the Pope's Dispensation, they had out of Prudence a regard to Charles V and the interests of his Cousin the Princess Mary but but Meaux an Advertary that loves to give things a malicious turn, might by way of retaliation make an ill

Judgment of the conduct of those Drvines (4) nus & diimploy'd prus, & Burnetus illud inanni 1530 (forte per 11 fol 94 Secken-(n) See the

THER

prohibet ducere fratris uxorem divina, naturalis Seckenderf, Burnet documentis (p) L16 p 229 (q) See the

Bishop of

Hift of the Variat 17

N 57

(k) Melanchthon, Letter, 170 of the 4th Book dated the 11th of March (1) Burn Book 2d page 220. ad ann 1530

imploy'd to entertain a Correspondence with the Princes of Germany He was sent several imploy'd to entertain a Contespondence with the Princes of Germany rie was jent jeveral times to those Courts, and among other Negotiations, he was the first that was imploy'd in the Protect (D) of the Marriage of Anne of Cleves He was a good Lutheran, and conceil d it but seldom in his Sermons, for in the Lent of the Year 1540, he contuted the Sermon which Bishop Gardiner had Proach'd against the Doctrin of Luther He took a Taken 'Gardiner's own Text, and taught a quite contrary Doctrin to that which that Prelate from the had establish'd concerning Justification he attack'd also that Bishop personally after History of the endecent manner, and used complained the Reformance of Gardiner's Fruings complained the Reformance of Gardiner of Complained the Reformance of Gardiner of Complained the Reformance of Gardiner of Complained the Ref an indecent manner, and jested on the Name of Gardiner Gardiner's Friends complain'd the Reforto the King about it, who order that Barnes should give him Sitisfiction for it, that he should sign certain Airicles, and recant in the Pulpit. All this was performed, but in such a manner that complaints were mide, that in one part of his Sermon he had Burnet. Upon those Complaints (at present the Suprimy to maintain what he had retracted in the other inffer Death in the mide of Hames, for the Parliament condemn'd him as a Heretick, 13 pag m without giving him leave defend himself. A little before his Death he declar'd his 689 or Belies, rejected Justification by Works, the Invocation of Saints, or and defir d that the King would go about a good Reformation. The freedom of his Tongue had 1 its d him many Troubles a long time before. In Wolfey's prosperity he Preached so 7 lox mentionally it Cambridge against the Luxury of the Prelates, that every body might easily thousand the design'd it against that Cardinal. When every he was brought to London when the last condensation in the last the King order'd him to be fent to the Tower, from whence he never came but to (E) lisbury) gueis he design'd it against that Cardinal Whereupon he was brought to I ondor, where last opinibe came off by the Solicitations of Gardiner and I ox, provided he should abjure on which see came off the Atticles that were proposed to him "Atterwards he was imprisoned again on new doubtful Acculations, and then every one believed that he should be buint. But he fled and to Doffer went into Germany, where he apply'd himself wholly " to the conditions of the state of the stat " went into Germany, where he apply'd himself wholly" to the Study of the Bible and Burner, ib of Divinity He made such great progresses in it, that he wis much consider d both of See the by the Doctors and Princes. When the King of Denmark sent some Ambailadors in-Remark B to Figland, he would have Barnes to accompany them β , or γ that he should be one of them. The Bushop of Salisbury, whom I quote in the Mugin, might easily be justified of a thing that he is criticized for I here are it least (F) two Books of Barnes

BARNIS (John) in Latin Barnessius, in English Benedictin Monk, was one of (k) Thethose Roman Catholicks who following the Limples of Frasmus, Cassander, Wicelius, Moroph drewius, I other 1 aul, and many others, made all their lite-time Proteition of the Catho-Riyn in lick Reagion, tho they observed a great many abuses in it, which they pussionately Theolodefirst might be reformed. He writ a Book against (A) Mental Reservations, which gia anti-(a) History we but little picting to the Jesuits, the he dedicated it to Pope Urban VIII

file Riformation, Catholico-Romanus pacificus (B) is full of such things as cannot be relished by these Catholico-Romanus pacificus (B) is full of fuch things as cannot be relished by those that tyrnada-

(D) In the Project of the Marriage of Anne of Cleves] I his was an unlucky thing for Barnes, (a) because the King being not well pleas'd with that Marriage spar d neither the Author nor the Instruments of it I his is what the Bishop of Salisbury assures us of Luther touch d on another Circumstance, he says (A). That the true saying of the hings has he says (b) That the true cause of the kings hatted for Robert Barnes, was the liberty wherewith that Doctor distuaded him from repudiating Anne of Cleves Mr Seckendorf (c) precends that Dr Burnet observes the same thing I question it much, for I have not met with it in his Reformation of 13 7 689

ad ann

(6) In Præfat

1 clation martyrıı

Barnefin

api d Sec-kendorf. l, p 262 (c) Ibid (d) Ibid

n 24 (e) It is inserted in the 7th Volume of his Works Alt fol ibid

(f) Ibid

(e) Ex

Icholis five lup-dorfis ad

peidito hileri

England

(E) To suffer death in the midst of Flames The relation of his Mittyrdom was ient from England into Germany Mr Seekendorf (d) found it in the Archives of Weimar translated into the German Language Luther published it (e) and added a Preface to it, wherein among other things he praises Barnes's Modesty He was not ignorant into the defects of Hemy VIII and he did not diffemble them when he was among his but every where else he tpoke of that in very respectful and honourable terms

There are at least two Books of Baines I he contains the Articles of his I inth, the is the History of the Popes The I irit was ringed in Latin with a Pieface of Pomianus, at whose House Barnes lodged at that time. It was the Communication of Novembers in plementis Seckenwhole House Barnes lodged at that time. It was printed in the German I anguage at Nationberg in the Year 1531 It contains 19 These according to the Manager of Luther's Principles, and divers Proofs taken from the Scriptule, and the Fathers I he other Bool (1) These apprinted at Wittemberg in the Year 15,6, with liber as printed at Wittemberg in the Year 15,6, with Preface of Luther It contains the Lives of the liber and the North Alexander III and is dediniveritured to the King of England I he Author with the Scriptule Dedicatory the 10th of September 15,5 He se pro de perdito the Eng of England I ne Author writ the Se pro de perdito their History to his time (g) Mi Seekendorf is of opinion that that Book delerv'd (h) a Second I distribute their History to his time (g) the Seekendorf is of opinion that that Book delerv'd (h) a Second I distribute the Prefixe of it in his factorial than the second I distribute the Prefixe of it in his factorial than the second I distribute the second I distribu tion, and has inferted the Preface of it in his Indian 1536 may be reckon'd for lost Nevertheless a new Edition was made of it at Leyden in the Year 1615 which contains also the Lives of the Popes written by John Baleus, and which is not yet very learce

(A) A Book against Mental Reservations] It was printed at Pairs in the Year 1625 under the Intle of Dissertatio contra equivicationes, it was printed in French the time Yeu, and in the time place, ed in Frinch the time Yell, and in the time place, name of under the Title of Freatife and Dispute against equivocations. The approbation of the Faculty of Divinity trys, that John Baines was Dottor of Arts of Quintithe Sacred Theology, and Professor of the English Mission, nus The and first assistant for the Congregation of Spain, and is passage dated the 13th of July 1624. The Authors Fpi-which I still Dedicatory is dated from Pars the 13th of guote out I must 1625. So that Lather Theophilus Raynaud of it is mistaken, when he trys, that Barnes was carry depicted for Rome, and imprison d under the Pontificate of his Apopaul V. I shall set down his own Words, for they pompaus inform us of something concerning that poor Benedictic (1) In the ditus (k) Joannes Bainesson Jesustia admedum in-12th Vol d Elin (k) Joanne Barnefus Jesustis admodum in- 12th Vol sensus, ob nonnully suspiciones de comperta illis vita p 752 sua, co loco suit apud Paulum I ut cum tanquam nova (m) Ibid pale fabrum per Albertum Auftreacum è Gallea abduthum, or e Relgio Romann a sectium sudicaverit carcere (n) Brown adignum, done comoto cerebro inter fatuos pone S Pauli in Appendiminori aciem saciam fatuari desit cum aliorum periculo fasciculi. This Passige was quoted by Edward Brown in the rerum ex8 6th page of his Appendix to the Fasciculus rerum petend expetenaarum, printed at London 1690 See the fol- He quotes lowing Remaik. We read in the French Mercury, John Ba(1) It at this good Benedictin believed that the Jenier, dia-Juits l'ated him mortal's after the Printing of his Book of triba de Equivocations, which Doctor Gamaches (who was ac- antiqua counted one of the chief Divines of his age) would not Eccletize approve of, being required to do it, (m) and that he Britannimate that Book whilst he was Confessor in the considera-Convent of Chillis

(B) His (atholico-Romanus pacificus] It was gis printed at London in 169, in the Appendix of the press.

Fasciculus recum expet nd trum. The Author of the 1556

Appendix informs us, that he had seen three Man:

(6) That is Jeripts of that Worl of Baines, and he quotes their to fay he words of Jenn Basser Protessor of Divinity, (n) Bo- benedicting nus ille (o) I eneus tame's vita inculnata & fima Barnes

His veri marlumpti notione This Buck was printed at Lyons in 1656 under the manie of pag 751 (n)Brown tate, Bruım-

" See the Same Re mark 1 rench Mercury, Fol 14 pag 3,6 y Irench Mrcny 101 1 P 752

8 11 100 Mocury, shid

? He gave bimfelf the Sirname of Stempanus.w/ich I believe is to fary ut Ltampes

3 A loco Limbethan diti sunt Alting , ubi supi a 4 Taken from the Theologia Hiftorica of Henry Alting, p 305,,06

(a) brench Mercury, P 753 (b) Placcius de

Pieudony mis p 189 gimbe $(d)^{4}$ Id P 45 - (c) Printed with his Pharus Veteris Teftamenti at P 11 15 11 1648 fol (f) He does the Same thing in hasyntagma de libits propius pins Sec 371 Remark

(g) 1 heo-philis Rayn and Hoploth ∫eit 2

∫er 2 ι 2 p 256

edit Lugd

1650

Doubtless he desir'd to bring the two Churches as near one are cilld good Papills The Court of Rome was very much displeased with him for another as ever he could It This poor Man, blameless in his Morels a being at Paris was (C) apprehended, and flipt of the Habit of his Order, to be carry'd into Flanders bound on Horse-He was & afterwards fent to Rome, where he remain'd in the Prison of the Inquisition, till he was removed into that of the Mad-men. In this latter Station he ended his Days, being most certainly worthy of a better fate. He was a profess Monk of the Convent of the Benedictins of Donas, and had been Superior there, but being not able to agree with the Monks of his Order he retired into France, and did not obey the Summons of the Benedictins, whereby he was required to return to Douas, or to retire into some other of their Monasteries. He lodg'd at Paris near the College of Navarre, afterwards in the College of Burgundy, and lastly in the House of the Prince of Portugal, where the Captain of the watch arrested him the 5th of December 1626 He wis writing an Answer to the Book intitul'd, Apostolatus Benedictinorum in Anglia, wherein he would have inscreted his particular Opinions about the Discipline of the Tither Theophilus Raynaud disguis d'under a (D) talse name, writ against his Treatife of Lquivocations

It may be the Reader will be glad to fee here the reason why (E) Barnes was in

Enemy of the Jesuits, I me in the reason which they have published

BARON (Peter) Professor of Divinity in the University of Cambridge in the XVIth Century, was a 2 I renchman born He exerted some troubles in that University by certain Doctiones which he deliver d there in the Year 1590 It was pretended that his Opinions came very near those of the Pelagians Whitaker, Tindal, Chaderton, Perlins, &c opposed it in their Seimons, I cetures, and Books, but at the beginning they spired their Adversary's Name because of his great Age Perceiving afterwirds that he continu'd to dogmatize, and that he munt un'd an heterodox Hypothe-115 111 his Summa trium de pradestinatione Sententiarum, Whitaker formally declared himfeet his Antagonist, and ictuted his Summa The matter was brought before Queen Lizabeth, and the Archbishop of Canterbury A Convocation of Piclates and Doctors of Divinity met it Lambeth Whitaker was Summon'd to appear there, who maintain'd the common Opinion with 10 much force, that he made it triumph gloriously of Baron was condemn d, and nine & Articles were drawn up the 20th of November 1595, that were received in the University by Publick Authority Baron was dismist, and return'd into France which reftor'd Peace in that University + Some (1) think.

integræ fuit, media Lutetia correptus, suo habitu exutus, & quadrupedie instar larbarum in modum alligatus ad equum, & ita elementissime avettus primo in Flandriam deinte Romam, il in Inquisitionis barathium, deand deinte Roman, it in inquipitions barainum, deinde in maniaco un ergastulum erat detrusus (() Bring at Priss mas apprehended] They would hive sent him away the same day he was taken, if the Captain of the Watch had been as impatient is the Lather Procurator of the Beneditions of Doual was The next day Lather Barner was carry'd in a Couch to I lette where two Beneditions waited to go along with him, and with the Guilds who were ordered to carry him to Cambray. He was bound on a Horie, and deliver d to the Governour of Cambray, who funt him to the Castle of (a) Waerden Tather Theophilus Raynaud was in the wrong to speak of Orders from Albert of Austria, for that Archduke was dead a long time before Barnes was apprehended I have quoted that Jefuit's words in the first Remark

(D) Disguis d under a false Name] I speak of the Book the title whereof is, Splendor weritatis moralis, feu de lieito usu aqu vocation s pro I conardo Lesso adprinted at Lyons in 16 7 in 8vo The Author calls himself Stephanus Emonerius I have a stronger proof of it than that which Placeius (b) form'd out of two passages of I there Alegambe, in one of which it is said (c) that Theophilus Raynaud compos'd the namine alegame the I restife of which I have wift lub nomine alieno the I rentile, of which I have just on now given the I itle, and in the other (d) that he difguis'd himself under the Name of S Emonerius. This is the Proof Pather Alram tays in his Treatile de (e) Mendacio, that Theophilus Raynaud acknowledges the Book of Fmonorus, intitul d Splendor veritatio moralis, for one of his Works, and that he may easily be discover'd in it Miror to huno pro The ophili partu agnoscere, thus says, one of father Abram's Itellocutors, the other answers, Quid ne ve o agnoscam cum illum in suis (f) Moralibus sum est fateatur? Quem si abdicaret, nullo tamen negot opairem vil ex ipla filii facie i eterisque corporis line-amintic agnoscire possimus, c oculos, sic illi manus, sic ora firebat

Here is a Pailage of Theophilus Raynaud, whereby it appears that he acknowledg'd the refutation of Barnes for his Work, and that the Benedictin was yet living in the Your 1650 (g) Dixie go Sancin prafatione openis de Aquivilatione, adversus Caetani germanum, bipedum omnium effrontisfimim, Joannem Barnifium Anglum, qui vicenario carcere in quem curante summo Pontifice reclusus est, necdum detersit mul-tiplicis adversus Deum, & Religionem Gatholicam, ac Benedicti familiam, malignitatis rubiginem Secretatern Jesu, &c.

(E) Why he was an Enemy to the Jesuit.] Being seturn'd from Space into the Netherlands, he affished at one of their Publick Disputations, wherein the Respondent propos'd his quodlibetal Thesis thus, An Joannes in Hispania infamis, possible in Belgio also peccato infamari. That is to say, Can John being infamous in Spain, be innocently defamed in the Netherlands? Such Cises of Conscience have been examin'd by Sata Malina and leveral other. Writeres examin'd by Soto, Molina, and leveral other Writers, but in a general minner, tho' with the addition of certain circumstances. Those generalities were not kept to in the Disputation, at which John Barner assisted, for the Question was reduced to fuch precise Terms, by denoting in a particular manner the time and place, that he believ'd they meant him personally, and he would never be periwaded to the contrary, tho' they made very humble protestations to him that they had no such design He resolv'd to revenge himself, and made choice of the Subject of Equivocations Theophilus Raywhich he writ against that Book of Barnes (b) Ad (b) Thewhich he writ against that book of barrows in our ophilus fingularia locorum ac temporum adjuncta, illis in our ophilus arefamiliaria, difficultas restricta est , Clara lo-Raynaud jingularia tocorum ac temporum aujuncia, tilis in perfamiliaria, difficultas refiricta est , Clara to-corum designation, petitum se ratus Barnessus, bellam indixit inconciliabile Societatis Jesu Do Foribus, nec se ullis unquam vel contestationibus, vel mollibus ac prope libris pro-Supplicibus verbis, flecti passus est, ut nihil minus quam de co notando cogetatum esse, in eo Thesium programma- 22 col 2 te ac prologuio, persuaderetur He does not forget to Apopomfay that Barner was condemn'd to perpetual impulsionment, and that having lost his Senses, he was removed to the Hospital of the Madmen, (1) Barnessum ob periculosas novitates, carceri esse mancipatum, postea autem emota mente, in satuorum ergastulo Transtiberino, (vulgo gli Pazzaielli) conrus est, ubi anno 1643 erat Juperstes
(1) Some think that he was us'd too severely The Lxtratts of a Book of Thomas Fuller, which Mr Desmaizeaux has been so kind is to send me, shall be my

Commentary on this place That Book is an History

tagm de prits, pag

that he was us'd too severely (r) We shall see the Titles (Z) of some Works of that Professor

BARON (Vincent) in Latin Baronius, a Monk of the Order of St Dominick, was efteem'd in the XVIIth Century for several Books which he Publish'd He had the Famous Theophilus Raynaud for his Antagonist, and for what I know, his great desire of fighting such a famous Champion, made him take for that Jesuit's Works what was not so He acknowledg'd sometimes that he was mistaken in his Conjectures about that very thing. Father Baron's Works that are come to my knowledge, are a Book concerning Justification against the Doctrin of the Calvinifts, a Moral (A) Theology divided into three Parts, and an Apology (B) for his Order In his Moral Theology he made choice of the chief matters that are in dispute between the Dominicans and the Jesuits He was a famous Preacher

Here is a memorial which came into my hands * fince the first Edition of this * By the ork. "Father Vincent Baron was born at Martres in the Diocess of Rieux in Gas-He made Profession in the Order of the Preaching Fryers at Toulouse in the fon des

"Year Riolles

ry of the University of Cambridge, at the end of The Church History of Great Britain, from the Birth of Christ till the Tear 1648 (4) "There happen'd in 1580, "a Dispute between Mr Chadderson and Dr Baro, "(a) Magaret Professor, concerning some Heterodox "Opinions, which that Doctor had advanced as "well in his Lectures as in his Book de Fide, and "his Commentary on Towar. This Professor Con-(4) Thomas Fuller's Hift of the University of his Commentary on Jonas This Professor Convened Mr Charleton in Consistory before the Vice-Chancellor, Dr Hawserd, Dr Harvey, and Dr Legg, and tho' on the one side Mr Chadderton absolutely deny'd that he had ever preach'd against Dr Regg, yet on the other he affirm'd bridge, p 145, Ot edit London 1655 " against Dr Baro, yet on the other he affirm'd, that these two Propositions were Erroneous I Primus Des amor non est in natura sides Justissia. (a) Mar-Countess of

Cam-

garet

Rich-ther of

Henry VII built

mond.Mo-

Some Colleges as Cambridge, & founded two places of Profesfors in Divinity, one at Oxford and an other at Cambridge Those who enjoy these

Profesors.

the Sallary annexed to shem, are call'd, Margaret Profes-

John Tifter

Bishop of Rochester was who enjoyed that at Cam-

the first bridge, Eraimus

was the

This Merginal Note Marzeaux's (b) Ib ad 200 1596

cantu

"Both of them writ on this Subject, and they found at last that they agreed in their Expressions, but altho' they seem'd to be of the same mand by their Words, their Opinions were so different that they fell out, and at last the Dostor lost his Place (b) His Triennial Lectures were very near an end, and tho' Custom had almost made it a Duty to continue out of Civility the same Prosessor after that Term was expired when same Professor after that Term was expired, when they had no urgent occasion to the contrary, yet the University did not think it proper to continue Dr Bare in the Chair, and they thought it wou'd be much handsomer to dismiss him then, "and that it would not be so great a Hardship and Digrace to him to go out of that Place, at the expiration of the Term He took notice of this himself, and foresaw that they expected he should sign the Articles of Lambeth, which were would put him under a necessity of doing it, to which he could not condescend For this reason he resolv'd to quit the Place So that his resigning did not at all proceed from his own will places, and " or choice, but he was necessarily determin'd to it, witness the Answer which he gave to a Friend, who ask'd him the reason why he left the Chair, Fugio no Fagarer I here are fome People who think, that they treated a Man of Dr Bare's Merit too loughly For, I He was a stranger, and turpius ejeitur quam non admittitur hesses 2 All those who deny that Baro was a Learned Man, (which all his Works evidence) show that they themselves have no learning 3 He was a Man of an unblamable Life and Conversa-"stion, which appears by his not being accus'd of any Vice, which they would not have fail'd to do, when Mr Chadderson was so exasperated against him 4. To conclude, He was a Manad-vanc'd in Years, who had come thither a long time before, at a Juncture when the Professor's Chair had no less occasion for him, than he had Second, and .. for it, and who had taken a great deal of pains to Baro the " be a Credit to it Others maintain, That in fuch Cases where Conscience is concern'd, fourteenth " "fuch Cases where Conscience is concern'd,
"Complaisance ought not to be thought on, and "that Baro, being a Stranger, had introduc'd a "frange Doctrine to infect the University, which "is the Fountain of Knowledge and Religion,
"and that 'twas for this reason Archbishop Whit"gift depriv'd him of his Professoriship " This u, Sir, (they are Mr Def-Maizaaux's Words) what Fuller says, and I chose to translate him interally the not so well, rather than run the hazard of deviating from his Seuse. He takes notice, that all the English

He takes notice, that all the English from his Seufe Write Bare constantly or Beree, and that in Original Writings the (c) Doctor fign'd Baro, from (c) See the whence it might be concluded, that I should have H story of call'd him Bare, and not Baren, unless it be faid, the French that he Latiniz d his Name when he fign d Bare, and Academy, that the English call'd him according to the Latin p m 321 Termination That which is certain, is, that the Name of Baron is much more us'd in France than tia & dignitate divina legis

(A) A Moral Theology divided into three Parts] The first is design'd against the Doctrine of Probability, adversus laxiores (d) Probabilitas Therein he Confuces Caramuel, who had written four Letters against the Difference when the confucers and the confucers when the confucers are applied to the Difference when the confucers are applied to the confucers and the confucers and the confucers are applied to the confucers and the confucers are applied to the confucers and the confucers are a confucers and futes Caramuel, who had written four Letters against the Dissertation which Fagnano Dean of the Prelates of Rome, had inserted in his Commentaties on the Canon-Law Fagnano maintains strongly, That an Opinion which is thought less probable, ought never to be preferr'd before that which is thought more probable Caramuel Constituted him, and was Constituted by our Vincent Baron Father Theophilm Raynaud was Restited in the same Work, in relation to an Opinion of Suares Condemn'd by Clement VIII Suares had maintain d. That Consession might be made by Letters Father Theophilm contriv'd some Expedients to desend his Brother against the Pope's Censure, and Ather Baron writ against those Expedients, and at the same time he sell upon the Jansenss, the very rarely, there happen such Cases wherein there may be an invincible Ignorance as well against the Law of Nature, as against a positive Law (e) In the Second Part, he Attacks Amadaus Guimenius, and is not satisfy'd with maintaining that the loose Opinions that are Attacks Amadaus Gumenius, and is not fatisfy'd of the with maintaining, that the loofe Opinions that are Learned imputed to the Dominicans are not their true Sentiments, he shews also what one ought to think of those Opinions. He acknowledges in his Preface, the Error wherein he was in composing his Work. He thought that Amadaus Guimenius was but a false Name which Father Theophilus had given himself (f). In the third Part he treats of Liberty, and of the media Scientia, and he maintains, nal of the That the Fore-knowledge of GOD, has no other foundation than his Decrees, and that that Fore-knowledge is of a from destroying Man's Liberty, that on the contrary, it establishes it (g). This that on the contrary, it establishes it (g). This knowledge is in far from destroying Man's Liberty, that on the contrary, it establishes it (g) This must not be taken for a Paradox, for whosoever should say otherwise, would not follow the Desinition of Liberty that ought to be given in the System of the Physical Predetermination. It is by virtue of the different Ideas of Liberty, that the Learned of the Dispute may be made to continue, and the Reader June may be so deluded that he does not perceive when his Cause does not go well

(B) And an Apology for hu Order 1 'Tis a Latine

(B) And an Apology for hu Order] 'Tis a Latin Work, as the fore-going It ferves for an Answer to the cruel Invective of Father Theophilus Rayto the cruel Invective of Father Theophilus Raymand, intitul'd, De immunitate Cyriscorum a Censurus, and to him that pretended to shew, That it is much if the tenth part of all the Works that are ascrib'd to Thomas Aquinas are truly his Father (b) JourBaron enters the Lists also with Mr de Launoi, who maintain'd, That many Passages of the Fathers set Learned of down in a Treatise of Thomas Aquinas against the the 7th of Greeks, are suppositious That Dominican was not Contented to make an Apology for his Order, he made also their Panegyrick (b)

made also their Panegyrick (b)

from (c) See the

(d) See the Journal of the Learn-8th March

(c) Tournal

(g) Jourthe 21ft of

m 92

He taught Divinity for several Years with applicate in the Convent of the Time City, and was Prior there, as he was lakewise at Avignon, and in the Gemeral Novitiate of the Suburb of St Gorman at the He was Definitor for his Prowince in the General Chapter held in the Year Where he presided at the Thefer dedicated to Pope Alexander VII. whereby the got the esteem of the whole Town, and of all the whole Order. He was in the Assembly where the Pope sent to tell the Designator, and the Fathers of the Chapter sham, that he was affected with grief to see Christian Morality in such a deployable relaxation whereunto some new "Casuilts had reduc'd it, and that he exhorted them to compose another that should "be agreeable to the Doctrine of St Thomas This ingag'd Father from to undertake the Works which he compos'd on that Subject. He was sain elected "Provincial, and afterwards the Father General fent him Commissary into Portugal "about considerable Affairs, wherein he was so successful, that the Queen, the Court, and all the Monks gave testimony of his Merit by a publick Affair returned to Paris to the General Noussate, and died there the ark of January 1674, being 70 "Years old Besides divers Latin Poems which he left as a pattern of his capacity " in Literature, he publish'd (C) the Books which I shall mention in a Remark You will find † a very honourable Passage concerning him in the || Historical Apology of the Censures of Louvis and Dougs The Congregation of the Index (D) was 248d pag logy of the Leniures of Publish'd not favourable to him

t in the m sha Year Divinity

BARONI (Leonera) An Italian Lady, one of the best Singers in the World, floursh'd in the XVIIth Century She was Daughter of the Fan Adriana of Mantia, Mr Gery, Hournin in the Ayann Century with the Market of and was so admir'd, that a great many fine Wits made Verses in her Praise. There is a Volume of excellent Latin, Greek, French, Italian and Sangh Pieces printed at Rome under the Title (AA) of Applausi poetics alle glorie della Sangh Leonora Baroni. Those that desire to know the particular Persections of her thinging, need only read what (A) has been said by a good Judge, who had heard her Sing. It is from him that I have taken this short Account of that Lady

BARONIUS (Dominick) a Florentine Priest and Preacher in the XVIth Century, writ vigourously against the Church of Rome, and concurr'd with the Vandois in Predment to maintain Orthodoxy; but at last he was lookt upon as a falle Brother, because he maintain'd that in time of Persecution (Z) it was not necessary to pro-

(C) Publish'd the Books which I shall mention, &c] What I am going to Transcribe, is contain d Word for Word in the Memorial from which I have taken the Addition of this Article Theologia Moralis, Paris 1665 two Volumes in 8° Primus comma eyaf-Paru 1665 two Volumes in 8° dom correctius, editio secunda 1667 in 8° Libri Apolo-getici contra Theophilum Rainaudum Paris 1666 two Volumes in 8' Mens Sancti Augustini & Thoma de Volumes in 8' Mens fansis Augustini & Thoma de Gratia & libertate, 1666 in 8° Ethica Christiana, Paris 1666 two Volumes in 8° Ethica Christiana, Paris 1666 two Volumes in 8° Response ad librum Cardena, in the same Place, in 8° Horefy Convinc'd, Paris 1668 in 12° Panegyricks on the Saints, in the same Place, 1660 in 4' The Book intitul'd Ethices Christiana september leci, compos'd against a certain Matthew Meya, who had taken the Name of Amadaus, was Censur'd at Rome by the Intrigues of Cardinal Nitard, who was offended at it, and Capisucchi the Master of the Sacred Palace, who had approv'd of it, was depos'd, and Father Hya-

had applov'd of it, was depos'd, and Father Hyacinibus Libelli, since Archbishop of Augnon, was put in his room Capifucchi was atterwards re-instated and since made a Cardinal. See the Margin (a)

Two or three Months after I had receiv'd this Memorial, the following Account was sent to me "Apologia pro sacra congregatione Indicis episque "Secretario & Dominicanis, contra Petri à Valle "clausa libellum sanosum inscriptum de immunicate Authorum Cariaconum à Centura. Rome viv pis M DC LXII in 4° Advertat lector pis MDC LXII in 4° Advertat lector præter innumera errata ex prælo passim sensium-& stylum auctorum mutantia, addita nonnulla necessaria sermone simplici, & multa adjesta convitia has autem labes tollet fecunda editio That 2d Edition was made at Paris by Simon Pigar in the Year 1666 in two Volumes, divided into 5 Books The first made at Rome at the austrance of Cardinal Capifucchi, then Master of the Sacred Palace, who approv'd it, occasion'd the deposing of "the same Capifocchi from his Office by Alexand"er VII a great Freind to the Jesuss It was also "put in the Index the 28th February, 1664"

(D) The Congregation of the Index mas not favour able to him] Here is an Extract of their Decree of the 27th September 1672 Dua primi temi operum Pr Vincentii Baronii, inscripti Thomsogia moralis summa bipartita prohibentur tertius were prafati autteris supedroch

Respons ad dem auttoris, scilicet quartus & mutem duo tomi ejusRespons ad dem auttoris, scilicet quartus & mustum, quinque libros apologeticos continentes pariter probibentur. (b). See the end of the fore-going Remark

(AD) Under the Title of Applausi poetici] Nici-us Erythraus spoke of that Work, when he faid, (c) Legi ego, in Theatro Eleonora Barena, cantricis eximia, in quo mines bic Roma, quotquot ingenio & poeti- Erythr mia, in quo omnes les Roma, quotquot ingenes & poeti- Erythr ca facultatis laude praftune, carminibus, tum Escufce Pinacoth tum Lutina striptis, singulare ac prope devino mulieris 2 p. 129. ilius cauendi artistico sanquam faustos quosdam elamores (d) Tuhan & piausus edunt, dago, inquam, unum Lalis (Cuidictrom of a discoms) epigrammatida purum, ita elegans, &cc (d) What haddling the purum, ita elegans, &cc (d) What haddling purum, ita elegans, &cc (d) which shall sine with the series of function bad Musick, she understands it persectly, muth the sand composes also, which makes her absolutely the form bad Musick, she understands it persectly, and composes also, which makes her absolutely the form of what she sings, and pronounce and Malherhe express the tense of Words persectly well. She sand sand same other Treasures greable, nor a Coquette. She Sings with a sister at sister at does not pretend to Beauty, neither is the dila-other Treagreable, nor a Coquette She Sings with a tifer as bold and generous Modesty, and with a sweet Paris, Gravity Her Voice is of a high extent, even 1672 de sonorous and harmonious, she softens and raises the end of it without any difficulty, and without making which she any gramaces Her Raptures and Sighs are following nor lascivious, her Looks have nothing of words are lewdness, and her Gestures become a Modest to be read Maid. When she passes from one Tune to another, she makes one percesses sometimes the Discourse. Maid. When she passes from one Tune to another, she makes one perceive sometimes the Divisions of the inharmonick and Chronicack kind, with so much Dexterity, and so thermand with so much Dexterity, and so thermand of the mach be supposed by its standard of Singing She has no gars, Prened of begging the assistance of a Theorie standard or of St Viol, without one of which her Singing the last she imperfect, for she touches these two limits ments perfectly well herself in short, I have king's inhad the good fortune to hear her Sing several times above 30 different Airs I must rell you, that one day she did me a particular Favour, which was, to Sing with her Mother and hersister. Her Mother touch'd the Lyre, her Sister the Harp, and have the constant common of the same standard of the same should be supposed as the same should be supposed to the same should be supposed by the same should be same should be same should be supposed by the same should be Mother touch'd the Lyre, her Sister the Harp, and herself the Theorbo. That Confort compos'd of three sine Voices, and of three different Instruments, surpura'd my Senses in such a manner, the Violand ecasion'd such a Rapture in me, that I forgot that the my mortal Condition, and thought my set at the line of my mortal Condition, and thought myself al-ready among the Angels, enjoying the Felicity Spain and of the Blessed (d)

(2) That in time of Perfecusion is man not necessary vereigns to profess the Truck outwardly. Me did not there of Europe tore desease the Name of intense that of Nicodemire wish did Let us be in what manner that Historian speaks of hear h hım

(c) Nac

the Viel,

Baron the " Fxercitatio, which Mr Launot refutes with fo much butturness in ce hisLetters " (the 14th " of the 5th " part) Se the " Remark P of the Arnoi (John de) at the beginning (b) See Father Paerroruch

fess the Truth outwardly Celsus Martinengue Minister of the Italian Church of Geneve writ against him on that Subject, and Replies were made on both sides. Those from the kickly after Books are become very scarce, I know not for what reason Our Baronius composed can it story a Mass according to his Fancy, which he thought proper to pacifie the Differences of the Vauof the two Religions, he found himself frustrated in his attempt, for the Protestants dois comrejected his managements

BARTAS (William de Saluste Lord du) A French Poet Look for SALUSTE

BARTHIUS (Gaspar) One of the most I earned Men of his Age, was born

t at Custrin in the Country of Brandenburg the 22d of June 1587 His I amily was of of sequence of the Civil Liw at the Charles Barth Professor of the Civil Liw at the Franchort on the Oder, the Elector of Brandenburg's Councellor, and his Chancellor Geneva, 1644 at Custrin, died the 6th of February 1597 at Halberstad, from whence his Widow withdrew to Hall with her Children, Gaspar was sent to Gotha, afterwards to Eisenach, and after that to several Universities of Germany, and Italy 4 He became so learn'd in a little time, that his Youth was admir'd (B) by great Men, and that he (C) composid feveral Freber

(a) Peter Gales History of the Churches of the Van-dois, chap 10 p 62

(6) Id 1b

him (a), Dominick Baronius, says he, was a Florentine, a Popish Priest, and a Preacher of Repute, and who in less dangerous Times, had show d some Zees for the true Religion, almost wholly approving of the same, and condemning almost all the Papal Superstitious Constitutions. ons, retaining only some particulars of it, of which he spoke so ambiguously, that it could hardly be known what he thought of them, as appears by several Italian and Latin Treatises which he composed, and specially by that of Human Constitutions, wherein he shews what may be admitted, and what is to be rejected. In which Book, among divers great Errors which he condemns in the Popish Church, he fays of the Maj. I don't fet down the Passage which Peter Giles alledges, but here is what follows that Opposite the Control of the Maj. follows that Quotation (b) He writ in the same Style concerning the other Popish Superstitions But for p 64 See also, pag 246 all this, he endeavour'd to perjuade, that in very dan-gerous Times and Placis, People might discernble out-wardly what they thought of such Friors, and even co to Mass, prov ded they constantly retain'd the Truth inwardly, muthout approving any of those Errors in their Heart
He said, That in such Times and Places the Minister of Truth, ought to make it his Business to shew his Disciples the Tares, and to teach 'em how to discern them from the good Grain, and to make them hate the Tares, and love the Wheat with all their Heart But as to the outward Profession that he ought to let the Lord work his Plea-fure, without exposing himself and others to great dan-The Sieur Celfus de Martinengue gers The Steur Celfus de Martinengue Confuted by a notable and long Treatise, all the Reasons that Baronius alledg'd for the support of his Opinion, and Replies were made on both sides for some time. And Baronius thinking himself sufficiently able to reconcile the two Opinions, reform a the Mass, to the end, that, as Said, People might go to it with a good Conscience, and fung it himself according to his own Reformation, and did the same in several other Points, thinking by that means to please every Body by his triming. But his Way was condemn'd by a great number of the true Faith-ful, not only by Words and Writings, but also by Attions, choosing rather to lose their earthly Goods and this tem not al Life, than to shew any outward consent to the Popish

Idolatry, and to erroneous Superstitions

(A) His Family was of an ancient Nobility] There are but few Gentlemen of a distinguish'd Quality, and few great Lords that pretend to a more ancient Original than Barthius One of his Ancestors signalized himself in the War against the Vandals in the Retinue of the Emperor Lewis the Debenair in the Year $56 He was a Bavarian, he commanded the Cavalry, and was kill'd in that War, as (c) Cyriacis Spangenbergius observes The Grandfather of Baribius was one of the chief Gentlemen of Bavaria he went and settl'd himself in the Circle of the Upper-Savon), where he bought feveral Seats, and in the Year 1545, he was honour'd by the Emperour and the States of the Empire, with many noble Titles Avusidem nosterne in histerrisminor effet gentilibus suis alibi viventibus a Carolo quinto Confilio &, Senatus-consulto omnium Imperii fiatuum tum Spira prasentium, ex integro Casarea Majestatis & sacri Imperii auttoritate utriusque nobilis & miles Tornearius declaratus est, omniaque libera & vera les Tornearius declaratus est, omniaque libera & vera nobiliatus privilegia accepit, cum singulari integritatus, destrina, & strenuitatis testimonio anno Christiano M D XLV (d) He exercis'd the Chancellor's Office at the Court of Albert of Brandenburgh, Elector of Mentz, Archbishop of Magdeburg, and Cardinal One of his Ancestors, (e) whose Name was Herman, was great Master of the Teutonick Order towards the end of the XIIth Century The Old Annals make mention of him, Munster speaks of him in his Cosmography, and the Catalogues of the Great Masters of that Order, even those that were made by ferom Megiferus, do not forget him O-manus, lations of Turnaments, and in the Collections of the Chief Families of Germany The I ather of Gafar Barthius had (f) several Brothers, who all dy d without (g) Children One of them had been Master of the Horse of some great Princes, and did not want Learning (b) Barthus lays, that he shall be the last of his Family Superfits nunce of omnibus paterni mei nominis familiam meam i niversam mecum rebus humanis brevi educam (1) You see him in the front of several of his Works, with the sitle of S R Imperis Eques The thoughts that his I amily should due with him was a great Affliction to him, and came very near his Heart. He often cast his Lycs on that mournful Object, which makes me believe, that he was not very much if flicted for the Death of his Wife. She was buren, and he reckon'd that his Manly Strength would lift and he reckon'd that his Manly Strength would lift no longer than his Wife, for otherwise he would not have spoken as we see he did. But when he least suspected it, his Wife dy d. He soon took another, to see whether he could avoid the forwhelm for the last of his Family. He look'd upon himself no longer as an useles Weight on the Larth, he might well enough say that, whilst he was in no hopes of Proceeding He had the Hippines of setting Sons and Daughters by a second Mairinge, but he forgot to correct the places of his Comparernal mentary where he appears without hopes of leaving a Successor. If he would not correct his Manuscript, he ought at least to have added some. nulcript, he ought at least to have added something at the end of it concerning his second Mairiage that was more fruitful thun the first If I riage that was more fruitful thin the first If I Some This should be ask'd, How I came to know that his first is not ex-Wife was not dead, when he complain'd, that he was the last that remain'd of his Name? I would answer, That I have made a small Calculation Barthius s Funeral Oration informs me that he became Widower in the Year 1643, and that his Mother dy d at Hall the 22d of |anuary 1622 Now she had been dead but 18 Years when he made his (k) Complaints, his first Wife must therefore have been alive at that time

(B) Hu Youth was admir d by great Men] Scaliger fet a great Value upon the first Productions of Barthius "(1) Cujus virtutem juvenilem ac coidatos ausus Josephus Scaliger suspense adco, ut divided the vinationis instar hanc illi de Barthio vocem excidisse compertum sit, natum effe adhuc unum ater-"nitati ingenium, quod si ad maturitatem perveniret,
"literas aliquandiu vivere posse" Daumius (m) says that some Learned Men were not asham'd to learn of that Scholar Eo adolescente uti doctore non erubui-runt Taubmanus, Siberus, Schmidius Que Gruteri aliorumque apud exteros virorum de co tum lata fucrint judicia, domi eorum literæ asservatæ pirtim, partim lettæ docent Another learned (n) Person, who had been Barthius's School-fellow, speaks thus of him Novi ante annos fere quinqua- octodeginta pueri prafisbiles minas, cum sub Wilkii p m manu essemus συχολασαι novi ante hos XLIII annos Witt- Id ibid
berga adolescentem storintem gratia apud nonnullos, Sau- pag 8-6 μαζομίνον ανω κατω ab aqualibus lius in templo honoris reservato, p 381 (m) Diumius cpist 14 ad Reinesium (n) Reinesius epist 15 ad Diumius, p 46 That Letter is dated the 14th of January 1651 I t t 2 (6) Com-

Pos a ly Giles, ch icveral Freherum.

> THUS's caufleis feu of dying withour Pofferity ubi Supra, Uncl ,and that h s Gi andfather lef 6 aEF

> (g) Illiberis omnes excefferunt 16 frag 1027

(b) Ibid pag 1025

(1) Ibid

(k) Igo terra ommbus mei bus fuperstes supervivo integro nalibus Saxonicis pag 138

(c)In An-

(d) Barthius in Statium, t 2 p 1026 (e) Id 1b † Spizeli

(1 Lycial Books before he had a Beard He had a wonderful facility of making (D) Verles, and indeed he publish'd a great (E) new He learnt the living Languages, and made it appear by his Franflations out of the first of the fiving Languages, and made it appear by his Franflations out of the first of the firs the spiral in the middle Times. This constant application to books obliged him to leave all manus, in the intermediate in the litter of Imploy, and it to live a restrict lite at Leipfick. He refolv'd early to leave off worldly things, (G) and the Study of Profame Authors, in order to apply the first together to the great concern of Salvation. He put this defign in execution in the litter Yells of his Life, and it appears by his Soliloquia publish'd in 1944, that where the salvation of the strength of September 1948, being above at Very of Age. The Manuscript (I) Books wheel he is the salvation of the salvation Dinium, tember 1658, being above 71 Years of Age The Manuscript (1) Books which he left ) Bullet I mour Children,

P.F - 47, 298

() Ibid

(1) It is

´ he the soth

Book of () Buth

in Stati-

um to 1

(1) Nam fuit hoc

Vitiofus

in bora

Type ducentos

Lt mig-

num, ve pede in ino Ho-

sn 4 / 1

(d) Spize-

lius in templo

honous,

, 382

() Id ib 1-350

1 31

his Adres-

(C) Compos d several Books before he had a Beard]Mr Baillet, who has plac'd him in the Catalogue of the Baillet, who has plac'd him in the Catalogue of the Famous Children, will tell us more of him than any Body elle. He is forms us (*) That at Twelve Years of Arc Buthius put the Pfalter of David into all forts of 1 itin terfes, and that in the same Year he published oils Poems in the same Tongue, and that the Collection of Silva, Sityrs, Elogies, Odes, Fpigrams and Innibick Lesles, which he caused to be printed at Witnessey and the Tongues all the Peems temberg in the Year 1607 comprehends all the Poems which he made from the 13th to the 19th Year of his Age We have it from himself, continues Mr Baillet, '(a) I hat being yet but in the 16th Year of his Age
'he made a (1) Frentile or a Differtation by way of Letter, about the manner of Reading Latin Authors ulefully, beginning from Finius to the end of the Roman Lmpire, and continuing from found in " the decay of the Latin Language, to the Criticks of their latter Times, who restor d the ancient Authors It is a Performance which the Author fiys, cost him but 24 Hours, but it is so close and so full, that it makes us judge, that Barthius ought even at that time to have had a prodigious Reading, and that his Reading was to far from be-"ing undigefied of confus d, that it was attended with a good Judgment, & To this may be added, that he was but 18 Years of Age when he made a Commentary on the Cents of Virgil, which was printed at Amberg in the Year 1608 and which contains much I earning

(D) A wonderful facility of making Verses] Bartius (b) having observed that Statius rejoye'd in some manner for having been but two Days about the Epithalamium of Stella, which contains 278 Heximeters, adds that Statius did not expose himself to the Censure of Horace (c), Seeing he did not make 200 Verses in an Hour, as that Poet did whom Horace laugh'd at I find a great Hyperbole, says he, in that Criticism, tho I am not ignorant what it is to make a great many Verses in a little time, for in three Days I mide a Latin Franklition of the three first Books of the Iliad which

I inflation cont and domething above 2000 Verses

(E) He pullish d a great man, J Tor besides those that an emention d in the 3d Remark, he publish d a Poem at Panessor in the Year 1623 initial'd Zotus diet :bit, ftins diacus v tæ (bristianæ, Satyricon, plivaque omnia veis divided into 12 Books In the same Year, and in the same Place, he publish'd Epidorpidum ex mero scavente libri 111 in quibus bona pars humana sapient a metro explicatur. His Lpigiams (d) divided into 3 > Books, and Dedicated to King James, appear d under the Name of Tarraus Hebius The 4 Bocks Amabilium Anacreonte decantati, weie printed in the Year 1612. He made a Paraphrale on Elop's lables in Verse, a Translation of Museus also in Verse, and a Poem of Leander (e) I do not believe that his Translation of Quintus Smyrnaus in Verte was publish'd He speaks of it in the 514th,

Page of the 3d Volume of his Statius

(1) Translations our of Spanish and I iench] I do not know that he Franslated my thing out of the little Language, besides the Memoirs of Philip de Can s, which he put into Latin II had much more Inclination for the Castilian Tongue, which he made appear in divers places, and (f) Don Nicoland and programs are not supported the Platfer which he In monto was not ignorant of the Praises which he Lefter d on the spanish Books I know but two spanish Books I know but to the cliff not the Author whereof was unknown to him, the other is the Continuation of the Diana of Montemajor Here is the Title which he gave to the Translation of the Celefina Pornoboscodidascalus Latinus De lenonum, lenarum, conciliatricum, servi-tiorum dolis, veneficiis, machinis plusquam diabolicis, tiorum dolis, veneficiis, machinis plujquam diabolicis, de miseriis juvenum incautoi um qui florem etatis amoribus inconcessis addicunt, de miserabili singulorum pericula & omnium interitu, at Francksort 1624. He added some Notes to his Translation. The Spanish Author of that Work, or of that Transl-Comedy, was Rodericus Cota. The Continuation of the Diana of Montemajor Translation by Bartham, is the Work of Gaspar Gil-polo. Bartham's Franslation was printed at Hanam in 1625, under the Title of Erotodidas salue. at Hanaw in 1625, under the Title of Erotodidascalus, seu Nemoralium libri V Mr Baillet says, (g), That he also Translated the pornodidascale of Arctin into Latin Without doubt, it is the same Book that Dau-mius speaks of in these Ferms, (h) Reliqua que las Damas ex Hispanico ab ipso transsato, & a nobis recusso nuper, adjecto cognoscere poteris. You may conclude from thence, that that Latin Translation of the Preface Aretin, was not made from the Original, but from Barthia Spanish Translation (6) Toleave off worldly Things] Having faid that (1) his Mother had a tole-light of her Death three Years before the dy d, and that he furviv'd that good Mother 18 Years in good health of Body, except a weakness in his Sight, he adds, Cupio autem captis scribendi laboribus dimum aliquando defunci. & totum me (bristo dedicare, quam rem sepius jam orsam hattenus infinita billorum & bellicorum tumultuum ex-attionumque impedimensa hattenus suspenderunt To To know it what time he ipoke thus, one needs only remember that his Mother dy d in the Year 1622

Sec the end of the Remark A

(H) That his I houghts were altogether bent upon Eternity | Here is the Testimony which Theophilus Spizelius has given of him (k) Sacrum nimirum ad Deum sinceramque pietatem Barthius meditabatur accessum, plurimis pie literatorum ac Deosacratorum kominum exemplis incitatus. Quo de imprimis testatur insigne SOLILOQUIORUM OPUS, extremis vita temporibus a Barthio publicatum, flagrantissimis ad Deum Suferiis oppido plenum, & vel Augustino Scriptore dignum, quod ctiam hemiplecticus quotidie revolvere, & dignum, quod etiam nemipiecticus quoi une reconocere, o per priorum meditationum vestigia denuò cogitationes suas cælo immittere consucvit, quinimo divinum amorem, quem intimis sibris simel imbibisset, continuis precum ejaculationibus alendum jugiter atque roborandum autovit, quousque e sacra pariter ac literaria solitudia versorio, anno avi nostri ottavo O quinquagesimo, tis vero septuagesimo primo emigravit

(1) The Manuscript Books which he left behind Dammius has inform d the Publick (1), that the and 3d, Volumes of that Author's Adversaria among his Papers, and also the following Books, viz Notes and Glossaries on the Writers of Palestine publish'd by James Bongars Benedictus Paulinus Petrocorius de vita S Martini & Paulinus Pellaus cum Tertulliani Jona, Juretique & Barthii animadversonibus XXI Books of Epigrams XII Books of Anacreonticks The Zodiack of the Christian Life, corrected and inlarg'd in leveral places many other Poems, most of which have not been printed, and others have been corrected Glossaries on Va-lius Maximus, and on the Epistles of Pliny the Younger Daumius declares, that if the Cruelty of the Times, alrogether contrary to Literature, will permit it, and if by the Liberality of some Mecenas some Benefit may accrue by it to his Heirs, all thole Works may one Day come out of the Press (m) Si diritae permittat temporum politiorious hen Musis

(g) Judg. ment of the Learned t I p 542 us's Commentary on Statius dated the 15th of March,

(1) Barth in Commentar ın Statıum t 2 pag 826

(k)SpizeI ubi lupra pag 384,

Daumius ubi

Billiotheque // / ,

(m) 1 pror us behind him, those that were (K) printed, those which he lost in (L) the burning of 4 Hullehis House, and those that he writ, and which are not (M) to be found, I say ill those Writings make such a prodigious bulk, that it is hard to conceive how ore Man could be sufficient for so many things. There is a Story in Print which it had been # Qui ma better to suppress, concerning a Journey (N) which, as its stid, he made into Holland with a fair I adv Some Learned Men have complained (O) of the printing of that Story, and call it a Fable Barthius had two Waves 1 He married the first in the Year 1630, and the second in the Year 1644. The first died in the Year 1643, without having had any Children by him The second had a Son and three D aughters, and survived have the honor of the four transfer had a son and three D aughters, and survived have the honor of the four transfer had a son and three D aughters. him * He happen'd to be four times 4 in befieg'd I owns, and came off unhuit, having lost but once his Cloathes and his Aims He complian'd of hiving been abus'd (P) by Vossius? He took (2) Scaliger's part against Scioppius, and he was no Friend to the I carned Remejus The latter had surprised him in too many I sults (R) not to make him angry with him. It was impossible that a Man that writ so many things, and quentur demceps, uti qui-dem Typographorum coming erit Bart! Præfat in Rutilii stinerar It is dated the 14th of October 1622 (b) Lxpectant cditionem fi 1ollertem typograpaum na: mus Id (c) Biblioth Univerielle, t 5 p 240 111 the extratt of the Itinerary of Rutili-(d) It is certain that the

(e) He

in that

Preface

(f) De quo Ad-

rum tomo 1ecundo

cenfito in

115 & a-motis nebulis quis illi indu-ceme vor volume Barriers

anStatium,

P 110 see also the

Preface of

Diumius

(g) Id 1b

434 aut teitio, uter-

does in no

Booksellers will not chop at that Bart is they did formerly, when Barthius declar d in a Preface, that he had a very great number of Books, that waited only for the courtefy (a) of the Bookfellers to appear in Publick, and that they would come on this ioon as a good (a) Bookfeller hould prefent himfelt. This produc'd a very faced, effect as to ione of his Works, and a flower one as to ione others, but nevertheleis most of those Books were printed, when that Preface was mention'd in the Bibliotheque Univerfelle Let us see in what I erms it was done, the passage deserves to be set down, it contains a Criticism tomewhat Satyrical, but which is grounded on keason "(c) There is a Preface before it "wherein the Titles of tome Books are to be icen, wherein the littles of some Books are to be icen, which the Author promis d to give the Publick, but whereof a small (d) put only have been sented, because he found no Booksellers, as he himself observes, that were so zealous is he for the advancement of Literature But if all his Works were like this, it may be affur d, that we have only lost a great many Quotations of no great use. Not but that there might be iome good things in them as well as in this But "they are as it were hid under to great a number of Passages of the Ancients, that there needs much patience to find them out (A) Those that were printed Twill only take notice of the chief of them here. A great Volume in Take partial delegations divided into 60 Rools. Tolio intitul d Adversaria, divided into 60 Books Quibus en universa antiquitatis serie omnis generis loci best part of tam Gentilium quam Christianorum scriptorum illustranem is printur & emendantur, cum rituum morum, legum, formularunque observatione & elucidatione, cum undecim indicibus, VII auttorum, IV resum At Francksor: 16-4
That Author's Meinory, Rending, and I earning, appear there in a wonderful manner, it were to manner obferve this wish'd, that he had been clearer, and had made n better choice He left two Volumes of Anver/2-prossus insconforum, fruttusque si aliquis Macenatum benignitate ad relicto vi ponueliu haredes sit redundaturus. I have not heard that any of those Manuscripts have been taken out of his Heirs Closets, except the Paulinus Petrocorius de vita S Martini, which Daum - us took care to have printed in the Year 1681 I he ris of the fame fize, not to tay, that he had Revis d and Corrected the (f) first The whole Work would have confisted of 180 Books Let us proceed to some other Titles Galli confessoris Chrifigure destrine compendium, seu sermo Constantie ha she blought a very fine I ady along with him, blood Barthius recensuit & animadicassonium li she figure that scriverius had notooner seen her, but he (n) Ib

she figure that Francsoni 1623 in 8 Phabadi is tound the means to get Barthius drunk, that he tom arianos cum animadiversionibus Guil Britonis anght entertun that Lady with more liberty, pa 9 shilippidos cum notis Claudiani Ecdicii Mimerti that hich succeeded according to his desire Nejam perjam peractus est, 1655 in 8 Anea Gazai Dialogus de inni orprimo esalate animorum cum Zacharia Mitzlenao Philosopho Tarino I einstek 1655 in 4 Christiano, Grace & Latine, l'espick 1655 in 4 Barthius publish d'a new I ranslation of Encas Gazeus, and made use of that of John Tairnus as to Zachary, both which Works he adoin'd with Notes Solitoquia resum Divinarum Cygnex 1654 in 4 A large Volume of Notes on Claudian, printed in the Year 1650 in 4 And three large Volumes upon Statius, printed in 1664 in 4 He wis not well pleas'd with that Edition of Claudian, (g) because the Printer had not made use of a good (oirector 'Tis pity that there is no Table of Matters, nor in Teneral any Lodey in the His Commentaries on States general any Index in it His Commentaries on Statius are very free from that I ault

(L) Those which he lost in the burning of his House I It was a Country-house, which was burnt by the carelesnels of the Farmer, or some such Person that lodg'd

there Cum v lla nostra urlana non bello, non l'itronum manu, sed perfide incola temerit ste confagi so (h) It is without doubt, that which Dium us calls In-It is without doubt, that which Dium us cells Indicational um S 'les I usanum, which happen'd in the Year ne Barth 1636. He says, Etiam nonnulla stammis, (i) incendio in Stitiselles husano anno M DC XX VI absumta perior. In um tom 2 that Missortune, Barthius loss his (k) Index Appu-p 1041 les mus, all that he had done on (l) It tullian, his Index on Thursdias & In quo scriptore (Thucydide) (h) It is per bellicos hostriennales motive & explores singens damton 3 num accep mus, indicem enim tam in authoring quam p 198 Scholass have usented to the says and sender the last Scholass n (qui iccention tamen est quam vulvo a tendi- He / sd tur) confecer imus, is cum parte B bliotheci periit (m) said n t/ r Famma ineen sermium minu mea scriptic 9th pageos tur) confecer imus, is cum parse a month of the first that the formula men for first that the charter effection, some a student of separation of the thys, that he I be my had been already twice plunder d, when the I me mone that new Range in it Adost below he non possume note money duabus nastation. mbus de opulata, & uno incendio ver dimidiatim erepta (v)

(M) Are not to be fond I Daum us five, that istent the Author's Death they look of my un for his Commentary on St Aucustin De civitate Det, his Book De superstite online at time, and second only bis surprise was, his Characters, and several other Writings of that Nature Barthus quotes very often the Books which I have just now mention d, and gives an advantageous Idea of them. It is vety likely, confidering the Quality of the Matters, that they were none of the worst of his Works He had begun a great many others, to which he re-terred his Readers, a if they had been dready printed See the 1 idex Autorum of his Statius at the Word Barthun

(N) Concerning a Journey which as't s | aid he made into Holland | Mi Colonics (p) mentions it on the Ciedit of Unac Lossius He wis very much to blame to print fuch like things for which he had no other Authority than a Convertation. Who is ignorms that those who presend to entertain a Compiny pleifintly, we furnished with a great many little Stories, to which they add such Circumstances as they please, to make them more singular and pleding. They would not give themselves that liberty, if they knew that what they say would be printed. However it be, the Story runs thus. Mr. I office told me one Day that Barthius being come from Gommy to Harlon to fee Sorverus he brought every fine Lady along with him, and that Sciences had no tooner teen her, but he (n) Ibid vertheless, he could not do it so well, but that (0) Il id Enthius being recover d from his Drink, had tome sufficient of what had past, which increased in such a manner, that he carry'd the Lady Lack again, and suffer d her to be drown'd in the Rinne" It must not be deny'd that Barting had a bid Reputition as to his Morals. One of his(q) best I nends confesses it, but he maint uns that this is ill-grounded De moribus que nvidi nugati sunt quorunque causa ego ignotum mo malo abborebam, rem aliter quindicennali hac cum eo conversatione comperi Adeo quicquid de co diverun scripscruntque ego hactenus prossus credere alu i , cujus intima nescio an aque alii patuerint

(O) Some Learn d Men have complained of the print-(6) Some Learn a Min have complimed of the printing of that flory, and cill it a Fable.] See here what Monhofus (1) laid of it, Quibus (Colomein opufculis) adjiction libellus Gallico fermone cui titulus Collection of Particulars, in quibus multa de eruditis sam litriter

munnus obicilamque ui-bem aliquando fucrit Id quod nobis aurtei contigit, nuipiam læsis, nisi fpoliatione una umorum discptio-

Humma non ib ic l domeffico feelere mer tum minfioni

() / lum prefit in

(1) Buth in Statium t i 190 paffini a'i-

(/) Ibid de page 1,,5 th ,d I uhe fays, Nota noftix in integrum tullianum

(m) Ibid tom 2 pag 306

pac 37-

(p) Opuicul page 102 edit Ultraject 1669

(q) Daumius ead Reinc frum (i) Moi-hot Polyhift p 71 with so much Precipitation, could escape the Victorious Censure of Reinesius been pretended that it was not always for want of (S) memory that Barthus contradicted himself It would be no wonder that his Memory, how strong soever it might be, should often play him very bad Tricks, considering his way of (T) composing his Books He made no Collections, and scarce ever Corrected what he had written.

BASINA, Wife of Childerick King of France, and Mother of the Great Clovis, had been Married with a King of Thuringia Childerick being forc'd to leave his Dominions, because his I ewdness had so exasperated the People that he had reason to fe ir every thing from them, sled * to the King of Thuringia He was received by him with all manner of Kindness, without doubt Basina, who was a very beautiful Princeis, entertain'd him admirably well It has been always found by Experience, that those Lascivious Princes that are expell'd from their Country, do not renounce their Gallintries in the place of their Retreat Childerick was an Example of it He fell in Love with Basina, and finding her pliable, he made no scruple to pursue the matter 10 far as to enjoy the (A) Wife of that same Friend and good Neighbour, that supply'd him with a place of Refuge He contracted such a Commerce of Love with her, that she could not be without him The French recall'd Childerick † eight Years after they had driven him away Basina was no ways pleas'd with that Prince's Absence She left her Husband, and went to Childerick, and when he ask'd her the cause of her coming, she answer'd him ingenuously, (B) that she came out of Love for him, and that if she had known any Prince beyond the Seas that had been more proper for her, she would have

† Gregor Turon

(a) Barth

in Stati-

um. tom 2 1 875

colaus

Loensis in the 18th Chap of his Mil-cellanea

(1) Refo-

luto anagrammate Gasparis Barthu Berolinoer con-

* About

the Year

460

miliariter a Vossio alissque suppeditata, laudato semper autore, vir ille effutivit, que infiguis sane temeritas fuit Multa tamen in his sunt mendacia, quale illud de Casparo Barthio horrendum, qui concubinam suam Rheno Suffocaverit, quod ejus cum Scriverio amores de-

(P) Of having been abus'd by Vossius] Few Perfons could make the like complaint, for never was fuch a Learned Man as Vossius more civil, or moderate to those that he reprov'd Nevertheless let us fee (a) Barthius 3 complaint at length Quo loco (b) vir dostiff pulcre etiam de Lutatio judicat dossum esse lestuque dignum Exegeten, præter quidem glossema-ta Sane longe melius & compertius, quam nuper Joannes Gerhaidus Vossius, qui Lutatium ex Servio & (b) That is Higinio compositum dicere ausus est maximam partem to say, Ni- Qui doctissimus homo cum also nos loco perperam (ut clara res est, & demonstratum sam nobes alibe) ineptearum & absurditates, nunquam à nobes lasus, & ab invides planique egregie ineptis Thrasunculis incitatus, insimulare ausus sit, merito utriusque nota hic habebitur, cum ea Commentariis Lutatianis infint, quorum nec centesimam partem Serviana & Higiniana Commentation s vindicare possint Idem præstantissimus vir incogitate codem

loco scribit Lutatium a Lindebrogio primum editum

(2) Took Sciliger spart hoily] Three Books are ascribed to him against that great Man's Enemy, and his Name was found out by way of Anagram and his Name was found out by way of Anagram in that of Tarraus Hebeius Nobilis a Sperga (c) The first of those three Books, is intitul d Cave canem, de vita, moribus, rebus gestis, d vinitate Gasparis Scioppii Apostae Satyricon, Hanov 1612 in 12. The 2d Scioppius excellens, in laudem cjus & sociorum pro Josepho Scaligero & omnibus probis epigrammatum libri III ex triginta totis hinc inde collecti It is printed with the first The 3d, Amphitheatrum Sapientae, Hanov 1613 in 8 See Rhodius in the place which I have quoted, and Placeius in the 262d Page of his Pseudonymous Writers

(R) Surprized him in too many Faults not to be angry with him] They were such I aults that an In-gry with him] They were fuch I aults that an Ingenious Man could not have defended, they were undenable Faults, and that is it that vexes one most A Cl Barthio quem tu tantum non in calum effers, & quem sua defensurum esse scribis, nihil indigni iniquine expecto, tam licet issi in meis, si quando lucem adspicient publicam, (lenta autem res fortasse incumbent in spongiam, ut olim illius Ajax) quam in ipsius mihi licere v sum est experiri, non existimo autem Soli oblocuturum esse Suni enim pleraque, que nunc quidem produxi, adeo certa liquidaque, ut nist temere litigare velit, ne calamum quidem contradicturue mihi tingere debeat Perpende, quaso, mi carissine NESTERE, ano mabut, ubicunque ab co dissentio marine vero examina, qua cap 8 1 2 quo ejus in Plinim Valerianum, distum Empericum, illata emendationes producuntur, trado & miraberis hominis doctif-siminian fest simas inscitias, frustrationes, & puerilia Mala, andaces et iam conjecturas in autores tellestum investas deprehendes magno numero Istas siquis prafraste tueri prasumserit, eum ne sani quidem capitu asse d xero, Barthium autem mecum fore & visurum, me quamvis indignoindice, id quod verum est nullus du-tito. These are the Words of Resuessus in a Letter which (d) he writ to Nesterus the 31st of March (d) It is 1638 See also his 15th Letter to Daumius the 6th (S) For want of Memory that Barthius contradicted himself] "Some have observed (e), that when he himself] "Some have observed (e), that when he gives his Judgment, he falls sometimes into Con-"tradictions for want of Memory" Daumius pre-p 464 "tradictions for want of Memory" Daumius pre-tends, that those who took notice of that fort of Contradictions, knew nothing of what Barthins aim'd at He lays, that Barthius writ all that came into his mind, this day one thing, and to morrow another, to the end that when he should look over it again sometime or other, those Contradictions might engage him to examine matters more deep-ly, and afford him a more convenient occasion to correct, or confirm what he had publish'd Memini (f) in publicis alicubi Disoutationibus diversa sententia ejus loca exagitata fuisse. Sed auctores scopum scriptoris nescio an vel per transennam viderint. Novi enim, hoc conssio, eoque sine Barthium ea, qua in enim, noc constito, eoque sine Datchium ea, que in mentem sibi venerant, in chartam consecisse, etiam diversis diverso tempore sententiis, ut quandoque ad ea revertenti illa diversitas ampliorem de veritate cogitand: Suppeditaret materiam, occasionemque longe commodiorem retractandi vel stabiliendi quod scripserat Id quod tine capitis VI Libri Undecimi & alibi sapius See how Reinesius (g) has confuted that (g) Rein. testatur

(T) Considering his way of Composing his Books]
These are his own Words (h) Puto jam tale quid supra notass. Non enim potess, ut, nullis penitus rebus Supra notass. Non enim potest, ut, nullis penitus rebus passini, omnium strictam memoriam habeamus Om-(h) Barth nino enim aliter nos commentamur, quam solent homines in Statietiam litteratissimi, dum auctores legunt, excerpentes um, tom quedam aique ea deinde excerpta in Silvam Observationum, eam porro Silvam in Commentaris redigentes Nunquam tale quid factum a nobis est sed ut cuique auctori enarrando bene facere volumus, arrepto illi animadversiones hoc genus imputamus, solius memoria beneficio nivi, quam marginalibus nonnunquam prius Notis instrumus, dum cum Libris veteribus Editiones comm tis instruimus, dum cum Libris veteribus Editiones comparamus Catera omnia e calamo fluunt, elegante & mi-nuto literarum ductu Nec unquam scriptio repeteur nuto literarum ancia nec ullu lituris cruciatur Quarum nec decem aliquae lastanio la Commentaria agnoverint I know not battenus hi Commentaris agnoverins I know not whether it is well done to boast of such a thing, it seems to me, that the Publick deserves more refpect

(A) So far as to enjoy the Wife of that same Friend There would be ground enough to believe it, tho the Historians had not faid it Would Basina have run after Childerick, if she had not lov'd him, and tasted with him of the Fruits of Love? have the Testimony of Historians These words are to be found in the Author of the Archievements of the Kings of France, in the 7th Chapter Dum fuit in Toringia cum Basina Regina uxore Bisni Regis ipse Childericus commixtus est Aimoinus relates the same thing in the 8th Chapter of the 1st Book, Dicebatur idem princeps consuetudinem Scupri cum en habuisse, cum exularer Rorico is more expressive I will quote him in the following Remark

(B) She answer'd him ingenuously, that she came out of Love for him] According to Gregorius Turonensis, in the 12th Chap of the 2d Book of the History of the

(f)Daum epist 14 ap Reinefium p 37

epift 15 mium

firmatl xcellentiffimus Geifina de 77 6777 171 (177 exemplo-rum decadrng Rhodius de autt sup-10/st # 54

gone to him. Childerick was charm'd with this Discourse, married Basina, and had a Son by her that was a very brave Prince, and who embiaed the Christian Faith. If that If that Woman's Conduct was worse than that of (C) Helena, all things duly consider'd, that of

Woman's Conduct was worse than that of (C) Helena, all things duly consider'd, that of Chelderick is not better than that of Para Fither (D) le Cointe's excuses have nothing of solidity The Author of the Chantries of the Kings of France relates the Visions of Basina's new Husband (E) bette than Mr de Cordemoi

I HAVE read, since the Edition of this Work, what I ther Daniel has publish'd against those who say the Edition of this Work, what I there Daniel has publish'd against those who say the Edition of this Work, what I there Daniel has published against those who say the Edition of Thuringia came to him, & on the History of That Authors thought is, || That what Gregorius Turonensis has writ upon it is nothing please but an Abstract or an Abridgment of some Romance thas was current in his time, and that the Visions which it is 1 pretended that Childerick had on his Wedding Night, and that were added to therefore, of Gregorius Turonensis, look as well as the 1cst like a Romance I shall p 426

French, the Aufwer southfits in these Terms "I am " perfuaded of the usefulness of being with you, and "I know that you are a Valiant Man Wherefore I am come to dwell with you; for know, that if I had found any Body that had been more use-"if I had found any Body that had been more use." ful to me than your self in the Provinces beyond at the Seas, I would have gone to dwell with him?" The Abbot of Marelles, who translated the Text of (s) Gregorius Thremensis in this manner, makes a Remark to advertage us that this Dissource is equivocal in Basina's with Which is the unlikely I do not believe that Childerick any Military proofs of his Valour in Thuringia. So that the Valour which Basina spoke of might be of mother nature, and more useful to a Queen than a Martial Humour; and I am tempted to believe that tial Humour; and I am tempted to believe, that in Gregorius Turonensis, and in Rorico it ought to be read virilitatem & viriliorem, instead of utilitatem & utiliorem The Equivocation will remain still Basina answer'd, I know your Virility, and that you are a very brave Man Those words are more coherent than these, I am persuaded of the assistant Man Don't tell me that there is too much Impudence in these words, I know your Virility, is it more commendable that a Woman should say to her Gallant, I know the usefulness of being with you? However it be, the Anonymous Author (d) of the Gesta Regum Francorum, Fredegarias (e), and the Monk Rorico, mention Bassina's Antwer in the same manner as Gregorius Turonensis, or ly Rorico has explain'd it much better, and expressly faid that the Discourse of that Woman was full of Lewdness Which is so far from weaking my Conjecture concerning virilitatem & viriliorem, that it strongly confirms it These are the words of Rorico (f);

Basina quoque Sisini regis uvor, apud quem latuisse pramonstravimus Childericam, sapius relicto viri thoro consortium nostri Regis est experta Quamobrem & eum nec multo post in Franciam est siquius, cupiens loco uvorus habitare cum eo Quam Childericus cum insperate conspenisset, & ad quos usus de tam longinqua provincia ad cum properasset inquireret, illa postiossito pudore mulichri, ut erat nimis lunuriosa, tale fertur dedisse responsum quomiam novi utilitatem tuam & pulchritudinem, & quod fis habilis & firenuus, e domo veni ut habitem tecum, nam si in extremus terra sinibus utiliorem te cognerossism, & hanc nihilominus expetissem Complacuit residents sermo facetus, & eam gaudens sibi sociavit in the Woman did not flatter Childerick as a brave utilion, but as a valiant and brisk Champion of

(c) Here tin morde

of that Hi-fortan, His regnantibus fimul Ba-

fina reliato viro

fuo ad

Childerinitie Qui

cum follicite in-terrogaret qua de causa ad eum de tanta regione

veniffet, respon-disse fertur, Novi,

inquit u-talitatem

tuam quod fis valde

Arenuus,

1deoque habitem

Nam noveris, fi in tranima-rinis partibus ali-quem cognovif-īem utılıorem te,

Toha-

expetif-

Siturio-

nem ejus At ille gaudens

cam fibi ın conju-gio copu-lavar (4) Apard duCheline

695

(e) Ibid

tecum

To give Was worse than that of Helena] To give body their due, I ought to say here that The pody their due, I ought to fay here that is not invensed that pretty Comparison, I find it in a (g) modern Writer Basina, says he, the Mother of Clovis, was not contented to profittute her Homour to Childerick I who fled to her first Husband Bisinus or Basinus, King of Thuringia, but did worse than Helena, who desired at least to be Raunsh'd, whereas this Woman came into France of her own accord, and with insuch considence, that she durst tell Childerick, that if the had known a braver Man. and more worthy on he of the had known a braver Man, and more worthy to be belov'd, the would have gone to him to the end of the World

(D) Father le Counte's Excuses have nothing of solidity } He takes it (h) ill that Aimoinus should lay

727
(1) De Gestis Francorum lib 1 pag 802 in the First Volume of the Chesne's Edition (2) In la Mothe le Vayer, tom 10 pag 102 Letter 43 (b) Le Cointe Annal Ecclesiast Francorum, 1 PAE 94

that Childerick married Basins before the Death of the first Husband He pretends that Aimoinus is the first that said it, and that loaded the Birth of Clous with such an Ignominy He adds, that that Historian is not to be credited, considering the distance of the Time he lived in, and his preposition against the Merouingians. He brings two other Reasons, one that the German, who were other Reasons, one that the Germans, who were the Stem of the French, did not permit Adultery, the other, that if Childerick had married another Man's Wife, he would have exposed himself to the same Danger that forc d him to leave his Kingdom eight Years before. Upon these Considerations he cather believes that Raina not being able to endure rather believes, that Bajing not being able to endure the unworthy Treatments which she received from her Husband, fled 10to France, and that she did not marry Childerick before she had certain News of her Husband's Death He remarks, that others say she was divorced, and that therefore under Paganism nothing hinder'd her from marrying a se-cond Husband He refers us to Robert Cinalis (1) Let us commen that Dispute In the first place I fay, that if the filence of the Authors that preceded Aimonus is a good reason, it must no more be said that the King of Thuring in abused his Wife, or that he divorch her, or that he was dead before Childerick married her. Those are Facts that none of the Ancient Authors have mention d the 2d place does not Gregorius Turonensis say, that qui non Bassona left her Husband, and that the first thing libidine which she answer'd Childerick pleas'd him so well sed ob Northat he married her? Is not this in almost equivabilitation pluribus lent terms to fay, that she was Childsrick's Wise before her first Husband was dead? In the 3d place, the Passage out of Tacitus, which Father le Cointe alledges to prove that the Gorman diapprov'd Adultery, shews (k) that Childerick might be exempted from the Common I am for whatever the Wo ed from the Common Law, for whatever the Woman's morive was to come to him, she declar d man's motive was to come to num, me deciar a that her coming was grounded on that Prince's Valour Besides, the Punishment of Adultery was left to the Husband's choice, and Basina was no more in her Husband's Country Not to say that the Laws were seldom made for Sovereigns Lastly, Childerick had nothing to fear from the Mutiny of his Subjects inport that account a he married a of his Subjects upon that account; he married a stranger that was come to him. What harm did he to the French by it - I own that they had revolted eight Years before, but then (1) one was afrud for his Daughter, another for his Sifter, & for Childerick run out then in a very violent manner. The Affair of Basins did not concern them, would they have broken the Reconciliation for the Quartal a King of Thuringia?

(E) Relates the Visions.

(E) Relates the Visions better than M de Cordemoi J These are his words, (m) "It is "reported that having desir'd Childerick not to he with her the Wedding-night, she feat him three times into his Palace-yard, defiring him to observe the Visions that should appear before him without any fear, and that by her occult Science, she show'd him the first time Unicorns, Lyons, and Leopaids, the fecond time the flewed han Bears and Wolves, and the third time Dogs and Cats, from whence the concluded that those various Animals presaged the diversity of the Manners and Customs of the Race that was to proceed from their Marriage. It will be fo much the more ease to be perswaded that this report is but a Fable invented at leisure, if it be observ'd that it is not likely that the ardent Passion, which that Queen had for Childrick, would have permitted her to lose so much time, which

(2) Lib r de 1e Gallica Peri-illis matrimonia nec ullam magis laudaveris, nam prope foli barbarorum fingulis uxo funt, ex ceptis adpaucis pluribus nuptus ambiuncissima in tam numerofa gente adulteria quorum pœna præsens & Maritu perm: fa

(1) When they were for their Sedition, they gave for their Quia fine lege abu-tebatur filias nostras De Geftis Frances

lantries of the Kings of France, tom 1 pm 5

I shall speak of the Quarrel that was pick'd (F) with Paguser, and of the Answer that was made to his Cittick Whereby it will appear that Disputes are the cause that many Taults are committed, as well of the Heart as of the Mind

BASNAGE (Benjamin) the Son of N. Basnage Minister of Norwich in England, and afterwards of Carentan in Normandy, was both in the Year 1580. He devoted himself to his Father's Profession, and was also Minister of Carentan, and he continued so all his Life, tho' other more considerable Churches, and namely that of Rouen, defined to have him He consider'd his first Church as a Spouse, from whom nothing but Death could part him, and therefore he would not make use of the (A) liberty which the National Synod of Charenton had given him in the Year

(e) Hiftory of France tom 1 p 128 ex liedeg Scholast giter strarili abstinebimus

Cum-

que Briinæ hæc univería narrasset. abstinebant se caste usq, ın craftı-(g) Paquier,Relumnies of Garasse, lib 2 Sett 4 p 160 (m) Ibid p 162 (n) Ibid p 163 (0) Ibid pag 164 Takenotice that the Author obferver that Ronfard confirms that Opinion in the 4th Book of the Iranciade, and ·bat de Serres cally that

Mairiage

"fhe might pass more pleasantly, than to lie in "Bed alone, while her Lover was busied to see those pretended Apparitions" It cannot be denied but that the Reason which he alledges to consute that old Story has some force, but it would be much better, if Basina's forwardness it fold all not cause a Relief that the arrious of her felf did not cause a Belief, that the ardour of her (f) Cum Love had already receiv'd some considerable ease Prima After what had past between them, nether Childesick nor she would have deferred their Embraces till the Nuptial Solemnity had authorized tu junxiffent, dicit ad cum mulier, hac note
a cofteviorder

to look for Apparitions three times one after and corder other in one Night, at the Gate of his Palace, and he overes Endersone for it. But it is contain. and he quotes Fredegarius for it that his Witness contradicts him Predegarius says, Tredegarius says that those Visions preceded the Consummation of that those values preceded the Mairiage (f)

(F) Of the Quarrel that was pick'd with Paquier, and of the Answer that was made | Let us first fet down his words (g) Our ancient Writers place Clovis down his words (g) Our ancient Writers place Clovis among the Legitimate, nevertheless they do not consider that in their account of his Life they say quite contrary. They all agree in this, that Childerick having been driven out of the Kingdom for his Extortions and Cruelties, retired into Thuringia, where having been honourably received by the King, he fell in Love with his Wife Queen Basina Insomuch, that being afterwards recall desired. quier, ReQueen Basina Insomuch, that being afterwards recalled cherch de by the French, he carried her away, and married her, la I rance, violating thereby the Law of Nations, and of Hospitalib 6 c 44 ht), nevertheless the Great Clovis was born of that p m 588 Marringe Let us see in the next place the Censure (b) Gaof Futher Garasse He says, (b) That Pasquier rasse Recherch ancient Chroniclers, sets forth, that Childerick having fled to the King of Thuringia, fell in Love with his Wise, and ravish der, and carrying her into France married her sacriles outly He goes on thus (i), Ma(i) Id ib see the Great Glovis was a Bastard, for having married Basina Pasquier against the Basina, he might have learned of the French Historians, that she came her self into France, after the Death of her Husband the King of Thuringia, and marlumnies of ried Childerick her second Husband, from which true ried Childerick ber second Husband, from which true and lawful Marriage Clovis was born Let us pass to the Answers that were made to Garasse First he was (1) cenfur'd for having opposed Gregorius Turonensis to Mr Pasquier, who nevertheles forms his Doubts on that Author's words They are quoted and confirm'd (m) by the testimony of Amoinus who seems in some things to go farther than he, for he remarks, that Basina forlook her Husband, Priori abforians is attended with that of Nicelles-Gilles These are his words in the 16th Page of the Life of Childerick (n) During the time that Childerick was with Balinus, King of Thuingia, he fell in Love with his Wife, whose name was Balina, and when he was recalled to his Kingdom, the Said Queen Basina, who doted very much on him, for sook the Said Basinus, King of Thuringia, her Lord and Husband, and came to Childenuringia, her Lord and Husband, and came to Childe-tick, who forgetting the former Kindnesses which he had acceived, married her, by whom he had Clovis the sirst Chissian King of France It is observed that Richard of I al bourg authorizes this Opinion in his Anti-quities of the Belgick Gaul, and that all our modern Historians follow it But none were quoted (a) but Belle-Forest, who said, That Childerick resolved to marry, but in so doing he shew'd himself very ungratiful to his Hofi the King of Thuringia, whose Wife he de-bauch'd and married, without treubling himself for the wrong done to Basinus, or the Represch that he might receive for it. Author concludes, that all the Authors that have been quoted, are as credible, and as judicious as (p) your Logician Du Pleix, who lent you his Whim in the Pallage, to authorize your new you his Whim in this Passage, to authorize your mant of Judgment (q) The mistake is not forgotten which Garasse made, when he said that Clovis married Basina Garasse made, when he said that Clovis married Basina. It is called both an (r) improus and malicious Ignorance, for by that means he would make the first Christian King of France more abominable than those brutish Ethiopians, who, as St Jerom says against Jovinian, defiled their Mother's Beds without any distinction. Such like Abominations are quoted there, with many Exaggerations, and long Declamations. This Dispute shews us part of the Desects that prevail in most of the Writings of that nature. The Apologist passes over one of the Faults that had been censur'd. He does not justifie Pagner.

had been censur'd He does not justifie Paquier, neither does he own that there was reason to take him up for it, I mean the Rape of Basina, our ancient Chroniclers have not mention d it, and therefore Paquier aggravated Childerick's Ingrati-tude, he made fabulous and scandalous Additions. The Authority of Gregorius Turonensis might well be alledged against him, and nevertheless his crafty Apologist supposed that that Historian had only been alledged in relation to the other parts of Batfina's Adventures, and on that supposition he founded the most insulting Reproaches. Here are already three great Faults, not to acknowledge that in which the Remarks of a Critick are good and in which the Remarks of a Critick are good and just, to dissemble that which is favourable to him in his Quotations, and to apply one's felf with much noise only to that which may be turn'd into a disadvantageous Sense Here is another Irregularity Garasse censur'd some Faults, and committed fome in his Censure Gregorius Turonensis was for and against him in divers respects, he made no distinction, but quoted him in a general manner, and plac'd him between Emilius and Du Pleix Ought he not to have given him the first Rank? He perplex'd himself wretchedly about a prefered. He perplex'd himself wretchedly about a pretended Marriage of Clouis with Basina. It was done heedlesly It appears plainly, that a precipitation of Mind, and a Distraction common enough among Authors, made him write contrary to what he thought The fequel of his Discourse shews evidently he did not believe that Glovis was the Husband of Basina, nevertheless Pagmer's Apologist inband of Basius, nevertheless Paquier's Apologist infifts violently upon that passage. He takes it to be a capital Crime. His Zeal for the first Christian King of the French grows warm, and he calls the Figures of Rhetorick to his Assistance. Is this to act honestly? His Adversary had shew'd him an Example of a like Fraud, for he had unseasonably arm'd himself with the appearances of a great Zeal for the Honour of the Nation, on account of these first Christian King. He had rashly enter'd a kind of an Action for a Crime of State, seeing, except the Rape, Paquier had only follow'd our ancient Histories, and modestly represented the Consequences of it. Is it not a shameful thing that Authors must be suffer'd to be so bold as to ingage So-thors must be suffer'd to be so bold as to ingage So-thors must be suffer'd to be so bold as to ingage Sovereigns in their petty Quarrels?

It is more useful to make Readers sensible of these Faults of Writers, than to criticize Historical Falshoods. And therefore I hope that what I have just now observ'd will be approved of (A) To make use of the Libert, I The Provincial Synod of Normandy had permitted him to leave his Church, that Church had Appeal'd about it to the National Synod, and that Appeal was broke by the National Synod of Charenton in the Year 1623 Nevertheless our Binjamin did not leave his Church Church

(p) Thise Boken to Garasse

(g) Ibid

2 p 426,

He affisted in that Synod, as a Deputy of the Province of Normandy Year 1631 he was again named by that Province to affift in the National Synod of Charenton, but the King forbad him to go thither, and took his Church from him He was speedily restor'd to it, and obtain'd leave to be at that Synod, as a Deputy of Normandy The Addresses which that Assembly caused to be presented to his Majesty produc'd that good effect He had given such Proofs of his Capacity and Prudence, that he was elected Moderator of the National Synod of Alencon in 1637 That Assembly wanted a Moderator that had many Talents, for they had very nice Matters to hindle The Disputes about Universal Grace had made a great noise, it was to be fear d that a Theological War would be raised in the Reform'd Churches of France, more formidable than a severe Persecution, the People were already very much heated, and preposses d. That Synod settled Matters on a good foot, to which the Psudence and Ability of the Moderator contributed much. He was Associated to the Moderator in the National Synod of Charenton in the Year 1644. That Affedeputed him to the Queen-Mother, who gave him some proofs of her Esteem That Affembly had a great number of Disputes with the Contioversists, he writ against the Church of Rome, and they wrote * against him His Tre title † of the Church wis much esteem- * Leseried He undertook a Work against the indiscreet Votries of the Holy Virgin, which vain, and remain'd impersect He died at 72 Years of Age, in 1652, which was the 51st are the Year of his Ministry He lest two Sons, who made his Name very Illustrious, (B) both chief that upon their own, and their Childrens account It must not be forgot that he was wrote and deputed to King James, and that by that Prince's leave he went into Scotland, where Familibian he screed the Churches usefully for their Temporal Interests. King fames's Letter + 1st 1 am of I eave qualifies him Deputy from all the Churches of France. He is often mention'd not misstant the Synodicon in Gallia Reformata, but that Work being in English, the true Orthography of Proper Names is not always observed in it, (C) which produces sometimes Rockel in a Confusion

(1) Ste Mere pay once in every King's Reign for

BASNAGF (Hemy) Son of the foregoing, was Born at (1) Ste Mere Fglisc in 1612 I ower Normands, the 16th of October, 1615 IIc was one of the best and most elequent Advocates of the Pulliment of Normandy, into which he was admitted in the | He had Year 1636 There was no confiderable I iw but he was imploy'd in it. He married (2) It is a went to Paris with the Deputies of the Province of Normandy, on account of the Marguis of the William Which the (2) Tax called Tiers & Danger It wis he that drew up the Memorial of the Matigthe Godern Province, and that was made choice of to defend that Cause At the request of the non's si-Marquis de Matignon he took inother Journey to Piris, to regulate the Shires of the fler-in-law Succession with the || Marquis de Seignelay, and it is well known that he would have + some been concern'd in the general Review of the Common Liws of France, if the Project credible Reign for been concern a in the general Review of the Common Line Hear 1677 he was noFor efficient that 1 was form'd about it, had been put in execution. In the Year 1677 he was noFor efficient that 1 was form'd about it, had been put in execution. In the Year 1677 he was noFor efficient that 1 was form'd about it, had been put in execution. In the Year 1677 he was noFor efficient that 1 was form'd about it, had been put in execution. In the Year 1677 he was noFor efficient that 1 was form'd about it, had been put in execution. In the Year 1677 he was noFor efficient that 1 was form'd about it, had been put in execution. In the Year 1677 he was noFor efficient that 1 was form'd about it, had been put in execution. In the Year 1677 he was noFor efficient that 1 was form'd about it, had been put in execution. In the Year 1677 he was noFor efficient that 2 was form'd about it, had been put in execution. In the Year 1677 he was noFor efficient that 2 was form'd about it, had been put in execution. In the Year 1677 he was noFor efficient that 2 was form'd about it, had been put in execution. In the Year 1677 he was noFor efficient that 2 was form'd about it, had been put in execution. In the Year 1677 he was noFor efficient that 2 was form'd about it, had been put in execution. In the Year 1677 he was noFor efficient that 2 was form'd about it, had been put in execution. In the Year 1677 he was noFor efficient that 2 that Imployment He was equally skill'd in Confult itions, and Pleadings, and made $\frac{1}{M}$ le it appear that he could be as good an Author as an Advocate The Common Law of Tellier, Normandy, which he publish d with very imple Commentaries in the Year 1678, wis so promoter of much vilued, and sold so well, that a Second Edition in Iwo Volumes in Folio was made of it in the Year 1694. At the same time a third Ldition was made of his havenomimide of it in the Year 1694 At the same time a third Edition was made of his havenomi-Treatise of Hypotheques And notwithstanding his great Age the Author had the care nated Mr. of those Editions, he preserv'd all the strength of his Judgment, and of his Sight, Balnage this is rare, and belongs only to those who have had a lively Imagination, and a strong the Evecu-

Head, tors

(B) Two Sons who made his Name very Illustrious, both upon their own and their Childrens account] The eldest, Aniony BASNAGE, was Born in the Year 1610, and follow'd his Father's Profession He was Minister at Bayeux, and signaliz'd himself by his Constancy and Courage in the last Persecution, the Prison of Havre de Grace, into which he was put at the Age of 75 Years, did not shake his Resolution When the Edict of Nants was repeal'd has was fet at Liberty, and sled into Holland He died at Zutphen in the Year 1681, aged 81 Years (r) He was He lest a Son, whose Name is (r) Samuel BASSorn in the NAGE, Sieur de Flottemanville, who had been Minister with him of the Church of Bayeux, and is at present at Zutphen He is one of the most Learned Ministers that came out of France He had already publish'd (s) a Book in Latin, which is a Continuation of the Critical Observations on the Annals of Cardinal Baronius, which Casabon had begun He is now writing an Feclesia stall History afficises. gun He is now writing an Feelesiastical History I have made the Article of Benjamin Basnage's other

(B) Two Sons who made his Name very Illustrious, both ipon their own and their Childrens account] The

Sainte Mere Eglise are two places that made but one and (t) the same Church at that time among those (t) They of the Reform'd Religion Page 89 it is laid the had each Colloquy of Constantine, instead of the Colloquy of the of theminated in These are Faults of Orthography that may deed their occasion Readers to mistake, and make 'em think place of that there were Churches in Normande called Same Exercise occasion Readers to mistake, and make 'em think that there were Churches in Normandy called Sainte Mere, Charenton, and Quarentin A Person that should be employ'd by Bookiellers to make Additions to a Geographical Distingary, might imagine to have made a considerable discovery, by finding those as annexed three Parishes in a Country where the Geographers to the ohad not yet seen them Faults are like Sparks of the ohad not yet seen them Faults are like Sparks of ther, there here, that which is at first but an alteration of a mas but Letter, becomes sometimes a complication or a one Passor heap of monstrous Talsities. It must be remedied and one early, principles obstated there are also mistakes of Consistory early, principus obsta Here are also mustakes of Consistency another nature The Author of the Synodicon makes for them mention (u) of one Peter Basnage, Son of Antony, both and Grand-son of Benjamin, and says, that this (u) Pag Peter Basnage had no Church in the Year 1637, 383 which is a mistake Antony Basnage had but two Peter Basnage had no Church in the Year 1637, 383 which is a mistake Antony Basnage had but two Sons, the eldest is he that is call'd Mr de Flottemanville, who was Born in the Year 1638. The younger was call'd Francu, and follow d the Profession of Arms, and died in the Year 1685. The same Author believes (x) that Mr Basnage, Minifer of Rotterdam, is the Son of Benjamin Basnage, 497 but he is only his Grandson. Their small Faults which I find my self obliged to discover for the Instruction of Readers, do not hinder me from be-

Instruction of Readers, do not hinder me from beit ought to have been observ'd that Carentan and afficisexercitationes hiftoricocriticæ, Ultraje-&1 1692,

(C) Which produces sometimes a Confusion] For Example, in the 94th Page of the 2d Volume of the Synodicon in Gallia Reformata, mention is made of the Deputies of Charenton Sainte Mere & le Val the Deputies of Charenton Sainte Mere & le Val de Serre It ought to have been faid Carentan, Sainte Mere Eglise, & le Val de Serre In the 75th Page Benjamin Basinage is qualified Minister of Charenton, and in Pages 259 and 274, Minister of Quarentin, and in Page 322, Minister of Ste Mere It should be See Mere Eglise, and a Printed

at Utiecht 1n 8 1n the Tear

y Strad 1, de bello Belg dec 1 106

8 11 de

2 1, 2 16 17

ad ann 1585

9 Id dec Ί,

160

Head, which was his Character His Religion did not hinder those that were the chief of the Parliament, and the rest of the most considerable Members of that illustrious Body from having a great Esteem, and a particular Kindness for him thrious Body from naving a great Enteem, and a particular Kindness for him the receiv'd all manner of Civilities from M de Monthelon, first President of Rouen, to whom he dedicated his Common Law of Normandy in the their 1694. He died at Rouen the 20th of October, 1695, aged 80 Years and 4 Day he had not the pleasure of seeing his Children (D) in his old Age, yet it was a comfort to him to hear of the Honour which they acquir'd in Foreign Countres their sine Works. He had also the Satisfaction to know that his Son-in-Law Normander, Professor of Sacred Liston at Illustry to the satisfaction to know that his Son-in-Law Normander, Professor of Sacred Liston at Illustry to the satisfaction to know that his Son-in-Law Normander, Professor of Sacred Liston at Illustry to the satisfaction to know that his Son-in-Law Normander, Professor of Sacred Liston at Illustry to the satisfaction to know that his Son-in-Law Normander, Professor and by a History at Utrecht, had made himself very much esteem'd by his Lectures, and by a good Commentary \(\beta \) on the Treatise of Lattantius de mortibus persecutorum

BASTA (Nicolas) by Nation an Epirote, was a good Officer of Cavalry in the Spanish Service in the Netherlands γ , where the Duke of Alba brought him in the Year 1567 He fignalized himself in the Defeat of la Noue before Engelmunster in The Duke of Parma gave him a very (A) honourable Testimony sour Years of the honourable Testimony four Years of the honourable Testimony four Years of the Llector of Cologne His Later, whose Name was Demetrius?, had born Arms 40 Years in the Service of the House of Austria Doubtless he was related to (B) George Basta, which is sufficient to prevent the Censure of those who might blame me for publishing this Article When a Person descrees a place in a Dictionary, he opens in some manner the Gate to his Relations

Let this be faid once for all

BASTA (George) a famous General of an Army in the beginning of the XVIIth Century, was originally of Epirus 0, but he was born in a Village called la Rocca, near Tarentum He commanded a Regiment of Epirote, or Albania Horse, when the Duke of Parma took Possession of the Government of the Nerbania in the Year 1579, and he pertected himself in the Trade of Arms in the School of such a giet Ciptain as that Duke wis, who foon discovering George Basta's Merit, made him Commissary (X) General of the Horse in the Year 1580. There was no considetable Literprize which he did not chiefly communicate to him During the Siege of Antwerp in 1584, he had Orders to keep the Field, to hinder any Succours from entring into the Place, and having reinforc'd the Troops that being'd Bonn in the Year 1588, he contributed much to the taking of that Town * In the Year 1590

* 1 sken f m Stra-di は ひ 16010 > lieving that Mr Quick's (y) Work is very fine and useful, and that all the Reform'd of France are very much oblig'd to him for the Pains he has taken to make such an ample and exact Collection of their Synods, and for the long Preface which he has added to it

(D) If he had not the pleasure of seeing his Children yet he heard of the Honour which they acquired His eldest Son james BASNAGE was but a little (z) above 22 Years of Age when the Church of Konen deir d him for their Minister, in the Room of Mi le Moyne, in the Yeur 1676 He serv'd that Church with much Appliase from that time, till the revocation of the Ldist of Nants. Then he revocation we hellend and settled at Ratterdam. Where the revocation of the Ldiet of Nants Then he retin'd into Holland, and fettled at Rotterdam, where he is (a) Ordinary Minister. The Latin and French Books which he has already publish'd, and chiesly his fine Answer to the Bishop of Meaux, have fully made it appear, that those who said his History of the Church would be a very fine Work, were no I latterers, which appear'd better still, by the publication of the (b) Work it self. His younger (c) Brother, Henry BASNAGE, Sieur de Beauval, wis acceived Advocate in the Parliament of Normand), and walk'd in his Father's Steps, but the mandy, and walk'd in his Father's Steps, but the Troubles to Religion were the cause that he rather choice to retire into Holland, than to follow a Path io glorious in the Fyes of the World He has already, and does daily continue to acquire an Path io glorious in the Tyes of the World He has already, and does daily continue to acquire an immortal Reputation over all Europe, by publishing the History of the Works of the Learned Tho' these Gentlemen are yet living, there is a necessity of mentioning them, to put a stop to the continuation of taking the one for the other, as it has been already done in some Books See the Remark C of the foregoing Article, and this Passage of the Bibliotheque Universille Wherein it is shew d, that the Author of the History of the Journals is not very well acquainted with Messieurs Basnage (d) "I have already said that this (e) Work is necessarily than the said and that this (e) Work is necessarily than the said and the said work is necessarily than the said and the said and the said work is necessarily than the said and the said work is necessarily than the said and the said work is necessarily than the said work is necessarily the said work in the said work in the said work is necessarily the said work in the said wore I have already faid that this (e) Work is necessa-"1y, but I must add, that it would be much more, if he that made it had been better inform-" ed, for he has committed divers Faults, which Ministers that reside in the Towns of Holland (b) It was Printed off in the Month of November, 1698, in two Volumes in Folio See the History of the Works of the Learned, 1698 pag 382, & 500 and the Journal of Utrecht, tom 4 p 24 (c) He was born at Rouen in the Tear 1656 (d) Bibliot Univers tom 22 p 427, 428 (e) If at 1, to say, M Christiani Junckeri Dresdensis Schediasma Historicum de Ephemeridibus seu diaris eruditorum.

hinders any credit to be given to what he unless they be Corrected For Example, ip ing of the History of the Works of the Learned, which is known to be written by Mr de Beauval Advocate, he says, that a French Minister is the Author of it, and that if we read in the Title Page, By Mr B Dostor of the Civil Law, it is only to hide himself the better That this Minister who is the Author of that Work, is the same that wrote against the Bishop of Meaux, and against Baranaga, confounding in that manner three very different Persons But his missake may be excused, for it is very rare to see one single Family to Fruitful in samous Authors, one ought to be well inform'd not to be missaken about it" This Reslection is both ingenious and judicious

(A) Avery honourable Testimony] It is this Hunc de bello (Blasium Capisuccum) & Nicolaum Bastam veterem Belgico, Epirotarum equitum dustorem Coloniam mittens Alexandec 15

Epiretarum equitum duction em Coloniam mittens Alexander, Coloniensibus reservipserat, delectos a se fuisse streen dec 2 l 5 pm 308 nuos adeo gnarosque militia viros ut horum consilia, si (g) Ang occasio se daret, tuto ipse sequi paratus esset (f)

(B) Doubtless related some say (g) that he was thorians have ascribed a glorious Action of George (b) Camto Nicolas, it is the Succour thrown into la few pana, Dain the Year 1596 Bouteroue (i) did not commit to pana, Dain the Year 1596 Bouteroue (i) did not commit to anus, Bustant did that Action Few Warriers will considered to those Transportations of Glory, and brother (i) Rotant publish'd the History of the Archduke Alexander Commentation the Year 1693, gives the name of Nicolas Basting Commentations of Succession of Nicolas Basting Commentations of Succession of Nicolas Basting Commentations of Nicolas Action Commentations of Nicolas Basting Commentations of Nicolas Com that publish'd the History of the Archduke Alexandereius in the Year 1693, gives the name of N colas Bassi Commenhim that brought a Convoy of Provisions into is tar de

(X) Commissary General of the Horse on this occasion I observe, that in those Times that Office stis lib 3 was but of a new Creation in the Netherlands The p 272 Duke of Alba brought it thither from the lib. Duke of Alba brought it thither from Italy in the Year 1567 I say he brought it from Italy in the Year 1567 I say he brought it from Italy, where it lately ow'd its Birth to Ferdinand Gonzague, Governor of the Milaneze The Duke of Alba conferr'd it on Antony Olivera, descended from that 1567 Martin Olivera, whom Don Pedro, King of Castile, (1) Donhad caused to come from Irance, to imploy him against the Moors of (1) Martin Olivera, whom Don Pedro, King of Castile, (1) Don-had caused to come from Irance, to imploy him dinus against the Moors of (k) Gianada George Basta discharged that Office very well, and notice was taken rebus in that (1) during his Sickness at Caudebse, the Cavalry Gallia ged falling off from the good Discipline under which the had kept it, did not perform its Duty well in the Attack

() An Englijh Minifler motio in the Year 1692 pub-London th Synodicon in GallaRethe

formiti, Acts, Decifions, Decrees and Canons of the Seven last Nation il Councils of the Reformed

Churches of Dance, 2 1 ol 12 Iulin (z) He was horn at Rouen in the Year () Those ti it bive t/ Direcion of ar call d 10 0 1 12 ner fh stem from other

be followed the Duke of Parma into Iran to the Affiffinee of the Tengue, and in the ten 1502 he had the 4 cours and of the Reasoning during the fifth R ties. If wis allo || concern don to el spe mor el come en el sol Mansfelt in In 11 Year 1502 After which he went to ne i more imputer in Ind it, nell anto the Naturalar is, where in the Year 1590 has an in which were in Committee in which he requitted had fivery to make which were in Committion of which he acquitted him I i very to mining which wise in a Relict of I evidous into la Ioe, belief a by Iony IV. A set it is mere as and Secrete, and the perfect, than he fleet directly over 1. But without 3 at the benefit is a climated by Inflormation over 1. In the perfect of the property over 1. In the perfect of the p the Conjuctors two Before the first time of the Loop of the Dry with him, I rum the end to be kill? In his Lep because here the process to the process to the beauty to the process to the process to the beauty to the process to the beauty to the process to the process to the beauty to the process to the beauty to the beauty to the beauty to the beauty to the process to the beauty to Table The Year following the Q 1 minutes Proceeding to the Proceeding of the Procedure of Monte Prince of the Army value of the Procedure of the Army value the life to be done in Hire is lived to Constitute in Aims, who to mid family to produce the large rest To open that have the more more the Importal Cooperation of the tensor of the court of Berry of the court of Berry of the court of Berry of the court of t Year to the medical term in the delignment of the second to the first property of the second term of the sec

(o) Id 1b pag 191, 192

mo 16 8 1 my 1 h c tate 1 and 1 mo 16 8 1 my 1 h c tate 1 attend feel in and 1 mo 17 mo 17 mo 18 $P_{i \rightarrow i} \leftarrow i$ of this, only to flow that this General did not de without I avial Issue. The Advice this was given to G. M. Praga makes me think that he had a mind to write the History of his Master. I had advice is very good. Vannozz represent to him, that if a Man desires not to pass for a Flatterer he must understant the passional History of some tathat if a Man defires not to pass for a Platterer he must undertake the particular History of some sa mous Action, in which the Person, whose Life he writes, had the principal part. He points to one as to George Bassa, and adds, that managing it in this manner, he would have an opportunity of bringing on the Stage the Glorious Actions of a Man without seeming to affect it. The great Advantage of this method is, that i doth not oblige in Historian to speak of the Impersections of his Hero, whereas an entire History of his I is requires that the should be represented not only with his Virtues, but his Vices too. Now however Praiseworthy any Man may be, he hath his faults, and sometimes the bad Qualities are as many as the good. He quotes on this account what Livy the good He quotes on this account what Livy fays of Hannibal (a) Alcuni per fuggir'il nome d'adufays of Hannibal (0) Alcuni per fuggir'il nome d'adulatore, tanto ambito, quanto dannato, si danno a scriver un'attion publica ò un tal membro di essa, nella quale habbia parte principale Colui, di cui noi interd amo istoriar l'attiani e la vita verbi grazia, volendosi porre in Carta li vita del sig Co Basta, si po rebbe pigliare a discriucr' un'accidente della guerra d'Ungheria, si lare a discriucr' un'accidente della guerra d'Ungheria, si presa, nella quale S F bavesse hauuto parte principale d'accidente, mettersi a dir delle sue producti sun cui un cui sun Artal xtn rihe R n ' t n ide upon h hi

b t me I ye, bh i d two, and iecompense This shews that he we i tell a palpable I ye in his well pleased with those who hiding his Imperfections I a words a Latin Precept, while fine (q) Convin dunque, los habeatur, gratia, atque odi lius est enimi Historicum, & P rat o temporum, ab Histo quan eam turpi c plerosque factit de Line i . V date Respubly enter that it is quod fit compertum & explosion of this means, that if the low of speaking the Truth is Writing Histories than to the last as concerned, that what lick is concern'd, that whate He concludes with mother a but little, and to blame lij Digiestion, as it will appe

(T) If at he is an Author | I have a generale, was printed it Ven in and his Governoise and his Governoise ("a Croa" and the stanton

291h

BATHYLLUS, a young Man of Sames, passionately belov'd by Anaction, who mention'd him often in (A) his Verses Among the remaining Odes which we have of that Poet, there is one * wherein he draws that fair Youth's Picture That Description is not confin'd like those of our Rominces to the visible pairs, but it extends ilso to those that are hid, which is the reason why Mis le Feure could not fill up all the places of her Translation, but was forced have whole Lines with Asterisms. That sume Bathyllus had been loved by Polycrates Toront of Samos, who caus da Statue (B) to be erected to him in the Posture of a Man that Sings and Plays on the Lyre Chabot was (C) mistaken in calling him Pantomimus. Mr le Fevre (D) in endeavouring to excuse Anacreon's dissolute Life, publish'd some things that were no wery well known B A-ferves it

Non elaboratum ad pedem

There is scarce a more strange Distraction than that of Andrew Schottus, (b) who quoted these Verses of Horace to prove that Macenas lov'd the Pantomime Bathyllus, of whom I shall speak hereafter Charles Stephens was not less mistaken, when he said that Bathyllus the Darling of Anacreon is the fame with the Pantominus mention'd in these Words of Juvenal, (c) molli saltante Bathyllo Is not this as much as to say, that Juvenal and Anacreon were Contemporaries?

(B) Polycrates who caus'd a Statue to be eretted to him.] Some think, that Juvenal speaks of it, when addressing himself to the Gods, he says, - - (d) Ut video, nullum discrimen habendum est

Effigies inter vestras, statuamque Bathylli Others read Vagelli, instead of Baihylli That Statue of Baihyllus was in the Temple of Juno at Samos before the Altar Apuleius (e) made a very particular Discription of it

(C) Chabot is mistaken in calling him Pantomimus] Hic Bathyllus, says he (f), Samius fuit Pantomimus Anacreouti in maximis deliciis It is likely his Liter proceeds from the Idea which he had of another Bathyllur, to whom the Title of Pantomi-

mus agreed very well, as shall be seen hereaster

(D) M le Fevre in endeavouring to excuse Anacreon is dissolute List? Here I will perform the promise which I made in the Remark G of the Arti-They would have made that Poet's Article too long, and shall not make the Article of Bathyllus so I say then, that Mr le Feure could not be 1gnorant that our Poet's love for Bathyllus past for meer Pederasty, and that Polyerates's Jealousy of Smerdias made a noise, and therefore one can't well apprehend how he could say (a) Thet made and the polyerates and the same land to the same land to the same land the same land the same land the same land to the same land the same lan apprehend how he could fay, (g) That we do not read that Anacieon's Pleasures were matters of Scandal, no that his good-humour was ever complain'd of What he observes in another place, is much more reasona-He says, That more scand dous Passions have been feen in the Auxiliary Troops of France, than Anacreon's Amours were The manner in which he relates the thing in Latin is too fine to be Translated (b) An id potius amet quod patrum nostrorum memoria in copiis Auxiliaribus vidit Gallia?

Serica cum Dominam ducebant vincla capellam, Cui nitidum cornu multo radi ibat ab auro, Et segmentatis flendebant tempora vittis

Et segmentatis splendebant tempora vittis Illa rosa & myrtoscritsque recentibus ibat Altum vinsta caput, diletta conscia forme
This is a piece of secret History, the Circumstances whereof it is likely several Readers will inquire into, a She-goat the Mistress of an Italian General, and led in Pomp with the Ornaments of a Baby. The Novimus (i) & qui te transversa tuentibus hircis, cannot be carry d farther by forcid Explications. Mr le Feure was brought into trouble for that discovery. It is not proper, says he (k), that People should know that I made the I triss about the Crown'd Goat Your Father, to whom I formerly told the History of the She-goat, mention d in the Dedication of History of the She-goat, mention d in the Dedication of Anacreon, and who is not Ignorant in what manner I was treated in the Sanhedrim, will tell you my Reasons. Here is fomething that will facilitate an enquiry into this Fact. The Duke of Nemours having be-IX tom 1 fieg d Lyons in the Year 1562, (1) wasoblig'd to retire, p 225 being for saken by 3000 Italians that deserted for want of edition of being paid at the appointed time Their living had been Holland for I icentious, that the Constens Bankle Living had been fo Licentious, that the Country People knew not how to expiate it any other way than by Burning all the She-

(A) Mention'd him often in his Verses] Horace obcrees it These are his Words,

Non (a) aliter Samio dicunt arsisse Bathyllo

Anacreonta Tejum,

Qui persape cava testudine stevit amorem

Non elaboratum ad pedem

There is scarce a more strange Distraction than Non the distraction of the Places thro' which they had pass I choose rather to quote Varillas than straight forms us, (m) That the Duke of Nemours should contained that the Duke of Nemours should contented the Places thro' which they had pass I choose rather to quote Varillas than straight forms us, (m) That the Duke of Nemours should contain the Siege of Lyons, Tavanness caus'd the Army to Disband, discontented the Italians, by saying that he could not lead the Wars, who forc'd Children and She-goats, a thing so mell known in the Country that the Places thro' which they had pass I choose rather to quote Varillas than straighted, who informs us, (m) That the Duke of Nemours should contain the Siege of Lyons and the Army to Disband, discontented the Italians, by saying that he could not lead the Army to Disband, discontented the Wars, who forc'd Children and She-goats, a thing saying the Army to Disband, discontented the Wars, who forc'd Children and She-goats, a thing saying the Army to Disband, discontented the Wars, who forc'd Children and She-goats, a thing saying the Army to Disband, discontented the Wars, who forc'd Children and She-goats, a thing saying the Country that the Duke of Nemours should be saying the Country that the Duke of Nemours should be saying the Country that the Duke of Nemours should be saying the Country that the Duke of Nemours should be saying the Country that the Duke of Nemours should be saying the Country that the Duke of Nemours should be saying the Country that the Duke of Nemours should be saying the Country that the Duke of Nemours should be saying the Country that the Duke of Nemours should be saying the Country that the Duke of Nemours should be saying the Country that the Duke of Nemours should be saying the Country thing so well known in the Country, that the Peasants left not one She-goat alive after their departure. I he same Historian says, (n) that the Baron Des-Adress leading his Men to fight against the Count de Suze, made no other Speech but this, See there the Murdermade no other Speech but this, See there the Murderers of Women and Children, and the lovers of Shegoats, let us fall on Doubtless, a Aubigne knew this by a fieth Tradecian and the Children of Infamous Soldiers, and who says (e) that Tradecians being either little satisfy'd with the arrival of the Duke of Nemours, who was to Command the Siege, or hoping for no good success of it, retir'd into Bureundy. for no good success of it, retir'd into Burgundy, that after wards the Duke of Nemours marched directly into Dauphini, where divers Exploits were per-form'd, but, continues he, the Duke d'Anguesol complaining of his Pay, retired at that time, except fix Companies that accompany d Nemours under the Command of Brancaccio Thoje Italian Troops, fent and parties the Pope, did much harm wherever they past, and der'd the very Shoes of the poor Lepers that they met then, and were moreover fo villanous and detistable in their living, that they brought (p) She-goats along with them to make use of them, for their more than Brutish filthwasse, which matthe cause that a formula with the cause that a firmula with the cause that the cause that a firmula with the cause that the cause that the cause the cause that the cause the cause the cause the cause that the cause filthiness, which was the cause that afterwards the Pea-sants kill d the she-goats in all the Places thro which they had past. The Author of the History of the they had past. The Author of the History of the Remarkable things which happen d in France fince the Year 1547, till the beginning of 1597, relates the same things During these Transactions, lays he, (q) the Sieur de Tav names came from Burgundy within the Sieur de Tay name came from Burgundy within three Leagues of Lyons, making an account to Storm the City, but he was too far off, altho' he had with h mmore than five thousand Men, besides three thousand Italians, in the Pope's Pay, Commanded by the Count d'Anguesol (r) Ihese Italians, who were the greatest Pilferers in the World, carry'd agreat many Goats with them, and Brutishly Coupled with the Beasts, &c (s) It appears by all these Authors, that this happen'd in the Year 1562 But here is a Writer that mentions other Circumstances. The History of France, says he (t) tells us, "That the Duke of Nevers tions other Circumftances The History of France, fays he (t) tells us, "That the Duke of Nevers" coming from Italy into France to affift the King, "whose Crown the House of Guise endeavoured to "coming from Italy into France to affift the King, whose Crown the House of Guise endeavoured to invade under pretence of Religion, brought from thence two thousand Goats cover'd with Garage for the form of green Velvet, with broad Gold Garage for fons of green Velvet, with broad Gold Garage for fons of green Velvet, with broad Gold Garage for fons of green Velvet, with broad Gold Garage for fons of green Velvet, with broad Gold Garage for fons of green Velvet, with broad Gold Garage for fons of green Velvet, with broad Gold Garage for fons of green Velvet, with broad Gold Garage for fons of green Velvet, with broad Gold Garage for fons of green Velvet, with broad Gold Garage for fons of green they were for him and all his Garage for for him and all his Garage for for him and all his Garage for form of Company of Garage for form of the fons of the form of the History of the form of his Government about the Kony the pope fent him, one part of the Pay due to the Soldiers, he drew out of his Government about therefore thousand the first of the Gold fons, entered into Dauphiné, rais'd the Blocade of true and Lyons, besieg'd and took Mason, and went to joyn the Duke of Anjou in Champagne (1) See Davila History of in the 4th Book of his History Either those Goats were seen twice in France, of they were not seen in bles, Book the Army of Lewis de Garages. But however that 2 for 104 were seen twice in France, or they were not seen in bles, Books the Army of Iewu de Gonzague But however that 3 fm 104 be, d'Artagnan's Memoirs certainly offend against (p) p m Chronology, for in the time of the Duke de 183

(n)Horat Epod 14

(b) Andr Schot ad Senec Controv præf / 5 P 484 edit Th de Juges

(i) Ties are in the v 63

(d)Juven Sat 13 (e) Apul Floridoi p m 350,

(f) Chab in Horat epod 14

(g) The Life of the Greek Poets p 48 edit of Holland 1680

(b) Lpift Dedicat Anacieont

(1) Virgil Rel 3

Poets p m 34

(1) Varillas Charles

(m) Γ

(n) Ibi

p 208
(e) Theod Beza

History of the French

Churches. 1 11 p

230 ad

ann 156-(p) It was out doubt well dreft as

Fevre was was that of the General The Sentence of

Claudian,

Soldiers

verified then that

Utque

ducum

luuos fic mores ca-

(q) Pag 255 edit

1599 (r) Beza

calls him So, p 229

(s) What 1

word for word what is in the last lines of Beza

(t) D'Artagnan's Memoirs,

tom 3 p

Charles

IX tom 2

Dutch edi-

pag 130 (y) See D'Aubig-

466 (u) Varil-las Hift of Suppress

untur

that the She-goat

BATHYLLUS of Alexandria , a Freedman of Mecenas (AA) who lovd Athen him much, was a Pantomimus of great Reputation. He and Pylades invented (A) 1 1 1 17 new way of representing all forts of pieces for the Stage by Dances That (B) new way was call'd a Italick, and comprized the Irigical, Comical, and Satyrical Parks.

Not that it was a mixture of them, but each of these two Pantomimus's preserved the Character of each fort in the perfectioned of them Play They differ dun this, that Bathyllus excelled (C) in the Comparation that prevailed between them formed two Sects that continued a long time each of the left some Scholars, who extravour d to make their Schools famous, and to perpetuate their Masters name A. for the Sections of Bathyllus were call'd Bathyllus and Sunday. tuate their Masters name s, for the Sections of Bathyllus were call'd Bathylls, and Symp those of Pylades were call'd Pylade Both of them preserved the Characters of their 17 18 Masters The Dances of the latter were Give, and proper to excite the great Passis Seneca ons of Tragedy, and those of the somer were merry, and sitted to Amorous Advennature tures and Comical Subjects. They stiri d I ust in such a manner, and gave such violent guast 17 temptations to the Women that beheld them, that I dire not fly in (D) my natural formations to the Women that beheld them, that I dire not fly in (D) my natural formations to the Women that Datin The Romans divided themselves into I officers in Carifor those two largest Pantomimus s, and it seems that Bathyllus s Partis ins had once the num Vo-Credit & to cause Pylades to be banish d. The kindness of Macenas for Bathyllus may piles authorise that conjecture, with submission to (1) Macrobius See what we shall say influents

Nevers Expedition, the House of Gusse did not attempt to usuap the Thione. The Protestant Historians, who speak of these Goats in the Year 1562, say nothing like it about the Duke of Nevers Troops in 1567. Now no Body can be ignorant that their silence in this contrary is of grant manner.

filence in this tracter is of great moment

(A^) A Freedman of Macenas who lowed him much]

See the School of Perfine on these words of the 5th Satyr, Tres tantum and numeror Satyr, moveance Ba hylli, and consider this passage of the 54th (hipter of the 1st Book of Tacitus & Annals in dulfing a challenge of the 1st Book of Tacitus & Annals in dulfing a challenge of the satyr, dispute dues Macanas a challenge of the satyr, and the same of the satyr of the first et ludiero Augustus dum Macensti obtempera esfulo in amorem Bathylli Consult Dion also in the 54th Book, and Seneca in the Pictace to the 5th Book of Controversies (A) Invented] Suidas (b) five expicily that Autorian ancented the Dance of the Pantominus, Pylinard Bathyllus being the first that introduced it Beers body is sensible that Suidas means that Augustus Was the first that authorized, and estiblished the invention of those two great Dincers. In the Greek of that Author there is Banzonda, that fault remains in the Suidas of Amilius Portus, that fault remains in the Suidas of Amilius Portus, tho Lipfius (d) had corrected it, when he fet to rights two pullages of Seneca, one of which (e) was Bathyllo Maccenate instead of Bathyllo Maccenatis, and the other (f) Si Pantominus affism, Pantillus effem, instead of Si Pantominus effem, Bathyllus effem Zofimus agrees (g) with Suidas, he places among the causes of the shaking of the Roman I mpic the untiduction of the Dances of the Pantominus. introduction of the Dances of the Pantomimus s under Augustus, which were unknown before, and of which Polades and Bathyllus were the Authors When Atheneus (h) speaks of himself, he mames only Bathyllus, but when he quotes Aristonicus, he names Pylades also It is true that to find this in his names Pylades also It is true that to find this in his Text, a word must be corrected in it, is Salmissius (1) does it very well The Greek runs thus, Tutor too basunor Onoir Acisonics in such as it was a corrected in it, is Salmissius to basunor Onoir Acisonics in such as it was no part of the must be read such as such as the words ought to be translated thus, Aristonicus air Bathyllum hunc & Pyladem qui librum de saltatione see it so no likelihood that so many other Williams made Pylades partaker of the honour of the invention, or having conferr ditalications for the honour of the invention, or having conferr ditality to his Rivas him, he himself should have given it all to his Rivas him, he himself should have given it all to his Rivas fortick (k) to correct Suidas. The words of Suidas manife (1) that Pylades wrote concerning the Italick manner of Dancing which he had invented, that is, concerning the Comical, Tragical, and Sa-

that is, concerning the Comical, Tragical, and Satyrick Dancing Wolfus and Amilius Portus, understand it to, because they found no fault in these Words 1 yearle melt opynome the etalune nile on aute wexis Salmasius pretends that instead of σει τικ κωμικί it must be read λπο τίκ κωμικί, and 10 on, which fignifies that Pylades made a Book concerning the Italick Dance, which he had invented and form'd out of the Comical, & It is certain that by this means Suidas should say a thing which Atheneus relates positively Let the Reader's Book treated in particular of the three ancient forts of Dances, and of that which he had substituted in the room of those three, which was necessarily different from each of them, tho perhaps at retained them all intuely

(B) That new way | I had rather express my felf thus, than simply to say that Pylades and Bathyllus invented the Art of representing a piece for the Stage by Dancing, and by the motion of the Hands. I am not ignorant that many Authors speak of it is of a thing which begin influender Augustus. To besides the Authorities quoted in the true going. Remail. foregoing Remark, it is certain that su day trys somewhere (m) That it that time (that is under that Emperous) the Dime of the Partonismus's man nas as (n) places also the establishing of it under Aucustus. But because salmasus (o) made it appear that the custom of acting Diamated Poetry by the motion of the Leet and Plands wis not an incienter than Bathyllus and Pylades, it is better to far that they only perfected that Art, and made use of it after a new manner. He believes (p) that be-fore their time the Pantominus s perform d then Dinces and Geffures while the Trigedy or Comedy was representing, and that those two Men were the first that left off all the Actors, and who introduced Dancing only on the Orchistra I shall say elsewhere (4) with what new delights Pylades enrich'd the Art which he profess Lipsius (r) believed himself to be the first that discovered that Augustus was the inventer of that Dance That Dal-

Augustus was the inventer of that Dance. That Discovery, as it appears, is not very happy

(c) Buthyllus excell d in the Connect part] Athermus (1) and Plutarch (t) inform us of the difference that was in that respect between those two Dancers. It may be very well inferred from these words of Scheea the 4 ther, (v) Quidam melius equitem patientury, quidam jugum, & ut ad morlum to meum vocem, Pylades in comadea, Bathyllus in tragadea multum a se aberant. The Sequel of the Discourse shews that the Author' design is to make it appear, that a Person is not equally sit for divers thing. But the each of these Pantominus s had then firong and weak fides, is I have observ'd, neverfirong and weak fides, is I have observed, nevertheless they both concerned themselves with the length and Comick part Battifflie was not the only one that acted Plays wherein some Persons were to be represented in great Motion, as the Pins and the Satyrs scassing with spied, it appears that (w) Pilades signalized himself by representing a least given by Bacchus to the Bachantes and Sitys Vossius who placed such a Subject in Britislus part, had (a) not sufficiently minded the Learned Differration of Salmassus

(D) I date not fay, &c] See here fuvenil swords in the Sixth Saty i Cherronomon Ledam molli saltante Bi 1) 11

Fuccia vessea non imperat pula ginn Sitt in amplicate sibitum of miseribile longim Attendit Ilymele Tioymele tun iust a discit

Father Tarteron suppress this Litin 1 i his new (2) Edition of Juvenal which he translated into French He also suppress tome other Passages for the Reations which he alledges in his Prefice. I hus much by the by,

(E) With Submission o Macrobia] He fays that Pylades incuir d Aug iflus's indignation, Lectule the Dispute that was between him and Hylar, who had Poetic 1 8, ، ـ oil t 1 54

(m) Sui-A5medu_ 8)

(n) I 1b 1

(0) (dm ubi lupia

(p) Ibid †ατ 8, , 8,1

(q) In the Artile

Ann / 1

cap 17

(t) Sympoi l 7

(z) I pitom /

בווו וש קב mention d by Salmafius ubi p 835

(v) Voffine inst Post 1 2 pag 181

1689

(c) See Zofimus ubi fupra

(d) Lipfi-us in Tacit Ann 1 1 p m 63 (e) (on-troveri Præf 1 s (f) Pref

(g)Zosim lib 1

I 3 epi-

(b)Athen PAG 20

(1) Salmas in Cari num Vo-Lugal Bal

(k) Id ib See Vossins wit Poct 1 2

1

110

· 1

Mention is inide of Bathyllus in the 8th Fable of the 5th in the Aiticle of Palades Book of Phedra. The Author of Moren's Supplement spoke pertinently of that Pantomimus, but he evolutions are wrong, for the quotition of Plutarch concerns only a fmill pro of the Acticle, and that of Incien has two gicut Detects one is that the Book de Pertenimi Scena to when the Reader is refer d, is a Chimera, the eith a that the life of de Saltatione, where Lu ian find many things of the Pantominus, does not incition Bathyllus and Pylades I believe I have discover'd (F) the Orinorth out he had a tron

1 / 1 11 1 LUS a Litin Poet contemporary with Figil See in the Sup plant of officers Dictionary what may be known of him. Only this circumstance is a find a rost, that the second Bul which I rigil cut d to be posted up, began The fittich is t Bathillus hid appropriated to hindelf, and that the next words the energy of sec & C rald s who is a Modern Author, ought not to have removed the Ingil's life by Donitus I cannot tell where Charles Stephens found and ed to-Beinder an excellent frigi il Poet, who did not succeed so well in his Comedies PALDIER (Manul - Combent of Languedo, he'd in the Reign of Lewis Still 11 publish? lever a Books which rus d lam to the title of a Copious, and 1 horious Ander, and waren feld well enough. I only know the following Books, In most from the "I to the " Tunts The History of the Seraglio That of the I in most of the Court of one King of Charles I the I is of Cardinal Xime of the interpolation of the I in the I of t Acres, Sonce the Pelmeres Sold er relit on to a the Camp of Turn of what to IV (Demmick) Historical Protestor in the University of Leyden, with Title of the die E h of April 1561 11 begin his Studies at Aix la Chapelle His I + to the deliber with the Lamb during the Cru tries of the Duke of Alba and died dr which the traction of the machine went to continue his Studies at Leg which it is true eight to trans went here indo to Go m, which is Mo- of de the first and the tota white she is him to Geneva, where he studied Divinity, it is The conduct tunction of a Storage in the Science Lettic Year 1583 he is comment, where is commed to find of Divinity and I I mile Diene, I to to left was twing ip by a hundelt theen Months to the fluty of Lein da A still which the formers acted for the following the foll 1 , 1 in the first of the Kegitter of the Koottes of the Lugar the jet of Ja Century of the Barr, he went to travel (B) into the first of the first He acquir'd good Friends, and found the district moment the indicate of the later of by Macrorie i ne with that to the this Pantoin I relilly, made answer, that we amuse the))) by grang effection to 1 (to me I i the later, and I ly have not in Hylass, but in 1 , 11 1 the t' Imperous was angry of the latter we shall 1 130 to on that I tween Dion and Suctohx Quotation] Samalius to the more of the who in icaline areato of more of the offer processe quotes that to for the offer the offer processe quotes that to for the offer the formation to speak in the matrice of expect the the coffinments that

Baudius, 1411 V

Note before he quotes Luin marie to expect the the influments that in pair d timeing. New before he quetes Lun li mile ut of chele do de, Lucianus de It is mean the does not pretend to a note the fire of a root, but only the Matto a neither the of a root, but only the Mat-ter in the or which he regard to quote tweether H' is a selective by it, for after he is held, in the things the concern Pylades refer Boot at Sharms he receives to Lucian de reform a contract to the question'd but the Court area of Mores found a trap there has holder and long

) ner refer a mift bril He being the State of Telesche frond named of an in I from the Protestion of in Advo we but to the total him to the total him to the feed him. All the true to the Court, and left to the him to the Loct, which or all things in the Work the Least relight for the knotty

Questions of the Bur See the Advices that Lipsius

gives him (c) to perfevere patiently

(B) He went to travel into France | He had a good Opinion of himself, and fancied that he might obtain a publick character to travel honourably He imagin'd that the States would fend him to the king of Navarre, if his I riends should request it He communicated his Thought to Lipsus, who was then Professor in the University of Holland The answer which he received from him taught him mildly to know himself better, (d) Prioribus (literis) agebas de legatiuncula ad Navarrenum quo si indamento, mi Raudi, aut qua spe? Nunquam id factum, en ut in tua persona novum exemplum Ordines instituan, cave credas. Tu hoc en alia mereris, sed male i co humanas nosti, si merita in his talibus appendus Hoc unum to moneo ne precipor us quam fortunam pot us guam fortunam foit unum to moneo ne precipiten te tuorum vota, pia, sed improvida qui ad lapsum sepe impellunt dum cogunt sestinare. Ne sperne honores, sed nec avide appete, & qui eo minorem te putant quia cares, tu cos habe pro minutis. This is a very avise Answer, seneca could ay nothing more judicious Baudiu was never the wifer for this good Advice We shall see in the Remark C, that he continu'd all spirit 8 has lifetime conceited with Deputations and Embedsies baffies

(C) Where he continu'd Ten Years] He testifies in some of his Letters, that he design'd to end his Days there, provided he could find a reasonable condition to live (e) Ægie enim ægiè Galliam desero, nec deseram, niss desertus ab omi evidica (f) Ego hic aut alibi in hoc regno sedem exilis circum-

spicio ignoscat mihi genius patrie, plane non teneor re-vertendi desiderio. He alledges several Reasons to Thuanus, why he did not intend to return into Holland, and he makes use of this as the strongest, I hat he could not leave France, while he hop'd for any thing there (g) Nos qui via non pervulguta ad bonam mentem adspiramus nonmagis istic ad res ti act and as idones consemur quam bos dogat, vultures togati omnia virtutus præmia possident bonis de præsidio dijectis, vel (quod deterius est) viri Mercurialis, quibus quam bene conveniat cum genere literatorum disci-

(1) Lipfi-US 17 # Lester dated in the Month of Septem Ь 1588 great edition of Levden 1650.

> BAUDI-US's In fatuation with the quality of Deputy See the Remark

(e) Baud epist centur r pag 21 It is dated from Caen the 1st June

tur p 22

(g) Id epist 6 pag 18

> SOME hacts con cerning Baudius's abode 11 France, &c great Patrons there Achilles de Harlas first President in the Parliament of Paris, was one of the latter, and caus'd him to be made an Advocate in the Parliament in the Year 1592 a In 1602 Baudius Went into England with Christopher de Harlas, whom Henry of Brudius the Great e sent thither Ambasilador, That Christopher was the only Son of the init which I President Lastly Baudius fixt himself at Leyden, being made Prosection of Lloquence shalf quote there in May 1602 After the Death of Merula he read I cotures on History he had also permission to make some on the Civil Law In the Year 1611 the States divided the 2 Office of their Historiographer between him and Meursius, and in con-pear, by his fequence thereof he wrote the History of the Fruce & That Work is well pend 23d LetBaudius's Style was very polite, as uppears by his Letters. His linends publish d a great number of them after his Death, and from time to time others have been added to them in the new Editions. He was a great (D) Latin Poet, his Verles dist no in / nar extant will permit none to doubt of it. He made several soits of cm, and in Stead 1892.

Numbers they have been often Printed. He died at Leyden the 22d of August 1613. C See the He had some mortifications in the (E) latter years of his Life. He was none of those Remarks.

(a) Ibid (b) Epult pag 22 (c) Scipio

Sardinius See Mr Servin's Letter to Baudius pag 38 of Baudius's Let-Sec ters also po 45 (d) Epif.

(e) Epist 41 Cent 1 p 66 dated in she Month of August 1595

7 p 20

(f) Secthe 42d and 43d Let-ters of the Ift Gentury

(g) It is the 44th Letter

(b) Letter 55 P 70

(1) It 15 the 47th Letter

(k) Epift

mus magno nostro malo Deniq, (que ratio maxima est) non possum a vobis divelli quamdiu specula locum videro. He was a happy Man to return into a Country of which he fpoke to ill He desir'd (a) Thuanus to place him in the House of the Prince of Dombes, and I believe he made the same Request (b) to Scaliger He was put to (c) a Gentleman, who besides his Diet, allow'd him 800 Livres Yearly, and by that means, he found him soo Lives Yearly, and by that means, he found himself in a condition to infinuate himself into the Acquaintance of all the most Illustrious Persons in the Parliament of Paris, that was then sitting at Tours. He writ from Caen (d) to Thuanus, that he was a out a Work like that of George Cassander. I cannot say, whether any Body all the rear place Baudus among the Reconsiders of did ever place Baudius among the Reconcilers of Religion He endeavour d to cause Lipsus to be invited to Paris, and was very much vext because that Matter was neglected, for he found a great Disappointment by it He defir'd to tee his Native Country again, but without any Charges for the Journey, and in such a manner as might be honourable to him, and afford him a pretence to give himself some airs. He hop'd to be deputed to setch Lipping Was there not reason enough to be vex'd that they should make so little histe at Paris to send for that great Man? Lipso (c) equidem omnia summa cupio, & ob honorem hominis, & ob amorem literarum. Sed tamen mei potissimum commodiratio a me ducebasur, cum tam ambitiofis flag tationibus his ageducebatur, cum tam ambitiosis stationibus his agebam, ut hus evocaretur Suadelan snim voluntas, Grerum mearum status urgebat, ut in mamexcurrerem quod ut sine sumptu meo Greno la la dignitati steret, bella occasso evenis videbatur, quod spe ac voi s pracepiram, publico nomine ad eum accersendum Legatus forim When he writ this to Thuanus, his Affairs were in a bad condition (f), he kept in the Country, because his Purse was too ill sunissified to maintain himself in Paris, I he following Letter to the same, was written (g) in Piison He says, That no Body would be Bail so him, and that without it Mr Servins good Office, at whose Rewithout it Mr Servin s good Office, at whose Recommendation the Judges had been favourable to him, would be very vieles to him. In 1597, he was at Paris full of too presumptuous a Pretension. The Livoy of the United Provinces was so all that it was thought he could not recover Baudius flattering himfelf with the thoughts of succeeding him, writ speedily to Scaliger, (h) and desir'd his affishance to make him have the Character of Barry of the States General to Henry IV Scaliger thim almost the same Answer that Lipsus had him about I en Years before In the Year 1598 and Court of France, most humbly beseeching them to procure him some Employment for his Country's Service In the Month of July, of the same Year, he was in Pisson for Bailing another inconsiderate. all that it was thought he could not recover Bauhe was in Piison for Bailing another inconsiderately In carcerem conjectus jum nutum or jusquisum, justo inconsultam spondends temeritatem (k) In the Year 1602 he went into England with Christopher de Harlas, as his Secretary and Counsellor, and as a Learned Man (l) Professus sum in Angliam ut es for a consilius, a secretis, ab interioribus studius. The In carcerem conjectus sum nullum ob flagitium, sim a consilius, a secretis, ab interioribus studies. The same Year he went into Holland, where he was made Professor This is all that his Letters have inform'd me of concerning his abode in France He thought himself to be so fit for an Ambassy, and had such a mind to it, that his Professorship at Leyden could not cure him of that Passion Above all

Eted King of the Romans Si (m) qua occasio aperiretur ut extra ordinem publico nomine in Gall im lega-ri possim, multum felicitati mea gratularer Sei la agri somna suni, ut & rumor ille qui perva, tiu d Gallo designato Rege Romanorum Quid si tamen ita esset, cum insit in incredibili sape veritas, & inversimili mindacium, non d sconveniret magnificentie Illustr s-simorum Ordinum, mitti qui publicam letitiam sicunda Orationi testarenter In the Year 1607, he wint into England to prefent his Poems to King James, and it came into his I ancy to cause himself to be deputed to that Prince by the States General. For that purpose he desired Mr Vander Mile Barnevelt's Son-in-law, to recommend him to his I ither-in-law, and he did not question but that Enine velt would invent some pretence for a Deputation This not hitting, Band us undertook that Voyage as his own Peputy (n) Si ampliffuni Ordines at quid huse mortale mandare dignarentur quod noftra con deferret ad aures Regis, forte n I ladm tterent cujus eos panitere posset, & mihi tum gaudio tum honor esset resp causa legari, nec Baudii nigot im om t (o) Sin frustra meçum hac blandı sonu um litor ilo

a me ligatus

(D) He was a great Latin Poet] See what Jungment Borrichius (o) and Morhofius (q) make of his Poems The first I dition is not of the Year (1) 1607, but of the Year 1587 He Dedicated it to Peter Rigemorterus I hat Lpissle Dedicatory is the 2d of Badius s letters. He had published a Book of Jambicks singly, which he Dedicated (s) to the Cardinal de Bourbon. He Dedicated iome of his Poems to the king of England, and some others to the Prince of Wales in the Ldition of the Year 1607 and he went over the Sea to make his Prejent to his two Heroes Ile had the civel Mortification to return Home without receiving any thing from those two Princes, all the Profit he got by that Voyage, was to become their Creditor, which was not worth his Expences See here his mournful Complaints (t) Arbitror te ex indicio same sattum esse certiorem, me superiori mense Augusto transfretasse in magnam Britanniam, cujus & Monarche de manu in manum tradidi Salisberiac Poemata mea, quorum mi-nus malum carmen heroicum ejus honori inscribitur Duo vero Gnomarum Iambicarum libri dedicati sunt Principi Britanniarum, quicum horam amplius unam familiz-riter Jum collocutus. Sed hac fine stetit omnis revia liberalitas, nec teruncio factus sum propensios ut vel me exemplo liquere possis, magnos terrarum dominos posfe pordere, non donare Interim non panitet susceptiviti-Arbendi reos, & olim fors fuat intelliget Hram, or agisor Azaián adir 1770

Durabo, & memet rebus iervabo fecundis
(E) He had some Mortification in the latter Years of his Life] He was obliged to fue a long time for an augmentation of Wages, tho' they could not be ignorant of the grievous Persecutions that he suf-fer'd from his Cieditors He desir'd only to be admitted into (v) the Sect of the Millenarian, that is, that his Wages might go to a thouland silders, which was hardly granted him, after many mean Sollicitations, when Scaliger's Pension was divided of the Ist among several other Protessors (3) Multis collega- Century rum aucta sunt stipendia, quo nomine illis gratulor non invideo sane omnes videntur quasi facto agmine concur- (t) Epirise ad cernendam hareditatem & legenda spolia maxi- stol 1 si

he would fain have been chosen to Congratulate pag 298 dated the 5th May 1608 (v) See the 5th 1et a of Henry IV in the Name of the States General, when the IIId Century p 324 (v) Ibid (y) Epist ult Cent 2 there was a report that that Prince had been Ele- p 313 it is dated the 14th I obruary 1609

a The life Jays 1591, lut it ap-

2 Brudius epist 98 Cent 3

1 fe printbecome no of b . Po-See Meurlius allo in Athenis Bit i-V15, p 155 muald in 1 6 ro-11 1 , l) of June

(m) I pifol 71 centur i p 10, 26th of Much from Ley. dc11,16 3

(n) Baudiusepist 64 cent 2 p 253

(o) Ibid

(p) D.C. furtit de Poct py

(q) Poly Hifton P 376

Bullet believed it judgment on Poets, # 1385

(9) See the 9th Letter of the Ift centur 2

lish d the one under the name of Latinus Pacatus, and the other under that of Tulianus Rosbeci-115

He pub- warlike Doctors who will neither have Peace nor Truce, and who treat all those as ill affected to their Country, that do not reject the Offers and Offices of the Medistors of Peace, is a dangerous Poyson, and a fital Snare He exhorted the States to make a Truce with Spain It is true that he durst not put his * Name to the two Speeches which he published on that Subject It is also true (F) that those two Specches, and the (G) Verses he made upon Spinda excited great murmurings That peaceable mi - irorum Josephi Scaligeri (a) Lasus esse videor ui od prateritus comitiis nulla sit habita Baudii ratio nec

Baudius

in augendo peculio, nec in causa ordinariatus, quum tamen multi collegarum etiam plusa obtinuerini quam ausi esan sperare. Nay, at that very time poor Baudius wis the last that was remembred, the he alledg'd (a) Ipift ult cent 3 7 3 13 (b) that he had contributed as much as any Body to that great Man's coming into Holland At list his Wages were raised, but on another account they forgot his repeated instances, he it is dated the 14th I ebruary was left Professor and time to desire a place among the ordinary Professors, that he might enjoy the right of Suffrage in the Assembles of the University, without which he could not have any share in the 1609 (b) Pag 324 (c) Epift 6 centur Emoluments that proceed from Promotions in-telleri (c) hesterna die ex sermone nostri Heinsu herois, dated the 13th of May habitam effe Baudii rationem in Supplemento peculii Quo nomine plurimum me Collegio Curatorum, in primis autem benevolentiæ tuæ debere conficer Sed si eadem 1609 (d) This opera in ordinem redactus effem, nulla ex parte benefino is not yet done the cium claudicaret Nisi forte honorificentius est quod extra ordinem nobis ob sedulam in publico munere obeundo 17th of March curam ac diligentiam præmium sit decietum, quam si ad-1610 See firiptus essem manipulo Ordinariorum Mihi quidem juthe 15th dicia bonorum & optime voluntatis conscientia potior est Letter of omni prærogativa sententiæ dicendæ tamen aliquid the IIId dandum est fama, & publico hominum errori Century was not grown the wiser for Lipsus's Advice I walue the Esteem of good Men, says he, and the Testi-It was done the - , d of mony of my Conscience more than the Privilege of giving my Voice, but something must be granted to Fame, and popular Error Thus Men love to flatter them-March 1611 Sec the 79th felves, and to deceive the Publick They will enjoy Honours, and the glory of despising them at the same time. I hey say, they don't care for such a degree of Honour, or for such a Prerogative, and Letter of the Same Century yet they use many Sollicitations in order to obtain it, because, say they, the Vulgar will despite us it we can't obtain it. But what had Lipsius laid (e) Sec the 99th Let-ter of the Illd Cinto Baudius? Look on those as the meaner fors of People that shall despise you, because they do not see Fortune favour you If Baudius had made use of that wise Maxim, would be have faid that some regard must tury, pag 470 dated the 2d of be had to popular Opinions? That Professor at-tain'd to the right of Voting before his Death He was placed at last in (d) the Clais of Professors in July 1612 (f) The Year 1608 was placed at last in (d) the Clais of Professors in ordinary, but by the Maxim, Turpius ejicitur quam non admittitur hospes. It had been better for him, if he had not been placed in it, for he was degraded from it, and because, during that Suspension, he had taken the upperhand of a Professor in ordinary at I uneral, he was severely reprimanded in a sulfaced mical Council, where he was cited to appear for several other Reasons (e). I say nothing of the Prohibition that was made him, to recite the Speech which he had prepar d against the Scho-See the 84th and 87th Letters of the Ild Centu-(g) It was nithout any note of of the Prohibition that was made nim, to recite the Speech which he had prepar d against the Scholars of Liyden, who had in a Seditious manner committed many Disorders (f) He was also forbid to publish it, but it was publish d afterwards, and it is a very good piece. I have not said that they took from him the (g) Professorship of the Civil dishonoui Nec oidine motus est quali nefcius exer-I aw, and that the Academical Council declar'd to him the day when he was admitted into the Body. cendi, fed honesta of the ordinary Professors, that he should march last of all (b) He would not submit to that Senmissione of the ordinary Frotenors, that he infound march last of all (h) He would not submit to that Sentence, and alledg d his common Place again, that some regard ought to be had to the Errors of the People (1) Fortiter contemns & Stoica sirmitate concoque ineptias illas & concertationes de loco, quum ad restam rationem & ad serium ac severum judicium rem donatus. ftipendus nullam ımmınutis, ut oexigo Sed obsecundandum est populo & secone, cujus cal-culo magni sape viri ex ejusmodi inanibus vel assiman-tur vel depretiantur Thus he plainly declar'd, that he did not regulate his Conduct by right well-known Reason, but by well-known Popular Folnere fublevaretur Meursius Athen Bat pag 156 See also lies Let us pass to other matters, his ill Hus-bandry made him fall into Poverty, and under the Hands of his Creditors, in such a manner as did Baudius. epift 76 cent 3 fome Difgrace to the Academy in his Person So that he was pur under Guardianship, as being incapable of the Administration of his Estate Us lipag 445 (b) Epist

79 cent (1) Baudius, 1814 $ 447

berer ab imperiosa auctoritate Curatoris homo jam quinquagenario major, nec ut opinor, atatis vitto deliviu, aut ad agnatos & gentiles remittendus dedectu vero publicum fuerit nos in hoc regno libertatus administratione bonorum prohiberi quasi rebus nostrus superesse non possimus (k) We shall speak hereattes of the Concubinage that made him the May-game of all the Country. In a word, this poor Man went through Country In a word, this poor Man went through fo many Vexations, that he fays in one (1) of his Letters that he would have put an end to his Life, if God had not order d us to keep in this Station till he takes us from it His courige and drinking kept him up He was not surprized when the Faction of his Collegues threaten'd to expel him (m) from the Chair of the Civil-Law, or to oblige him to Silence by the great noise that the Scholars should make Was it not better to live like a Hermit, than with such Collegues?

(F) Those two speeches excited great murmurings Let us rather say, they had almost lost him, for Prince Maurice was made to believe, that he was injur'd in it, and it was spread about that the Ambassador of France had brib'd the Author with a good Sum of Mony, to engage him to write concerning the Truce Baudins was oblig'd to (n) write to the Prince, and to his Secretary in his own Justification, and to deploie his Destiny that expos'd him to a crowd of malicious Calumniators, or finister Interpreters of his Words Suppose, faid he, I have not sufficiently known every particular thing to give my Advice about what is most expedient for our Country, does it therefore follow, that I have committed the Action of an ill Subject in speaking my Thoughts freely in such a Republick as ours? Quod (o) si per imprudentiam Quod (0) si per imprudentiam factum est, ut à recte suadendo mens aberraverit, quan-doquidem ples aque vor 120 Crescu me latent, circa quodoquidem plesaque tur nat "trasa me latent, circa quorum cognitionem reili confilii norma gubernari non potest saltem nihilfecisse arbitror præter ossicium bonicium, si in regno ac domicilio libertatis, quæ sub ejus præsidio sicura conquiescit, ausus sum uti felicitate temporum, quibus of sentire quæ velu, or quæ sentias sidenter essar liceat In all Countries there are but too many Persons, who think no Body can argue otherwise than themselves on State Assais, without being brib'd by the selves on State Affairs, without being brib'd by the Enemies of their Country There are others that are much more inlighten'd, they know very well Now Test that with a great Zeal for the Publick-good a Man fays that may give his Opinion in a manner quite con-instead of trary to theirs, but notwithstanding they make People believe, that such an Opinion savours of Treaton They must do it to make ach. fon They must do it to make others affraid to contradict them Whether it pioceeds from a suspicious Humour of the Ignorant (p) who think that there is no right way but that which they solution. low, or from the Art of cunning Men, who make others believe what they do not believe themselves. a Man is equally to be pity'd when he finds himfelf expos d, as Baudius was, to the Fury of Slanderers Illud in universum obtinet, says he, (q) vitie humana malignitatus, ut nihil tam commode dicatur a virus alimalignitatie, ut nibil tam commode dicatur a vines alicujus fama & existimationis quin lava interpretatione depravari possit Quid porro absurdius eo genere hominum qui me rumoribus distulerunt, quasi redemostus essem pretio ab amplistimo Praside & Legato Jeanninio us scilicet inanes logos pro insigni liberalitate rependerem, & succenturiarer dostor umbraticus viro in summu rebus trito ac Subacto ?

(G) The Verses which he made for Spinola] The Marquis of Spinola went into Holland before there was any thing concluded either for a Peace or for Baudius Printed a Poem in Praise of pag 321 that Marquis, but he kept the Copies of it, till it appear'd more clearly upon what Business he came thither He only gave some of them to his intimate Friends Mitte tibi exemplum carminu que gratulatus sum Marchioni Spinola, quum in hanc regionem illius ergo adveniret Curavi, ut vides, illud typis excudendum Sed ex confilio amicorum hactenus asserva-Vi intra penetralia Vesta, nec communicavi nisi cum paucissimis intima admissionis. Gerte non est visum con-sultum, ut ipst traderetur. Non quod illic quidquam se indiguum confianti vire vel bene cive fed quia non vi-

(k) Ipift 9 centur the 13th 1613 (1) It is the 19th Century pag 496 (m) Fpift 3 P 408, 411 (n) See the 2d, 3d, and 4th I etter of the IIId 4 centur mine imnungam quidquam muftius. Qui nisi quod ipfe facit nihil rectum putat Terent Adelph att i fc 2 Morus Praf No. instead of imperito, it should be femidocto It is certain that in the matter in question here, there are no such false and rash Judgpragmatical half learned

(7) Epist

3 cent 3 pag 319 See also

Men

peaceable humour concern'd only the Publick State, for he was otherwise no Enemy to Poetical Quarrels he maint un'd them in such a passionate manner, that I don't believe that the Heathen Poets, the most simous on account of their sharp and biting Invectives, such as Architectus, and Hipponar, did ever he ip up more abusive I anguige, nor make a more exquisite choice of detamatory Terms. He hated chiefly the declar'd Enemies of the great Scaliger. They could not bear any Contradiction, and the most Cunning Man would have found it a very difficult thing to stop their Mouth So that there was a reciprocal Storm, (H) and an alternative. Affault between the University of Leyden, and the College of Antwerp I have not found that Baudius Casaubon mentions any of his Children, but I know that he less this * last Wise with Child, and Epist 794 that he was (I) at least twice marry'd, and that this is not the sincst part of his part of his

She was delisted of a Daughof Brudius See Casaubon detur, &c () It was nevertheless known that this Poem was Printed, and the Author was like to be Banish d for it () He escap'd that Punish-ment only because there were some equitable Per-2 p 287 (a) Pene fons among those that examin'd that Piece of Poefons among those that examin'd that Piece of Poetry A great many others would have said that no Body could praise that Marquis without being a Traitor to the State, and a Pensioner of the Court of Spain Pravo & singlero ingenio natissum qui crimen & pene perduellionis scelus putant, si quis assure gere audeat in laudem hossis Tales multos alir hace actas, & quidem inter eos sunt qui sedent ad cirvum reip sub quorum maxilis chudum (b) They would at least have believ'd outwardly, that whoever does not speak or write according to their Inclinations, and prejudicated Opinions, must necessarily be a tit exilio heceditionis feftinısı sanıor and prejudicated Opinions, must necessarily be a Traitor And this it is not to confider that Reason has divers laces, and that she does not represent herself to all Men alike Nay, Baudius had some particular Reasons for it. He was a good Poet, and Thoughts came into his Mind on all remarka-See also the ble Subjects, the Marquis of Spinola's coming into Holland was a Subject of that Niture, it was therefore possible that Baudius made Verses on that Mar-95th Let-2d centory quis only to exercise his Muse on a noble Matter, without any ill Thoughts against the State This was not only very possible, but also very likely Besides, the expectation of some Pistoles as a Reward of some Verses, is very compatible with a Soul that is well-affected to his Country The ill hoc negotium ipethat could be fud of him, is, that he had not the rato pacis Passion of the I imes I mean, that he was not transported with Anger, and did not startle at the mere hearing of the word Spaniard He wish'd the tur, utex Publick-good calmly (c), and without Passion, and only by Reason Now the Publick stands in need of quite another thing, and of a Machinal and blind Hatred Discouries that feed that Passion, are at least part of the Maxims of State, arcanorum rum(Mar-

(*) Bau-

dius Epift 86 centur mihi stenatæ ttmeritas,

pars in-

Ipecto

carmine

me omni

culpa lı-berasset

16 p 288 (6) Ibid 288

p 302 (c) Ego

lentum

eventu conclude jure pa-bertatis Ibid (d) It is the true

name of mention'd by Ale-gambe,

p 162

gng 286, 187

Tesuit

tamen si

287

(H) A reciprocal Storm, and an alternative Af-fault | See the Book intituled Va Villis, lusus Spinolam) fault | See the Book intituled Ve Vielis, lusus affari, & Rhetorum advaticorum adversus Leydensus eruttationes, quidquid hujus est the Year 1609 There is mention made in it of a Writing which I have not seen, and which the Jesuits of Antwerp had publish'd the foregoing Year against one Schlaffus It would make a long List if all the Writings were cited that were Printed in those Times in the Spanish Netherlands against the Professors of Landan, and in Holland against the Jesuits of Landan against the Landan Professors of I eyden, and in Holland against the Je-Baudius was one of those whom the Jesuits fuits attackt after the most cruel manner. He is horribly as'd in the La vielu Scribanius did not ipare him in the Year 1607 in his Dominici Baudei gnome commentario illustrata Baudius does not den but that he had writ too passionately against the Jeiuits, and seem'd to be troubled for it, he hop'd also that equitable Persons would not take rigorously what he had granted to Poetical Licences Here is what he writ (e) to Swertius, Utinam rebus integris, to monip 162 tore & consiliario essem usus! liber noste: si non melion, and yet he saltem securior & lationibus auspiciis evisset in lucem Mu-Scribes the tague nimis licenter effusa, vel provatis laribus inclusi-Vævictis, sem ne temere erumperent, vel, quod tutissima cautionis P 3 37 to genus est, tardipedi deo commissem Nunc post culpam the jesuit admissam serio ingor, verum haud gravate veniam im-Maximili- petraturus consido apud elegantioris nota judices & beon Habbe- nignos rerum assimatores, qui non abiepti prajudiciis aut que partium studiis, in causa cognitione diligenter expendent, que partium fiudire, in causa cognitione diligenter expendent, (e) See the quantum publicis legibus at moribus licentia Poetarum 86th Let- concedatur Ante omnia & vellem & fuerat meter of the lius, non tetigise unctos Nec piudentissimo consilio sa-adcentury Etum esse consiteor, quod tela strinxerim in universam Sotericorum sodalitatem Sunt cuim et iis multi, quos ob dell'inam & virtutis ac probitatis indolem reveren atque observe In another Letter wherein he owns, that his Style was too passionate, he hopes that the Anger which his Fnemies express against him, will excuse him with equitable Persons. He goes on and Tiys, I have just now read a Book publish d against me, which is altogether interwoven with indiculous Lyes, tho' the fitle feem d to promise only the Pen of a good (1) friend (g) serio panite quedam nimie acerbitatis forus erupisse, que domi consinuisse, & vellem & fuerat melius Verum ut rem natam intelligo, non crit mibi sollicite causa die nada anud equa sudices. Insa euim advensarorum procada apud aquo judices Ipsa enim adversariorum proca-citus & convicta sine more esfusa lirgam materiam mihi praben non tantum ad spirandam al solucionim, sed ad consequendam laudem moderationis ac mod size. Vidi enim & evolvi hesternadie a capite ad calcim librum in me conjectum, &c. Several Reasons shew, that the Book which he had just read is the (b) Commenting in gnomas. Now that Commentary is a Work (i) of Soilanius, and yet Baudius afficies it to Rosewoode, with 10 much perfusion that he declares, that nothing can perfusion in out of that belief that nothing can perfusion that he declares, that nothing can perfusion that he declares, that nothing can perfusion that other Books and this refemble each other lates to Drope of Western lates the for fays he, that lefun's other Books and this refemble each other like two Drops of Water, 'tis the fime Genius, Humour Style and Character Let us conclude from thence, by the by, that the best Judges of Style may be missisen in their Judgment of that fort of Conformity, and in the Confequences which they draw from thence as to the Authors of Books Non (1) possum demovers ab eastern (1) see Alectura quin existence ac prossus persuasum hab meditorem hujus preclais fat is essentially the first of the pattern Heriber um Kolmer Nam non ovum ovo, nee aqua epurco tam seeding milis est aquae, quam liber sterific nobic indolum, semimilis est aqua, quam libes ste refert nobic indolom, geni-um & charecterem alion um librorum qui ab eodom Pa-tre sunt exposi i Thit which is remarkable in it is that Bandius (1) who fen d to find in the Commentary on his gnome, the Infirmities of which he knew himfelf guilty, had, as he find, the comfort to find nothing in it, but fuch Falfities as were notorious to all those that knew him It is commonly the fault of Satyrists, they do not lay out Money enough on Spies, they impute Crimes that may be refuted, and do not impute what is undeniable Baudius disowns the German Author, who had made his Apology in the Pulpit against the Commentator of the Gnome (m) Quidam parasitaster parvulus e Germania buc adveniens me multumireclamante, impetravit a Senatu nostro Academico, ut sibi liceret publice pro mea dignitate scilicet adversus illum declamare. Ac ne qu d ad summam sinisteritat s deisset, aut ut caput unctius referret, etiam orationem illan in vulgus edindimination of the second of th pent of, are those that concern Princes and Crowned Heads He did not spare even the King of France, who was an Ally of the Republick (n) Sed horrifica dist u sunt qua in Losol tas, in editorem Amphitaeatis, in impurissimum Schoppium stringimus Atque ut nam hoo fine sie cohibuisset styli nostri procacitas Sed n Pontificem, in Philippos, in Archiduces, in partium du- non bi-ces count virus acerbitatis sua, nec parcit ipsi Liligero lem mo-

(1) That he was at least twice mairy'd] He speaks qui me of his Wife's Death in a (o) Letter of the jeth of March 1610 And he writes (p) the 21st of February 161, that he was marry'd again Opinor jam to ex fama audisse me choso masstorum sterum esse adscriptum. I have not had the time to look over every Letter Page by Page, so that I can't tell whether he men-

(f) He Says the Jame thing Commentary III dated to vember, 1607 (h) See the Chi onolona' of St Romuald concerning anto afionall; con-(1) Sec A-75 cent 2 / // Verebir, ne cunofus alienatum paobicrvatoi, ea mihi ex vero obiiceret quæ ferio confcientiam rcmorderent, & diligentius vivendi necesfitatem Nunc que de me incledicit, pleraque taut risum veant 115 norunt. nec ad a lios judices provocandum ha

beo,quam qui oculis & sensu communi non destituuntur Epist 86 int p 288 (n) Ibid (n) Epist 58 cent 3 p 406 14th of the 3d century (p) Epist 3 cent 4 (0) It is the centur

cademiæ

It is the 3 dof the

3 d of the IIId Cenonof 1650

the Passage s page

(c) He erprefles this more hand-Somely in the 2d pas-suge, Malignitas obtrectorum nihil iliud

ın nobis iugillare quod nimis com-

modus fim convivator & interdum lu-gius ad-ipergoi flore Li-beu Patiis Epift 26 Cens

III pag

(f Sec

Intituled Domini-

ci Baudii amores page 14 (g) Ibid pig 12 & 13 (b) Ppiff 16 Cent

I p 36

(1) Timuerunt fibi Juri-dici Professores ne ego cos de imperitire

pc flefticerein Pirtes de quotettli verbis icubus homi one deji-potest

quam

tury, in the Editi-

Wine and (K) Women were the two Rocks on which his Reputation was ship-Life

4 Pag 486 & 2-libi tions the time when he marry d his first Wife, or (b) Epist whether he frys that he had any Children by her or no, but I know that that Wife had Children by ano-ther Husband, for Badius mentions (a) a Son, and a 22 cent 3 P 344 thei Husband, for Badius mentions (a) a Son, and a Drughter of his Wife, and he complains (b) also of the Drughter's Ill-huswifry Perhaps the Sonmolaw which Theophilus gives to that Profession might be that bad Huswife's Husband It may be also that for want of Attention, Theophilus calls him Son-in-law that was but priviginus. The Author of the va villus observes, that Baudius had no Children (1) In Fpicitharilmate pag 13 (d) In I piftola quad im Natura (c) quamvis liberos neget tibi Effate BURDI, nec tibi BAUDI, tua ad (uiatores A-

Similes parentis Hecuba filios creet

(K) Wine and Women were the two Rocks] Since this Remaik will be iomewhat long, I shall divide it into Sections

1 He did not deny the first, See three fine Passages on that Subject Lefore his Letters taken from his own Letters I only let down the first, (d) Concurrant omnes, non dicam ut ille Satyricus, augus, haruspices, sid quidquid est ubique hominum curiosum, qui in alionum acta tam sidulo inquirunt, ut ea fingant que nunquam fuerunt, nihil inveniet quod in ea fingant que nunquam fuerunt, nivil inveniet quod in nobis carpere possit livor, quam quod interdum ad exemplum prisci Catonis liberalius (e) invitari nos patimus, nic semper consistenus intra sobrieta em veterum Sabinorum Huic quoque peccatulo indies moderari conamus, & pulchre procedis Since he has consesso di stault, there so no need to produce Servierius as a Witness against him, who supposes that Charon having put to Baudius schoice, either to remain in the other World, or to return into this, on condition to drink Water, and take his shift Wife again (f), Baudius made choice of the first Which affords us already iomething that concerns the second Head, Serive-rius would not have made such a Supposition it Baudius had liv'd well with his first Wife

2 Never had my Man lets need to be comforted than he when he loft her His good Friend Heinfus, could not forbear to make Jefts of it in Verie and in Profe, which he address to him, he writ to Grouns on the same Subject, and told him, That our Age did not come short of that which had seen X enoplion make in end of his Sacrifice, notwithflunding the News of his Son's Death, nor of that which had feen 2 Martius go from the Burial of his Sca to the Senate, for, fiys he, Baudius made himself drunk the Day he bury d his Wife, and left nothing to do for the Comforters, he had effectually fud to himself, whatsoever they could be the senate of the comforters. have imagin'd before their coming, the emptiness of his Puile is much more grievous to him than the vacancy of his Bed, I have help'd him to tome Mony, which reviv'd all his Spirits, for infle id of that melancholy Air, and of those down-cast tooks which appear d in him, as if his Wife had been still living, I sty, instead of that great Sadness I perceived him to pais on a studient to a kind of Griety Baudius noster co ipso quo uxorem exiulis de cinum gustare voluit omnia sonatia que exulceratis adliberi mentibus solent ipse occupavit Nibil accesatis adlibera volumes mod cel aventare ille of sonationale. centris addition mentious folent ipfe occupavit. Nibil and its in left in religious folding and its in left in religious folding in the first antica demission vultu actifit, unionem equi vivere addition condidifes. Vix specialist afficient, respirare equipations of the first antica demission and its addresses essential to the found nothing good but her Riches. She had not fund the first and the first and the first and the feeling and the feeling but hat Interest the first and the feeling but hat Interest the first and the feeling but hat Interest the first time, and complained of having been stolen as more unlucky. Incidents more unlucky Incidents

As foon as he came into Irance, he flopt so long at Caen, that there was a Report that he could not fortake a lemale that he lov d there Non posse where a remain that he loved there Non posse me hine a multircula divelli quam impotenti amore depercam (h) He deny'd it, and suid, that the Dangers which he had run in the Journey were the cause of so long a stry there. He said also, that in spite of the Oppositions of the Protessors, he might at last have profest the Civil-Law at Caen, if he had not engaged himself elsewhere. He gives a very bad (1) idea of that University, nes istos castigir it eosque istimulavit Draconi Hesperidum hortorum Tenes quoi fum Quid multa frementibus miseris istis leguleis partimodio ieligionis, partim conscientia inscitiæ suæ, persectum est ut qui Leidæ 31 idum accepissent, legitime promoti viderentur Episs 23 centus 1 p 45 see also his Poem in tres Juris perversoies ib p 35 as transfer (k) believ'd that Lipsus meant Baudius (k) See a when the wate to Barclay in the Year 1599 Scribit mores ad me, resident, sed parum aperte or ulcus aliquod ser. Baudii, monum in peste tegi equiden odoror Si leve curatu, pa-arthe berum est I sa vavum aliquod or duciana (instanabile) ginning dolco caussa praclari ingenii quod ses unitanabile ginning dolco caussa praclari ingenii quod ses unitanabile dolco caussa praclari ingenii quod ses unitanabile ginning the inbarathrum or praceps dedit unitanabile and successive per dedit unitanabile successive praclari ingenii quod ses unitanabile and successive per dedit unitanabile successive praclari ingenii quod ses unitanabile successive per dedit unitanabile succ

To end with the worst part, I shall anticipate the order of Time, and say here that he had made a promise of Marriage which had not kept. When he was a Widower, and piess'd by his Poverty and Temper to seek another Wise, he charged two of his Triends to inform him what Estate his former Mistress had and declar'd to them. his former Mistress had, and declar'd to them, that if she was Rich, he was ready to marry her that if she was Rich, he was ready to marry her before any other. He did not question but that he was still belov'd by her. (1) Veteribus amoribus meis ex animo volo, nec ullam praoptaverim, si ad cateras dotes accedat etiam copiosu imber qui olim per impluvium dessuscit in sinum Danaes. Nisi molessum ist, dated the velim aliquid tempenta in the same and the velim aliquid tempenta in the same and the same deciard, that the did not love great Drinkers Raudius apprehended the meaning of it, and his Conficience was eas'd by that refuial, for he had a scruple not to have kept his Promise, but then he found himself free, when she would not accept of him (m) Ets since o affects nympt am illum prosequor, tamen magis libreranda sides religione, to wently an allow the stronger should see the same. terum repromissionum ultro citroque stipulatarum memoria adductus sum, ut consortium esus ambire non dediquarin, quam forma lenocinio, vel divitiarum conditime guam forma lenocinio, wel divitiarum conditime (n) Gaudeo me bona cum nympha cyus gratia liberatum esse nexu veteris promissi, x sirinipu siran ayuat 9-, cujus adhuc me nonnulla incessibat superstitio Observe well, that all those Scruples of Condition to the design of executing his Promise Which Condition was, that his former Mistress (o) should be Rich, or else he would not marry her, and to soften what might be too haid in that Resolution, he added, that in this, he only consider d that Woman's Interest, for, said he, would it not be very inconvenient for her, if we should beget Children that should have no other Succession but Poverty and Framine to hope from us? Tu vero me tacente satis intelligis quam parum ex usu utriusque foret, rov him in muia, infelici contubernio invicem sociari Quocirca nisi sam bene sundatum sit patrimonium amica, quam unice diligo ut sine notabili incommodo nostris difquam unice diligo ut sine notabili incommodo nostris aisficultatibus mederi queat, in rem communem est ut alsud mibi subsidium prospiciam. Quod ne in eam partem velit interpretari, quasi quidquam ditrimenti ceperit amor ille pristinus, quo juvenculam forma & atate storentem sum complexus, testor ex animi sententia me hoc ejus causa facere, ne liberos educemus in spem egestatis atque

He made his addresses elsewhere (viz) to train Woman whose Name was Sophia, in whose found nothing good but her Riches She had be bruitsh Lather, of whom he receiv'd a thousand It is likely that she had been rambling some with Baudius, for at that time it was a piece of Gallantry in that Country Baudius thought that Complaint very ridiculous, and very proper to stain Sophia's Reputation and said by way of allufion to the Action which Fimbria brought against Scavola, that she ought only to complain that the Dagger had not been thrust into her Body (q) Nibil Dagger had not been thrust into her Body (q) Nibil habet quod de nobis queratur, nist forte velit eam intentare accusationem quam adversus Scavolam quod possibility. Scavolam quod feilicet non totum telum corpore receperit Sophia was pacified, and seem'd to disapprove her Father's Brutality, Baudius being pleas'd with this, spoke of nothing but Marriage, tho'he knew very well that that Mistress had no other Merit but a good Portion The last Obstacle (r) was clear'd, which was the Promise of Marriage which Baudius had made to a profittuted Servant, who sued him on his

1 st of June

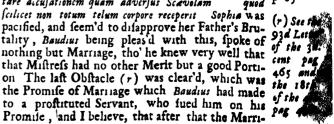

(m) Epist

(n) Ibid

(o) She

(p) Epift 24 cent 3 347

120

(g) Epifa

9 with 3

wrackt Which expos'd him to Contempt and the Publick Laughter His very Friends

(1) Epift 95 cent 3 pag 472 dated the ad of July 1612 (b) Epift 91 cent 3 pag 463 dated the 31 of Mar (c) He nad a good opinuon of himself, he says in the Same Letterthat he is not fo drain'd but that he could bave # deserving Woman,altho' So foolish as to court an impertinent Xantipe fo long Non adeo exaiин ех а-& humoribus, ut tona mea fapienti venditare non pol fim, etiamfi tam infipienter circa Sophiam deliraverım ut mihi Socratica fides obje-Eta fit pag 480 (d) Epift ultıma cent 3 475, 476 dated the 11th of age with Sophia was confummated. Here are some Passages that prove that Woman's ill Qualities, and her lathers Brutalities. (a) Hesterna die graviter apud Restorem questus sum de. Renovavi etiam veteres ossensas quod me in causa desprentis Sophia allocutus esset tanquam vita iratum, & candidatum patibuli. Sed Sophiam istam suis moribus ulciscendam permitto, si quidem rata habet que barbarus parens in me rustice O inciviliter designavit nam contrarii rumores ad me deferuntur Nonnulli dicunt tam honorifice & am ce de nobis loqui quod fi ita est. reste & ordine sacere ipsam nobis logui quod si ita est, sette & ordine facere issam arbitror, y 30 von donos oin, & tunc paratus sum omni-um prateritorum memoriam sideli amnestia ex animo delere, z, un un Cuaxen, Sin talia fingitia probat, nunquam eam sermone fuero dignatus. Sunt enim qui dicant me ab ipsa proscindi tam cruentis convitiis, quasi crimen sit quod vivam. Here's a kind-natur d. Man, the had already shown that he might easily be pacified Reversus (b) domum, optata omnia competied mea Sophia, qua me absente ancillam letti & arcanorum sociam misit ad patiem scitatum super nostramaj slate, an durius accepisiom plenam familiaritatis repulsam & an fera bestia factus essem amissa voluntate revertendi. Ego vero oculum misi exsulpi malim, quam fati ut tam opima cond tio elabatur i mani-bus That goodenature would be less shameful, were it not for the Poverty that Bandius was redue d to, and the great Estate of his Sophia Here are some Words that are to be found in the 95th age of the Dominici Baudii amores, and in the ift I etter of the 4th Century, Page 479 I hat Letter was written the 21st of July 1612 Ploigue putant hanc labem non alia conditione deletum iri, quam fe in-sulsum pecus uvcorem duvero, cui prater Sophix nomen nihil adest humani cordis. An ideo percundum crat Pompeio magno, si Lucullus non esset luxuriosus? Fro invitam cogere non possum ut velit esse conjus inviti so-vis, or tantinon est ut vel illi, vel sur oso parent sup-plicem. Dos tamen non esset adsperna ida, nisi mirita fore, or posset absquemuliebri capite contingere. Possreversus fuerit, persuasu amiconum dicricum est mibi facere novissimam aleam, & evquirere an me-cum lege tidelis », adoxu aninescue pascifii velit. Paratus sum ex animi sententia conceptis verbis jurare pa μησημακών dum & ipsa levitatis culpam aenoscat, & parentis furiae non approbet. Si tergiversabitur, relinquam illam ulciscendam suis moribus, & aliam (c) consortim invinero que mel us intelliget suam felicita-tem Some Days before he had more Courage, he was resolved to make a new Attempt, but he was so much disgusted with that soolish Creature and her brutish Father, that he wish d almost to be again retus d (d) Here mich Heinstus noster adfuit, or rogatu meo adductus, partim sua sponte incitatus, recepts in fe munus colloquende ferto cum Festo Hommio wes no Dopiac Is tenet clavum imperis, & patris animum labet in sua manu Sed summa cum aquitate exspecto quemlibet eventum, & prope of ut malim repulsam, ita me tacdet & contumeliarum parentis, & insulforum fila morum, qua pratei nomen non possidet menancial.

Now we are come to the most disgraceful Scene Baudius kept a Concubine for some time She was a Servant whom many Scholars made use of, and who finding herself with Child, laid the Burthen on Buding alone She maintain'd also, that he on Budius alone had promis'd her Marriage, and Summon'd him before the Judges to make him perform his Promis That Matter was both Scandalous and Comical They that know the Humour of the World, will eafily believe that it caus'd more Laughter than Scandal Baudius's Superiors could do no less than difgrace him by Suspending him from his Place The Railleries to which he tound himself expos'd, made him take a Journey to Guent (e) Inter alias causas que me moverunt ut in viam me darem hæc fuit non infima, ut prudenti absentia Subterducerem me ab importunis conjugit disparis congratulationibus, quibus cottidie aures mea circumfonabantur He feem'd ro question, whether that Servant was with Child, but he was afraid that she should Swear in her Labour that he was the Baby's Father, wherefore he desir d his Friends to order the matter so, that fuch a Baggage as she, should not be admitted to take her Oath, and offer d to do willingly what the Laws of Humanity should require, that is, to take care of the Child that should be born, but he thought it hard to be forc'd to it (f) Periculum enim est in mora, nam prop nona protitudo appetit, siquidem paritura cft, nam permulti dub ant num fit gravida, quod

Sublimi feriam fidera vertice Cupirim nfiri mandato non est illi fiorto publici d sa-mat simo discindum jusqui an lum tempore prizionis, nec habendam fidem in defiguando parente tam multorum

Cum suis vivat valeatque machis,

Quos simul complexa tenet tiecentos

Eço uibilominus sponte mea incitatus faciam quod officium humanitatis injungit St l cori Baud um non de-cet, non opportet a tam profit tuti pudor cfento How-ever, he choic rather to keep mother Body (hild than to forfike a Humane Creature and comfored himself with the reason that it would be a Proof of his Manly Vigor, and that for the time to come it would not picjudice his future Wife Sophir who should be a Field, for the Culture of which he would from thenceforth preferve ill his Strength (e) Ut ut res cadet, n lel milie en re potest i st saut deterius quam quoa an mo praccipi, & mecum ante peregi Nmp futurum, ut perjurio caput alliget & crosonimat r obtrudat heroi Baudio Quid tum postea? Malo a noscre alienum quam fatum humanum non al Test non o crit me marem este, & ver mun a posse suna NI land abradetur in posterum med Sog hid, cujus arto fim liari refovab tur, Quidquid in aire men possum promittere cura. He did not deny but that he hid promis d to mainly that Maid, but pretended, that such a Prossum of the cura of the house of the cura of the as the did not deterve to have the benefit of the I was He did not believe that any I aith ought to be kept with that for of Hereticks, for he remember'd that he had tert it in the Code and becruse he could not quote the place he desir d Grotzme to make he Advocate quote that I as that it might put is flop to the Proceedings of that Whore And because that Woman's Pretention was the only thing that hinder d Baudus & Missief to mingning the Controll of Marriage, he delid his Friend to dispatch the Matter (h) Domum reversus and divi nuncium perguam optal lem de meis amoribus Omnia eveniunt ex an in Jententia n qu dquam deest ad votorum Junmam, nife ut eximam serupulum de pollicitatione matrimoni cum evolito isto propudio, labe & tabe mea fan a & exstimationis. Hane tu pe-frem ac permittem le amolit is fueris pro dignitate muniplurimum, solidiorem capies gloriam, quam

- - Diram qui contudit hydram,

Notaque fatali portenta laboie subegit Tam viles persona, tam diobolares v Aima publicarum libidinum, non sunt dignæ observatione legum, ut me-mini aliquando legere in corpore suris, sed locus non occurrit memoriæ. Queso to ut hisce literis perlectis continuo cures accersendum advocatum vander Werven, qui legem horrendi carminis dictet, cujus obnuncia-tione fulminari possit fatalic illa fundi nostri calamitas Hol ego beneficium tanti faliam, ut nemini plus in vita sim unquam debiturus. Sed matures oro, nam amanti, & animo cupienti nihil satis sestinatus. This is whit he writ the 28th of Maich. He was not our of trouble in the Month of june, the Seivant was yet in hopes to be marry'd to him either by fair or foul means, and Baudius (1) durst not appear before his Mistreis during his Suit with his Concubine He had a mind to make an Agrec-ment with the latter, and defir d Grotius to draw up the Articles, hoping, that the Whore being frightned with Threatnings would fign that Agreement A tuo discessu nec patrem inc us qu Zoqiac allocutus sum, nec me conveniendum curavit Mercurii matis nisi quod audio eam adhuc pascere ebriosas, futilis & suriojas spes de matrimonio

- - - fed prius Appulis Jungentur caprea lupis

Quid mihi autor es ut faciam? Afficiem lit s even-tum? Hoc frissum est amanti, cujus an mo sibil satis sistinatur. Quanquam hisce nigu jam longum nale-dixi, saltem inducias pepigi. Cuperim ad me mitti per bune ipsum nuncium formulam transactionis, quam ipse concepifit Spero me eff Eturum injetto metu majoris 3 paz 468 malitatis ut cupid subjernet, & voluntariam condemnationem subeat (k), The Matter was yet undecided (l) in the Month of suly following, and Bau-

(k) Ibid (l) Se the 99th Letter of the 3d cent p 473 and the 1st of the 4th cent p 478 X x x 2 dius ift of the 4th cent p 478

pag 464 written the 23d of March 1612 when is was said that the Maid was near her t me Fertui effe cr Juyn, I t nullue li plus 1ma 77 T71. E lachina Sunt enim quibus non potest perfundeirem dle grividim & ego quid libet ciedo posfe cadere fallimomre, fraudis& militix in tim profligitain, peiditim itque mtcftabilem formin im (h) Frift 93 unt, dated the 281h of Mach 161 (1) Hoc niti fundamentum præstruatur, non finit Suppos ay #viam affectem ad meam divam quæ non intelligit fua bona nec ideo timen de movebor ab amanda proposito, quanidiu spes alıqua fupererit expugnandi ferreum 1-Etus i pift 96 centur 161.

(e) Epift 90 cent 3 pag 462 dated from Ghent the cember 1611 (f) Epist 93 cent 3 pag 465 dated the 28th of March

1612 of July

1612

* Sec bis 26th Letter, cent 2 Pag 224

+ Sec the remark M

(a) Tot justitiæ

นกเราท malcfi-cam Circen quæ

meos fen-

fus venenavit amolui non pof-funt, faltem ut

Leidam

contagione sua & ades mers noxia Vicinitate non infestet Epist

1 cent 4 (b) Ibid,

(c) Epift

18 cent 4 (d) It is the 3d Letter of the 4th century, page 482 dated the 21 ft of I ebruary

1613 (e) Deli-

TIO aC VIgiliiscon fere attritus,omnioue tandem rotus Invita ejus (f) Scri-verius in Epitaphio

Baudu, pag 135 Baudu A-morum

(g) Theoph

in infeli-ce litera-

to p 11
(h) Specimen Bib-

Itolophi-

Gedanen-

fium edi-

Schelgvigio (1) Amphotides Scioppinnæ, paz

166 flarum

Spinelius

Antistites

Friends made also some smart Jests upon it, which were printed Nevertheless we must not believe all that the (L) Satyrical Scioppius his publish'd on the last Head Some Tempers are in danger of losing a good Name It cannot be deny'd, but that Bandius was of an Amorous Complexion He was but a Student in Divinity * when he fell in Love with a Maid that lodg'd at his Professor Lander Daneau's House The Remarks will tell us more of it He was too free in his Opinities, and even in his Discourse, and was not prudent enough to accommodate himself to the Prejudices of his Time, and therefore 'tis no wonder if he was expos'd to the ill effects of their rash Judgments † He consulted Platonick Ideas too much, which is the reason why he was a little too much scandaliz'd with the Disputes that were rais'd in Holland He foretold the ill Consequences of 'em, whereof some prov'd false, and others true He thought they (M) would occasion an alteration in the Government, but he was mistaken, he believ'd dita thought it very strange that that Slut (a) was not banish'd out of the Country He believ'd that she was left there that the indignity of so many Affronts should make him retire elsewhere Video (b) boc agi ut contamelia haud tolerandis agravos duma adigar ad dispicious pedam viam, & querendam haud ingloris atque mops exilis sedem At last he made an end of that Matter, not by a Sentence of the Judges. but by way of Agreement on the 20th the Judges, but by way of Agreement on the 20th of Offober 1612 (c) He gave as little as he could, redemi me captum quam potui minimo, after which he was foon marry'd He writ (d) to Peter Rubens, that he was very well fatisfy'd with his Wife I do not know whether he chang'd his mind, but however the ther Marriago was but floort. Baudius dy'd the that Marriage was but short Baudius dy'd the 22d of August 1613 being reduc'd to a miserable Condition by a (e) Delirium His best Friends laugh'd at his Folly One of them (f) propos'd him for an Example to all Incontinent Men, and who red them to refer themselves by the most exhorted them to refrain themselves by the most austere Remedies, rather than to indulge their Passions like Baudius

Quisquis es, exemplo tanti movcare mariti, Parce libidinibus luxuriose tuis Addita sit potius lascivo sibula membro, Ut vindicia tuam transcat ista domum

See the Collection intituled Baudit Amores published by Scriverius in the Year 1638 You will find there page 77 a Gento Virgilianus of Daniel Henfus ad Dominicum Baudium, qui postquam ignarus cum ancilla, cum qua tum alii, tum plurimi scholastici consuerant, aliquamdiu congressus esfet, solus prater exspectationem prole ab ea est donatus

Doubtless, some will say, it would have been better to shew in the Margin where these things are to be found, than to quote so many Passages of that Author, but many others will he glad not to be at the trouble of looking for them It is to please the lazy, whose number was never so great as in this Age, that I have taken the pains to collect those Passages of Baudius. They are printed in different Characters those that don't desire to read them, may easily know what they are to pass over them, may easily know what they are to pais over Let no Body complain that I rake into the Ashes of the Dead, for I say nothing but what Baudius I riends have publish'd, and what other Authors have inform'd the Publick of several times See Spizelius, (g) who quotes a Book (b) which I would willingly have consulted It was printed in the Year 1675.

in the Year 1675

(L) All that the Satyrical Scioppius has publish'd]

He speaks too ill of him to deserve credit, the most infamous Pimping, and Magick, are the Exploits which he attributes to him His Latin Words care which he attributes to him His Latin Words care. not modestly be put into English (1) Baudius Par-rifics ubi multis annis in concubinatu summa cum insamia & veius quadruplatoris filium decebat vixit, non tantum magia deditis, incantatoribus & fortilegis ades suas aperuit, & concubina sua filiolam ad peragenda nefaria Sacra commodavit, Demoniumque de thesauris reconditis, imprimisque de Petronio utrum u alicubi integer exstaret, consuluit, sed etiam amicis quibusdam majo-rim quandam ingenii divinitatem praferentibus ejusdem concubinæ filium, puerum non inelegantem turpissimus le-no prostituit, ut cum postea tumentibus pueri mariscis no profituit, ut cum postea tumentious puer mariscis scelus propalatum iri metueret, quo minus eum veneno contubernales tollerent, minime impedivit, actumque sam de misscillo puero suerat nist unius contubernalium aci mine expediti suissent, anicula, qua morbo mederi scrict, inventa Hac nequaquam à me singi, neminem paulo humanio um Paristis ignorare puto. But is those paulo humanio um Parifiis ignorare pute But if those things were so well known in Paris, how comes it that the first President gave Baudius to his Son for a Secretary in an Ambassy? Scioppius invented this, or had it from ill-grounded Stories, and divulg'd it to revenge himself the busive Language that Baudius had given have (k) even before the Scaliger Hypobolimaus had appear'd

(M) He thought they would occasion an Alteration in the Government] He must be heard himself, he declares, that if Conscience and Religion had not stop'd him, he had gone somewhere else a long time before, and that the violent Disputes of the time before, and that the violent Disputes of the Divines, and many other Disorders, made him fear that the Work of the Reformation would be very much in danger'd by them (1) Niss me in his locus (1) Epist conscientiae scrupulus and malum attineret, 72 cent 3 jampridem captum and magurium and grando, nec Leipag 432, da spes meas includeret. Quanquam non pessime mecum the dated for sea nostri ratio habetur, quam opportuit the March Theologorum et:am nostrorum dissidentes, & virulenta Marc concertationes, Odia fratrum qua ne morte quidem sini- 1610 concertationes, Oaia jrairum untur, aliaque nostra militia sagitia, pene essicunt ut & illud superbum nomen reformata religionis, & ipsa causa incipiat mihi effe dubia sanitatus git mihi animus imminere his Provinciis fatalem rerum commutationem, & cx intestinis vitiis rediturum ali quando veteris imperii desiderium Suspectius sum tis, & charus acceptusque non paucis, quod voce passim inculco subditorum obsequia in legitimos Pr O pleno ore decante veras laudes Archiducum I con't question, but that Baudius propos'd the Doctrine of the Obedience of Subjects, which he mentions, with too much Indiscretion and Considence, so that it is no wonder if he was hated by several People He was so bold also as to insert that Doctrine in a publick Thesis, and it is observable, that his Academical Superiors did not oblige him to deface it, but order'd him the conform the Youth, that they should not imprice such Opinions inconsidethey should not in the sce such Opinions inconsiderately (m) Quarit primum ex me an statuiscm prassidium & autioritatem sussidium ex me an statuiscm prassidium & autioritatem sussidium in autioritatem sussidium ex me an statuiscm prassidium expension privately also sussidium expublica, & negare fas esse sussidium privately acque bomini ob causam religious arma sumere contra Principem, & id generis alia Respondi, causam non videri cur in boc atrio libertatis non sit sas absque pervicacia sentire qua vielis, & qua sentias expromere Tamen rogatus ut admonerem juventutem ne temere & absque delectu talibus axiomatis assensim praberet, significavi me sasturum Never was any Man more sit to raise up Enemies against himself by the liberty of his Tongue, and by his Maxany Man more fit to faile up Enemies against himfelf by the liberty of his Tongue, and by his Maxims, than Baudius We make War, said he, (n) with the most Powerful Princes of the World, and yet we are under the Correction of a historial Petty Masters See the liberty he takes fure the Divines that had Condemn'd Vorst out Hearing him See the ill Consecutive the fays must follow, if those Men are ded to decide of the Honour and Merit of other meer. Presumptions. Suspicions and Honour and Merit of other than the suspicions and Honour and Merit of other than the suspicions. meer Presumptions, Suspicions and Hi (o) Evadet ifta effrancs audacia in optimi cupitale formationem, si prajudiciis, suspicionibus, rumusculis & susuris tantum licentia permittitur, ut sama fructu dignitatis exuantur viri dottrina meritisque spectabiles dignitatis exuantur viri doffrina meritifque specialiss sed de negotio fratrum, or facrati gregis, dabitur alias opertunior discrendi locus. Once again, He was a very fit Man to make himself hated, and I don't wonder that so many hainous Calumnies have been spread against him. In the Year 1609, he took a Journey into Flanders. During his absence a thoughand Stories went about, that he was gone to change his Religion, that he was already provided with a good Benefice, that he had made himself a Monk, and an hundred other things of that na-Monk, and an hundred other things of that nature, which gave occasion for the 33d Letter of the IIId Century He fear'd the ridiculous follies of Fame so much, that he wrote that Letter to two of the Curators

(k) Section 70th Letter of Baudius of the 2d century pag 2.

March

99 cent 3

(n) Bel-lum gerimus contra potentillimos mundi monaras, & (# fervire cogimur iftis minutioribus fatrapis Epift 82 cent 2

(N) He

believ'd they would create (N) a Schism, and was in the right of it Those that " We find publish'd his Letters have procur'd more Delight and Usefulness to the Readers than in the Sca-Honour to his Memory They are written * politely, and are full of Wit, but he what folcommends himself too much in them. He appears too (O) poor, too importunate to lows Bau-his Friends, too craving, too vain, too selfish, and too irregular This was to make an drus has Apology for the Age he liv'd in, of which he complain d so much It is partly by those not a Ci-Faults, that several learned Men make themselves contemptible in the Places where they live, whilst they are admir'd where they are only known by their Works of Domiti at Arras the first of January 1520 He study'd Six Years in the University of Louvain, a sandar's be was some time with a ll great Lord at the Court of Louvain, Baudius's afterwards he was some time with a || great Lord at the Court of Charles V and Letters then he went into France, where he acquir'd the Friendship 4 of the most Learned Scaliger Men, and among others, that of Charles du Moulin, at whose House he lodg'd * The did therepag 304 (b) Flagicuriofity of knowing (A) the most famous Ministers, made him travel into Germany, fore like

(a) Epift

96 cent 2

tantium 1mportu nitas efficit me morolio-rentiæ pamolestis creditoribus, quorum nomina rejifpem objus min

tamdıu lactatı funt hoc palpo ut

ulterius

produci non poffint Epift

5 cent 3

Pag 323 (c) Epift

92 cent 3 pag 464 (d) Fpift 15 cent 3 P#g 335 (e) Epift

14 cent 3 pag 334 (f) Humanita-

tis tue

genium morta-fanctæ fidei, & quidquid apadaenatque antianum habetur, 1mpone

que obteftor per Deum im-

CIO IN

tiatur

(N) He believ'd they would create a Schifm] He grounded his Conjecture on the great Animofity which he perceiv'd on both fides. It feem'd to him, that the Matter of those Disputes was susceptible of a good Agreement, provided they would hear each other with a charitable mind. So that it was the Disposition of the Contending Parties, which made him fear they would come to a total rentie partiature. Affidue enim obtained in what manner Gamarus and his Friends on one fide, and Armanus with his Adherents on the other, mix'd their private Passions with the interest of the Doctrine. He said freely, that the Spanial de and the Hollanders would sooner agree together, than (N) He believ'd they would create a Schism] He the Hollanders would fooner agree together, than those two Ecclesiastick Factions Here are his own Words I set 'em down, that I may not be thought to expreis my Opinions under his Name I am here, and in infinite other places, only a Transcriber (a) Usinam omnes nostri muneris Ordanis pari voto ac studio in eandem mentem conspi-garent' Sed facilius conveniet inter Belgas & Hispanos, man suter fratres ubs semel in contentionem exardesce-tion of the comming occurred in schissing, nist for-the applies hu c malo occurred in Sissing docu-litatis of Christiana caritatis ducerentur duces (ut sic diagnos) partium confessione services est unique > cendaque veritatis, Iliacos intra muros peccatur & extra dicam) partium, confectum negotium effet Sed utrinque videre est magnos animorum motus, manifestam concursationem, ut suffragaiores sibi concilient, denique mentem contentionis studiosorem, quam indiganda nos-

Iliacos intra muros peccatur & extra

Sed ob Atridarum culpas supplicatum fei unt Achivi & Academia pessimi odoris est nom solum apud extraneos, verum etiam apud nostros cives *

(O) He appears too Poor] It was not so much the Honoui of being the States Historiographer, as the Salary of that Office, that made him desire it so earnestly He (b) put off his Creditors, till his Pension of Historiographer should be paid him, that time did not come, and they would be no more put off m that manner, so that he sound himself in great streights, and when he said, (c) that his Estate fear'd no Thieves,

Non incendia, non graves ruinas,

Non incendia, non graves ruinas, Non facta impia, non dolos veneni,

Non casus alias periculorum, and that it was like that of Bias, he us'd not an Application more ingenious than true He spoke like an Historian, and not like a Rhetorician At left came his Pension of Historiographer, but it was es a drop of Water for a thirsty Man He had been it, and had been told of it, wherefore he ted another Remedy (viz) a rich Wife (d) Sa fas Chrested another Remedy (viz) a rich Wite (a) sem in nassam matrimonii illicere samininum aliqued charies ime dotatum (agnoscis heic sacundiam supplementi tis, per chronicorum) non aspernarer dona deorum Sed ad eam abirare non audeo, quamdiu mihi certamen erit cum hydra molestorum slagitatorum Let us add to this, what he wrote to his Patron Vander Myle (e) Recte dicebas nuper, nihil alsud posse locare in solido, & ad portum bona spei appellere quassatam ratem Baudii, quam opimum aliquod conjugium sed procax issued genus divitum at fortunaturum mulierum pernistruros sama meritisque celebres, nist censu queque censemur But no relief came time enough He did in vain beseech the Curators (f) with the most moving Expressions, to deliver him from the hard

optatum finem diuturnæ expectationi, neu me patere longi-us versari inter sacrum & saxum sub ictu creditorum, qui meas aures assidue molestis vocibus circumsonant, ut defecto a-aliao studia doctrine tractare nequeam Epist 14 cent 3 pag and printen to Mr Vander Myle, the 10th of March 1610 persecution of his Creditors He was left to their dius s fty le mercy, and except his Person, they seiz'd on all was peculi-that was in his House The Jesuits of Answerp ar to any knew it, and insulted him about it See here Age of La-some Verses taken from the 37th page of the Latinity

Pauperior Codro Catti nil continet arca Pauperior Coaro Catti nit continet arca Qui poti? Jam dicam Baudæiu in ære tabernæ Totus crat, (nosti quam pocula sæpe salutet) Caupo tulit lettos, sedes, mensasque, abacosque, Et chlamydem & vestes, ollas, ignemque, socumque, Nil Baudæus habet, secum tulit omnia Caupo Nic sat erat Quid ages Baudi? Venderis & ipse, decide Caupo libros, metulas has ferto pappros. Accipe Caupo libros, vetulas has ferto papyros, N'us um atque olcum, laternam & lampada sume, Sit modo liber adhuc Baudeus obire popinas Scriverius, Baudius's good Friend, fays (g) little leis of him than the Jesuists

En, cum jure (h) trium natorum ducitur uxor,
Et simul in barathrum præcipitatur amans Sic labuntur opes sie nil stipendia prosun, Pensio sic domino sape negata suo Pallia sic alius, Casaque monilia servat Æra sugant inopem sic aliena samem Prosilit O duris urgens in rebus egestas Pignora stant, vacua non redimenda manu

(A) The Curiosity of knowing the most famous Ministers]
This is all the fault that the Roman Catholicks could blame him for, if we may believe his Elogist Belg pag Papyrius Masso I have carefully perus'd that Au- 221 Ibis thor to know whether Baudouin did ever forsake is also to be the outward Profession of the Church of Rome But I found in found nothing that could perfuade me of it, for Brudouthat he made himself acquainted with Colum and in 1 3d Bucer to know the reason of their Separation, is no Answer to fign that he was a Protestant It is a meer Curio. Calvin sity, and at the most, but a fort of mistrust which fol B 5 signifies nothing, unless it be added, that having heard the Reasons of those Reformers, he found them so good, that he turn'd to their Side. Now (a) Ythem so good, that he turn'd to their Side Now (g) In Masso is so sar from saying so, that on the contrary, Baudii he says, that Baudouin disapprov'd their Reasons amoribus, (i) In Germaniam prosectiu a disensoribus nova secta pag 135 intelligere voluit quas ob causas à Romana & veteri Ec. (h) I beintelligere voluit quas ob causas à Romana & veteri Ec- (h) I beclesia decessissent quorum opiniones Non Probans, lieve the Bucerum tamen & Melantihonem aiebat sibi ob modestime meaning of am placuisse Calvinum displicuisse propter nimiam vin thiris, that ditta & sanguinis sitim quam in eo deprehendisser Baudius I don't deny that he says, there was formerly a (k) familiarity between Calvin and Baudoum Widow But do's this signify that the latter had been a with three Huguenot? May not the Reader imagine that they Children were acquainted in the College before Calvin made (i) Papyr himself the Leader of a Party? You may tell me, Masso that Chronology do's not allow of it, but I will clog paranswer you, that you are very much to blame, if te 2 pag you will only be understood by those who know at 156, 157 what time several Persons were born, and who (k) Familiaris to mark Baudouin's Abjuration in such clear quondam will take the trouble to reason about it your Duty hards is to mark Baudouin's Abjuration in such clear quondam terms, that any Reader may know it by your Book sui Id ionly, without any need of Memory or Reslection bid p I go yet further, and maintain, that those very 262 Men who should remember that Colvin was the Head of a Sect before Baudouin left the College, will not find any thing that looks like an Abjuration will not find any thing that looks like an Abjuration in the familiaris quondam fu, for explaining those words by the other passages of Papyrius Masso, they would understand 'em in this sense, that Baudouin having acquainted Calvin that he fincerely enquir'd after the Truth, had feveral Conferences with him, in which his Wit, Docility and Sagacity did so charm Calvin, that he made a Friend of that Henry Calvin, that he made a Friend of the Henry Calvin, he not appear that Bau-† He u al-To call d Baudum, Balduin, Baudoin See the Chimerical Cabal pag 250 of the 2d Edition He writ bimself Balduin in Trench The Manquis de Bergue dæus, of Baif, &c * Ex Valerio Andrea Bibl is allo to be

* Fx Papyr Maf-ione,elog parte 2 pag 256, 1 Thus it must be tall d, and not Iulingia, as Valerris Andicas C745 11

(a) Compare this with Thu

ted in the Article Charpentier (Pe-

you le find a great miftakı

(/) Antonius Guaminus (lo lest call d m Rivetus

the Epitome

rus he is

Gurime-

us, tut Cynarus) Lpist ad Baldui-call d

npi iufra. but in

anus's words qu he few Calvin at Geneva, Bucer at Straiburg, and others in other places Being return'd to Paru, he was invited to Bourges to be (B) Professor in the Civil-Law, and he discharg'd that Office with so much glory, that he made his Collegue Duaren jealous of him * At the end of Seven Years he left that Professorship to teach the Civil-I aw at Tubingen | whither he wis call'd, but being inform'd in his Journey that du Moulin design d to return to that University, he stop'd at Strasburg, where for a Year he read I cettures of Jurisprudence Afterwards he went to Heilderberg, where he was Profestetick, before he was fully convinc'd of the truth of his Doctrine Their Commerce continu'd a of his Doctrine of his Doctrine Their Commerce continued a long time, for two Years are not too long to resolve the Difficulties which Baudouin might propose Calvin, who hop'd to gain him, and wish'd it passionately, carefs'd him very much, and open'd his Heart freely to him. At last that Prey escap'd him, Baudouin not finding all his Objections fully resolved, would not embrace the new Doctrine. This is the Scrife that might be given to the words of Papyrius Maffo He should not therefore have express d himself in such a deceifful man-

Morers is yet more to blame, for he cannot juffify himself by alledging the Privilege of an Llogist He declares by the Title of his Book that he less the part of an Historian, he could not therefore allow himself the liberty that Massimight pre-tend to under the favourable Title of Elogium Franof a famous Civilian, might have faid, that he thought he might diffusive that which was not advantigeous to the Memory of his Heroe excuse indeed, and a continual source of Illusions, and Halsities But after all, it is better received from a Panegyrist, than from an Historian What shall we say then of Morers, who contented himself with their Words, He had the Consostry to see Calvin and the other I eaders of the Protestants It is said also, that he was inclin'd to side with them, but that the reading of a Piece (a) of George Cassander hinder dem from it He had been Calvin's Friend, but it was of no long continuance So fai from finding the Abjuintion of Popery in these Words, it appears clearly from them, that Baudouin never abjur d the Church of Rome Where is then the Historical forces and allowed which require that if all fincerity and clearness, which require, that if all other Books were burnt, the only History of a Man should plainly inform all Readers whether he faid or did fuch a thing? The Fault which I cenfure, is therefore very great, if it be true, that Francis Baudon-in chang'd his Religion It will therefore appear enormous to those that know that he chang'd his Religion at least seven times. Let us see the publick Reproach which he receiv'd for it, it is not express'd in general Terms, but attended with Circumstances (b) Ejestum te, Balduine, & excommuni-catum ab omnibus piis, quicumque in Galia aut Germa-nia nomen tuum audierunt, negare non potes Septies Lie viginti annis religionem mutasti. Non sapius fere scrpentes pellem mutant Educatus es apud tuos in Flan-di la Papistice Postea Geneva Christianam Religionem profifius es coque nomine aliquoties ad corporis Christi communionem accessisti Inde Lutetiam profettus Papisti-cum habitum rec pisti Mox Genevam reversus, & in Calvini contubernio, mensa, familiaritate, menses multos com-

moratus, iterum Evangelici nominis factus es Postia

Biturigibus ad Papisticum Idololatriam, & tanquam canis ad vomitum, redissi Inde Argentoratum profestus, E-vangelicum te profissus es cum Petro Martyre vixisti Canam Dominicam in Gallorum Ecclesia amplius decies

(a) Epift, Raldm num de officio tum in religione, tum in Icriptiombus 1e-

nump 56
upud Riparticipali Mox Heidelbergam delatus confessioni Gallicarum Ecclesiarum, sub qua paulo ante canam Dominicam duodicices sumpseras, bostis fattus es, & Hessus-sianis te partibus dedisti Fandem in Galliam reversus, quartum Papista siestus es Horum si quid falsum aut steum sit, volo ut mihi oculos eruas aut ut calumniatovetum oper tom , p 1127 col 1 rium tuum supplicium imitemur, crura mihi suffringas. Those Words are taken from a long Letter thit was written to Baudouin in the Year 1564. The same Computation had been already mention'd to him in the Year 1562, and with very curious Circumstances, for he was put in mind, 1st, That having described to be admitted to the Holy Sacrament in the Irench Church at Strasburg, he had made a long Declaration of his Faith in the presence of the African Land Comments. fembly 2d, That during his abode in Geneva he had made fome Publick Discourses on Matters of Religion (i) I es bessimam sides tua confessionem publice in templo non insequente hominum conventu magna & considente voce pronun asses, ut ad sacra Cana & corporouendo

ris Christi communionem recipereris ris Christi communionem recipereris in publica (ut vocant) congregatione consessuque pastorum & doctorum hominum tanguam Saul inter Prophetas verba de re-bus sacris faceres I have read this in a Letter whereof Francis Hofman is faid to be the Author Ob-ferve that he is deceived in the Circumstance of the Time, for he supposes that Baudouin made his first Abjuration of Popery at Straiburg, that is false, he did it there the third time The Protestants gave him the Sirname (d) of Eccbolius, to fignify that he often chang'd his Religion, and they quarrell'd fo often with him for it in their Writings, that no Body can pretend to be ignorant of it See the 2d Volume of the Disputes of Voetius page 780

(B) He was invited to Bourges to be Professor in the the Life of Civil-Law J We shall touch on a second I ault of Peter Aythe Writers that speak of him, they do haidly rault pag ever mark in what time he was provided with fuch or fuch Offices Mr Menage who avoided with fuch or fuch Offices Mr Menage who avoided that fault observes, (a) that he was Professor of the Civil-Law at Bourges from 1549 to 1556 (he ought to have faid, from 1548, to 1555) and that hereceiv'd the Doctor's Cap there, from the Hands of Eguinaius Baro The Ceremony of that Reception was mide the 12th of March 1549 as Mr Catherinot (f) informs us He adds, that in the Year 1553, the Wages of Francis Duaren amounted to 920 Lives, those of our Baudowin to 2500 and those of the Wages of Francis Duaren amounted to 920 Livres, those of our Baudonin to 350 and those of Hugh Doneau to 230 I observe this to convince Papyrius Masso of a falsity, who said that Baudonin's Wages were as good as those of his Collegues (g) Acceptura Biturgibus ad docendi munus sustineed dum futurus Collega Barons & Duareni Jurisconsultorum, accepturusque de publico honorarium QUANTUM illis daretur I have shewn elsewhere (h) that he tells and the Live Mr. Cathering, remarks on the he tells another Lye Mr Catherinot remarks on the Year 1549, That Baudouin was for some time suffected of the Re-of Herely, as having been a Disciple of John Cilvin at marks of Geneva, and Commensal of Chailes du Moulin at Pi-the Article He frys alfo, that in 1556 Baudouin Writ against Duaren about Benefices, and that Duaren called him in disdain, Balbin See, continues he, his Pillure in a Letter of Duaren of the 13th of June 1555 I give some (1) Extracts of that Letter elsewhere Note, that during his stay at Bourges, he kept Correspondence with Calvin by Letters, and testify'd to him, that he was a good Protestant in his Heart (k) He was upbraided (l) with hiving suborned a rich Widow at Bourges, and having left that Academy (m) without taking leave of his Landlord I only mention these things. only mention these things, that some Circumstances may be seen of the Profession which our Baudouin exercis'd in the University of Bourges Mr Menage (n) affirms, that in (o) 1556 he made there the I uneral Oration of Eguinarius Baro, whose Enemy he had been, if we believe Duaren See the Mirgin (p) I shall further observe, that the date to have of his Vocation to the Professorship of Bourges, discovers a mistake of Mr Bullari. He (7) says, that that Learned Man was gone to Geneva to hear from the Mouth of Calvin and Beza the Reason that had Duaren whoseledges that this Lourney preceded the come (p) Duaoblig d them to for ake the Church of Rome He maknowledges, that this Journey preceded the time wherein Baudouin was made Professor at Bourges He ought then to grant, that Bandouin made it be-fore the Year 1549, and confequently, when Beza was not yet a fit Person to be consulted on those Mass not yet a fit Perion to be consulted on those Matters. It is certain, if, That (r) Beza was yet a Papist, and at Paris, when Baudouin cry'd up Calwin and Bucer's Letters in all Companies 2d, That Baudouin was gone from Geneva (s) before Beza went thither. This supplies us with a strong Proof of the falsity which Varillas has set forth in these Words (s) Calvin, who presented to raise him

præbuit Papyr Mailo ubi fupra (q) Bullart, Academ of Sciences tom 1 p 228 The same fault is in the Theater of Ghilini tom 2 p 83 (r) Beza reiponi ad Balduin pag 206 Oper tom 2 Note, that Baudouin says in his 3d Answer fol 80 verso, that this belongs to the Tear 1546 (s) Balduin ibid fol 83 verso (s) Varillas's Hist of Charles IX tom 1 p 89 Edit of Holland 1686

(d) See the Book that Beza made (e) Methe Life of rault pag thermot Calvinism of Berry pag 4 (g) Papyr Masso ubi fupra pag 257 You'll find the fame Bullart ubi infra (b) In the Duaren (1) In one Duaren (k) See Be-7a's an-Iwer to Baudouin Oper pag 213, (!) Beza 1b p 214 (m) Id 1b pag 213 (n) Menage ubi (p) Duarenustantam juve-nis (Balduini) gloferens, nunquam se Balduiæquum

for of the Civil-Law and History near five Years, till he was fent for by (C) Anton, de Bourbon King of Navarre, who made him Tutor to his Bastird He carry'd his Disciple to Trent, and understanding that Antony was dead of a Wound which he had Estate and his Books risted *. He return'd with his Pupil into France, and found his invited to teach (D) the Civil-Law in the University of Donai He was promised lerio Angreat Advantages, and was very civilly receiv'd by the Duke of Alba the Eve of that Day that Count Egmont was Poyson'd but searing to be chosen one of the Judges of Pag 221, those Persons, which they had a mind to put to Death, he defind leave to go for some Days, under pretence to fetch his Wise, and his I ibrary, and having obtain'd it, he return'd to Para, where he stay d. He read there publick Lectures on some places of the Pandetts, with the Applause of a Crowd of † Auditors He accepted the † See 110 Professorship of the Civil-Law, which was offerd him by the University of Rezanson, but understanding at his coming there, that the Emperor Maximilian had forbid that University by the same ways that Beza had gaind Repute in the Party, call d him to Geneva, received him in his House, admitted him into the Intrigues of the Consistory, and made use of him several Years as a Scientary But whether Baudoun's Humour was entraordinary fickle, as the Calvinifts repreach'd him afterwards, or that he had discover'd that Calvinism was but a refin d Hypocrif, as be publish'd it in a nipping Apology, he went from Geneva to Heidelberg. Beza was not yet of the Protestant Religion, when Baudowing received so many marks of Friendship from Calvin. After Baudowin had receiv'd them, he did not go to Heidelberg, but return d into France, and was Seven Years Profes-cerning the Reconciliation of Religions which he had brought from Germany He undertook to write against Calvin in his own Defence, the Consequences whereof we shall see hereafter stants against each o her and divide the Min sters of the Assembly of Possly by the overtures of arrecment which it would suggest to the melt money a camons st them Varillas had find just before, that by this means Bandouin was made Preceptor to he king licks, and that ly that means, besides the pleasure of feeing the Hereticks tog ther by the ems, then Quariels would make them rediculous to the Court, where their Doctrine was before admired, and the People who thought them uniform, understanding that they quarel d among themselves, would so suddainly change the essem they had for them into distain that no French would leave the Communion of the Church any more. It must be confest that the Catholicks never received a wholefomer Advice than that of Biudouin , and if it had been put in practice with as much diligence as was necessary for such a nice Intrigue all the curls which the Conference of Possilly produce a afterwards would have been prevented. And indeed the Ministers who were not ignorant of any of their Auversaires most private Maxims, having discover d what Biudduin had proposed to their disadvantage, were transported against him with all the success of Passion that Indignation Spite, Jealousy and

I arillas may be faid to confirm this account feeza as to the main He says that Baudouin (g) (g) Varilof Beza as to the main Ins H ff went from Geneva to Heidelberg, where he was Profej for of the Civil Law, till Cassander having inspira him with the desire of Reuniting all Religious, he believed he ought to begin with I rance, where

IX Vol 1 p 90 rdit he expected to find the least opposition. He came to Paris, where he communicated to the Cardinal of Lorr in, lind See allo Thuthe famour Consultation which the Jane Caffinder lad composed for the execution of his Project. The Cardinal and the second of the project. The Cardinal and the second of the much the more joy, because h fore - 8 p 56- saw that the it should not produce all the effect which are supported, yet it would at least fet the Protestants against each a low and the state of the Protestants against each a low and the state of the protestants.

for at Bourges 1 contess, that after that he went again to Calvin at Geneva, (a) but he did not tarry long there, he fuffer'd a high Reprimand there, and testrify d his Repentance, he went soon after ubi supra and teltry d his Repentance, he went soon after to Strasburg by Calvin's advice, and did not teach the Civil-Law at Heidelberg, but after he had taught it in Strasburg (b) Quum illa Bituricensis constitute um gravaret (oftentatio enim, qua sola pollet, ediament ut spii & votis minime satisfaceret) non dubitavit, suc se recipere & quum undique liberis eam convits exagitarint qui prius amici fuerant, humaniter a me impetrata venia admissi fuit seci quidem quod necesse erat ut severa objurgatione correctius sapsus sui ad Balda me impetrata venia admissus fuit Feci quidem quod necesse erat ut severa objurgatione correctus lapsus sui fædicatem agnosceret Serviliter assensius est, & adulatorie meis se consilius regendum permissi Argentinam prosectus nomen dedit apud Pastorem & Senioree Gallicana Ecclessa Thus you see how Varillas inform dhimself of things, which pretended to speak of Bibl pag 222 which of three Reof Navaries natural Son He tells us afterwards how the Ministers gotout of the streights wherein Baudouin had put them But continues he (h) they would (h) V wilnot have difintangl'd themselves so castly from Budouin s las ib p not have disintangled themselves so casily from Biudouin's las second difficulty if so tune had not second them. He gi had perswaded the Cardinal of Louring to send for the most same is tuther an Professor of the Palitinate and the Dutchy of Wirtemberg, to introduce them into the Conference, where he was sure they would be more passionate against the Calvinists, than against the City which the transfer of the conference.

(c) Sent for by Antony de Bourbon King of Navirre] Some say, (i) that he was then in Lorrain in the Retinue of Prince Casimir, Son of Frederick, Count Palatine Others say, (d) that he was return d into France with the Heir of the Count Palatine, who came to Complement Charles IX at his Accession to the Crown But all this does not io much as touch flightly on the Intrigue which Beza mentions He fays, (e) that after the Death of Francis II those that fear'd to lose their Authority in the Court of France, endeavour d chiefly to cause the King of Navarre to return again to the Roman Communion They ingag'd him to send an Ambassador to the They ingag'd him to fiend an Ambassador to the Court of Rome, in hopes either to recover his Kingdom, or to obtain another from the Catholick King by the Pope's good Offices On the other-hand, they made him hope, by suborn'd Persons, that the Proceedints of Germany might unite in his favour to make him recover the Crown of Navarre, especially, if means could be found out to reconcile the Religions They mention'd a Professor of Heidelberg to him, whose Name was Baudouin, who would be fit to negotiate such Matters He caus'd would be fit to negotiate fuch Matters He caus'd him to come into France, he conferr'd with him, and judging him fit to find out the means of an Agreement in Religion, he fet him on work, and after some rough Draughts prepar'd at Paris, he sent him back into Germany, and charg'd him namely, to consult with Cassander That Intrigue, design'd to break off the Conference of Possifi, did not do it The Ministers had already appeared there twice when Baudou n return d with a Project of Union Printed at (f) Basil He was chid for being come too late He found the Bishop of Valence alter'd, who had promis'd him a Professorship in the Civil-Law All that he could obtain, was to be Preceptor of the King of Navarre's Natural Son He went to Paris, and made himself valued by his Lectures, wherein he joyn'd the Civil-Law with History but he lost his Reputation when the Book was read that was publish'd against the Treaty con-

Fury can inspire when animated by a false Zeal, and bidden under such a specious Cover

Note, That Varillas is mistaken when he says, that Baudouin carry d Caffander's Consultation to the Cardinal of Lorrain I or it was not made till (1) three (1) See Years after I shall give (k) hereafter the I itle of Spondathe Work which he carry'd, and shall say (1) that he was employ'd to mediate an Leclesiastical Agreement with the Prince of Condé n 27

(D) Whither he was invited to teach the Civil-Law in the University of Doual But fearing to be chosen one of the Judges] The Marquis de Bergue, and divers other givit Lords of the Netherland's ingag'd Maximilian de Bergue Archbishop of Cambray to manage matters to, that that Profestorship might be procur'd to Baudouin (m) They desir'd to make use of his Advice in Matters of State and Religion (n), for they knew his Opinion was, that the Lawsagainst the Sectaries should be miti-Nam Baldumus in ea erat fententia, ut vetigated rem Edictorum severitatem leniendam profiteretur, affirmaretque, retinere ed ratione Ecclesia aufforitatem neque veteres conjuesse, neque iis, qua tune erant, tempor bu

(k) In the Remark H

(1) In the

Andreas ubi fi pia p 2 ? ? (n) Id 1b

A . (f) There DAS Meir the u where N. Was rinted nor he Priner's Name ust Beza p 202

(a) Be72

p 213 (b) Calvin Refp

uin pag 368 tract Theol

(c) Valur

Andr

agrees with Baudouın's Narrative in spons fol

91 (d) Menage ubi fupra (e) The-od Beza ad Fran-

duini

Oper

cıscı Bal-

Ecebolu CONVICIA Miponi init pag seq t 2

ct Anjou's Chancello Iaken from Papyrrus Masso ubr feq 4 Íhuan 1 6 57 P

† The D ke University to cred that Chair, he would read no Lectures there, tho' he was follicited to do it He icium'd to Paris, where he follow'd the Advice of Philip de Hurault †, which was, to teach the Civil-I iw in the University of Angers He did it near four Years, and till the Duke of Anjou, who was proclaim'd King of Poland, caus'd him to come (L) to Paris when the Polish Ambassy was received there * He was designed for the | Professorship of the Civil-Law in the University of Cracow, and 'tis thought supra pag he would have sollowed the new King into that Country, if Death had not prevented

(1) ld 1b (1) Ac ne forte qualitor icis ditus capitalilus fententus piovincultum 1001um Jubicribe-IC COECIC tui lapyr Mrsso ub Is prayag (c) Nicol Burgundius lib 2 Hiftor Lelg pag (d) Brudouin in respons rdCalvin & Bezam fol 88 verso It mac prented in the Year 1564 (c) Grotius in Rivetinni A pologetici ditcuftione ing Grevius Epiff ad Bernhar-

> Amft 1684 He

(1) Ab ex

ought to be

Lpilcojum A-irebitensem) revocatus Id ib (1) See Nicolas Burgun-tho per

d u posse (a) So that there is reason to believe, that he return d to Paris, (b) because he would not be ingigd by the Duke of Alba in the cruel Proceedings that were preparing. The Male-contents of the Netherlands promised themselves many things from his Country lands of the Proparation of his Countels, fecing, besides the Principles which I have already mention'd, he understood the Art of Managing men, and had a great knowledge of the of Managing men, and had a great knowledge of the World (c) Ut in Belgium wenit, magnam sui exspetiationem omnibus fecit Solers animo, obsequendi gratia, & civili congressu, nec minus officii comitate, ad ingenia principum vitam instruverat. Nec enim novorum hominum deliramenta setsabatur, & rursus in religione sciupalum oderat. Humaniusque credebat, iniquitati temporum cedere, pietatisque integritatem in paucis violare, quam vim adserve turbatis conscientius, quas in contaminatis hominibus nulla unquam supplicia paucis violare, quam vim adferie turbatis conficientis, quas in contaminatis hominibus nulla unquam supplicia eluuni. The Author whom I quote had observed that Baudouin had been very well known to Lemis of Nassau at Heidelberg. The third Apology of this Civilian informs us, (d) that the Prince of Nassau who had been his Auditor at Strasburg, had litely carest him much in the Netherlands. Let us add to this, that he wis esteem'd by William Prince of Orange. (c) Francisco Balduino, jurisconsulto egreof Orange (c) Francisco Balduino, jurisconsulto egre-gio, pacis Ecclesiastica studioso, magnifatto a Principe Anusconensi Wilhelmo aliisque Belgarum proceribus qui opera ejus usi sunt, cur credi non deheat, nihil causa est it is Grotius that they this, and who affirms that that Prince and the other great Lords of the Netherlands made use of Baudoum It was in their first proceedings against Spain He was in the first Affemblies of Breda, and they made him draw up the Writing wherein they defir'd the Dutchefs of Parma to grant them the free exercise of their Religion. He shewed that a Religion cannot subsist without an outward exercise, and that it requires this as a necessary support and nourishment (f) The Author who informs me of this observes, that Baudouin had been recall d (g) from his exile by the Aichbishop of Airas To understand this the Reider must know, that seeing himself accused as a Heretick, he lest his Country, and that after his (f) John flight a Sentence of Profesiption was pronounced against him (b) It was revok d when they caus d him to return to consult with him on the state of Affairs in the Netherlands Note that the Author who ipeaks of the Archbishop of Arias does not Brantium telate the thing as he ought the Chronicle of John trantium

It is the

rancis le Petit to which he reters, will tell us the re Lpiflol LcReligion, was Jent for by the Jaid Tord Prince of cleinft & Orange from France, to hear him on the difficulties

I hologi- that occurred then, who after his Ban shment was re-Archilhop of Cambray, went to the faid Prince in the City of Bruffels, where having conferr d with him and quote John the other above mention'd Lords, he drew up a Discourse Petit tom in the form of an advice on the apparent Troubles concerning Religion, which was sent to the King of Spain, directed to his own Person, wherein are contained the true means of previous all Insurections, and extirpating Seels and Heresies This Discourse is found intire in the Chronicle of John Fancis le Petit It is solid and very judicious. This Chronicle says, teniem (it that Baudouin as to the remedy of the Troubles bit the true knot of the business, which the King and his Council might of late have known to be true

Let us note by the by, that the Writers, who speak of him, are in the wrong to say, that from the Netherlands he went to Paris. I hey should have sud, that he did not go to Paris till he had slied (1) to Geneva, where he imbrac'd the Protestant Religion. He boasted, that for the Profession of the Goipel, he had suffer'd Exile, and the loss of all he had But some affirm that his Mother sent him all that he could pretend of his Patrimotent him all that he could pretend of his Patrimo-

Suprap 66 (1) John Francis le Petit, Recorder of Bethune in Artois, in his great Chronicle of the Netherlands to 2 p 75 edit of Dordrecht 1610 (k) See the Words of Antonius Guzinius above ny (1) Fortunis evutum fuisse negant conterranes & (1) Calfamiliares quia extra Cafaris ditionem a matre Go cobaredibus permissum fuit sumere quantum ex haredicoheredibus permissum fuit sumere quantum ex hareditate, si integra fuisset ejus conditio, pervenire ad eum poterat ut ne quidem assis jasturam fecerit Et aliquando coram homini gratulatus sum, quod tam facile recuperasset quod sibi credebat perisse Pray observe a desect of exactness in Papyriu Masso He inys nothing of the Journy which our Baudouin took into the Netberlands, at the sollicitation of the great Lords that would remedy the Disorders which the too great sevenity of the Penal Laws against the Sectaries produc'd daily He speaks only of a Journey perform d under the Government of the Duke of Alba This is to forget the main thing, and to bring the whole matter into a narrow com-Duke of Alba Inis is to forget the main thing, and to bring the whole matter into a narrow compals What I have quoted of Valerum Andreas, Nicolas Burgundium, and feveral others, and which is a very confiderable part of Baudoum's Life, ought to be referred to the Year 1564, under the Government of the Dutchels of Parma It was in that Year that Cassander and Baudoum were made use of by the Male-contents The one (viz) Cassander, was nam'd by the Count of Horn, and the other by (m) Count Lewis of Nassau It was believed that those two Men might pacify the Differences of Religion The Prince of Orange mide great Promifes to Francis Baudouin, and did not only defign to procure him a Professorship in the Civil-Law in the University of Louvain, or in that of Douas, but alfo a Place in the Privy-Council Baudouin returning into France to come back again into the Nether-lands in a proper time, received many Presents from that Prince Count Lewis of Nasjau urg'd him fe veral times to keep his Word, and endeavour'd to dazzle him (n) with the Splendor of a Dignity But Bandouin thought that he should not find his account in the Matter which he had promis'd, all his Friends advis'd him not to concern himself in it, and he was in hopes of a better Reward for the Pains he took to reconcile the Bourbons with the Guises (0) These are things that deserv'd to be toucht upon by Payrius Masso, and yet he has not said a Word of it, but instead of that, he tells us, That the Spaniards defir'd him for Professor of the Civil-Law in the University of Dougs, that they promis'd him a Yearly Pension of 6000 Florins, and a share of 50 From Ni-Thousand I lorins in the Constitution of the Fstates of their chart florid. of those that should be Proscrib d, and that the gund Duke of Alba seces we do him civilly, &c It would p 67, 68 appear very strange that the Spaniards should have honour d a Man in that manner, who had favour'd the Prince of Orange's Designs, if one did not remember Baudouin's Inconstancy, I mean, his exmember Baudouin's Inchanging sides.

The Historian, of the Prince of Orange, adds, that it was the fruit Bergund of Baudouin's Convertations (p) Nemini mirum viable fupra deri debet, tantam illo principe eluxisse cognitionem p 131 ad Philosophia, ex Balduini colloquiis hauserar

I shall say (q) in another place what he did in (q) In the lation to the Paris Massacre relation to the Paris Massacre

(E) The Duke of Anjou caus'd him to come Charpento Paris when the Polish Ambassy was received there I tier (PiBaudouin was that Prince's (r) Master of Requests erre)
He acquired the favour of the Polish Ambassadors (r) Meby Conversing with them, and publish'd a Dif-nage ubicourse de legatione Polonica Dedicated to (s) John Supra pag Zamoski, 'tis believ'd he had gone into Poland the 185. Spring following, if he had not dy'd This is (s) He was all that Papyrius Masso mentions of that Matter Let one of the us therefore take most of the things relead by Masso. all that Papyrius Masso mentions of that Matter Let one of the us therefore take most of the things related by Mr Polish Bullart as fabulous Hyperboles (t) It was, says he, Ambassaduring Baudouin's abode at Angers that the Polish dors Lords, that came to offer their Crown to Henry (t) Bulbuke of Anjou arrived in France It was necessary to latt, us have an Ingenious Man to receive that sumptuous Ambure page basso, and to answer it It was a material thing to relating the Royal Dignity that was offer a It was requisite to speak both like a King, and a grateful Man No Person in France. like a King, and a grateful Man No Person in France, was found more fit to undertake it than the Prudent

vinus, re-Balduin fub fin p tuum

(m) The Brother of William, Prince of

(n) Immihonorum blanditus allicere Nicol Bura gund ubi Supra pag colas Bur-

(r) Me-

(6) Birague Chanrellor of France answer'd, when they made a Speech to Charles IX Chi-Duke of Anjou's Chancellor, reply'd when they made a Speech to that Duke, and when they read the Att of his Election to bim an ib pag m 47 (d) Id 1b P 49 (e)In eandem rem habita sit incertum oratio luculenta à Joanne Zario Za moscio Id p m 47 Note, that the pages are very ill mark d here in Thuanus s edit I rancf 1625 (f) Me-nige ubi Supra pag

(c) Thu-

(g) Papyr Masso ubi Supra pag (h) Menage ibid

(1) Ipsum minime effe clamant Bıturiges qui fuos privignos fimul cum corum avia fpoliaverit Calvin p m 370 Tra-ctar Theolog (k) Papyr

Ib p 261, 262 (*) It ought to have been faid imo, for minime makes 4 contrary Sense to Masso's meaning

(a) Thu- him. He dy'd * in the Arms of his (F) only Daughter in the College of Arras at * Papyr an lib 57 Paris the 24th (G) of October 1573. This is the Sum of what Papyrius Masso, Valerius Misson int.

(b) Bira- Andrew, Aubertus Miræus, Bullart and several others relate of him. It is a very strange pag 261. thing that they have so boldly supprest all that concerns † his changing of Religion One can hardly inser from their Narratives, that he lived once in the Protestant Communion Morers has either by Ignorance, or by Diffimulation omitted the same things. But in requital, he inlarges on the Quarrel between Calvin and Baudouin It was (H) very sharp Beza concern'd himself too tartly in it, even according BAUDOUIN The Duke of Anjou having sent for him to Paris, that great Man appeared in the Halls of the Louvie among the chief Persons of the State he was the Interpreter of that famous Ambassy He was no less applauded for the excellency of his Answer, than the famous Zamoske for that of his Speech, and he made himself so considerable to those Illustrious Ambassadors, that it was resolved to send him into Poland to settle that Crown on the Head of the new King, and to dispose that Nation to receive him, but his last Sickness, that sell upon him at the same time, frustrated him of that Honour, and the Duke of Anjou of the hopes he had of re-establishing the University of Cracow by his means re-establishing the University of Cracow by his means. Nothing could be more glorious than this to a Professor of Angers How comes it then, that one of his best briends does not speak of it in the Elogy which he confecrated to him? No good reafon can be given for it, unless it be to lay, that it is false, for it is against all likelihood, that he should have been ignorant of such a thing, it it had hap-pen'd The makers of Elogies ought to be per-mitted to make use of a more figurative and flattering Language than the Historians, but neither Lying ror Amplifications that will change the nature of an Adventure, ought no more to be allow d them than to Historians, so that it may be said, that Mi Bullart is guilty of an inexcusable Excess Thuanus (a) who has exactly related what concerned the Polish Ambassadors, their Speeches, and the Answers that were made to them, says nothing of our Baudouin It is always the Bishop of Posnania that speaks, and a (b) Chancellor that answers him If any other speaks also, it is (c) Nicolas Christopher Radzievil on the Polish side, and (d) Paul de Foix for Charles IX My Remark would be weaker, if Thuanus had made no manner of mention neither of Zamaski, nor of Baudouin But we weaker, if Thuanus had made no manner of mention neither of Zamoski, nor of Baudouin But we find that he speaks of 'em, and it is thus He says, That there was a printed speech of Zamoski, (e) but that it was not known that it had been spoken, and he adds, that Baudouin caus'd another speech to be printed that was directed to Zamoski Is not this plainly, to make us understand, that Baudouin was not chosen to interpret that Polander's Speech, and to answer it in the Presence of the whole Court? What can be stronger against Mr Bullars's Narrative ?

(F) In the Aims of his only Daughter Her Name was (f) Catherine She was twice marry d, "her "first Husband was John de Sauzay, Sieur de Sainte "Ouanne in Poitou, and her fecond Husband was "Adam le Changeur, Sieur du Cotau in Berri" She was born at (g)Heilderberg Her Mother's Name was Catherine Biton, and was of Rourses. She was the Catherine Biton, and was of Bourges She was the Widow of Philip Labbe, Great Grand-father of Father Lable a Jesust, when she marry'd Baudouin (b)
She had some Children by her first Husband, who with their Grand-mother were ruin'd by their Step-father, as (1) Calvin relates it Our Civilian was more desirous to leave a Daughter behind him than a Son, because he fear'd Cicero's Destiny, whose Son had nothing of his Father's Eloquence
(k) Percentanti mihi malletne filiam quam filium habere, (*) minime inquit, Roma enim Ciceronis filium non agnoscebat loquentem
(G) He dy'd the 24th of October 1573] And not the 11th of November 1572, 28 Valence de des form the 11th of November 1572, as Valerius Andreas fays Thuanus places his Death on the 11th of November 1573 Mr, Menage on the 24th of October 1574, and yet he makes him but 53 Years, 9 Months, and 24 Days old, tho' he had plac'd his Birth on the 1st of January 1520 Those two Faults proceed from la Croix du Maine

(H) The Quarrel between Calvin and Baudouin, was very sharp] I have mention'd the Origin of it (1), when I said that Francis Baudouin distributed a little Book concerning the Re-union of the Reli-gions, whilst the Conference of Pully was held It was an anonymous Latin Discourse, compos'd by Cassander, and Intituled De officio pii ac publica ti anquillitatis were amantis wir in boc religionis dissidio When it was known at Genevi that Baudouin defign d to prejudice the Retorm'd by that little Book, it was thought fit to make him known to (m) His the Publick For which reason, Calvin in (m) 1e- Resutation futing that Piece which he imputed to Baudouin, flung and lash d him somewhat imartly Baudouin defended himself by publishing a Work, for which he had obtain'd a License in the Year 1557 he Revised and joyn'd an Appendix to it (n) In a word, it was his ad leges de famosis libellis & de calumniatoribus commentarius, Printed at Paris by Andrew Wechel in the Year 1562 in 4 Calvins (a) Reply appear'd foon after, attended with feveral Pieces Compos d by good Pens, and besides, they caus'd the Letters to be Printed which that Deserter had Written at leveral times to Calvin (p) Respondit quoque Joannes Crissinus esus conterraneus, & perpetuus, Gallia quoad esus sieri potuit, amicus Adsuncta sunt guorun- abrumpedam insignium virorum scripta, quibus perpetua istius re molimprobitas, summa impudentia, & extrema inscitia ita tus est improvitas, jumma inpudentia, & extrema injeitia ita manifile redarguitui, ut ne nuni quidem possii ignorantiam suom distieri. Additi sunt denique ipsiius litera variis temporibus ad Calvinum scriptæ, ut horrenda ista defettio, ipsius apostatæ t stimonio apud omnes bonos sanciritur. The nature of this Collection will be more exactly known, if I give the Title of it here, which is this January englished ad Faldin which is this, Joannis Calvini risponsio ad Baldu- (n) See ini convicia Ad leges de transsugis, desertoribus & Beza remansoribus, Francisci Balduini epistolæ quadam ad jo iponi nannem Calvinum pro Commentariis Francisci Duareni Balduin J C ad alterum quendam furise epistola, de Francis o p m 202 Baldumo Antonii Contii s C admonitio de falsis Con-209 & stantini legibus ad quendam qui se hoc tempore Juris-Calvin reconsultum Christianum profitetur De officio tum in Re-spons ad consultum Christianum prostetur De officio tum in Religione tum in scriptionibus ictinendo, epistola ad FranElduin ciscum Baldunum sursconsultum Ad legem III C init Impp de Apostatis, joannis Crispini Commentarius ad (o) Intita sursconsultos This Collection containg 117 Piges led Rewas printed in the Year 1562 in 4 Baudouin sponsio composida second Answer, which was printed it ad BaldParis and at Cologne in the Year 1562 Calvin not thinking fit to refute it, publish'd only a (q) Page vitta II wherein he inform d the Publick that he would is in the Answer that Adversary no more It is there that same Vohe Reproaches him for having violated the Laws of sume page he Reproaches him for having violated the Laws of Hospitality by stealing some Papers that might be fit for a persidious Turn (r) Antequam respondee, says he, monendi sunt listores nibil hac monedula esse furacius, ut has parte statem suum partuelem Antonium Balduinum superct, cui ob furandi solertiam, cognemen Ablativi a condiscipulis inditum fuit I anta fuit mes ergs ipsum facilitas, ut quicquid erat in bibliothe ced in the ca mes chartarum l bere me absente, excusserit Subri- I olume of puisse qua in rem suam fore putabat, non aliunde peten- bis Opusses est luculentior probatio, quam ex csus scripto, in quo cula, for se belle prodidit Certe sides esus & hospitalitas hic de- ir is before prehenditur Beza supply'd his place, and reply d to the second Baudouin's second Writing, who speedily put out a third Apology against them It appear'd in the Year 1564, and the Title of it is, Pro Fr Baldurno responsio ad Calvinum & Bezam, cum resutatione calvini de scriptura & traditione (s) The Pretace which Baudouin Compos d on Optatus in the Year it was 1563 night be counted for the 4th Piece It made after was Translated out of Latin into French by Peter that second Viel, who placed it before his French Translation Writing of Optatus, Printed at Paris in the Year 1564 (r) Calvin mea erga ipsum facilitas, ut quicquid erat in bibliothe of Opiatus, Printed at Paris in the Year 1564 This Account affords us Matter for Censuring a Protestant Writer He mentions (t) the Intrigues relating to the Writing of Cassander, and adds, that Baudoun not having been call'd by the Catholicks, nor by the Reformed to the Conference of Possi, dis-ad Balduuni convicia pag 200 Oper Tom 2 (s) See Valer Andreas ubs supra p 214 (t) Commentarius de statu resp & religionis in regno Galliæ som 1 fol m 169 ad ann

Yуу

Responsio ad verfipellem rem qui pacificanrectum [vangelii curfum in It is in the Volume of Opuscula p m 351 er lea front ad fronf ad umi con-Vitia It lume page 365 & Seq (p) Beza Ibid page 102 (q) It 15 wrong pla-(r) Calvivinus in præfat responsionis Theto the (I) Judgment of several Persons of his Party. It cannot be deny'd, but that Baudouin was of a very inconstant and fintastical Humour He,was with respect to Universities, what certain Persons are in relation to Mistresses, who run from a sair one to another, and from one Shoar to another in the Sea of Love very likely, that when he ha'd at Bourges in the Romish Communion, he had no affection for the Protestants than when he Communicated with them in Heidelberg It may also be suspected that he did menther like Popery nor Calvinism, nor Lutheranism de that he would have new-moulded them, and perhaps many other Sects, to many ewo one out of them all. That which is certain, is, that * he went about to reconcile Religions On the other-hand, it cannot be deny'd, but that he had very fine Parts, a † Learning of a large

t See the Remnh C, D, and † Pipyr Mallo ul 14p + 115

cis feriptis infe-Etatus est Calvinum & Bezani, qui edito rciponio ad illius probra iespondent, & illum mendacii perfidit itque im-

(v) Pag m 201 & log pietritis seum esse mflituunt demonfts 3-ie Id sb

(c) Phillippus Marnixius epist Bezam II arthe 6th among Be-Ids Ict-* irip 206, 2c7 tom 3 Oper

(d) 1 bc-I eve he means the Anabap-

(1) Public charged all his Spite on the Ministers, and publish'd charg d all his Spite on the Ministers, and publish'd some (a) Libels against Calvin and Beza, and that they answer d him. This is to declare him the Aggressor, which is false. So that this Author is not as faithful and exact as he should have been (1) Beza concern'd bimself too tartly in it, according to the judgment. I he Piece which he publish d about it, is in the 2d (b) Volume of his Works. Here is a small extract of the Letter that Sainte Alderonde with to him in the Year 1866.

Sainte Aldegonde writ to him in the Year 1566 (c) Statueram præterea certiorem facere te quam bio simifire plerique interpretentur libellos isthic ultre citreque tum in Balduinum tum in Heshusum scriptos, ex eo-que homines malevolos gravem Evangelica veritati conciliare invidiam Sed quoniam audivi te harum rerum ab aliis esse factum certiorem, volui ab hoc argumento supersedere Rogo tamen, observande in Christo parens, ut vel in harum regionum gratiam in quibus non modo cum hypocritis eo nomine nobis est colluctandum, ve-rumetiam ab apertis hostibus giavia multa perpetienda (qui fuam tyrannidem in contentiones nostras derivant) non graveres stylum quam modifissime in Evangelica venitatis Apoliatas ac adversarios temperare. Non qui-dem quod parcendum illus censcam, qui nullum non la-pidem movent, quò nos in invidiam graviorem vocent, sed ne (dum illis pro merito respondetur) quod suis illi vanissimis erga nos maledictis atque calumniis nequeunt consequi (nempe ut Evangelii lucem obruant, ejusque sectatores apertis veritatis hossibus excarnesicandos tradant) id iplum nostris etfi justissimis ac verissimis, non tamen, uti plerique existimant, Evangelica mansuetu-dine dignis vel accusationibus vel responsionibus adeptos se essi glorientur. Id si feceris, uti omnino statuisse te audio, & nos magna invidia levaris, & illis ipsis perfiais Apostatis turpem maledicentia notam inustam reliqueris Itaque ut facias, vehementer hic omnes Fvangelii studiosi (qui te plerique ut parentem amant & colunt, reverenturque ut Praceptorem) etiam atque etiam te rogint It appears from these Words, ist, that other Persons had already inform d Beza of the prejudice which the passionate Writings that had come out against Baudouin, did to the Reformed Some ill-minded Persons took an opportunity from them to make the Reformation odious ady, That he was most humbly desir'd to take off the edge of his too sharp Pen for the future, if it were only in favour of the Reformed of the Netherlands, who had on that occasion, not only the (d) Hypocrites, but also declard and violent Enemies on their Backs 3 That it was to be fear'd, mies on their Backs 3 That it was to be fear'd, that true and most just Answers, but free from Christian C frian Meekness, would accomplish that which the Impudence of Calumniators endeavour'd in vain to obtain, viz That the Light of Truth should be imother'd, and that those who profest it should suffer a cruel Persecution 4. That if Beza condescended to that Advice, as it was said he was resolv'd to do, he would free the Church of Christ from a great Hatred, and the Apostates would remain branded with a note of Calumny He answered Sainte Aldegonde, That if he only had been abus'd, he would no more have been mov'd at it, than if he had heard a Dog bark in the Indies But Religion being concern'd in it, he thought he was oblig'd to treat the Infamous Apostate, who had Calumniated it, according to his desert, and that he troubled himself but little with the Scruples of modern and the Calumniated C derate Men. The impudent Lies of that Calum-mator, fays he, must needs at that rate move them as much is the vigor of our Aniwers Every Body may tee that it is necessary that I should set down his own Words, for many might imagine, that I per-vert the lense of them Here they are (e) Superest at al externam tuam Epistelam paucis respondeam Baldumun & Heshusium nonnulls vellent moderatius a me fuisse r prehensor Ego verò cuperem isos aquè assici in pident simus corum convictis in homines innoxios contor is al jujies noftres defensionibus Quid non enim in optimum illum & innocentifframe Det fervum jaculatu est fadou ille Apostata? in me antiquid non denit? Et tamen Deu milu testis est in me antiquid non denit? Et tamen Deu milu testis est in me antiquid non multo magis me, si res mea production of the petalantia commoveri potuisse, quam si nodis regionalus verlantia commoveri potuisse, quam si nodis roccionalus verlantia audriissem canes in India latrare. Sad quam per nostrum latu viderem Gallicas omnes Ecclesias ab esto conductitio rabula confodi, & tanquam seditiosos ac-cusari, quetcunque istorum latronum telis corpora sua non objecerunt, ut facere necesse futt, nift & Chrifts caunon objectrome, us facere necesse suit of Chrises caufam of regiam majestatem prodere malusseme, poecarus scilicet, quod ejus calumnis sic responde, ut of insum sycophantam suis coloribus depingerem, of causa nostrae bonitatem probarem staque quod all sum attinet, non dissimulo me nullam peccasum application of moderatos sistes mibil morano. De Hespusto, minimum potuisse alius argue mentum tractionam, sovor causam sum potuisse alius sed sugularies se stant homenic of susception of agi Sed fingularis that ifius hominis & insectia & audacia in hos velutt scopulos me adegit, ubi tamen spero me naufragium non secisse

I shall make only two Reslections on that Answer

In the first place, it is undeniable that Readers give some reason to believe that they are more offended at the Tartness of an Apologist than at that of an Aggressor Let a Writer defame all the World, the dead, the living, Sovereigns, Subjects, his Bretham All Religion, the Adversaries to his Party, let have ercise that Trade several Years successively, come more malicious and sharper as he grows off, I confess, that the Readers perceive it, and blame him for it, but if at last that Man is very ill treated by those whom he has provok'd, you will hear an hundred times more Complaints against them, than against him His very Enemies think it strange, that he was not treated with more management They have read with pleasure what was publish'd to his disadvantage, and yet they will not flick to say, that he ought to have been spar'd It is an effect of the immoderate Inclination that Men have for Censuring others Some People are pleas'd to approve of nothing But let us not judge so of Moderate Persons, whose Opinion is mention'd by St. Alargenda Doubtless, they were yet more of ended at the satyrical Audaciousness of Baudening and the satyrical Audaciousness of Baudening and the satyrical Audaciousness of control of the satyrical Audaciousness of saturations of short these Control of the satyrical Audaciousness of the than at the Invectives of those that Confuted him, but they cou'd have wish'd that Slandering had been the Character of the Enemies of the True Religion, and that those who justify'd it had distinguish d themselves by Wisdom and a moderate Style They hated a satyrical Humour, that makes a mixture of Defamations and Reasons, wherein Perional Injuries are the predominant part, and they could not very well hate it without some uneasiness, whish it was common to their English and their Friends Wherefore they wish days and their Friends Wherefore they wish days are form other Reasons, that we have the content of the conte for that, as for some other Reasons, that it is one one of the distinguishing Characters of tholick Writers, and that by adopting it, the testants should not take away that note of In from it, wherewith they would have it bra I fay, in the fecond place, That Bezs indulg Imagination too much, for if the Book which he writ against Baudouin, was the only one left us, we should not only take that Civilian for a most infamous Rogue, but also for an Author without any Wit, Learning and Merit He has therefore made a deceitful description of him, since it cannot be deny'd by those who have read what Baudenin has writ, and what others have faid of him, that he was a Man of very great Parts An Author may be excus d on the Infirmities of Humane Nature, for not owning that his Enemy is Learned, Eloquent and Ingenious But if he be allow'd to conceal those Truths, he ought at least to abstain from denying them The Passion which an Author shews in the Works he composes against the Enemies of his Religion, may proceed sometimes from a great Zeal, wherefore it ought to be said, that

(a) Theodor Beer ep # - p

extent, an admirable Memory, and an Eloquence so much the more persuasive, be- Statura cause he was a * Handsome Man, and had a †† strong and pleasing Voice must not think therefore that there is any exaggeration in what has been sud (K) of his Auditory He eat and drank but little, and he work'd much † He did per omnot approve || that Hereticks should be put to Death, and | reprov'd Calvin very ness at at is gradus very gradus very much on the account of Serverss He was no Collegue of Cujas, 4s some (L) affirm I shall say something about his (M) Writings, and of his being accus'd of Plagiarism

(a) Beza Hist Eccle siast Book 4 p 645

(b) See Burgun dius mords in Remark (c)Beza in respons ad Bald p 203 (d) Balduresponfione fol (e) That 15 to say, the 20th of October 1548

WHE. THER ın Personal Reproaches the Ag- • greffor ought to leave the Defendant's Writings fwer'd.

Anger is equivocal between the Temper and Devo-tion But Idon't see how the Haughtiness of a Writer can be reduc'd to an Evangelical Principle I call Haughtiness the Disdain he expresses for his Adversary, and the Affectation of speaking of him, as of the most wretched of all Authors, tho' the as of the most wretched of all Authors, tho' the contrary be notoriously false, and is made evident from his Employments and Writings I wish I had not found in the History of the Reformed Churches, that (a) Baudouin dy'd a wretched Pedant Such a Word ought not to have flow'd from the Pen of Beza, who was then Professor of Divinity, and formerly Professor of Greek The Invisity of calling 10, out of Contempt, those that aftruct Youth, ought to have been left to Cavaers He ought not to have dishonour'd a Profession that was of the same kind with his fion that was of the same kind with his If it be faid, that he did not Place Boudown's Pedantry in his being a Professor, but in his Personal Derects, it is to say nothing at all, since this Civilian did not want (b) politeness and knew how to Converse with great Men, and enter into their Intrigues The desire of treating him distainfully, oblig'd Beza (c) to say, that when he was propos'd to the King of Navarre in 1561 to be imploy'd by him, that Prince did not know that there was such a Person as Baudouin in the World This is one of those things which Authors advance at random of those things which Authors advance at random, and which they cannot justify afterwards (d) Baudouin affirms, that he was recommended to that Prince by the Queen of Navarre, to whom he had the Monour to pay his Duty on the Wedding-day (e) of that Queen's Daughter with that Prince Heasterns, that the Favour and Good-will of the He affirms, that the Favour and Good-will of that Princess confirm'd the choice that was made of him for the Professorship of the Civil-Law at Bourges. This is very likely, for as she was Dutchess of Berry, and promoted the Interest of Learning, there was no attaining to any Preferment in that University without her participation. How was it possible for Bers to confute Francis Bouldowing about this point? It may be, some will say, that sometimes the Zeal for Religion moves Divines to treat a Man whom they Result with the greatest Contempt. and as a wretched Author, for they think tempt, and as a wretched Author, for they think it expedient for the good of the True Church, that her Sons should be persuaded that none but ignorant Men oppose her I answer, that a Zeal that should occasion a Conduct so contrary to Sincerity, Resson and Justice, and yet more to the strict Morality of JESUS CHRIST, can never pass but for a very blind Zeal I will not mention the Inconveniencies of such a Conduct It might be faid to such Men, You may easily defend your Cause, since you acknowledge that it is so ill attack'd, your Triumphs are no fign that you fight for the Truth

I must make yet another Observation deguide did not give all the necessary Advices, he forgot one that was very material. He did not advise to make an Aniwer to Baudouin's third Apology. I know that in matters of Right, a Manneeds not be so nice as to leave none of his Adverfaries Works unanswer'd In a 2d Reply, things may be put in the best lustre that can be given them, and then a Man may promise himself that the understanding Readers will not think it strange if he does not enter the Lists again But in matters of Fast which concern Personal and defaming Accustons the Aggrassor must never be silent first. fations the Aggressor must never be silent first, for if he does not reply to the Apologies of the accus'd Person, it is a sign that he wants Proofs, and that he is forc'd to stop at the opposition of a meer Negative Bandomn's third Answer is full of Belyings and Recriminations, nay, it contains some things for the clearing of himself, so that Bees ought not to have left it unanswer d He that quits the Field in these sorts of Quarrels, loses the Battle, the Plaintiff and the Defendant are oblig'd to answer all the new Reasons that are alledg'd against them, tho' they were to publish twenty Cafes in their own Defence Take notice of the Epithet new, which I make use of, for if the Accuser, for Example, or his Friends for him, should multiply Writings continually, repeating the same things only with some small alterations, as to the Form, and never answering either the Matters of Fact, or the Reasons of the accused Person, the latter might keep a prosound Silence, his first Apology might be sufficient for him, till among the multiplied of Cases multisside of Cases multisside of Cases multisside on the same and tude of Cases publish'd by his Adversary, one was found containing fome new thing

(K) What has been said of his Auditory] Sainte Marthe affirms, That Bishops, Counsellors and Swordsmen appear'd there, as having seen it (f) Homo, says he, facundissimus, ipsoque oris ac totius corporis habitu non injucundus, ex historiarum & civilis disciplina conjunctione, suis praecetionibus gratiam & vene-Ac eum quidem Sape vidimus hoc flendido summæ dottrinæ apparatu, Lutetjæ profitentem, † See his cum ad ejus auditorium, permulti primæ notæ homines, 2d Apolo episcopi, senatores, equites, libenter & maxima free gy against quentia confluerent

(L) He was no collegue of Cujas as some affirm] Beza 18 one of 'em (g) It is a shameful thing for you, iny he to him, to reflect upon Calvin as having a humour incompatible with others, naturam and mark for you nus, elog have made your felf intolerable to all your Colle- 1.6 2 gues wheresoever you came If you deny it, Du. p 86 edit aren, le Conte, Cujas, Hotman, &c will convince Jones you of the contrary Baudou n answer'd, that Cu- 1'96 See jas was his Successor at Bourges, but not his Collegue, and that they had never seen each other pyrius (h) Cujacius Balduino in ea Schola successit collega nunquam fuit, imo alter alterum nunquam vidit. Per literas aliquando collocuti funt, sed tam amice ut nihil magu. Imo Cujacius. Balduinum rogavit in illud suum collegium ut rediret Si nobis non credis Cujacium in-

(M) Something about his Writings, and his being, &c] In his 23d Year he appear d in Print, for in 1542, he publish at (1) Louvain, Leges de rerustica, stem Novella conflictutio prima de haredibus & legi. Fal., fol 85 cidia Justiniani, which he had translated out of (1) Viler Greek, and accompanied with a Commentary Andreas, This was reprinted the (k) following Year at Bassi ubi supra by Operinus with a large Book of Antony Garron In pag 22, 1545 he publish at Paris Prolegomena de jure civili, (k) And and in 1546, Comentaris in libros IV Institut Juris not in the Civilis Justinians Imperatoris His Commentary on Tearis 34 the Laws of the twelve Tables was printed leveral as it is in time. times The 3d Edition is of Basil 1557 in 8, by Creiner Oporinus, who printed at the same time his sures containe Civilis Catechesis, and his Commentary ad editla m 236 veterum principum Romanorum de Christianis, a Work Atland wherein he maintains Toleration, and which for the model a common dence published by that Author But here is a thing fault of that must not be omitted, and which I find in Printers, Mr Menage (m) "At the request of the Prince of the sociality of the made a Treatise of the means to attain or determined to a good Reformation in Religion That Treating ties having been published by a Carmelite, who instead of had left his Order, and who added much of his 154. had left his Order, and who added much of his own to it, Balduin complain'd of that proceeding (1) Cloud to the Prince of Conde The Prince banish d de Sainthat Monk out of his Court, and gave Balduin the dicta veleave to defend himself On that permission dicta velaulum wrote his Advice on the Reformation terum, of the Church in Latin, and afterwards in French fol 6 verand made his answer to a Preaching Calumnia- for in French "In Randow's chied Answer In Baudoin's third Answer it aptor in French pears, that by order from the Queen Mother he nage ubit went to fee the Prince of Conde in Prison, and confupra page fer'd with him about the reconciling of Religions, 158 and that he was commanded to write a Book confus Fx cerning that Conference which was renewed after Balduini that Prince was fet at liberty The composing of that responsi-Writing hindred him from going to carry a Letter one ad to the Duke of Guise (n) Neither ought I to forget Calvinum that his Constantinus sive de legibus Constantinus Imperators, printed at Basil in the Year 1556, was put in fol 101 the Index Libroram expurgandorum, and that he passes verso & Y y y 2 for 102

gradus venusta ad Note, # Vocem canoram, firmiffima latera ut docens Periclis ınstar fulminare Videretur Id ibid bique parciffimus пилочат otiofus Id ibid See the Remark D 2d Apolo-

> (f) Sammarthapyrius Mailo p (g) Bern ad Bald (b) Refponi pro Bildumo spitame p A transpo-(m) Me-

* Theod Beza in vita Cal-VIDI ad ann 1561 p m 381 †LaCroix duMaine, Speaks of him with praise, and Says that he died the 23d of August 1580

Lx Menagu notis Galli-CIS IN VItam Petra Ærodu, P 176

ared 40

(a) Valer Andreas ubi fupra, pag 225 (b) Non hujus fed Petri Baldum funt Id ibid (c) See du Verdier

Vau-Privas Bıbl Franc p 366 (d) Catherinot, Calwinifm of Berri, fub

(e) He fign'd the Letters so which be writ to Calvin (f) Beza, respons ad Baldu-Ini convitia, pag (g) See the piru Masionis pei Matago-Matagonıbus, p m 269 (h) Tu es hermaphroditus in negotus flatus ficut fuit Balduinus in negoti-15 religio-DIS Id bid () 11 16 0 281 (k) Id 1b .69 (1) Menage ubi fupra (m) Here

Note, That Theodorus Beza * says that he died, either in the prosecution of a Law Suit, or of Vexation because another was picseird before him to follow the Duke of Anjou into Poland Many Reflexions might be made on the oddness of (N) his Fortune

BAUTRU DES-MATRAS (Maures) this Lieutenant of the Provosting of Angers His Sons and Grandsons have made has Name very famous, as shall be shewed

BAUTRU DES-MATRAS (John) Son of the foregoing was an Advocate in the Parliament of Paris, and one of the best of them, for Antony Loised in his Dialogue about Advocates spoke of him in this manner; Bautru bad a bighter than they all, I do not say that he was more Learned than any of them, but his Tongue was detter hung, and if I may say so, more Angevin † William and Ben. BAUTRU DES-MATRAS were his Brothers. William Counsellor in the Great Council and Counsellor. were his Brothers William, Counsellor in the Great Council, and Great Reporter of France 4, was Father of the famous Mr Bautru of the French Academy, of whom we shall speak anon Ren', Assessor (X) in the Presidual of Angers, and Mayor of An-

for the Author of a Book that was printed at Strafburg, Sub Christianorum Jureconsultorum nomine contra Duarenum in the Year 1556, but he (a) disown dit In Gesner's Epitome another Work is ascribed to him which is of (b) another Baudouin, they are Notes on Gicero's Offices It was he (c) that Tranflated an History of Poland into French, written in Hated an eartery of Polana into French, written in Latin by John Herburg of Fulfin Castellan of Samoc I hat French Translation was printed at Parus in 1573 in 4' without the Translator's Name (d) He d sguis'd himself sometimes under the name of Peter de la Roche, (e) Petrus Rochius, and call'd himself Atrebatius, by way of allusion to the JC Trebatius and to his Country and to his Country

As for the plagiarism that was laid to his charge, As for the plagiarism that was laid to his charge, you may read what follows (f) Pudendum est, & nimium illiberale illud plagium, qued ipse insiciari non potest de annotationibus in Justiniani Institutiones Brest-bano praceptors suo surrepsis Omitto qua non mode forretus & Othomanus, quorum sortassis samilaritate tum abutebatur ex vectere illa formula ra ruo obbor nova, sed etiam maximi ipsius inimici Baro, & Duarenus optimo jure ex istius centonibus repetunt Omitto etiam turpisfimorum erratorum Centurias, quas Contius & ipfe Juris interpres in issus Constantino, quamous eniguo libello, annotavit That Contius mention'd by Beza was Protessor in the Civil Law at Bourger, and was call'd Antony le Conte Hotman is also mention'd in that pallage He was one of Baudoum's Adversaries, and treated him with (g) the utmost contempt, nay he call'd him Hermaphrodite, and it feems that he took this word in its natural fense, tho'
(h) elsewhere he takes it figuratively (i) Uxor (inquis) he ipeaks to Papyriss Masso, min nulla nec unquam fuit Nec mirum Massone sequidem Baldum: praceptors tus similes es quem ommes dece-bant esse Hermaphroditum. He pleases himself with saying that Cujas slighted Baudoum. (k) Cum omnes Book inti- scient qued pradictus Cujacius non secerit unquam nume-tul'd Stii- rum de Balduino plus quam de suis veteribus ocreis gilis Pa- (i) Mr Menage observes and wonders at it, that Cujas never mention'd Baudonin We have feen (m) that he writ very obliging Letters to him

Matagonidem de Fortune | He was a Man of Wit, Leaining, Eloquence, and Dexterity He was a handiom Man, he underfrood the Intrigues of the Court Some of those qualities which I have specified were very eminent in him Great Princes imploy'd him feveral times in matters of consequence, which put him in the way to pieferment, and yet he could never advance himself much, and I think he did not die very rich How many Perfons inferior in all things to this great Civilian rife very high, attain to great Offices, maintain themselves in them, acquire a good Name, great Riches, and much Anthority? They have nothing shuning in them, they do not excell in any thing, nor have any eminent qualities. In vain we seek in them any thing that extend the state of cites admiration, it will rather be found in other Persons who nevertheless do continue always in a mean condition, how often foever they have had a prospect of a favourable opportunity to raise them ielves Most of those who consider that course of Human affairs find somthing in it which displeates and vexes them, and they discharge their ipste on that which they call injustice or blindness of Fortune They seldom hit the true reason of it, and confider but little another cause which produces this oftner than they think They ought to know that eminent qualities will not ratie a Man to the height which they feem to promise him, unless they be seconded by some other qualities, or not cross by certain defects, for not being seconded, or being cross, they are an insufficient cause, and consequently according to the Mechanical Laws, they must fail of their effect. Now this is the case of many of those who are Men of great Parts they want certain things wherewith the Difthofe noble Talents would perform wonders, and proprtiwithout which they can antifer advance nor jupport them They can be the confer and prothe quality they are the concert and prothey can be the confer and proportion between them that ought to be 60 that instead of affisting each other, they ruin one another. It is therefore no wonder, it a Man does not raise himself, and even if he miscarries with fuch an equipage As for those that attain to a great Fortune and maintain themselves in it, without having any eminent qualities, it is not to be wonder'd at There is fuch a concert, or fuel a wonder'd at There is such a concert, or such a proportion between their good and bad qualities, that they reciprocally support each other and form thereby a compleat principle, which ficient for the production of a thousand profitable Adventures It is with this as 'tis with Machines, for how coursely soever they be made, they will play better if their parts are plac'd and proportion'd as they ought to be, than the most admirable Machine would do if some pieces were taken from at the most admirable man consequences. or if some were added to it that did not correspond with the rest It is not enough to joyn with the knowledge with World that of Books, much Wit and Lloquence, and several other eminent qualities if otherwise you are rough, capricious, indifcreet, lary, timorous, selfish, subject to bate jealousies, presumptuous, uncapable of following a redious business, inconstant, fitter to begin a business of the cropical state of the cr hundred new Projects, than to bear the trou-ble of managing the same business for some time, I fay, if you are a Man of fuch a Stamp, and of notwithstanding your great qualities you don't raife your felf, do not blame fate, the insquity of the your felt, do not blame Fate, the iniquity of the Age, nor the malignity of your Neighbours but blame your felf for it impute the cause of it to the disproportion of the qualities that have been allotted you I reckon Reacis Bandowin among those that are in such a case Note, that some Persons among those of that Stamp do themselves instruct they know the markets and a second of the stamp do themselves instruct they know the markets and a second of the second of selves justice they know the mixture that renders all their noble Talents useless, and if they mustar, it is not against their Neighbours, but against own Temper, and against Nature that consider possess whatever she had given them to enable the to attain to a great elevation However I de see intend to comprehend in this Hypothesis a number of particular cases, wherein the cause of a bad and good Fortune are altogether external, I mean, that those who notwithstanding their emimean, that thole who notwithstanding their eminent qualities, remain in obscuriety, have had no favourable opportunity to raise their Fortune, and that those who have attain'd to great preferments without any merst, have found themselves in such an active whirling of Circumstances, that they have had no need to second it, and that their incapacity was no obstacle against them. But remember that Bandenin did not want occasions he was often put in the way

he was often put in the way

(a) Con(x) Affebr m the Presideal of Angers | Doubtless test CaDaubigue spake of him upon occasion of a Woman thol de Daubigne spake of them upon occasion or a vi unian third use that was faid to be (n) possest with the Devil (o) Sancy, She has two Doule, says he, one is cast d Beelzebub, Book 1 and the other Assarch The first is a rude Devil, a chap 6 great Enemy of the Huguenots, that beats every body, p m 352 and

EPFECT of the Proportithe qualties of one fame

fier of Romorantin. J# 1 COO

gers in 1604, was Father of Charles, Canon of Angers, known by the Name of PRIOR DES-MATRAS, and Author of fome (1) Treatises of Diventy * I think it is the *Ex Me-fame Prior des-Matras, who was so famous for his (Z) witty Sayings, that he came mag ibid but little short in them of Mr Bring of the French Academy

BAUTRU (William) Control de Serrant, Counsellor of State in Ordinary, Introductor of Embassadors, Embassador to the Archdutches in Flanders, and the King's Envoy in Spain, England, and Servey, was of Angers a, and Son of William Bautru Counfellor in the great Council is He was one of the finest Wits of the XVIIth Century
He was shove all things admir'd for his (A) Jests and since Repartees, and we find in Academy the Waster of his time a thousand Marks of his great Reputation. One of 7 them P 3+7 says, First a Man that makes part of his Philosophy to consist in admiring but very few things, and who for these sifty Years has been the delight of all the Ministers and Favourites, and generally of all the great Men in the Kingdom, and was never their flatterer. He was admitted into the Bauch Academy in the herinance of its Foundation, he could not well and the Life. ted into the Bronch Academy in the beginning of its Foundation, he cou'd not well of Willibe forgotters being so well known to Cardinal de Richelieu. His mirriage with am MeMartha Bigot, Daughter of a Master of the Accompts of Paris dul not prove (B) a nage, pag very happy one. (A fine subject for common places and Reflections) A Son proceed- 376 ed from it, (viz) William BAUIRU Count of Serrant, Chancellor to the Duke of , Coffar, Orleans, and Husband of Mary Bertrand, Daughter of Mace Bertrand Lord de la Basini- 1st Vol of ere, and Treasurer of the Exchequer From this marriage proceeded two Daughters, Letters, P Margaret and Mary Magdalen. The first was married to the Marquis de Vaubrun, as

and would have beat Monsieur Matras of Angers of he had not taken a Gudenland faid to him, Beelzebub, you Rive, if you play your tricks with me I'll beat you live a Devil The Clorgy of Angers would have two Devils to be first examin'd by the Church, one of the Judges of the Town Said, that their Honour was concern d in it, and in order to examin those Spirit he began to speak Latin, and Matras to Speak Greek See the Remark B of the Article Grandier

(a) Apud Menard (a) iay of him in his Lift of the Writers

Menard (b) iay of him in his Lift of the Writers

Menary of Angers Carolus Bautru Pershaun of Angers Carolus Bautru, Presbyter, Doctor Theolo-per Professor, Ecclesiae Mauricianae Andegavensis Ca-manus, maximi ingenis scientiarumque dotibus excel-Defe of Pe- dens, familiaque inter clarissimas pracipus Scripsit ter Ay- de santissimo Eucharistia Sacramento trastationem, de Jantissimo Eucharipia Sacramento tramationem, brevi publicandam, quam vidimus Intersa typis exposut disputationem ad articulum quartum quastionis 76 tertia partis Summa Theologica Santis Thoma, utrum tota quantitas dimensiva corporis Christi sit in hoc facramento, Andegam, apad Antonium Hermilio 1628

nault, 1638

(2) So famous for his mitty dayings Mr Cousin

(b) observes that Mr Menage's Memory supplyed him with many witty sayings that he deared in his Youth, and that the left of them were those of the Prior is to he preserved before the Prior is to be preserved before the Judgment, the Prior is to be preferr'd before the other Baueru as to witty Sayings, for he could not be ignorant that Mr Menage had as well learn'd those of Bautru the Lay-man, as those of Bautru the Ecclesiastick The Menagiana shews us that Mr Menage had improv'd much more in the School of the first, than in that of the other

(A) By his mitty Sayings] I defire no other proof of it, than the turn which the Poet St Amant took to laugh at those that lov'd filly Jests and

Quibbles

Si (c) vous oiez une equivoque, Vous jetsen d'aise vosre toque, Et prenez son sens malautru

Pakery
Poet of m

228

Consider the period of them of the sold in the state of the state of the sold in the state of the sold in the state of the state of the sold in the state of the sold in the state of the state of the sold in th

See there

Pages 39,

(B) His Marriage

aid not prove a very happy one

A fine subject for common places] Since what if a like I am going to say was printed at Paris with first edition

priviledge, I may doubtless publish it in Helland, without fear of being blam'd by Judicious Per they have

they have

"Boutra", and tho' they siv'd together where Mr and as Seignelsy lives at present, yet neither of them

"own'd themselves a Father or a Son Mr de Bau
"own'd themselves a Father or a Son Mr de Bau
"own'd themselves a Father or a Son Mr de Bau-" rrs faid that he would own Mr de S

" his Son provided he was a good Man, it may his Son provided he was a good Man, it may be he had fome resion to question whether he was so or not. The violent Suspicions which he had of his Wife's unfaithfulness had moved him to prosecute her at Law, and to be revenged of her. And indeed he caus'd his Servant to be seized, whom he accus'd of having had some intelligence with his Wife, and caused him to be condemned to he heave'd at his feet. him to be condemn'd to be hang'd at his first Trial The Servant appeal'd, and was only condemn'd to the Galleys, because he made it appear that Mr Bautiu had done himself justice, and had used him ciuelly This Affair having made "a great noise, Mi de Bautru resolv'd to laugh at
"it as well as others, and would say sometimes."

If the Bautru's are Cuckolds, they are not Fools

His Wife would always be call'd Madam de Nogent, (b) notwithstanding her Mirriage, saying,
"that she would not be call'd Madam Bautrou (1)

by Queen Mary de Medicis, who could then be call'd Madam Bautrou (1)

by Queen Mary de Medicis, who could then be defined in the second Ldition of the Minagiana

If Wit could secure a Man from a cuckold's thousand for one should fay trisle. Mr de Bautru would have been exempted a great noise, Mi de Bautru resolv'd to laugh at Alorns, which to many People feat, and to many call a trifle, Mr de Bautru would have been exempted from that difgrace, but Wit, Courage, a noble Meen, and even the Royal Dignity are no fecurity against it That Difgrace has something common with Death, but there is this difference, Death spares no crown'd heads, and there are every where very virtuous Oueens. Norwich and we where very virtuous Queens Notwithstanding should seem this difference the same common place of conso- to me to lation ought to make an infinite number of People bear patiently those two things. A Poet who sins that was a Philosopher endeavour'd very nobly to in that Lady spire an indifference for death by this reason good was call d Kings, the most formidable Monarchs, the greatest Mideino-Warriors, the finest Genius s, the inventors of iselle of Arts, the most subtle Philosophers are dead, and you that are an inconsiderable private Man, and a Slave to a thousand shameful Passions, dare complain that Death will not spare you?

Luming sis calle stigm bones Ance' reliquit

Married

One making multis quam to fine, improbe, robus

Minde

Qui melier multis quam tu fuit, improbe, rebus Inde ali: multi reges, rerumque potentes Occiderunt magnis qui gentibus imperitarunt Ille quoque isse, viam qui quondam per mare magnum Stravit, iterque dedit legionibus ire per alium,

Lumine adempto animam moribundo corpore fudit Scipiades bell fulmen, Carthaginu horror Offa dedit terra proinde ac famul' infumus effet Adde repertores doctrinarum atque leporum, Adde Heliconiadum comites, quorum unus Homerus Scepera potitus eadem aliu sopitu' quiete est

Ipse Epicurus obit decurso lumine vita, Qui genus humanum ingenio superavit, & omnis

(b) I don t under stand this, iselle or when she M de Bautru Now this is not at all likely , for Mr Bautru', had a Brother who Mr de Negent, which sh we that that Lord-Ship did not

Ship did not came into their Family by Mr. de Bautru's Marriage (1) Inis place has been mended in the 2d Edition. It was not intelligible in the 1st but since that Lady's name was written according to the Italian Pronounciation, one may plainly see why she would not bear it. It was then a time of quibbles, and she might have been railed a thousand ways in allusion to the word trou (hole)

one on the rault, P 177

(b) Jour-Learned. the 11th of August 1692 p.m

544

(c) St Athe Posm sutitl'd the Palery

the Year 1665

(a) Lu-

cret lib

3 fub fin See Bernibridement of Gaffen-

herbe, p

(c) Servi-us Sulpicius epist ad Ciceronem

It is the 5th of the 4th Book ad familiares p m 193, 194 193, 194 (d) Jeru-falem of Taffo Canto 15

(e) Ruti-lius Nu-

matianus itiner lib # 413 (f) Aufonius Epigram 35 p m 30

521 dus tom 7 pag 27 edit 1684

The fecond was marry'd to Edward Francis Colbert Count shall be said hereaster de Mauleurier, Lieutenat General in the Armies of France, and Brother to Mr Colbert The Menagiana informs me, that the Grandfather of those two Ladies dyd, being about * Seventy seven Years of Age, and (C) properly speaking, without Confession * It was in He was (D) no devout Man, and had been very much concern'd for (E) his Wise's Unfaithfulncss

BAUTRU

Prastrinxit stellas exortus uts atherius sol Tu vero dubitabu & indignabere obire Mortua quoi vita est prope sam vivo, atque videnti, Qui somno partem, & (a)

Let us fay the same to those inconsiderable private Persons that are vex'd at the Intrigues of their Wives You torment yourselves for a thing from which the most powerful Monarchs, the greatest Warriours, the finest Wits, the most learned and zealous Doctors are not exempted What are you, that you should be more nice than they? learn by those great Examples to bear your Missortune pa-

Give me leave to say by the by, that our Mal-herbe made use of Lucretius's Thought in the Epitaph of a Prince

Je suis poudre toutes fois, Tant la Parque a fait ses loix Egales & necessaires, Rien ne m'en a su parer Aprenez ames vulgaires, A mourir Sans murmurer

On this place of Malherbe, Mr Menage mentions the

(b) See bu Observationson Mal

I shall also observe by the by, that the like Morality has been made use of to teach all Men that ought not to complain for being subject to Death It has been represented to them, that the greatest Cities are destroy d, and that they are so unreasonable as to think it strange that Man should dye (c) Ex Asia rediens, cum ab Ægina Megaram versus navigarem, capi regiones circumcirca prospicere Post me erat Ægina, ante Megara, dextra Piraeus, sinistra Corinthus qua oppida quodam tempore siorentissima fuerunt, nunc prostrata & diruta ante oculos jacent Cafuerunt, nunc prostrata & diruta ante oculos jacent Capi eromet mecum sic cogitare. Hem, nos homunculi indignamur, si quis nostrum interiit, aut occisus est, quorum vita brevior esse debet, cum uno loco tot oppidum cadavera projesta jacaant! Tasso has copy'd that Thought very well

Giace (d) l'alta Cartago, a pena i segni De l'alte sue ruine il lido serba Muoiono le citta, muoiono i regni, Caopre i fasti, e le pompe arena ed herba,
E l'huom d'esse mortal par che si salegni
O nostra mente cupida e superba!
Consult the 30th Dialogue of Balzac, and you will find there a fine imitation of that Thought in Latin Verses, but you will not find these Words of Rutiliai there tilius there

Non (e) indignemur mortalia corpora folui,

Non (e) indignemur mortalia corpora solvi,

Cernimus exemplis oppida posse mori

Nor these Verses of Ausonius

Miremur (f) perisse homines? monumenta fatiscunt,

Mors etiam faxis marmoribusque venit

Scarron, who turn'd every thing into Burlesque, made, as every body knows, a fine Sonnet upon that Thought It begins thus Superbes monument de l'orgueil des humains,

Pyranides, tombeaux, dont la vaine structure,

The last six Verses run thus

Par linjure des ans vous êtes abolis, Ou du moins la plussant vous êtes demolis Il n est point de ciment que le tems ne dissoude Si vos marbres si durs ont senti son pouvoir, Dois-je trouver mauvais qu'un mechant pourpoint noir,

Qui m'a duré deux ans soit percé par le coude?

Let us not forget the Authors of a low Rank They and first of all myself, ought to make some use of this Morality The Faults that escape them are pardonable, because the most famous and learned Writers, as the Scaligers, the Salmasius's have committed many over-sights If such Authors are often mistaken, those of a mean rank in the Common-wealth of Learning, ought not to be asham'd of their mistakes, no more than other Nations were asham'd of being overcome after the downons were asham'd of being overcome after the downfal of Carthage, (g) Post Carthageness vinci nessimes purchaset This is what I faid in the Project (h) of this rus lib 2. Dictionary Observe, that it ought not to be pretended that I contradict here what I faid there, and (h) Townich I had more amply set forth in an (i) other mards the place, That great Authors are most subject to commit Faults. This is very true in certain respects, and nevertheless, their mistakes may serve for a graph comfort and excuse to the vulgar Writers. But (i) In the an ill use ought not to be made of 'em, we must endeavour to aim at Persection.

endeavour to aim at Perfection

(C) And properly freshing, without confession. The MaimMenagians affords me the proof of this (k) "Mr bourg p

"de Bautru was about Seventy and seven Years of Age when he dy'd He came often to see me (k) Page "two or three Years before his Death, on the 104 of the "Days that I held a Conference in my House I 2d edit of
"was at one of my Friend's when word was "brought me that he was fallen into an Apople"chick Fit I ran to see him, but he had already "lost he Section Perfect to the section of the section chick Fit I ran to see him, but he had already lost his Senses Father de Harrouy: was sent for to Confess him When they told him what he was come for, he faid to him with a troubled Voice, Father, I do not know you, neither do you know me, and yet I must tell you the most fecret things that I have done I saw him dye

He dy'd as it were without speaking, and even without Confession He Confest him-"felf indeed, if Confession may be made by an "Interpreter As he was stammering, a Footman explain'd to the Confessor what his Master would say I leave you to think, what a Confession that was "If the Question should be ask d, Why his ordinary Confessor was not sent for it may perhaps be answer'd, Because he had none It is likely, that he was one of those who put off the Sacrament of Penitence to their last Hours

(D) He was to December 1.

(D) He was no Devous Man] This may be in-ferr d from what I have just now faid, that there was no acquaintance between him and the Confesfor that prepar'd him for Death But can any thing be more express than the Testimony of his (1) Mena-Son? "(1) After the Death of Mr de Bautru, when giana pag "they were about felling his House, they found his of "Chappel out of order and decay'd "I is no won- (m) Than der, said Mr de (m) S for Mr de Bautru uto say,

Son? "(I) After the Death of Mr de Bautru, when a they were about felling his House, they found his ros "Chappel out of order and decayd" "I is no wond" der, said Mr de (m) S for Mr de Bautru we to say, "minded as little his Chappel, as he took care of Serrant, this Kitchin and Library" If he shew d any outward appearante, it was only for Decency serior, this Kitchin and Library" If he shew d any outward appearante, it was only for Decency serior, this kitchin and Library" If he shew d any outward appearante, it was only for Decency serior, this serior of the Passion to meditate upon, which he thought (n) Menawould affest him most, and he fixt his Thoughts on the giana, p three Dice, that is to say, on the place where it is said, that the Soldiers cast the Lot on our Saviour's Garment He lov'd Gaming much (o)

(E) He was very much concern'd for his Wise's Unfaithfulness' See in the Remark B, how he Sued his giana, p wife, and the hard Punishment which he case'd in this to be very sensible of the disgrace of the sensitifulness' But on the other side, he soon laughtest the first of the sound has Servant her Accomplice Is, not this to be very sensible of the disgrace of the saving and would say sometimes, If the she first of the saving and would say sometimes, If the she first of the most cunning expedient he could chuse, for if such a Jester as he was had appear d serious, sullen (r) These and melancholy, he would have been very much laugh'd at And when all is done, he might poke upon it at his sase, seeing he had not conniv'd left our may justly be reproach'd either seriously or in jest die son's son's rears, Mr de Bautru sould have fill d all Europe much his sesse, sand any justly sayings, whilst there were the Author so so rears, Mr de Bautru sould have fill d all Europe many shings to say against him Risum teets, seed in Passage the Loure of sorbiere's Patrons, as it appears by the 20th Letter of that Author, wherein he intreats him to improve to his advantage the Elogy which he had Orator made on Cardinal Ma

BAUTRU (Nicelas) Brother of the foregoing, was known by the Name of Count (A) de Nogent He had five Children by his Marriage with Mary Coulon, Sifter of John Coulon, Counsellor in the Pailiament of Para, I Armand BAUTRU Count de Nogent, the King's Lieutenantin Auvergne, Master of the Wardrobe, and Maish il de Camp, who was kill'd in 1672, (R) as he was Swimming over the Rhme on Horseback. His Body was found firsten Days after in the Rhme, three Leagues below Tolbus, where the French cross's that River That Count had marry'd Diana Charlotte de Caumont de Lausun, Sister to the Maiquis de Lausun, who has been Captain of the Life-Guards, and Governous of Berri, and had the Honour to be Betioth'd with Madernoiselle de Mompensier, Daughter of Gaston of France, Duke of Orleans, and Grand-daughter and Hours the Great. 2 Nicolas BAUR TU. Marquis de Vauhrum ((), Lieudaughter of Henry the Great. 2 Nicolas BAUR TU, Marquis de Vaubrun ((), 1 ieutenant General of the King's Armies, and Governor of Philippeville He marry'd * * Grand-Margaret Bautru, and was kill'd in 1675, in the Battle that was fought beyond the Rhine, daughter few Days after the Death of Marshal de Iurenne 3 Lewis BAUTRU, call'd the Chevalier de Nagour Colonel of Horse 4 Mary BAUTRU, Was of Rene de Rambures, the fine Marquis de Rambures From that Marriage proceeded a Son, in whose Person that I was mily of the Sires de Rambures ended, as to the Male Issue 5 Charlotte BAUTRU, the fine Was of Nicolas d'Argouge, Marquis de Rannes, Cornet of the Light-Horse of the fact was Guard, and Colonel General of the Diagoons of France † He was kill'd in German Mary Mary Guard, and Colonel General of the Diagoons of France + He was kill'd in German Mi Mein the Month of July | 1678 He was Lieuten int General His Widow + marry d nige sobagain with John Baptist remand de Rohan, Prince of Montauban, Son of Charles de Ro-les and Life ban, Duke of Mombazon

BEAUCAIRE DEPEGUILON (Francis) in I atin Belcarius Peguileo, Menage, p Bishop of Merz, was a very I earned Man in the (A) XVIth Century He came from one of the most arcient I imilies of the Bourbonnoss, and was one of the first | Merc Gentlemen of his Nation, that apply d themselves solidly to the study of 1 iterature The progress which he made in it, inov'd Claudius of Loriam, first Duke of Guile, to it p 506 choose him for a Picceptor of his second Son, the Cardinal of Lorrain Bei ucani did to well succeed in that Imployment, that he received many Praises for it from the Court of France, which he did not expect. He went with the Cardinal of Lmrain to Rome, where he confeir'd with Paul foo us, Bishop of Nucera, which did not hinder him afterwards from Confuting that Piclate. Historical Mistakes. At his return from Italy the Cardinal of Lorrain procur'd him (B) the bishoprick of Metz 11c 7.

(c) Mena- "

nagiana 145 (d) In the first edition this was Said of Mr deBautru, she Count de Nogent's #ldeft Brosher It is toue, that instead of Saying that tribute munch to his Death, it ss only faid

(a) Page 41 of the 2d edition

(b) Menagiana pag

145 very much troubled at to be well think might hove corrected the Menagiana bim-(e) Mer-cure Ga-lant of that he was

ter by the 81st Letter, where he thanks him for the Money wherewith his Eminence had gratify'd him. I quote these Letters, that those who defire to know Men by publick Testimonies may satisfy their Curiosity, They may also see the 47th Letter. The Menagiana contains some curious things concerning the Count de Nogent. He (a) "came to Paris with but Eight hundred Livres." Yearly Rent, and he had an Faindred and four"scorethousand when he dy'ds. The first Day he appear d at Court, he carry'd the King on his "Shoulders through a watry place in the Tuilleries." Monsieur de Nogent was an admirable Man to re-Monsieur de Nogent was an admirable Man to re-vive a languishing Conversation Being one Day at the Circle of the Queen Mother Ann of Austria, and seeing the Conversation fall, and that the Queen Mother and the I adies, among whom was Madam de Guimene, had been filent for ione time, breaking filence, and addressing himself to the Queen, Midam, said he, is it not a very odd thing in Nature, that Madam de Guimene and mytelf should be born in one Day, and a quester of an Hour after each other, and that " a quarter of an Hour after each other, and that " she should be so Fair, and myself so Black?" Those that have the address which he had of revaring a languishing Conversation, are a great help with World, for since in the very Circles of the of France, they are apt to fall into a kind whiness that is almost as troublesome to the whiness that is almost as troublesome to the company, as a Calm is to Seamen, one may very hink, that a great many other Assemblies are that to that Inconveniency Is it not therefore very pleasant that somebody should be always ready to revive the Company, that it may not be faid, as shows I addes in the Menaziana did It is in Weathers and the Company of the Compa as those Ladies in the Menagiana did st iains Weariness here as fast as it can pour? But I wonder how the Count de Nogent endow'd with that Virtue, could be so weak, as Mr Menage represents him be, against the attacks of Angels "One (c) Day at the King's Dinner, Angels said to (d) the "Count de Nogent, Let us be cover'd, it is of no "consequence for us The Count de Nogent was "so ver'd at it, that it did not a little contriso vex'd at it, that it did not a little contribute to his Death

(B) Was killed in 1672 as he was swimming over the Rhine] The News Writers (c) of those Times informed the Publick, That those who believe a that Count was Drown'd without having been wounded, and that he Horse was the cause of hu Death, were mistaken, since after his Body was found, it was known that he was kill'd by a Musket flot in the Head They publish d also that his Body was bury d in the great Church of Zevenast. In the Year 1686 the Marquis d Biron many d a Daughter of that Count of Nogent

(C) Marques de Vaubrun] It is he of all the I 1mily, that seems to have been most famil ar with Sorbiere. That Author's printed Letters witness it, as also his relation of a Voyage to England. From the Letter which he (f) writ to him the 8th of (f) I re

August 1657 We learn that this Marquis wi Coth 47t/lonel General of the Carabinites of France, and of an lonel General of the Caribiniers of France, and of an extraordinary Valour, but that it did not hinder him from loving good Books, I wait, tays he to him, for the happiness of seeing you again at Puris the next Winter in that Chamber of the Louvre, where I have found you so often on your Tacitus, while the other Courtiers were imploying the Morning in powdering their Hair and tying their Knots of Ribbons. He was a very active Officer His Disputes with the Count de Lorge after the Death of Marihal de Turenne, had like to have been very stal to the Franch

ne, had like to have been very fatal to the French (A) In the XVIth Century] According to Konig, he was alive in the Year 1625 Res Gallicas, figs he, anno 1625 in literas redegit Which is talk. It is anno 1625 in literas redegit Which is talk. It is true, that his History was Printed at Lyons in the Year 1625 but it had been written a long time be-

The Bibliographers

(B) Procur'd him the Bishoprick of Metz] Some tay, that he kept only that Bishoprick for the Cardinal The Reader will not be displeas'd to find the Count which Theodorus Beza gives of the favs he (b), dinal The Reader will not be displeas'd to find here the Account which Theodorus Beza gives of the whole Matter (g) At that same time, says he (h), Charles of Lorrain, Cardinal and Bishop of Mct7, the greatest Enemy that our Religion had, resigned the Bishop-rick of Mctz, at which those of the Riformed Religion greatly rejoye'd But as it was not at all likely, that such a Man being the most Ambitious and Coveteous of any of his Rank in the World, should voluntarily resign such a his Rank in the World, should voluntarily resign such a noble Preferment, it was immediately found out that noble Preferment, it was immeasurely jouna out that this Hypocrite had only resign d his Title of Bishop, as making Conscience to hold so many Crossers in his Hands, and reserved in the mean time all the Temporalities to himself. That Titular Bishop's Name was Peguillon one of his Protonotaries, a Man of some Learning, but ill skill d in Divinity, who being accompany'd by two other Bishops, v z of Toul and Verdun, both like himself, came to Metz, and fighten da little these of the Resormed Religion, who thought they were come as Inquisitors, with

Callant

(g) That about the (h) Beza's Ecclesiasti-cal History 1 16 pag · Taken from the Preface to the Hiftory rillas Belearius in fine lib 30 y Id in Prictit Histor tine lib 30 " He had been the Duke of I ongue-Invoy into Swiffer-3 Spondanus id

nnn 1566 7/ 34

(a) 7/c

156, (b) Sec Ta

9th of Janunry,

Paul, 1 7 pag 630 of Ame-lot's

Translation, idit

of Am-

1686 fteid im,

(c) 1 1b 19 cap I

" 5 (1) I 1b

30 4 21102 ad 10 (d) Re-gicffum ut Romani ping-vocant,

fibi exceperat

Releavins

(1) Bulenrius fub

fin libia

(f) Id 1b

 (ς) Id I -7 n 6

nd ann

(/) In Pirfit

 (ι) H

Coun ry cat cald

In Chiete

carry'd him ifterwards to the Council of Trent, and it was before that famous Affembly that Beaucaire (C) deliver'd the Speech which is at the end of his 30th Book ", for you must know, that he writ a History of his time in Latin, which is much eof Levis them'd He began it when, in the Year 1568, the (D) had refigi'd the Bishoprick As by Va- of Metz to Circuial Levis of Lorrain, and was retired to his Country-seat, call'd la Chrete in Bourbonnois He brought it from the Year 1462, to the Year 1567 and lett it off in the Year 1588 He was then in his 75th Year 2, for he was Born 2 the 15th of April 1514 He design'd to go 600n with it, but it is likely, that the Infirmities of Old-age hinder'd him He did not (E) intend to publish that Work, for he fear'd he had spoken such Truths as might raise dangerous Enemies It was " Philip Dinet Sieur de St Romain, who having found that History in that Author's I ibrary at la Chrete, ¿ caus'd it to be Printed at Lions in the Year 1625 It is find that s Beaucaire dy'd the 14th of February 1591 He was a very fit Man (I) to draw up the Decisions of a Council, for he knew how to manage the Terms so well, that all the Disputants that were to be satisfy'd, were pleas'd with it longue-ville's Go-ville's Go-ville's Go-ters of the Court of Rome, infomuch, that (G) the Cardinal of Lorrain Censur'd him and after-for it, and deny'd that ever he was his Disciple I refer the Reader to Morers for some Swifter-land at fome great Power to persecute them, which made divers feveral of t'em absent from the City But GOD diverted that times Storm, and Peguillon was contented to publish a little Bookseller of little Children, which was soon after answer'd Soddvertis - that those who had absented themselves return d without any model atom. But had a Richard and Soddwert. any molestation. But those Bishops got a Nick-name by it, which was given them by those of their own Religion, who sirmam'd them, the Lent Bishops, because, said they, they are as measur as Lent, having only a small Pension assign'd them on the Bishopricks, whereof they had the Itiles, but the Cardinal was the Taker. See the Remark D. hereafter. the Remark D, hereafter

the Kemark D, hereafter

(C) Deliver d the Speech] He spoke it on the Day, (a) which the Fathers of the Council had chosen to give thanks to GOD for the Battle of Dreux The two (b) Historians of that Council, acknowledge that Prelate's Eloquence, but Pallavicini, who does not give fuch a long Fxtrast of the Speech, is more prolix on the Praises of the Oratoi than Fra Paolo, and remarks also that Beaucane hid lost his Nephew in that Battle (c) Beleavicane had loft his Nephew in that Battle (c) Belcarius Episcopus Metensis vir eloquentia præclarus victorum laudes celebravit magnifica oratione ad Synodum, publi-cæ felicitati gratulatus in luctu domestico, quippe qui Gilbertum Beliarium sui fratris filium amiserat in confielu, atque hac omnia eleganti quam scripsit historia

(1) configurate posteritati tradidit
(D) U bin in the War 1568, he had resign'd the Bishopiich of Metato Candinal Lewis of Lorrain] When Cudinal Charles of Lorain had made that Bishop-tick over to him, he reserv'd (a) the Right of Re-version to himself, but he did not make use of that Right for himself. The Bishoprick of Merz remain'd in Beaucaine's Hands from the Year 1555, (c) till 1568 It is falfely faid in the Advertisement to the Reader before his History, that thement to the Reader before his filitory, that he went to Irent with Cardinal Lewis of Lorrain, to whom he refign'd his Miter. It is certain, that he (f) refign'd it to him, but he follow'd Cardinal Charles of Iorrain to Trent. He was at Rome in the Month of November 1555 when the Pope gave him his Bull for the Bishoprick of Metz. This I infer from what he tays, that he admir'd that Pope's Lloquence wherewith he represented the Tpilcopal Duties to him. Mense (g) Novembri Paulus me Pontificatu Miteria cedente Lotheringo Cardinals. lus me Pontificatu Metensi cedente Lotharingo Cardinale donavi, ac quum illi gratias agereen me mei officii admonendo, & commissum populum commendando, facumda in primis & satis proliva oratione respondit, ut tam expeditam in homini sine & in multis negotiis versato eloquentiam admirarer After he had resign'd, he retir'd home, and follow'd his Study close (h) Quum post decimum tertium ex quo id munus sulcapisson annum. Metensi pontificatu defunctus essenti susceptificm annum, Metensi pontificatu defunctiu essem, coque cessssem, & m. ab hominum frequentia subducens in Christianum (1) fundum paratum senectuti sam dudum inter nostro: Boios studiorum meorum domicilium se-ciss m, ne omnino otiosum vita extremum tempus t aducire videren, commentarios rerum Gallicarum

(E) He did not intend to publish that Work] He diclares it himself Hos (Commentarios) me edituum non profiteor lateant in Christiana (k) nostra bioliotheca donec tuto exire possint vere nec in cujusquam grat am aut odium scripsisse consirmo (1) This he says in his Pretace, and here is what he says in the Conclusion of his Work Mature judicio ne in multerum odia incurreremus, veritas enim odium parit, ut inquit poeta Comicus, non statim edendos judicavi-mus. He is very violent against the Protestants, but it is not in that respect, that the fear of offending several Persons, made him resolve not to publish it was always the worst Among other things, a Point already agreed upon, was alter'd, which was, That all Marriages made in the presence of three Witnesses should be Valid And instead of one of the Witnesses, it was faid, That all Marriages contracted without the presence of the Priest, should be void, which rais'd the Ecclesiastick Order infinitely,, I have not found in Order infinitely, I have not found in my Memoirs, who was the Author of that great Advantage, nor divers other particulars, which I would not have fail'd to mention if I had known them In the mean while I must not frustrate Francis de Beaucaire Bishop of Metz of the honour that is due to him, for it was he who feeing the impossibility of reconciling such different Opinions gave to that Decree the Form it is in, which really admits of several Senses, "but suits admirably well with the various Opi"nions about that matter" We find the following words in the Annals of Spondanus In quo decreto ad formam reducendo qua probaretur & in sessione the News promulgaretur, cum patres valde perpense essentiale estato of the Reciscus Belcarius Episcopus Me'ensis, vir pius destusque & publick acumine ac maturitate ingenii prastanis, eam composuit qua publice conspicitur, ceteris comprobantibus (n) If any body should say that a Man who could draw up a Decree so neatly, that all the Readers might know that such and such things are condemn'd in the and that only such a things are condemn'd in it, and that only such a thing is formally approv'd in it, would be a fitter Man to draw up the decision of a Council than Beaucaire, this is my Answer I aby a Doffer gree that such a Man would be more proper for of Sorbonthat business, if the Synodical Assemblies could or ne nam'd would facrifice political Interests to Truth and Ingrity But because they that compose those Affemblies have not Virtue enough to act only in favour of Justice, or Faith enough to hope that a good cause will be sufficiently protested by God without the assistance of Politicks, there are no fitter Persons for them than those who know how to draw up Acts full of Obliquities, and fuch as may fatisfy the opposite Parties However it cannot be deny'd that the Bishop of whom I speak was a fit Tool for the Pope, since that Council design'd to displease none of the School Factions "Who "will not admire (a) the Prudence of this Council

(F) Very fit to draw up the Decisions of a Council] Father (m) Paul mentions the intricacy wherein the Fathers of the Council found themselves on the Questions about Marriage "The first Chapter" concerning Abuses, importing the re-establishment of the Banns order'd by Innocent III was mended and revis'd several times but always so unsuccessfully, that the last Coirection was always the worst Among other things. a Point

o displease none of the School Factions "Who will not admire (a) the Prudence of this Council? We are told here (p) very ingenuously, that the Members of it resolved to contrive their Decisions in such a manner, and to chuse and adapt their Words so, as not to prejudice in the least the different Opinions of the Schools, about which the Catholick Doctors were otherwise very much divided We are surther told, that it concern'd the Prudence of the Council not

(m) L1b 1563 pag

(n) Spondan ad 1563 publick of Learning, Feb 1686 Art gnt 1 p 127 in (p) That u to say in a Book mad Sucras, and printin the Year 1685 concerning the Sufficiency of Attrice Attriti-THE

(k) of la Chiete

(1) In Pi efat

beher things which I omit I believe there is an exaggeration in that great number of " Hift of Books which he afcribes to Beaucaire, and some (H) confusion in the littles which he the Council sets down Cardinal Palavicins prais'd * Lewis XIII for approving that a Book should of Trent, be deduced to him, wherein the Address of France I with the Table are very free. be dedicated to him, wherein the Adliances of France I with the Turks are very free- n'3 ly Censur'd That Book is the History of France compos'd by our Bishop of Metz He had a Brother whose Name was John, who was educated with the Constable of BelcariBourbon +, and who had a Son kill'd in the Battle of Drenx, and a Daughter marry'd Praf

(I) to Sebastian de Luxembourg, Viscount de Martigues

BEAULIEU (Lewis le Blanc Sieur de) Minister and Professor of Divinity at Sedan in the XVIIth Century, was a Man very commendable for his Learning and Virtue A great many Theological Theses were afferted under his Direction, and 3d The first collected into one Volume after his Death, and Printed in England The Publick is that was so well pleas'd with them, that that Edition was soon sold off, and another Edi- of Sedinin tion was made † in the same Country in the Year 1683 If he had not been a 4 the two Frenchman, a Preface would have been prefix'd to the first or the second Edition, giving Editions of England an account of the Author's Life, for the French are very apt to let the History, or the areinfolio Life of a Kinsman, samous for his great Parts, and I earned Works, sall into oblivion The impossibility wherein I find myself to fix the I line and the Place of the Birth | He was on The impossibility wherein I find myself to fix the I line and the Place of the Birth || He was of Lewis le Blane, the time of his promotion to the Ministry, and to the Professorship of Severnour of Sedan ted to such a negligence I can say nothing else, but that he dy'd in the Month (c) In the of February 1675 and that he was well belov'd by the || Maishal de Fabert, one of the Remark B, greatest Wits of his Age Some of his Sermons were Printed at Sedan in the Year of it is Annonymia.

10 Antanonymia

" not to expose the Church to new troubles by the "Disputes that would have been rais'd among Divines, if their Doctrine had been discuss'd and censur'd, and that it appears, that it is one of the Articles on which the Pope had particularly insist-" ed, not having intimated his inclination for any "particular thing, but for the managing of the Schoolmen's Disputes, that he might not thwart a- my Opinion without necessity, and in order to reunite all the Catholick Forces against the Sectaries The was practised to exactly, lays our Author, that one may fee by the very words of which the Definitions are composed, that the Fathers of the Council have been exact almost to a Scruple, to find out Terms that should " nos prejudice any of those Opinions If Fra Paolo had faid this, such a Discourse would have been taken for a Satyr on the Court of Rome But it is Cardinal Palavicini that fays it, and confe-

"quently, it must be believ'd go be true"

(G) That the Cardinal of Lorrain Consur'd him for it] Cardinal Palavicini (a) having faid that the Bishop of Metz declar'd, that he believ'd that Bishops received the Anthony to the consumption of t GOD, and that they were not meerly the Pope's Delegates, and that the Pope's Power is not unli-Delegates, and that the Pope's Power is not unlimitted, adds, that in this, he went beyond his bounds, hac in re plurimum ille cancellos transgressiu est It was suspected, continues he, that the Bishop and the Cardinal of Larrain juggled, and acted in concert, but the Cardinal in order to remove those Suspicions, declard, that he had never been Beaucaire's Scholar, and Census'd him before the Ambassadors of France and twelve Bishops hunc Episcopum Lotharingi magistrum fuisse (b) & Sane intimam cum eo familiaritatem exercerbat, atque ejus opera nobilem illam Sedem acceperat Unde sufficio fuit seos concorditer se gessis, & textum a discipulo ob-scure propositum, fuise dilucidatum a magistro interpretationis sue claritate Sed Cardinalis nujusce same con-Jelus, Gualterio negavit (1) se umquam Beauqueri discipalum fusse, cum quidem a se agnosci virum maxima listeratura, sed minimi consilii Nec abstinuit, quin illum castigaret coram duobus Gallis Oratoribus, & duodecim Easleopus Those that know the Spirit of the Court, which was the Sould of all that Cardinal's Conduct, will not build much on what he faid, when he knew that he was made answerable for Beaucaire's Opinion He was a Man that would have made use of him to found the Business, in order to fee if any thing could be done to please the Gallican Church, and afterwards he would have disown'd him, knowing that the Court of Rome was vex'd at it. After all Beaucage was perhaps a Man of among studious Persons

(ii) Some Confusion in the Titles which he feet down] He lates, that Beaucaire compoid a Treatife of Children that die in their Mothers Womb and a Treatife against the Calvinists. This is to declare it After all, Beancaire was perhaps a Man of no great Conduct, as it is supposed that this Cardinal declared it Which is but too common plainly, that the first of these two Treatises does not oppose the Tenets of the Calv nists, which is false, for it is design'd to oppose the Opinion which they have, that the Children of the Faithful are fanktify'd in their Mothers Belly, and therefore that the they dye without receiving Baptism, they are nevertheles. Sav d The passage of Theoderus Bezz which I have alledg'd before (c), informs us, that the Book of Besucaire was aniwer'd forms us, that the Book of Beaucaire was aniwer'd An Anonymous Author reply'd to that Answer, his Reply (d) was Printed at Paris in the Year 1567 in 8° with the first (e) Treatise of Beaucaire and some Properly speaking the two Books mentiorders Properly speaking the two Books mention'd by Morers, are but one and the same Book Spondanus, remarks that Beauca se publish'd his Dissertation against the Tenets of the Calvinists concerning the Sanctification of Children in their Mothers Womb, in 1567, but what I have said before, shews plainly, that that Book had appear'd before that time, and a little after Beaucaire's Instalment in the Cathedral of Metz. Now he obtained that Bishoprick in the Month of November 1555 as I said in the Remark D. So, that it must be faid I faid in the Remark D So that it must be said, that Beaucaire prepard a second Edition of his Treatise, and that he did not publish it till the Year 1567 He inserted some Letters in it that were intercepted at Châlons on Marne, during the Conference of Possy Those Letters were written by Taffin and Theodorus Beza Taffin Minister of Merz had consulted the Ministers of the Conference of Possify on the Question, Whether Children that were Baptiz'd by a Woman, should be Re-baptiz'd He was answer d, That some Persons of great Judgment, did not believe that it ought to be done, and that therefore they had thought fit to refer the discussion of that Point to the Church of Geneva, and to that of Tarach (5). However force they had and to that of Zurich (f) Moreri fays, that the History of France by Beaucaire, begins with the Year 1460 and ends in the Year 1580 But had the consulted the Authors which he quotes, (g) Spendanus would have inform'd him, that it begins with the Year 1462, and ends in the Year 1566 to Castel That the Author promis'd indeed to continue it, if GOD gave him Life for it, but that the effect of 829, that Promise did not appear, tho' the Work was not publish'd till about 40 Years after Beaucaire had findled it The Catalogue of the Bodleran Library Uncle, we comments the same fault as Morers I don't wonder ought to at it, feeing the Bookieller's Pieface contains that have

(1) And a Daughter marry'd to Sebastian de Luxembourg] Beaucaire speaks of this (b) Marriage, and says, that Queen Mary Stuart, the Wife of Francis II supra Mr procur'd him to her Neece, whom she loved very well Le Laboureur consists this (1), Sebastian de reur being Lucembourg, says he, partly out of Inclination, and better inpairly in hopes of gaining the affection and favour of form'd ca'll. her so also cause, Daughter of John S de Peguillon, and Maid in another of Honour to the said Queen, who loved her entirely for place (1) And a Daughter marry'd to Sebastian de Luxem-in Antapologia contra Apologiam Metensium mininomine scriptam, pro ever-fione fanchificationis Calvinianæ (e) The Titless,Contra Calvinianorum dogma de fanctificatione infantium in uteris matrum (f) Clau-de de Saintes. Answer to the Apology of I heodorus Beza apud Prateolum elench hæref p 97, 98¹ (g) Ad ann 1566 n 34 (h) Hifter 28 # 37 (1) Addit to Castel-(k) Her Uncle, who known it.

calls her

(a) Lib 19 cap 6 nspm 284

(6) Acta Páleotti apud Pallavicinum 16 22 6

(1) Litteræ Gualtern ad Borromæum 7 Decem bris & sequentipris 1562

in his Theses, wherein he treats with a (A) wonderful Clearness, and great Penetration; the most important Matters of Divinity, and applies himself chiefly to remove the Missinderstandings that have so much multiply d. Controverses. He lays down the true site of the Question, he clears things that man Disputes that are thought to be real, are only Disputes about Words. The scale credible, how much this Method (AA) prejudiced a great many ignorant Persons against him. They imagined, that he endeavoured to bring the Reformed back again into the Communion of the Church of the that knew his Virtue and Piety did not suspect any such thing of him; nor those that were capable of judging right of his Theses. But many People in the remote Provinces knew him not otherwise than as they had been told, that he shew'd, that in some things the Diotherwise than as they had been told, that he shew'd, that in some things, the Divines of both Parties did not so much differ from each other as 'twas believ'd Persons being unwilling to lessen the Subjects of Division, which they would rather have increased, or being us'd to interpret things ill, or rashly to believe those that give a bad Turn to the Actions of their Neighbours, look'd upon Mr de Beaulieu as a false Brother, who was promoting the great Design $(A\triangle\triangle)$ of Re-uniting both Churches, which the Cardinal of Richelseu was so fond of That Professor's Penetrati-Quick peak of it on oblig'd him to avoid certain Terms commonly received, which he found somewhat in his Pro- inconvenient. He did it particularly, as to the Doctrine of the certainty of Salvation. This gave Mr Arnauld (B) an occasion to quarrel with him Mr de Beaulieu had no Children, his Widow, who was a very Understanding and Virtuous Woman, shew'd an Heroick Constancy in the last Persecution * She could never be forc'd to make any Abjuration, so that after many Vexations, which she endur'd, she dy'd without betraying her Profession in the least Mr le Blane, Counsellor in the Presidual of Sedan, Brother to Mr de Beaulieu, endeavour'd twice to make his escape into Holland after the Mr de Beaulieu, endeavour'd twice to make his escape into Holland after the Mr de Beaulieu, endeavour'd twice to make his escape into Holland after the Mr de Beaulieu, endeavour'd twice to make his escape into Holland after the Mr de Beaulieu, endeavour'd twice to make his escape into Holland after the Mr de Beaulieu, endeavour'd twice to make his escape into Holland after the Mr de Beaulieu, endeavour'd twice to make his escape into Holland after the Mr de Beaulieu, endeavour'd twice to make his escape into Holland after the Mr de Beaulieu, endeavour'd twice to make his escape into Holland after the Mr de Beaulieu, endeavour'd twice to make his escape into Holland after the Mr de Beaulieu, endeavour'd twice to make his escape into Holland after the Mr de Beaulieu, endeavour'd twice to make his escape into Holland after the Mr de Beaulieu, endeavour'd twice to make his escape into Holland after the Mr de Beaulieu, endeavour'd twice to make his escape into Holland after the Mr de Beaulieu, endeavour'd twice to make his escape into Holland after the Mr de Beaulieu, endeavour'd twice to make his escape into Holland after the Mr de Beaulieu, endeavour'd twice to make his escape into Holland after the Mr de Beaulieu, endeavour'd twice to make his escape into Holland after the Mr de Beaulieu, endeavour'd twice to make his escape into Holland after the Mr de Beaulieu, endeavour'd twice to make his escape into Holland after the Mr de Beaulieu, endeavour'd twice to make his escape into Holland after the Mr de Beaulieu, endeavour'd twice to make his escape into Holland after the Mr de Beaulieu, endeavour'd twice to make his escape into Holland after the Holland after the Holland after the Ho ter his Abjuration, but was taken in the Way, and brought back again into his Counter to the try + The King forgave him the Punishment of the Gallies to which he had been Condemn'd Passors and for designing to leave the Kingdom against the Probibitions

Mi de Beaulien has been very often cited in the Quarrel of two French Ministers, of the Walloon who Disputed, among other things, about the Principle of Faith. What I quote out Churcher her good Qualities He had an only Daughter by her, whose Fstate she managed with as much Care and Prudence as she had shewn for the Education of that great Heires (a) Brantome had not forgot this, for in the List of the Ladics that were eminent in the Court of Catherine de Medieu, he (b) places Madam de Martigues, formerly call d Mademoiselle (c) de Villemontois, a great Favourite of the Queen of Scot-

(A) Uith a wonderful Clearness Because Mr Nicolle will be sooner believ'd about it than myself, I will quote a paffage of his Lawful Prejudicer against the (71 in ft. "One (d) of their Professor " cultrly fignalized himself on this Subject in his "These of Justification That Professor, who justly deserves this praise of having an extraordinary clear Head, and of being a very fit Man to unravel Questions that are perplexed by the different use of Teims, examines in his Thefes the chief Differences Letween the Cuholicks and "the Protestants on that Matter, and con"cludes on all the Articles that that of the Catho"licks is good, and that of the Protestants is on"ly continue to it in Words."

(A) How much this Method projudie'd a great ma-ignorant Persons | They are not only weak Men my ignorant Persons] They are not only weak Me. that have form'd Suspicions against Mr Beauliou See here what an Ingenious Minister has publish'd, (c) Inspect Mo le Blanc's Memory, but the concern of Truthobleges me to remark what no Body is ignorant of, which is, that this Divine writ after a mannathat made his Orthodoxy much sufferted. Thinking a clear Matters, to remove useless Disputes, or those that run on') on Words, and to take away all Equivocations, he I as extremely straitned the space that separates us from the Church of Rome He has almost reduced most 11 p 197, important Contrologies to nothing And by that Con198 ease dust, as allo by his great Mildness, and the strong Incli198 mation which he always show'd for Peace, he has given 198 many Persons occasion to place him among the Latitudi199 mation of the famous Mr le Blanc de Beau200 Junian narians (f) The samous Mr le Blanc de Beau201 mation, so inchessed Memory I have otherwise a great Vene202 mation, is not a Divine whose Pen is so be borrow'd to 202 cus Theodescribe the Opinion of the Reformed about controversed Me ers we be the Papills He was a little too No in the Quarrel which we have to Decide with them See the Margin (g)

259 No in the Quarrel which we have to Decide with (1) Id them See the Margin (2)

16, p 477

(g) Hac ille (Le Blanc pag 796 n 56) qui faxus nimium est controversiarum quas tractat arbiter, quo fastum ut nimium j utium adversarum conciliationi intentus,a communi via Reformatorum impe discellerit Leydecker Prafat in Aphorifin Lud 4 D 11 5 1

(ADD) That was promoting the great Design of Remulting both Churches] Those falls Suspicions 32 It is creased, when a certain Report was spread design, dated from That the Marshal de Turenne being very fond of Rethe Hague uniting both Religions, had sounded the Profess the 13th of for of Sedan, and received a Letter from him, which September 1 the 13th of Sedan, and received a Letter from him, which September 1 to 1508 was shew'd to all the Ministers, in order to furprize them. That Report was not altogether (i) Ibid groundless, for Mr Jaquelor says, (b) That in Pag 33 1672 the Agent, who was imploy'd in that (k) BeAffair, came to Vast in Champagne mith a Credential Amer, sign d Lewis, and a Letter pology prefrom Monstew et Sedan, and with that Prosessor, the Goverform Decimine at Sedan, and with that Prosessor, the Gover-

for in Divinity at Sedan, and with that Professor's An the Gover for to M de Turenne, and the Signatures of ners of the Jwer to M de Turenne, and the Signatures of ners of the the Passors of Picardy and Champagne, whom he had Walloon visited, but he adds, That that Answer did no Churches wrong to Mr de Beaulieure Bathan Answer did no Churches wrong to Mr de Beaulieu's Reputation Note, That Pag 40 he quotes (1) an Act of the Synod of the Isle of (1) Id ib France, which justifies the Ministers, who had Pag 41 fign'd The Writing wherein he mentions all (m) Arthese things, is a Letter against Mr Benoit Minister of Delst, who did not fail to Answer it, and who among other Remarks made this, (k) That the Signatures of the most Innocent Ministers contained this Restriction, And I promise to contribute to it, as much as lies in my power with a safe Conscience. He Jurieu, this Restriction, And I promise to contribute to it, as Petrum much as lies in my power with a safe Conscience He Jusieu, adds, That this last Clause, taken from Mr de Beau-Justisiant-lieu's Letter, was a Snare laid for the Simplicity on of the Souls, (1) It is certain, that three Morals of Parsons were concern'd in this Project 1 Ill-market Morals of Parsons 2 Plain and Honest Men 3 We and Conscience 1 Morals of Parsons, but dazzl d either with the seeming the Chap filmess of the thing, or wish the Name of Mr de Beauther of the Man of great Merit, but of too Apostolical Parsons Sincerety, to distintance himself from the Crastiness of the Hagua scruple to deceive People There is a small Mistake 1685 there, for the Marihal de Fabert had been dead above (n) In bis fcruple so decewe People There is a small Mistake 1685 there, for the Marshal de Fabers had been dead above 7 or 8 Years before that Project was set on foot M de Turenne was the Promoter of it

(B) Gave Mr Arnauld an occasion to quarrel with him] He (m) accused him of having renounced the Opinion of the Calvinists in Four Points of the a-new Doctrine of the certainty of Salvation Mr de Beau- chap 19 lieu publish d a particular Thesis on that Subject, to (0) See 1 Answer Mr Arnauld The latter (n) reply'd after Jastisse his Adversary's Death A (o) Disciple, and an inti- on of maic Friend of the deceased, Answer'd Mr Arnauld's Morals Reply I have compared the Disciple's Answer the Re-Reply I have compar'd the Disciple's Answer the Reand Mr Arnaula's Reply together, but could not formed well perceive who was right, or who was wrong, 6 ch they are properly Questions of Fact, about which a pag thousand of of the UnitedPro

legomena nodicon ın Gallıa Reforma-

† Remarks fiffion of 51 1c1, p 1699 (a) I_{12}

1575 the

Plulip Emanuel of 1 orrain

Mercour,

Brother of Louile of Lorrain Wife of Henry !!

(b) The luftitous

LAd is, Pag 94.

Labouieui t j

the Lady

de Villemontoys mr Mais de Beau.

1 318 la)s, that

(me Daughter of John,

I ord of Puy. Guillon,

Senefalial of Postou (a) Nicol

jc,prejug leoit chap

11 p 197, 198 ears land 1683

(e) Saurin M Juri-eus Theology pag

I wis of 11-

of their (C) Writings, may serve to discover his Opinions and Character, and consequently, it will not be a superfluous thing Some are persuaded that there is a great mis-understanding (D) in that Contest His Doctrine concerning the Efficacy of mis-understanding (D) in that Contest Baptisin,

. thousand Equivocations, and all the Art of Disputes may be us'd on both Sides A Man must have more leisure than I have, to examine this throughly Nevertheless, I believe, if Mr de Bonuthroughly revertheless, I believe, it will be best-lieu had made his Apology himself, his Cause would have been better defended (C) What I quote out of their Writings, may serve to discover 1 Let us begin with a Passage of Mr Sau-rin He had just faid (a) That Mr le Blanc's Name is not so much authorized, as famous among us, and here is what he adds. What Mr Jurieu mentions of Mr le Blanc " is more fit to cry down his Do" ctrine, than to give it credit. For Example, Is etrine, than to give it credit For Example, is it not a fine way of defending the Authority of the Scripture, and the Truth of the Christian Religion, to say, (1) That it is necessary, that that which is the first Principle of Faith, should not be provid by itself nor by another Principle, and yet, that the Principle of Faith should not be an evident thing, because as in Humane Sciences there are certain Prin-ciples that are the first from which all others depend, which neither depend from themselves, nor from other Principles, so it is with the Destrine of Faith Those that know the Rudiments of the Art of Thinking and Arguing, know also that a Proposition which is not self-evident, and is not mediately or immediately demonstrated by another self-evident Proposition, cannot be a Principle of Science or of Faith, nor to much as pais for a true Proposition, whilst it remains in that ob-feurity (b) Mr Jurieu adds, after Mr le Blanc, That the the Scripture, that is to say, the Divinity of the Scripture, be not self-evident, it ought not to be concluded therefore, that it is not the "first Principle of Faith, and that it ought to borrow

"tis Authority from elsewhere These Words nei "ther agree with right reason nor the Word of "GOD The Chiracters Mr de Beaulieu

"dent by its Characters when he Australia does not Argue better, when he Answers the Objection which the Enemies of Christianity make against the Holy Scriptures in this manner As for those impertinent Questions that are ask dus, How do you prove that the Aposles have writ their Books by Divine Inspiration? We answer That they require an unjust thing of is , (VIZ) to have us demonstrate a thing that is not to be demonstrated. We therefore confess freely, that we cannot demonstrate it.

(c) that is to say, prove and demonstrate it Mathematically But we diny, that it follows from thence that those Books cannot be the first and certain Rule of Faith, because it is the property of the Principles of Faith not to be evident See in Mr Saurin's Own

Book how he confutes those Maxims

We must place Mr Jurieu's Answer here (d) It is a curious thing, says he, to see how Mr Saurin uses Mr de Beaulieu, whom he calls elsewhere, a most Excel-lent Man But here, because he is of Mr Jurieu's Opi-nion, and of that of the whole Church, concerning the Evidence of the Principle of Faith, he must needs be a Man of no very sound Orthodoxy, he favour'd Popery, and Arminianism. he was a great I artifulnarian and Arminianism, he was a great Latitudinarian, he savid as many Persons as he could, he propos'd such absurdities that he deserved to be sent back to his

Abjurdities that he dejerved to be jent back to his A, B, C, and it is an imprudent thing to own one self his Disciple The truth of it is, one can hardly believe his own Eyes. Here we may perceive what advantage the Living have over the Dead, as the Wise Mantelli is sath a one pulls the dead Lion by the Beard, who durft not have come within a thousand paces of him, if he had been alive

(e) Those that know the late Mr de Beaulieu, know that he was the most reserved Man in the World to Beak his own Common. A faithful H. fa-

the World to Speak his own Opinions. A faithful Historian of those of others, but most reserved as to his own, groung his Resolution only on notorious things, and such as were own d by all Divines So that unless he had been out of his Wits, it is not to be imagin'd, that he would have explain'd his mind about such nice Propositions, had he not been persuaded that he follow'd the common Road How could a Man who made at his fludy to know the Opinions of all Divines, and who did not often declare his own, be ignorant of a matter of Fast known to Mr Saurin, who never faw but the outside of great Libraries? Or, was Mr de Beaulieu so foolish and so wicked, as to establish an Impiety, of which he was the Author, as a publick Opinion? To whom does Mr Saurin hope to replicate the? These that have need the field hope to persuade this? Those that have reed the first Part of the Work, about the Matter of Fast, will be asham'd of Mr Sautin: Timerity Since they il see that our Orthodox Divines, since Calvin, have spoken as Mr de Beaulieu did, and that in this, and almost in every thing elfe, he is but an Historian But does not Mr de Beaulieu advance some hard things about this Question, that are particular to him? For Example, (2) Dis-(2) That the Proofs that are alledg'd for the Di-vinity of Holy Scripture, are not of the Nature of 4 de S those that are call d de fide, in the Schools, that Script they are not drawn from any Principle, or Rule of N' o Faith, and that by themselves they are not drawn from the schools of N' o Faith, and that by themselves they cannot make an Article of Faith Has any Body said so? Yes, it has been said Calvin faid it in stronger Terms, be calls them that will produce saith by the Characters of the Scripture, foolish and impertinent Their Proots are none of those that are called de side (f) "The other Acculation against Mr de Beaulieu, (3) of being a Latitudinarian, of inlarging the Way to Sal- pag 381 vation, and of Saving as many persons as he could, is allo ridiculous, since it is inconsistent with the ring ago Doctrine which Mi Saurin lays to his charge He was rigid about the Doctrine of Grace, and be-liev'd that the Holy Ghost produc d the certainty of Faith, without means, as we have feen This Accusation, is intirely grounded on his Explaining the state of some Controversies otherwise than they are commonly under-flood. But if he should be deceived, it would only be a meer Lrror of Fact, for he never favour d any relax d Opinion, nor establish d the vour d any relax d Opinion, nor established the Indifferency of Religions, nor a general Toleration of all Sects, as Mr Saurin does

Let us end with Mr Saurin's Reply (g) "I (g) Saufpeak of Mr de Beaulieu with all the Esteem and rin's De-Respect which he deserves, and I put a great fince of the difference between him and Mr Jurieu, not for true Dotthe reason that Mr Jurieu supposes, that is, bettine of cause the one is dead and the other living, but the Rebecause the living does not resemble the dead in formed because the living does not resemble the dead in formed every thing Nevertheles, I observe Mr de Reau-Church, p lieus faults as those of a great Man This I 164, 165 lieus faults as those of a great Man This I may do I do not send him back to his A, B, C, as Mr Jurieu accuses me of it two or three times I say only, That those who know the Rudiments of the Art of Thinking and Arguing, Know also This is certain, and may be said by those that are persuaded, I do Mr de Regulieu no wrong in calling him a Latitudian means. Beaulieu no wrong in calling him a Latitudinarian He was not so in the odious tense which Mr 74rieu puts upon that Word, in taking a Latitudinarian for a kind of an Atheist But he was io, in forme degree The manner wherewith he explains the state of some of our Controversies, with the Papists and other Sectaries about Justi"fication, the certainty of Salvation, and other matters, is a proof of it And our Learned and "Sincere Divines don't deny it "Since Mr Ju-rieu reply'd nothing, I end the Remark here (D) That there is a great mif-understanding in that Contest] Consider well the (h) above-mention d Words of Mr de Beaulius They inform us, that he believe d the Inspiration of the Holy Scripture could not be Mathematically demonstrated Let us compare that with this Answer of Mr Saurin

"(1) If by a Mathematical Demonstration, Mr le Blane understands such a Demonstrationagainst (1) Sauwhich flesh and blood can make no Objection, rin s Exe I acknowledge, that the Divinity of the Scrip- min of M ture cannot be Mathematically demonstrated but Jurieu's notwithstanding, it may be Moially demonstrated Theology, "io as to remove all doubts, which is manifestly pag 262, "contrary to Mr furieu's Principle" The compa- 263 ring of those two Passages, shews that Mr de Braulieu and Mr Saurin teach the same thing in the main They both own, that the Divinity of the Scripture cannot be Mathematically prov'd But you will say, does not Mr Saurin maintain, That it may be proved by a Moral Demonstration? I own it, but I should be very much mistaken, if he could prove, that Mr le Blane did not teach the iame thing I am fure, that great Divine never deny'd that the Proofs of the Divinity of the Scriptures, are as good as a Moral Demonstration He had no Interest to deny it, for because a Man owns, that a thing cannot be prov'd by a Mathematical Company of the Scriptures of the Scripture of the S matical Demonstration, it does not follow there-Z z z z ricu,

(h) Col 1 Letter c

(d) Ju-rieu's Defence of the Universal Dostrine of the Church pag 372, 373

(c) Id 1b

pag 262

(a) Saurin's Exaamination of Mr Ju-

rieu sTheology, pag 260 (1) P 24

(b) Id 1b

PAG 261

(e) Id 1b p#g 378, 379

of several statem in 1695 See, I say, the 5th Least of the Preface, and the Treatise that makes the Conclusion of it. See also Mr Saurm Page 522, 550, &c. of his Exaconcerning the Efficacy and Necessand Nec

† A Lord Pleffis Mornai

ship which fore, that if he argues well, he must acknowledge did belong that it cannot be Morally demonstrated Let us further shew the mis-understanding of this Dispute Mr Saurin fancies, that according to the Principles of his Adversary, the Proofs of the Divinity of the Scripture do not exclude all manner of doubt. This is full of Equivocations. That Adversary does not pretend that those who know the weight and force of those Proofs, ought to remain in fome doubt; he does not take a full certainty, an entire periuanon from them. He pre-tends only, they do not see that the contrary is tends only, they do not see that the contrary is impossible, as it appears to be in things that have been Mathematically demonstrated. It happens daily to us to be fully convinc'd of a thing, and without the least doubt, tho' we know that the contrary is possible. A Traveller lodging in an Inn, the Maiter whereof he never knew, eats without fear what is set before him, he knows very well that his Meat may be poyson'd, and that there is no Metaphysical, Physical or Moral Contradiction to suppose that his Meat has been mix'd with Poyson by chance, or out of malice. He is not Poyson by chance, or out of malice He is not ignorant that such things have been done, nevertheless, he is presuaded that he ought not ro fear any thing in that Caie, he eats with a full persuation that he shall not be poyson'd We have yet less doubt, when we eat at a Friend's Mouse, and nevertheless, we are very well convinc'd, that it is possible that the Meat may he poyson'd Therefore a Divine must not be Criticiz'd, when he says, that we are perfectly convinc'd of the Truth of the Doctrine which our Pastors declare to us, tho the Reasons on which they ground them, do not make us know, that it is impossible that the thing should be otherwise Let us remember, that Mr Saurin renounces to the pretension of Geometrical Proofs, he is fatisfy'd with a Moral Demonstration, against which I lesh and Blood only can raise any Objections Now this is exactly his Adversary's Doctrine, they quarrel'd therefore for they knew not what Mr Juries (a) declares, that he has not faid any thing that can figury, that he excludes fence of the the Convittion of Conscience, he maintains, that he universal has laid down, that the Characters of Divinity Dollrine of which appear in the Revelation, (b) "Are able to the Church "produce a kind of Correspondent to the Church " " produce a kind of Certainty in a Man, that has any Equity, and is not pre-possest, without the assistance of the Spirit of GOD But first of all, there are no Men in the World that are not pre-possest. All those that are not yet Converted, are full of the Prejudices of the Hesh Besides, we do not require I know not what Certainty, but a Certainty that surpasses all Certainty, even, that of Sciences grounded on Demonstrations
o) Certainly, those Characters are not fuch as car produce in a well-disposed Mind a Certainty of Speculation that equals the Certainty of Geometrical Sciences (d) He fays first, That there are none of those well-dispos'd Minds "in the World, before Grace 2dly, That a Man that should have any Equity, and no Prejudices, might obtain a kind of Certainty of the Divi-"nity of the Scriptures, even without Grace "3dly, That the Certainty which we require, is a "Ceitainty that fui passes that of Geometrical Demonstrations' Observe further, That Mr June (e) declares, that he meant, that these imparts and outward Characters, placed and ordered by the dies of Lagick and Rhetorick in the Works of our Learned Men, by laying down at first self-evident Principles, and lead-ing the Mind from one Conclusion to another, make a better Proof for Reason, than common Moral Demonstratons But that those same Characters being nakedly prepo d, and without Are, do not make up a Moral Demon-firstion, especially for the elliterate, who must be led by the Hand, and are not able to understand several things which require Study and Penetration Most of our simple and illiterate People did never consider attentively that Demonstration that is call d Moral But those same Cha-But those same Characters put together, which do not make up a Moral De-monstration for the Mind, offectally for the common fort of People, make a Proof of Soutiment that a beyond all exception which is as levely as the impression of the Sun on Ryes. Thus these Gentlemen are at last of the same Opinion. The one does not pretend to any Mathematical Demonstration from the other neither. The latter is for Most anonstrations, which the other grants him. I most plausible thing that can be faid in well explain his that at first Mr Jurieu de well explain his thing that can be late in the same strout, is, that at first Mr Junion of the well explain his Opinion, and that he seems have explained it, but by Contradicting his according to his custom I believe also, which he began to meditate on that Subject, he did not very well know the nature of Moral Demonstrations. He according to his know the nature of Moral Demonstrations are form d too great an Idea of them, and that was probably the reason why he durst not say that the Proofs of the Divinity of the Scripture amounted to such an high degree of Evidence If he had known the true nature of that kind of Demonstra tion, he would have less exposed himself A Mo-Demonstration, does not lie like Geometrical Demonstrations, an an indestrible Point, it has a greater compass and extended the great probability to a very great extended by I hese are its bounds, and consequently, there is a great way to go from the place where our Proofs begin to be called a Moral Demonstration, to the place where they begin to be called a Physical, or Metaphysical, or Geometrical Demonstration Perhane or Geometrical Demonstration Perhaps, that which deceiv'd Mr Jurieu, was to fee that the certainty and evidence wherewith we know that there was fuch a Man as Julius Gefar, a Republick of Rome, &c does not pass for a Science, but for a Humane Faith, for an Opinion, and at many the effect of a Moral Demonstration, and he did not see that the Inspiration of the eripture could be prov'd by as convincing reasons, as those that prove that Cicero did exist, he fear d to fay that there was a moral Demonstration, concerning that Infpiration If he had fuch Thoughts, he did not know the true nature of things, for it is not true that the foundation of the certainty and evidence wherewith we know that there was a Roman Republick is a meet moral demonstration, nor that our perfection in that respect is an act of Humane Faith an Opinion It is a Science properly so call d., it is the conclusion of a Syllogism whereof the major and the minor are cleary and necessarily true Propositions There is at least a Physical Demonstration in it The (f) School Philosophers were not ignorant of this However it be, Mr Jurien explain'd himself bet-

Let us say something about Mr Saurin's Remark, REFLE-That (g) if by a Mathematical demonstration Mr le CTION Blanc understands a demonstration against which stell on Mr and blood raise no objection, he acknowledges, that the divinity of the Scripture cannot be mathematically demonstrated. It were to be wish'd that we had a general rule to discern the Objections that proceed Objectionly from Fiesh and Blood, for each Challentons ons of Sect ascribes the Objections that are made Unbelied there to that Principle, and so the Ball is the overs to thers to that Principle, and so the Ball is evers to back again, and the Disputants are so far from ciding a Controversy, by maintaining that a blood crime is only opposed by difficulties suggested Hesh and Blood, that it is an everlasting disput to know whether a difficulty, or an objection proceeds from such a Principle I add that there are some Truths against which the most presented. fome Truths against which the most preposses, and the most passionate Men will not dispute, tho it be never so much their interest to oppose them Perphyrias a great Enemy of the Christian Religion, and a great Zealot for Paganism, did not deny certain matters of fact alledged by the Christians. The interest of his Cause required that he should deny them, for it is a very great advantage in a Dispute to reject both the matters of Fact and the consequences of them Mr Sauria who is fully perswaded that the Objections which the Reformed alledge against the Churth of Rome do not proceed from Flesh and Blood, knows very well that when the Question is about some Miracle wrought by Relicks, they deny the fact, and add, then

(f) me actus non est fides, fed fcientificus, Moutitur enim non humano testimo. nio, sed repugnantiæ phyficæ, qua video non potulile tot manes manesaif-te se mentiendum Ille assensus oritur à duobus princi-Pits, quæ non patiuntur diffenfum Primum eft hoc : mpoffbete of her ho-mines for faculisconvenire ad mentiendum cundum est boc dicunt tos homines 10# [acules Petrus Hurtadus de Mendoza, disput 8 de anıma fect 3 n 24 p m attributing the min of Mr Turieu's Theology p 264.

(a) Id ib Pag 343

(a) Ju-

P18 341

(1) ld 1b PAS 345

(c) Id 1b

PMB 344

(d) Ibid

rieus De-

& It was a Suit Suit the Suit me iens Remark L

Allard's Life of the BaronDes-Adrets, apud Maimbourg's Hift of Calvinism

Varillas, History of Charles A.A.

Beza, H # 1 11 pag, 221

3 28th A-Pril,1562

BEAUMONT (France de) Baron Des-Adrets, was one of the Noble-men of Protestion of Arms in Piedmons, which was the best, and the most famous School of War in that Age It is precisely, that the desire of revenging himself of the Duke of Guise, who had been again than in a Law-suit a, made him declare for those of the Protestant Rengion s. It is add that Catherine de Medicis writ a Letter to him to excite him to revenge, went that she permitted him to make use of the Huguenots, that he might the better ruin that Duke's authority in Dauphine. The Duke of Guise Governour of that Province had made la Methe Gaudrup his I settlement there had Gusse Governour of that Province had made la Mothe Gondrin his Lieutenant there he was the Creature, and a Gentleman of great Courage, Des-Adrets judging that he could not begin his undertakings more successfully than by ridding himself of that Gentleman, practis'd upon some People in Valence, and manag'd his Intelligence in such a manner, that la Mothe Gondrin, overwhelm'd by the Sedition that was 1 iis'd in that Crty, was the there in cold Blood So that Valence was the first Town that the Baron made himself Master of, and where his Dignity was increased, for whereashe was before Colonel of the Legionaries of Lyonnois, Dauphine, Provence and Languedoc s, he was chosen the next day? after the Sedition Administrator of Affairs, till the Prince of Conde's further Declaration From that time he over-run all the Country, and understanding that the Protestant party had made themselves Masters of Iyons, he went thither, and assumed (A) all the Authority to himself, without much inquiring whether it would be acceptable. With 500 Men he descated the 3000 which St Vital brought with him into the Neighbourhood of that City to rivage the Country, he rinfack d the Forez, secur'd Grandle, where he compell'd the whole Parliament togo and hear a Protestant Sermon; he plunder'd and burnt the great Charter-House, seeze on Pom St Esprit, enter'd have a transfer into the Country of Avignon, and had doubtless taken the chief City of it, to treat it as the Pope's Troops had treated the City of Orange, had he not been informed within a League of Avignon, that the Catholicks had made themselves masters of Grenoble He marched that way immediately, and spread such a fear among the Catholick Troops, that Maugiron who commanded them fled into Savoy, and durst not return into Dauphin. Grenoble was soon brought again under our Baron's power, who treated that City more kindly than they had reason to hope for He was much more (B) Barbarous in other places which he feiz d by main torce, and the that Miracle should be certain, it would not prove the worshipping of Relicks to be lawful So that according to the best Laws of Disputation carefully observed by the Orthodox, Perphyrias might have thought himself obliged not only to deny the consequences of the facts alledged by the Christians, but the very facts themselves I less and Blood, I mean his prejudices, and passions might lead him to it, for the mark things we require our Adversaries to prove, the more we puzzle and tire them. How comes it then that that Enemy of JESUS CHRISI did not deny certain facts alledged by the Apostles? Is it not because they could be supported by much clearer Reasons than those which he alledged for what he denied? I decide nothing it will suffice me to say, that sometimes Flesh and Blood lay down their Arms, and submit to a Light that does not please and fubmit to a Light that does not please them

(A) And assumed all the Authority] Notwithstanding the pains Varillas took to trace all the steps of Des-Adrets, he was in the wrong about the Government of Lyons He always built on this foundation, that as foon as that (b) City declar d foundation, that as foon as that (b) City declard for the Reformed, the Prince of Conde ient Mr. Soubise to be Governour there for when he of the first discontent of Des-Adress, he of the first discontent of Des-Adress, he again into Lyons This supposes that after geometric commanded there for some time, he left that Soubise was sent thither again to the exclusion of his Successor That Historian is mistaken, the first that commanded in the City of Lyons after it had declar'd for the Cause, was the Baron (d) it had declar'd for the Cause, was the Baron (d)
Des-Adress Soubise was not sent thither but when he was thought to be a fitter Man for that place than the Baron, and he continued in it till the Peace Varillas would have known this gradation, had he confider'd well his own words (e) Desapproaching near Lyons un-Adrets, fays he, der pretence of bringing a speedy Succour, to the Calvinists of that great City who had luckily served upon it, flatter'd them so well that he persuaded them to obey him, and to write to the Prince of Conde that they flould be very well pleas'd to have him for their Governour I add that Maimbourg (f) and his (g) Copier are mistaken, when they say that Des-Adress seiz'd on Vienne and Greneble before he seiz'd on

Lyons It is certain that the first thing he did after having made himself Master of Valence, was to run to Lyons, which he knew the Protestants had sery'd three days after the Sedition of Valence (b) Mr Allard did not know that tack he places the Journey to Lyons (1) after the Conquest of Vienne, which, as he tays, happen'd after (k) the reduction of Grenoble

(B) He was much more barbarous in other places]
For example, he treated the Garition of Months! Son, which had furrender d at discretion, very cruelly They represented to him in vain the Laws of Humanity, he would divert himself with seeing those miserable Soldiers precipitated they were brought to the top of the Platform above the Tower Those who had not the courage to precipitate themselves, were cast down headlong, and not so much as their (1) Chief was pardon'd On-ly one Soldier was fived Twice he took a run from one end of the Platform to the other, as if he delign'd to leap farther, but he ftopt short on the brink of the Precipice Dos-Adress told him with a sharp tone, that it was enough to have twice founded the Ford the Soldier reply'd boldly, That he would give him four times to do it Thole words loften'd the Baron's ill humour in luch a manner, that he gave the brisk Fellow quarter, who durst make use of his Jests in such a pressing entiemity (m) Some say (n) that the Baron's Soldiers as barbarous as their General, received those, that were thrown down from the Tower, with horrid cries and thours with the points of their Halberts and Pikes Castelnau Mauvissiere, relates in this manner, the ciuelty which he pretends that Des-Adress exercis'd in another (o) place (p) About 200 Catholicks, says he, who had compounded to surrender the Town, retind into the Castle, thinking that the Capitulation mould be held. thinking that the Capitulation would be kept Never-thelefs the Daron Dev-Adrets cased them to be thrown down headlong from the top of the Castle, notwithstanding the publick Faith that was worn, saying, That it was to revenge the cruelty committed at Orange Some of them that were thrown down out of the Windows from (p) Castelar very great heighth, laying hold of the barrs, the said nau, Me-Baron Des-Adrets very inhumanly caused their Fingers most 14 to be cut off. One of those that were precipitated, falling down from the top of the Castle, which was situated on a great Rock, chanced to take hold of a branch of a Tree which he would not let on they have and there Tree, which he would not let go they shot and threw

(b) Beza ib p 221 and Book 1 p 255 & leq

(1) Allard ubi infia pag 42

(k) Ibid pag 39

biave Man Monce-

(m) Ses Vuillis, Charl /A 1 1 p 2 1 2

(11) Allard apud Maimb ubi lupra

(o) At Mornac County Venaistin (p) Castelna (i) Id p ₹ ₹3 Lecles Hift ſeq (e) Varillas, page 2000.

(f) Radonb Hift of Calvin

(b) Va-rıllas,Hıst of Charles

IXtip

183

273 (g) Supple-Moreri's Diet.onawhere he exercis'd great (C) cruelties by way of Reprifals. The Victory which he obtain'd against the Count de Suz at Vaureas made him Master of Orange and of the County Venaissin, and made Avignon tremble a second time He deseated all the Pope's Troops, he enter'd into Provence, and overthrew all that appeared against him Nevertheless there were some disappointments, or private Jealousies that made him miss the relief of Cisteron That disgrace was followed by some others. The Duke of Nemours after the ill Success of his Siege of Lyons won two Battles against the Baron Des-Adrets; but durst not ingage with him a third time, and found it more proper (D) to use some artifices to make that formidable Leader of the Protestants change sides. They endeavoured to prevail upon him (E) by promises, and by threatnings, they shewed him that he had great (F) enemies in his Party At last they stagger'd him in surfuch a

Hiftory of 14 p 275 Holl and

(e) Varill 16 p 211

(e) D' Aubigne Fol 1 Book 3 ch 9 p 216 edit 1626

many Stones at him, but could never hit him The said Baron wondering at it saved his life, and he escap'd, as it were by a Miracle When I was in Dauphine, I went to see the place with the Queen Mother, he that was sav'd was still living near that place D'Aubigné
(a) ascribes the taking of Mornac to Montbrun, Lieutenant of Des-Adrets, and observes that Montbrun indeavour'd in vain to moderate the Slaughter that one of those that was thrown down continued hanging on some branches, and that some Soldens hanging hanging on some braiches, and that some Soldiers having made some shot at him without wounding him, Montfing made some sooi at him without wounding him, Mont-bium sav d him, and made him serviceable to him. He says also, that those of Orange plac'd many dead bo-dies on floats, and let them go down the River Rhone to Avignon, with these words written on their breasts, Tollgatherers of Avignon, don't stop these Tor-menters, for they have paid a Tribute at Mornac All these sites are taken from Bezza's Ecclesiasti-All these sicks are taken from Bexa's Ecclesiastical History (b), which shews plainly that Desadrets was not the Author of what was done in Monnac So that the Supplement of Moreri must be corrected by this as well as the Memoirs of Castillanu, and Maimbourg's History of Calvinism

(c) Cruelties by way of Reprisals] Here we must take notice of a great fillity of Maimbourg After having mention'd the Cruelties of Des-Adrees he adds these words, (c) There were indeed some Catholicks, who being justly incensed with so many horrid crimes abus'd the right of Reprisals, and us'd them allistery of most in like manner of their own Authority, but there

most in like manner of their own Authority, but there were but few that perish dso He supposes then that Des-Adrets began to use those Barburities, and that the Catholicks only follow d his example, and made use of them by way of Reprisals But it is either a gross Ignorance, or a prodigious Knavery, for Historians least suspected of Partiality for those of the Protestant Religion, confeis ingenuously, of the Protestant Religion, confess ingenuously, that the Cruelties that were exercis'd at Orange preceded those of Des-Adrets Do but read Varillas's History of Charles IX (d) and you will find there that before the leaps of Mornac and Mont-brisson, the Catholicks had exercis'd the most enormous Cruelties at Orange, and pairicularly that of precipitating People from the tops of the Rocks, or on Pikes and Halberts See the Article Serbellon (Labricius), where I mention those strange Rapha. (Inbricius), where I mention those strange Barbarities Castelnau, whom I have already quoted, mikes use of this memorable Restection, Indeed 15 feem d that by a Judgment of God the Cruelties were recipiocal on both fides, and Orange was thought to be the foundation of those that were committed by the Huguenots in cold blood in Duphiné Let us not forget the Baron's Aniwer to his Officers, when they represented to him the injustice that he was going to commit, and the evils which it might draw on their Party (e) He reply'd with a face whose natunal desormity was much increased by Fury, that the puniforment which he was going to inflift was necessary to stop the cruelty of the Catholicks, and that in order to reduce them to the Laws of a fair War which they had first violatedat the taking of Orange, it was necessary they should war as well as themselves Varillas, who ridicules those two excuses, could not confute him as to these words, which they had first violated at the taking of Orange, fince he had already observed (f) of himtelf, that the Baron heard of the Cruesties committed in Orange with those inward transports of Joy which a blood) Man is capable of, when an unexpected accident HOW DES-ADRETS
justified his cruelties

why he had no success in any thing since he had no success in any thing since he had for sale and then why he had no success in any thing since he had for saken a though the man of the sale and then

why he had no success in any thing since he had for saken a

then the sale and then why he had no success in any thing since he had for saken that Party, the had imployed himself against it? He answer'd to the first point, That no body commits a Cruelty in returning it, that the first are called Cruelties, and the second Justice Having thereupon made an horrible discourse of above 4000 murthers committed in cold bland and of the insurance of implements committed. in cold blood, and of the invention of unheard of Torments, and chiefly of the leapings of Macon, where the Governour made his Feafit with pleasure to teach the very Children to see the Huguenots die without pity, he said that he had serv'd them something like it, having regard to he had served them something like it, having regard to the time past, and to the time to come with respect to the time past, not being able to endure without great coward dice the tearing in pieces of his faithful Companions, and as for the time to come there are two reasons which no Captain can disapprove, the one is that the only means to make the Cruelties of the Enemies to cease, is to do them (h) the like mbananan he mustured. to do them (b) the like, whereupon he mention'd 300 Horsemen sent back some time ago to the Enemies Army on to change a merciles: War into a courteous one All his Coligni other Aniwers are full of Sense, to which I refer my Reader as I have faid already control of the faithful for the faithful faith Waggons, having each of them a Hand and a Foot cut my Reader as I have faid already, contenting my afe of that tell to observe here ift. That those Leapings of may to correct the addy, That our Baron justified himself more faintly to the Duke of Nemours, than to d'Aubigné See Selthe apthe following Remark the following Remark

the following Remark

(D) To use some Artifices] If we believe Varillas (1) that was the Duke of Nemours prevented Des-Adress, by made of writing a Letter to him, desiring him to treat two this in the Italian Soldiers that were fallen into his hands as Princers of War But Beza (k) says the Baron write hirst to the Duke to desire him to set at liberty two Italian Soldiers. There is no question but the Maim-Irist to the Duke to desire him to set at liberty two Italian Soldiers There is no question but that Varillas is mistaken, for Des-Advers's Letter, set down at length in Reza's History, begins with the request of the liberty of those two Italian Soldiers of Calvinot faithfully give the substance of that Letter He pretends that the Baron imputed the bloody executions of Vaureas, Boulenne and Pierielate to the necessity of obliging the Catholicks to a fair War with the Calvinists, whom they hang'd as fast as they took them, and that he added, that after having obtain'd this point so necessary to his party that he could hardly find any Soldiers before, he kept exactly the Military Laws which he had learn d in Piedmont There is nothing like this in Des-Advers's Letter, he only which he had learn d in Piedmont There is nothing like this in Des-Adrets's Letter, he only confesses that at Pierrelate and Boulenne, two Towns which he had taken by assault, he could not to his great grief withhold the Soldiers from taking their revenge, on 4 or 500 Men that they found there. His Apology does not consist in alledging some just and necessary Motives of his Cruelties, nor in saying that having attain'd the end for which he had committed them, he interrupted them, he only committed them, he interrupted them, he only denies 'em, and he does it, as Bezs observes, in so very faint and soft sile Varillas says truly, that the Duke of Nemours having apprehended by that Letter that Des-Adress was discontented, caus'd a Conference to be propos'd to him, which was accepted accepted

(E) They indervoured to prevail with him by promises. They writ very civilly to him (a), and after having represented to him, that the way he took would infallibly lead him to a confiscation of body and estate, they tempted him with a promise of the Collar of the Order, and with that of a company of 50 Men at Arms, with a Sum of an Hundred thousand Livres, and if he had rather live out of the kingdom, they engaged themselves to send him the Sum of an Hundred thousand lipid his Crowns. The Duke of Nemours us'd all manner of promises and flatteries, when he conferr'd with fupra peg 291

Des-Adrets
(F) That he had great Enemies in his party] The Marihal de Briffac communicated a Letter of the Admiral Admiral

(b) Adgainst Maim-

Ecclef Hift

PSE 291

manner that his Conduct became more and more suspicious to the Prince of Candi, and to the Admiral The conclusion was that they (G) secur'd his Person at Romans to the Admiral The conclusion was that they (G) secur'd his Person at Romans to the first of January 1563. He did not come out of Prison but by the Treaty of Varily once which was concluded the family fear, and then he project his first Religion, and ubi supra afterwards bore Arms against the which, but without any Success (H) or Glory, of which he is not the only Person that has given very bad reasons. That General shewed no longer the same vigilancy matrivity, increpidity, and presence of Mind which had been admir'd as Prodigies which he served the Cause. All those great Qualities, and the Middeness which he obtain'd over the Papists did not hinder the Protestants. and the Nacones, which he obtain'd over the Papists, did not hinder the Protestants

Admiral to him, which he had received in the following manner Saubife (b) who suspected Des-diers, acquainted the Admiral with it, the Sol-dier, who carried the Letter, was intruded with an answer to it; but instead of carrying it to Souan aniwer to it; but initead of carrying it to Sou-bise, he brought it to the Marshal de Brisse. Here are the contents of it concerning that Baron, As to what you write to me concerning the Baron Des-Adrets, every body knows him to be what he is, but fince he has hitherto serv'd so well in this cause, we must bear his insolences a little, for this to be fear'd that his insolency would be changed into sury Wherefore

nau ubi iupra ch 11

that his injoiency would be changed into fury Wherefore my Opinion is that you use your endeavours to entertain him, and bear with him as much as you can

(G) They secur'd his primal thate is a passage of Laftenau's Memoura, the thine of Nemours knowing Des-Adrets which they bought it more expedient for the King's service to win him, than to opposehim by force, which hedid so dexterously with fair promises and smooth words, (as being a very persuafour Prince, and who always them how to win him hy five Prince, and who always knew how to win Men by his taking way) that the Huguenoes never had fince a greater Enemy in that Country than that Baron who began from that time to contrive mischief against them began from that time to contrive mischief against them

The Huguenots being wery vigiland had notice of it,

The they had spies every where Which was the reason why the Baron Des-Adrets being gone to Valence was eaken bestone by Mouvans (by advice of Cardinal de Chatillon and of the Sieur de Cursol since made Duke of Usez) who sent him to Nimes, where he was in very great danger, and would bordly have saved his Lise, had it not been for the Peace by versue of which be was set ilberty See the 12th Book of Bera's Ecclesiastical History, where the detention of DesAdrets is mention'd at large After divers interrogation, and answers Peace internating he was relead, and sint to his House within any absolution or condemnation These are Bera's (d) words

(d) Bera
Book 11 p 306, 307

(e) Id Book fallen so low (f) he went yet farther since, having born Arms against those of the Reformed Religion as well in Dauphine as in other parts of France, being well in Dauphine as in other parts of France, being Colonel of a Regiment of Foot, in which he got nothing but shame, with such a loss of his Reputation, that he was never since employ d, but remaind in his House a Spessator of other Men's miseries D'Aubigne says, (g) that he was deseated, when the Army of the Duke of Deax Ponts enter'd into Prance in the Year 1569 He fays elsewhere (b) that at Lyons at the return of the King of Poland, an Usher would not let Des-Adrets come in, and it was on that occasion that Adrets come in, and it was on that occasion that he ask'd him the three Questions mention'd (1) before He desired to know of the Baron why do little success in the Catholick Armies hild, answer'd he with a sigh, no fight is too to a Captain that has no more interest in the Victoria his Saldiers. With the Huguenots I had Soland since I have had none but Merchants that on nothing but Money. The others feared and streamed nothing, and were full of Revenge, Passion and Honour, I could not keep up the reins of the first, but the latter have worn out my Spurs. Truly those Reasons are very weak, and to constitute them invincibly, it would be sufficient to refer the Readers to the great number of general and particular Battles, in great number of general and particular Battles, in which the Protestant Troops were heaten What were not the Papist Soldiers full of Revenge and Pajfon? Did they not hear continually their Priests, who exhorted them to take vengeance of the Huwho exhorted them to take vengeance of the Huguenots for their plundering and prophaning of Churches? Is there any thing that inspires more fury than such Discourses? What shall we say of the Decrees (t) that parmitted all manner of Persons, and even ardered all Commonatties to fall upon the Huguenots at the ringing of the slarm-Bell, and to persue them south every where, and to kill them without mercy, as so many wild Beaste, and mad Dor and Wolves, that defiroyed all the Kingdom So that thro' the Crimes of one Party and the revinge of the other, there was nothing to be seen in all the Provinces of France, but Burnings, Buod and Slaughter, and a thousand frightful images of dea h? Could the Ca-tholick Soldiers be free from Passion and Revenge amongst fuch difinal Objects? Was it necessary to wear out more Spurs for them, than Reins for the Huguenets? Monluc and Tavanes, and divers other Commanders of the same Party make it appear that it was the Baron Des-Adrets's own fault At the bottom he did the Protestants more wrong than of the Vahe thought, and the Bishop of Mesus knew (m) how ristians to take advantage of the disposition he atcribed to them, of having been full of Passion and Revenge But here is another reason more false than that which he gave to d Aubigné "Never (n) any "Man accounted to much reportation in to their Man acquir'd so much reputation in so short a time, and never any great Commander lost it is it is former. For the Duke of Nemours, who was fent against him and who could not defeat him with open Force, had no soones brought him over to his Party, but they spoke of him as being the weakest and most unfortunate Officer of the Royal and Catholick Party Not but that he had always the same Valour and Experience, but that die to there is a great difference in Warring for, or a- Casteln e gainst one's King I or every thing is permit- 2 pag 23 ted in a Revolt, and a Commander shews himself such as he is, whereas in the Service of his

Prince, he ought to appear such as he ought to be, and he is more subject to Military Discipline In effect, the Baron Des-Adrees was as Furious as Valiant, he fignaliz'd himself more by the Terror of his Arms, than by the Reputation of his Conduct, and he made more noise than other Men of his Quality, because he was more Cru-el and Dreadful In the King's Army, they would not have suffer'd his Fury, and the Law of Reprifals was so punctually observed, that both Parties were obliged to keep Faith, and to make a fair War "Tho it be my Interest to "make a fair War" Tho' it be my Interest to find Faults in Authors, fince they are so many Materials for my Work, I am truly vex'd that such a Clear-lighted Man as Mr le Laboureur, should have published such a bad Argument Ask him, Why Des-Adress was a great Commander during his Protestantism, and a very pitiful Officer in his Catholic sim? He will answer you. 'tis because in a Catholicitm? He will answer you, 'tis because in a Revolt a Man does all that he can do, but in a lawful War all that he ought to do There was never a more salse Maxim, or more unjudiciously apply'd than that, fince it is certain, that in a Civil War, the King's Party acts with more Boldness and Confidence than the other For the Rebellious Party finding itself odious, will not begin the banch of Military Discipline, the violation of a colation, Slaughters in cold Blood against the bublick Faith, or It is the Prince's Party that gives itself more liberty, in that respect, pre-tending to have only to do with People convicted of Felony, and actually condemn'd to the worst of Punishments It seldom makes a fair War, but when the other Party resolves to use Reprisals At least, matters stood so in the Wars of Religion under Charles IX and consequently, that Maxim was very ill apply'd Besides, I wonder, that Mr ie Laboureus did not mind the passage of Brantom, which he quoted a little after That passage is a which he quoted a little after. That passage is a parallel between our Baron and Moniuc, wherein, the Brantors makes the latter a little less Cruel than the other, he laye neverthales about tho Bi antors makes the latter a little less Cruel than the other, he lays nevertheless, that they might be compar'd in all things, Both very Brave and Valiane, both Whomsical, both very Gruel, both Companions in Piedmont, and both very good Captains. According to Mr le Laboureur's Maxim, Des-Adress would never have acquired the Reputation of a great Captain, if he had always serv'd his Prince Why then did Monluc acquire that Reputation, or why

(m) Sce his History riations 1 10 # 39

TICISM on a pas-Mr le Laboureur

(n) Le La-bour Ad-

(f) That ron Dus-Adrets (g) Tom

1 p 403 (b) Ibid

pag 215

(1) In the R mark C

(k) D' Aubigné nbi fupra pag 217

2 Maimb Calvin p 275 See the Re-mark K * Brantome Elogy of Mon-† Allard s Life of the Raron Des Adrets, p 3, and 4 4 Ibid p B Ibid p 2 Brother to Des-Adrets's Mother I bid p ? Ibid p

(a) In the Kemark B

(b) Branton ('s Llogy of Monluc (1) Sei Be-HA Pok

11 / 2 1

SUPPI L MINI

Dictiona-11 (1111-

(d) 11+P

nılın, par 74

Cilvin

from looking upon him as a Goliab that dishonour'd the Battles of Israel by his (1) barbsrous Conduct He dy'd x without Honour, in a shameful Old-age, equally despis'd by both Parties, much unlike that Baron Des-Adrets, Quantum mutatus ab illo who had been dreaded as far as Rome *, for they fear'd there that he would set out a Fleet to give the Pope a Visit We shall speak of his (K) Children in one of our Remarks

HERE is a Supplement, which I take out of a Work which I read fince the first Volume of this Dictionary was Printed off The Baron † Des-Adrets being but fifteen Years of Age, was one of the two hundred Gentlemen of Dauphine that were in the Army which Oder de Foix, Lord of Lautree, Commanded in Italy in the Year 1527 He signalized himself every-where In 1532 he a obtained the Guidon's Commission of the Company of the Lord Dupuy S Martin, Lieutenant in the Government of Provence He had some Dispute with George d' Urre de Venterol, to whom that Company wis given in the Year 1537 and who & hinder'd him from obtaining the Lieutenancy. Which displeas'd him so much, that he protested to serve no more, and retir'd to his Father in Dauphine Some time after he went to Turin to his r Uncle Bouiseres, General of the Army of Piedmont, who s left him the Conduct of some Legionaries of that Province that made part of the Garrison of the Town He continued in that Imploy till the disgrace of Boutieres, which happen'd in 1544 and which oblig'd the Uncle and Nephew to retire into Dauphine Along Sickness hinder'd our Baron above three Years from bearing Arms He had a Troop of Horse & under the Marshal de Brissac, Lieutenant General for the King in Italy, and was afterwards made & Colonel General of the Legionaries of Dauphine He received three Wounds at the Siege of Vulpian, in the Year 1555 The Charge of 5 1bid P Colonel of the I egionaries of Provence, Lionnous and Auvergne, was given him, and he | Ibid | lcd them with those of Dauphine to the Duke of Guise at Turin in the Year 1557 || He lost his Baggige and his Liberty at the taking of Moncalve in the Year 1558 + and actions of Pequigni, who was Governor there, for the loss of that Town He Summon'd did he preferve, and perfectly maintain it, even when, according to Mr le Laboureur, a fair War and the I aw of Repritals were punctually observed. Why then did Des-Adress lose all his Reputation, fince that of Monluc was not leffen'd

(1) His barbarous Conduct] Besides, what has leen (a) already said on this Subject, I shall obteen (a) already faid on this Subject, I half obferve here, that it was faid, (b) that he taught hu Children to be Cruel, and to bathe themfolives in Blood The elies, who was since a Catholick, was very busy at the Paris Massacre He dy'd at the Siege of Rochel truly sorry for the great quantity of Blood that he had st The Protestants don't much care whether this Hear-iay of Brantome be true, or not, for they were the first that condemn'd (c) that Baron's cruel Humour But every Body is concern'd not
t) suffer the Licence of him that put out the Supt) suffer the Licence of him that put out the Supplement to Morers's Dictionary. He says, That after a great Slughter, Des-Adrets made his two sons bathe themselves in the Blood of the Catholicks. Father Mainbourg (d) supply dhim with that Glois. Both of em ought to be told, that they should not have taken so great a Latitude in their Paraphrases. Their Witness grounded on a Hearsay, made only use of the Word Blood How could they pretend, that he spoke of Humane Blood Do not Butchers contract an habit of Cruelty by the effusion of the Blood of Beasts? A Writer that quotes an Author, ought to keep religiously to his Expressions, and not to commit the Sophisin, a distonguistion of the pleases, but he ought not to give his Conjecture is mattered First

(K) Of his Children Brantome, whom we have quoted concerning the eldest, says, That there was a vounger one, who was the King's Page, but Be-younger one, who was the King's Page, but Be-za will tell us more Circumstances about him The g catest evil, fivs he, (e) speaking of that Baron, was, that growing noise and worse after this, he forsook the Resourced Religion, and carry'd his Children to Mass, the eldeft of which having been bred up in Germany during the Troubles at the Court of the Fletter Palatine, became foon after one of the most victious young Men that was in France, but GOD, did not let him live long I've other two were Twins, and were born at Gethat he who had been the King's Page, and of which the who had been the King's Page, and of who he mentions a very bold Action, was in-(e) Divila fays in his 5th Book of the Civil Wars of Fines, fast the two Sons were called the one Colonel Mont tumor, and the other Colonel Rouvray, and that one of them as kill d in the Paris Massacre on St Bartholomew s Diy The other dy d of Sickness Here is that Page s bold Action "(b) The King order'd him one Day to call his Chancellor, that Page " found him at Dinner, and having told him, that

" the King would speak with him, and the Chancellor having answer'd, that after he had din'd he would go and receive the King's Orders How, faid the Page, must you defer one moment, when the King Commands you? And thereupon he took one end of the Table-cloth, and threw all that was upon it to the Ground This Story was told the King by the Chancellor fimfelf, and his Majesty laughing, said nothing else, but that the Son would be as Violent and Passionate "that the Son would be as Violent and Passionate "as the Father Observe, that this Writer has not well apprehended these Words of Davila, Nel Medezimo (1) Pasazzo surono amazzasi Teligni genero dell' Ammiraglio, Guerchi suo luogotenente 2 Colonelli Montaumai e Rourai, il figlivolo del Barone de S Adrets, e tutti quelli della sua corte (k) He does not pretend to speak of two Colonels that were the Sons of our Baron, nor is it well known, whether by his Baron de S Adrets, he meant ours If he did, I fancy he was mistaken Let no Body object these words of A Aubigné, (1) The Marquia de Resente, Brosher of Prince Porcian was kill'd by Bussi d' Amboise, and the Son of the Baron Des-Adrets, about a Law-suit which he had with his Cousin German, for the meaning of em is, that Bussi d' Amboise, and the Son of that Baron kill'd Resnel

Mr le Laboureur (m) said in 1658 that the Fa-

Mr le Laboureur (m) faid in 1658 that the Family of Beaumont was extinct I have been inform'd, mily of Beaumont was extinct I have been inform'd, by Mr d' Hosser, by means of a Friend, that Susanna de Beaumont, Daughter and Heiress of our Baron Des-Adress, was marry'd to Casar de Vaucerre, Lord of Teis and St Disser in Dauphine Their Postelity continues to this Day Mademoiselle Des-Adress, who dy d Maid of Honor to the Dutchess of Orleans strer the Year 1680 and who had been a Protestant, was descended from that Susama Her Biothers were the Marquis Des-Adrets, who is Captain of a Ship, and the Chevalier Des-Adrets, who was Aide de Camp of the Marshal Duke of Nosilles, when he was kill'd at the Siege of Roses in Noailles, when he was kill'd at the Siege of Roses in June 1693. He had been a Captain of a Ship, but he was cashier'd because he would not assist at the Lectures which Mr. Renaud, Ingineer of Marine, mide at Brist by the Kings Order.

I shall place here the Addition which I publish'd at the end of the first Volume of this Dictionary. It contains these Words (n) I have just now received the Life of our Baron Des-Adrets composed by Mr. Allard, wherein Mr. le Laboureur's missake is thus laid open (o) The Family of Beaumont is not extinct, as Mr. le Laboureur believed, speaking of the Baron Des-Adrets in his Additions to the Memoir's of Castelnas. It continues still in the Memoirs of Castelnau It continues still in the Branches of Pampiguan in Languedoc of Bresset in Auvergne, of Autichamp and of St Quintin in Dauphine It is true, that that of Baron Des-Adrets ended by two Daughters, whereof the eldest, whose Name was Susanna, was twice marry'd, with ch 4 pag 456

Labour Addit to

(o) Al-lard', Life of Francis de Beau-

(i) Beza In / 12 p 5° 7

1,) 31 lud

PATP

(1) Id 1b p 9. 91

(/) ld ib . E 82

him (L) before the King, and lost his Caule. His References for it applied the House of Guise, was managed by Corperine de Mèdica a, and that the confequences and Al-which we have seen already. This father whom I quote, gives a very particular Ac-lard bid sound of it, as also of that Baron's actions which he perform'd after his return to the P 25, ac King's Party. He makes them more confiderable than other Hiltorians; Surihe owns reach that that Brave Captain was suspected of Intelligence (M) with the Highernt Patty, and Queen; that he was Impressed to himself, and received Orders to raise a chousand that he was Impressed to himself, and received Orders to raise a chousand that he was Impressed to himself, and received Orders to raise a chousand to be Foot, which he was there during the Massacre on St Bartholomew's Day He soon that into Dauphine, and feeing the small account they had a state of the s Year 1585 ? At last, being tir'd with so many Fatigues, oppress noth Age, and extraordinarily disgusted with the World, he retir'd to la Frette, where he lived a Year with visible having made his return into the Bosom of the Church He dy'd therefore a true Catholick, after that baving made his Will the 2d of February 1586 and was bury'd in a Chappel of the Parochial so Church that belong'd to his House & The Reader will not be displeased to see the Ti else (O) which he awas hareself whill he was at the House of the Providence of here tles (0) which he gave himself whilit he was at the Head of the Protestants of his 90 Province, nor to know that his Face shew'd (P) the sierceness of his Temper

BEAUNE

"The first Marriagewas with the Lord of Tarvanas, in Picemont, and the second with Casar de la "Vauserre, to whom she brought the Seat of Desactes. The other's Name with Seat of Desactes. The other's Name with the Seat of Seat of Seat of Island set down Mr Allard's Natrative (a) The Baron having accus'd Pequighy for the loss of the Town, and of his Liberty and Baggage, he presended to be indemnify'd by him for his damage for that end, he summerfy'd by him for his damage for that end, he summerfy'd by him for his damage for that end, he summerfy'd him before Ring Francis II who had succeeded Henry II where he maintiful his Cause admirably well, and said, that Pequignia his Cause admirably well, and said, that Pequignia his Cause defended the Breach, since it was but sail, and the number of those, that resolved to go through it, very inconsiderable, that if he deny'd it, he would make him confess it in a Duel This Dispute deposit of singular to the Gourt, and those two Ehemies had some French among the Great Ones, who hinder'd the Decision of it for some time. It went nevertheless in faccount of Proving Welley Seat of the House of Grible. Jome Friends among the Great Ones, who hinder'd the Decision of it for some time. It went nevertheless in favour of Pequigny by the Gredit of the House of Guille, which began to be very great in Private, and they were forbid to attempt any thing application other, on the pondity of being Punish an guilly of High-Preason Whereupon, the Baron was so possess with Anger, that he Swore he would be revended upon the Guilles, and that was the reason why he imbrated afterwards the Protessant Party. This is what Mr. de Thou says, and it is agreeable to Pruth.

(M) Suspected of Intelligence with the Huguenor

(M) Suspected of Intelligence with the Huguenot Parry, and that he was also imprison d He justify d him-Parry, and that he was also imprison de He justify de himfelf. At his return into Dauphine after the Battle of Moncontour, (i) he was oblig'd to retire into his Hosse, because Gordes, Governor of the Province, had conceiv'd a great Hatred against him (c) It is thought, that he superstead him of being still inclined to the Miguenot Party, and even of having savour'd the Armbolithat was made near Geneva by Cour Lodowick. Nasset, and of holding Intelligence with him with the listle account of him, at which is marmor'd highly, and made some Complaints to more hat bold; and even rash, which coming a superstance of the superstance of the him with bold; and even rash, which coming a superstance of the superstance Thing's Ear, Gorde's receive d'Orders to cause him to the did the was carry'd to Grenoble, and themees be Lyons, and Imprison'd in Pierrecise At the was a thought a top' Mais, and so much the more, because Letters were intercepted from the Princes, and the Admiral in his favour, and because the chief Heads of the Protesiants soke to know him set at liverty. Which he (a) obtain'd by the Peace that was concluded in the Month of Jinhamy 1971. He appear'd before the King in his Countil. "(e). There he declard that being innocent, he supplicated his Majesty to suffer him to renounce the benefit of the E-disks of Pacification made in favour of those "to fuffer him to renounce the benefit of the Edifts of Pacification made in favour of those who had acted against his Interests, under pretence of Resignon or Postey, that he had neverdone any thing for which he might be blam'd, that if any Person was so bold to maintain that he was Criminal in any mannet, he was ready to make him derry it Sword in Frind, if his Majety would be pleased to permit it. The Ming mil
"That we'll him, That he was portunded of the

"Innocency and good Intention, that he had "never question'd his good Condust and Zent" for his Service, that he was extreamly satisfy'd with him, that he always believ'd his Intentions were good, and other things of that nature, of which he desir'd his Majesty to grant him an Act Which was willingly done It is in the Registers of the (f) Chamber of Accompts "

(N) And perform'd there an Alt of his ancient Valour] I he Duke de Maienne "(g) being at Grenoble
"in 1581, the young Pardaillan, Son of la Mothe"Gondrin ipoke haughtily and injuriously of the Ba-Gendrin ipoke haughtily and injuriously of the Baron Des-Adress, because of the lois of his Father at Valence The Baron was inform'd in his Retirement what Words he had made use of, and also that he said if he met him, he would abuse him Which obligd him to come to Grenoble, where having watted upon the Duke of Maienne, and having been kindly received by him, he faid several times, and also in the presence of Pardaillan, that he had left his Solitude, and was return'd into the World, to ice if any Body had any Rancour against him, and to give him satisfaction, that his Sword was not so rusty, nor his Arm so weak, and his Strength so much weakned by Age, but that he was able to give Satisfaction to all those that had any Complaint against him Pardaillan neither faid nor did any thing that might give any occasion for a Quarrel, so that Des-Adrets retuind again, being fatisfy'd with this last Bravery "

(O) The Titles which he gave himself | Here they (h) Francis de Beaument, Lord Des-Adnets, (h) Id 1b Gentleman in ordinary of the King s Chamber, pag 28 "Colonel of the Legionaries of Dauphine, Prevence, "Lyonnois, Languedec and Awvergne, Governor and
"Lieutenant General for the King in Dauphine, and my Lord the Prince of Conde's Lieutenant in the Christian Army, assembled for the Service of GOD, the Liberty and Deliverance of the King and the Queen Mother, the preservation of their States and Grandeur, and of Christian Liberty in the said Countries."
In the Chamber of Accompts of Grenoble, (1) Id ib the are divers Ordinances drawn up in bis Name Dan 20 Colonel of the Legionaires of Dauphine, Provence, where are divers Ordinances drawn up in his Name wherein he takes that Quality upon him, and in ethers, he calls himself, Chief Governor of the Companies assembled for the Service of GOD, & There are some that are thus directed. To all the True and Faithful Subjects of the King, our Sovereign and Natural Lord, associated in the Contastion of the Raformad Churches and scall with tession of the Reformed Churches, and well-wishtellion of the Reformed Churches, and well-withers to the Peace and Tranquility of this Country of Dauphine, Greeting and Peace through our Lord JESUS CHRIST Was he not a very worthy Man to use such Language? Was he not a new Apostle fitly qualify'd to imutate St. Paul's (1) Thusangelical Salutation?

(P) His Face shewed the sterceness of his Temper. Thu- ta sua, emas, who look a upon him (k) so nicely at Grenoble 1 p n anothe Year 1572 that he was able to define at him 1165 inches a car 1572 that he was able to define the him him Memory, for as any Body raught know him again, gives this defersption of ham. (If Beat jam some came, fed crads adduc se veridi fenellate, Ocuhi A a a a triculentis,

Allard has ta fua, lib

(1) Id 1b

(b) Allard ub:

∫upra p

(c) Id 1b p 76

(a) Al-

p 19, 20

* Eralim

errorum Bedæ, fol

† Beza's

19 p 892

See also epist 14 1

20 pag

974 and epift 4 1 24 P1g ber quem in lacobum Fabrum icripierat edicto regio sup-amfi non est fuppresius

Id epist 62

1 19 PAR

the 30th Novemb

1527 (d) Id e-pift 71 l

39 Pag 886 See also epift 14 / 20 (e) Chevillier's Orig of Printing,

P 174 (f) That of Beda against Eraimus It was Printed at Paris by Jodius in the pressus eft, etidated in the Month BEAUNE (Renaud de) Archbishop of Bourges, and afterwards of Sens, in the Reign of Henry IV Look for Samblancas (William).

BEDA (Noel) Doctor of Divinity in the University of Paris, was the greatest Clamourer, and the most mutinous and factious Man of his time. He was a * Picard, and hv'd in the Reign of Francis I. He declar'd himself a sworn Enemy, to all those who design'd to make Learning flourish again, and it was on that score, that Erasmus and Faber Stapulensis incurr'd his indignation. He pretended to have found a great many Supputat Heresies in the Paraphrases of Erasmus, and publish'd a Book on that Subject. Erasmus Feelef Heft justify'd hamself, and accusing him in his Turn, convinc'd him of (A) a great number of Calumnies. Beda, instead of proving that he had been no Calumniator, or instead of confessing that he had not rightly apprehended his Adversary's meaning, had recourse to the Art of Caballing He read Erasmu's Books over again, he made new Extracts (B) out of them as unfaithful as the first, and gave them to be Cenfur'd by the Faculty of Theology, where his ficry Temper, and his Factions, and violent Declamations against the Novelties of those Times, and against those truculentis, naso aquilino, facie macilenta, sed ruboribus intersusa, ut lutum sanguine maceratum quod in P Corn Sulla observatum est, ori inspersum deceres, de cetero corporis habitu prorsus militari

(A) Convinc'd him of a great number of Calumnies]
See the Book intituled, Supputationes errorum in censuris Natalis Bedæ per Erasmum Roterodamum It was Printed in the Year 1527 The back-side of the Title-page will inform you, that Erasmus found was Printed in the Year 1527 The back-side of the Title-page will inform you, that Erasmus found musinithe 181 Lies, 310 Calumnies, and 47 Blasphemies in back-side of a pretty small Book of his Censurer, and this, the Title-page, without dealing rigorously with him, for he was spage, (b) Erasm notice of (a) As ne quis queratur iniquam suppuepist 73! tationem, non imputationum sill tam multa indoste, 10 2802 statement, and the supputationum sill tam multa indoste. stulte, & sine mente dicta Non imputavimus tam multas propositiones quas in censuris omissis. Oc. A Man of Honour and Conscience, would have made it his chief Business to Vindicate himself, but Beda, and those that are like him, find their account better in repeating their first Accusations a hundred times over, just as if nothing had been answer'd to them If Enssmus may be credited, his Adversary's Book displeas'd Francis I so much, that he prohibited the sale of it Imposenter (b) & infeliciter edited libro sic debacchasus est in me ut Ren Christian forms when were consent successive edices do fianissimus mor ubi rem sagnovit, vetuerit codices di-(c) Urit vendi, haud dubiè vetiturus excudi si tempessive moni-hominem tiu suisse The Book that Beda (c) publish'd at the quod li-same time against Faber Stapulensis, was likewise forbidden; nevertheless the Copies of those two Books were suffer'd to run abroad (d) Nee jussius premere presse, sed elusic Regis edistum curans ut in Germaniam pargeretur, & isthic clam distrahe-

I shall set down here a passage of Mr Chevillier's Book about the Origin of Printing at Paris Francis I (e) was so exasperated against Dr Noel Beda, who had resulted the Paraphrases and Annotations of Erasmus, and against the Faculty, who had approved and caused his (f) Book to be Printed, that the Dettor being gone to the Court about some Business of his Society, was kept Prisoner there for a whole Day, not Society, was kept Prisoner there for a whole Day, not obtaining his Liberty, but on condition to appear whenever should it be required, and a Letter under the Privy-Seal was sent to the Parliament, dated from Amboile the 9th of April 1526, whereby they were ordered to hinder the Sale of Beda's Book I have read in a Copy of the Registers of that Court, a Letter of Jodocus Badius, wherein he says, that he had Printed 650 Copies of that Book, whereof many hud been sent to Spain, Italy, Germany and England, that he had about 50 compleat Copies left, and he promised not to distribute them (g) Moreover, Lewis de Berquin, a private Lutheran, and a Friend of Erasmus, with whom he kept Correspondence by Letters, presented twelve Propositi-877, dated kept Correspondence by Letters, presented swelve Propositions of Beda's Book, presending they contained some Implesses and Blasshemmes, and required that the Faculty should be oblig'd to condemn, or prove them by the Holy Scripture The King beard that Accuser favourably, and the 10th of July 1527 he sent the Propositions by the Bishop of Bazas to the Restor; whom he order div couse them to be enato the Restory whom he order divided together, and not by the Dossors of Divinity only, quos in hac material suspectors habehat, as the Register of the Faculty says, I do not find in writing what the Judgment of the Four Faculties was Take notice that the Divines of Paris had made themselves so much sufficiently of Passing and America, what who King would Trar 1526 pected of Passion and Anger, that the King would not have them to be Judges in that Cause, without (g) Id ib joyning to them the three other Faculties It pag 175 will not be amily to see in what manner he bridled those Zealots Here is an Extract of the Letter which he writ to the Parliament the 9th of April 1526 (h) "And because we are duly in- (h) Apud

"form'd, that the said Faculty and their Agents Chevillewrite indifferently against every Body, slander- er, Ibid p ing their Honour and Reputation, as is done against Erajmus, and might endeavour to do the like against others, We command you to write immediately to those of the said Faculty, or their Deputies, and to forbid them to Write, Compole or Print any thing whatfoever, either in general or in particular, before it has been review'd and approv'd by you, or your Deputies, and debated in a full Court " Those

Regulations did not continue long, tho' they seem'd worthy of a general and perpetual Establishment

(B) He made new Extrasts out of them as unfaithful as the first The more he found himselfconvinc'd of Calumny, the more he endeavour'd to undo him whom he had calumniated He therefore bethough thimself to try whether by producing the same Accustons a new under a form somewhere same Accusations a-new, under a form some different, he could make a better advantage of 'em Urit hominem (1) quod ego respondens & meam (1) Eras-innocentiam & illius impudentiam sic omnibus ob oculos mus epist posui, ut in speculo non possit evidentius. Itaque prorsus 62 l 19 animo gladiatorio parat vindictam non se purgans, qued pag 877 non potest, Jed easdem calumnias alsa specie rursus inge-rens Habet sexcentas propositiones e paraphrasious decerptas eas ut navrant ad Facultatem desers, & accerptas eas ut narrant ad Facultatem defert, En alquet jam audio promunciatum. Sed quemodo proponit artifex? Omittit qua rem explicant, qua calumniam excludunt addit de suo qua facunt ad calumniam proponit velut à me diffa boc tempore qua dicuntur ab Evangelistu aut Apostolis, & ad Ecclesa primerdia pertinent. Reda omitted none of the knavish Tricks of an unfaithful maker of Extracts. He supprest what was proper to justify the accus'de Perion, and to shew his Calumny He added what was fit to strengthen his Accusations, he turn'd into one sense what had been said in another There is nothing more easy than to cause an innocent Opinion to be condemn'd by such Artisither There is nothing more easy than to cause an innocent Opinion to be condemn'd by such Artisces See the 73d Letter of the 19th Book of Erasmus He contriv'd another Trick, for he made choice of some Heads of Accusation (k), and having put them into French, he sent them to the Court to incense the Great Men, the Women, and all France in general against Erasmus He had already alledg'd the (l) Title of King of France which Erasmus gave to the King of England in Dedicating a Book to him, I say, he had already alledg'd it to make that poor Author odious at the Court of the Most Christian King I do not know whether any Body told him to his Face that he was very much in the wrong, not to endeavour before all things to justify himself, and that it was a great shame to leave Erasmus's Lists unanswer'd, such Lists as convinc'd him plainly of gross Errors, and shameful Calumnies Quum mea supputationes ob sculos emisum posurint hominis insection cum pass malitia conjunction, non cogitat de purgando, sed articules aliques decerptos en acervo calumnianum of Gallicè versos mist in ausum regiam Nunc cossem articules vobis ingerit, scilicet in ordinem digestos, at novi culcanum, perinde quasi nikil sit respansum (m) He should have answer'd that, without having recourse to so many Obliquities Perhaps Erasmus was the only Person reproach'd his Adversary with this (n) Nist Beds prossus dissiderat sua causa, response to select and quadam loca tam impudenter columnia. this (n) Nife Beda pressus dissideret sua causa, re- (n) Epis.

spenderet salzem ad quadam loca tam impudenter colum- 73 l 19niosa vanaque, ut res manibus, qued aunt, sonteri posso Pas.

Nunc

that were not zealous enough to suppress them, gave him (c) a kind of a tyrannical Sovereignty. Which he abus'd in fuch a manner, that at last they were oblig d to give him up to the Secular Power, who to punish him for his high Offences, Condemn'd him (D) to make an honourable amand, and to confess at the Gate of the Cathedral Church of Paris, in the presence of a great number of People, that he B ze 16 had spoken against the King and the Truth He was moreover, condemn'd to * Ba- pag 15 This happen'd in 1535 He had very much oppos'd the Design which Francis I had to cause the Sorbonne to give a sivourable Opinion for the Divorce of Henry VIII He was not in the wrong in the main, for all that was done to corrupt some Universities in France, was a true mystery of Iniquity, but he spoil'd his Cause (E) by his passionate Behaviour, and his mutinous Carriage, and See the Reeven involv'd himself in the Crime of Perjury. He had much Credit with † mark E, the first President Lizer, a Man much more sit to 12t the part of a bad Contro- and Eristversift, as he did before his Death, than to be at the Head of the first Parlia- music-

ment pf 561

(c) Secthe H ft of the D vorce of VIII ly Mr le Grand, t 3 p 421 (d) Ibid PAG 455,

Nunc hoc omisso quod in primis curatum oportuit vim parat, concitat facultatem ut articulorum turba suffragiis & autoritate me opprimat I iay, Erasmus was perhaps the only Person that made that Reproach, for commonly, those that are not concern d in the Injustices of an Inquisitor, govern themselves by

(a) Erafmus epift

pag 889

What he

Jays in the 4th leaf of his supputarum in cenfuris

Beda 15

also a true picture Deligun-

tur depu-tatı ad ıd idones. quos optant 11,

quorum

vel autoritas vel improbi-tas vincit

ın colle-

gus, in quibus frequen-ter quod

ımporturım cum ınfulcı-untur quædam obiter,

mulan-

(b) See Chevilli-er ub: su-

quæ vel non fentiuntur vel diffi-major pars vin-

the Rule of Thinking more than Speaking

(C) A kind of tyrannical Sovereignty] I do not know whether there is any thing more dishcult, than to obtain an equitable Judgment in a Process of Doctrine against such a Man as Bida He was naturally Violent, he indulged his natural Violence with the greater license hegaise he covered lence with the greater license, because he cover'd himich with the fair pretence of the Interest of Truth He boldly defam'd his Adversaries in his Books He call'd moderate Persons base Prevaricators, which was a good means to oblige part of the Judges to fide with him against their Consciences, for there is no pleasure to make one felt defam'd by some Assessor the Inquisition In a word, it was the right way to tyrannize over the Faculty of Divinity. Here is the most futhful description that can be seen of the manner, how a Man of Beda's stamp may extort an Acidemical Decree, a Synodal Sentence, & Michael Angelo never painted any thing more to the Life (a) In Michael Angelo owns consessu semper fuerunt, qui studies & improbitate rerum summam sibi vindicant, nec temere fit, ut melior pars vincat Per illos srimum res privatim dicernitur, art Livius mox excluduntur integriores, adhibentur idonei, prafatio commendat concordiam, adduntur mina, hie inquiunt, appaiebit, qui fint Lutheranæ fact onis Si quis cit melio- dixerit aliquid aquius, mox audit a frementibus, I u-rem, non- thero poper Sunt ingenia modesta, qua malunt qui-nunquam escere quam cum talibus contintionem suscipere Sunt qui in gratiam privatam difictiant a sua sintentia sunt qui metuant aut spirent aliquid, eoque primant minoi fed importu- funt qui metuant aut perent aliquia, coque premant nior tupe- quod judicant optimum sunt qui non intelligant, quod 1 at & manude proponitur sunt qui iisdem affettibus excacati jorem funt, quibus Bedda sint quos utcunque sanos clamor melio- ac iumultus aliorum, ita ui fit, agit in furias Ita non fit, sid extorquetur senatus consultum sin quo pro- Allegatur dinao rursus qui extorserunt admissent affettus suoi relator Deceni- collegii dicretum. This which is to be samented, is, tur Inte- that the manage describ'd in this Passage, is us'd common cum even when the Ouestion is to condemn what deeven when the Question is to condemn what deferves it most Observe that our Beda accomplish'd his Design The Faculty of Theology Centur'd Erasmus's Books the 27th of December 1527 It is icribisres est Ethic his Design true, that Censure was not made publick till four Years after (b)

(D) Condemn d him to make an honourable amand] Bartholomin Latomus, who was then at Paris, will this News to Erasmus. Beda tuus fecit emendam, ut wocant, honorabilem, cum hac consissione quod contra veritatim of Regem loquutus issi, que verba ante edem dive Virginis magno populi concursus precunte precone palam prosuncianis. lam pronunciavit ne forte Lutheranum illum fuisse pu-tes Scd tamen detinetur adhuc in carcere detrudendus in Monasterium aliqued, ut ferunt, ubi & quando Regi visum fuerit This Letter of Latomus dated the 29th of June 1535 1s the 27 of the 27 Book of Erasmus
(E) He spoil d his Gause by his passionate Behaviour]

Messieurs de Bellai, who concern'd themielves extraordinarily in the good success of Henry VIII's Divorce, ipeak very ill of Beda in their Letters I have not yet seen this King (of England) nor those that are in Credit with him, in so fair a way as they are in, to which what your Divines have done, has wonderfully contributed, according to the Advice that is come from the Ambassadors. But there is one Beda of that number, who is a dangerous Person, and there would be no need of having many Juch in a good Com-

29th of December (c) 1529 His Brother William du Bellai writto Francis I the 9th of June 1533 that Beda had committed great Disorders in the Assembly of the Faculty, (d) During which Discourses, sa, s he, and whilf their Beadle was gather ng the Names and Opinions of the Deliberators, to fee what the Opinion of the Majority was, one of the laid Gintlemin our Masters flood up, and took the Roll out of his Hand and tore it, and thereupon they all arose in great disorder and tu-mult, some beginning to ers out that they had done and spoke enough about it, and that the creat stand sound st Party was of Op nion to Deliberate no mre about t without writing to you, Sr, and to the Pope In that manner the Company departed, and the King of Ingfunds Ambassadors, that were walking in a Giller), seeing them come out in such disorder and with | h = noise, and hearing all the D scourse that we ! we n them, retir d very much dipliand to their Houf s putting a very ill construction upon that Bunness And they told me, they knew very well heretofore what we the Secret Practices of Beda and his Accomplices to make the Consuitation such as they had found it Du Bellai 111 , That at his request the first President In for Beda, Barthelemy, Taba y, and some other the granthors of that Discord and Fastion, and made them promise, that they would meet again the next Day 2dly, That the same first President (e) madeth sa t (e) I'md Beda come toh m in the Church of our Lady, about an- p 468 other Circumstance, and remonstrated to him the in onveniency to which he might put the King, and was fo wont with h m, that he swore miss expressly not only no to hinder the K ng s Letters from being obeyed, but to is his endeavour, as if it were for his own Life to make the thing pass without noise or seadal, diy, That the at surfield he would not trust too much to that Promise, forasmuch as not with standing another Promise for merly nade to the great Master, the faid Bida, had begunthe Felicon, without which the Business might have been determ ned without any trouble to the King Neverthelis, seeing the first President would trust to Beda frit, he (du Bellai,) would not write again to the King about it, The Letter of the 15th August of the same Year is curious Du Bellai, (f) informs Mr de Minimoren-cy ist, That the Business had been carry d on by such wicked Intrigues, that, tays he, I have often fren the Mi le King's Business in danger to suff r gr atly by it and I Grand, p assure you, that if I had not do by mad use of in assure 473 stance of the first President, who vestiles he Authority of his Place, has great Credit with the said Body and his Accomplices, such an inconveniency would have has penalty the said have has penalty to the accomplication of a said his I day, not say any these ed by the attempt of a foolish, I dare not say an ill Man, that the ablity of a thousand wise Men would hardly have remedy dit without extraordinally trouble, and it may be that any other Juige not infited with the Per-Suasson which I perceive in the sa d President, that the before-mention d Beda, when he speaks theologically is infallible and impeccable, would have called hat a Mortal Sin, which the faid President can hardly be ove to be a Venial Sin However the King his appointed whom Be-fome Commissioners to enquire into the Abuses and Info- in devided lencies of the said Beda and his Consorts 2 dly, That so much the English Ambassadorshad obtain'd an Order from William Francul to the Beadle of the Faculty of Divinity to du Bellar give an anthentick | Duplicate of some Ast sign'd with represents Bedas own Hand, and that they had address them him here selves to the king, because to have it by the leave of the ar a weak Faculty, was to begin at A, B, C, confidering the Tyranny Person and beretofore usure d by the said Beda, and his Adherents unsit for 3dly, That the first (g) President is so much persuaded the Office of the Holiness of Beda, that he cannot believe the Faults he had be sees in him, which are such, to speak the Truth, that if

Azzz 2

pany This is what John du Bellai, Bishop of Bayonne witt from London to Mr de Montmorene, the id I me of

(g) It was Lizet In derided pra p 173 SOME Facts concerning Beda in ter of the Divorce of Henry VIII a Beza shid pag 7 14 8 Ibid PAE 15

y It was Henry Wotton

ment of France Beda was one of the chief promoters of the death of Lewis de Bergum, as we shall relate in the Article of that Protestant Martyr And generally there was no body in Para that shewed more violence against those that are call'd Hereticks than himself a, and that is the reason why Reason asserted the punishment that was institled on Beda to be consin'd to Mount Standard, where be died the 8th of January 1537, rather to the just judgment of God than to Mount He had been Principal of the College of Montaigu I shall set down the (F) Titles of his Works

BEDELL (William) Bishop of Kilmore in January was born in the Year 1570, at Black Nottey in Effex He studied at Cambridge with the took his Batchelor's degree in the Year 1599 He less that University to mercise the Office of Munister at St Edmundsbury in Suffolk, which he did very zealously without any the suffolk, till he was made Chaplain of the Ambassador whom King Tames sent which B.

at St Edmundsbury in Suffolk, which he did very zealously without any sufficient, till he was made Chaplain of the Ambassador, whom King James sent with Republick of Venice During his eight Years abode in Venice Bedell contracted as very intimate Friendship with Fra-Paolo, and when he return'd into English Tought the famous Mark Antony de Dominis along with him, as also divers Manual opts of Lather Paul, and among others the History of the Council of Trent He return'd again to St Edmundsbury, and among the Functions of the Holy Ministry he translated into Latin the History of the Interdiction, and that of the Inquisition which Futher Paul had given him, and dedicated them to the King He translated also the two last Books of the History of the Council In the Year 1615 he was provided with a confiderable Benefice in the Diocess of Norwich, which he possest twelve Years, applying himself very much to his Duty, and caring but little to make a notice in the World He was so little known, that no body (B) could give any information of him to Diodate a Divine of Geneva Nevertheless his reputation reach'd into Ireland, where with a general confent he was nam'd Principal of a Trinky College. The would not accept that place except his Superiours should command him to do it, and being commanded to do it by King James, he joyfully obey'd, and discharg'd the duties of that Employment to admiration Two Years after he was promoted to the Bishopricks of Kilmore and Ardagh in the Province of Ulfter, being then 2 in his 59th Year He found those two Diocesses very much out of order, and was very active in reforming He began with the plurality of Benefices, and to give a good example he refign'd the Bishoprick of Ardagh, and kept only that of the Residence regulations for the Residence, he was very realous for the conversion of the Residence. refign'd the Bishoprick of Ardagh, and kept only that of Kilmore He made some

$ That College 15 at Dub-

be then in the Year 1629

> body may see that will read the Legend that the two Presidents le Viste and Povellot will make of them Neverthelis, My Lord, I do not conclude that the faid Beda is the only we ked Person, for he has Companians enough that would be glad to give the King some occasion to do something hastily against them, to acquire the name of Mariyrs with the Mobb I had often heard of their malicious und stakings under the title and colour of Hon fly and Hypocrify, but I could never have believed the tenth part if I had not seen it. These words are worth their weight in Gold, for they do wonderfully well represent the character of many those turbulent zealots who cause a thousand disorders in a State, by the defire they have to do-mineer over the multitude, and who are not vext to make themselves persecuted, that the People concerning themselves in their disgrace may make an Insurrection, and finish what their Intragues had begun The Bishop of Basonne in his Letters to Mr de Montmorenci confirms the greatest part of what his Brother had written, (a) The business of the King of England, says he, was propos'd at Paris, after it could be deferr'd no longer, Beda play'd the Devil there, and the Assembly broke up without concluding any thing, the King will have them to begin again, and if it be nicessary to send him the said Beda > (b) I was told, that the Gentlemen of the Faculty were gone into the Concluve to re-assume the Matter concerning the King of England, Beda, Borthelemy, and their Adherents, being the Authors and Promotors of is, who after so many Alarms on their part, as you have heard, have no sooner been out of the presence of their Dean but they have of their own particular Authority undertaken to break what was Generally made and concluded in so great an Assembly You Lord, that I formerly told you that Beda was suspected to have a design to get the Register falsi-fied by the Beadle, and I would not give him time to increase that suspection rather than to lessen it By thele strokes we may know the true Character of

I had committed such my self, and had a dozen heads, thought to be the Authour of the Restitutio in in-I should have diserved to lose them all, as any tegrum beneditionis ceres paschalis (d)

thought to be the Authour of the Refinence in integrum beneditionis cere: poschalis (d)

(A) Bedell contrasted a very intimate Friendship bert Mimith Fra-Paolo] The intimacy which that Fdmous Venetian Divine had with William Bedell was Scriptor without any reserve, he discover'd his Heart to him, which was more imbued with the Faith of the Reformed Chunches than with that of the Council of Trent Facher is nothing that does more clearly ever Facher Paul's reformed Faith, than the patternary which Dr Burnet published in the life of our Bishop of Kilmore I shall speak amply of it in (e) another place I shall only fay here that Father Paul help'd Mr Bedell to I shall on- (e) In the learn the Italian Language, and that Mr Bedrichelp'd the other to learn the English Tong other Instructions, that were more considerable See hereafter the Remark H I add that Mr Bedell Translated the Liturgy of the Church of England into Italian, and that he had the liberty to conterr with Fra Paolo when and as often as he would, even when none but very well known Persons were suffer'd to come near him, by reason of the wounds which then Lieber had vecan'd (6) which that Father had receiv'd (f)

(B) No body could give any information Diodati] What I say here would be no um for a Man of little merit, but as for dell, who was an able Divine and a Minister perform'd his Office so worthily, one cannot of him that he was little known, without ex ling to the Skies at the very same time his Madelty, Humility, Uninterestedness, and several other truly pastoral Vertues, and very hardly to be found Where are the Churchmen that have any great Talents that do not endeavour to make notife in the World, but chiefly to reach the ears of Princes and Favourites? Let us fee down Doctor Rurnet's Remark, (g) Diodoti, fays he, That famous Divine of Geneva being come into England, could meet with no body that could give been any tydings of increase that suspicion rather than to less it. By their strokes we may know the true Character of the simulation of the mass much surprised that such an entroordinary man, (F) The Titles of his Works.] De unica Magdalena contra lacobum Fabrum & Judocum Clichteveum, at Paris 1519 Contra commentaries ejusdem Fabru in his own Country he had less the lange of streets of phrases liber I at Paris 1526 Apologia adversus clamades from Lutheranos, at Paris 1529 Apologia pra filiandes from Lutheranos from Lu

Seculi

(f) Dr Burnet in the Life of William Bedell

net. illid.

dated the SAth of August 15,0 ib. PAS 491

(a) ln a Letter dasidtle 17

of June

ipud le Grand

ubi fupra

p 489

(c) Letter of the 15th August, 1bid pag 502

Catholicks, and thinking that nothing could contribute more to it than a Translition (C) of the Scriptures into the Irish Language, he caused it to be taken in hind That business met with many Obstacles He express a great zeal for the Re-union (D) of the Lutherans and Calve is He did not approve of those that (E) made use of a passionate Style again spery, and did not think 'em fit to und ceive those that erred He had a quite did not method, he was a Man of an Apostolick Charity, and it was his kind usage of Papists, which, with a special precedion of God, say d he informal of the particular effects that Father Paul had for the and that Prelate gave him a very fa-

(b) Ibid PAG 120

(c) Ibid

pag 124

(4)

(e) Puge 1 20

125

(a) Ibid p 119

courant ton

(C) A Translation of the Scripture into the Irish Language I He had learn'd that Language and (a) though he was the speak it, yet he understood it so well that he was a compleat Grammar of it, which is, as it is say the speak if that ever was made In favour of the new Converts (b) he caused the Common than the say of the converts (c) and a stiffed at Prayers to be read every Sunday in Irife, and affifted at them himself the New Testament and the Liturgy had been already Translated into Irish, but judging that the Old ought no longer to remain untranslated, he sought for somebody that was Master of that Language to Transfor somebody that was Master of that Language to Translate it and casting his eyes upon one King, aged about 70 Years, he put him into Orders, provided him with a Living, and defir'd him to begin That Man not understanding the Griental Languages was oblig'd to Translate it from the English, his Labour was the Translate in the Language compared the The Translation with the Lnglish, compar'd the latter with the Hebrew, with the LXX and with the Italian Version of Diodati. When that Work was finish'd, he resolv'd to be at the charges Work was finish'd, he resolv'd to be at the charges of the Impression, but his design was stopt Advice (c) was given to the Lord Lieutenant and the Archbishop of Canterbury, that it would be a shameful thing for a Nation to publish a Bible that was Translated by such a despicable Man as King was There Clergy Man who obtain'd the Benefice of that was not only deprived of it, but allo clack'd in his Reputation It is usual, says allo atack'd in his Reputation It is usual, says Dr Burnet, (e) for those that commit an injustice to justific it by another, to charge their Adversaries with Calumnies, and to repeat their Accusations very often, in order to preposes the People against em, and to opposes them so much that they may not be able to get any redress, but be intirely cast down, under such a weight of Malice Bedell us'd all his construction of that poons and prepar'd Matters to have the Irish mole printed in his House, but the disorders tell out, and he did not live long enough to execute his resolution. The riouse, but the disorders tell out, and he did not live long enough to execute his resolution. The (f) Ibid Manuscript (f) was not lost, for by the diligence of tag 131, the famous Christian Philosopher Mr. Boyle they were inting of it, when (g) Dr. Burnet published the (g) The of our Bishop.

(g) The (D) For the Re-union of the Lutherance. He was not come of the Lutherance.

by Letters to Mr Durry, but did also affift him in the prodro-expences that he was oblig'd to make to negotiate that Union, and gave him an annual Pension of 25 Pistols, which he paid regularly to his Correspondent of London (h) This Mr Durry's Name in Latin is Bureus. The pains he took to execute his project of Re-uni-(b) Burnet, shed on are almost incredible. I believe that without miles much haste he made as many Journeys as Pag 132

They may be compard in some things, ey differ in many others. One was the Misof a League that was already form'd, and in being actually in Arms, had none but violent ins. The other was the Minister of a meer nother Moderation of Men. So that it is no wonder if one of them run post, and the other travel'd Jerstrely. There is among the Treatises (1) which Duram publish'd in 1662. William Bed-Il's Opinion on the Questions which the Undertaker of the Re-union had propos'd to the Divines. That Prelate made it appear that he was fit for such an undertaking. A great number of Lutherans being (1) Tha Ctatuum dertaking A great number of Lutherans being settled at Dublin, refus'd to communicate with the Church of Ireland They were summoned before the Archbishop's Council, they answer'd, That the German Divines did not find that the Presence of JESUS CHRIST in the Eucharist was taught conformably to their Dostrine by the Church of Beland. The Archbishop sent them to the Bishop of Kilmere, who gave them such a solid answer, that the German Divines that saw it advis'd the Lucherans ot Dublin to communicate with the Church of that place Dr Burnet fives upon this (k) that the (k) Burchurch of England has given no positive definition of net, ubit the manner how the Body of CHRIST is or fint in supra p the Sacrament. So that Men of different Opinions may practife the same Woiship without being obliged to declare themselves, and without any presumption that thy act against their Belief. I have always heard by that there would be nothing better to prevent S hims and Disputes, than to avoid particulars, and to allow of as general Formulaises as can be made.

(1) Id ib Pag 145 of Dublin to communicate with the Church of that low of as general I ormuluses as can be made

(E) Those that made use of a passionate stile against (m. This Popery] He preach'd one day the following work.

"Give me leave, (l) my Brethren, to tell you on the still of their Advertures in their Writings and in their f. The Sermons was to be blam d, they give their Pen one; that and Tongue too much liberty, and what they fay is only a feries of Columnies and injurious Words, they think to have done wonders, when they imitate their Linemies, or when they out a confirmation of the standard their Libert of the standard the standard their libert of the standard their libert of the stan them in that kind, wherein he that does the Left "ofir does really the worst, they indeavous to just - as the office their Proceedings by this Text, Answer a Fool to ris his according to his Folly, Without considering this they are other lext, Answer not a Fool according to his Folly his him to his Folly. by, for fear thou becomest like him. But they me fully reformetimes the more inexcusable, because not $\int_{-\infty}^{\infty} \int_{-\infty}^{\infty} \int_{$ nothing that is folid, and confift only in pafficnate words about ambiguous I erms which each | mble the Party takes in a (m) different tente (n) I et | one Reausing of the Colors of one of the Colors of outdoors and Administration of the Colors of Glory of outdoing our Advertures in railing, opposite because the more one excells in that Ait, the larry they more one is remote from the great Pattern of fick to Charity, who says, Learn of me, for I am mek and fall inter-lowly in (a) heart. It is not with ship and price ons, nipping Words, but with solid Reasons that Lirors must be confuted It is out Duty to (n) It id confound Error, and not to cavil or to rul It Pag 147 is faid that Alexander (p) having heard one of (e) 7/e/e his Soldiers froft at his Linemy Darius, iepremanded him imartly in these Words, Friend 1 1150 S listed thee to fight against Darius, and not to treat him unworthily as you do But in truth JESU's were the Oblig'd to those that treat their Adversaries in which that that manner, and it is very likely that if he was bishop yet on Earth, he would say to them, Prenchers preach d of my Golpel, I am willing you should refute Popery, and that you should oppose my Lnemy (p) I betantichrist, and all the Sects that sight under his I eve the same, but I have not call d you to give them B shop ill words. These are my Sentiments concein- takes one ing the manner how we ought to treat those of for another the Communion of Rome, it may be they are bee It not agreeable to the practice of Luther, Culvin, was Memand fome other great Men But our conductmust non a Genothers, they were Men, and perhaps they had Di ius, the failure of being too passionate, who la d.

This is a small past of the extract which is giv- fo to a solony of this Segmon in that Prelate's Life. He due that en us of this Sermon in that Prelate's Life. He dier that that gave it has inform'd us that this Sermon was flander d preach'd a little after the difference that happen'd Alexanin the House of Commo is of Ireland, where there der were many Papists Doctor Burnet's Judgment up- Plutarch on it is very well worthy of acception (q) He gives, apophth fays he, such a fine method to hardle Controversies, that pag 174 it seems to me the Reader will find there an advice as But as he extraordinary as it is little practised.

always uniform in applying those forts of words to the same Persons, at might be that the Bishop had read what he sais (9) Pay 143

(F) It

Pag 145 tliydfwhichthat He dur thit net rauf-

latea nto

Ir neb by 1 D M and printed at Amfferdam

1687 27

(a) Pare 181

(1) Ibid

b 111 M ni-

pag

fav'd him (F) from their fury, when they made such a cruel Massacre in Ireland in the His House where divers Persons had taken Sanctuary was spar'd for two Months, and at 11st when the Papists resolv'd to use those Persons violently, they had fuch a regard for him, as to defire him to fend them away, which if he did not they declar'd that they had orders to feize him But he chose rather to be at the discretion of * The 7th the Rebels, than to put those out of his House that came for refuge there. So they took of Lebruhim Prisoner with his two Sons, and brought them with those few Persons that were ary 1642 in his House to the Castle of Lochwater He had the liberty to Preach in his Prison, and a little while after he was set at liberty with his two Sons by an exchange of Prisonehat Di Burnet at ers He was carried to the House of an Irish Minister, and died within a few *days, prefer Biwith the most Christian dispositions that a true Prelate can have. His end-answered Shop of Sathe good life he hid led, he was the greatest example that these latter ages can palisbury, I illel with the holy Pastors of the Primitive Church † The Irish Catholicks, whose particular I) and with hatred for the Protestants, and Spirit of Rebellion inspires them with more fierceness, than the nature of their Climate, and education, admin'd his Vertue, and gave him very fignal marks (G) of their respect on the day of his Burial. His Learning (H) was great, and he would have testified it to the Publick by a (I) greater number of Books, it he had Printed all those which he composed. They were almost all lost, for the Rabels Courses, and all his Library. He was 72 Years of Age when he great cloquiner, ubi infia * Tiken Robels featter d his Papers, and all his Library He was 72 Years of Age when he from hs life comdied, and was yet very vigorous, neither did he use any Spectacles * BFGAT (John) Counsellor in the Parliament of Dison, was deputed to Charles P 11, 12. Dr Bir-

IX in the Yeli 1563, to present in Address to his Majesty against the Edict which granted the Protestants the exercise of their Religion after the first Civil War The pag 230 States of Burgundy were resolv'd not to suffer the Assemblies of the Protestants not-withstanding that Edict, and to make the Court approve of it, Begas was sent this (1) Ibid ther, who spoke vigorously on that Subject Asterwards he publish'd an Apology, Pag 227 wherein he pictended to shew by several Arguments, that two Religions ought not to

(F) It was his kind ulage of the Papifts which fav d him from their fury | Their bitternels (I make use of (a) the Bishop of Salisbury's Words) was not strong enough to resist the iweetness which he had shewed on all occasions, and which made them May very often that he should be the last Englishman that should be turned out of Ireland. He was the only Person in the County of Cavin that was not a flurb d in his House nor in his Church and or Church is at were full of poor persecuted People. When the Rebels sent him word to send nway all those that shelter'd themselves under his Root, (b) they added Intras le bia done good to several People, and launot aifollied any body, they had more regard for lim than for any Enelighman in Iteland See the fol-

loving Remak loving Remaik

(G) Loy figural manks of their respect on the day of his burial.] The tituling Bishop of Kilmore had taken possession of the Bishopriek. There was a new confession of the Bishopriek. ()Burnet a pag ken possession of the Bishoprick ceffity to defire his leave that Bishop Bedell should le buried in his Church-yaid, he (c) alledged at first that it was holy Ground, that ought not to be (a) H bad prophand by fuch burnls, but at last he granted fer of Caall that was desir'd, and accordingly on the 9th of Fibruary 1642, the bed; of the deceas'd was buried near that of his Wife, as he had defir d in his lifetime. On that fat occasion the high would do him ex raordinary honours, the Chief of the Revels drew up his Iroops, and o it/ Wilmade them accompany the Corps in great Geremony from Mr Sheieden's House to the Church-jard of Kilmoie, they nould also have had Mr Clogy (d) to perform the Office according to the Liturgy of the Church of England , but the the Gentry had done him that civility, it land, but the the Gentry had done him that civility, it was not shought fit to make use of it, for fear of strring up the rage of the Mobb, that was already too much with that charter as I ley gave a I olley, and cried out in Latin, requiscated the metal of the English, and indeed they I ad very often protested, that they I ad more consideration for Bedell, than for any of the they I ad more consideration for Bedell, than for any of who fupra, the other English Bishops, and that he should be the last that should be removed from them

Wotton

(H) His Learning was great | Father Paul declation at sist his red (e) that he had learned more of William Bedell in a in all the speculative and positive parts of Divinity, than of any other Perion that he had convers'd with That fame Inther had read the New Testament in Greek with so much exactness, that he had mide Notes upon each word, but he found by Mi Bedell's Criticisms, that he had not well unthe List of pleased to understand the true Sense of them which pleas d to understand the true Sense of them which William Bedell,

p 37, 38

(f) Ibid

p 10, 11

Prelate being cliegther ignorant of the Greek Tongue, number of them was in great many Faults the in the number of them was in great, that Bedell could not correct them all (g) He observed some mistakes of Mi Bennett Works of the Lenned Usher Archbishop of dell, pag Armagh They were neither many nor of any great moment, but because they did not answer the excellent exactiness of that great Man, he thought he was obliged to shew them to him which he did and the Archishop pose that received his consure with his suat midness and humithes Work lity (h) lie studied much, and chiefly the original of Father Text of the Scripture, whereof he had so often read the Paul is Hebrew and the creek of the LXX that he had them truly dias sheetly as the English Traslation (1) wided into must needs have committed a great many Faults the in the

as fluently as the English Trassation (1)

(1) By a greater number of Books] I have faid in 4 Books, the body of this Article, that he publish'd a Latin but all the Translation of some of Lather Paul's Works I Editions ought to lay now, that Mark Antony de Dominis was that I have much better latisfied with Bedell's I ranslation, seen consist than with that of Newton The latter translated of 8 Books the two first Books of the History of the Council of Trent, and the other Translated the two last (k) (l) I fer Bedell published a Book of Controversie in the Year down the That Book was a Confutation of iome of Wales very words. That Book was a Confutation of iome of Wadfworth's of the life. Letters This Wadfworth's lellow Student and of Willi-Chamber Fellow of Bidell, was provided with a am Benefice in the fame Diocess with Mr Bedell, and dell, the was fent into Spain about (1) the Jame time that I found Mr Bedell was ient to Venice I tay he was ient fome diffinite Spain in the Jame quality of Chaplain, and culty in to teach the Infanta English when her marriage had them, for been agreed upon with King James He suffered himits feems it feems had convert was and morphish from I because with the convert was and morphish formed to the teach and his Country, (m) and publish'd some Letters con- are above taining the inotives of his change Mr Bedell conconfuted them It is believ'd that his answer had from Wotiome effect on Mr Wadsworth's heart, tho it did ton's Amnot move him to make an outward profession of bassy to the Reform d Religion. It is thought so because Venice, to the Son of that new Catholick came to Mr. Bedell the treaty at Kilmore, and told him, That his Father had order d of the mar-him to return him thanks for the pains he had taken to riage of the instruct him, that he read his Book considually, and he had he ard h m say sometimes af in the reading of it, that he would make his chape. Mr Bedell mentions (n) a discovery that was made of the number of the Beast in the inicription of 1 Thesis dedicated to Pope Paul V It was found that the numeral p 4,00 5 Letters of these words Paulo V Vice Deo made 666, (n) Ibid
but he does not boust to be the Author of the discovery Nevertheless he was so (o), and he did (o) WotFra-Paolo and other Divines of the Republick of ton afford

The paolo and other Divines of the Republick of ton afford

The paolo and other Divines of the Republick of ton afford

The paolo and other Divines of the Republick of ton afford Venice a very great pleasure when he (p) commu- King nicated it to them He made a very long Treatife James of on these two Questions, Where was the Reformed it, ibid Church before Luther, and what was the face of those (p) Ibid that died in the bosom of the Church of Rome before the Pag 113 Reformation? He was refolved to publish it, and the Learned

(g) Ibid

(b) Ibid

be (k) It is what I find ton's Amriage of the Prince of Wales with the Infanta li im Bcdell It is he tlat fire Di Buinct 1 ter n' / / / L William be suffer'd in one State, and that Toleration is offensive to God, and against the Publick Peace The Protestants publish'd a (A) Writing against it †.

BELLAI, An Illustrious and Ancient Family in Anjou, which has produc'd Thuang fome great Men See in Morer, a long Series of the Genealogy of the du Bellai's, and a pretty large account of the Persons of that name that have most distinguish'd themfelves I shall avoid repetitions as much as I can in speaking of William du Bellai, 1564 and of his Brother John du Bellas I mean that as much as I can I shall omit what Morers has already mention'd. .

BELLAI (William du) Lord of Langes, was Son of * Lewis du Bellas, and of Mar
*Hefounded the garet de la Tour-Landre He did Francis I great services, both by his Courage and Parts, he was no less a good Captain than an able Negotiator, and his Pen was as good as Langer his Tongue and his Sword His dexterity to penetrate into the Intrigues and Designs of his Enemies by his Spies was surprising See in Morers what Brantome said of him, and add to it what $(A\triangle)$ I relate here under He was one of the chief Springs that forwarded some Universities of France to vote according to the desire of Henry VIII King of England, when that Prince was minded to be divorc'd from his Wife, that he might be at liberty to marry Anne Bullen It was the Interest of France, to favour the King of England in that matter, for the divorcing of Queen Catherine was an affront to the Emperour, and a kindness to Henry VIII That affront on the one side, and this kindness on the other, were very proper to form a strict Alliance between the King of England and Francis the I which was the reason why William du Bellas used his utmost endeavours in favour of Henry VIII He was sent several times to the Protestant Princes of Germany he dexterously warded off (A) the blows that

(a) Ibid pag 229

(b) Ibid pag 327

Learned Archbishop User urg'd him often to it, the Irish Rebellion occasion'd the loss of that (a) Work, and of a great heap of critical expositions on different passages of the Scripture, and of his Sermons and learned Paraphrases on all the Episles and Gospels of the day according to the Liturgy of the Church of England (b) The Irish seiz'd on them and the other Manuscripts, whereof there was a great Chest full, none but his great Hebrew Manuscript, was fortunately taken out of the hands of those profane Men, and it is preserved in the Library of Emanuel College. That good chance happen'd by means of an Irishman whom he had converted, who thrusting himself among the Rebels brought that Manuscript and some other Books away with him. One would be apt to believe that it is the same which is mention'd in the 25th Page Now it is said there that Mr. Eedell bought of Rabbi the tame which is mention d in the 25th Page Now it is faid there that Mr Bedell bought of Rabbi Leo chief Chacham of the Synagogue the fine Manuscript of the Old Testament which he gavate Emanuel College, the he had a great value for it, for it is said that it cost him its weight in Silver (A) A Writing against it have not yet feen any Catalogue of Authors that makes any mention of that Work of Rame, which made me resolve to

of that Work of Begat, which made me resolve to find it out besides, we shall see in this Article the little regard they had then in France for the Royal Authority The Province of Burgundy did not only refuse to comply with the King's pleafure, but decided after a mature deliberation in the Assembly of the States, that they would not obey his Will When such things as these ways reproduced to the Errope after the revoluwere represented to the French, after the revolu-tion that happen d in England in the Year 1688, they knew not what to say, and could wish that the proofs of those recriminations were no where to be found I have the remonstance of Begat in Latin Printed at Cologne in the Year 1564. It is intitul'd, Responsum conventus trium ordinum ducatus Burgundia de edicto pacis nuper in causa religionis sasta, ad Obistianissimum Galliarum regem Carolum nonum anna 1563 I wonder that it should be almost unknown, for it was translated into several Languages, cas I have just now seen in the Paradoxical Misalianies of Peter de St. Julien That Passage is so, curious that it deserves to be set down entire "(c) To speak of a more recent matter, when for curious that it deserves to be set down entire "(c) To speak of a more recent matter, when "the Parliament of Burgundy, assembled at Dijon, "deputed Mr John Begat Counsellor in the same, to give the King a reason, why that "Court had not proceded to the publication of (d) the Edict of January (where the said Begat spoke so well and so learnedly, that no other Remonstrance was better received in our time which may be judged so, because the same "French Remonstrance has been translated into "Latin, Italian, Spanish, and High Dutch) it happened that the said Begat sell into private "Discourse with the Chancellor de l'Hospital on the same subject, and as the Counsellor laid his stress on the Priviledges of Burgundy, and said that the King had sworn and promis d to observe them: the said Sieur de l'Hospital (as Knavish as a Chancellor) replied, that it did not belong to a Chancellor) replied, that it did not belong to

"Subjects to act against their King exsponsu (they were his words) and that all Contracts of Sovering Princes with their Subjects, bind them no longer than they think fit " $(A\triangle)$ Add to it what I relate here under] cis de Billon, observes that the (e) Lord of Langey never began the execution of any Military under-taking, before he had made use of his Pen to dis-cover the state of things (f) He mentions after-terwards these words of Charles V Langey's Pen has fought more against me, than all the Lances of France He commends that Lord's Secretaries ve-ry much, for after having spoken of a Person that offer'd Twothousand Crowns of Gold in vain for a Convosa Letter which a Cardinal had writ to offer'd Two thousand Crowns of Gold in vain for a Copy of a Letter which a Cardinal had writ to Francis I he adds that (g) that Person went away consounded, as having presum'd to have to do with some Merchants like those of the late Marquis du Guast, whom a Secretary of the samous Langey (whose name was Landry) pumped to the bottom of their thoughts which he did out of affection to a Masser, who in case of necessity had a voluntary Sacrisca made him of the hearts of his Secretaries and other Gentlemen Hence it is that this saying, Langey's Nurture, is still used in many places to his praise, and to put France in mind of the serviceable Persons of his time. If the Author that spoke so much of the great effects of the Pen, and alledged so many examples of it, had known what I have now quoted, he would have adorn'd his Work (b) entitul'd Arma Anserina with adorn'd his Work (b) entitul'd Arma Anserina with

(A) He dexterously warded off the blow: that were made at him] See the substance of his Speech in the 9th Book of Sleidan It was not possible to make a more cunning Apology than that which he made for the punishment which Francis I had inflicted on some of his Subjects who were imbued with the new Opinions But Longey's Conversations were at least as cunning as his Speeches he confer d with the Doctors, and confest to them that on divers Points the Opinions of the King his Mafter did not much differ from a Book (1) that

Melanchthen had publish'd Father Maimbourg was SLEIvery angry upon this with Sleidan (k) How 11 It DAN possible, lays he, that the Lord du Bellai could have faid such a faise thing and so contrary to all likelihood? he, who in the harmon of the face. lihood? he, who in the beginning of that same Year, burg's achad followed the King in a famous Procession, where cusations that Prince had shewed so much zeal for the Cathat Prince had shewed so much zeal for the Catholick Religion, and after which he caused sin men that were convisted of Lutheranism to be burnt alive with a slow sire. One might as well ask, how can a cunning and dexterous Ambassudor make use of any diffusion, when he desires to obtain things of great importance, which a sincere acknowledgment would infallibly make him lose? Father Maimbourg confesses (1) that du Bellay declared that those who were punished in France, were such as the Protestants of Germany would not own. The same lessut does not Germany would not own The same Jesuit does not censure Sleidan for having said that du Bellai protested the King his Master had not declared against Lutheranism, by the punishment to which he had condemn'd some of his Subjects, and that none but

(e) Billon

den 1679

(1) It 1944 his Loca

nısm 1 3 cleated of

(c) Peter de St Julien . Dean of Chalons, , Paradoxical Mijcellanzes p 123 (d) I believe be is mistaken, and that he cum founds the Editts of January 1561, with othe Edist of Pacification of the Month of March 1563

had made & Book intituled Ogdoades, which was diffirent from bus History of France

(a) Sluidanus, lib 9 fol 218

(b) Letter 18 p 333 of the 3d edition

() Sec-kendorf A 3 p 109 See also p 259 # 12

(d) Ibid P18 104 Giand s Hijtery of the Devoice of

Herry VIII tom 1 P 179

(f) Samemaith in clug pmg

(g) IN 115 Prologue ; See page 454 of she Momoirs of Martin du Bellai. edition of Ruchel 1573,18

*) Wid. ag 457 (b) in the

Write a History, as to forge a Romance Non Francesgallica historia, fed Amadiscarum fabularum insti-

"La Croix were made at him there, concerning the Severity wherewith his Master punish'd Hereticks. du Manne He was made a knight of the Order, and Lieurenant General in Italy He compos'd fallely that (B) a History of his Time in Latin divided in doades, and afterwards by the William King's Order he Translated it into French Somethy from that Work, so that the dondes , and afterwards by the Martin (C) du Bellas, the Author's Brother, inser this Memoirs, You'll see in the Remarks what Judgment Montagne (D) made Book The Protessian da Bella Publick has been deprived of it, except some Fra malicious Cahamniators could fay fuch an Impertinence, Illum animadvertife quidem in sua disionis Francegalija. (4) That Martin du Bellai enofdam; sed hoc ad insorum injuneam nuliam portinere, tametse malevoli dicant guum illos è medio sufulit insorum quoque causam veluti prajudicio quidam condemnasse rogat autem ne tam ineptu ediumniss moveantur (a) hather Mainhoung must therefore have behev'd that the Ambassador spoke in these manners. Now what can be faul more courtary so manner Now what can be faid more contrary so Sincerity, more falle, and more unlikely. Was it not publickly notorious that at Pars they gave no more Quarter to the Lutherons than to the Lusn-glions? See what has been faid on all this against Father Maimbourg in the (4) Critical Answer to his History of Calvinsm We have here an Article of the Rehgion of Sovereigns, and of the Ambassadors Catechism, which is, I hat Heresy ought to be perfectued at Home, and carefi'd in Foreign Countries, in order to stir up a Civil War in a Scare, that it may be weakned, or to make an advantageous Alhance It is the Ambassadors Frade to act according to the Doctrine of Fourvocations, and it should have been chiefly invented for them no more Quarter to the Lutherms than to the Luinand it should have been chiefly invented for them But to go on Sleidan's Flonesty has been set out in its full Lustre by Mr Seckendorf (c) He quotes Wilham, and his Brother John du Bellai's Letters written to Melanchthon, whereby, they affur'd him of the good Sentiments of Francis I Nay, he quotes a Letter which that Prince writ to the League of Smaltalde to excuse the Punishments in questron (d) The Confederate Princes were plainly put upon, and were made to believe many things, to hinder them from agreeing with Charles V A Modern Historian (e) observes, that William du Bellai's Discourse to the Faculty of Divinity at Paris, Assembled to Deliberate on the Divorce of the King of England, was all a Cheat And why should he have been more sincere to the prejudice of Francis I in Germany? and it should have been chiefly invented for them of Prancis I in Germany?

(B) Compos d a History of his time in Latin] Scould de Ste Marthe was much mistaken when he said that that Work was the History of France, from the bethat Work was the History of France, from the De-ginning of the Monarchy, to the time of the Au-thor Historiam de rebus Gallicis ab ipsa imperis origine ad san isque tampora, tum Latine tum Gastick, gravissimo stilo persecutus est (f) If he had read the Prefaces, he would not have said so, for William of Belds (g) declares in express Words, That his Memoirs bein with the adolescency of Francis I He wilds that he had at sixth preshived to them as it were adds, that he had it first prefix'd to them as it were by way of Intioduction, a Discourse about the Original of the Gauli, and the Rench, and about the Reduction of those two Nations into one, which Reduction of those two Nations into one, which threw off the Roman Yoke, but that afterwards, he laid that Discourse by, and inlarg'd it so rauch, that he made a separate Work of it, and one of the Seven Ogdondes that made up his History He treated in that Ogdonde, 1st, Of the Antiquity of the Gauls and Prench 2dly. Of the Division of Gaul and France He gave there a Goographical Description, and reconcil'd the Modern Names with the Ancient as Well as he could all Of the the Agrent as well as he could 3dly, Of the Laws and Coftoms, as well Military as Political, and of the Offices and Dignities. (*) He appropriated the Time past to the present, as well, and as near as he could Matrin du Bellai does not less clearly continued for the Company of the Matrin du Bellai does not less clearly continued to the Matrin du Bellai does not less clearly continued to the Matrin du Bellai does not less clearly continued to the Matrin du Bellai does not less clearly continued to the Matrin du Bellai does not less clearly continued to the Matrin du Bellai does not less clearly continued to the Matrin du Bellai does not less clearly continued to the Matrin du Bellai does not less clearly continued to the Matrin du Bellai does not less clearly continued to the Matrin du Bellai does not less clearly continued to the Matrin du Bellai does not less clearly continued to the description du Bellai does not less clearly continued to the description du Bellai does not less clearly continued to the description du Bellai does not less clearly continued to the description du Bellai does not less clearly continued to the description du Bellai does not less clearly continued to the description du Bellai does not less clearly continued to the description du Bellai does not less clearly continued to the description du Bellai does not less clearly continued to the description du Bellai does not less clearly continued to the description du Bellai does not less clearly continued to the description du Bellai does not less clearly continued to the description du Bellai does not less clearly continued to the description du Bellai does not less clearly du Bellai does not les de demn Scrvola de St. Marthe (h) My deceard Brother, says he, Messire William du Bellan had compord Seven Latin Ogdondes, which he Translated by the Seven Latin Ogdoades, which he Translated by the Ring's Order into our Vulgar Language, wherein the Picture of the Ot wrences OF THIS AGE was not only plandy feen, as in a Glass, but also a wonderful Dixterity of Writing, according to the Judgment of the might Learned If all the History of the Monarchy inight have been seen in it, would be have recommended his Brother's Memoirs by the only Occurrences of thu Age, and by the Style?

NOTE, That the Work of the Antiquity of the Gauls and Frinch, is so full of Fables, that one would think the Author did not so much design to write a History, as to forge a Romance Non Fran-

Thus ruise trassationem enderur. Thus the perman topaks of it at the end of the 4th Comment has inserted in his SOME Memore! He was also both a Solther and a Writer He was Knight of the King's Order, Captain of 50 Men of Arms of his Ordinames, and his Leeue.

Martin du

Martin du not General in Normondy. He left forme Memours Bellar that reach from the Year 1513, when he came to Court, to the Death of Francis I (1) They are, says (1) in his he, Memoirs both of Peace and War, of which I can Preface partly speak as an Eyo-mismost, far I have been Perfect on the Preface foundly present in divers Places on this and on the other side of the Alus, and as for the raft. I could have fide of the Alps, and as for the raft, I could have certain Advice from those that were present Of the Ten Books that make up that Work, there are but Three that belong to William da Bellau, it we rely on the Fiele and Three that belong to William do Bellau, it we rely on the Irle-page, on the Present Martin du Bellai, and on the Irle of the Martin du Bellai, and on the Irle of the Martin du Bellai, and on the Irle of the Martin du Bellai, and on the Irle of the Martin du Bellai, and the particular Title that is at the Head of each Book, we shall sind that the 5th, 5th, 7th, and 8th, Book, belong to William du Bellau, and that the 1st, 2d, 3d, 4th, 9th and roth, belong to Martin That which belongs to William, is taken from the (1) 5th Ogdosde, and reaches from the Year 1536, (1) Preto the Year 1540 The whole Work of William face of was made up of Seven Ogdosdes, but the first did Martin not relate to Prancis I it treated of the Antiquit and Head the Gauls and Prench, &c as I have (1) In the Monarch's Reiga The Ten Books, while the Remark B have, written partly by William, and partly by Martin 1960 in Fo. were Printed at Para in the Year 1569 in Fo-Ho, by the case of René du BELLAI, Baron de la Lande, Son-ma-law of Marein Some quote an Edu-tion of Paris in Folio 1572 I have feen one which was Printed off at Paris the 20th of Offsher 1587 was Printed off at Para the 20th of Ostober 1587 in Foho, by Peter de Birnir, the Kang's Mathematical Printer, 2016 Sold by Peter de Fuillier Du Chesse in his seque of the Writers of the Hastory of France, 258, that there is a Genera Bdition in 8° 1594 but he says nothing of that of Rechel 1573 in 8° High Sureau turn'd that Book into Latin, and publish'd it at Frankfure in Folio in the Year 1574 Martin du Bellai (m) dy'd at Statigm the 9th of Murch 1589 He had marry'd sail bella Chenne, d' Tuetor, and by that Marriage, he hecame Prince of Pueser

hecame Prince of Trusses

(D) Whose Judgment Montagne made of that Book]

These are his Words (n) " It is always pleasant (n) Essays to see things written by those that have try'd 1 2 ch to how they must be manag'd, but it cannot be to 2 pag deny'd, that a great want of the freedom and 11-155 edit betty of Writing is evidently discover'd in those of Paris two Lords, which is comprisenous in the old 1659 in French Writers, as in the Sire de Jestiville. To 12° meRick Servant of St Lewis, Eginard Charles of Charlemagns, and of later memory, in de Comines. Here is rather a Plea for King cus against the Emperor Charles V than and ry I don't believe they have alter'd any I don't believe they have alter'd any as to the main, but they make a Trade of ing of the Events, often against reason, take advantage, and of omercing all that is ticklish in the Life of their Master, Witness the removal of Messieurs de Monnowency and Belm, that is forgotten there Nay, the very Name of Madama d Estampes is not to be found in it Private Actions may be conceased; but to pass over in silence what every Body knows, and Matters that have produced such publick Estats, and of silect great Consequence, is an inextusable fault. In short, to have a full knowledge of King Prancie, and of the things that happened in his time, you must look essewhere, if you will believe me. The advantage that may be reapped from the reading that History, consists in the particular Account of the Battles and Warlake Exploits wherein those Gentlemen have been present, in some private Words and Actions of some Princes of their time; and in the Practices "and as to the main, but they make a Trade of du

This very important Advices for Historians, and very folid Reflections ($D\Delta$) on the Indignities which are offer'd to History It is by a palpable Error, (E) that a Book about military Discipline, is ascrib'd to William du Bella: I believe he was the Author of the ill of the

(a) William du Bellai, Prelign of bu Ogdo-adcs, pag 43, &c of the Rochel edit 1573 178

"and Negotiations managed by the Story de Lan"gey, where there are many things the deserve "to be known, and Discourses that alot vul"gar" If Morers had read the Monage of those Gentlemen, one might very well to the he knew but little how to judge of Books to be says, the Style of William du Bellas is state to losty, and such and the of Quality ought to write in First of all the certain, that the Style of that Illustries Person is not stately nor losty, it is not correct, and it does not appear that the Author took any pains about it, and it is full of broken Latin Terms, which shews that the Author does him-Terms, which shews that the Author does him-felf justice, when he declares, that he did not mind the perfection of the Style. In the second place, Period of Quality do not write in a lostry Style, it is by that Character, that one may discover whether an Author is a Person of Quality or not A profest Rhetorician, a Preaching Monk cin write a hundred times more loftily than a Courtier

(DA) Very important Advices for Historians, and wery folid Reflections on the Indignities offer d to H flory J. There never was more occasion to give attention to this thin at this time, but the worst of it is, that most of raise who are guilty of the Faults Cenfur d by William Bella, don't commit them thro' Ignorance The Bella, don't commit them thro' Ignorance The Bella, and of germing Mony by it, which engage Writers to fallify their Relations Whatever may be the Cuic of iuch a Disorder, I shall set down a long Passage of this Author He Whitever may be the Cuite of luch a Difficlet, I shall set down a long Passage of this Author. He observes very judiciously, I hat it is necessary that those who know things be speedy in publishing them, for otherwise, it becomes too disficult to trace things back to their Original "(a) Slowmens in History is of so much the more dangefrous Consequence, because the Lives of Mortals frous Confequence, because the Lives of Morrils from short and if nothing is put into writing the those who know and remember the Affairs for the theorem who know and remember the Affairs for the the Trimes, those who come after, althout the Triuh Which we may already have obtieved in some of the last preceding Years, of which to speak truly and at large, is a difficult Matter, partly by the Negligence, and partly by the Rashness of the Historians themselves, who the Rainness of the Historius themselves, who nevertheless complain the labour, but they would have done better both for themselves and us, if they had writ nothing, rather than to publish under the Title of a History, a parcel of fabulous and lying Stories, of which we have at this Day a greater plenty than we have of true History. gies I have read in some Chronicle (which I believe ome will think to be a Dream) that a King of France after Dinner Chas'd a Stag from Complegne to Loudun, which is about 100 Leagues Every body knows, that the virtuous and praise-woithy Prince Charles, Duke of Orleans, after he had been Thirty Years a Prisoner in England for the Service of the Crown of France, at last return'd home and dy'd loaded with Years and Honour And we read in more than twenty Authors that he was Beheaded at Paris for High-Treason Did the last King of Scotland dye in a Battle and the English in the Year 1514? and yet I re read that he return'd Victorious and Triaphant into his own Kingdom I avoid Prokity in recounting a greater number of these Lies which are certainly publish'd only thro' the Rashness, Carelesness and Indiscretion of these "Historians and Writers of Chronicles, who of"tentimes deliver that for certain, which they first heard, without having any regard to the Credibility of the Person who related it to them, or else by setting down what is commonly reported among the People, which generally has very little Truth in it from whence it proceeds that the Readers, who are otherwise inform'd, are not very willing to believe other good ancient Authors, thinking they writ after the same manner. Thus in another Case, Cardinal Besserion (b) seeing the new Saints Canoniz'd at Rome, whose Lives he knew, and did not approve of, These new Saints, (said he) make me very doubtful and scrupulous with respect to what is faid of the ancient ones. And I wish these Writers of Chronicles would be quiet, or else give Names to their Rooks answerable to the Contents, and that those who are able and willing to speak the Truth, were fo zealous for the Honour and Glory of their Country as to write in their own Language, what they have feen or heard from Credible Persons. Then the Men of Letters might enrich their Style, and make it Elegant without the trouble of endeavouring to find the Truth amidst so many Lies, Controlictions, and Repugnancies, which are publish'd by the said Writers of Chronicles, who foolishly believe those that come first in their

(E) It is by a palpable Error, that a Book about Military Discipline is ascrib'd to William du Bellat Du Ver dier aicribes that Rook absolutely to him, but la Croix du Maine gives to understand that he is not suite of it. He neither notes the Year nor the Place where it was printed, but five only, That the Inflin-tion of the Militry Art is to be found Printed under the Name of the Said Sieur de Langey Du Verdier is more exact, he gives the Title in this manner, Instructions about War extracted out of the Books of Polybius, I rontinus, Vegetius, Cornaz in, Michiavel and several other good Authors, by Messive William du Bellai, &c Printed at Paris 4 and 8' by Michael Vascolan 1553, Brantome was very much pertuaded that the same Book had appear'd under its Authors own Name (c) The Book, fays he, which Monssieur de 1 ingey made concerning the Military Ait, shews him to be a bet-moirs rela-ter Captain than that which Michiavel with on that ting to the Subject does him It was a foolish thing for this Man grea who did not know what War was, to compose a book French about it, just as if a Philosopher should write a Book of Captains Hunting, as le Youillou did It is easy to prove tip m by the Book itielt that William du Bellai is not the 38. Author of t. He that made that Work was but a Gendarme in the Company of the Sieur de N grepe-life, in the Year 1528. He was at the Siege and taking of Troja under Monsieur de Lautree, he retir d to Barletta, a Town of Apulia after he came out of Prison, for he had been taken Prisoner when the Company in which he served was deseated, in the Retrief which the Marquis de Sallusse made trops Retreat which the Marquis de Sallusses made tions before Naples He fays all these things himfelf in William du Billai He was a great Lord in the Year 1525, when the Queen Regent fent him into Spain (1) John to Francis I He was in 1527 one (d) of those that du l'illet to Francis I He was in 1527 one (d) of those that du l'illet were present at the Judgment given igainst Monsieur de Bourbon. The King sent him the sume l'étione of Year into Italy, with Mony for the Confedethe Ranks rate Princes, and to labour foi the good of the of lines. League with Pope Clement VII. He was sent into apul the England in the Years 1529, and 1533. He was then Baron de Gentleman of the King's Chamber. Being Governor of Turin in the Year 1537 he was sent into viuls, ubit Germany to demand a Dyet, wherein the Rights of insta the Emperor and of the King of France for the (e) The BaDutchy of Milan, might be discuss d. He was not ron de therefore commanded the same Year in the quality. I orqueof a Captain of a Company of Foot Soldiers, to help the vauis in of a Captain of a Company of Foot Soldiers, to help the Vauls in Steur de Roberval to make himself Master of the Valthe Life of leys of Saint Martin and Lucerne Now the Authors thorof the Military Discipline says, towards the end creat of the 2d Book, that he received such an Order Iranh It is therefore most certain, that the Lord de Lan-Gaptain gey did not compose that Book. These are such p 3,2, demonstrative Reasons, that he who (e) makes use of them, does not think it necessary to add this, If Messire William du Bellai was the Author of (f) In the heavest would not make heres so the heavest was the sould not make heres so the heavest was the sould not make heres so the heavest was the sould not make heres so the heavest was the sould not make heres so the heavest was the sould not make heres so the heavest was the sould not make heres so the heavest was the sould not be so that the heavest was the sould not be so that the heavest was the sould not be so that the heavest was the sould not be so that the heavest was the sould not be so that t it, he would not praise himself (f) for having a perfect knowledge of War and Learning, not call himself, peaking in the third Person, my Lord of Langey, as Mindsin Poleo, (g) an Italian Translator, and the last I rench first editions.
Correctors, have very well observed Moreover, the Sieur made by de Lange, who forgets himself but lit le or not at all, in his Memoirs, and who curiously quotes the Places where Valcolan he was, makes almost no mention of himself in all that and Gual-Expedition made by Monstear de Lautrec Let us not hot du be contented with knowing only that that Work Prc' was ascrib'd to a Person that was not the Author of it, but let us know the reason of this Mistake, to have and the true Father's Name Raimond de Pavie been said Sieur de Forquovauls, a Gentleman of Gascogne, in Mambrin the Author of that Work. He communicated a Roleo B b b Copy tome . Me-

Captains, (f) In the of the d Book, of the made by Michael

Mambrin

(b) See B words in mark G, of the Article Launoi (John de) to those lying Hifterians, who binder su from believing others

* Biblioth Franc P 139

t He was

Bishop of

J 527 when

Baionne in the Year

Francis I

Sent bim Ambas[ador into

England

other Works that are (EA) ascrib'd to him; but I don't think they were ever Printed. I except the Epitome of the Antiquities of Gaul, which was Printed with some other small Pieces in the Year 1556 La Croix du Maine * says, that William da Bella: was born about the Year 1498 at Glatign: in Perche I believe he is mistal en (F) as to the time

BELLAI (John du) younger Brother of the fore-going, was a Man of great erit He concurr'd with his elder Brother to favour the Passions of Henry VIII and to decoy the Protestants of Germany, in order to serve Francis I whose Affairs requir'd that there should be no good Correspondence between the Emperor and Fngland by the Divorce of Catherine of Arragon, and that the Confederates of Smalcalde should be amus'd with Lies about the pretended Inclination of France I to give the Lutherans some satisfaction. This Manage would have been more inexcusable in John du Bellas, who was a Bishop, than in his Brother William, who was a Lay-man, I say, it would have been more inexcusable, if that Bishop had not been also an + Ambassador and a States-man The definition of Persons invested with that Chiracter is well known Let us add, that it is not unlikely, that John du Bellas had a sincere desire, and even some hopes of a Reformation, and that in that prospect, he sincerely incourag'd Melanchthon to come into France, for he inclin'd for some time towards Lutheranism, and even reform'd himself privitely, as to the Article of Celibacy by a (A) Marriage which he contracted out of Conscience He was Bishop of Paris when many I rench Captains de Pavie, Baron de Forquevauls pag

(b) The Lives written by the Baron Rome in the Year 1637

(c) Naudæus Svntagm de studio

(c) Here is a Fatt for the curious I things aon texbort them t/ne c enti

(f) Il e Ba ron de I orque-Viuls, ubi Supra p 334 g) Biblioth 139

(a) See the Copy of it to William du Bellai, as to his good Lord Lives of and Friend, and to whose Judgment he had first expos'd it That Copy was found among the Papers of that Lord (a), this is the origine of the Mistake Is the Author's Kiniman had acquainted the Publick with the truth of that Fact, (b) before Naudeus publish'd his Syntagma de studio militari, there is some likelihood that that Syntagma would not contain the common Error which we find in these Words, (c) Qui (Erricus Roanus) nunc in Tellina Valle sub Christianissimo Rege castrorum prafettus idem omnino facit quod quondam in Alpibiu Taurinis Guilielmus Bellajus Langaus codem munere defungens fecerat, editis etiam libris de re militari, quos postea Mambrinus Roseus Italica & omnes ferme populi sua lingua reddide-runt, ob summam ejusmodi librorum qui ab expertis & the Baron celeberrimis noftra & patrum memoria ducibus compositi quevauls, fuerunt utilitatem Naudaus is moreover mistaken in supposing that the Books in question were Printed at Patrum the Life of William du Bellai He seems to value that Work much His Judgment was therefore different from that of a Commentator of One ander, of whom the Baron de Forquevauls com-Syntagma plain'd in this manner That Military Discourse, is reimiliti indeed a necessary Work, and useful to those that profess the War, and which will continue a long time esteem'd and priz'd in the Hands of the most Understanding Men, in spite of the Slanders and contrary Opinion of a Modern Author, who in his Annotations on the Military Art of Onosander, a Greek Author, despises sim, with whom he is not to be compar'd in that Science, the he we is not to be compara in that Science, the newritmore like a Doctor than a Soldier, during the leifurc and idle time which the good Table and the Amours of a certain Abbot (d) with his Wife afforded him, and the has taken his Commentaries out of divers Autho he has taken his Commentaries out of divers Authors, whereas the Text of him whom I am speaking of, was conceived on Horseback, and written Sword in Hand by the Sieur de Forquevauls (e) What did la Croix de Maine think on (f) when he said, That the Constable Annede Montmorency past for the Author of the Book in question? Did he not know that the Constable was a Man of no Learning or Reading, and was not able to Write? Let us see from whence his Doubt proceeded. It is says he. from whence his Doubt proceeded It is, says he, because in reading that Book, I found that the Author of it praises Message William du Bellai, Lord of Langey very much, and recommends him for his Learn-Langey very much, and recommends nim for his Learnout, they'll do it without being desir'd, and them, and that it was presupposed it was his own Work, I don't bebecause he had promised to write some Memoirs I don't that they have the Author of 'em. neither do I deny it affire that he is the Author of em, neither do I deny it. If he had read the Work well, he would have found stronger Proofs than that which he draws from the Praises that are given there to William

(EA) Of the other Works that were afcrib'd to him] See the Catalogue of 'em in the French Bibliotheques See the Catalogue of 'em in the French Bibliotneques of la Croix du Maine, and du Verdier Some of the chief of them, were perhaps never finish'd It is likely, that la Croix du Maine gave that for a perfect Work, which the Author only promises in the Prologue of the Ogdoades

(E) I believe he is militaben as to the Time. 1 After

(F) I believe he is mistaken as to the Time.] After having faid Page 139, that William du Bellai was Born in the Year 1498 or thereabouts, He places his Death in the following Page on the 9th of January 1543 at the Age of 47 Years, or thereabouts Would a Man never to little exact slay so? Would Would a Man never to little exact-stay to? Would he not place either $496 on one fide instead of 1498, or 45 on the other, instead of 41? But this is not the chief thing Brantome (g) observes, that Langey dy'd not very old, and might have lived longer Can any one ipeak thus of a Man that is about 44 Years of Age Moreover, Cardinal du Bellai was (b) 68 Years of Age when he dy'd, now he dy'd in 1565 he was therefore born in the Year 1402. It cannot then be said, that William du Release 1500 to 1500 1492 It cannot then be faid, that William du Bellons to lai was born in the Year 1498, for he was (1) Thuanus older than his Brother the Cardinal I have just 1 pag now found out that he dy'd in his Climacterical 184 Year Rabelais observes it in the 21st Chapter of his 3d Book, after having said, that he dy'd the 10th of January 1543 The Author of the Notes Marth on the Confession of Sanci, has given me notice of that in elog

(1) Sainte Marthe

(b) Teffi-

er, additi-

(A) By a Marriage which he contracted out of Consci-(A) By a Marriage which he contrasted out of Conscience Brantome affirms it, (k) in this manner, "I "have heard a Lady of great Quality say, That the late Cardinal du Bellas, being Bishop and Cardinal, had marry'd Madam de Chatillon, and dy'd marry'd, this she said, discoursing with Monsieur ds Manne, of Provence, of the Family of Seulal, and Bishop of Frejus, who had attended the said "Cardinal 15 Years at the Court of Rome, and had been one of his private Protonotaries, and hapbeen one of his private Protonotaries, and hap-ning to speak of the faid Cardinal, she ask d him, Whether he had never told, and confest to him, that Whether he had nevertold, and confest to him, that he was marry'd? Monsieur de Monne was much furpriz'd at that Question He is yet living, and can tell whether I tell a Lye, for I was there He answer'd, That he had never heard him, or others say so Well then, I tell you so, reply d she, for there is nothing more true, than that he was marry'd, and dy'd really marry'd to the said Lady Chatillon That (1) Lady was the Widow of M de Chatillon, who was wounded before Ravenne, and who dy'd of his Lady was the Widow of M as Charitton, who was wounded before Ravenna, and who dy'd of his Wounds at Ferrara He had been in great Credit in the Reign of Charles VIII His Widow, young and fair, was chosen for Lady of Honour to the Queen of Navarre, and gave her the good Advice which that Queen mention'd in her Hundred Nawhich that Queen mention'd in her Hundred Novels Admiral de Bonivet (m) crept into that Princess's Bed thro a Trap-door, but he got nothing there but a scratch'd Face The Queen would have complain'd of that Attempt to her Roother thing there but a scratch'd Face The Queen would have complain'd of that Attempt to her Brother Francu I if the Lady Chatillon had not given her "This (n) good Advice, which is one of the finest and wisest, and the most proper to avoid "Scandal that could have been given, even by a first President of Paru, and which shewed newertheless, that the Lady was as Cunning and Crafty in such Mysteries, as Wise and Discreet, and therefore it is not to be doubted, that she kept her Marriage with the Cardinal very prikept her Marriage with the Cardinal very prikept her Marriage with the Cardinal very private

I believe that the Cardinal, her faid Husband, who was one of the most Learned, Eloquent, Wise and Prudent Men of his time,

" had

(k) Branthe gallant

Ladres, t 2 p m 153

(1) Idem

(m) Ibid PAE 255

(n) Brantome up in 1524. he was sent to Rome to bring Matters to a good Tomper in relation to the King of England; but he had no good success, and could not hinder the Pope from fulminating an Excommunication against Hemy VIII. He was promoted to the Cardinalship by Pope Paul III. in the Year 1525 and dy'd in 1560 at Rome, whither he had retur'd after the Death of France I. He was a Man who would willingly have parted with the Mitre and the Croffer, to take the (B) Helmet and the Sword If it be true, that he condemn'd (C) Anne du Bourg to be Burnt, his Vote must have been given at a great distance, for he was at Rome when things were made ready for the

Tryal of Anne du Bourg

BELLAR MIN (Robert) an Italian Josus, was the best Pen-man of his Time He was born at Monte * Pulciano in the Year 1542 in Matters of Controverly and admitted among the Jesuits in the Year 1560 His Mother Cynthia Cervin, was Sifter of Pope Marcellus II. He was Ordain'd Priest at Ghent by Cornelius Jansenius in 1969 and the Year following he taught Divinity in Louvain. He was the first Jesuit who taught that Science in that samous University, and he did it with extraordinary success. Having liv'd Seven Years in the Netherlands, he return'd into Italy, and in 1976 he begun to read Lectures on Controversies at Rome, which no Jestical and the description of the second of ly, and in 1976 he begun to read Lectures on Controvernes at Rome, which no jeffuit had yet done in that City He accquirted himself so well of it, that Sixtus V sending a Legate into France in the Year 1990, gave him Robert Bellarmin, as a Divine that might be very useful, if any Dispute about Religion should happen to be discust He return'd to Rome Ten Months after, and was successively promoted to divers Offices either in the Society, or at the Pope's Court, till in the Year 1999 he was honour'd with the Cardinal's Hat It is said, that they were forc'd to threaten him with Anathema to make him accept that Dignity Three Years after the Archbishoprick of Capua was given him, which he refign'd, when in the Year 1605, the new † Pope would have him near his Person. He imploy'd him-felf in the Affairs of the Court of Rome till 1621. Then he left the Varican, and retir'd to a House of his Order, where he dy'd the 17th of September in the same Year 1621 In his last Sickness he was visited by Pope Gregory XV whom he entertain'd with the (A) Compliment of the Centurion, Lord, I am not worthy, that thou shouldst come under my Roof He charg'd the Jesuit Eudamon Johannes to testify publickly that he dy'd in the same Faith which he had always protes'd, and maintain'd with his Pen || It feems that on the Day of his Funeral (B) he was look'd upon as a Saint

* It 15 &

Tuscany

Taken from the Bibliotheque compos' d by Alegam

(a)Idem pag 196

" had raught her that Speak fo well, and give fo good Advice I (a) think, the faid Cardinal
" du Bellai might have done it, for at thit time,
" he inchin'd much to Lunher's Doctrine and Reli" arms."

(b) Id a log of Francis I in the ift Memoirs 1 m 146

"gion"

(B) To take the Helmes and the Sword] Bransome shall be my Witness again. He fays, (b) that when Charles V das'd the King of France at Rome, it was a missortume for Francis I not to have any Ambassadors there that were Swords-men Had it nos been, continues he, for Cardinal du Bellas, who was as quick and hafty as any Military Man, (and indeed he look'd like one, for he was for any thing, and one of the greatest Men both for Learning and War) things had not gome well there, and the King had been much disgras d Which makes me think, that there much alignata vivice maket me trink, that there nower were any Gown-men that deserved more to be Ambassadors on all Occasions, than this Cardenal, (as he has domonstrated in many Embassies, before he was a Cardinal, on Italy, Germany and England,) and the Bishop of Dax, of the Russe of Novalles in Limolin, who served Dax, of the House of Nouvalles in Limolin, who serv'd ear King: worthely in that Station in England and at Venice, (where I have seen him,) and afterwards at Constantinople I will not wrong many other Worthy Persons of their Character, whom I have seen in such a Station, but in my mind, Cardinal du Bellai, and the Bisp of Dax have out-done them all, for they could as well have made as of their Swords, as of their Element Tongues. And indeed, an Ambigador is as often while at treat of Affairs relating to the War, as of State Affairs (c) Thuanne and (d) Sainte Marthe have observed, that that Cardinal removed the fear of the Parisans, who were afraid of Charles V's Army, and that he prepar'd all things for a vigorous Desonce, having caus'd the City to be Fortfy'd Moreri has also laid this, but with little exactness the will have it, that John du Bellai did those things He will have it, that John du Bella: did those things when Charles V enter d into Provence in 1537 and that the King leaving his chief City, left this Cardinal there, and made him his Lieutenant-General to provide for the Security of Picardy and Champagne Here are two faults. The Irruption of Charles V into Provence happen'd in the Year 1536 that which put the Parisson in sear, and occasion d him to order their City to be fortify'd, happen'd likewise and not Prevence It is that which Charles V caus'd to be made by the Count of Nassau Trua-

City of Para, only to the Invalion of Champagnein

City of Para, only to the Invation of Champagne in the Year 1544 But he is mistaken

(C) That he condemn'd Anne du Bourg] This is (g) Addit to be found in Mr Teisser (g) Many blam'd him, says to the elohe, for being the first that Condemn'd Anne du Bourg giest I to be Burnt alive, for which reason, say they, GOD p 184 he took him out of this World 40 Days after the Execution quotes of that illustrious Martyr The Calculation would Continuate that Illustrious Martyr is to otherwise known, that chael du Bourg (i) was Executed the 23d of December Lunpord 1559 The Author, whom Mr Teisser quotes, hib 2 He says, that that Cardinal dy d the 16th of February, ought to and 50 Days after du Bourg His Calculation is have said leis remote from the Truth than that which Mr Lundor-Teisser imputes to him, nevertheless, it is not exact, and therefore that Observation is Chimerical (h) Adaption to the Year of the Compliment of the Annual Son

(a) Whom he entertaind with the Compliment of the Centurion] Supposing, as he did, that the Pope is the Vicar of the Son of GOD, he did not see in the application of this Passage all the Prophanation that others see in it, and it may be also, that he thought he said nothing but what was very Hist eccles that he thought he said nothing but what was very Hist ec.

Pious Alegambe relates this as a fine Circum. 1 3 P. stance of Bellarmin's last Hours (k) Invisit eum. 248 decumbentem Gregorius XV Pontifex Max ac bis peramanter amplexus sacrum se pro ejus valetudine fasturum promist 1pse Christi Vicarium valetudississme regambe versius usurpavit illud Centurionus Domine non sum Biblioth dignus ut intres sub testum meum The Spanish Ambassador, who made use of those same Words of the Centurion to a Prince, whom he look'd upon as a Heretick, cannot be so easily excus'd Balzac who alledges that Example (1) to his Critick, (m) blames it at the same time "What would he blames it at the same time blames it at the fame time "What would he (1) Dif"have faid of the Compliment of that Spanish Am"bassador in England, who received a Visit of Cardinal

"King James with these Words of the Mass Do"mine non sum dignus ut intres sub testum meum"

(B) It seems that on the Day of his Funeral he was sequel of look'd upon as a Saint? The Swiss of the Pope's the ChriGuard were posted round the Cossin to keep off the sian SocraCrowd, who endeavour'd to throw themselves on the tes. D m

Crowd, who endeavour'd to throw themselves on the tes, P m Crowd, who endeavour d to throw themselves on the fes, p m Gorps to touch and kiss it. All that he had made use 442 of, was taken away, and distributed to those who desired to have something of it out of devotion Ad- (m) I bid versus undam populi concursantis ad osculum tastumque Pag 443 sacri pignoris adhibere opertms Helvesios à sipatoribus.

B b b b 2 Ponti-

Hist eccles

(k) Ale-

an Hiftor 1 26 p m 538 (d) Sammarth is eleg pag # 13

(c) Thu-

(e) Meze-Tai. Abridg Chr ad anno. 1536

(f) Thu-

* Virgillius eclog

It is certain, that no Jesuit did more Honour to his Order than he; and that no Au-? thor maintain'd the Cause of the Church of Rome in general, and that of the Pope in particular, better than he The Protestants (C) knew it very well, for most of their learned Divines wrote against him for the space of 40 or 50 Years. Their Protessors I ectures and These made his Name resound even there, * Ut littus Hyla, Hyla omne sonaret He was attack'd on all sides, and his American did not forget to examine (D) whether he had contradicted, and afforded some Weapons against himself. It is the Subject of a Book, which must needs have perplex thim. There are some indicrect and 1 ish Men to be sound every where, and therefore 'tis no wonder is some Protestant Writers have publish'd some Falshoods against Belarmin, (E) of which the Party took advantage. There is no great Inconvenience in it, when unknow writerscommit

(a) Alegambe ubi Supra

(1) Alegambe ubi Jupra

(c) Idem

pag 410

in Bibliotheci Scriptor,

Societ je- " (e) Ancil. tical Mijcellances of Literature, t 1 P 348 See " also Whi- " taker in the Preface of his Ireazije de

(f) Alc-

gambe ubi Inpra P 411

(e) Idem

(h) It i a Book in Quarto of 161 pager, printed at Basil in the Year 1594

() In the Rimark B of the Article An-

(1) Ancil sical Mijcellanies of Latterature tom 1 P 35-

Pontificus Quicquid rerum in usu babuit raptum distractumque in postulantes est ad venerationem (a) When Bellarmin resign'd his Archbishoprick of Capua, all the City was very forry for it Some kils'd his Garment, others rubb'd their Rofaries devoutly against it, and every Body desir'd his Blessing (b) These are some presides of Worship, that may in time be follow'd with a formal Canonization. It is pretended, (i) that he fore-told fome things, and wrought some Miracles, and because after his Death the time of his Holineis did rather increase than lessen, the Congregation of the Rites was ordered a-new in the Year 1674 to proceed to the necessary Informations concerning his Life and Miracles, to the end, that if there be occasion, he (d) Sotuel may be Beatified (d)

(c) The Protestants knew it very well] "They

"(e) grunt, that he is the most subtle Enemy of the Truth, that has hitherto undertaken to op
"pose it That Demetrius the Silver-Smith, spoken of in the 19th of the Aits of the Apostles, not use so much Art in working his little Silver Shrines of Diana, as this cunning Promoter of I rror did in re-building the Palaces and the Altars of Superflition Which has given occasion to compare him to that Marcion, of whom Tertullicompare him to that Marcion, of whom Tertullian Itys, that, Dedecus sum ingenio obumbiat, qui cum causas ubique sere pessimas incatus & impiorum dogmatum patiocinio verissimum se Satana atque Antichiista incluitem prabeat, agit tamen ingenio ut speciosis coloribus inducat omnia, & distinctionum prassignis & umbiis cludat ca qua solidissima veritate constituta sunt. Be suice not to believe what Alegambeliys, (f) viz I hit Biza own'd, that Bellarmin hid overthiown ill the Protestant Authors Nec ips hosses aus sun distinct, ex quibus theodorus Beza, unus his liber, as bat, nos omnes humi proturbat. Tis Jost to alledge such hings, without quoting the Book where they are to be found. On fuch occidions, the very Line, or at least the Page ought to be quoted, because otherwise every Body will take such a thing for every ill-grounded Hearing I am fully persuaded that Beza had not such a good Opinion of Bellarmin's Writings, and that it he had, he would never have own'd it. Alegambe he had, he would never have own'd it Alegambe itys another thing, the fallity whereof is not so obvious Which is, That a new Lecture was founded at Cambridge and Oxford to Confute Bellarmin (g) In Anglia Academia Cantabrigiensi primum, mor etam in Oxonicus no sa praeleti o instituta est ad controversias Bir'an mini, si possent, refellendas
(D) To examini whither he had not contradicted himfels Andrew Cristovius compos'd a Work intituled, believe to further me had executively.

lum sesuricum (h) wherein he objects 205 Contridi-ons against the Jesuits Sometimes Bestarmin does not agree with the other Jesuits, but most frequently Bell n in confutes himself in that Book

I HAVI SAID (i) elsewhere, that he was reproach d with hiving made use of, and opposed the func Principles, according as he was to Dispute either against the Protestants, or against the Linthusiasts. Here are some particulars about that fort of Contradiction "(k) Some being willing to "excuse Billarm as Contradictions." excule Billarm ns Contradictions, and wint of "Memory, have faid that the great number of Persons who had a Hand in the Labrick of that Work, I mean, of his Writings, like the Builders of Label, introduc'd that Confusion for wint of Understanding one another. But those of his Communion, are to far from tiking this for an excule, that they reject it as a thing that wrongs him Fringari, who writ his Life, fays, that he never had so much as a Transcriber " I believe, the true ciuie of Bellarmin's Contradi-" Ctions is, that the present necessity of attacking orhers, or detending one telf, is a more pow" erful Object than any other, he cared but little, whether he agreed with himself or not, provided none should believe that he with his Adversaries (1) Bellow the soften verification in his tooks of Controperation in his tooks of Controperation with the disputes against the Libertune. verfy When he disputes against the Libertines and the Schwineseldians about the necessity of the Scripture, he speaks like a Protestant And when he disputes against the Protestants on the fame Subject, he argues like a Schwencfeldian If he undertakes to confute the Pelagians about the perfection of Works, he makes use of all the Arguments of those that he calls Calvinifis the Arguments of those that he cause Carrings.

If he has to do with the Calumber, he makes use of the Reasons and Defination of the Pelagians.

If he writes again the Concerning the Baptism of Children with us about Tradition, the Raphallin of Children is one of the Points that the Baptism of Children is one of the Points that feems to him to prove the necessity of it, and of rie 2 cap which the Scripture does not speak after a convincing manner, as he says This puts me in 166, 167
mind of the Comparison which I have seen somewhere of P. W. This where of Bellarmin with a certain African whole Calculati-Name was Lee, whom he himself compares to that Amphibious Bird of Asop, who was sometimes a Bird, and sometimes a Fish, a Bird when the King of Fishes exacted a Tribute, and a Fishes was the Lead of Birds and the state of the Lead of Birds and the state of the lead of of the le the King of Birds exacted it , ut Leo quidam ... canus in Granateusi Regno natus & postquam subju-gatum est illud Regnum in Africam prosugus de se fa-tetur, si Afros vitio aliquo notari sentio, me Granata natum prositore si Granateusia particologia. natum profiteor, si Granatenses male audiant, mox Afer sum, Bellarminus certe multo quam ille elegan-

"Afer sum, Bellarminus certe multo quam ille elegantius aviculam illam imitatur, qui nimirum respondet, tom 1 Controv l. 1. 2.7 Paires secutor est septuationem, Idem tom 1 Controv laugh d at incorporationem, Idem tom 1 Controv laugh d at incorporation method in the sum of incorporation in the Negari (inquit) non potest supplementation in the Apology of his Oidei of four the Bibliothes newly come out against the Society, the theory of which is directly against Bellarmin, and relates many things which had caus'd, attended, or follow d his Death Nevertheless, that Cardinal was yet living Doubtless, Theophilus Raynaud (m) Cardin yet living Doubtless, Theophilus Raynaud (m) me unt that Libel, when he faid, that (n) 25 Years before, a Book was publish'd in Germany, wherein Bellamin was accus'd of having kill d many Children to hide his Incontinence It was faid moreover, that the Cardinal being at last mov'd he Repentance, had gone to our Lady of Loretto, whether he could expiate his Crimes, but the Priest to whom he had confess'd them, was with so much horror, that he companded. with fo much horror, that he commanded him gone, which threw Bellarmin into Despair, which the way a beginning the devide here with the commander in he dy'd a little while after This is the stance of that Libel Bellarmin read it, and lad at it Doubtless, he made many Reslections upon at it Doubtleis, he made many Reflections upon 4° and fuch a Book, wherein it was given out that he Castigatic was dead Theophilus Raynaud thought that Father libelli fa Greefer (a) had given himself a needless trouble in most arrefuting those forts of Stories, and that they did great prejudice to the Protestants, for one might learn from thence what Judgment is to be made of the pretended Letter of Saint Udalrick, which says, Bellarmithat fix thousand Childrens Heads were found in the Well of Pope Gregory II after he had driven away the Priests Wives Hareties, vel ad unam horam vagum mendacium, in lucro ponesur Revera tamen er hoc mendacio, decessit illis naud exiguum Siquidem inde deprehensum est, qua side ex horum men-daciloquorum majoribui quistiam, ex comminitia S U-dalrici Episola, sex millia capitum insantilium, intra

(m) Th Raynaud,

we was not date of Th Ray. naud'r Book, and with what Cardin Bellarmi-nı magı-stelli Ernesti Zephiri ar ingolstad nı à criminatio-infcitia

Luthera-

num tran Rated int High Dutch A Father Conrad Vetter

Pateum

commit that Fault, but when Professors of Reputation impute to that Cardinal what he never taught, they wrong their Cause, and expose themselves to great mortifications. A Professor of Sedan who made himself very much talk'd of in Holland, (F) is guilty

NECES-SARY Qualifications for a good Saty rift

futium Gregorii secundi, cum is uvores sacarative abfutilist, reperta dizerit Non est enim avami quo similiui, quam boc de Bellarmini infanticidite friptum, & illa S Udalrici Epistola de cadibus pur fricos & sacerdotes scortateres, adversus quam subdivision S Antistiti Epistolam, & ipse Bellarminus I de Cleric cap a2 & Barantino 591 alique certarunt It is no ways necessariam have a retroactive essection the Story of the Six thousand Childrens Heads, but it is certain, that no better Service can be done to the ertain, that no better Service can be done to the certain, that no better Service can be done to the Jesuits, and in general to any Party which one undertakes to delant, than to publish Calumnies that may easily the confuted. It is a remarkable thing, that there needs a great many Persons possess with an itching desire of publishing Satyrs, so few have the Art of doing it well. Most of those that go about it, are ignorant that in order to succeed well in it, that is, to make them hit home, a Man must religiously observe these two things a Man must religiously observe these two things. One is, to advance nothing but what may be provid, and above all, to abstain from Accusations that may easily be consuted; The other is, not to maintain obstinately, a thing that has been consu-ted. I had former hard Advice which is, care-fully to distance and the state of the hide the appearances of least own, that the who acts quite contrary to these Rules, find to many Per-fons in his Party that greedily swallow down all that he says, but it is that very thing which all that he fays, but it is that very thing which does a great prejudice to their Cause, because the other Parry grows angry, and looks upon their Adversaries from whom so many Satyrs so greedily swallow'd do proceed, as Men destitute of Reason, Equity, and the affishance of Grace These are not Resections spoken at random, but groundare not Reflections spoken at random, but grounded apon experience. See how Father le Tellier takes advancing of some Stories that are spread abroad without knowing whether they be true or false. Read what arrows:

"For Example, What (s) will it avail the Je"futs of Chins to have been the first, and almost "the only Persons that submitted, and without the "least reinstance, to the Apostolical Vicars, as soon "country appeared there in 1882 a seeing normath."

as they appear'd there in 1684? feeing notwith-flanding this, their Enemies publish'd again the last Summer by the Pen of their Secretary, the Gazetteer of Holland, that the Holy Father was extreamly angry with the Jesusts, because they would not acknowledge the Bishops which he ient to China Can it be question'd, but that fome Years hence, this Lye will appear again in its turn on the stage? Likewise, what will it avail the Jeiusts of German, to have an Attesta-tion sign d by four of the Llector Palatin's chief Countellors, all Protestants, wherein they tensify, That the History of the Jeiuit countersering a Voice from Herven to deceive that Prince, and to animate him to the destruction of Hereity, is a meer Fable? Will that Attestation him. der some good Protestants, that shall continue the Jesustical History, from making some time or other a Chapter about that chimerical Adventure on the Credit of the Gazetteen of Holon of the Jetuits, had rather follow his blind n, than make a good use of this Passage of Fa-le Tellier? So far from it, that he brought the Apparition of the Palatinate on the Stage again, and omitted nothing to make his Readers reject the Attestation of the Elector Palatin's Protestant Counsellors. I have it from very good Hands, that he blam'd the French Minister, a Resugee, who put that Attestation in his (s) abridg'd History of Europe. Such Persons as he spoil the Trade they take in hand. They should permit moderate Writers to write Satyrs, which would be compos'd in a more dexterous and perswasive manner.

(F) A Prosessor of Sedan is guilty of that Fault. He asserted some Theses in the Year 167A concerning the Power of the Keys, and imputed (d) to Cardinal Bellarmin to have said, That a con-Apparition of the Palatinate on the Stage again,

(d) to Cardinal Bellarmin to have faid, That a contrite Man, full of Faith, and desirous to be reconcil dwith GOD, perifics eternally, except he can get a Priest to reconcile him before Death Which I never Kead, reconcile him before Death Which I never Kead, added be, without Aftonishment and Indignation This fignifies, that he had often read those words in Bellarmin, and yet they are not to be found there The Guardian (e) of the Irish Capuchins Disputed against those Theses, and complained at first yeary vehemently of the wrong that was done to Bellarmin He continued the Dispute with the same violence, and confounded the Professor This was not all When the Dispute was ended, the King's Atorney (f) presented his Petition against the said (f) Cerry. Professor, the consequence of which was, that the Author of the These gave his Recantation in Writing, which was sign d by him, and three other Rumbour Ministers.

No Body has any reason to think it stringe, that such an Accident should have been mentioned in such a Dictionary as this is, for it would avail nothing for the time to come to be silent about it And though I should have the Discretion not to fay any thing of it, it would not be less known in Holland, where the Journal of the Learned is in every Body s Hand Four Years ago (g) every Body might have read there the substance of what I have just now related, and I clides, that the Authentick Proofs of Mr Juricu's Reca 'ation, (for it was he that compos'd, and maintain'd those Thefes) are three Certificates, produced by the Abbot de Condemon, one was made by the King's Attorney at Sed in, the other by the Count de la Bourlie Governor of the Jame City, and the last by Inther Nicolas d Hibernie a Capuchin I have read those three Certificates in the Book of the Abbor de Cordemoi, they are dated in the Year 1689 It may easily be imagined, that this Difgrace affir-Eted those of the Protestant Religion, and pleased the Roman Catholicks IF 15 against my Will that I am foic'd to make an Addition to this Remark in this 2d Ldition, but Mr Juricu having published something very outrageous against me on that Subject, I must shew here both what he said, and what I answer'd for April 169-1109. The great blank that remains in the last of Amel Pages of this Sheet, is a Tempration to me, which I cannot resist, to alledge a notable Lamer ample of the Tristes, and the Malignity which that Book is said to be full of The Cide is this ment of the Millians of the quoted a Passage out of Bollamin, wherein by a Fault of the Author's Pen, or by the Printer's Bayle's Fault, instead of attritus, there was contritus, which made Bollamin say, That a Men weeping, penitent and contrite, was damn'd if he did not receive the Sacerdotal Absolution Whereas Belleville 19 46, 47 larmin faid, that a Man grievoully bemouning his Sins, by a fenie of Attrition, was damn d if he did not receive the Priest's Absolution. This moved a Monk to make a great Clamour. Mr. Jurica in a time of perfecution granted him what he would have granted him my where else, even in a Country where the Protestant Religion had been the prevailing Religion. He therefore acknowledged, that there was a fault in the printed Copy proceeding either from the Author's Hand or from the Printer, and that Bellarmin's Opinion was fuch as the Monk faid Any fincere Per fon would have own d as much in Amsterdam, or in London Is this a Story which after hiving been printed in fever il Sityrs, deferved to pais through a third and fourth Impression, into a Book that was design d for Immortality? Can "any thing be more mean, or pitiful." There is therefore both Malice and Meannels in it." There are Mr Juricu's Words, and in the following manner I confuted them (1) "I find that Bellar-" min's business sticks in his Stomach. I do not I do not Stions on d wonder at it, but Prudence should not have fuffer'd him to make an Addition of it at the end of his Writing Silence had been the best way The less certain things are strrr d, the less they are troublesome What I have said of it is no I xample of Trifles and Mal gnity Without it I should have ill personn'd the Historical Duties, seeing the primitive Design of my Work was to observe the file Accusations to which the Persons of whom I was to speak fhould have been exposed If I had omitted that in the Article of Bellarm n, would it not have been reasonably said, that I was Partial, and that I forgot things whereof I could pretend no 'gnorance? I have not taken it out of a Satyrical Roph, as he falsely taxs, but out of a Roph.

cal Book, as he falfely tays, but out of a Book

Nime wa Father Robert

(f) Certificate of the the king s Atorney at Sedan, 1pud the abbot de Cordemoi ibid pag 118

(g) In the Abstract of a Let o fom th Abbo de Cordemot to the Catholicks of the life of Alveit in Xaintonge, the Journal of the _4th 169- 1ag

ment of the Publik on

(1) Refle-Pamphlet intituled Judgment of the Pub-With- lick, &s P 15

(v) 1 he Religion of the jesuits printed at she Hague *1689 pag 77 Scetbe Remark P, of the Article Loyola

(A) AVindication

of the new

Christians part I P 29 printed at Paus in the Year

(c) Month of August 1686 p 160

(d) Thef

21 apud etter to she New Catholicks pag 117

of that Fault It is remarkable that Bellarmin did (G) not follow the Doctrin of the Jesuits about Predestination, and did not favour relaxed Morality, nor the (GA) expressions which the indiscreet votaries had slipt into the Litanus. The complassance which he had for his Superiors by fuffering some things to be alter'd in his Writings, and altering $(G\triangle E)$ fome places himself concerning the efficacy of Grace, does not hinder of Controverly, and out of the Journal of the Learned I do not examine the Turn which he takes to cover his Fault; I only defire my Readers to have recourse to my Dictionary in order to compare the Pieces that are produc'd there with his Reflections And by that parallel it will appear how much Nature suffers in him, when he is obliged to perform some Ast of Him. when he is oblig'd to perform some Ast of Humility and Sincerity I am not surprized at it; for when a Bow has been always bent one way, it is very difficult to bend it the contrary way at the first undertaking It is the same thing with the Fibres of our Brains Most of my Friends found that I had too much most or my Friends found that I had too much neglected to make use of my advantages they told me that occasions for it had not faild me, but that I had been wanting to them, and that a Man ought to avoid that reproach in a Pen War, as well as in a true Wir Why did you not fet in a full light that Man's Subterfuges? Could you not confound him by such and such Restictions? I excus'd my felf with the most proper means to put an end to that Discourse, which was by faying, that such Observations must not be lavishly display'd in a loose Sheet, and that it was better to keep them for the 2d Edition of my Dictionary have thought of it fince more than once, and I found that the best way was to let my Readers reflect on this small incident. It will not be difficult for them to compare all the pieces of this Process together, nor to discover in Mr Jurieu's Apology the grimaces and the contortions of a Man that suffers the rack After all it belongs to the Abbot de Cordenos to consute that Apology It is better for me to be the Historian than the Author of the Reselvtions which that Quarrel may afford

Reflections which that Quarrel may afford

(G) Bellarmin did not follow the Dostrin of the Jefuits about Predestination) He was a good Thomist, and no ways a Molinist But how great foever his Authority was among his Brethren, he had but few imitators. That small number of Anti-Molinists in that great body was nevertheless of some I cannot better explain that thought than by fetting down the words of him who publish'd the History of the Congregation de Auxilias "There" (a) are sometimes some Men of an extraordinary Genius, that have acquir'd Credit, and have made "changes there was a change to the constraint of the c themselves necessary to their Society, and who raising themselves above the fears and considerations to which others think themselves oblig'd to yield, teach the truths which they have learn'd by good Studies more freely, not being able to refolve to betray their Conficiences, nor to act against their Knowledge The Society bears with them, and suffers that small revolt, because they know how to make it ferviceable to their Party, and turn it to their Advantage and Glory, befides they know that there is no danger that such an example should be follow'd by a great number, and make a Schasse in the Schools of the " Society Nay it is for their Grandeur, and agreeable to their Principles, to have grave Doctors of all the Opinions, that may ferve for their Capital Doctrin of Probability No body knows what may happen Things may take a quite contrary courie, and if the Society should find themselves obliged, (at least in some Provinces) to change their Opinion about Grace, as they did in France about the Pone's Austonia " as they did in France about the Pope's Authority, it would not confift with their Dignity to " look for grave Doctors elsewhere, on whose Authority they might ground their change Among the Divines of whom I speak one may "Among the Divines of whom I speak one may reckon Father Tiphaine so famous for his two Works, De Hypoftass, and De Ordine, and the Author of the Thesis that was maintain'd at Rome in 1674, whose Opinions concerning Predestination and Grace are altogether agreeable to those of St Austin I have set down this passage at length, not only because it may be inferred from it that Tallows was war much considered in his Organic and Constitution of the Austin I have the considered in his Organic and Constitution of the Austin I have the considered in his Organic and Constitution of the Co that Bellarmin was very much confider'd in his Order, and that he knew it well, but also by reason of a certain Salt wherewith those words are ibrinkl'd, which is very proper to excite many bishoprick of Capua, the Order which he settld in the Bishoprick of Monte-pulciano, which he govern'd some Years in the absence of the right Bishop, the Counsels which he gave to Pope Clement VIII for the Resormation of the Church, those which he address to his own Newhers P. climent VIII for the Reformation of the Church, those which he address to his own Nephew Bishop of Theans for his Conduct, and for the Administration of his Diocess, the Serinons which he preach'd in the Apostolick Palace, and in the two Churches I have already nam'd, are as many witnesses of the holy and necessary Nevelties which he endeavoured to introduce, and of which he made the obligation become which he made the obligation known which he made the obligation known Every body knows that it is chiefly on that (e) (e) That is matter that the accusation of Noveky was first to say, the form'd But if it be an innovation, Cardinal correction Bellarnin cannot be cleared For he made such of some alterations in the Litanies of the Holy Virgin, the that they would now-a-days make those cry out ons very loud, that bestow so freely the Epithet which of singularity, and that of Enemy to the worship of the scandaHoly Virgin, that nothing is more common in live the Holy Virgin, that nothing is more common in lize the their Writings than those forts of accusations a- Heregainst the most Catholick Persons and those that ticks, as are most truly devoted to the Mother of God some in But this most Pious and Learned Cardinal can-the Pfalter not be accused of Novelty in that, without ac-ascinbed cusing Pope Paul V of it, by whose Order he to St Bomade those Alterations He gives an account of naventura, it in a Preface, wherein he says, That he has cut off which feveral verses out of the Litanies of our Lady of Loretto, because they were too metaphorical, such us these, give to TURRIS EBURNEA, HORTUS CONCLUSUS, and the Ho TURRIS EBURNEA, HORTUS CONCLUSUS, and the Holy others such like, and that he had emitted others, Virgin because though they may have a good sense put apon what bethem, they are susceptible of a harsh one, from longs onwhence the Enemies of the Church take occasion to by to God blasphome, such as these are MARIA, DEI ET 50- or to MINUM MEDIATRIX, INTERCEDE PRO NOBIS JESUS AB OMNI PECCATO LIBERA NOS DOMINA, CHRIST and others of that nature for such of Invocations seem to attribute to the Holy Pirgin what is proper to Jesus Christ as God "

(G/ 4) Some things to be altered

"to Jesus Christ as God"

(G/L) Some things to be alter'd and altering some places bimself concerning the offi acy of Grace] Let us begin here with a Passage taken our of a Jansenst Book "(f) There is reason to beheve that the "Dostrine of that Cardinal was very Augustinian (f) Gery, on this point in its Original, when he sent his Historical Controversies to be printed in Germany, and that of the was one of the Opinions which his Brethren of the was of the of that Country took the mostly to acted, among Louvan fays the Author of his Life, to do more good among and of Hereticks. I do not fear much to make a rath Dousy, judgment in attributing that alteration to Father Gregory de Volunia, that famous Martyr of pag 173 the Moliman Grace He was at Inglifiad whilft they printed Bellarmin's Controveriles there and he caus'd fome Thefes to be maintain'd there in the Year 1584 which are perhaps the first of the Society, where that new Invention of the give to

Scientia

bridged History of the Congregation de Auxilus, p 81

Inder him from being in the main an Augustinian Doctor He brought himself into Trouble almost for the same reasons (H) that so much imbroil'd the Abbot de la Trapwith the Monks Some have thought that he did (I) great prejudice to the Roman Catholicks by his Books of Controversy, because the Objections of the Hereticks are o be found in them An Ingenious Man not being able to find Bellarmin's Works

(1) Sin verò dogmata ipla fidei, &c ejus in operibus centura notabantur, dici non potest guam ff intem le ımmutı-Prabeiet (lire id aunitum elt in his que evenete circa editas opiniones depredefts-natione, de auxiliis di vine gra-tie, Oc 11b 2 C 5

(1) Recognitio oper Bellirm Ingolstadıı 1608 pag 96

(2) Pag

(a) Gery " ubi supra de P 1/7,178 (6) Rob Abbotus de suprema potestate regia præl a art 3

(1) The Author of this Complaint is a Monk aga nst whom the Jesust Baeza Said fomething Lib 4 dc JESU 6-guras See Tage philus Raynaud Erotemat de malıs ac bonis libris pag # I 2

Scientia Media appear'd, which he that I to be necessary in order to defend the liberary Man against the new Hereticks I will not deny what is aid of the Heroick Patience of Father Bellaman, for which the Author of his Life praifes him that occasion yet it appears by the revision he made of his Work in 1608, that he found it mad been too much foftend, or rather round it mad been too much torten d, or rather too much corrupted about the efficacy of Grace And that Aurhor of his Life, after having prais'd his Modelly, and his Humility in suffering the alterations of some of his Opinions, testifies that on the other side he firmly stood to those which he believ'd to be either of Faith, or very much authoriz'd in the Church (1) It cannot be concerv'd, lays he, how much he shewed himfelf inflexible on such occasions, as it plainly appear'd by what happen d in i clation to what he had taught in his Books concerning Predestination, the assistance of Divine G ace, &c I mean, they could never make him alter his Mind concerning Free-Predestination, "which makes, as he fays, part of the Paith of the Church, nor concerning Grace, which he believes to be efficacious, not meanly by the I vent, nor because it pleases the Will to consent to it, but by itself, and of its own Nature Which he positively says to be agreeable to St Augustines Doctrine, and also to the Holy Scriptures This he had always in his Heart "And the Congregation de Auxilius, which was And the Congregation de Auxiliis, which was just broke up, and where he had heard the Do-"minicans maintain the true Influence of Grace by stielf with fo much Solidity, caus d without forme remorie of Conference in him, for had a Patience to provide a large of this or for having alter'd them himself by virtue of the Promise which he had made when he was admitted among the Jeiuits, to follow the Opinions of the Society, as its Conflictutions oblig d him to it That which is certain, is, That he corrected not all that was to be correthat he corrected not all that was to be corrected, the Society being too far engaged to abandon him, but some places, wherein it did not appear that he acknowledged any other manner of working in Grace than that which is call d Objective and Moral, he will have it known on the contrary, that he admits of an effective and physical Operation (2) Voluntatem mevers per gratiam etiam efficience & physice, Deum abuser voluntate bonum desiderium, afflare initium affirare voluntati bonum desiderium, assiare initium bone voluntati que assiratio sive assiare initium bone voluntati que assiratio sive assiaro physica assio est & Deo propria. This he repeats several times Forfcer, says he, (2) that any Body should imagine that we only admit of a Moral manner of moving the Will in Grace. The Janssinst Author having outed some other places of that same Work of ing quoted some other places of that same Work of Bellarmin, concludes thus (a) By all this it appears sufficiently what would have been found in Bellarmin, if hu Work had not been alter d by other Hands, and what the blind Obedience can do which the Jesuits promise to gield to the Society when they are received in it, even in relative to the Dollrine of the Church. But it appears the first and last Opinions of Bellarmin were Dollrine of Grace efficacious by itself, and that the amount which he had made to the Society not have mitted him to put out all that had been clapt inserting of all the Opinions which they had put upon him, fet itself the Opinions which they had put upon him, fet itself the Opinions which they had faid enough to overthrow all that remaind in his Works contrary to St. Augustin Let us observe, that Robert Abbot (b) set hard upon Bellarmin about the alterations of the new Editions of his Works.

(H) The Same Reasons that so much imbroild the the blind Obedience can do which the Jesuits promise to

(H) The same Reasons that so much imbroild the Abbot de la Trappe Bellarmin made a Book de Gemitu Columba, wherein he says, That one of the things that ought to make pious Souls lament and the same than the same groan, is the great Remishes's whereinto some Religious Orders are fallen (c) Bitter Complaints have been made of this as of a nipping Investive But the Cardinal has not wanted Apologists who have maintain'd, that what he complain'd of, is but too true, and that the want of Reformation is so visible in divers places, that those who live in that Disorder, and do not perceive it, verify the Maxim, Sensibile junta ac multo magis intra sensum ph Riv positum non facit sensationem (d) Let us quote à naud si passage of Theophilus Raynaud (e) Audivit Bellarmi-nus aspei & mordax quia in libro de gemitu columba fon- (e) Id ib tem unum lacrymarum proposuit, Religiosorum aliquo-rum Ordinum laxationem, quam homo ille (that is he who had complain'd of Bellarmin) spiritu barytono, uspiam cerni inficiatur, & utinam vel in speciem vere inficiaretur Sed tanti fuit, Billarminum mordere quo-quo modo Nam esse aliquas Religiones laxatas, & quibus reformatio sit necessaria, res est adeo nota, ut nimo nisi cacus non videat, ait Major in 4 d 38 q 23 Sid non est novum aliquos ita cacutire, prasertim in causa non est novum al.quos ita cacutire, prajertim in cauja propria, ut notum est ex eo exemplo quod recitat Nidir lib 2 de Reform Relig cap 9 Episcopi ex ordine collapso assumpti, qui audiente ipso Nidero, pertinacissime inficiatus est, suum Ordinem esse collapsum, & reformatione egere, quantumvis, (inquit Nider,) luce fort clarius ioti mundo, contrarium esse vorum. The Pieudonymous Philadelphus de novo lacu, who wrote a lieatile de modernis fesuitarum moribus, (f) tells (f) See us, that it is question d, whether Bellarmin is the the 198 true Author of the Gemitus columbe. This doubt page of A. feetiles very page (2016), to the feetile to the columbe. feems very unrealonable to me, for that Treatile came out whilft that Cardinal was living, and was interted in the Collection of his Works Observe that the Dominican Gravina, is one of those that writ against that Gemitur See the Remark (B) of the Article Keller

(1) That he did great prejudice to the Roman Cathonan k N, licks by his Books of (ontroversy) I other Theophilus and else-Raynaud confesses, that some have thought that where perhaps it might be very expediant to suppress Cardinal Bellarmins Contiousial Books, as well because the Hereticks may entity make a wrong use of them, taking what is for their Furn out of them and leaving the rest, as because the Catholicks may be deceived by them for want of under- li suprifianding the Aniwers to the Objections Some pag 22, have thought that Cardinal du Person was of that mind, and perhaps they were not mistaken. Nay, it is faid, that he openly declar'd it in Conversation, not minding the confequences of it But when he came to know that they imputed to him But to judge in that manner of Bellarmin's Books, he strongly deny d it (g) Dottissimus Card Perronius cum hoc sibi calumniosum de Bellarmini Controversiis judicium affing inaudisset, copiose & valide illud diteisit, u referturin ipsius Bellarmini vita lib 2 cap 7

H E wiit a Letter to that Cardinal, wherein he confuted that Accusation with all his Industry and Strength That Letter dated from Rome the 10th of February 1605 is in the Lite of Bellarmin compos'd by Fuligatti, and in the (b) Differtation of Mr Mayer, whom I quote hereafter, and who informs us, that Cardinal Benirvoglio protested he had heard Cardinal du Perron make that Judgment of Bellarmin's Controversies (1) Sante testari se ex ipsius Cardinalis Petronii oie profari se ex ipsius Cardinalis Personii ole pro-priis hoc excepide auribus de Bellarmini Contro-versius judicium. The Collector of the Porroniana had not head him say the same thing, or else he did not think sit to mention it, for here is all the says. "Cardinal Bellarmin has a very sine and "clear Wit. He has treated very well of the Sacraments in genere, nothing can be better. It cannot be faid that the Treatife de Eucharistis like it. When he found any Matter already well ican'd and examin'd by others, he explain d it wonderfully well with the beauty and clear-ness of his Wit, but when he found a Matter intricate and much confus'd, he (k) lost himself in it He often made use of the Translations of the Greek Fathers without looking on the Greek, I wonder at it fince he understood it very well Among other Books, he makes use of the Preparatio Evangelica for praying to the Saints, and quotes it in Latin of the Translation of Trapezuntius, which is no ways like the Greek, and which contains a Clause that is not at all to be found in the Greek." That my Readers may judge page of Mr Mayer s Differtation, which Thall be th Re-

(d) Theo

(g) Theoph Raynaud, u-

(b) Pag 184 6

(1) Toha ì iidei Mayer upag 192

panella Synt de libris propriis cap 4 att 9 Judges of it almost after the Bellarminus, says troversias hac tempestate plurilustravit, clarus, non inclegans, magnus in any Booksciller's Shop in Italy, suspected (K) that they were forbidden to be expos'd to sale, for fe 11 the Opinions which the Author confuted should be known to every The whole Body of Controversies publisht by that Cardinal comprehended at first three Volumes in Folio, but they were divided into four in the Edition of Cologne

Alegamis the Revision $(K\triangle)$ and Correction which the Author made of all his Works It is thus, that the Writers of the Bibliotheque of the Jesuits have explain'd themselves, but that is $(K \triangle \triangle)$ not exact Besides that Body of Controversies he compos'd many oth Jefu- other Books, that amount to three Volumes in Folio in the Edition of Cologne 1617 Some of his Sermons, and many of his Letters \dagger have been publish'd since his Death His Life has been compos'd by $(K \triangle \triangle \triangle)$ four or five Authors, the last, if I am not mustaken,

† Sotuel in Bibli-1t p 724

(1) Memoric overo drino del Card Bentivoglio, paz edit Amftel 1648

es to lay of min

(a) Heideggei Histor Pyrtus, pag 312

(/) Bironius Apolog Lb 4 Sett 4 par 161, 162

(a) Id at 101 162

(d) In one omk of the ode the , of Chry uppus

(t) Survey of the S at of Kelieron, 1 av 2 4 12 164-

(f) Ticobus Rex in Proteflatione Anti-V orstiana apud Mayer ubi infra pag 183

judge of all this, I have fet down here the Passage of Cardinal Bentivoglio (1) Tale era il concerse gen rale intorno alle (2) sue controversie benche non riescono mai tanto uniformi i giuditi, che non ui siano ancora di quelli fra i piu dotti Castolici, e piu versati in materie simili, che haverebbono qualche volta desiderato di ve-derlo stringere, cd abbater con sorza maggiore alcuni arderio stringere, ca avvater con jorza maggiore alcun: argomenti heretici, e con maggior pienezza riportare quei tanti, e si manifesti vantaggi, che poteva dargli in ogni questione la Dottrina Cattolica meco piu d'una volta in Francia mostro d'aver questo senso piu d'una volta in Card nal Perrone, questo accardinale, quel ch'e stato l'Agostion Francise del nostro secolo del resto lo riconosceva angojimo Francije de nigrojeto, e piu eminenti, e piu beneme-21 i firittori, che havisse hauuto la Chiesa ne i tempi nostri Ly this it appears that the Centure was redu to this, that Bellarmin had not always confuted the Regions of the Hereticks with all the Strength and Victory which the goodness of his Cause might have supplied him with Observe, that some Protestants confess that he sets down their Reasons and Objections honestly enough Mr Heidegger prais d him among other things, (a) quod non perinde malignus atque Tesuitæ alii, Valentia inprimu, I asques, becamis, Malaonatus, &c meliore ut plurimum fide adversariorum suorum argumenta allegavit, O amantion quam illi veritatis, sicubi erravit, prudens sciensque errare non videtur. Let the Reader judge Sciensque crrare non videtur. Let the Reader judge as he pleases of the Nariative of the Dominican Vincent Baron. That Monk concerned himfelf with Controverses, and disputed sometimes with some Minsters. He affirms, that he head one of them say, that Bellarmin had done them a very great piece of Service by putting their I heology in a very good Order, and by giving more force to their Arguments than they had in their Writers. Whereupon Father Baron praises Bellarmin's plain-dealing, but without forgetting to say, that he had throughly consuted the same Restarmin's plant-dealing, but without refrecting to ity, that he had throughly confuted the same Ressons of the Protestants, which he had represented with all their force (b) He adds, that he had heard say in that Cardinal's justification, that in a dispute about Mysteries the Arguments of those that attack are more easily apprehended than the Arguments of those that univer Hoc folum adjuncts m quod in defensionem Bellarmini me alias audivisse memini, mysteria sidei hoc habere, quod, cum su-perent captum rationis humana, faciliora sunt sensui argumenta, que impugnant, quam responsa, que de-sendunt (c) This is to tell us plainly, that Complunts were made that Bellarmin propos'd the Objections of the Hereticks better than he confuted them I shall examine (d) somewhere, whether those who are so honest as to set down fairly the Arguments of their Adversaries, (which but few Perions do) hold a conduct answerable to the Spirit that prevals more or less in all Communions, not to permit the fale of Heretical Books

(K) Suspected that they were forbidden to be exposed to sale for fear | The ingenious Man whom I mean is Sir Edwin Sandys See what he says, "I (e) protest it was never in my power to find Bellarmin's Works, or those of Gregory de Valentia, or any other of that nature in any of the Bookiellers Shops But instead of them, I found many heaps of Invectives and Declamations every where, which made me conjecture, that they were defignedly fuppress and kept within the inclosures of the Monasteries, lest by the free and common reading of them, wherein the Author must of ne-"cessive have alledged the Arguments and Te"nets of the Protestants, some Flower might be
"inelt, and some Fruit or Seed of the Protestant
"Religion might be tasted" Let us de King James words (f) rame proditum est nescio quam verum libros controversiarum Bellarmini in Italia non permitti vulgo, propieria quod objectiones ejus nimu valida fins, responsones autem nimis debiles

(KA) The Revision and the Correction which the Author made of all his Works] I have read a curious thing in Mr Chevillier, which I shall mention here with great pleasure (g) "That Cardinal seeing that" his Controversies were printing in divers Places, and that many Faults were left in them, thought the Origine he ought to endeavour to remedy that Evil
He made such an exact Copy of his Book, and Corrected it so well that there remain'd not one Fault in the Manuscript, and he gave it to a Bookseller of Venice to have a most exact Impression of it But it happen'd quite contrary to his hopes The Printer neglected that Edito his hopes. The Printer neglected that Edition so much that it proved the most faulty of all. That samous Author being vext at it took. Pen in Hand to acquaint the Publick with it, after having seen that that Impression, being accounted an Original one, had carried the evil into a second, and had also much infected the fair Edition of Ingolstad, to which it served for a Model. He published he Book has Pools. for a Model He publisht his Book intitl'd, Recognitio Librorum omnium Roberti Bellarmini, wherein he placed a Correctorium, which shews all the Faults of that Edition of Venice, and was Printed in 8° at Ingolfad in the Year 1608 He complains in the Preface, pag 125 that in 28 hours forms allogs the Printer makes him again above forty places the Printer makes him give Appar negative for an affirmative answer, and an affirmative for a negative And the Errat Which he made fills up 88 Pages Et quo gravissmum est (animadverti) suprà quadraginta locos sia esse corruptos, additis vel detrattis negantibus particulis, vel also modo immutatis, ut contrarium omni-nò sensum contineant, quod certè summo me dolore affecit tamen quoniam animadverti non paucos errores editionis prima Veneta in Editionem secundam Venetam, & in Ingolftadiensem ex Veneta expres-sam transiisse, idea in Correctorio notavi Libros, Ca-"fam transsiffe, ideo in Correctorio notavi Libros, Capita, Paragraphos, Columnas, Literas, & Versus"
Note, That this Correctorium was at first printed at Rome in the Year 1607 and that in the Year 1596 the Author causing his Works of Controversy, revised and inlarged, to be reprinted at Ingolstad, had acquainted the World that he did not achieved the World that he did not achieved the preceding Editions for his Noothat they contain'd any Opinions that ought to be disapprov'd, but because of the Faults of the Impression, as he told Possevin in the Year 1598 of the Oratory, his

(h)

(K \(\lambda\) That is not exact] I find in a Work

(i) printed in the Year 1608 that before that Year

Bellarmin's Controversies had appear'd in 4 Vosumes

The first Edition in 3 Volumes in folio is of Ingol stad 1586 The following Year they were reprinted at ed again in the same place in 8 A new Edition Paris in was made of them in the same City in 1588 and the Tear another in the Year 1590 The first Edition in 4

Volumes is of Venice, apud Minimam Societatam An 8 as as Mr

Appendix of divers particular Treaties was added to

It (k) It must be said then that Alegambe and this says, pag it (k) It must be said then that Alegambe and its says, pag Continuator are not exact, fince they give us that 193 of Cologne 1615 for the first Edition in 4 Volumes
They say also, that the 1st Edition of the first (n). Tome came out in the Year 1581 that of the fecond fust his in the Year 1583 and that of the third in the French Year 1592 This is contrary to Possevin's relation, Transfering and wants exactness on another account, for they should have nam d the place where those pretended games was first Editions were made

(K \(\Delta \) \(\Delta \) His Life has been composed by four or Paris in five Authors] (1) Mr Teiffier reckons nine of them, the Year and places them in this manner, Daniel Bartoli, Didacus Ramirez, Jacobus Fuligatus, Georgius Robertussonus, Johannes Morinus, Marcellinus Cervinus, Petrus Mo-Mayer
rin, Sylvest Petra Santia, Tarquin Galluccius But says, ubi James Fuligatti (m), John Morin (n), Peter Morin and instra, pag Sylvefter Petra Sancia, ought to pass only for one 165 Historian

Villier of at Paris pags 162 out of Poi-fevin in m 388

ratus facer Poffe-2 p 330

(k) Id 16

Translation

(x) A 30of Fuli rinted at 1628 28 as Mr mistaken, is Daniel Bartols The (L) rash Judgment Scaliger made of Bellarmin Cannot be fufficiently condemn'd

Tho' that Jesuit had eagerly maintained the Pope's Power over the Temporalities of Kings, yet he discontented Sixtus and had the mortification to see his Work (M) put into the Index of the Inquisition And what he writ on that (N) same Subject against William Barclas, was used worse still in France Among all the Roman Cathotholicks that have writ against him, none has so fully discover'd the weak places of his Works as (0) John de Lauño: We shall mention two of Bellarmin's Thoughts

Historian of Bellarmin, for the three last have only translated the Italian Work of Fulgatti, and if Petra Santia who translated it into Latin, made some Additions to it, he ought not therefore to be consider'd as one of the Historians If George Robertusson With that Cardinal's Life, ought he not to appear in his place in the body of Mr Teffer's Book? But he no ways appears there We see only one Georgius Robert sonus there, who was the Author of the Life of Robert Rollocus, a Scotch Divine Note, That Tarquin Galluccius did not compose Bellarmin's History but only his Funeral Oration (1) Mr Mayer made a more exact List, he quotes the List of Bellarmin written by James Fuligatti, and Printed at Rome min Wilteen by James ruigarii, and riinted at Rome in the year 1624 in 40 Daniel Bartoli de wita Bel-larmini at Rome (a) 1618, in 40 Marcellinus Cerwi-nus de vita & mogibus Bellarmini, at Sienna 1622 in 80 Didacus Ramírez, in vita Bellarmini ex variis autheribus concinnata, & Nicolae Antonio in Bibliotheca Hispana memorata And the Account de pio obitu Bellarmini ex literis Endamono-johannis, printed at Dilingen in the Year 1621 He quotes also Gallutius, Alegambus, (b) Sebastiani Badii decora Roberti Cardinalis Bellarmini, the Elogies of Eusebius Sarrini a Florentin Abbot of the Order of Citeaux, Ughelli, in the 450th Page of the 6th Volume of the Italia Sacra, Imperialis, Andrew du Saussai, & Nicus Erythraus He forgot Edward Coffin, an English Jesuit, who writ a Book de morte Cardinalis Bellarmini, printed at St Omer in the Year 1623, in 80 he different to the State of the State of Stat guised himself under these two Letters (c) C Note, that Didacus Ramirez was a Spanish Jeiuit, who died the 8th of April 1647 (d)

(L) The rash Judgment Scaliger made of Bellarmin cannot be sufficiently condemnal Let him say as much as he pleases, that (e) if any Body would give hir a Bellarnin, le would not accept of it, and that he would take care not to lose his time in reading would take case not to sole his time in seading such an Author that writes ill, a gued male scripsit non legam, nec male benas heras collecabe. But he ought not to be pardon d for saying (f) that Bellarmin did not believe any thing of what he printed, and that he was a meer Atheist. It is to usure God's Right who is the only Judge of Thoughts, and he that searches the Reins and the Hearts. It is to give a bad Example, and to authorife the fury of those who said, that Calvin, Beza, &c preacht against their Conscience, and had no Religion against their Conscience, and had no Religion

(M) To see his Work put into the Index of the Inquisition] From this Fact Mr Arnauld draws a good Argument ad hominem against those that Preach up the Authority of the Congregations of the Index (g) We find, says he, that Bellarmin's Work de Romano Panissic "was proscrib d by Sixus V because "he judg'd as well as those to whom he had "given it to be examind, that it had done great
"presudice to the Pontifical Dignity, by saying " prejudice to the Pontifical Dignity, by faying that the power which they pretended that J C " gave to his Vicar on Earth over the Temporalites of Kings, is not direct but only indirect, and it was for this reason that those Books de Romano Pontifice, were put among them that were forbidden This is what those two Jesuits (h) give to understand somewhat obscurely, to make one believe that this proceeded not fo much from the Pope as from Bellarmin's Enemies, who had perswaded him to it Dostrina Bellarmini au-toritatem illam MINUI quam Christus Dominus Vicario suo in terrus dedit ad Ecclessa dignitatem sirmi-" tatemque , idque fier: in opinione ipfius circa Domini tatemque, idque sieri in opinione ipsius circa Dominium temporarium, quod Pontissia competit item I N
"RES IFMPORARIAS Whereby those
"Authors understand the power which 'tis believed at Rome the Pope has, to depose Kings, as appears by the following Page, where Bellar"min's Book against William Barclay on this Subiject of deposing Kings is called Tractatio de Potestase Pomissicis IN RES TEMPORA"RIAS, adversus Guicimum Barclaium So that it was not for want of having understood Rol-" it was not for want of having understood Bel"larmin's Doctrine right on that Subject, that he received that affront of having his Books put among the condemn'd Writers, but because that Pope was not satisfied with the indirect Power which he gave him over Kings, and would have a direct one. And this continued to long as that Pope lived. For those fame Authors acknowledge that it was not till after his Death that the Cardinals took them out ex indice probrosos un feriptorum Pray, Sii, tell us whether you think that any Jesut will own that it would have been a mortal Sin to read Bellarmin's Books de Romano Pontifice during the Life of Sixtus V and that if a Priest had done it, he would have deferved to be deprived by a Sentence of the Power of preaching, confessing, and directing Souls."

Consult the Differentiation of the tamous Mr Mayer de fide Bellarmini ipsis Pontificiis ambigua, printed at Amsterdam 1697 and you will find (1) there a long passage of Fuligatti, and some others. Confult also the second some of the French Mercury, it will inform you (1) There canada the end of the will inform you (k) That towards the end of the Year 1586 when the first Book of the Controversies of Bellarmin was brought into France, of the Impression of Ingolstad, Stephen Michel, a Bookseller of Lyons have at Paris said much graphs Bookseller to cause being at Paris, joined with another Bookseller to cause that Book to be printed, which they began to do, and notice thereof being given to the Kings Attorney Gene- Livius, ral, he caused one and twenty Sheets that were already lib 9 dedone to be seized, and forbad them to continue the printing of it It was because of the third Controversy, where he treated de Summo Pontifice, and where he attributed an indirect power to the Pope over Emperors, Kings, and Sovereign Princes, and divers o her things against the temperal Sov reign power of Kings One may therefore ity of the medium which Bellamin would take between the Ultramountain Canonifts, and the Do-Strine of the Sorbonne, what Herennius Pontius declared about the conduct of his Son, who faved the Lives, but not the Honour of the Roman Soldiers (1), Is a quidem sententia ea est que neque amicos parat, neque inimicos tollit, servare modo quos ignomina initiamente. That I assure modo quos ignomina initiamente. cos parat, neque inimicos rollis, servare mode que of a mean that displeased the Court of Rome, without pleasing the Court of France. It is the common fate of moderate Opinions, they neither procuie you briends nor appeale your Enemies, and they leave you for a mark to the two Factions that place themselves in the opposite extreams

(N) What he writ on that same Subjest was used

(N) What he writ on that same Subject was used worse still in I rance] I mean his Tractatus de potestate Jammi Pontificis in temporalibus adversus Guilielmum Banclaium, printed it Rome in the Year 1610 Mi Mayer (m) observes that King James writ against that Treatise, and that the Senate of Venice, and the Parliament of Parliament the Parliament of Paris condemn'd it He gives us in Latin the Decree of that Parliament, and re-fers us to the Continuator of Thuanus He says fers us to the Continuator of Thuanus He says also that this Work of Bellarmin wanted but little of being burnt at Paris by the Hand of the Comof being burnt at Paris by the Hand of the Common Executioner (n) Faces sam accendebat carnifex, ut panas a scripto & scriptore sumeret, nish Regine animum & iteratis on non desinentibus seutrarum deprecationibus frattus illas extinussses See the second Tome of the French Mercury, and you will find there the (o) Substance of Remonstrance of Mr Servin the page 183 the (0) Subitance of Remonstrance of Mr Servin the King's first Advocate, and the Decree of the Parliament, (p) in these Terms "(q) The Court "forbad all Persons of what Quality and Condition soever, on the penalty of High Treason, to receive, retain, communicate, print, cause to be printed, or to expose the said Book to sale "And injoin'd those who had any Copies of the faid Book. or knew any Persons that had some "And injoin'd those who had any Copies of the faid Book, or knew any Persons that had some of them, to declare it speedily to the Ordinary Judges, that a diligent search might be made after them at the request of the Substitutes of the faid Sieur Attoiney General, and that it might be proceeded against the Guilty, as is requisite (0) Have so fully discover'd the weak places of his Works as John de Launoi Mr Mayer will give you in ample Instruction about this in his Cccc Book

(1) Page

tom 2 p

(m) Jo I rider Mayer S Reg Ma-jest Suec per Ger-Suecic Confiliarius in Sicis Primarius. Doct & Profest Theolog & Eccle fia Hamburgensis ad D Jaad D Ja-cobi Pistor.Differt de Bellarmini fide ipfis Pondubia pag

(n) Id 1b

(o) French Mercury ubi fupra

(p) Of the 261bof Novem-

(q) French Mercury ibid pag 36

(1) Mayer, ibid (a) It is likely a fault of Impression, for that Work of Bartoli 180 as 110t printed till 1677 (b) Sotu-Bibli oth Societ Jesuit pag 724 calls him Badus, and places the printing of his Book at Genoa 1671 17 40 Mr Leti Speaks ply of this Physician of Genor, in the 4th part of the Italia regnante (1) Sotuel ae pag 173 (e) In Scaligeranis, p m 29 (f) Ibide (g) Arnauld, Difficulties propo-Steyaert 9 part, pag 38 & leg He quotes the 7th ch of the fecond Book of the Life of Bellarmin written in Italian by Father Fuligatti, and tran-Sated into

Larin by Sylvester à Petra

Sancta,

both Je-

(h) Fuli-

gatti and Petra

Sancta in

of Bellar

min

icriptoi

Societ Je-(d) Id 1b

& Bellarm 303 † Ancillon, Critical Miscellan es of literature part 1 pag 333 Id ib pag 329

(a) Peter de St Romuald Abridg Chronol ad ann 1621 p m 416, 417

(b) In the 328th pag of the first (c) Non video quomodo qui locum hunc altiflimum tenent, falvarı pollint Onuphri-

Marcello 2 1pud Ancill

1b p 329

(d) Codrus pro patria non timidius mori Horat Od 19 lıb 3

(e) See the Remark P of the Article Hadrian VI course which shew that he lov'd Peace, and that he was not pleas'd with the Ambition (P) of the Cardinals The Protestants have taken notice of one thing which he said conof the Cardinals The Protestants have taken notice of one thing which he laid conjustific c

7 n sit tertia, 2pud Dail- of God Neither have they forgot what he preat d at Louvain in 1571. on the excelle, Reply lency of the Bible They "make † use of it to constite all that he said since in his to Cottibi, "Works against the perfection and sufficiency of the Book that

3 part c
24 p m
303 Bellarmin I found in it that that Cardinal "might perhaps have been a Pope had

Book See also the Remark (H) of the Article

Launo: (John)
(P) That he loved Peace, and that he was not pleas a with the Ambition of the Cardinals] Peter de St Romuald (a) fays that the most excellent of all Bellarmin's Works treating of Controversies was proscribed at Rome, and inserted in the Index of Insamous Books Which he bore, adds he, with the same patience as he suffered the Contraditions of a certain patience as he suffer'd the Contradictions of a certain Cardinal in the Conclave, saying to those who wondred at it, that an ounce of Peace was worth more than a pound of Victory Being also ask'd (it may be on the occasion of that Cardinal) how it happen'd that there were so sew Cardinals in the Catalogue of the Saints, it is (said he) because they aspire to be most-holy. A smart answer so those that know what these Words signific in Italy, perche vogliono esser iantissim. The mean taly, perche vogliono esser santissimi. The meaning of which is, that the desire of being made a Pope hinders the Cardinals from acquiring Holineis, the that desire be a longing for the Title of Most Holy Father The Critical Miscellanies of Mr Ancillon inform me (b) that Mr Godeau, who made Bellarmin's Elogy, says, that one of his usual sayings was, that the Cardinals are not Holy, because they would be Most the Carainals are not Holy, because they would be Most Holy, that is to say Popes, who are called Most Holy Father An Opinion which he had from his Uncle Marcellus II who cried out one day at Table, (c) I do not see how those that are seated in St. Peters Chair can be saved. The respect which I have for the memory of the late. Mr. Aculta I Marcellus 1 the memory of the late Mr Ancillon, a Man of much Piety and Learning, is not inconfistent with the liberty I am going to take I do not find an exact Connexion between the Cardinal's thought and that of the Pope Bellarmin's intention was not to fay, that a Pope can hardly be faved, but that the defire of being made a Pope fet the Cardinals in fuch a manner on Earthly Things and Unjust Intrigues, that they could make no progress in the way of Holiness But Pope Marcellus II had not such a thought, for he only consider'd the Obstacles which a Man that is actually Pope meets with in the way of Salvation So that it does not seem to me that Bellarmin's jest is part of his Uncle's inheritance If it be objected against me, that a Pope stands in need of as many Intrigues to per form the part which he acts in the World, as a Cardinal to attain to the Pontificate, I shall anfwer, that it is another question, and that it is to go beyond the bounds that are to be given to the sense of the Words, that Bellarmin made use of I go further, and I maintain, that tho' the same Cardinal had said on some other occasion, The Popes are so far from deserving to be canonized, that they can hardly keep themselves from Hell, it could not be pre-tended that the Italian Words, which you have seen tended that the Italian Words, which you have ieen before, are the Copy of his Uncle Pope Marcellus's Exclamation That Lxclamation puts me in mind of the fally of a Frenchman, who heard iome body praise the Piety and the Moral Severity of Innocent XI in the Year 1689 The Catholick Church, faid he, has no need of fuch a Pope, it were better for her to have a Sovereign Pontiff that understands the Art of aggrandizing himfelf, and of taking hold of all Opportunities according to the Politicks of the most results. The Greatness and Maiety of the Catholick Church, require neis and Majeffy of the Catholick Church, require a Head not endow'd with the Virtues of a Priest, but with the Talents of a cunning Politician They require a Head who has the Courage to damn him-felf for the good and increase of his Dominions, that is the way to perform the Office of a good Shepherd who gives his Life for his Sheep, that is to devote one self for the Republick better than (d) Codrus and the Decius's did Ascrupulous and devout Pope, like good Adrian the Vith is only (e) fit to let the Temporals of the Church perish, which are so advantageous for the maintenance of the Spirituals Such was that Frenchman's Dis-

(2) Might perhaps have been made a Pope, if he had not been a Jesus: He had more Votes than any of the rest (f) in the singularity of the Conclave of Lee XI neverthely be did not think of him then in earnest It was the following (g) Conclave, that they look'd whim as a fit Man to be a Pope, and that they endeavour'd to procure him the Pontisscate, but Cardinal Aldobrandin's Faction made that Design miscarry Bellarmin's Virtue, and the too great Power of the Jesust, were the two chief Considerations that hinder'd him from succeeding Lee XI (h) Aldobrandine suggive Bellarmino come Gessuta scropeloso, e che tal volta haveva improvato molte attioni di Clemenche tal volta haveva improvato molte attioni di Clemen-te suo Zio, e di lui stesso de la propiera dellarmino grand amici a esse egli de de la propiera, e bonta singolare, mà de desire, e de propiera delicata lo rendevano per de della propiera delicata sero ogni pietra, per rouinarlo Fù rinovata, e for rendevano pura manabile, appresso molti, li quali mosfero ogni pietra, per rouinarlo Fà rinovata, e sparsa per tutto la memoria del disgresso dato a Bellarmino da Sisto V che gli sece prohibire l'opera sua de potestate Papa surono discorse al vivo tutte le conseguenze, che potevano deviare dall'esaltatione di un Giesuita, & insomma s'adoprornò in maniera, che i aquietò assatto il tutto. Let us set down here a Passage of Mr Ancicu. "(h) I hava alurave hazas so vene che Couratutto Let us fet down here a Passage of Mr Ancillon, "(k) I have always heard say that the Court of "Rome will take care not to place a Jesus in the " Papal Chair, and that Europe ought not to dire it, because they would infallibly make them-selves Masters of the Holy See, infomuch that all the other Orders might look upon themselves as being excluded from it for ever, and that by that means they would make their Power, which is already very great, almost infinite and bound-less if we believe those that write on this Subject it seems that Maxim is not new in the Court of Rome They have mistrusted the Jefuits a long time ago, and are on their guard against them in that respect, and we read in the Life of Bellarmin himself, that Clement VIII speaking of that Cardinal, who had already made himself famous, said, Dignus, sed jesusa est We have a proof here of the rash Judgments that are only grounded on the first appearances If you do not examine things throughly, and if you confider only the first Impressions which they make on the Mind, you will imagine, that in order to obtain a Dignity powerful Body, but if you take the pains to re-flect, you will find almost an invincible Obstacle in that very thing Within these (1) ten Years we have seen two Examples of this Nothing contributed so much to exclude the Cardinal of Furstemberg from the Archbishoprick of Cologne, and the Cardinal of Bouillon from the Bishoprick of Large than to have been recommended and protect the Court of France, whole Power was super that of other States Refer to this what I fand in the Remark G of the Article of Innocen-

and remember this thought of Florus, ipfa fibi Nose, That M Godeau (m) observes, that Ba nius having made some Overtures to Bellarmin of the thought that he and some other Cardinals had to make him Pope, he received that Proposal as an Injury, was downright angry at it, and said constantly, that if the taking up of a Straw from the Ground could make him Pope, he would not have the taking up of a Straw from the Ground could make cillen up him Pope, he would not floop to take it up I wonder that Mr Ancillon has not spoke of the folemn Vow that Bellarmin made if the Papal Dignity, which he did not desire, should be confer'd upon him He engag d himself not to enrich his Rela-These are the Terms of his Vow, Die 24 Septembru anno 1614 fer 6 in domo novitiorum S Andrea degens, & exercitiis spiritualibus vacans, matura prahabita deliberatione in sacrificio Missa, cum sumpturus essem S Dom nost corpus, votum vevi Domino in hac verba Ego Robertus, Cardinalis Bellarminus, d Secretate JESU religiosus professis, voves DEO es

(f) Conclave da Leone XI p m 454.

of Paul V APPENDIX.

(b) Conclave da Paolo V Pm 512

(i) Ibid pag 519,

(A)Ancılfapra,pag 330, 331

(l) I write this in the Year 1698

(m) Godinal Bellarmin acillor n-14 332 bad not been a Jesuit, for Henry IV told the French Candinals that went to the Con- *Id ib clave after the Death of Clement VIII that he should be very glad if Belliumin was pag 333 made Pope I have read also that * the same fesuit acquired the Esteem of Henry IV 1 d ib pag 373 whilf be was in his Court, whither he was sent with Cardinal Henry Cajetan, and that had not found those two Facts (R) there, for they are not true. The Inscription which was put under that Cardinals Print imports, he that he had pickery d his Virginity, and his Baptismal Innoctory and that he had present the series of the property of the Baptismal Innoctory and that he had present the best of the property and the Baptismal Innoctory and that he had present the wife of the Baptismal Innoctory and that he had present the basis of the basis of the present the basis of the present the basis of the b his Baptismal Innocency, and that he had never told a Lie , When he was a quama dying he bequeath'd one half of his Soul to the Holy Virgin, and the other half facro lato JESUS CHRIST He was so patient that he suffered thes and such o- vacio inther (S) fmall Insects to be very troublesome to him He let them alone, saying am Deo they had no other Paradice than the liberty to fly and ftop where they pleas'd He was a Man of a small Stature, and of a mean outside, but nevertheless he discover'd the beauty of his Wit in his Face. He explained himself neatly, and meditated the Words that were to represent his I houghts to exactly that no blots were to be seen in his Writings? His Hebrew Grammar is pretty well esteemed, conscius although Andrews although

(a) Fuligatrus in vita Bellarm •

(6) Drelincourt, Second part of the triumph of the Church, p m 444

(c) Mon-Præf ad Blount Cenf Author pag 638

let, judgment of the Learned, part _ p 90, 91 (c) L 1nium optimum vocat D Calixtus tractatu de conjugio Cleri corum, Sectione 202 Bofius ubi infra

> (f) Lab. be Præf Differt de Script Lcclef

(g) Id 1b

(b) Id, 1b

nipotenti in conspectu B V Maria, ac totius calestis curiae, quod li forte, quod non cupio, & precor Deum, ut non accidat, ad Pontificatum assumptus fuero, neminem ex consanguineis vel affinibus meis exaltabo ad Cardinalatum, vel teniporalem Principatum, vel Ducatum, vel Comitatum, vel quencunque alsum titulum, neque eos ditabo, sed solum adjuvabo, ut in satu suo civili commode vivere possers Amen, Amen (a) '

(R) Those two Facts are not true | Lvery bo-

(R) Those two Facts are not true | Lvery body knows that Cardinal Cascian Legate of Sixtus V in France, made it his chief Business to cause Henry IV to be excluded from the Crown It was not at the Court of that Monarch that Bellarmin, that Legate's Chaplain, acquired the King's Eftern, for he was not there, he was at Paris among the Leaguers, and us'd his utmosf Endeavours for the Interest of the Rebels This is what the Ministers have not fail'd to object, read this Passage of Dre-Apparat

apud

Thomas

Apparat

apud

Thomas Religion were in the King's Camp, whilft Bellarmin, Panigarola, and such Persons were at Palis to preach up Sedition, and the Pope sent some Legates to authorise the League, and to throw Oyl into a Fire which he ought to have extinguist d with his I cars and his own Blood? As for what concerns the Treatise of the Ecclesiaftical Writers, it is a good Work in its kind, but it is far from being Bellarmin's best Book. There are divers Treatises in his Volumes of Controverties that discover his Wit, Learning and Capacity more nobly. Twenty small pieces, every one as good as that de Scriptorious Ecclesiastics, would not have rais'd him to the degree of Honour which he deserved for the only form wherewith he cloath de the Body of his Controverties, for see here the praise which a Learned Englishman gave him on that Subject (c) tir erat, hand inficior, admiranda in quos Bel- dustria, doctrina, lectionis stupende Bellarminus qui larminus ut primus ita solus immanem illam molem, & immen-Sum chaos controversiarum, supenda ingenii devteri si-licitate, artisicio singulari excoluit, in ordinem redegit consusum prius, accurata diligentia, & multorum annorum fiudio eleganter expolivit præripuit ille palmam fecuturis omnibus, & fibi desponsatam vel destinatam cui-cunque laudem abstulit Nam ab illo, qui trattant hodie Controversias, ut ab Homero Poeta, Jua omnia fere mu-Confiderable Faults (d) have been observed in the Freatile, which (e) Calintus and Mr An-cillon pretend to be the best of all that Jesuits Writings See Bostus in the second Chapter of his introductio in notitiam scriptorum Ecclesiasticorum with introductio in notitiam scriptorum Eccleliasticorum with Mr Grenius's Notes It we believe rather Labbe, the first Edition of that Book of Bellarmin is of the (f) Year 1617 Father Sirmend took great care of it, as the Author had desired him (g) Several other Editions were made of it, which the Printeis spoil'd extreamly, but at last a very correct one was publish'd at Paris, by Cramois in the Year 1658 in Octavo Father Labbe, who revised the Proofs, form'd (b) the plan of a Work upon it, which some very good Judges take for the best which some very good Judges take for the best he made I mean his Differtatio de Scriptoribus Ecclessassimo, that was printed at Paris in two Volumes in Offavo in the Year 1660. The Authors of the Bibliotheque of the Jesuits knew nothing of the first Edition of that Treatise of Bellarmin, one of them, viz Alegambe, mentions none, and Sotuel mentions only that of Cologne 1622 in Offavo A new one was made in the fame City in the Year 1684 in Quarto, and the Continuation that Andrew du Sauffar publish'd in the Year 1665 was join'd to it Billarm n's omissions were very confiderable, as it appears by the Supplement of La-

thei Oudin, which was mention d in the News from the Kepublick of I arming in the Month of August 1686

Note A I sult of Bossis He says there is no trusting to Billarmin's Judgment about the Greek Witters, because he did not understand the Greek Lunguige, and that this Ignorance which appeared in his other bools, was most conspicuous in the Treatile of the I celesiastical Writers, as (ssaubon obseiv'd (1) Gracarum l'itterarum prorsus a pauson other a (1) Gracarum Interarum propus a mustor fuisse, sicut omnia illius scripta, sic eximic hic l-ber notifime ab eo proficius, Casaubono judice exercitat 16 sect 150 ostenti, ut proinde judicis illius de Gracis scriptoribus satis tuto sidi non possit Bosius had but just tind that the siist I dition of that Work of Bellarmin is of the Year (k) 1616. How could be be-lieve then that Casa ibon had spoke of it in that manner in a Book that was printed in the Year 1614? But after all, will you fay, is it true that Casaubon spoke of that Work, to in that case Book. fius's Litor will be very inconfiderable? I answer, there is a great likelihood that he had that I rea-tife of Bellarmin in view. There is an Edition of Cologne 1613 fet down in the Catalogue of Oxford, and I have seen one of Lyons 1613 4 Revised and Corrected by the Author So that this Work was plainly enough hinted at in that Passage of Casaubon, where it is said, that it was the last Book of Bellarmin that had come out we may therefore affirm that I ather Labbe is mistaken in placing the first 1699 Edition of it in the Year 1617

(5) Flies to be very troublesome to him]
This deserves to be set down in Fuligaties own Words (1) Inter insignes Bellarmini virtutes, alii ponunt miram egus in perferendis v xationibus patientiam, fiy the quam Jacobus tuligattus laudat sequent bus verbis Cu-lices, modicellas aviculas, sicut & alia parva natu-ra incommoda, velut a DEO traditas ad sexer-citium patiendi, vultu adeo miti perferebat, ut nec ipse opposita manu, nec excien e ventulum aliquo eas conareiur ab gere Aliquando Clem nti Merlino R rotæ auditori, dum sermones famil arci, ut sit post negotia decisa, servent, retulit, se noch egus dien, qui est Catharine virgini sacci, advo ad ren sa best olis quibusdam nequam, ac damnificis, moisu suisse vexaium, ut pag 5,5 magno sensu conversus ad Christi, prapredentis e ciu e Domini, simulacrum diverit s Domine, si hoc quicquid est damni, quod certe parum ist, mihi tantum asfert molestia, eiguanam erunt Supplicia damnatorum? Ji apud gchennam impios manent tormenta tam arumno-Ja, ne, precor in ca me projicias, etenim impar ero iildem sustinendis Cardinalis Crescentius addit, Bellarminum ita fe patientie velut victimam deftinaffe, ut musias a vultu ne depellere quidem, tametsi odiosanimujum essent, sieute no nepeucre quinem, emessi vaioja ni-mium essent, sieute Roma in assusiter, cumque hou mirarentur, qui aderant, ipse suaviter Haud aquum esse, ajibat, perturbare animantes illos, quiabus non utique superessit paradisus alius, quam volitandi liber tas, ac potestas, ubi malunt, commorandi It is certain that there is a certain way of drawing Confequences from the Precepts, or Counfels of the Gospel, which leads almost necessarily to that patience which is attributed to Bellarmin, but nevertheless Region shews us that it is no ways likely that JESUS CHRIST or his Apo-files in recommending to us to expressly the con-tempt of the Conveniencies of Life, intended to forbid us the right of freeing our felves from the vexations of Bugs, and of driving a way a Hy Cccc 2 that troubles us (I) That Andr (arolus meinorib Ic clehaft p 10 518 pag 5,5 Lrythræ-

Andr Bofius Schecomp tinda notitia rum I cclessifts-Cap 2 edit Creniana Bat

1 pag 87 3 ld 1b

(k) Father Libbe Teat 1017

dieus C1-10lus MemoCrit Hift of the Old Testament, lib 3 cap 12 † Look toward the end of the Remark R Baillet tom I of the Anti

1 p 468

the 8th Volume of Clelia

pag 859 3 Sam-march elog lib 3 p m 13, Paquier Recherch lib 7 ch

7 p m 622

J Id 1b pag 618 ? Thuan 110 64 p

Franc p

Privas Biblioth

Franc p
366, 367
† You'll find a large in the Bi-I ot beque of la Croix the History of Prance, edit of 1584 ‡ La

Croix du Maine, ubi supra

Pig or (a) Melch Leydicker an put Hi-florico-although it is thought that he had but an " indifferent knowledge of that Language some lay, that Greek † was altogether unknown to him I don't think, that the Pope ever fant him to Louvain (T) to put age to the Disputes of Michael Baime there, or to make a report of it at Rome So Persons have attacked him, and it many have defended him, that Catalogues have been made of both. The List of bis Defenders was compos'd by Berald an Italian

BLLI EAU (Rem) a French Poet in the XVIII Century, was born at Nogent le Rotrou I shall not say much of him, for Morers in the East observed almost all that I could have collected That Poet put the Odes of macreon into French, and deprived them a of a great part of their Beauty, if we may believe some Authors at others maintain, that he equal d the Original, and that if he had lov'd drinking well as pag 81, Anacreen did, he would have out-done him Do not truit too much to that Electrical Tensier um, for at 16 taken from a piece of Poetry that was made by Scarola de Sainte Marche Tensier um, for at 16 taken from a piece of Which I am speaking Paquit binks that in Anacreon did, he would have out-done him Do not trust too much to that Encomia in practic of the French Translation of which I am speaking Paquity thinks that in point of Ganty, Belleau (Z) was another Anacreon in his time, the chief parts in the Cleopatra, and the Rencounter of Jodelle, when they were atted before King Henry at Paris in the Palace of Reims and in the College of Boncour. He King Honry at Paris in the Palace of Reims dy'd in 1577 and in his 50th Year ? He Commented the secon part of the Amours

ot Peter Ronfard

BEILEFOREST (Francis de) was born in the Month of November 1530. near Samatan, a Town of the Country of Cominger * in Gunne He was or eight Years of Age when his Father dy'd His Mother finding herself ut seven ut an Estate, did all she could to keep him some time at School de was and some Yens in the House of the Queen of Navarre, Sister to cas I hav'd after-wirds it Bourdeaux under Buchanan, Vinetus, Salsgnuc, Gall and some other learned Men, then he went to Toulouse to Study the Civil-Law there, but his Genius made him apply himself to quite another thing He trifled away his time in making French Verses to please the Ladies, and having spent seven or eight Tears among the Delights of the Nobility, and in Gallantry, he went to Para, where he attended the Prosessors Lectures, and contracted a strict Acquaintance with divers Learned Men, and even insinuated himself into the Company of several Persons of Quality a All this prov'd very *LaCroix infignificant to him, infomuch, that if the Bookfellers had not bought the productidu Maine ons of his Pen, he had not had Bread to eat Study was his Inheritance, and he Biblioth one of those Authors that maintain their Families with their Pens His best Frankies tell us, (A) that with the Bleffing of God on the Labour of his Hands, he maintain'd his Family with his Books And therefore 'tis no wonder if he made fuch a + great & DuVerdier Van number, and undertook to write upon so many different Subjects that were beyond.

Privas the extent of his Strength He was obliged to follow the direction of the Booksellers, and to turn himself every way according to the Taste of the Publick; that is, according as certain Books good or bad, were fold speedily. It is said of him, || That be had Moulds wherein he cast new Books with great speed. He did Paris the 1st Day of January 1583, and was bury'd in the Cordeliers. Church he had desir'd by his will Theres (B) who was not a more considerable Author, boasted publickly, that

du Maine

an linthat

Mr Leydecker says 1st, That Bellarmin was sent thiof du

Veidier

Vaupri
vas, ubi

(7) That the Pope ever fut him to Louvain] (a)

Mr Leydecker says 1st, That Bellarmin was sent thither to inform himself of those Disputes, and to pacefy them, or at least to give the Pope an Acvery well of them 2dly, That he acquitted himself

vas, ubi

very well of his Commission, and that after havlarge heard before Reserve he returned to Reserve very fupra ing heard Michael Baiss he return'd to Rome very angry for having heard divers Opinions of the Scholan, Epift Dedicat
prefix d to Deputation in the Writers of that Jesus's History, the History and I know that he made but little not when he and I know that he made but little noise when he went to Lewisin He acquir'd his first Reputation in the (b) Seven Years that he taught Divinity in that place, and as he was an Augustinian about the Controversies between Bains and his Antagonists, it is not at all likely he was ever angry with that. Doctor for the Reason which Mr Leidyker men-

(Z) Belleau was another Anacreon] This was also the Opinion of Andrew du Chesne The Country of Perches, says he, (c) " produced that genteel and learney II whom I look upon as another Anacreon " Henry II whom I look upon as another Anacreon of the Anacreon and Ana tholicoI heologici 2 de vario Juniemfrarum fafrarum fafr

(A) His best Friends tell us that he maintain'd his Family,] Du Verdier Vau-Privas (d) Preface of the Edition of the Works of Baius 1696, and the 213th page of the Second Part (b) Nicius Eryth is p 85 (c) Du Cheine's Antiquities of the Towns of France, p m. 276 (d) Biblioth Franc p 367 declares himself Bengeres withings and father frame mirer I reserved, lays he, as much father after after after after after a I was after heart. declares himself Belleforeff's antimate Friend and adour Correspondence by Letters, as I was afterward forry for his Dasth

His Name will be immerially mang Man to long as the World endores, by reafon of the fine Works that he made Now see how he speaks of his Friend's I ortune Bellesorest had a very familiar Acquaintance with Ronfard, Baif, Bollown, Pigeonre Chopin she Ornament of the Parliament of Paris and many others, he was carefy'd by Princes, belov'd by the Nobility, and esteem d by all the Proposes. Here of this Kingdom, but his Fortune was so mean that he liv'd'only by his Study, and the labour of his Hands and Mand, being bless with, and supported by the Druine Chimbert to Necessities of his Family

(B) Thevet boasted published Theory of Druine Chimbert and Research Chimbert and Parish Research Chimbert and Chimbert and Parish Research Chimbert and (c) Thenothing more dishonest than this Man's Proing. He glories in the Hismility which his a fary express d to him on his Death-bed, and gies of flabuses him as much as he could have done before their Reconculation. These are his Words (f)
"There are some who having an more Learning part 7 p
"than Manster, have nevertheless been so bold as to scrawl after him, and new-mould him again,
"which is the second Head on which I ground
"my Grievance against those, who not having been much farther than the smooth of their Chimneys,
"their Stoves, or Cottages, dare in the mean time their Stoves, or Cottages, dare in the mean time persuade themselves that there is no Spot of Ground but what they have served. To cover their too presumptuous Undereskings, they have stollen here and there as much as they have stollen and sometimes they have cut off some small pieces from the Drscourses which they have castrated: So that most of their huge Books are only composed of pieces, which have so all a grace, that by

Belleforest made him a publick Reparation on his Death-bed They had been much infibroh'd together La Popelinire speaks very (C) ill of those two Authors Ghil ni committed a great many (D) says in a short Elogy of Belleforest, and is he had been so ill inform'd in every thing to, his Works would not be worth any thing BELLOI (Peter de) Advantage, his Works would not be worth any thing yet that Place when he writ so it. Rights of the king of Navarre against the League
If he had been a Processing.

If he had been a Protestant, he would have done nothing in that but what had been very Natural, and requir'd nextraordinary Virtue, but as he was a * Roman Catholick, and at Paru when he publish'd that Work against the League, he ought to be look'd with some admiration That Work is Intituled, A Catholick Apology against the Liber Declarations, Complete and Consultations, made, written and publish'd by the Leaguers, Desturbers of the Peace of the Kingdom of France, u ho have taken up Arms since the decease of Moniseigneur, the King's only Brother, by L I C It came out in the

see the Chronology of Cayet, t 1 Leaf

(a) La Popeliniere's History of Histories, pag 456

" what I can they ferve only Grocers r Cornets If I ipeak fo o-" and Butter-men for Cornets penly, 'tis because I am forry Belleforest should have been so indiscreet as the tech up Munster's Cosmography I don't fome will think that what I say of it proceeds from a Spirit of Revenge, and that having been provok'd by him, I intend at present to pour the first of my Anger upon him GOD "out the fury of my Anger upon him GOD

"in the fury of my Anger upon him GOD

"in the fury of my Anger upon him GOD

"in the land with the had of"fended me more than he did, I would not Sa"tyrze, and the all of a dead, hen Befides, as

"the end of Life, acknowleding the Wrong which he knew he had the presenting thoic

Books, wherein against his conscience he be"spatter d the Fame of good Men, and of those that "were put in the way of getting Bread, he fent were put in the way of getting Bread, he fent for me, and in the prefence of two Doctors of the Sorbone, and of his Physician and Bookseller Gabriel Buon, after having kist my Hames, he confess d publickly, that he felt his Conscience burthen d for the blame he had laid on me, for which he ask d my pardon several rimes. As me, I desir'd him the best I could not to tany more of it, for a simuch as we are all

La Popeliniero Speaks very ill of these two Authors I shall fet down somewhat at length what he sard of them, and I hope, it will not displetse those that love to see things in the origimal Authors, and who would have roo much trouble to find the Author whom I quote "Those (a) two Men, sometimes Francis and sometimes Bremes, have so makes the less improved "Learning, as they were as destitute of Wit, Judgment, "Nay, they were as destitute of Wit, Judgment, "May, and of all the Qualifications that may Memory, and of all the Qualifications that may " attend a good Genius, as they were supply'd with
"Boldness to explain wrong, and write worse
" what they never understood And because the inconsiderable Travels of the one, and the unru" ly desire of Writing which possess'd the other,
" the desire of Writing which possess'd the other, made their Essays acceptable to the Vulgar, that neither will nor can take time to examine things neither will, nor can take time to examine things well; they fet up for Seriblers at such a rate, that all the Printers at Paris, preferring their mean Capacity before all Judicious Works, frove to buy, publish, and make them appear to all the World And though they were never well instructed in their Youth, nay, without any considerable experience of the things of use World, and moreover, poor and destitute all the means which the most knowing Men ave always cell's the Wings of Virtue; yet toge universal Wits have past through all Profitons There is no Language nor Science out what they have prophan'd Nay, they, have patched up Particular, and Umversal Histories according to their foolish Fancy How can one help it As all Seasons are attended can one help it ? As all Seasons are attended with certain Accidents that bring evil to all, and good to no Body, the Causes wherof are unknown to us, and cannot be imputed to the Faults of Men: So there have always been, and ever will be certain private Men all. and ever will be, certain private Men in all States, who being only fit to confound and spoil all, undertake nothing but what will prejudice others, and profit no Body Those Men are hike atching, the fore-runner of a Sickness, to those that are troubled with it Their Hands inched, they could not forbear writing; not for the Publick Good, but for their particular Profit, which they kept up with the wretched labour of their unruly Pens So that I have often ver'd myfelf feeing France well provided

"with good Writers, because such weak Men, who could boat of nothing but of an affiduous and useless Labour, find People that will lote and useless Labour, and recopie that win sole their time in reading their Nontente, their An-nals, Histories and Universal Geographies, con-trivid, formid, hatch'd and publish'd in their io-litary Dens Thole that don't take the pains to hirary Dens Thole that don't take the pains to inform themselves of the particulars of the World, and chiefly to observe the Gousse and Issue of each Min's private Actions, cannor believe how much prejudice Belliferest and Theves have done to Youth, and consequently to the State, explaining abundance of Passages so ill, and many times in a quite contrary sense, corrupting and falsifying Matters, and supposing many things which they had ridiculously faircied in their weak Biains Without mentioned a mention of the passage of the contrary tends. ing a world of other Impertmences, wherewich they have patch'd up their poor Writings ther of the two Cases would have excus'd Belleforgt in that, (the he beafted to have writ as much as St Augustine) it Poverty made him ipeak like a Jay, that is, like a Beaft For he has shew'd bulnish too brutch on all accounts

ins shew'd himiest too beverm on all accounts towards Posterity (D) Chiling commission is great many faults in a smort Blogy I What he said of our Bellestress can take the said of our Bellestress can be takes Cominger for a City of Cascagne he affirms, that B llestress published divers Writings in Latin, and antong others, the Annals of France in two Volumes; the History of nine Kings of France, whose Names were Charles, the Universal History whose Names were Charles, the Universal History, or an Abridgment of Cosmography All this is fasse. Those Works, and all the other Books of that Author were written in French Ghilini adds, that there is a Catalogue of the Hustrous Men that made themselves famous in Monasteries both by their Learning and their Actions, and a History of the Holy Martyrs in three Volumes, written by that Author But there is no manner of likelihood that this Catalogue was ever Printed. lihood that this Catalogue was ever Printed La Cross du Maine did never see it, and he knew only that Belleforest made mention of it in the 193d Leaf of his Colmography Du Verdier Van-Private an inti-mate Friend of Belleforest says nothing of this Catalogue, and no Body is ignorant that Authors do refer to Works which they have not yet given to the Publick The same du Verdier informs us, that the Life, Paffon and Sepulture of Saint Dionyli- pag 372 (b) "the Life, Paffon and Sepulture of Saint Dionyli- pag 372 us the Areopagite and of his Companions that were his Fellow-Martyrs, collected out of divers Authors, by the late John Destor of Divinity great Prior of the Abbey of St Denys in France, and done into French by Belleforest, is Printed in the third Polame of the History of the Lives and Desthi of the Saints. This is the ground (c) Id ib one which three Volumes of the History of the Ho-Pag 371, by Martyre are afterild to Filleford by Chilm. 372 ly Martyrs are ascrib'd to Belleferest by Ghilini, 372 not as a Translation but as an Original He attributes also the Translation of St Cyprian's Works to him If he had consulted Van-Privas, he would have read there (c) that this Writer Translated only some Treatiles of St Cyprian, and that all the Works of that Saint were I ranslated by James Tigeou Lastly, Ghilims is somewhat to be blam'd for not having known the Year of Belleforest's Death, and for having plac'd it about the Year 1600 As for the excessive Praises wherewith he crowns that Author's Memory, they might be reckon'd among his faults, were it not that many other Writers led him probably into that Mistake I shall only quote one of them (d) Rent de Lusinge speaking of Belleforest, says, graph He is a Man of great Reading, who is not ignorant of any thing that is Confused in Amiquity, the Passages whereof he clears with great Care and good Language de Lufinge, the manner of reading History, a-Mart Zeillerum de & Geopart 2 pag 172

(A) Was

* Memoirs

1 110 pa 628

(a) Nos igitur ut cjus vestigus m lift mus

ftr ibunus

թուտստ

iuctorem Apologit tallo fibi

Catholica

assumere. cum sut

nomen

ha i eticus, aut fortifle etiam atheus in I ranicalcus Romulus icipont id pricipui cipiti Apologia qu'i fillo Citholica ıntcı il itui f 1 5 (f) Ain iuld r

campt the Ichuits in 1594 Pm

(i) Nove-

Chiono logy t 1

verfo

(b) 11 at is in the

Tiar 16 c

(1) Secthe

follow ng Remark

(d) Thu-

mus 1

9, 1 7 70 251 / 375

wa hu

the Kines

(1) 1 hu-

Ipeaks of it

1 82 pag (f) St

Ordo

anus

Lukes

Gospel,

/np 16

Plea a-

Year 1585 and was ti inflated (A) into Latin The Writers of the League called it (B) an infamous Libel, and the Author found himself expos'd to a severe (C) persecution He wis a Learned Civilian, and a Man of great Reading He had already publish'd some (D) other Books Du Plessis Mornas * acknowledges him for the true Author of the Catholick Apology

Here underneath I shall produce the frigment (E) of a Letter that will be a good

11 p 657 Supplement to this Article See alfu Thuanus

B L-

(A) Was translated into Latin] I have seen two Translations of it in that Language One of them, it we believe the Title, was Printed at Paris by james Petis Chou, 1586 In the other we find neither the Place of the Impression, nor the Printer's Name, but the Title is longer there than in the Original, and there is an Advertisement of the

Translator

(B) Call d it an infamous Libel] See the Book intitled, An infact of the true French Catholicks to the Advertisement of the Linglish Catholicks, for the exclusion of the King of Navarre from the Crown of France The Ldition which I make use of, is of the Year 1589 On the bick of the Title Page you find 1589 On the back of the Title Page you find a Catalogue of the Defamatory Libels, at which that Aniwer is levell d. The Catholick Apology by Belloy, is the third of those I ibels. I have seen a particular Aniwer to the chief Heads of that Work of Belloy, which passes for a piece of Bellarmin. The Author calls himself Franciscus Romulus. He necessary to the Author calls himself. thei itticks his Adversity about the Genealogy of the House of Bourbon, nor about the Bastardize that was objected to Henry IV by reason of his Mother's Mairiage with the Duke of Gleves, norabout the Dispute of the Preference of the Unkle before the Nephew, but reduces all to Religion, and to the Foundation of the Bull which declar'd the king of Navarre taln from the Succession, and uncipible of reigning, only because of his Hereste I he first thing that Franciscus Remulus undertakes to shew, is that the Author of the Apology is no Catholick, is he boafts himself to be, but (a) a meer Heretick, or perhaps an Atheist This it is to be over-fond of ceitain particular Doctrines, which it the bottom are not effential to a Religion Thoic that are fond of those particular Doctrines maintain impudently, that wholoever opposes them is a Talse Brother, a Prevaiscator, a Spy a Iriytor, and, to say all in a Word, an Arheist In all Communions there are some such opinion and Perions, without excepting the Protestrats that we come from France Bellarmin may ferve them to know their Illusion, for he, whom he accused of Hereiy, and whom he suspected of Atherim, made always profession of the Catholick Athersim, made always probession of the Catholick Religion like a very good Man. Here is a Passage of Intony Annuald (B) Who made that bloody Answer against the Catholick Apology, but the Jesuits, who imployed all their Industry, to say the most False and Calumnious Things, that can be thought of, against the Person and the Rights of his present Majesty?

(C) To a severe Persecution | Cayet (a) siys that when he (t) was writing his Book they made a parallel of the chief Writer of the Royalists, and the chief Writer of the Leaguers. He means Peter B lloy and Iewis Dorleans. It was faid, that both of them caused their Books to be published without their of them caused their Books to be published without their Names, he lat wrote for the league was more Lloquent, lut a Calemniator, he that wrote for the King of Navarre was more Learned, and a true l renchman The Writer of the League was first rewarded for his Writing, and was male Advocate General nthe Sovereign Court of the Kingdom during the Power of the I cague, and he has had fince much Irouble and Feration But he that writ for the Mijest of kings had Trouble and Afflictions, and was imprised in the beginning. In the Year 86 (c), I may clipt up in the laid (d) belonging to the Parliament. After the Death of the Duke of Couse he was a moved, and shriftly kept in the Bastile for two Years, and beging sound means to alcase he feel as Se Denies. unt having found means to escape, he sted to St Denis, where I e found Monsieur de Vic Governour for the King, who received him, prefented him to his Majesty, and for a recompense of his Froubles he is at this day Advocate In coal in one of the Parliaments of this Kingdom (c). The fate of those two Authors was therefore an image of what was find (f) to Dives, but it was an imperfectione, for Tewis Dorleans prosper d again, ittel hiving indur'd some tatigues much more inconsiderable than what he described his affects. inconfiderable than what he deferved by reason of his turious Rebellion

(D) He had already publish d some other Books] La

Croix du Maine mentions the four following, claration of the Right of lawful Succession to the King-dom of Portugal belonging to the Queen Mother of the Most Christian King, at Antwerp and at Parus 1582 in 8° A Panegyrick or Remonstrance for the Senechal in 8° A Panegyrick or Remonstrance for the Senechal and Judges of 1 oulouse, against the King's Notaries and Secretaries of the Jaid City, at Paris 1582 in 4' A Verbal Request for the abovesaid Lords and Officers of I oulouse, containing an Apology and Defence for the Advertisement published in the Name of the Doctore Regents of the University of Toulouse, at Paris 1583 in 8 A brief Explication of this present Year 1583 in 8 La Croix du Maine adds, that a Work of the sime Rellos was printing at Paris in 1584 (viz) A Computation of the Times since the Ciestion of the World till 1582 divided into two several Columns, and that he would speak in another Place of the Latin Books of that Author The Catalogue of the Bodleian Library mentions two Books, Petri Bethe Bodleran Library mentions two Books, Petri Belois variorum juris civilis, libri 4 & disputatio de successione ab intestate, &c at Paris 1583 and the Collation of the Edicts of Pacification, with the Explication of the said Edicts, at Paris 1600 in 8° Belloy is Author of a Commentary on the Editt, which order'd the uniting of the King's Patrimony to the Crown-Lands, at

Toulouse 1608 in 8 (E) The fragment of a Letter that will be a good Sup-plement] Here you have what the Author of the Notes on the Confession of Sanci and on the Catherlicon was pleas'd to write to me, "I have a Book that mught have given you much light about the famous Civilian PeterBello." The Title of it is, A Remply to the Answer which the Leaguers have published "accept the Examination that was drawn as an three against the Framination that was drawn up on their pretended Discourse concerning the Salick Law of France, There is in it an ample and fine Genealogy of Peter Belloy, in honour of that Learned Man, and which proves him a Gentleman of a Family originally come from Bretagne, and tranfplanted into Languedoc and eliewhere, but the most singular thing I find in it is, that it appears that Peter Belloy was already Prisoner in 1587 and consequently that it was King Henry III that caus'd him to be Imprison'd in complainfance to the Guises, who accus d him moreover of being a Shuffler and a Heretick, and who has already caus'd him to be accus'd the foregoing Year before the King by a Bishop whom I suspect to be G. Roze, for having made the Book for which Thuanus informs us that Francis le Breton, who was the Author of it, was hangd in 1586. It appears there also that Belloy was of a kamily whereof all the Members, and particularly himself, had always been good Catholicks, gainst the that at the Age of 21 Years he was nam'd Repent of the University of Toulouse, by the University it self, and by the Parliament, that afterwards after having perform'd the function of an Advocate four or sive Years at Toulouse he was (b) Memade Countellor in the Presidual of the Carry page One made Countellor in the Presidual of that City, nage, Owith marks of a most honourable Distinctionaby the Parliament of Paru, and that what had given an advantage against him at Paris to his Enemies Tongue at the Leaguers, was, that during this long abode the Word which he was obligd to make there as a Deputy Chape (g) of his Brethren to the Court, his Zeal for his ron Prince and his Country had moved him to oppose leveral ill Deligns of the League I must observe, that fince it is certain that he was already a Pri-ioner in 1587 there is no reason to say that he "was not put into Prison till 1588 Mr Menage (b)

"his quoted an overture of Audience of Peter Belloy ipoken in the Year 1609 "The Author of this Letter has inserted part of these Facts in the second Edition (1) of his Notes on the Confession of Sanci, and he observes one thing which I ought not to forget, which is, that our Belloy was born in the City (k) of Montauban, and that his three elder Brotheis were kill'd in the King's fervice against the Huguinots

(g) For an thet rench Chape

(1) Pag 20, 21 edit 1699 (k) I had made him a Native louse, grounding my self en la Croix duMaine

(F) A

B É L O T (N) Advocant the King's Privy Council under the reign of Lewis

HII. publish'd a Book (F) which the occasion to place him with little honour the famous Request of District He undertook to prove that our I anguage aght not to be made use of in Learned Works, alledging, among other Reathod Histors, that the communicating of Sciences to the People has produc'd great E-flor 1 4 vils. He promis'd another West suberein he was to (G) shew the Particulars of P m 9, that Proof that Proof

BEABUS (Peter) Toble Venetian, Secretary to (A) Leo X and afterwards (f) It Cardinal as one of the best Pen-men of the XVIth Century, tho' it must be associately greed the made himself sometimes ridiculous (B) by an afterted way of making who was use only of ancient Latin Words His History of Venice was very much cenfur'd by Lipsius upon that account It was also criticiz'd by * others with respect to Sincernsy His Letters have not (C) been more spard He began bebus Hist fon Hift of the French Academy p m 195,

(b) It was time that Pelluffon

10 AS 1011ting the History of

(c) Inthe

(d) Belot,

Preface, fol A 11

Preface

the Aca-

at the

(F) A Book which gave occasion to place him in the famous Request of Dictionaries Mr Pellisson makes mention of it (a) "At that time, if I am "not mistaken, the Sieur Belos Advocate, dedica-" ted also a Book to the Academy, which I could "ted allo a Book to the Academy, which I could "not find, and which is not mentiond in the "Registers, intitled, An Apology for the Latin "Tongue, and it was that which gave occasion to "that fine Passage in the Request of Dictionaries
"La passure langue Latiale
"Alloit êtye bocat Belot, "Si le bel bocat Belot, "Si le bel bocat Belot, "Si le bel bocat Belot, "Belot cetera contains eleven Verses, which are these,

Du Barreau le plus grand falet

Du Barreau le plus grand faloi N'en eust prus en main la defense, Et protegé son innocence Et provege jou innacence En quoy, certes, & sa bonte, Et son zele, & sa charité, Se firent d'autant plus paro stre, Quil n'a l'honneur de la connossire; Semblaole à ces preux Chevalters, Ces Paladins Avanturiers, Qui, deffendant des Inconnues,

Ont porté leur nom jusqu'aux nues

I have that Book which Mr Pellisson could not find, and I am going to say something of it, for it must be but little known, since in the Year 1650 (b) it escap'd the most curious Searchers The Title of it is, An Apology for the Latin Tongue, against the Presace of Monsseur de la Chambre, in his Book of new Conjectures about Digestion, dedicated to Monsseigneur Seguier, Chevalier, Chancellor of France It was printed at Parus in the Year 1637 in Octavo, and contains about 80 Pages, the Epistle Dedicatory, the Preface, &c being comprehended in it The Author (c) says, that he was forc'd to publish it, and tells the occasion of it (d) I will tell thee, that Monsieur de la Chambre having oblig d me Monsseur de la Chambre having oblig d me freedom made me find Fault with him about the Language, and having nevertheless continued to write in French, he thought himself oblig'd to make a Preface to his Book, intitl d, New Conjectures about Digestion, in savour of our Language against the Latin, which being address to me under the Reader's Name, I found my self obliged to answer it by this Apology, which my Friends got out of my Hands, by making use of the Authority of such Persons as might command me to give it to the the the cond of his Book he plac'd

To promis'd another Work wherein he was to Note, that he would have Mr Seguier to the himself in that cause for Politick Reasons The welfare of the State, faid he, and that of Re-ligion are concern'd in it According to having us'd the vulgar Language in every thing (e) Such are the effects which the secrets of the Learned unseasonably discover'd to the People, have produc'd among the Ro-mans, and when eof the example would be as dangerous to our Monarchy as it was prejudicial to that Empire 1 Set aside the fine Considerations that might be drawn from each Science, and which would make it more clearly to appear, of what moment it is to keep them secret, or at least not to declare them but to such Persons as might be capable of it. You will find matter of Wonder and Associations in a Treatise of Politicks, which I have intitled, France, or The perfect Monarchy, when you come to consider that the knowledge of Philosophy imparted to the People, has produced so many Shufflers and Sophisters, the Knowledge of Divinity so many Here-Sophisters, the Knewledge of Divinity so many Here-this and Athersts, that of Morality so many Hypocrites and false Virtues, and that of Physick (because tis profess d in our Language) so many Quacks and Murtherers, who kill more Men than the Plague and the War both together, and who have no other way of livelihood than that of killing so many People without being punished for it It is not useless to preserve the memory of such false Thoughts, they are Poysons

that may ferve for a Cuie

(A) Secretary of Leo X] He writ a great many Letters for that Pope, he had been largely paid for them, and besides, he had the honour of being look'd upon as the Author of all those Letters, for they came out under his Name, and with those that he had writ for himself. The latter are dithat he had writ for himself. The latter are divided into fix Books, and the others into 16 Leo X had another Secretary who was as great a purist as Bembus (f) He made choice of them (g) before he came out of the Conclave, where he was promoted to the Papacy Mr Graverol the Advocate would have publish d, with somes Notes, the Letters which they writ for that Pope, if an untimely Death had not put a stop to that Work Work

(B) Sometimes ridiculous by an affected way of making use only of ancient Latin Words] (h) "How many "I ollies has the Affectation of making use only "of Gicero's Words, and of what is call'd pure La-"Of Gicero's Words, and of what is call'd pure La"tinity, caus'd certain Italian Authors to commit?

"Who would not laugh to hear Bembus fay that a "Pope was elected by the favour of the Immortal Words
"Gods, Deorum immortalium beneficius?" I take these Words from the Author of the Art of Thinking Before him Justus Lipsius (1) had judiciously and pleasantly criticiz'd Bembus's Latinity He blames him among other things for having laid that the Senate of Venice with to the Pope. Put your trust in Senate of Venice writ to the Pope, Put your trust in the Immortal Gods, whose Vicar you are on Earth ut fidat Dissimmortalibus quorum vicem gisit in terris After this it ought to be no wonder if he mide ut use of the Word Goddess, speaking of the Holy Virgin It is in a Letter (k) where Pope Leo X reproaches the Inhabitants of Recanati, for having given bad Timber for the Building of our Lady of Loretto, and commands them to give better I'mber, lest, says he, it should seem that you deride us and the Goddess her self, Ne, tum nos, tum etiam Deam ipsam inanilignorum inutilium donatione lusisse videamini The Words which Christianity thorst set fuch Persons as might command me to give is that the end of his Book he plac'd barous to that Writer, he chose rather to make that which he writ to the Gentlemen of the which he writ to the Gentlemen of the persons of another Work wherein he was to the promised another Work wherein he was to Note, that he would have Mr Seguer to Solecisms (1) The Phrase aftere naves which he would he more pardonable in a Dutch Solecisms (1) The Phrase afferre naves which he criticises would be more pardonable in a Dutch ken at Man, because the same Word in Dutch, which signifies to bring, signifies also to carry, which creates sometimes very pleasant Expressions in Dutch Men that begin to speak French The History of Venice which Lipsus criticized so much as to the Style, seemed a (m) Work of a meanWit, and of a dry and creeping Author to our Monsseur de Balzac creeping Author to our Monsieur de Balzac (C) Hu Letters have not been more span d] His Friends have been challeng'd to shew any of them that does not grofly trespass against Grammar, and that is not remarkable for some egregious Childishness, and moreover without any solidity (n) Ut caneis, and moreover without any iolidity (n) Ut cateram carminum ejus obscanitatem taceam, quid ejus etaliam, p pistolus ineptius, & guidem ilus quas Pontificu maximi m 783; nomine & de rebus maximis ser pst, & ad vivos maximos? (o) Commentiar ego cum Scipione Gentili (o), & luam gravi ment in pæna, si vel unam mini in tot illu voluminibus Episto- Ep Pauli lam ostendant anatores ejus, quæ non insigni aliquo vi- ad Phitio Grammatico laboret, aut puerili aliqua ineptia conspi- lem i 18.

times relum Venetar ın fine (h) Art of Thinking, 3d part. clap 19 edit Amster-1685 (1) Épist 57 cen-tur 2 Miscellan pag (k) The 17th of the (1) The Jame Lip. fius in bis Notes on clap the 1ft Book of his Politicks Sum: up in a fem what he more amply in the abovequoted other things. Cum tam verbis fibi caverit, reperio alibi quæ cam Tullinna non fint, fed vixLatina D fortati-021 021 4 Speech Spo-Discourse Cellaneons Works (n) Lanzius,Ora-

(c) Belot Apology pag 28 &

* See the † Joh Cafain VIta Bembi Intituled. De Guido Ubaldo lizabetha Gonzagia ad Nicolaum Teupolum 1 1 huan Hift l 3 lib fin And not in his 68th Tear as Moreii Jays, after having observ ed that be was born 12 1470 and that be ay din 1547

(b) That is, from

1482 tu 1485 (1) Bembus epift 6 1,6 (d) Joh is in the 18,d pag part of the Citalogue of the Library of Nicolis Hemnus, Gli Alolanı dı PietroBembo Ald 1505 11 es certain. that they were

Printed in

See the 8th Letter of the 4th Book of Bembus (g) John Mutin s Advertilement to the Readers 1 is to be found at the ena of the Book (/) Gaff 1iel s Pre-+a e toz/e unheard of Cursolities (1) Hat above Romark C (k) Scaliger, Con-futat fabulrBur-donum p Menage.

times (D) to run the hazard of being an Author, and he was very fortunate in it, for his Azolani * had an extraordinary Vogues. He was much taken notice of at the Courts of the Duke of Ferrara, and of the Duke of Urbino, which were then the most polite of that Country, and the Rendezvous of the finest Wits † He publickly testified by Country to the affective the Duke and Duke and Duke of Transition of the Country than the Duke and fied his Gratitude for the esteem wherewith the Duke and Dutchess of Urbino honour'd him, for he wrote a || Book in their Praise He was a good Italian and I atin Poet, but he was justly blam'd for having publish'd some $(D\triangle)$ loose and obscene Poems He is one of those that have been accus'd of having spoken (E) of the Word of GOD with great contempt It may be, that he only found fault with the Style of it Authors don't agree about the Sex (F) of his Children, but they agree in saying they were Illegitimate, and three in number One of his Letters lays, (G) that his two Grindmothers liv'd a Hundred Years He dy d 1 in the Year 1547, in his * 77th Year Speron Sperone says he set a great value on the Knowledge (H) of Languages. It this Article be short, 'tis because Moreri has spoke at large of Cardinal Bimbo

cua sit & demonstrabilis Ne quid de rebus ipsis atque scientiis dicam sapientia inanissimus, & mire languidus, & (repetendum est enim, quod esus proprium maxime est) in ptis

(D) Betimes to iun the hazard of being an Author] During the three Years (b) he was in Sicily a Scholar of Constantine Lascaris, Professor of the Greek Tongue at Messina, he composed a Latin Treatise de Monte Atna, that was Printed in 1486 (c) Being return'd home to his Father, he followed him some Years after to the Court of Hercules d'Est Duke of Ferrara He made himself belov'd and Duke of Ferrara He made himself belov'd and consider d there, and it was in that Vogue that he writ his Azolam They are Discourses of Love, so cill'd because it is supposed that they were made in the Castle of Azolo He was then but twenty six Years of Age (d) That Italian Book had great success among Men and Women, one would have past for a Novice in Italy, if one had been a stranger to it (e) Eos libros tanta hominum, mulicoum etiam medius sidius approbatione, Etanouam plausu exceptos recentes esse meminimus, ut (d) Joh tanquam plausu exceptos recentes esse meminimus, ut Casa in vi- extemplo cuntsa cos Italia cupidissime letitarit, atque ti Bembi, didicerit ut non sa is urbani aut eligantes ii habep m 143 rentio quibus Ajulanz illa disputationes essent incesse (f) Id ib cognita. It has been Printed several times. A certify There tain John Martin Secretary of Cardinal de Legantes and a living transfer and the secretary of cardinal de Legantes. noncourt made a I rench Translation of it, which he publish'd in the Year 1545

He made it from the Italian Edition of the Year others fince that of the Year 1515 and he observes this to prevent any Person from wondering at the differences that were between his Translation and differences that were between his Translation and the Original printed by (f) Aldus in the Year 1515 (g) If they please to consider, says he, that Bembos Work was three or four t mes Re-printed since that time, and that the said Signior Bembo has cut off some things from it that seem'd superfluous to him, and also that the last impression (which I have follow d,) is of the Year 1540 made (as it is to be supposed) by his authority and permission, my opinion is that they will not say that I have wrong a the Author in any thing. This was of some use to Gastarel, who sinding himself centus d for imploying his Pen in matters ill-be-coming a Clergy-man, excused himfelf by the Authority of divers Eximples, and namely, by the Azolani of Cardinal Bimbo (1) It might have been objected to him, that that Work wis compos'd by a young Gentleman, who was not yet ingag'd in the Ecclefiastical State, but he might ive reply'd, that the Author made a new Edition of it after his Cardinalship

(D\(\triangle)\) For having published some loose and obscene Poems] We have seen already (1) what Lanzing reproaches him with, and here is a Passage of Scaliger (k) Petrus Bembus elegiaco (caimine) eam partem corporis humani celebravit, fine qua nulla obscanitas foret Legatur ejus Elegia, cujus initium Ante alias omnes, meus hic quas educat hortus, Una puellares allicit herba manus quod poema merito vocare possis obsenssimam elegan-iam, aut clegantissimam olsen tatem. Un us & qua-draginta dist chorum est. Thuanus and Menage shall serve me for new Witnesses, the former by these Words, (1) Illius (Bembi) multa licentrofius, ut temporum nequita & domini cui ferviebat mores ferebant, scripta exiant, and the latter Ly this Remark, (in) It it was true that John della Cafa was excuded from the Cardinalship for his Poem, Cardinal Bembo had been more fortunate than he,

323 (1) Thuanus 118 3 sub fin p m 66 (m) Anti-Baillet, tom 2 p 117, 118 for the licentious Verses that he made in his "Youth, and that are yet more licentious than "those of the Capitolo del Forno, did not hinder

"him from being made a Caidinal" (E) For having spoken of the Word of GOD meth great contempt, I can go back no farther than a German Author, whose Name is Thomas Langua, who publish'd several Speeches for and against the Nations of Europe He says, without quoting (n) any Body, that Bembus advis'd a Essend not to read St Paul's Epistles, for fear of spoiling his Style (o) Advertite, auditores, inepts hominus impietatem cum ad epist pari fultitia conjunitam Is siquidem Epistolas omnes Piuli, ad Pauli palam condomnavit, easque desseno in contumeli- Philemon am vocabulo I pistolaccias est aujus appellare, cum amico autor esset ne illas attingeret, vel si capisset legere, d manibus esiceret, si elegantiam scribendi & eloquentiam adamaret Others pretend, that having heard that Sadolet expluind the Epistle to the Romans, he told him, Let those Fooleries alone, they don't become a grave Man Omitte (p) has nugas, non e-num decent gravem virum tales ineptiæ We shall see in another place (q) a Story that was spread a-broad, whereby one might be apt to think that he did not believe the Immoatality of the Soul

(F) On the Sex of his Children Moreri gives him two Sons and a Daughter, but Imperialis (r) obferves, that Bembis kept a Concubine all his Litetime, by whom he had three Daughters It is certain, that Bembis had a Son whose Name was Torquate, to whom Manussus Dedicated his I regil I do not question but that Imperials is mistaken, tor John della Casa, who writ the Lite of Bembus tor John della Casa, who writ the Lite or Bemower that his Market great application, says expressly, that his Markets had two Sons by him, to wit, Lucilio and Forquato, and a Daughter whose Name was Helena, (1) In Murry of the Peter Gradenigue He remarks for History who was marry d to Peter Gradenique He remarks also, that that Mistess was a fine Woman, and that Peter Bemous a well-shap'd, polite, gallant, and courteous Man, was very well belov d in Companies During his abode at Perrara, the Duke Hercules d'Est and Lucretia Borgia the Wife of Alphonsus d Est shew'd him a particular Esteendship.

d Eft shew'd him a particular Friendship (s).

(G) Says that hu two Grandmothers sto'd a Hundred Years] I hat Letter being (s) short, I shall set to down at length. It appears by it, that Bembus would willingly have facrific'd those two Old Women to the life of his deceased Brother. Between men to the Life of his deceas'd Brother Petrus Bembus Herculi Strotio Avias ambas meas effetas, deploratasque fæminas, O jam prope centum anubrum mulieres mihi fata reliquerunt unicum fratrem meum nuteres mini fata reliquerunt unitum patrem meum juvenem ac storintem abstulerunt, spen & solatia mea Quamobrem quo in maroic sim ipse facile potes existimare Reliqua exmess intelliges Heu me miserum! Vale Id Jan 1504 Venetiss He was much more affected with his Mother's Death See the Re-

(H) He set a great value on the knowledge of Languages] So tai is to pietei it before the Marqui-ite of Mantua (u) to so nulla per rispetto à que glo-riosi ma quel poco che io ne so delle lengue, non lo can-gierei al Marchesato di Mantoua A Writer of Dia-logues makes no scruple to ascribe to his Interlologues makes no icruple to ascribe to his Interlocutors what they never said, and therefore I see no great reason to believe, that Peter Bembus was really of that Opinion, having no other proof for it than that Author's Dialogue Some Body (w) has quoted Speron Sperone, as is Bembus had only mention'd his Talent of writing in Latin, but it is certain by the Words that I have quoted, that Bembus spoke in general of the knowledge of Tongues And it must not be imagin'd, that he pretended to exclude the Greek, which he had pretended to exclude the Greek, which he had

(n) Konig quetes Scipio Gentilis's Comment

∫upra

(# Gregor Miin curio-Guffarellı, p 111

(q) In one of the Remarks of cle Me-

(1) John della Cafainthe of the 3d 486

ron Sperone in the Dialolearn'd pag 11

When his Mother was dead, he writ a very fine Consolatory Letter to his Father When his Mother was dead, he writ a very fine Combiatory Letter to his rather Bernard BEMBUS. He says in it, that she is had liv'd 48 Years with her Husband in a Concord that no Complaint had ever interrupted, and he seems to be very much afflicted for the loss of that good Mother He has blam'd for having follow'd the custom of Flatterers, with whom the Merit of the living does always exceed that of the dead, for he publish'd that Paul III was more learned than Leo X. We ought to see (K) how he justify'd himself. After the death of Navagier in 1530 the Council of Ten 163 p pitch'd upon him to write the History of the (L) Republick of Venice. His Age of m 501 his years would have made him shun that trouble. It is she had not been more will a series of the council of the life of the had not been more will a series of the council of the life of the had not been more will a series of the life of the had not been more will a series of the life of the life of the had not been more will be the life of the Sixty Years would have made him shun that trouble, † if he had not been more wiling to incommode himself, than not to do that Service to his Country I must fay Histor a word of the Design it's pretended (M) he had to refuse the Cardinalship His Historian enlarg'd on that Point, and did not fail to say, that his Narrative would pass for a Fable with many Persons that judge of their Neighbours by themselves He has nobly express (N) that Common-place leun d in Sicily under Lascaris so far as to write it very well (a)

(a) Joh Casa, ubi

(b) Peter Bembus's

epist 6 lib 1" pag

(c) Mar-

celli ejus

re animus

turpiter

abalienatus Id epist 1 lib

5 pag 559 De Marcelles etiam fpe

ut cum le ılle meretricia confuetudine plemiæ, ple-

per te fo-lutumque 1edato animo atque pacarit, tibi gratias 1.

at, quod

illum bel

luarum more fine

pudore, fine lege,

fine ullo

officio de gentem ad hominum VItam rationemque traduxeris Ibid

pag 562

na infi-

na calamitatis liber itum ro tore.

mariti meritricio amo-

m 426

∫upra

(1) That his Mother had liv'd 48 Years with her Hufband in a Concord These are his Words (b) Cum dua essent causa quibus maxime commoveri debui ad lustum, essent cause quibus maxime commovers acons as sucrum, una, quod me parente optima mesque amantissima orbatum viderem, altera, quod te privari lettissima prudentissimaque conjuge, cum qua duodequinquaginta annos sine ulla Qaerela concordissime vixisses, tibi patri meo acerbissimum atque luttuossissimum putarem futurum, harum duarum causarum altera me abs te levari sentiebam, &c. That Letter dated from Urbino the 22d of November 1309 is a great Elogy of the Mother, and an illustrious Testimony of her Son's Affection It deserves to be read from the beginning to the end Bernard Bembus had already some Grandfons His Wife had liv'd near Seventy Years There is another Letter of Peter Bembue, wherein he shews his Brotherly Affection, for he makes there a lively representation of his Sister's Unhappiness, that he might obtain some remedy for that Woman's Missortunes from the Patriarch of Venice She was marry'd to a Man that gave himself over to all manner of Lewdness, and who bestow'dthe Af-fection, that was due to his Wife, upon prostituted Creatures (c) He abus'd her horribly, without being mov'd with pity by her Patience and Silence, and by her Modesty, whereby she endeavour'd to bring him to his Duty (d) Nolo sibi commemorare quot aut quantas indignitates Antonia soror universum biennium pertulerit, dum prudens atque optima mulier, humanitate, pudore, continentia, la-bore etiam summo suo, quodque hujusmodi rebus solet esse dissicilimum, taciturnitate, viri improbitatem, perditissimosque mores placare, ac estere in melius ce-pit. This is a finer Letter than the other, it is dated from Urbino the 7th of July 1510 which occasions a small difficulty, for it is suppos'd there, that Bembus's Mother was yet living Curandum that Bemous violated was yet living Caranaum tibi certe est ne Soror mia, ne Pater, ne Mater, ne universa nostra familia secure tandem ac plane libere irrideamur (e), and we have seen that he writ a Letter of Consolation to his Father about his Widowhood in the Month of November 1509 were to be wish d that io many Letters of great Men were not ill dated

(K) How he justify'd himself] When in 1535 he publish d the Letters which he had written in the Name of Leo X he Dedicated them to Paul III and declar'd him much more learn'd than Pope Lie X was Eas autem ad te, Paule, potissimum lite-Lie A was Eas autem and te, Paule, porifimum liferas mitto, quia Pontifex maximus es ut Leo decimus suis, do in optimarum artium disciplinis multo, quam ille, habitus dottior Vera enim fateri omnes non solum honeste possumus, sed etiam debemus. That Elogy was dook d upon as exorbitant, Bembus's Character, and the remembrance of the great Favours he, had received from Leo X were not to be seen in (f) Esse nonnullos que me en laudando Paulo Pont Max longius progressium esse putent quama un mei mores, aut summa in me Leonis X officia, aut veritas omnino ipsa postularis. He answer'd Mossa, who had given him notice of that Censure, That he had only given the preference to Paul III as to Literature, which the Domestick Missortunes of Leo X had hinder'd him from making any greet progress. hinder'd him from making any great progrefs in, that he had taken care not to judge which of the two out-did the other in Prudence, Firmness, Temperance, Goodness, and Liberality, that it was not difficult to know that Pope Paul had more carning than the other, that he had never fail'd to acknowledge the Favours of Lee X though he was left indebted to him for his Fortune than to Julius II. (g) Tametfi mediam plus partem sarum

quas habeo fortunarum omnium Julius secundus Pont Max cui nunquam inservivi, contulit (L) To write the History of the Republish of Ven ce]

They would have him to begin it where Sabellicus had (b) ended it, and to continue it down to his own time That interval comprehended I or ty four Years (i) He did not fill it up, for he ended his Work at the Death of Julius II That History is divided into Twelve Books, and was Printed at Venice in the Year 1551 and Re-printed the same Year at Paris, by Michael Vascosan 1114°. It was afterwards Printed at Basil with the other Works of Bembus, in three Volumes in 8° in the Year 1567 Neither he, nor any Body elie could reap any Benefit from Andrew Navagier's Labour, who had a like Commission, and who on his death had order'd all his Writings to be burnt (k) We have feen in the Remark B what Judgment was made of the History of Bembus

(M) Of the Design'tis pretended he had to refuso the Cardinalship Moreri speaks of it at large, but he has not discovered the Beauties wherewith John della Casa, whom he copies, has adorn'd that Nar-rative That Historian of our Bembus declares, he is not ignorant that several People will reject that part of his Narrative, and that because most Men part or his Narrative, and that because most Men judge of others by themselves, it will not be believed that Peter Bembus sincerely despis'd a degree of Honour, which almost every Body judges to deserve the most passionate and earnest Wishes, but that as for him, who writes whilst things are yet fresh in Memory, and whilst part of the Actors are yet living, he ought not to be suspensed of an imposture, but after all, he was not cted of an imposture, but after all, he was not astraid of the appearances of a Lye that attended the Truth which he was to publish, remembring very well, that the fault of those who dare tell Lies in a History, is as great as the fault of those, who dare not speak out the Truth I do not represent the beauties of the Original no more than Moreri, and therefore I shall set down his own Words (1) Non sum nescus multos fore, qui nostra orationi hac in re parum sidei habeant plerique enim omnes, quid de aliena voluntate credendum sit, de sua conjecturam faciunt itaque incredibile multis visum iri intelligo, Bembum id vere atque ex animo aspernatum esse, quod omnes fere summa cupiditate expetendum cted of an imposture, but after all, he was not tum esse, quod omnes fere summa cupiditate expetendum atque optabile esse existiment, tametsi scribimus hac recenti hujus facti memoria, multisque, qui in agendo ad-fuerunt, superstitibus, quos, mendacii acque impudentia nostra conscios ac testes habere cur velimus causa nulla Sed quoniam par corum peccatum esse censemus, que est Sea quoniam par eurum peccasum esse cenjemus, qui mentiri in historia audent, atque eorum, qui dicere verum resormidant, mendacii speciem, verum cum dicturi essemus, non horruimus. I find myself obligid to say here that I am none ofthose of whom John della Casa did foresee the Incredulity I have seen so many Characters in Peter Bembus s Letters not only of an honest Man, and of a generous and officious Friend, but also of a learned Person, who preferr'd the calmness of a retur'd Life, that permits an intire consecration to the Muses, before the Vanities and Pomps of a Court, that I can easily imagine, he wish'd in earnest not to be a Cardinal

(N) He has nobly exprest that common place] It is what we have seen in his Latin Words, and consequently there remains only for me to prove that (m) Joan-there is a common place in them, which I shall nes Casa easily do One of the Difficulties that attend the in vita Pe-Writing of History is, that the Readers are apt tri Bem to look upon the noblest Actions, of which they bi, p 19 find themielves uncapable, as so many Lies This Collect has been observed long ago (m) At min quider. Bately. faid Salluft, D d d d in primis arduum videsur,

(b) About 1486

(1) Bembus mit Histor rerum Venetar,

(k) Id 1b

lust in proœm in belli Catılın

> trı Bemb1, p 150, Colle&

(d) Id 1b pag 560 (e) Id 1b (f) Bembus, cpift 'ag 701

g) Id 1b ME 702

+ Thuannus 152 (b) 1 atenus tolerabiles funt allenæ laudes quatenus ferplum quisque parem ar bitratur alıcuı illarum affequendæ quibus vero imparem, ns invidet fidemque non hibet Ibucy aid lib 2 p 100, 1 1 edit I atinæ Fr aucof 1589 (c) Cæftr de bello civili lib 2 pm 296 (d) 5 cth French I cries which I lareset downinthe Remark A of the Artick Fve (e) Phædrus lib 3 in prologo (f) Neminem nonuno, quuena-1ci mihi nemo poterit nili qui ante de le vo-Jucist confiteri Ciccio pro lege Mandia St Jerome /mr, quando tine nomine contra vitii iciibitui qui irilcitur accusitor est fur In Rufin 1, cap 3 (g) Taniquillus Inber epistol 44 Jib 1 pag 128 (h) Indelis Annoius Veremen tanus I heologus (that is to Jay, John I loyd an I nghih Tesut) in hypocrifi Marci Antouil de Dominis detech p:

BEME, murtherer of Admiral St Bartholomew's Day, should not deserve a place in this Diction that many Perions knowing a Man by some very enormous Criminate to what became of him atterwards, and of what manner of Dear they cannot well satisfy their curiosity without much trouble, which is personally their curiosity without much trouble, which is personally their they cannot well satisfy their curiosity without much trouble, which is personally the personal they cannot well satisfy their to them when a Book is personally the satisfy themselves immediately let so much be said once for all as to such like Articles B E M E, then † a German by (A) Nation, educated in the House of the Duke of Guise, made himself the chief Executioner of the Massacre that was resolved upon against the Admiral. It was Reme, who, as soon as his Chamber Door was broke open. Tasket Admir I It was Beme, who, as foon as his Chamber Door was broke open askt pag 134 him, Art thou the Admiral? And knowing by his answer what he askt, his (k) See the Sword through his Body, and then gave him a great cut over the Fare. It was new Letters quod facta" dictis exares gestas scribere, primum, quod satia ditis exaquanda sunt; de binc, quia plerique, qua delita reprebenderis, malevolentia, o invidia dita putant, ubi de magna virtute, asque gloria bonorum memores, qua sibi quisque facilia satiu putat, aquo animo accipit, supra, velutissita pro salsis ducit Pericles had already made the same Observation concerning those that hear a Funeral Oration (b) The Praises, said he, which the Auditois think themselves capable of deserving are not subject to be criticized, but if they go bevond them Stienigh, they make them envious and res gestas scribere, primum, yond their Strength, they make them envious and incredulous, and are look'd upon by them as a liction and a piece of Flattery The Foundation of all this is, that every one is apt to measure other Men's Actions by his own Qua volumus & credimus libenter, they are fulius Casar's Words, (c) or qua ser timus upsi, reliquos sentire sparamus No-thing is more ensy (d) than to deceive those that never deceive d others, and nothing is more dis-ficult than to draw those into a snare that have al-wiys afted fraudulently. The reason of that frawiss afted fraudulently The reason of that facility, and of that difficulty may be easily guest at A good, plain, and sincere Man does not suspect any inclination to Deceit, and for that reason he acts without much precaution, but a Knave thinking that others are made like himfelt, keeps on his guard against all the Artifices which he knows he should make use of in the like occations. It is usual to judge disadvantageously of those that mistrust every thing, and who easily believing ill the ill Reports that are spread about their Neighbours, deny, or question, or put an ill Construction on the best, and the most laudable Actions which they hear of What Phedrus iaid of certain Persons, that take the Descriptions or Cenfures of Vice for Personal Offences, may be apply'd to them, Are you so imprudent, said he to them, as to ieve il the increts of your Heaits in fuch a manner?

Sufpicione (c) si quis errabit sua,

Li rapiet ad se, quod esit commune omnium,

Stulie nudabit an mi conscientiam.

Others (f) had already made use of that thought It is therefore believed that those credulous Men is to flinders, who are otherwise incredulous as to the praises of their Neighbours, shew thereby the ill state of their Soul, their disposition to Ethe ill flate of their Soul, their disposition to Evil, and their weakness for what is Good. Mr Is Fetre made use of that common place against those that would say, he had done a thing very contrary to Piety, by maintaining that the Passinge of Josephus concerning JESUS CHRIST is a suppositious piece. They will make it appear, says he, Impiety icems but a trifle to them, if they accuse others of it without icason. (g) Si quis tamen aliter judicaverit, & meum scribends confilm in crimen detaisser; is, at air usualadse poeta.

Stulte nudabit animi conscientiam Stulte nudabit animi conscientiam

Quemadmodum enim & rede & vere olim pronunciavis Amphis,

क्टाड क्रिक्कारीर विमार्थ के अन्तिकी थान aulor eriepnen padier Emalai

Sic non minus were dici potess, Qui ob rem nullam alsos impictatis insimulant, cos sates aperte oftendore quam leve peccarum existiment com dirum seelus. The two Greek Verses of this Passage have a very fine seuse; they signifie, that he that will not believe his Neighbour's Oaths, will easily commit a Perjury which is much like these Words of Tertullian to a maker of rash Judgments, sipotes the de alus crederc, pates of facere. One of those that went against Mark Antony de Dominis laid a great stress upon that common place, (b) His aliud argumentum adducam, quo oftendam, consuscitam tuam of sidem merito nobis o cordato curves suspect am est debere Nofts, opinor, Orasoris

Alegambe calls him Annotus Fidelia Verimontanus dictum, cujus veritatem quotidiana expanentia declarat bourg's.

Ut quisque pessimus est, ita de alus posture tuspica- Historiat tur Qui fastu tumet, superbos, qui divisiis inhiat, vinism avaros, qui santitatem fingit, hypocitas, qui dono p 681 versat, proditores, qui nullà side & conscientia est, com- (!) Jo scientiam pensi non babere una secum omnes existi- Baptista mat (i) Si Vigilantianis, qui nullos castos ex Gallus de conscientia, bene objicit Hieronymus, satis ostendune in North quam santie quanti au male de omnibus suscientur. quam santle vivant, qui male de omnibus suspicantur, certe satis conscientiam tuam, quam jattas puram, quam Jac Au-sit tetra & impia ostendis, qui de Scriptoribus Romanis, gusti Pariscusibus, modernis, antiquis, Gracis, Latinis, Im- Thuani Parifeusibus, modernis, antiquis, Gracis, Latinis, Im- Thuani peratoribus Christianis, Summis Pontificibus antiquis- Historismus, Conciliis generalibus de Christianis arum lifaculis, tetra & importante constituis modo, sid cer- bros, cop tissua assuma, ubi ne locussima quidem justa suspicionis 9 umbra est

Observe, That there is no subject on which the Roman Catholicks have made more use of that Common-place, than that of Continency, for they have affected to fay (k) that those who accuse the Clergy of not keeping it, and those that judge the observing of it almost impossible, are lascivious Men that judge of others by themselves The Jefuit who writ against Thuanus under the false name of Joannes Baptista Gallus was so audacious as to say, that that great Man having the Reputation of loving Women, easily believed that other Men had the same Fault, and alledged Nero to him (1) Quad de Nerone ferunt, qui cum perditissime & impurissime viveret, castum esse posse neminem censebat Ostendunt, continues he, a jebat S Hieronymus de hæ-Ostendune, continues he, asebat S Hieronymus de harriticis agens, quam caste vivant, qui beste de aliis sentire aut loqui nequeunt aosic aras Saline diamerpuisi aras. Vinistica rae. That Greek is quested as out of Gregory Nazian- p m 164 zen. What is allegated of Nero is to be found in (o) Sciopsus and in stranged Terms (m) Ex nonnullis pius in comperi, says the Historian, persuassimum habuist cum neminem bominum alacum, aut ulla corporis partic purum esse verum plensique dissimulari vitium, or calliditate obsegere ideoque prosessis apud si obsemitation, catera queque concessis distinual is l'anthonia cruel and impudent Invective of Scioppius against Theodorus Beza, it is only to consute it must folagainst Theodorus Beza, it is only to confute it what fol-He asserts (n) that the reason for which that Mi-lows, for 7 nister suspected the falsity of the History which Leaves we read in the 8th Chapter of St John, is because have been it is said there that JESUS CHRIST remain'd cut out of alone with the Woman that was accus'd of Adul- the Copy tery (0) Talis Beza, qui in ectavum caput Johan-nis affirmat, sibi mulicris in adulterio deprehensa historiam suspecta sides ac veritatis esse, quod Christus dica-tur solus cum sola semina remanssisse situ nempe consulta-quid solus ipse cum Candida sua sola agere consue qui sicut Spartami, quòd Martiales ac bellatores omanis Decrum dearumque imagines atque statua satatas faciebant, tamquam Deos omnes virtute bellicatories and ditos enifermarens, ata ipse propter sum libidinem describe the ditos eusfirmareut, ita ipfe propter suam libidinem d disos ensistemarens, at a topic propter Juam libidinem continued to the pudicitiam, Christiam quoque Santium Santiorum (1). Notes of Never was a Satyr so ill grounded as that, the libera on it is true indeed that the History of that Wo-the 8th ch man was suspected by Beza, but it is no ways of S John for the reason that Scioppius alledges Beza gives ie-(r)The Life veral reasons for it, and if he observes that J E- of Admiral SUS C HR IST was left alone with that Collinar Woman at the part of the Continued to th Woman, it is not because such a Circumstant contains a motive of some dishonest suspection, but because the thing it self does not agree with the sequel of the Text, and does not look pro-

(A) A German by Nation.] He was (r) born in the name Country of Wirtemberg, and it is find he was the Erne Son of a Man who had been intrafted with the Variable Gallies observes that it was faid, that the first conditions of the solution Cardinal

he against tion

> 9 (m) Suc-Nerone, (n) The Cordelier Feuardentius had airea dy publishedthelame Lye in the 13th chap of the 4th Book of his Theomalag (f) He difgwifed bim∫elfun which I of, which I ascribe to the Zeal of

Some good

der the Varamun dus Frishe that answer'd the Duke of Guise, inquiring If the Business was done, that it was adone, and who threw the Body by the Duke's order out at the Window He was taken in Xaintonge, by the Garran of Bouteville, in the Year 1575 He lack to lack the Hist tale promis'd a great ransom, and to carrie Montbrun to be releas'd, whom the Caltrolicks had taken in Dauphine The only desire of saving Montbrun kept Beme 7 Beza from being put to Death, wherefore he was in great fear when he heard that Montbrun was executed, He brib'd'a Soldier who saved him on a good Horse, with pag 479 a Pistol at his Saddle Bow Bertanville Governor of the place finding that he was escap'd, & Mezemounts on a cross Horse alone, and overtakes Beme and the Soldier, and baving no other rai Tom mounts on a cropt Horse alone, and overtakes Beme and the Soldier, and having no other Weapon but a Sword, makes at both of them, the Soldier would not wait for him, but Beme 3 in fol cry'd out to him, thou knowest that I am a dangerous Fellow, and fir'd his Pittol, the other edit 168 answering, I will not have thee to be so any longer, thrust his Sword up to the Hilt into & This is his Prisoner's Belly Thus & d'Aubigne relates the thing Beza ? 14ys (B) much the the Title of fame, but we shall see here under that Thuanus relates the matter with other (C) is, Pompa funcher Circumstances Mezera: calls that murtherer N Dianovitz-Besme

BENEDICTIS (Elpidio de) had a good share in the Esteem and Affairs of Cardinal Mazarin He was his Secretary during his Nunciature in France, and afterwards his Agent at Rome He requitted himself so well of that Imploy ment that the Cardinal prais'd his Fidelity and good Conduct in his list Will, and recommended him to the Most Christian King 1 hat Recommendation was not fruitless, for the Abbot Benedictis was declar'd Agent of France at Rome, and sa de Sun-loaded with Riches He was ordered by the Cardinal's Heirs to cause a sumptious to Vincent and St Anastasius, which Anastasio had been that Eminence's Parish He perform d it admirably well, and publish d s a Description of that Funeral Pomp He was ordered to cause a Funeral Solemnity to be made for the * Queen Mother with all manner of Pomp in the Church of St Lewis, which is that of the Nition, he performed it like a Min that perfectly understood those sorts of Ceremonies. The Description of those Funerals is to be seen in a Book t which he publish'd He wrote another, which is an authentick Monu- Il mondo ment of his Zeal for the Honour of his Benefictor, for having been informed that Pringente ment of his Zeal for the Honour of his Benefictor, for having been informed a Book was handed about that defim'd Cardinal Mazarin strangely, he published a festing grante nel formers Memoris in Italian, which he thought proper to consuct that Strangely and the Bolitick Reflections to it He translated the Treatise of the Prince of Conts concerning the Duty of Great Men into Italian I ought not to forget the Chronological Tables which he publish d Those that have seen the House and Garden which he caus'd to be built no r kome, beated or that have read the Description which he made of 'em under the Title of willa Be- Rome nedicta literaria, must grant that he understood Architecture, and knew how to idorn nella Chiand imbellish a House He is the Author of the Decorations that he to be seen in a Luigi de Chappel Dedicated to St Lewis in the Church of the same Saint, which Chappel he Francest caused to be built almost from the Foundations |

B E N I (Paul) Professor of Lioquence in the University of Padua from the Year 1599 until his Death, which happend in the Year 1625 was one of the most copious

Cardinal of Lorrain had married one of his Bastards to Beme He calls him always Benvefius It is likely a fault of the Printer for Bemeļiu. Cauri-• ana, whom I shall quote here under, says, that that Man had been Page to the Duke of Guise the

(B) Much the same I let us relate what he says, for it contains some other Circumstances Speaking of the (a) defeat of the * Re stars commanded by Thore, Son of the Constable Anne de Montmorence, he says that Chevant was taken Prisoner there, And had it not been for the Credit of divers Lords his Relations (and because about the same time Besme, one of the chief murderers of the Admiral, as well for that as for other reasons greatly below d by the Duke of Guile, had been taken by those of the Reform d Religion near Ponts in (b) Poictou) he would hardly have sometime after he was conducted to Points. Java his Life Sometime after he was con-ducted to Paris, and much carried about to try if they could exchange him for Beme, but the he was in very great danger of his Life, being desir'd to agree to that exchange, he generously answerd, that he would never consent to be exchang'd for such a detestable Murtherer, and God favour'd him so much that having been put to ransom he was at last set at liberty, and Beme thinking to make his ofcape from the Castle where he was a Prisoner, was retaken, and cut in pieces, as he deserved, except that it was not done by the Hands of a Common Executioner (c) Coursans having faid in his Discourses on Tacitus that Beme shot the Admiral with a Pistol adds that that Murtherer was kill'd in the same manner sometime after, as he was returning from Spain Fu pochi anni dapoi venendo d'Espagna con semigliante spezoe de morte del suo fatto premiato. This Account is not so clear and so particular as it should be, but some other Writers have cleared the Matter

(C) With other (ircumstances] He says, (d) that Beme returning from Spain whither the Duke of Guise had sent him to buy Horses, or under that pretence to senew the Intelligences which the late Cardinal of Lorrain had kept with Phil p II was taken near Jarnac, that he offer d his good Offices to release Montbrun, and a very considerable Sum, but that his Proposals were not minded, and that on the contrary those that had taken him sollicited the Rochellers, to buy him of them for a thousand Pi stoles, and afterwards to punish him with the urmost severity for the infamous murther of the Admiral, that the Rochellers for fear of reputals, and by the Counsel of la Noue rejected those Offers, that Bretouville, Governour of Bouteville being unwilling to ransom such a Prisoner, and fearing that if he should put him to Death he would give an example that might have ill Consequences, found out an expedient, which was to suborn a Soldier of supply Beme with the means to escape. That Soldier and Beme made their escape accordingly, but they fell into the Ambuscades that Bretownile had laid for them, and Beme was kill'd with several stabs Mezeras (e) relates the Matter much in the fame manner He lays, that the Confistory of Rochel would have given 1000 Crowns for that Prisoner to have punished him publickly, but the wifest, and (f) Bertoville Governour of the (g) place apprehended a Province of the control of hended a Rataliation

PETER de St Romuald says, that the Rochellers desired to have Beme at the persuasion of la Noue, who would have put him to a severe and shameful Death, nus Breand that Beme being mortally wounded by Berto-tovilla ville, and afterwards killed by the Soldiers, was at last (g) That is fent to the Baron de Rufec at his great Sollicitation, who to sayof cans d him to be honourably buried at Engolefine, and Boutevilthat the Soldier who had endeavour'd to favour his escape,

D d d d 2 being

He 1 2 c 16 Eccl 1 16 rai Tom pag 380 edit 1685 brate in Roma al Cardinal Mazarina nella Chi-Anne of Auftria XIV † Intitled. quie celealla gloriofa memorin di Anna d Auftria Regina di Liancia I x Bibli-Romana Protp Mandofii cent 4 n

> (d) Thuan lib 60 ad ann 1575 pag (c) Mirein Hift of France. t 3 in fol pag 380 (f) Thus he calls him who in d Aubigne is call d Bertantville, and in Thuale

(a) In 1575 German Horse in the Service of Queen of Medi-CIS

(b) He Chould have Said Xaintonge

(c) Beza Hist Ecclef lib • 16 p 479

Odeiant autem universi morbofas quafdam anımı angustias quibus iple indolis haud ita liberalis referebat ındıcıa Imperial in Museo histor pag 160 In eo gymnafio crebris ıactaretur lei monibus male de Benn rebus actum fore. fi pactum lebrandum, vel duobus eidem in 1chola iua testibus contigislet egue Id † Taken from Paul Freherus, in Theatro, p 151 (a) St 1518 Romunld, Jour nal (bronolog at the 2411) of August p m 14 (b) Menth of December 1690 in the cutrast of the Life of Life compos d by Abbot de Charnes (1) In the Preface (d) It is taken hom the first Discourse of Paul Beni on the compa-> 1 Con of Homer, Vugil, and Taffo, Printed in th Year 1607 (e) Baillet, to 2 of the Anti, p 278 (f) Ibid

pag 279

y Nation, as it has been lately bino as many Persons assirm He Greek E Writers that flourish'd in his time faid, and he was not born at Eugubio in ir Society because they would lei He liv'd a long time among the Jesuits, 's Feast The obscenity of the Mat-h he desir'd The Reputation which not permit him to publish a Commentary ter oblig d them to refuse him the permission his Works procur'd him mov'd the Senate of his Works procur'd him mov'd the Senate of the chose him for the Successor of Riccoboni in the Chair of Eloquence, but he did not instructive the hopes that were conceived of him. He tir'd his Auditors with his long to Discourses, void of Matter, and pronounc'd in a languishing manner, which, the tir'd his Learning, and the pleasing manner wherewith his Collegue Vincent Contarini deliver'd his Learning, made his Auditors desert so fast, that sometimes there were not so many Persent in his School as are requir'd for the signing of a Contract. This did not discourse him from his Study, nor lessen his extraordinary application, to handle his Books and him from his Study, nor lessen his extraordinary application to handle his Books and his Pen One may easily be convinc'd of it by the great number of Books which he gave to the Publick, wherein there is doubtless a great deal of Learning, and Wit. He alone maintain'd a Quarrel gloriously against the Academy (Learning, which made him (C) formidable to many Authors The respect they have at Padna than Marrows of Law did not hinder our Rayl Ruy from according that Life in the Marrows of Law did not hinder our Rayl Ruy from according that Life is the law and have been according to the life in the for the Memory of Livy, did not hinder our Paul Bens from attacking that Historian with the utmost Vigor † Consult Morers's Dictionary, for I only mention what he

BLNNON, Bishop of Meissen in Germany in the XIth Century, was Canoniz'd by Hadrian VI The Bull of the Canonization dated the 31st (A) of May, 1523 grounds Bennon's Merit, First, on his having been the only Bishop of Germany that was time to the Court of Rome in the Quarrels between Gregory VII and the Emperor Hen-That Canonization had been a long time follicited at Rome, and perhaps it had never been obtain'd, it I uther had not shaken off the Pope's Yoke in that quod 19 IV fuisset ce- Death 1 me Country where the Body of Bennon lay But the Court of Rome thinking that the Institution of a new Saint, would muntain the staggering Faith of that Country, yielded at last to the instances of the Bishop of Meissen, who went to the Pope with powerful Recommendations from Charles V the Archbishops of Magdeburg and Saltz burg being grievously wounded, came off with a ransom, and was banish'd out of the Place (a)

(A) He was a Greek by Nation, as it has been lately said! I was surprie'd to find this affirmed in the (b) History of the Works of the Learned, and in order to know which of the two said so, either the Author of that Journal, or the Author of the Book mentioned by him, I consulted the Life of lasso, and found (c) these Words in it All the Luarned Mn in Italy have follow'd Paul " have follow'd Paul the Learned Mn m Italy That Learned Greek who Bent s Opinion unanimously came into Itily, made it appear in an elaborate Com-parison of the Poems of Homer, Virgil and Tasso, that the modern Poet had inclosed all the Beauties of the two ancient in his Work, withou imitating their Inuli: I thought it was a Mistake, for I knew that Tomasimi and Lorenzo Crasso affirm, that he was born it Eugubio, and he calls himicist Eugubinus in the I itles of some of his Books, and in the Inscription which he desired to be put on his Tomb. tion which he desir d to be put on his Tomb, and therefore I follow'd that Opinion in the first Edition of this Dictionary But I have been freed from my I rror by the Abbot de Charnes, and that in such a minner as ingages me to think my self happy for having said, that I besteem d and Honour d him very much He supply'd me with a (d) Pissing that does not permit me to doubt that our Beni was born in Candia. It is true that he was but a Child, when he came into Italy

(B) Aeainst the Academy della Cruica J Every Body knows that the Italian Dictionary of that famous Acidemy of Ilorince, is a Work of great moment Which was doubtless the reason why as (e) soon is it ippeared, it was tossid and ill treated in the Hands of is many Criticks, as it met with Readers But among others, Beni did not cease to city down that Work, and to declame against the Authors of it, as if they had been so many the Authors of it, as if they had been io many Monopolizers of the Italian Language He undertook to make it appear, that they had nei-thei the Sufficiency nor the Authority requisite to Decide in such a manner The Book which to Decide in such a manner. The Book which he published on that account, was printed at Padus in the Year 1613 in Quarto, under the Isle of Anti-Crusca, ô vero, il Paragone della Lingua Italiana, nel qual si monsto a charamente que l'antica sia inculta e rozza a la moderna regola, &c. Ihe Gentlemen (f) of the Academy chose to answer him with the Pen, intered of proceeding against him forme other way. flead of proceeding against him some other way But if we may believe Tomasim, that Method, which was, believe, the longest and the most perplexing, did not fucceed to their Honour For it occasion'd a furious Reply from Bent, who duc'd it as a Defence of the Anti-Crustian publish'd it under the Title of Il Cavacanti, 6 "upublish'd it under the Title of Il Cavacanta, 6

"vero, la Difesa del Paragone della Lingua Ita"liana, &c The end (g) of that Com"liana, &c The end (g) of that Com"bat was so glorious for Beni (in the Opinion of let, Ibid "Tomasini) that he obtain'd the Victory over all the Academy della Crusca, and was proclaim'd "Defender of the Italian Tongue Let us see the Words of Tomasini Italian Tongue Let us see the Words of Tomasini Italian Tongue Let us see the Tocantes & Dictionarian Italian and is dem editum, An (b) Tomasini, p ci, cumulate libro is seem altero sub Cavalcantis nominalini, p see seems des communes in a communication is seems altero sub Cavalcantis nominalini. ne satisfecit, seque a variis corundem jurgiis valide som i adeo vindicavit, ut toto orbi clarissimus acerrimusque italici Idiomatis Defensor suerii acclamatus It is said (1) that he obtain'd as grea. a Victory on those Gentlemen some time after, in defending (1) Bail Tallo against their Censures Taffo against their Censures

(C) Which made him very formidable to many Au- 128. 281 thors] He was furnmon'd to appear (k) at Rome on the account of the Book he publish'd on the matters de auxilius, without knowing them "What he fuffer'd from the Ecclefiaftical Judges," what he has but little wifer. He investigated made him but little wifer He inveighed ever fince against Authors of different Merit, without io much as sparing Livy So that he became the Terror of the Writers of his Time, fome of which durst not publish their Companions, for fear of exposing them to his uncharacteristics. (1) This is

(A) Dated the 31st of May 1523 We find the sough to fame Date in Morer's Dictionary But we there also, that Pope Adrian IV dispatch'd the sounds Bull, which 1. an unpardonable falsity Adrian IV that the Wirasles which he had don't The That the Call.

liv'd in the XIIth Century

(B) On the Miracles which he had done of the Fable of chief of them are, 1st, That the Keyning has Capegafus thedral, which he had thrown into the libe, has found after he had shut up that Church against the Emperor and his Ambassadors, were found in the Belly of a Fish, and carry'd back to the Prelate amount of the libe dry 3dly, That he Christians turn'd Water into Wine 4thly, That with a kick of his Foot he caus'd a (1) Fountain to spring up (m) Asthly, That he celebrated Mass in two places at one and the same time 6thly, That after his ckendors Death he came in a Dream, and put out an Eye of William Marquis of Missia (m) One may ealight guess, that Luther did not spare those Missian I in I fily guess, that Luther did not spare those Mi- ran ! racles

(1) Baillet

P 285

burg, and the Marquis of Misma Luther filent on that occasion, but publish'd a BTakenou freatise in High-Dutch, which he intitude the new Idol, and old Demon of Mcissen dorf the dorf the of the new Idol, and old Demon of Mcissen of Secken dorf , Hi Emfer writ sharply against than Treat hurch, a wonderful concourse of People theraussim, standing the Invectives of that Church, a wonderful concourse of reopie theranism colemnity, and he faid, it would continue 1 i pag hyunc'd of falfity, that of Bennon was confuted 285 franding the Invectives of that the Church, a wonderful concourse of People theranism, had assisted at the Ceremonic colemnity, and he said, it would continue 1 i page for ever His Prediction was confused 285 (D) at the same time a Experience of himself particularly concern'd to write upon + Ex eoths against Luther, for he had published the Life of Rennon in the Year 1512 wherein dem Seckamong other things he alledged divers Reasons, why the Bull of Canonization, had endorston the same received after so many Expansion and so many Salkaranase * the 286 not been nor yet obtain'd after so many Expences and so many Sollicitations. There is a strange mistake in Moreri's † Dictionary

BENSERADE || (Isaac de) one of the finest Wits of the XVIIth Century, the set of Lions I near Roan. He was born a Protestant, is appears by his Christian Remarks was of Lions 4 near Roan Name, but was not bred in that Religion, for he was but a Child when his Father turn'd Cathologic. The reason why the Bishop that confirm d him, did not take the # Thus he (A) Name of feac from him, is very singular. It is find, that his Ancestors (B) fign'd in a were very considerable. But every Body does not agree to that When his Fa which he

(C) His Prediction was soon convinced of falsity] The Inspectors or Visitors that were sent into Mistry Priests, that they should contorm themselves to the Confession of Ausburg, went a little while after to exhort the Canons of the Cathedral Church of Meissen to do the same. Their Dean Julius Pflug having conven d the Chapter, it was resolved, to leave matters as they stood Whereupon, they were enjoyn'd not to perform any Act of Religion in the Church, according to the ancient Ritual, and Bennon's Tomb was demolish'd, as an Object of Baalitick Idolatry (1) Behold then, a Worship, which instead of being eternal, as Emser had prognosticated, was but of fifteen Years continuance. A wife Man ought to be extraored Emser had prognosticated, was but of sisteen Years continuance. A wise Man ought to be extraordinarily reserved concerning things to come, even than the appearances are favourable, and I find to be pity'd, whose Profession requires that the should keep up the hopes of the People, for very often they are oblig'd to make Almanacks against their own knowledge.

(D) That of Bennon was confuted at the same time! His Life says, (a) That he declar'd when he was a dying, that he had obtain'd by his Prayers, that the Worship establish'd in his Carbon and finduld never cease. That Worship was singular, and was not to be seen in Rome itself. The Psalmody was so contrived in the Cathedral of Meissen, that every Hour of the Day and Night they sung the Praises of the Cathedral Court (b) Bennon dy'd like a false Prophet, it he declar'd when he was a dying, that this would always continue (A) Did not take the Name of Isiu from him, is very (A) Did not take the Name of Isiu from him, is very when I Benjerade was but Seven of Eight Years of when the Bishop that Confirm'd him ask d him, he would have his jewish Name chang'd for a more Christian Name? with all my heart, answer dhe, provided you will give me smothing to boot I he Prelite surprized with the Child's Wit, would not change his Name has to add the must be seen them he will make his Name, but faid, We must leavest him, he will make it very illustrious This particularity has been communicated to me by a good Hand, and I think, it will be found in the I ife of Benferade, done by the Abbot Tallemant, if ever it be Printed

THIS IS what I faid in the Year 1694 and my Canjecture has prov'd true That Discourse of the Abbot Tallemant, is to be found at the begiantity of Benserade's Works, Printed at Paris in the Year 1697, and in Holland 1698 The particularity I have mentiond, is to be found

(B) That his Ancestors have been very considerable, but every Body does not agree to that] It is the Custom when a Man is admitted into the French Academy, to make the Elogy of him to whom he succeeds Mr Pavillon Successor of Mr de Bensen rade, prais'd him nicely, See here in what manner he handled what concern'd his Extraction "This is (c) not a place where the Nobility of this illustrious Man ought to be diplay d Here the chance of Birth makes no Body to be e"the chance of Birth makes no Body to be esteem'd or despis'd Hence it is, that in the Funeral Pomp of the deceas'd Members, the Images of their Ancestors are not carry'd before them, we only take care to expose their Talents, and their Works to the publick View Let the Elogy of the deceas'd be adorn'd any with the Name of the ancient Lords of Maline, let others any where elie reckon among his Pre decessors, him who in the beginning of the last 18th of Century was great Master of the Artillery as May for us, we ought only to speak here of that 1685 I which made him admir'd in his Lite-time, and foundBeni of that which may make him admir'd after his feradde at Death

HLRE is what is to be found in the Discourse of the Abbot Fallemant 7h' Mr de Benserade poke but little of his Father, yet for all that he did not forget his Ancestors, whereof one had been Chamberlain of one of our Kings, and Castellan of the Castle of Milan On his Mother's side, he was related to the Vignancours, and to the la Portes, his Mother have the last Name which was that of the Milans. ther bore the last Name, which was that of the Mother calls him of Cardinal de Richelieu

Admiral de Bréze look'd upon Benserade as a Person be Benserade de State of the Works of the Work longing to him It is affirm'd in the I piltle Dedicatory of his Works, (d) that he had the honour to belong to the great Cardinal de Richelieu I defire you to compare all that with this passage of the what I have heard fay, "the Menagiana (e) By what I have heard fay, the Life
"Mr de Benserade was Son of an Attorney of Gi-Mr Bei
"fors, and I was much surprized when the Abstract bot Regnier read here tother Day Mr Pas fore his "villon's Speech which he made when he was admitted into the Academy, wherein he gives Mr de Benserade a magnificent Genealogy But I "Mr de Benserade a magnificent Genealogy But I "fhould not esteem him less if he was of a mean"er Birth The Learned ought to value them"felves for being the Sons of their own Works
"Mr de Benserade had a pretty House it Gentilli,
"and above the Gate of that House he had caus d
"a Coat of Arms to be set up, with in Larly Co"ronet, which he had given himself" Observe, that Mi Pavillon says nothing of what is mention'd by the Abbot Tallemant concerning Reasons. a mean- 1097 # tion'd by the Abbot Tallemant concerning Bense that Disrade's Ancestors, which makes one suspect that course they have follow'd some general Notions, for they would not sware to transplant for TV. would not swerve to strangely from Uniformity, it they had fellow'd Genealogical Titles well proved Whatever may be said of Benserade's Ancestors, whatever may be faild of Benjerale's Ancestors, his Father's obscurity cannot be doubtful Some (f) had heard say, that he was an Attorney of Gifors, and others, (g) that he had been Justice in Eyre His Son spoke but (h) little of him, tho he did not forget his Ancestors Would you have a greater proof of a mean Condition? Take no tice of another thing A great many Persons can prove their Father's Nobility better than that of their Grandfather, and if you would oblige them to prove that of their Great-grandfather, they would find it more difficult still Persus made use of that Observation It is quite contrary with Benserade He finds nothing that pleases him in his Father, or in his Grandfather, he finds his Nobility only in past Ages It is certain, that a no-ble Blood is sometimes like those Rivers (1) that fall into a Precipice, and having run some Miles Under-ground, rise up again The Genealogical Histories, which are commonly preceded by fabu- lemant lous time, are often interrupted by some periods of bi Supra obscure times. They are like Geographical Maps, init that contain iome Deferts, and unknown Countries (b) Id ib See how Mr Pavillen has been obliged to make a (i) See the leap of 150 Years to rejoyn two Illustrious Ends in Remark B, tiele Gentilis (Scipio) (k) Such is the Guadiana in Spain.

ib p 286 in aditiопе

RemarkA

which he ther did me the honour to mite to me the the end of the Epiftle Dedicatory of the Puof Job The Abbot [a] lemant Admiral always erson be- Bensseia-> concerning the Life of Mr Ben-Poems, edit of Paris land 1608 mant w the Author of (d) Printed at Pa-Charles de Serci in the Year

(e) Cor 11nuation of the Menagiani, p of Holland

(f) Menagiana, sbid

(g) Tallemant #-

(1) Ex dorfio 1bid lib 3 P 221

(a) In co

tamen maxime falfum effe apparet quod te-fte Emfero moriturus dixetit, preci-b is suis effettum effe ut cultus Ecclesia Misnensis perpetuus sit futurus Secken-dorf 1 r

pag lite-

(6) Ut nullum diei aut noctis compus Cantu & Deorum hymnis ac laudibus vacet Emferus apud Seckentilli.

> . (c) See the bistorical Letters of the Month 1692 g, 169,

* Tallemant.ib d †Menage, Anti-Baillet, tom 2 p 348 See also towards the end of the Remark D + See the Anti-Baillet, ibid

of the Article Gen-(Scipio)

(b) See the 21st and 24th Letters of the 9th Book of Í i itmus One of thomas ixted beliar 1499 and the Year 1498

(c) In the Table of Indmuss I etters

(d) Fraim 1bid See also epist 24 16 pag 3-3 (c) H ftor

ubi lupia P 171

(1) Su in he-

271 21 L (e) Intitula Arliquiniant I mno tell coc/ . > 15the to lay Arliquinian (than Arlequiman i. fine every body Ins Aileguin a Ai liquin

(h) Arlı-PAG 235 Holland

ther dy'd, be left bim very young, with a very final Estate, and very much cumber'd, so that be chose rather, asits said, to give it away, than to go to Law for it. He made himself known at the Court by his Verses and his Wit, and tratche good fortune to please Cardinal (C) de Richelieu, and Cardinal (D) Mazarin, so that they put him in a condition not only to live handsomely, but also to lay up something for his latter Years. He had $(D\Delta)$ some Pensions assign'd him \dagger on a Bishoprick, and of two abbeys, so that he might be look'd upon as \dagger a kind of a Clergy-man. The Queen Mother gave him a Pension of 3000.

the Family of Benferade (a) I shall make hereafter an Anrithesis of Persius's Verses in another sense I know not what to fay of one Nicelas BE NSE-

I know not what to lay of one lycologies BENDERADE to whom Erasmus (b) writ some Letters, and of whom he speaks (c) as of a very good Man, who had done him much good, and who had some Learning He is call'd (d) a CiviRemark B han Would our Mr de Benserade have plac'd him among his Ancestors?

(C) the good Fostune to please Cardinal de Richelicu J Mr Pavillon intoins us, that this Cardinal cauled Binserade to be I ducated (e) You have seen, tays he, in that worthy Mimber the fruit of the care which the great Cardinal de Richelieu took of his Education he there are Broth to some Land. cation, he that gave Birth to your Learned Assembly, can d his Youth to be taken care of, and as Men are only confel r d by you for their Wit, before you had associated him, he m bit have boafted that you were Children of one and the Jame Father I heie Words might make one think, that Einsteade was only known to this Cardinil as a very hopeful Young Man, who deterv d to much the more that chief Minister's Protection, because he was the Son of a converted Huguenot, but if we mind the Circumstances of the time, if we confider that the Cleopatra of Benferade was Printed in the Year 1630 we cannot doubt but that he had actually a share in Richelieu's esteem in the Quality of an Author, and of a fine Wit

(D) And Cardinal Mazarin | Give me leave to infert here a long Passage of a Book, the Litle whereof is somewhat surprizing (g) Many Readers will be well pleased to see it here without being oblig d to turn to another Book Beildes, fome of them may chance not to have the Aliquiniania in them may chance not to have the Aliquinania in their Cloiets (h) Your Story puts me in mind of a thing that made Benserade's Fortune, I have the from him Have you known him? Yes, said I, I convers'd with him till he dy'd He was the quickest Wit, and the most zealous Friend, that ever I saw, he was a good and gallant Man, and I will tell you one Day some particular things of him You know then, uply'd Arle"quin that Benserade came young, agreeable, and quin that Benf rade came young, agreeable, and tull of ment to Court. He apply d himself to Cudinal Mazanin, who lov'dhim, but with such " a friendship, as produc d no advantage to him Benjerade continuing to follow his Genius, made gallant Veries every Day, that gave him a great Reputation. The Cardinal being one Evening with the King, related to him after what manner he had had had a the following the foll where he had spent his Youth He faid, that he lov d Learning, but that his chief occupation was polite Learning, and cipecially Poetry, wherein he incceeded pretty well, and that he was in that Pope's Court, as Renferade was in that of France A while after, he went home to his Apartment Renscrade happen'd to come in an Hour after, and his I nends told him what an Hour ifter, and his I tiends told him what the Cardinal had faid, they had fearce ended, when binferade being fill'd with joy, left them bluntly without faying any thing. He ran to the Cardinal's Apartment, and knock'd as hard as he could to be heard. The Cardinal was just gone to Bed., Binferade was so pressing, and made so much noic, that they were oblig'd to let him in. He went and fell on his Knees, by the Bolster of his Emmence's Bed. and hav-by the Bolster of his Lminence's Bed, and having beg d a thousand Pardons for his rudeness, he told him what he had heard, and thank'd him with an unexpressible aidour for the Honour he had done him to compare himself to him, as to the Reputation he had for Poetry, adding withal, that he was so proud of it, that he could not contain his Joy, and that he should have dy d at his Door, if he had been hinder d to it. That Zeal pleas'd the Cardinal very much. He assure that him of his Protection, and the promised him the would not be nielest to

" promis d him that he would not be useless to " him, and indeed, fix Days after he sent him
" a Pension of 2000 Livres, some time after,

" he had other confiderable Penfions on Abbeys, " and he might have been a Bishop, if he would have been a Churchman" The Abbot Tallemant would not agree to this latter Fact following Remark

(DA) He had some Pensions given him] He obtain'd one from Cardinal de Richelicu, (i) from the time that his first Works appear'd it was continued to him till that Eminence's Death, and he might perhaps have found the Same Protestion with the Dutchels of Aiguilon, if the four following Verses which he made after the Cardinal's Death, had not offended her very much

Cy-gift, ouy gift par la mort bleu, Le Cudinal de Richelieu, Lt ce qui caule mon ennuy Ma pension avecque luy

That Pension was presty considerable, as I have been as-That Pension was pretty considerable, as I have been afford, which was a terrible loss for him, and which would have very much incommeded him, if it had not been made up by gnother of 3000 Livres, which the Queen Mother gave him. Let us admire here the power of the habit of Jesting. A Poet that turns himself that way would rather hazard his Fortune than lose the occasion of a Jest, even the most unnatural occasion, and the most opposite to Decency for what can be conceived more contrary to cy, for what can be conceived more contrary to Decorum than to Jest on the Death of the greatest Man that ever was in the Ministry of France? Besides, the thing is more odd still, when the Poet that jests on that Subject, had receiv'd a con-siderable Pension from the deceav'd I cannot blame the Dutchess of Asguillon for having supprest that Pension, She was less to be blam'd for it than Mr Benserade But let us proceed to the other Benefits wherewith that fine Wit was gratither Benefits wherewith that fine Wit was gratified Cardinal Mazarin procur'd him a (k) Pension (k) Talleof a 1000 Crowns on the Abbey of St Eloy and mant; ibid when he dy d left him a Pension of 2000 Livres on the Bishoprick of Mende Lastly, Benserade had yet another Pension of 2000 Livres on an Abbey of the Abbet de I quilles, call'd Haut-Villiers Besides this he had a yearly rent of 500 Crowns on the Town house of Lyon, and a great deal of Money He would willingly have had a Title, and it may be they would not grant him that savour, because he had not as would not grant him that favour, because he had not at first distinated himself wholly to the Church But if he didnot obtain that (1) which he HA') INSTANILY (1) I write DI SIR'D, he had some which he did not expet We this in Ca(m) are told afterwards how he received the 300 Piftols which the king sent him one Moining That Prince gave 10000 Livies for the Figures wherewith the Roundo's of Benserade on Ovid's Metamor photos ware allowed. phoies were adorn'd

The Abbot Tallemant says, It may perhaps be wonder d at, that being so well to pass as he was, he sested Talle-so much on his poverty But to answer this, we need on-ly distinguish the times are man as her fine ly distinguish the times, it was at his first coming to the Louring is the times, it was at his prit coming to the Author the Court. If the dates were well tearch'd into, it of the Arlimight perhaps be found that this apology is not night, and that Mr Benferade complain'd of Poverty even when he did not feel the inconveniencies that Benof it He would not be the only Poet that committed that fault, and it is an irregularity that does been a Bimore to be cenfured, than that for which Senges been a Bimore to be cenfured, than that for which Senges been a Bifloop, if he had been in the midst of an excessive opulency. It is better to do that, than to complain of being poor when one is in very good Circumstances. However it be, our Benferade is an example that may be alledged against the Author of a pretty Roundo, which I mention (n) elsewhere, and which begins thus, Le bel Esprit au secte de Marot His Veries made him attain to a pretty good fortune, and put him in a condition to be able to lend the Ladies a Coach and abid some Footman. Doubting he deserved a reward (n) fome Footmen Doubtless he deserved a reward, (n) In the but they should not have assign his Pensions on the Revenues of the Church, non hos quasitum munus terragains.

In usus See the Remark G of the Article Thomas Maim-There is no question to be made but that several bourg, p other Wits envied him, as well on account of his. 590 Goach, as because he had the advantage of dining Seq

mant, and ferade. would have willing Church-(m) Tallemant

Abbor Esprit That Samuet and made on Job Tallemant, abi fapra (5) Si tri-iti domicœnio Turani. potes efurire mecum Mart epigr 80 I 5 Scalfo ougr 78, lib 12 (a) Tallemant ib (d)Costar, Letter 165 of the 1st Vol p 480

pag 231 I Speak of the Colle-Etion pub-lish d by the Author of the Voyage into Spain (f) You will find # omong Sar-537111's Poems, p 86 of the

(e) 20m 5

(g) Mr Sallo in the Journal of the Learned of the 26th of January, 1664 p 48 edit of Hol-land edit of 1658 in

(b) It ts that which was rais d on the Joconde Mr de Bouillon Seeretary to the late Duke of Orleans, and on the foconde

(F) Mude by the Jesurferom Tarreron, and Prin-Tis an the 1689

ted as Pa-(k) That u to Say in judging bac in read

Livres, when the death of Cardinal de Richeline made him lose * that Entinence's Penfion. He frank the means to the at County who affilhance of the icoo Crowns of the Queen Mother, and by that of fine neb at theral Ladres, when he return'd thither atter the death of Admiral de Marie who the had followed in his Expeditions † I have read somewhere that the County and and the death of Job parallel'd with that of the Life of Urania gave occasion to speak the sound of the Sonnet (F) of Job parallel'd with that of the Life of Urania gave occasion to speak the sound of the Grant of the Fobelius disputing the ground with the faction of the Uranists' It is certain that that Dispute divided all the Court, and the Wits, and that some very Illustrious Persons declar'd † He was themselves against Voiture for Bon leade. The latter succeeded wonderfully in the Verthemselves against Voiture for Bonferade The latter succeeded wonderfully in the Ver- the Muchor fes (G) which he made for Interludes, but he miscarried in his Roundo's 44 upon Ovid of the Son-He was admitted somewhat late into the I rench Academy, lince it was in the Year Urania 1674, and he was then above 60 Years of Age He succeeded Chapelain in that place, and

Et je ne mange que chez moi J'en connois de plus miserables

This is the way of the ancient (b) Paralites Let us observe that this Sonnet was very improper at that time, for sickness and weakness obly d Mr de Benscrade, towards the latter end of his life, to din seldom abroad, and to make few vifits (c)

(E) Resolved to make sew votes (c)

(E) Resolved to depute him to the Queen of Sweden] I have resulthis in a Latter of Costar to the Marchioness of Lavardin Costar's words deserve to be set down, since they inform us that Benserade was not in very good Circumstances at that time It is an ill custom among ingenious Gentlemen not to date their Letters It Costar had dated his, we should know the Year wherein Benserade was to have had that Employment "You have (a) been " informed that the Queen fends him to Swe" den, and that he will fer out in a Week or 10 Days He has waited in vain a long time at Pa-the I don't know whether Stockholm and the Nor-thern Air will be more favourable to his I ortune than that of the Court has been I am fure that all the Ice and Snow of the North will not be able to put out that noble Fire that animates him, and that the presence of the bravest and most ingenious of Queens will inspire him with things worthy to be conceiv'd under a better Heaven and milder Climate" See in the Col-See in the Col-"Heaven and milder Climate" See in the Collection (e) of the fine Pieces of the French Poets the Jefts which that Ambashador made on the meanners of his Equipage Starren could not be filent on the miscarriage of that Deputation See how he dates an Epistle to the Counters de Ref-

L'an que le Sieur de Benserade

Nalla point a son Ambassade

This does not inform us neither in what Year it was I cannot tell why Mr Tallemant fays that iome body made those two Veries in his Gazettes, for Searron's Epistles ought not to be call'd by that Name

(F) His Sonnet of Job] That Sonnet and that of Urania occasion'd a world of Verses, that may be seen in the Collection of choice Pieces I believe that in all the course of that quarrel one of the finest and most ingenious pieces was the Glose (f) a Mr Esprit Sarrazin compos'd it he had declar'd for the Sonnet of Urania Balzas made a censure of those two Sonnets which is to hat the end of his Christian Socratis. When mins that cenfure, one cannot but fay that Joconde re some excellent Pieces that have great imof Mr de recording There are certain Beauties and Graces

There are certain Beauties and Graces that thine in such a mainter in the midst of the malts that escap'd the Author, that those Faults are not taken notice of But after all, I do not see that those two Sonnets pass at this time for the best Pieces of their Authors See what a good Critick (g) faid of them, Many Persons have concerned them-selves in that contest (h) and it is gone to such a bught, that considerable Wagers are laid in favour of the one and of the other Bus it is to be fear d that the Same thing may happen to those two pieces that happen d to those two Sounets which divided Parnassus into two famous Factions, under the wanter of Jobelins and Uranins For being examined more narrowly, they lost From deal of their worth and efficen
THE AUTHOR of the Epiftle that ferves for a Preface to the (1) new Translation of Persius and Juvines, relates a curious particularity which F cannor omit "Thus (1) a great Prince, who in Town One (w) of them compos'd a Sonnet "knew a great deal, but who had full a better with this Conclusion "tafte for good things, judy die well in two imall Edition of "Verses of the two famous bonnets, that formerly Holland" amused the whole Court and devided to the whole Co amused the whole Court, and divided it into two Cabals of sine Wits, whose Was was very innocent Voiture had some formidable Partisans, and so had Benferade but in tiuth the decision " of the Prince of Contr which Nature alone dictated to him, gave the cause to the Jobelins the Decree from which there was no Appeal

"Lun est plus grand, plus acheve,
"Mais je woudrois avoir fait lautre
The first veite concerns Voiture, and the second Benserade, who, I believe, was very well fatisfied with the wish of a Judge who was so much the "more incorruptible, that in reading the words which he made use of, every body perceives he judg'd without any partiality." The Abbot Tallemant makes no mention of those two Verses of the Prince of Conti, tho he fays, that the Prince faid he never faw a finer Sonnet than that of Job The end of it, faid his Highness, is the most lucky in the World, but the the other Verses are very galant, yet they rather seem careles than polished and finished Madam (1) de Longueville declared for the Sonnet of Voiture Note that Benserville deciar a for the Sonnet of Veiture. Note that Benserade made his Sonnet (m) upon his sending the Paraphrase he had composed on Job to a Lady, observe this I say, as a proof of the profane hience which amorous Poets give themselves Ought the Patience of Job, that Canonical, Divine, and Sacred Example, to serve for an introduction or a text to a declaration of Love. Ought not a Christian Poet to have more respect (m) Id ib for the Histories of the Bible? Ought he to have fet his Patience, and his pretended misery above that of 300, under pretence that he was in love, and durst not declare it? (G) In the Verses which he made for Interludes]

There was quite a new Invention in those Verses they (haracterisd at the same time the Poetical Deities, and the Persons that represented them The Author of the New from the Republick of Learn-The Author of the New from the Republick of Learning mentioned that Singularity by the by (n) Mr "de Benserade reid (a) a piece of his own making "that was wonderfully applauded It is an abridg d Picture of the forty Academists, as to their Per"fons, their Talents, Adventures and Fortunes "He speaks freely of every one of them, but with that ingenious and unimitable turn which he made use of in his verses for Interludes personally belonging to the Ladies and Lords of the Court that were to appear in the Entries." Mr Perrault (p) explained this much better Let us fee what he lays of it, 1 am going to speak of another kind of Poetry which has been added to the anci-I mean the admirable Verses that Mr de Ben-Setade made for the King's Interludes Heretofore when they made some Stanza's upon Jupiter, for instance, who the Ancimaking his entry strikes the Cyclops with his Thunderbost, those Stanza's spoke only of Jupiter as Jupiter, and not at all of the Person that represented him But Mr de Benserade turns his Verse; in such a manner

Mr de Benserade turns his Verse; in such a manner

edition of Mr de Benserade turns his Verses in such a manner that they are equally understood of both, and as the King genetally represented Jupiter, sometimes Neptune, and sometimes Mars or the Sun, that which is most admirable in them is, the nice praise which he gives him without addressing himself to him. The Person that is represented, and the Astor are both pointed at, which creates a double delight by giving two things to be understood at one time, which being sinne separately, become finer still being joyn'd together. I add a third, witness to those two, because he describes the Verses in question more fully in some respects, & because he suplies me with

made H See in

(1) Tallemaint ubi funra Hic relates some parconcerning the War of the Uranins and Jobelins

(n) Month of January 1685 PAG 37 day when Mr Cosmitted in to the Irench Academy

the Anci-Holland

a See the 4th part of that Count's Letters. Letter 91 B Tallemant, ub: Supra y See the Historical Mercury of Novemb 1691 pag 537 5 The Alıbot Tallemant, ubi fupra

Historic

Mercury, 26 x Abbot Tallemant,ibid » Ibid 3 See the 18th page of the 2d Case, and the 27th of the ,d of the edit of Hol-

(1) Colle-Ation of mitty Sayings, prin-ted by the

Cramosfi

1693 pag

of Holl

us ascrib d

Calliere of

to Mr de

the French

Academy, and Plene-potentiary

of France

Treaty of Ryswick

(a) Tal-lemant, ubi Supra

at the

made an Elogy upon him which displeas'd a the Count de Rabutin, and which was rather an Homage paid to Custom, than an effect of Sincerity Some Years before his Death, he sapply'd himself to Psome Works, and Translaved almost all the Psalms Which is another Homage paid to Custom, but with may also proceed (Ga) from a good says that another Homage paid to Custom, but with may also proceed (Ga) from a good says that Principle He a dy'd in the Month of November 1691. in his 82d Year, others say, benterade of Orleans, and an Apartment in the Royal Places. He had a Pension from the Duke of Orleans, and an Apartment in the Royal Places. He was a very Honest Main, and of an admirable Conversation, having a good species (H) in Jesting, and telling that in the Psalms which oblig d him to deal familiarly with those of the first Quality, so that he might say what he would without being contradicted, nay, he seem'd to have an ascendant over the most substitute, considerable Persons. Nay, his samiliarity was something imperious; for he was whereby he not contented with taking the liberty of contradicting others, but could not suffer his own Compositions to be criticized, and defended them so conceitedly, that those very Persons whom he seems of seems and confulted could not speak their Thoughts without exposing themselves to his anger He was n since and ill seems all the second substitutions at the second substitution of successions at the second second success to his anger He was n since and ill second success and very officious, especially to the Ladies, for his Coach and his Servants were always at their an ill cere, and very officious, especially to the Ladies, for his Coach and his Servants were always at their an Service He was not Learned (K), but I would not alledge as a proof of his Igno- Taffe, E-rance that he could not tell one Day what difference there is $(K\triangle)$ between the Ha- quivocarimadryads and the Dryads He began early to appear in Print, for it is faid, that his Puns Tragedy of Cleopatra was printed in the Year 1630 which made some fig, that he was goes on more (L) than a Jubilate Author Furetiere abus'd him too much in his Cases s Sarrasin had a sling at him in the Funeral Pomp of Voiture. It is he, whom he calls Rousselin de with a proof of two following Remarks (1) We have loft, lays he, a fine Wit, who excell'd in the Art of jesting nicely and agreeably, both in his Converfation and in his Writings, especially in the Ingenious Versos of Interludes, which he made several Years for the whole Court He was an Original in that kind, the Ancients have not supply d him with any Model of that Sort of Jesting, and no Body has hitherto Succeeded in imitating them He joyn d to the description of the Gods and Goddesses, and other Persons that were represented in those Interludes, some lively and natural Pictures of the Courtiers, who represented them He often discover'd their Inclinations, their Amours, and even their most private Adventures in so sine, so pleasing, and so nice a manner, that those whom he pointed at, were the first that were pleat'd with it, and that his Jests did not affect them with any Resentment, or Grief, which is an essential sign of their perfection. See also the first Letter of the Second part of the Count de Rabutin, and the Discourse of the Abbot Tallemant. In that Discourse you will find, that Benserade had a Quarrel with the President de Perigni, and with Moliere, who had both made Verses for Interludes Which shews that he desir'd to be the only Person that should be imployed in that Business.

(G△) Which may also proceed from a good Principle] am the more inclin'd to believe this proceeded from a good Principle in Mr de Benserade, because his submission to GOD was very great during his last Sickness Let us quote the Abbot Tallemans aft Sickness Let us quote the Abbot Tallemans or it "(a) No Man could begin his Life with more Gallantry, nor end it with more Piety, or a greater Submission to the Will of GOD than Mr de Benserade He suffer'd such violent Pains, that Job, whose Patience he had celebrated, did hardly suffer any sharper, they were so terrible, that one of a less lively Temper, and much less standards and much less standards. fensible than he was, could not have been able to bear them

(H) Having a good success in Jesting] A Passage which I have just (b) now quoted, thews that he was Master of that Talent Here is another Tefilmony taken from the fame Author It is a Tefilmony that may be call'd praffical, for it confifts in an Example 'A (c) Courtier was fuf"pected of being Impotent, and would not own
"it, he met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the contract of the second of the perferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had often jeer d him
"the met Benferade, who had of "about it, and told him, Sir, notwithstanding all your poor jesting, my Wife is lately brought to "Bed Alas, Sir, reply'd Benserade, the World never doubted of your Lady" You may find some of his Wittissins in the Continuation of the Menagiana, and in the Discourseof the Abbot Tallement

(1) Without making them angry] Nothing is more true than this Saying, Obsequium amicos, werimore true than this Saying, Objequium amices, veritas odium parit, that is, Friends are got by Complaisance, and Enemies by Speaking Truth They therefore, who know how to make Truth appear without such an odious look, which commonly attends it, must needs have a very singular Dexterity This was the Talent that Benserade was praised for by his Successor What a menderful (d) Address, to make the most passionate Men bear Jessing, and to praise the Modest, without offending their Modesty, to Speak the Truth choly adneft, without oftending their Modelty, to speak the Truth chois adin the midst of the Court, without projudicing his Fortune, ventures and to divert those very Persons whose faults he reproved A upon him, lovely Critick, whose ingenious Verses being pure'd from which the Gall of Satyr, found the admirable Art of reproving served for every Body, and offending none Mr Pavillon cannot a date to be accused of having overstrain'd the matter, tho' some burwhat is said in some Cases (e) should be true for lisque Gathere is no such general Rule, but will admit of zettes In an exception 'Tis the Author of the Cases who have be suspected of overstraining things may be suspected of overstraining things of the 3d (K) He was not Learned This was so well Gase he known, that no scruple was made to own it, says, that when Mr Pavillon was admitted into the French the scanda-Academy, a Day favourable to Mr Benserade, lous List wherein they were rather disposed to give him more than his due, than to take from him what belong'd to him See here how Mr Charpentier exprest himself in the Answer he made to the new express himself in the Answer ne made to the new Academist The Society has loss one of its Ornaments cademy, in Mr de Benserade He was an original Wit, and and white ow'd all his Reputation only to himself He equals dhe had to the Ancients, without borrowing any thing of them, rashness in NEITHER WERE THEY VERY read publicably in WELLKNOWN TOHIM, and if any lickly in of their Thoughts have appear'd in his Writings, it was rather an effect of Chance than of Imitation He He Solemn ASshew d that one could make still something new under the Sun, and this Character of Novelty was so natural to him, that as soon as he would for sake it, he was no more the same Man, and the Correspondence which he keps with the Graces remain'd interrupted, when he follow'd other Ideas than his own I do not wonder things that that this want of Erudition was not suppress, they drew for it afforded matter for a nice and refin'd upon him

(K) To tell what difference there is between the Hamadryads and the Dryads | The thing is this We shall see that he came off with a wirty Jest (f) Being one Day at the Opera in the Box of the Duke of Orleans the King's Brother, the Dut-cheis of Orleans, ask'd him, What difference there was between the Hamadryads and the Dryads? He found himself much perplex'd; but not thinking it fit to be long filent, and perceiving that an Archbishop and a Bishop waited for the Dutches's going out, he faid, There was as much difference as between the Bishops and the Archbishops. This set them immediately a laughting and the Dutches's repeating it the name laugh. "archbishops I his let them immediately a laughing, and the Dutchess repeating it the next Day at her Tollet, and some Body looking upon a "Clergy-man that was his Friend, said, pointing at him, Tour Highness may make him a Dryad, and "a Hamadryad, when ever you are pleased to go about "it seriously Mr Benserade's perplexity in this Case, does not seem to me a true sign of Ignorance, for I am sure, that the (g) Question of the Dutchess of Orleans, would have put several profest Teachers of Orleans, would have put several profest Teachers to a stand Those things are better known at the going out of a College, than after having grown old in more losty Studies

The College of the College

thus, They hav drawnsome Grenade shreats and melanlous List which Benferade had made of the Aand which he had the rafbness to read pub-the threats of a Per-Jon of great concern d in them To that note withfiandang his im-

Semblies, contain'd

Such abu-

OUTTARROUM

blig'd to suppress it, for the love

mant, shi

(L) That he was more than a Jubilate Author] This Dryades Expression is borrow'd from the Cloysters A Monk

(b) In the RemarkG

(1) Colletrion of witty Sayings, pag 24, 25 (d) Pavillon s Speech made to the French Academy See Hiftorical Letters, Month of February 1692. PAZ. 170 of that Name because Benserate was (L1) Red-hair'd, and because he us'd to say in jest, and by reason of the resemblance of Names, that he was descended from the Abencerrages *. It appears by this Chapter of Sarrasin, that Benserade had supplanted Vostike Pen in the House of Madamide (M) Saintot I was in hopes to have found many of a Copy things relating to the Life of Name Benserade in the † Collection of the finest Pieces of the French Poets The Title Assured in the † Collection of the sinest Pieces of the French Poets The Title Assured in the † Collection of the sinest Pieces of the French Poets The Title Assured in the † Collection of the sinest Pieces of the French Poets The Title Assured in the † Collection of the sinest Pieces of the French Poets The Title Assured in the † Collection of the sinest Pieces of the French Poets The Title Assured in the † Collection of the sinest Pieces of the French Poets The Title Assured in the † Collection of the sinest Pieces of the French Poets The Title Assured in the † Collection of the sinest Pieces of the French Poets The Title Assured in the † Collection of the sinest Pieces of the French Poets The Title Assured in the † Collection of the sinest Pieces of the French Poets The Title Assured in the pieces of the French Poets The Title Assured in the † Collection of the sinest Poets In the Margin of a Copy of the French Poets The French Poets The French Poets The French Poets In the Margin of a Copy of the French Poets The French Poet nade in the third Chapter of the great Chapter of the noble Vetturius, and he makes use "Ifound way to Italy, he lodg'd (C) at his House, and receiv'd many Favours from him We learn well what thereby that Berauld liv'd at Orleans Some say, he was (D) born there, but others past as Pa-

(a) See Furetiere at the word Jubile

(6) Ibid

(c) Menagiana pag 335 of the 1st edit of Holl

(d) Abbot Tallemant, ubi Supra 🚜 (e) It is likely the Same that Mr Menage calls Cleopatra

(f) Du Cheines. Antiquities of the Towns of France, p m 296

(g) Tal-lemant ubi supra

(b) See the Marginal Note * of this page

(1) Vita Gasp Colinii p 33 edit

A Monk of Fifty Years profession, is a Jubilate Religious, who is excus'd from Matins, and the rigors of the Rule, in some places (a) The Convents have form'd that Expression on the duration of the Jewish Jubile, which was of Fifty Years (b) See how Mr Menage proves that Mr Benserade was more than a Jubilate Author He supposes that the Cleopatra of that Author was printed in the Year 1630 and then he goes on in this manner, "(c) He dy'd in the Year 1691 aged Eighty Years "So that he made that Piece 61 Years ago, and I suppose, that he was at less Twenty Years of Age when he made it Moreover, it is to be observed, that a Piece for the Stage, was seldom printed until a Year after it had been acted the printed until a Year after it had been acted the first time

LET US add to this, these Words of the About Tallemant "(d) He was scarce come out of the College but he gave two or three Drama tick Pieces, I have seen two of them, whereof bot Tallemant one was Intituled, Iphus and Hiente, and the other (e) Marc Antony, both of them had a pretty good success But if he lov'd Comedy, he lov'd no less the Actresses, and it is said, that with the late Marquis d'Armanieres, who was then an Abbot, he lest the Sorbonne, where their Parents would have them to study, and want almost avery. Day to the Hard de Raugeres. went almost every Day to the Hotel de Bourgogne, where they met their Mistresses, who were la Valiote, and the fair Roze"

Mr Menage is mistaken when he says, our Author's Cleopatia was printed in the Year 1630 and I wonder, that having fo many opportunities at Paris to know the truth of the matter, he neglected to enquire about it, oi to imploy, in order to find it out, some of the Young Men, who frequented his Club By chance a Copy of the first Edition of Benserade's (f) Cleopatra, full lately into my Hands, and by that means, I know that it was printed by Antony de Sommaville in 4° and the first Impression was finish d the 29th of March 1636 (Mac) Benserade was Red-hair'd The Abbot Tallemant believes that Benserade lov'd the fair Roze,

(g) because of the likeness of the r Hair Her Hair was of a lively fair colour, as for him, he confest freely that hewas Red-hair'd and call dhimself so, and thereupon compar'd himself with some of the greatest Lords of the Court, without troubling himself whether it would please them or not

(M) In the House of Madam de Saintot] Sarrazin expresses himself thus How Vetturius came to the Court of Queen Lionelle de Galle How he fell in Love with her, and how he was driven from thence by the Intrigues of Hunault d' Armorique, and of Roui-felin de Gianade The Manuscript Notes of my Copy (b) informs me, that Madam de Saintot was denoted under the Name of Lionelle de Galle, because of Gaillonet, her Father's House Mr de la Hunaudaye, who was a Breton, was denoted by Hunault d'Armorique

(A) He was Tutor to Admiral de Coligny] See the proof of it here Natus est hic Gaspar anno MDXVII mensis Feb die XVI qui cum puer indolem virtutu atque ingenii mirificam oftenderet, mater cum patre mortuo bonis literis ab ineunte atate imbuendum curavit eique Nicolaum Berauldum, qui tum eruditionis laude in Ultraject primus totius Gallia florebat praceptorem attribuit (1)
The ancient Life of that Admiral fays no more of it, (k) Life of but that which was publish'd in the Year 1686 hath more circumstances It informs us, that (k) Bersule Coligny, was first of all made Tutor to Odet the eldest, who having a-bundance of Wit, made a great progress under so good as Manual and Sundance of Wit, made a great progress under so good as ford fter Afterwards he was also Gaspar's Tutor, and did not find bim of a more penetrating Wit, for few such were found, but lession is in of a Spirit more disposed to Obedience, so that in a little 5 Volumes, time, he not only taught him Latin, but also Philosophy The Author As Mr de Montmorency, who was but newly made Con- of the Me-fiable, lov'd his lifter and her Children, he found some mous and time, notwith standing his great Occupations, so take care loying of of the Education of his Nephews, wherefore he order d Spain pu-Betauld to come to him regularly once a Week, and to blish'd it at give him a true account of that the should observe in Puis in them, whether it was good or bad Now Berauld being the Nar come to him, according to his command, and having 1692 told him, that he was more satisfyd with Gaspur It was prethan with Odet, The Constable took the one for the o-sently rethan with Odet, The Constable took the one for the o- lently rether, and bad him to find a remedy for it, because pointed at he would have Gaspar to be a Clergyman, and Amster-Odet, as the eldest to keep up the Honour of his Fami-dam ly Berauld being surprized with this Answer, ask'd him, Whether it was requisite that a Clergyman should be ignorant, and a Man of the World learned That Discourse of Berauld, made the Constable perceive that he had missays the matter, and he made

ble perceive that he had mistaken the matter, and he was very well pleas'd to hear that Calpar was so well dispo-Sed for Learning, and that there was reason to be to sope some-thing good of him But Berauld having related that Conversation to his Scholar, he was so a fraid of being made a Churchman, that they could no longer make him look into a Book

(B) Eraimus praises him in more than one place] What he fays of him in his Ciceronianus, is a nilature of good and evil, for (1) if on the one hand he allows him the Talent of Speaking well, he fays on the other hand, that he had not the Talent of Writing well, and reprefents him as a lary Man In the following Remark the praifes he gives him are more pure, and in greater number observe, that he Dedicated his Book de conscriben on dissembles to him in the Year 1522

(C) He lode dat his Housel Let us set down the

(C) He lodg'd at his House Let us fet down the whole passage, it will afford us a Criticism upon the Modern Historian of Admiral de Coligny (m) Nicolaus Beraldus lepide nimirum hospitalis tesserameminis in subscriptione sua Nam memini cum olim essem Auresta Italiam adituris me hominis hospitio u-Sum, atque apud eum dies aliquot sane quam benigne comiterque habitum Etiam nunc audire mihi videor linguam illam explanatam ac volubilem, suaviterque tinnientem & blande canoram vocem, orationem paiatam ac pure fluentem videre os illud amicum & plurimum humanitatis pra se ferens, supercilii nibil mores vonustos, commodos, faciles minmeque molistos quin Enterulam sericam velut apophoretum obtulit abituro, vixque ab homine impetravi ut liceret recasare. That Letter is dated the 21st of Feb 1516 from whence it may be inferr'd, that Berauld was not young, when he was made Preceptor of the Sons of the Marshal de Chatillon But how shall we reconcile that volubility of Tongue which Erasmus, an Ear Witness, m 74 bility of Tongue which Erasmus, an Ear Witness, ascribes to him with these tollowing words? (n) (m) Idem
The Admiral had two things in him that seem'd excepts 14 tremely opposite, (VII) a great vivacity of Wit, and 1 1 p 56 a very slow Speech, so that one would have said, that he must dupon what he was going to say The Politicians would have it to be a piece of Cunning to gain t me to (n) Life of observe those with whom he had to do

It is Gaspar much more likely, that it was a fault which he had de Colig-contrasted by frequenting his Master Nicolas Berault, in ny, p 18 whom the same thing was observed

(D) That he mat have at Orleans 1 Nicolas Berault.

(a) See also Recolles page 214 of the true History of Calvinism I shall set down the World in the Calvinism I shall set down his Words in the following Quotation in the Margin

† This colof the Menunguam nervos intendit fudo quam icupto felicior Quid pofdivino. fed eff magni Ia m 74 pears by a

Ant Fayus in vita Be-22, p 14 & Melch

Adam in vita Stucku quand

¿ Colomes ibid P 55

* Ib and pap 38 Seethe Letter that Beza writ to him , it es the 71st of those of Beza

t Colomes ib p 22 40

| Held at Sens

1 It 15 printed with the It ooks of Abelard at Paris 1616

(a) Rocolles truc Hiftory of Cilvinilm p colas Berauld of Oile ins a great Ci-· lian Gelner speech of Beruld de juris prudentia ictere ac

Hudouin oblaves w threafon tiat the foft זורשו פולשו upon Pliaffirm, he was (E) of Languedoc He. (F) upon Plry, of which Father Hardopears by a Letter from Budeus so Eraimus It u the logue of fome other (G) Pieces which he public for the abuses of the Press. Doubtless the Reader will be well pleas'd to Complaint, and the Catalogue of some other (G) Pieces which he public for the abuse of the Press. Lated whereby it appears that he was (H) an hour lated whereby it appears that he was (H) an hour lated whereby it appears that he was (H) an hour lated whereby it appears that he was (H) an hour lated whereby it appears that he was (H) an hour lated whereby it appears that he was (H) an hour lated whereby it appears that he was (H) an hour lated whereby it appears that he was (H) an hour lated whereby it appears that he was (H) an hour lated whereby it appears that he was (H) an hour lated whereby it appears that he was (H) an hour lated whereby it appears that he was (H) an hour lated whereby it appears that he was (H) an hour lated whereby it appears that he was (H) an hour lated whereby it appears that he was (H) an hour lated whereby it appears that he was (H) an hour lated whereby it appears that he was (H) an hour lated whereby it appears that he was (H) an hour lated whereby it appears that he was very much efteem'd lated whereby it appears that he was (H) an hour lated whereby it appears that he was (H) an hour lated whereby it appears that he was (H) an hour lated whereby it appears that he was (H) an hour lated whereby it appears that he was (H) an hour lated whereby it appears that he was (H) an hour lated whereby it appears that he was (H) an hour lated whereby it appears that he was (H) an hour lated whereby it appears that he was (H) an hour lated whereby it appears that he was (H) an hour lated whereby it appears that he was (H) an hour lated whereby it appears that he was (H) an hour lated whereby it appears that he was (H) an hour lated whereby it appears that he was a first lated whereby it appears that he was a first lated whereby it appears that he was a f from wence he went to Rochel's to exercise the like Imployment He was a good Greek and Latin Poet † It is not necessary to say that he was a Protestant Translated some Books (1) of Appear

BLRENGARIUS (Peter) of Postsers, Disciple of Abelard, especial his Master's Interest very much, who was condemn'd by a || Council in 1140, and because he look'd upon St Bernard as the chief cause of his Condemnation, he writ most violently against him He publish'd an 4 Apology for Abelard, wherein he says, that his Enemies prepu'd the Judgment of the Tryal being in their (A) Cups, and that the

(E) Others affirm, that he was of Languedoc]
"Their Mother Louise de Montmorency being assisted ed with the Advice of her Brother, took care of s Ib pag, "their Education, and gave them Nicolas Berault born in Languedoc for their Tutor, but he had learn'd "Literature in Paris, whither he came very young These Words are in the 8th Page of the new Life of the Admiral Gesner might have been deceived by the long abode that Berauld made at Orleans, where he was Professor (a) of the Civil-Law, if I am not mistaken

(F) He Writ upon Pliny] He is the third of the Commentators on that Author, mention'd by Erasmus Hermolaus Barbarus is the first (b), Budeus the second, and John Casareus the fourth Post hunc (Budæum) Nicolaus Beraldus, homo supra peritiam humanarum literarum, Mathematices etiam pulchre callens, quodque hic vel præcipuum erat sani judicii, non minore studio quam religione versatus est in hoc labort Nuper omnium postremus Joannes Casareus in omni genere literarum exercitatissimus, non inselicem operam prasititi (c) Erasmus spenks thus in the Presace to Pliny, which was printed at Basil by Froben, in the Year 1525 life assures, that he had corrected many passages and that Pliny had never appear'd in the transfer and that Pliny had never appear'd in a better condition (d) In cateris item ita vigilatum of, ut meo periculo non dubitem policeri nunquam liaticinus exisse Plinium felicius trattatum Neverthe-leis lathei Hardouin itys nothing of that Lelition, and he only teckons (afariu, (so he calls him) among those that wit on pait of Plin, He only y nicribes to him fome Scholia on what concerns ly iscribes to him some Scholla on what concerns lishes in the 9th Book Mr Chevillier goes then too far in these Words of the 191st Page of his Origine of Printing at Paris, I wonder a when I saw that (c) nothing was said there of John Criticus, and that no mention was made there of his Work, neither in the Preface, nor in the List of the chief Editions of that samous Author that was put in the first solume. This famous Author that was put in the fift tolume. This will serve for a Note or an Appendix to what is find concerning Berauld's omission in the Lext of the Article

(IA) His Complaint of the Abuses of the Press] "(f) tames Fontaine Professor of the Civil-Law in the University of Paris does very much approve the Counsel that Nicolas Berauld gave to Sovereigns to redreis that evil, and to make some " Ldicts to remove all those from the noble Art of Printing, that for want of Learning should be judg'd uncapable of exercising it, Quare prudentissime in Prafatione operis sui Pliniani admonet longe eruditissimus Nicolaus Beraldus, ut aliquo publico decreto insolentissima ista ignorantum Impressorum audacia reprimatur, quibus hoc debemus studiosi, quod pro unaquâque literă invenimus plagam, pro billaba crucem, pro libro tormentum Sed rei indigni tas, que loqui compulit, etiam tacere cogit. These Words of james Fentaine, are to be found in the I logy which he made upon Bertholdus Rembolt a famous Printer (g) It is to be read in the Sexte of John Andrew Valeriensis Antistes in Corsica I believe it shou d be Aleriensis (c) Eraim Præsit in Plin It is printed among his it is in the 28th Book p 1682 (d) Ib p 1683 (e) That is in it her Hardoum's edition (f) Chevillier's Original of Printing p (~) Id ub

the Decretals, printed by Chevalon in the Year 1520
(G) Some other, Pages which the gualish'd | Here are those which Give manifest to Dislogue quo rationes explicantur quites dismission to Dislogue quo rariones explicantur opto disende ex tempore facultats paran potest deque ips a disende ex tempore facultate, at Lyons 1824. Lyons 1534 De Jurifrudentia vetere ac novitia ora-tio, cum erudita ad antiquorum lestionem ac studium ex-bortatione, at Lyons 1533 Notes on the Rusticus hortatione, at Lyons 1533 Notes on the Rusticus and on the Nutricia of Politian It is true, that Gesner (b) is not positive, as to this last Work Gejner (h) is not politive, as to this fait work
Jodocus Badius dedicating the 2d Pait of Politian's Works to Lewis de Berquin in the Year 1512, aw Francis excuses himself as well as he can for not having aff Nuyet printed the most learned, and most felia Bessel tricia that Berauld had compos'd against Laurentius Palls, scripfisse, and dedicated to his good Friend Lewis de Berquin si benè
(1) The Catalogue of the Bodleian Library mentions a memini Distionarium Grace-Latinum Nicolai Beraldi, printed at Gesn ubi Paris in the Year 1521 and another Book intituled supra

Syderalis abysus, printed in the same place in 1514

(H) That he was an honest Man] Madam de Chatillon and her Brother the Constable de Montmorency Rocolles

True Hist had a mind to mike a Churchman of Gaspar di Co-true Hist ligny, and knowing from him that it was against of Calv p his Inclination, his ender'd Berault to instinuate their 214 when the light of the li pleasure to him, thinking that as he had all along go-ven d his youthful Spirit, he knew better how to riduce him than any Body else They represented to him that his Scholar might forget him in the Protession of Arms, but that in an Ecclefiaftical State he of Acrauld would always fland in need of him, and load him wee, De la with Benefices They could not take a more cunning way to make him do what they would But Berauld, who was more bouest than interested, instead of using all the endear ours which they hoped, shew d him only the advantages of the Dignity of a Cardinal, and at the fame time shew d him also the dangers of it, and advis d him not to ingage in it against his Inclina-

(1) He Trinslated Some Books of Appin] Hem? Suphens mide choice of him to I ranflate Americal Wars, and those of Spain, (1) Sigut holes dues to be las a me ex Italia (uti dixi) allatos primu editi, 123 asiam primus latine vertendos curavi, O quidem deletto ad id munus viro Graca lingua non parum perito, paga muce de cifco Beraldo Aureliancusi He shews in his Nesses Coligny why he preterr d Francis Berauld's Franflation be-fore that of Calius Secundus Curio

(A) In their Cups] A more Satyrical Description cannot be seen than that which Berengarius made of the Preliminaries of that Synodal Judgment He 1135, that after the lathers of the Council had well phanus a eat and drank, they caus'd Peter Abelard's Writing Pract. As to be read to them In the time of reading, they stamp'd with their Feet, they laugh'd, they jeer'd, they drank, and when they heard any thing that was not usual to their Ears, they gnash'd their Teeth against that Author, and ask'd each other. If they should suffer such a Monster to live. They had drank so much that they fell assess. They had drank so much that they fell a-sleep, so that when their Reader met with some suspicious Passages, and ask'd, If they did not condemn it? They started out of their sleep, some crying, damnamus, and others only half the Word, name Berengari-Ber engarim's Words have a greater force than mine, there-

214 where he says, that the Tirle of that Work fectimination contre L aurens Valla, Antoine de Palermc & Bar thelomi Licius

(1) 1'0 life of Ad-$686 pa 10, 11

11cus Ste

Accus'd seeing the ill disposition of (B) his sudges, desir'd that his Cause might be "See the referr'd to the Pope; that nevertheless the Condemn'd him, and that St. Bernard preposses's the Holy Father with so much diligence, that Abelard was speedly Condemn'd at Rome, without (C) being heard, and even without giving him time to ap- † (Viz) pear before the Tribunal to which he had appeal'd Upon this, the Apologist relates the Reasons that might be alledg'd for Sa Bernard, (viz) That the zeal of GOD's House east bim up, that the Leprosy which dissolve Body of the Church, would have spread all over, if the Evil had not been stifled in sits with, and that to save the Readers the trouble of running over several Volumes, it had been thought sit to save a short List of Abelard's remissions. Proprietates over several Volumes, it had been thought fit to give a short List of Abelard's pernicious Pronitatem positions. He that made those Extracts, cannot be excused, and whether St Bernard chitas, oalone was at the trouble of doing it, or whether, besides the Propositions extracted riginem by him, he produc'd those that others supply'd him with, it is certain, that that Pas- er sidefage of his Life, does (D) little honour to his Memory The Lift which he produc'd contain'd some things which Abelard had * never said nor written, and some loquin The Lift which he pro- reamflore things which Abelard never understood according to the sense that was imputed to him nunding This is what the Apologist intended to shew in the second Part of his Work, but he ris Quod did not (E) write it, and he had some reasons for it. In the mean time he gave some consequences in the second Part of his Work, but he ris Quod did not (E) write it, and he had some reasons for it. St Bernard to understand in the first Part of his Work, that he should not persecute hujus veothers on account of their Doctrine, fince his Writings were not free from Errors condition. He maintain'd against him, That he had taught a † thing which he would not have reperfiles, fail'd to insert as a monstrous Doctrin in his Extracts out of Abelard, if Abelard had dubium fet dubium fore give me leave to fet 'em down He apply'd the Thoughts of the ancient Latin Poets very prettily Post aliqua Pontifices insultare, pedem pedi applodes e, ridere, nugari conspiceres, ut facile quilibet judicaret illos non Christo vota persolvere sed Baccho Inter hæc salutantur cyphi, pocula celebrantur, laudantur vina, Pontissicum guttura irrigantur Letkæi potio succi Pontissicum corda jam sepelierat Ecce inquit Satyricus,

Inter pocula quærunt Pontifices saturi quid dia poemata narrent Denique cum aliquid subtile divinumque sonabat quod auribus pontificalibus erat infolitum, audienses omnes diffecabantur cordibus suu, & stridebant dentibus in Pe-trum, & occulos talpa habentes in Philosophum, hoc inquiunt sineremus vivere monstrum Cujus (Vini) calor ita incesserat cerebris, ut in somni letargiam oculi omnium solverentur Inter hac sonat lettor, stertit au-Alius cubito innititur ut det oculis fuis somnum, alias Super molle cervical dormitionem palpebris Suu molitur, alius super genua caput reclinans dormitat litur, alius super genua caput reclinans dormitat Cum itaque lector in Petri satus aliquod reperiret spinetum, surdis exclamabat auribus Pontissam, damnatis? Tunc quidam vix ad extremam syllabam expergesacti, somnolenta voce, capite pendulo, damnamus ajebant Alii vero damnantium tumultu excitati, decapitata prima syllaba, namus inquiunt I cannot forbear to insert a Story here A Counsellor fell sometimes a-sleep on the Bench (a) One Day the President ging the thering the Votes of the Court, and coming to ask his he apsivered starting out of his sleep. P " ask his, he answer'd, starting out of his sleep,
" and not being quite awake, That his Opinion was, "that that Man should be Beheaded But the Business in hand u about a Meadow, said the President Let is be mow'd then, reply d the Counsellor It may be Balzac had read this in a burlesque Piece of Francis Hotman, difguis'd under the Name of Mata-Frider !.

be Balzac had read this in a burlesque Piece of Francis Hotman, disguis'd under the Name of Matago de Matagonibus, against Matharel Nota omnibus, says he, est historia de eo qui cum dormiens à praside excitatus & sententiam interrogatus esset, semisomnis dixis, suspendatur, suspendatur, credens criminalem processum esse Cui prases, quinimo, inquit, agitur deprato, ergo desalcetur, respondit ebrius

(B) The ill disposition of his Judges.] Otho Frisingensis says, (b) that Abelard sear'd to be overwhelm'd by some popular Tumults, and that to avoid that missortune, he demanded to be referr'd to the Court of Rome Dum de side sus discuteretur seditionem populi timens, Apostolica sedis prasentiam appellavis. He had reason to mistrust a Mob animated by the Declamations of his Accusers, who cry'd him down as a Destroyer of the most Holy Mysteries of the Gospel

(C) Without being heard.] The same Injustice was done him in the Council of Soissons, under a very ill pretence, which was, That they fear'd the substity of his Logick, and the snares of his Eloquence (c) Libros quos ediderat propria manu ab Episcopis igni dare coastus ess, nulla sibi respondendi souliate, eo quod disceptandi in eo peritia ab omnibus suspessa haberetur, concessa The President d'Argentra had reason to sind fault, that upon such an account they should have transgress'd one of the most Sacred (d) Laws of Justice, No Man ought to be con-

demn'd without being heard, audiatur & altera pars Here is what he, that publish d Peter Abelard's Works, says of that Author, (e) Queritur eum non fuisse auditum in Concilio contra eum coasto, quod omnes quantumvis dosti & subtiles ejus acumen ingenii, ses Inoper lingua versatilis volubilitatem, cloquentia sumen aureum, vel potius sulmen igneum & trisulcum, syllogismorum grysos & contoita enthymemata resum:

P 315

(D) Does little honour to his Memory] Zeal and Solitude made him a little passionate and credulous, Solitude made him a little passionate and credulous, if we believe the same Author (f) That observation was made by a more ancient Author, though it has not retain d all the impressions of its Original, for see what Otho Frisingensis says, (g) Erat apolog autem Bernardus Claravallensis Abbas tam ex Christian ad of crana religionis fervore zelotypus, quam ex habitudinals mansuetudine quodammodo credulus, ut & Magistros, qui humanis rationibus seculari sapientia consist nimium inharebant, abhoreret, & si quicquam ei Christiane sidei absonum de talibus diceretur facile aurem praberet. I hus the Providence of GOD dispences good and evil. Most of those that have a great Zeal become credulous and suspicious, and easily conceive an extraordinary Animolity against the conceive an extraordinary Animolity against 47 easily conceive an extraordinary Animolity against those whom they suspect, they write abundance of Letters against (b) them, they alarm the Consciences of others, and give themselves no rest till (b)D Bernardus have inspir'd their Prepossessions into every nardus. Body If a Book is to be examind, GOD knows how difficult it is for them to understand the true Sense of the Author, and to put the most equitates graviful ble Interpretation upon his Words See the Re- simasex-

(E) He did not write it, and be had some Reasons ut literas for it.] It may be, he did not tell the true Reason na plefon of his Silence. It is likely, that Reason was the fear of seeing all the Monks and the Clergy rise up against him, and of being expos'd thereby terit ad to the Peoples indignation, and a thousand Missilence. The known how edicus he had enable him. chiefs He knew how odious he had made himfelf by the first part of his Book, but the second thid would have much more exasperated the People The first contain'd only some hard Words, and some Reproaches, with fome Recriminations that could do but little prejudice to St Bernard, but the fecond would have convinc'd him of Knavery, or Ignorance, and confequently of being an unjuft Perfector The plainer the thing had been, the more aggregate they would have been unit now the plain of the plain o Persecutor The plainer the thing had been, the more angry they would have been with Berengarius, the Destroyer of a holy Reputation so usefully established in the Minds of People So that he found it more proper to be silent, and to justify his Silence by a shameful Nonsense He declar'd, that Time had made him wise, and that he had embrac'd St Bernard's Opinion, and refus'd to protect a Doctrin that sounded ill, though it was not had in the main. Laster, That if he had said any bad in the main Lastly, That if he had said any thing against the Man of God, he desir'd it should be look'd upon as done in jest, and not in earnest (1) Processus meum sapere crevit & in sententiam per A-Abbatu pedibu, ut dicitur, wi Nolus effe patronus capi-tulorum objectorum Abelardo, quia etfi sanum saperent, 322, 323 Siguid in personam hominu non sane Sonabant

Eccc 2

quin cam inter illa que pe-peristi rum monftri locilies Inoper fimuitates gravii-

(d) Qui statuit aburgil parte inaudita altera, Æ.

(b) Otho Frifing de gestis

2 € 48

(c) Id 1b C 47

quum lıcet statuerit, hand æquus fuit Seneca in Medea, alt 2

Fathers of the Church Besides that piece of the law have two Letters of his one to the Bishop of Mende, the other against the sthussans. They are printed with Abelard's Works It appears by all his Writing hat his Character was that of a nery (G) sower Man that Petrarch gave him, but her sirys, that his Invective against the Carthusians * was only design'd to reclaim them from their slanders. Those that have said that he was † of a small Stature, have ill understood the higher they quote In the deglin the reproaches of Heterodoxy which he made to St Bernard are but vain fancies, and serve only to shew, that when a Man infifts too rigidly on certain expressions, without putting on that Spirit of Equity that looks for the Sense of an Author in the main, and Principles of his Works, he does easily and some erroneous propositions. I do not pretend, that all the Expressimputed to Author (H) have as bad a Foundation as that, but it cannot be denied are the greatest (I) part of them:

and was the t be !

This Recrimination of B of those priviledgd Persons who acquire fervices which they pretend they have do by reprefenting to that Informer the indulged hathers of the Church Personnel Production fet it forth

* Volui refec ire in eis immoderatam licentiam linguæ, qua velut quidam Geometræ totum orbem menfui 1bant Ilid P 323

† See the RemarkG

> Des dixt joco logatur non ferso And yet a little be-fore he had faid, that his Centure of St Bernard was well-grounded It is the true fense of these Words, Legant erudit: viri Apologeticum quem edidi, & sidominum Abbatem juste non argui, licenter me re-dareuant. This is the Nonsense of a Man, who dies not say that he is in the right, and who is atham'd to confess that he is in the wrong

> (F) Who acquire the benefit of Impunity] St Bernard had a very pleasant Style All (1) World was over-run with the productions of his Pen, his Books flew every where, and they were many, he Reputation of (s) his Holineis, Zeal, and Miracles, was no leis spread than that of his Pen With all these Advantages, he was able to ruin any Man's Reputation, much less, could so great a Philosopher as Abelard expect to pass for Orthodox in spite of him Berengarius did very happily represent the Authority of the Man of God in this manner (b) Damnatur, prob dolor! absens, inauditus & inconvictus Quid dicam, quidve non dicam?

cam ' Bernarde, Nilopu est bello, veniam pacemque rogamus, Porrigimus junctas ad tua lora manus mertetur sanctio legum

Si vis, si mandas, si sic decernis agendum, Quem penes arbitrium est & vis & norma loquends Is there any Orthodoxy that can hold out against fuch Accusers. The People are so much preposest, that they can hardly fuffer one to make a defence, it cannot be done without charging the promoter of the Process, and the informer with Calumny, which makes every body lose patience. What? should we suffer such a great Servant of God to he defim'd as an egregious Calumniator? God forbid, the honour of the Church is too much concern d Thus an inconfiderable private Man may lay, I shall be Orthodox or Heterodox according as fuch a one pleases, for if he attacks my Doctrin, they neither dare, nor can absolve me, my suffication would discrace him, and would resource the enemy too much In wan I might accuse him in my turn, no regard would be had to it I have not labour d for the good of the Church like him, I do not deserve the immunities that are due the him, I do not deserve the immunities that are due to his Studies and indefatigable vigilance. A great many People would take it ill that I should dane to publish Apologies, and would tell me, if they dust speak their mind, what (c) Caligula said to his Brother What? Thou takest an Antidote against Casar? I should seem to them worthy of a new accusation because I did not sink under the first. Quintus Scavola, who was one of the honestest Men of his age, was treated in the same manner, (d) Diem Scavola disit posea. ed in the same manner, (d) Diem Scavola dinit postan-quam tomperit eum posse vivere cum ab eo quarere-tur quid tandem accusaturus esset eum, quem pro dignitate ne laudare quidem quisquam satis commode posset, ajunt hominem (ut erat furiosus) respondisse, quod non totum

telum corpore recepisset

(G) Of a stery and sower Man] These are Petrarch's words in his Apology Damnavit Bernardus Claravallensis Abbas Petrum Abalardum literatum quondam virum Huic iratus Berengarius Pictaviensis vir, & orium Huic iratus Berengarius Pritavienis vir, Epipenon infacundus ac discipulus Petri, contra Bernardum librum unum scripsit non magni quidem corporis scd INGENTIS ACKIMONIAE De quo postmodum à multis increpatus se excusavit quod adolescens scripsisset, Equal sibi viri santistas nondum penitus nota esset Francis d'Ambosse (e) not considering this passage with sufficient attention, found in it, that Berengarius was a little Man, De Berengario on Apologia ait ihjum fuisse facundum, non magni corporis sed ingentis acrimonia. This ought to teach Authors, and first of all, my self, to be continually on their guard against the distractions of the Mind, which are so often the cause that we apply to one thing, what those whom we transcribe have faid of another

s; he had to do with one of impunity by the great

He had no better fuccels shewn to the Errors of some

(H) Have all as bad a former of For example no wrong was done all by actually him of having too far extended the power of Free-will, and the necessity of Grace too fittle He express himfelf io plainly upon this (f), that whoever should justifie him would imitate the Knavery of those, who on other questions maintain that he was a of the last the to the last the country of those who on other questions maintain that he was a of the last the us from the tyranny of the Devil, but that the love which God shewed to mankind by the Incarnation of his Son, should incline us to love him reciprocally, and to follow the instructions and the example of an Incarnate God This Doctrine is half example of an Incarnate God This Doctrine is half Socinian, and according to St Bernard (b) who-foever profess it, deserves less to be confuted than to be cudge!'d Historian mother offensive Doctrin, that things that the were, nor ever shall be are not possible Doubles this was (i) Abeland's Opinion, and I do not see that those who say that God is determin'd by his Infinite Wisdom to do what is most worthy of himself, can deny that what is most worthy of himself, can deny that the losopher's Doctrin See the Remark M I waste fome other Opinions that might reasonably been imputed to him, and which are either true, or indifferent to Religion

(1) As to the greatest part of them] This Assertion (1) See the was falsely imputed to him, Deus pater plens est po- 1112 and tentia, slius quadam potentia, Spiritus Sanstus mulla 1117 papotentia Those that are most partial for St Berges of his in these words Spiritus quamvis ejusdem substantia par 2x sit cum patre & filio, unde etiam Trinitas operación, id est, unius substantia pradicatur, minima tamen ex substantia patris aut filis, si proprie loquimur, est dicendus est, quod oportet ipsum ex patre vel filio gigni, sed magis ex ipsis babet procedere. But if the Laws of Equity had been followed never so little, it might have been apprehended that he acknowledged the substance of that Dostrine, and they he had nothing substance of that Doctrine, and that he had nothing particular but one of those abstractions of Logick, which will always be unavoidable to those that will argue about the difference of the three Perfons Ir was imputed to him (m) to have taught that the Holy Ghost is the Soul of the World, and that there is no fin neither in the Action, nor in the Will, nor in the Lust, nor in the Pleasure that excites it, and that we ought not to defire to sup-press those things He maintains in his Apology (*) that he never said nor writ such a Proposition of the Epi-Ale to the Romans,

See his n pag 407,

591, 592

652

(b) Annon justiquens ta-lia fustibus tunderetur, quam rarefelleretus: Rer-nard. 1966 Marian

(k) Natader, Sac XI & XII than th See Fati Alexan der 16

(n) Opa

There

(1) M1rantur homines in te liberalium discipli-การบท tantam ubertatem ficundia, quin cmissiones tue jim cooperuejunt universam fuperficiem terræ Ibid pag

(a) Jimdudum fanctitudinis tuæ odorem alas per orbem fama di-Iperlit pitconi-favit merita, miraculideclamavit Ibid pag 303

302

(6) Ibid P 307

(c) Tru-cidaturus quem metu venenorum præmuni rı medifuspicabatui, antidotum inquit. adverfus Calucm? Suiter Calig 4 29

(d) Cicero, Rosino

(e) Prof.

and therefore St Bernard's Friends had no left reason to complain, that some Errors are found in his Works, by making at this own method against him It is for the advantage of the Publick that the legem sansimus iniquam?

The mischief is, that the event that legem sansimus iniquam?

The mischief is, that the event that about always prove prejudicial to the Aggressor, for we see to this day the units anate Abelard cover'd with (K) shame and ignominy, whilst his Adversary is involved as a Saint He had been condemn'd at Soisson in a Council where the Pope's Legate presided, which Legate understood (L) nothing of the state of the Question Gerson † believ'd that the samous Berengarius, who deny'd the Real Presence, was a Scholar of Peter Abelard, perhaps he took him for him that makes the subject of this Article, however he is mistaken, since Abelard was not ten Years of Age when the Adversary of the Real Presence died not ten Years of Age when the Adversary of the Real Presence died

Those that would know more particularly whether Berengarine had reason to pretend, that Abelard was not an Heretick that deserved the persecutions that were rais d against him, will do well to consult Mr du Pin 1, who gives an equitable judgment about that Man's Doctrin, and namely about the 14 Propositions extracted out Biblioth of his Works, and read in the Council of Sens It cannot be deny'd, says he, but that his of the Ecception of the Eccept

logeti- Opinions concerning the Mystery of the Trinity were Orthodox, and that he believ'd the three clessaft cum scribens præ- Proposition (M) of Abelard God carreet de hus out to be a log of the land of the land control of t Proposition (M) of Abelard, God cannot do but what he does It is a more important Pag 122

There is mention made of an Apology (1) which he publish'd, wherein he partly denied the Propositions that were objected against him as to the words, and altogether as to the Sense But there is some reason to believe that that (2) Apology is lost. In that which we have he maintains that he never wrote one of the Books, from which some of the Doctrines that are imputed to him were taken, and that that Work is as-

(1) Ad Cluniacense Co-nobium

fe contu-lit Apo-

dictorum capitulorum par-tım ver-

Otho Fri-

fing l 1

6 49 (2) See the

Notes of

Andrew du Chene

pag 1161,

(a) Oper Abæl

pag 310 (b) Ga-

Divinity, pag 3°4 and in his

Curiou

pag 266 (c) Quind

Nicolaus

ifte meus.

Viva iefe-

ret voce

Bernard epist ad Innoc II

an operib

Abal pag

(d) Hoc

fice)extor-

· claffico melius

ımo & vester,

1162 autem fenfum negāns

tım ba, extoputed to him were taken, and that that Work is afcribed to him with the same malice, or with the same ignorance as all the Propositions of the Ca-Andrew du Chant en Abelard's Relation,

pag 1161,

talogue, Sed ficut catera contra me capitula, ita & hoc lation,
pag 1161,

talogue, Sed ficut catera contra me capitula, ita & hoc
lation,
pag 1161,

talogue, Sed ficut catera contra me capitula, ita & hoc
lation,
pag 1161,

talogue, Sed ficut catera contra me capitula, ita & hoc
lation,
pag 1161,

talogue, Sed ficut catera contra me capitula, ita & hoc
lation,
pag 1161,

talogue, Sed ficut catera contra me capitula, ita & hoc
lation,
pag 1161,

talogue, Sed ficut catera contra me capitula, ita & hoc
lation,
pag 1161,

talogue, Sed ficut catera contra me capitula, ita & hoc
lation,
lat

O alia indiculus tuns continet quorum quadam, fatcor, Petrus & divit & scripsit, quadam vero neque protulit neque scripsis Que autem diverit & que non dixerit, O quam Catholica mente ea qua dinerit senserit, sicun-dus arrepti Operis tractatus Christiana disputatione ar-denter o impigre declarabit Some (b) accuse Abelard of having taught that there are as many Heavens as days in the Year, and they add, that he was aniwer d, That he reckon'd such a great number of them, that he might secure one for himself But this is rather a Joke than a Dispute It was therefore a very great piece of injustice to give the cause for the accuwere extracted, for his own, whether he own'd that they were faithfully extracted, whether he under-frood them in the Accuser's sense, &c? And the Pope who from the same extracts condemn'd the Books to be burnt, and Abelard to be confin'd to a Cloyster, without informing himself whether Abelard taught those things, was more unjust than the Synod of Sens The Accuser's Letters and the the Synod of Sens. The Accuser's Letters and the Messenger (c) whom he sent to the Court of Rome, and the faid all that was necessary to make Abelard complexed the Opression Francis d'Ambosse o'd very lively the part that St. Bernard acted will that Process. It was that of a Trumpeter (d) ading the Charge, and that of an incendiary, he sent to the Pope all the filth that he could sent the first out of his Adversar's Wittings or Lestither out of his Adversar's Wittings or Lestine for the process of the sent to the process of the sent the multi ad tetter, and which ill-affected Persons had gatherarma spicitcher out of his Adversay's Writings or Letter out of his Adversay's Writings or Letter out of the Papers that were published under his Name And therefore I don't wonder that (e) Horstim invessed against Francis d' Amboule, but I cannot tell whether he censured him for a thing that deserved it, which is for having said that Petrus Venerabilis writ to Innocent II that Abelard oppress by the vexitions of some Men who treated him as a Heretick, appeal'd to the Holy See Ast Abalardum gravatum vexmulti ad co (pontifice)extor ationibus quorundam qui illi nomen hæretici quod valde gueat ationibus quorunaam qui illi nomen hareette quod valde queat abominabatur imponere volebant, Majestatem Apostoli ambes cam se appellasse Whoever had writ such a thing

Pras Apol

(e) Notis

the wrong, but this business was not so translain

Ber
acted Petrus Venerabilis said only, that Abelard

field he was personned

Outsignment one translaid

field he was personned

an Ber- acted Petrus Venerabilis laid only, that Abelard hard f37 faid he was persecuted Quasivimus quo tenderet, gravasum se venationibus, & Majestatem Apofiolicam se appellasse respondit

(K) The unfortunate Abelard co-e, d with shame]

Thus he is charg'd to the end of the World with all the Errors that were imputed to him in the Council of Sens, and with several others Pc-ter de Pergamo (f) imputes to him to have devised that God is the Author of all Good, that he is a fimple Being, that he is the only One Eternal, and that all that exists is either a Creator or a Creature Bernardus de Lutzenburgo ascribes the same things to him upon the credit of the other Pratiolus (g) follow'd Bernard, and was transcribed by the Jetuit (h) Gaultier Belleforêt and du Haillan have done like Prateolus The Writers of the Catalogues of Hereticks, who commonly transcribe one another, Sanderus, Alphonsus de Castro, &c have not faild to adopt those Accusations But on the other hand those (1) that put him in the Catalogue of the Witnesses of Truth, knew not what they did the had indeed some part cular Original above the He had indeed some part cular Opinions about the Eucharistical Accidents, but it was rather by sup-

Eucharistical Accidents, but it was rather by supposing the Real Presence than by denying it

(L) Understood nothing of the state of the Question]

After the condemnation was pronounced, one of the Accusers mutter'd (k) that he had read in Abelard's Book, that God the Father is the only Almighty The Legate having heard that, said, that they ought not so much as to believe, that a Child was capable of falling into 10 great an error, fince according to the common and publick Faith there are three Almighties A Doctor laughing there are three Almighties at the Legate could not forbear to quote these words of St Athanassus, & tamen non tres omnipoten-tes. sid unus omnipotens His Bishop censur'd him tes, sid unus omnipotens. His Bishop censur'd him for it, but he was boldly answer'd with a passage of Daniel concerning ignorant Judges, that deserve more to be condemn d than those whom they judge Sic fatus filis Israel, non judicantes neque quod verum est cognoscentes condemnastis filium Israel Revertimini ad judicium, & de igno judice judicate He added of his own, qui talem judicem quasi ad instructionem sides & correctionem erroris instituistis, qui cum judicem delement and serve condemnastis.

dicare deberet, ore se proprio condemnavit About this Proposition of Abelard, God can-motedo but what he does] "(1) Neither does he weny that Power, Wildom, and Love, are At-"tributes common to the three Divine Periods, nay he declares the contrary in express words but he attributes Power to the Father, Wis-dom to the Son, and Love to the Holy Ghost by way of appropriation, in which he does not feem threecede from the Doctrine of the Fathers and Divines But he does not think and speak as others do in the third Proposition, wherein he maintains that God cannot do but what he does, and cannot do all that he does not not but that he acknowledges, that the Power of God in itself can extend to other Objects, but he pretends that being consider'd as joyn'd to the Wildom and Will of God, he cannot will or do any "thing, but what he wills and actually does "You will fee this more at large in the fubstance that Mr du Pin has given of one of (m) Abelard's Works (n) Du (n) In the third Book he treats particularly of the Power Pin ibid of God, and he maintains, that God can do but what he pag 119, does, and cannot do all that he does not because God can do 120

he & fol 212

clesiastical Authors, Holland

(f) Apud Bern Lutzenburg Ci-tal Haret

(g) Pratcol Llench Heret

(b) Gault Tabul Chronol

(1) See the Life of Abelard by I homasius, prin ed in the first part of the Historia Sapientia & Stultitiæ, at Hall in Germany in the year 1693

(k) Oper Àbæl P#g 24

(1) Du Pin, Biblioth of Lcclefaft Authors pag 112, edition of Holland

(m) The Third Book of the Intraduction

but what he wills now he cannot have the will to do

* Plin 166 6 6 29 † Solinus. 6 27 and difficult Question than can be imagin'd. I shall add to this, that the Protestants are more inclind to (N) condemn Abelar than many Catholicks are, and I shall quote a Passage of Mr fols a Canon of Notre Dame at Baris.

BERENICE, a Name of several Women and Cities We shall speak of some of those Women, and as to the Cities we shall believe that Ortelius reckons nine of them, and that the two chief were in Africa, one in Pentapolus, and the other on the Red Sea The latter received that name in honour of Berenice the Mother of Ptolemy Philadelphus, and the other in honour of Birenice the Wise of Ptolemy the third of that name Berenice is a (A) Greek Name.

third of that name Berenice is a (A) Greek Name.

BERENICE, Daughter, Sifter, and Mother + of some Persons who carried the Prize at the Olympian Games, obtain'd by reason of such a singularity leave to affift at those Games, which had been (B) forbid other Women by a publick Decree Some say she obtain'd that (C) privilege before her Son was Conqueror They were latisfy'd to know, that her Father and her Brothers had obtain'd that advantage, and

1 Una Berenice, que filia, foror,materOlympionicarum Plinius l 7 c 42 ex Harduini, quæ jurta MSS omnes habet Berenice, cum libri editi habcant Phereni-

(a) An-

Critique

de litteratuic tom

(1) This is an Anti omitted by

Mr Bail-

(1) Id 1b

1 P 4

cillon Mclange

any thing but what he does, because he does necessarily will all that is fit to be done, from whence it follows, that whatever he does not is not fit to be done, that he cannot have the will to do it, and consequently that he cannot do it. He himself consesses that this Opinion is particular to him, that scarce any body else approves of it, that it seems contrary to the Dottine of the Saints, it, that it seems contrary to the Dottine of the Saints, and to Reason, and to derogate from the greatness of God Hereupon he raises a difficult Objection against Innself "A Reprobate, says he, may be saved, but "he cannot be saved except God saves him therefore "God can save him, and consequently do something that "he does not" He answers, that it may be said indeed, that that Man may be saved as to the possibility of humane nature, which is capable of Salvation, but that it cannot be said that God can save him with relation to God himself, because it is impossible that God should do what he ought not to do He explains this by divers Examples A Man that speaks may hold his tengue, but a Min that does affually speak cannot be silent the Voice Min that does affually speak cannot be filent the Voice may be heard, but a deaf Man cannot hear it a Field may be manured, the a Man cannot manure it, &c

It may be I shall examine this Doctrin in one of the Remarksof the Article of Wicliffe

(N) The Protestants are more inclin'd to condemn Abelard than many Catholicks a passage of Mr Joli] "(s) Hornbeck in the beginning of his "apparatus ad controversias & disputationes Socinia"nas, observes Abelard's Heresies Perizonius 111 his Specimen Apologeticum (b) anti-Gualterianum accusationibus Jacobi Gualterii Jesuitæ oppositum, 112 his fifth Defence, de fide implicita, mikes also an ample description of Abelard, and of his Opinions, and shews at large, Pontificios, & nominatim jesustas, in multis cum Abailardo convenire he makes a parallel of them, and shews in another place of that fifth Defence, that, Quam pulchre "Socinianis praluxerit, minime obscurum est Beckman-"nus in his Theological Lucreitations, Exercit 2 "nus in his Theological Exercitations, Exercit 2

"fays, that, Socious hunc errorem, Christum pro pecatis nostris non essemble mortuum, e lacunis weterum hausit, quippe anno Curisti 1140 in Gallius Petrus Abailardus (quem Bernandus & Otho Fisingensis Abailardum, Platina Baillardum vocant) idem docut (1) Joly, a Canon of Notre Dame at Passis fays in his Treatise of the Restitutions of Great Men, That Abelard's Enemies veing jealous of his Reputation, did so much impose upon St.

Bernard, who proceeded honestly in the matter, that "Bernard, who proceeded honestly in the matter, that we find, that the Book of Sentences was condemned to be burnt under the name of Abelard, as being the Author of it, though it was of Peter Lombard Bishop of Paris a Work nevertheless, adds he, that is hown to be canonized in the Soibonne, and on which all the Scholastick Divinity is sounded. He says again, That the same Abelard was very much abused, and perfecuted by the Monks of St. Denis in France, and by (d) St. Gildas of Ruys near yannes in Bretagne, because he reproved their Vices I shall observe two things upon this passage of Mr. Ancillon the one is that in effect Abelard's Opinions about the Doctrine of Grace, are much

(a) He Should have by those of St Gildas

(e) Du Pin, ubi fupra P 112

Opinions about the Doctrine of Grace, are much the same with those which the Jesuits maintain But Mr du Pin (e) observes, that if that Author's Doctrin is not conformable to St Augustin's Doctrin neither is it Pelagian nor Semipelagin, since he acknowledges the necessity of Grace for the beginning of good actions, and maintains only that God has given an equal grace to all Men, whereof every one may make a good with or right to The second thing I have to a good wit, or right it. The second thing I have to say, is, that I shall inquire in another place, whether the Book of Sentences condemn'd to be burnt under the name of Abelard, is that of Peter Lom(A) Bernice is a Greek Name] It was form'd out of that of Deprison, that is to fay, Victory-Bearer, by the Macedonians (f) who chang'd Ph into B Hence it is that some Authors call her Pherenice, whom others call Berenice There are some who instead of Berenice, say in Latin Beronice

(B) Which had been forbid Women by a publick Decree] That Prohibition supposes, that they did not grust natural Modesty The Champions were flark naked, which alone ought to have banish'd the fair Sex from those shews nevertheless they did not rely upon that, some Laws were made, and they were publish'd to forbid Women the sight of those Exercises Thus far there was no harm to the war for the great Brookers. harm in it, they were sensible of the great Power of Curiofity But who would not condemn the extreme and cruel rigour of those new Legislators? They order d that if any Woman was surprised in those Assemblies, or if she went over the River during that time, she should be thrown headlong from the top of a Hill (g) 'Tis no wonder that no (h) Woman suffered that terrible punishment The sight of some naked Men could not be a Charm or an Allurement firong enough to cause so great a danger to be neglected, and if at last a Woman was found that did not observe that Prohibition, it was because she thought she ran no hazard, for she was difguis'd in Man's Apparel, and did not think that a fingle leap would betray her It is likely she was so overjoy'd to see her Son Conqueror, that she leapt a little too briskly on the Barrier Nay, how do we know bet that her Cloaths catch'd at fomething by an unfortunate accident? However fomething by an unfortunate accident? However it be she afforded without thinking of it, a new Spectacle which disturb d the Solemnity, and occasion d a tryal which she ended victoriously I say, without thinking of it, for we must not believe what a Learned Critick says, that she put off her Cloaths to discover her Sex, when she saw her Son's Victory (1) Scribit autem (Pausanias) nemini sussessible suffers autem (Pausanias) nemini sussessible suffers autem (Pausanias) nemini sussessible suffers suffer Cribe this to Pausanias, who intended to say no (m) Ælimore, but that that Woman going over the Barriers, discovered a nakedness that ought to have been thid. Here are his Greek words, (k) To spups or a (n) Pausake γνμιασμε εχυπν αποκλημμειμε τέτο υποςπησώσω ή sin ubi sections habent, transitions nudata est Romulus Amasaus has ill translated, transitust veste posita, as Sylburgius observ'd

(C) That she obtain'd that privilege before her Son was Conqueror \[Valerius Maximus (l) affirms it, here are his words Pherenices quoque non vulgaris honos, cui soli omnium faminarum gymnito spectaculo inone ought teresse permissum est, cum ad Olympia filium Euilea to be correcertamen ingressurum adduxisset, Olympionico patre ge- tied by the nita, fratribus camdem palmam assecutis latera ejus other, for cingentibus Ælian (m) says the same thing, and that the cause was pleaded, and that Pherenice gain'd that one It There is no room to doubt but that Eacles in and the Valerius Maximus is the name of the Young Chimpion that was brought into the Lists by Beienice is meant in Pausamai does not call him so, but (n) Pistorus or those two Pistorus It ought not to be conjectured that Euclea passages in the Greek Authors, that supply'd Valerius Maximus with that event, was the epithet of the Games, and not the Name of the Champion, and that the Latin Writer for want of attention took an epithet for a Proper Name I fay that conjecture ought not to be mention'd, fince we find an Athlet (s) call'd Eucles, who was at least Berenice's Nephew It must be faid then, that some Greek Authors

(f) Plu tarch u quælt Ġræcıs, Stephan Byzantin voce #i-

(g) See Paufanias Book s

(h) Id 1b

(1) Schef lib 6 pag 184 Desoidu-15 meant in Passages. It is better to read Pisidorus (o) Apud Paufan 16 p 183 to see her accompanied with her victorion prothers present her Son ready to dispute those sorts of Crowns Pausanas him with differs from this, and is perhaps better He * says that the Inhabitants of made a Law, whereby all the Women that hould dare to creep into the Games, or to pass over the † Alpheus on any octation whatsoever, during the that was forbid them, were condemned to be cast headlong from a Rock There has but one who disobey'd that Order, and her Name was Callipatura (D), according to some, and Pherenice according to others After the death of her Husband, the pretended to be one of those that instructed young the her self in the Field of Battle with her Son, whom she brought thither as an Athlet. Games her self in the Field of Battle with her Son, whom she brought thither as an Athlet, Games whom the had instructed, and who prepar'd himself for the Combat Having seen brated brated her Son obtain the Victory, she leapt over a Barrier that serv'd for an inclosure to the Masters of the Combatants, and discover'd her Sex by that action She would have been proceeded against according to the Laws, were it not that the Judges thought they ought to see the her, because, they found that her Father and her Brothers, and now her son had obtain d the Prizes of those Games so much glory for one Family was the cause of that Woman's pardon But they made a Law that for the future the Masters of the Athlets should come naked to those Shews It must not be forgot that this Berenice was the Daughter of * that Diagoras a Rhodian, who was so * See the famous in the Publick Games of Greece I don't know whether any Modern Com-Remark D mentator observes that It is easie to find out in what (E) time that Berenice liv'd BERENICE, a courageous and revengeful Woman, having lost her Son, by the contrivance of Laodice, mounted well arm d on a Chariot, and pursued the murtherer so briskly that she killed him His name was Cancus, who had only executed a royal Order. She mist him in throwing her Javelin at him, but she kill'd him with a Stone, afterwards she drove her Chariot over him, and retir'd through the Encmies Troops to the House where she believ'd her Son's body was hid. This we find in Valerius †† Maximus There is some probability that that Author royn'd confused- †† Viler ly what concerns two Persons separately The Commentators (A) find themselves Mixim puzzel'd about it. See the Remark

Authors gave her Son the name of Eucles, and that Palerius Maximus followed them See the following Remark

(a) Pag 353

(b) Pag

(D) Her Name was Callipatira according to some, and Pherenice according to others] This Pausanias observes in (a) his 5th Book but in (b) the 6th observes in (a) his 5th Book but in (b) the 6th he says a thing that seems plainly to prove, that Callipativa and Phenence were two Sisters, Daughters of the Famous Champion Diagoras. He says Diagoras had the good Fortune to obtain some Victories, and to have three Sons who obtain'd some, and some Daughters whose Sons carried likewise the Prizes He says DAUGHTERS in the plural number, from whence it must be concluded that Diagoras's two Grandchildren of whom he speaks, were not Brothers, but only first Coucluded that Diagoras's two Grandchildren of whom he speaks, were not Brothers, but only first Coufing these of two Sisters He calls one of those two Grandchildren, Eucles, and the other Pistorus He tays, that Eucles was the Son of Callianax and of Callipatira Daughter of Diagoras He does not name the Mother of Pistorus, but says only, that his Mother disguis'd like a Master of the Combandal Like of the Combandal Li Athlets, brought him into the I ists of the Combatants I say again, that since he spoke of Diagoras s Daughters in the plural number, and since he said that Diagona's Grandsons, by the Daughters side, had obtain'd some Victories, he must have pretended that the Mother of Eucles, and the Mother Wistories Now the Name of Existing Mother was Callipating, one may therefore realizably think that the Name of Pistories Monage and Callipating but Phonesics for it as not Callipatira, but Pherenice, for it is that miny give her in the 5th Book of indicate that miny give her in the 5th Book of indicate the difficulty of a Mafter of the Callipatira, who under the difficulty of a Mafter of the Combate of the Olympian Games, it must be attributed to the same Causes that make so many careless Writers confound the Actions of one Person with those of

> (E) In what time that Berenice liv'd,] Pausanias (c) informs us that she was the Daughter of Diagoras and Sifter of Dorieus Now Dorieus fought (d) for the Lacedamonians against the Athenians at the time that Conon was General of the latter, and there-fore he flourish'd towards the 95th Olympiad Con-fult the Remarks on the Article Diagonas the Rhodian

> (A) The Commentators find themselves puzzel d about it] Oliverius who made long Notes on Valerius Maximus full of a trivial erudition, pretends, that the Berenice in question, was also call'd Landice, and that she was Sister of Meth dates, who made such a long War with the Romans Whereupon he relates, that that Lady was first marry'd to Ariarathes King of Cappadocia, and that her second Husband was Nicomedes King of Bithynia, and that the two Sons which she had by Ariarathes having been kill'd by Mithridates, the one immediately, and the other mediately, the arm'd herielf, and pursu'd Caneus, who had executed the Order of Mithridates, and punsih'd him as Valerius Maximus relates First of all, I must observe, against this, that Valerius Maximus was so far from intending to speak of a Woman, whose Name was Berenice or Landice, that he remarks that Landice caus'd the Son of Berenics to be killd adds. Indeed the first Part of our Comments killd 2dly, Indeed the first Part of our Commen- (e) I ib 28 tator's Nariative is to be found in justine (e), but 6 1 & 2 we do not find there, that the Sister of Milbridates, who was the Wife of Ariarathes and of Nicomedes, had any other Name than that of Laodice 3d/3, We multo don't find there, that the fecond Son of Ariarathes post adoand of Laodice was kill'd by Order of Mithridates, lescens

we find there on the contrary, (f) that he dy'd ex agriof Sickness 4thly, The latter part of that Narratudine tive is manifestly contradicted and bely'd by Justin See in what manner he relates that Laodice endeavour d to revenge herielf of her Brother, after te dece-having lost her two Sons Nicomedes, her second dit sust n Husband, suborn'd a very handsome Youth to 1 28 c 2 create a belief that there remain'd yet a third Son of Ariarathes, and fent Laodice to Rome with Orders (g) Set to testify, that Ariarathes had left Three Sons, Grevin whereof the last was yet living, and demanded his Justin Eather's Kingdom of the Romans 5thly, It is too Pag 54 bold a thing to advance leveral Facts with their Carcumstances, without being able to quote Wirnelles for them Where did Oliverius read that the Sister of Mi bridges mounted on a Chariot and pursu'd Commerces Murchanges of the Caronic shall be strong to the Sister of Mi bridges mounted on a Chariot and pursu'd Commerces Murchanges of the Caronic shall be strong to the Murchanges of the Caronic shall be strong to the Murchanges of the Caronic shall be strong to the Murchanges of the Caronic shall be strong to the Murchanges of the Caronic shall be strong to the strong to pursu'd Ceneus the Murtherer of her second Son, (1) In the for I shall observe by the by, that Freinshemius Article had no reason to accuse (g) justim of contradicting Cappadohimself, or of confounding History prodigiously sustain spoke of two Landices married to two Assarithes's The first (b) kill dive of her Children EXAMIafter the death of her Husband, and would have NATIkill'd the fixth, the only one that remain'd, if her Relations had not prevented it The People rid the Opithemselves from that furious Woman The second I Landice married that Son of Ariarathes, who was the only one remaining This will plainly appear in another (1) place I wish Justin was guilty of one of the no other Confusions and Contradictions

Each of Canada Observer that Observer was an electrons in the Commentation.

Father Cantel observes, that Oliverius was in the tators in wrong to ascribe the Action that Valerius Maximus usum Del relates to Mithridates's Sifter. He believes, that Phini

(f) Nec post ado-lescens collecta infirmita-

(h) Ju-ftin 1 37

ON of

usum Del-mother

(c) Paufan lib. 6 Page 184 (d) Idem pag 185

Olivementator

" See the Renark B pur idir тер антор, жато фо... Симин чис Popular inexto Ea quamquam Romanos metucbit, nihil tamen manfueti Ptohibuit Dio 1 39 p m 130

BERENICE, Daughter of Ptolemy Anteres King of Egypt, succeeded her Father before his Death I do not find that she excited the Egyptians to drive him away, and there is some likelihood, that they were inclin'd of themselves to be freed from a troublesome Yoke, without being animated to it by her But it is certain, that as soon as the Father (A^{\triangle}) was driven away, the Darghter was Crown'd That banish dPrince implor'd the affistance of the Romans, and obtain'd at last, that Gabinius Governor of Syria should endeavour to Re-establish him Pompey perform'd it, for the People of Rome relying on some Verses of the Sibyl, would not concern themselves with that Re-establishment On the other side, Berenste did her utmost endeavours to maintain herself on the Throne, and tho' she \dagger fear'd the Romans, she made no proposals of Accommodation to her Father, nor shew'd him any Civility And believing that a Husband would be of great use to her, she got a Prince whose Name and And believing that a Husband would be of great use to her, she got a Prince, whose Name was Seleucus, issued from the Kings of Syria, and associated him to her Nuptial-bed, and to her Scepter She was foon weary of him, not finding him a Man of any Merit, and Afterwards she cast her Eyes on Archelaus, the Son of || caus'd him to be kill'd him, who had forsaken the Party of Methridates to joyn with Sylla She (A) offer'd herself to him in Marriage, and promis'd him that he should share in her Royalty He was then in Gabinius's Army, and he might easily have been hinder'd (B) from going to Berenice, if Gabinius had not rather for his particular Interest given him the liberty

(a) I ib 8 apud Hudumum in Phnium,/7 6 12 p 25

1 See the Rimark B

(b) Apprin in Syriacis circa finem

(c) See Juftin, / 27

(d) Antiochus Theus begin to Reign a. lout the man of Rome 492 See Calvifius ad ann mundi 3689 (1) Stillbo / 17 P 547

(f) Po1phyi ipud Lu-1cbium in Chron p 60 edit Scalig 16.8 (g) Baudelor de Danval, History of Ptolemy Auletes, Pag 131 167, 0 seg

(b) Noris s Cenotaph Pifan, p 225.

I alerius Maximus meant Berenice and Laodice Wives of Antiochus Theus, and both Daughters of Ptolemy Philadelphis Livery Body does not agree that they were Sisters Polyanis (a) quoted by one of I ather Cantel's Fraternity, says, that Laudice the Wife of Antiochis Theis, was her Husband's Sister, and Daughter of Antiochis Theis, it is generally the other Wife of Antiochis Theis, it is generally surged that the was the Daughter of Research agreed that she was the Daughter of Ptolemy Philadelphus Nevertheless, Father Cantel is not to be condemn'd, he has Appian's (b) Authority for what he says He has some reason to believe, that Valerius Maximus meant the Wives of Antiochus Theus, but he should have censur'd him for having made an addition to the fad Fate of Berenice Vilour which that Author ascribes to his Berenice, and her good success, mention'd by him, against her Son's Murtherer, do not agree to the Wife of Antiochus, foi she was so far from being able to revenge her Son's Death, that she was cruelly murdered with him in the place whither she had fled But it is true, that it was one Landice, who was the cause of that Misfortune (c) But since Father Cantel believed that the Author whom he Commented had the History of the Wives of Antiochus Theus in view, he should not have mark'd the 664th Year of Rome in the Margin That Chronology differs too much from that which belongs (d) to those two Princesses

(AA) As soon as the Father was dreven away, the Daughter was Grown d Strabo (e) observes, that that Prince had three Daughters, and that the eldest, who was legitimate, was placed on the Throne This Nariative is not exact, if it be sup-Throne This Nariative is not exact, if it be supposed that Popphyrius gave a good account of that Revolution, son he (f) affirms, That Gleopatia or Tryphene, and Berenice, Daughters of Ptolemy reign'd together the first Year of their Father's I light, and that Trypheni being dead, her Sister Bereine reign'd two Years alone. This shews that Bereine Was not the eldest, and strengthens my Opinion, that she did not Plot to dethrone the King. The Suspicions would rather fall on her Sister Tryphene. I do not pretend to deny that it is impossible that Ambition should have prompt'd them to savour the Malecontents, and open the way to the I hrone for themselves by the deposing way to the I hrone for themselves by the deposing of their Father, I pietend only, that the ancient Books do not contain that Fact Mr Baudelot (g) muntains the contrary, but I am certain, that if what he alledges out of Dion Cassius, Porphyrius, and Photius be examin'd, no proof of his Opinion will be found in it. His stiongest Allegation is, That Ptolemy smothering all Latherly Assessment Caus'd his Daughter Berenie to be put to Death for what she had done. It is plain that without for what she had done It is plain, that without making her an Accomplice of the Revolt of the Egyptians, one may think she was guilty enough in her Father's Judgment, by considering only that she accepted the Crown, and us'd all manner of means to maintain her Ulurpation

(A) She offer'd herself to him in Marriage] I have reason to siy this, but Father Nors had no reason to lay it (h) Archelaus a Berenice spe nuptiarum Alexandriam evocatus cadem uvore ducta, copias contra Gabinium ducens ristus prælio occubuit, mense regni six-to, ex Strabone lib 12 pag 385 Had I had no other

Author to quote but Strabe, I would not have faid as Father Noru did, that Berenice won him by promising to marry him I don't find in Strabe, that that Princess thought of Archelaus, I find only that the Egyptians having expell'd their King Prolemy, sought a Prince of the Royal Blood to marry him with Berenice, and that Archelaus knowing this, offer'd himself to them under the suppos'd Quality of the Son of Mithridates Eupator. and was ac-Author to quote but Strabe, I would not have faid offer'd himself to them under the suppos'd Quality of the Son of Mithridates Eupator, and was accepted, and Reign'd Six Months (1) Tauth (Intuitive Manager of Manage Man by the hopes of marrying her It belongs to her Subjects to procure a fuitable Match for her, which is the Account Strabo gives of it concerning Berenice, the Case ought not then to have been related as Father Noris did, or else he should have quoted other Authorsthan Strabo It Dion had been custed. Reserved might have here careful down have quoted other Authors than Strabo It Dion had been quoted, Berenice might have been cry d down as a Princess, who after having usury'd the Throne over him to whom she owed her Life, went in quest of an Husband, and offer'd herself and her Crown for a price of the Protection she stood in need of See the following Remark

(E) Hinder'd from going to Berenice] Gabinius discover'd Archelaus's design immediately, and secur d him, which might have put in end to that Business But fearing he should not find difficulty (k) Exenough in the Re-establing of Ptolemy to exact all Dione, I the Sums which that Prince had promis'd, he order'd 39 P m the matter so, that his Re-establishment met with some Obstacles He found no better Expedient some Obstacles He found no better Expedient than to juffer Archelaus to put himielf at the Head of the Rebels Archelaus past for a Man of Courage, and had a great Reputation To drive him rage, and had a great Reputation To drive him from Alexandria seem'd a great Exploit to Gabinius, and for which great Rewards might civilly be required from Ptolemy Besides, Gabinius did not release his Prisoner, till he had ransom'd him (k). So that he took Money on all Hands, that is, of both Parties A notable Instance of the Tricks that are play'd to Sovereigns Some Campignes would end a War, if the Generals for their particular profit did not dexterously supply the Enemy Chine cular profit did not dexterously supply the Lnemy with some After-game Let us well observe that a report was spread (1) that Archelaus had made his escape Gabinus being well paid for the leave he had given him to escape, pretended without doubt, to be angry with those that kept him A new Scene of that Comedy But I observe that Strabe knew nothing of all this Management of Gabinius He says, (m) Archelaus was brought to Berenice without Gabinius's knowing of it, whereby he frees that Roman General from a great Reproach Strabe clears Berenice in a great measure and moves us to judge, that she was not guilty of her Father's Expulsion He says plainly, that that Prince was Expenses. pullion He says plainly, that that Prince was Ex-

ibid

(m) Λ adaur Ny arad ente Civine Lo (Gapruro ucpel'd p 548 liberty to marry that Princess Archelaus marry'd her, and put himself at the Head of her Army to repel the Romans, who pretended to restore King Ptolemy He was . Ex Diokill'd (C) in a Battle, Ptolemy re-enter'd into Alexandria, and caus'd his rebellious ne, lib 39

Daughter to be put to death without any mercy* Such was the Fate of Berenice A Modern P 13, 131

Author has very well unfolded all the Intrigues that were made at Rome for the Rephus de establishment of Ptolemy, but he is mistaken as to the Circumstances of (D) Arche-bell Jud laus's detention.

BERENICE, Daughter of Costobarus, (A) and Salome, Herod the Great's Sister, was & Three marry'd the first time to Aristobulus Son of the same Herod and of Mariamne, and liv'd Sons and badly enough with him, for because he had a Brother marry'd to the Daughter of drchelaus King of Cappadocia, he upbraided Berenice often with having undermatch'd The Sons himself in marrying her, and that in so doing, he had made himself much inscrior to were Ahis Brother Berenice went crying to her Mother, and reported all those Discourses, and several others to her, and made her very angry Insomuch, that Salome, who had a great power over Herod, made him suspect Aristobulus, and was the chief Cause that Insome that Cruel Father to make him away a "Tho" Berenice had a live Children, Judæa, she marry'd again with a Brother of Antipater's Mother, which Antipater was Herod's Herod Son. Having lost that second Husband, the went to Rome, and made herself esteemed King of Son Having lost that second Husband, she went to Rome, and made herself esteem'd (halcis, by Augustus But above all, she (B) insinuated herself into the Favour of Antonia the Wite and Ariof Drusus, which afterwards stood her Son Agrippa in good stead The first time (C) stobulus the litter was to Rome, he Morkey Burn and Arion to Rome, and made herself esteem'd (halcis, by Augustus Burn and Burn an the latter went to Rome, his Mother Berenice was yet living, but the fecond time he the Daugiwent thither she was dead

BERENICE, Grand-daughter of the foregoing, and Daughter of Agrippa the and Mui-Ist of that Name, King of Judaa, was much tilk'd of on account of her Amours She amne, 1d was betroth'd to one Mare the Son of Alexander Lysimachus, but he dyd bc- 16 c 18 fore the Marriage was Confummated A little after she was marry d to her Uncle Herod, who at the request of Agrippa, both his Brother and Father-in-liw, was made King 19 , 4 of Chalcis by the Emperoi Claudius ? She was but Sixteen Years of Age when her

pel'd by the Inhabitants of Alexandria, who afterwards fet the eldest of his three Daughters on the Throne and caus'd a certain Cybiosaster to the Throne and caus'd a certain Cybiolattes to come from Syria, who pretended to be issued from the Kings of Syria, and gave him the Queen in Marriage She being displeas d with the baseness she observed in him, caus'd him to be strangled a few Days after It is said, that he caus d Alexander's Body to be put into a Glais Cossin to appropriate to himself the comments of massive cold over the base of the cold over t ate to himself that of massive Gold out of which he took it I have read this Fact in a (1) Modern Writer, who quotes Strabo and Suetomus, two Authors that say not a word of it The latter says (2) in general, that that Prince was sordidly avaitable of the series of the same of the sam They are Strabo's Words (a) Hunc intra paucos dies regina strangulavit, cum ejus sordes illiberalitatemque

Tachie fire regima prangulavit, cum that in the foregoing Page, that work of the work of the made mention of one Ptolemy, who being come from Syris had carry d that golden Separates pulchre away, and drew no profit from that Actification, because he was soon overthrown. But how do the work of the was soon overthrown but how do the work of the was soon overthrown. on, because he was soon overthrown But how do you know that this is to be understood of Berenice's Husband? Don't you see that Strabo gave only the Title of Cybiosastes to the latter, and that he gave the Name of Piolemy and the Sir-name of Coccus, and Parisastus to the other (b)? Eviliant of autum a Khumin by Happicount of amaliant Husbanding aureum Prostraus cognomento Coccus of Subditicius rapuis Don't you know that Dion (c) calls him that was marry'd to Bronice, Seleucus? Can it be believ'd, that if Straus had pretended to speak of the same Man in the to Bronice, Seleucus? Can it be believed, that it strates had pretended to speak of the same Man in the satth, and in the satth Pages, he would have expressed himself as he does? There is no Word nor Phrase in his Narrative, that infinuates, that the Syrian who carry'd the golden Tomb away, is the same Cybiofastes whom Berenice put to Death Nevertheless, read the learned Reslections of (d) Mr Baudeles, who believes as well as the Abbot de St Real that Cybiolastes and Ptoleony, are one and the St Real that Cybiglattes and Ptolemy, are one and the fame Person

fame Person

(C) He was kill'd in a Battle] This does not agree with the 17th Book of Strabe, where we read that (e) Ptolemy having been re-establish'd in his Salome. It is likely, that those two Women went together to Death. But I had rather rely on the 12th Book of Strabe, than on the 17th because Plasareb confirms plainly, what forable relates in the 12th Book, (viz) (f) that Archeleus was kill'd in a Battle Plusareh (g) sets forth, that Marc limits are personnel set of the salome with the salome went thither at that time the salome went thither at that time for the salome personnel set of the salome with the Friending of Automis the Confirms and that he acquired the Friending of Automis the Confirms and that he acquired the Friending of Automis the Confirms and that he acquired the Friending of Automis the Confirms.

and that he did likewise an Act of Humanity that was much praised, which is, that he caus'd the Body of his Friend Archelaus to be tought for, and Body of his Friend Archelaus to be fought for, and made a splendid Funeral for him. Is not this a proof that Archelaus had been kill d in a Battle? Figure 28 a wife on the species of the species of a wife on the species of the spec

Daughter, and that after that Victory of Gabinius, the Egyptians were oblig'd to open the Gates of Alexandria to Ptolemy, who caus'd Berenice and diversothers to be put to Death

(b) Page

(D) At to the Circumfiances of Archelaus s detention of m] The Modern Author, whom I mean, is the Holl Abbot de Saint Real See the Cefarion which he publish'd in the Year 1685. The mistake which I design to take notice of, consists in that he (1) Ibid supposes that Archelaus departed (h) privately from Gabinius to marry the Queen of Egypt, and that having been taken Priioner in a Battle, after the (k) Dio Romans had made themselves Masters of Pelusium, lib 39 p Gabinius gave him (s) the assistance that was necosary 131 Romans had made themielves Masters of Pelusium, lib 39 p Gabinius gave him (i) the assistance that was nicessary 131 to make hu escape, for a great Rantom Dion Cassius whom he quotes, says (k) in express Words, (l) Mon-that Gabinius let Archelaus eleape before the Army tacut in March'd towards Pelusium, and before there was a-py Rattle ny Battle

(A) Daughter of Costobarus and of Salome] Jose- pag 191 Phus says so in express Words It is therefore thro apud Nola fault of Memory that Dr Mountague questions, whether it was ever determin'd, that Berenice was the Daughter of Costobarus or of Joseph Quam (Be- stis Herorenicen siliam Salomes) vel e Costobaro vel Josepho, dium p nam non menimi pro certo traditum, genuerat (l) Corneli usa Lapide believ d falily, that Herod was the Iather of our Berenice

ther of our Berenice

(B) She instinuated herself into the Favour of Antonia] There is a passage in Strabe that deserves to be set down (m) Kaueng n τως ωτις επίμωσι τὰ Heysela no το το 13 pag 363 apud
Noldium
That is to say, The Emperor honour'd the Sons of Herod, and hu Sister Salome, and Berenice the Daughter of Salome It is likely, that those two Women went together to Rome, to Dispute the Kingdom of Judas with Archelaus the Son of Herod, for it is known. (n) that Salome went thither at that time

(m) In Act 25
13 pag
363 apud
Noldium
1bid pag
296

Salome It is likely, that those two Women went
together to Rome, to Dispute the Kingdom of Judas with Archelaus the Son of Herod, for it is known. (n) that Salome went thither at that time

Daughters.

(1) The Abbot de St Real farion entiet 2 p m 78 (2) Suetonius in ${f V}$ eipa ${f f}$ c 19.02 (a) Stra-bo 16 (b) Id 1b pag, 546 (1) D10, Ìib 39 P (d) Bau-Dairval, History of Lolemy Auletes. pag 170 (e) Kalax-

Sex uno TaCuis Ilvous a Gabinio reductus Archelaum ac fiham interimit Strabo, lib 17 p 548 (f) Tum Lagina. AIRIAN EN न्यस्थीयह्ंस, ومعز عدلكى: 70 y 1170\4-Maiot. Eum Gabinnes Prolemeum reducens in pugna oc-cidit.Stra-bo, lib 12 pag 384. (g) Plus

A M. An-201110, 2 917

Ibid c 5 1 Ibid

Father dy'd *. She loft her Husband the † 8th Year of the Emperor Claudius, and behav'd herself very ill in her Widowhood, for the coneral opinion was, that she committed Incest with her Brother Agrippa To put and to those Reports, she endeavour'd to marry again, and offer'd herself to Remon King of Cilicia, provided her vour'd to marry again, and offer'd herself to Palemon King of Cinera, provided no would change his Religion ||. It will easily be believ'd, that she exacted that Condition rather out of Vanity, or Policy, than out of Zeal, but a zealous and amorous Woman, that sets up for a Converter, is no rare thing. The having more regard to the Riches than to the Reputation of the Lady that the him, accepted her offers, caus'd himself to be Circumcis'd, and marry'd her. And if he did not be all him later in the Bonds of that Marriage, it was not his fault, but the his Life-time in the Bonds of that Marriage, it was not his fault, but the fince that $(A\triangle)$ lewd Woman left him, and return'd where the pleas'd the forfook Judaism immediately to return to his first Religion + Berenice's ill Life did not hinder her from any define the Lewis Coldman and the second of the s her from practifing the Jewish Observances. She had made a Vow, and to accomplish it, she went to Jerusalem, and submitted to the Custom, which was perfore any Person offer'd his Sacrifices, he spent Thirty Days in Prayers and Suppose without drinking Wine, and had his Head shav'd Whilst she observed those Ceremonies, she receiv'd a thousand Affronts from the Roman Soldiers, and was in danger of her Life: In vain she went Bare-soot to interceed for the People with the Governor Florus, she obtain'd nothing, not so much as the Civilities which her Quality and Sex made in-dispensable  She was still in favour with her Brother Arippa, and she seconded him in his Design of preventing the Desolation of the Jews, by exhorting them to fubmit to the Romans But all those Exhortations, accompany'd with Tears, prov'd useless ++, so that Berenice either not to be involved in the Ruin of the Nation, or to exercise her Parts, went to Vespasian and Tirus, and gain'd the one so formunately with her (A) Liberality, and the other with her Beauty, that she was in a fair way of becoming a Roman Empress She took Tirus in her Nets, and saw the Hour (B) that of a savour'd Gallant, he would become her Husband But the Murmurings of the Roman Empress of the man People, frustrated her Mope, she retain d only the Title of the Emperor's Mistress,

 Id de bell Jud 1 2 6 26

tt Ibid

Wife of Druss the Brother of Tiberias by reason of the esteem which Antonia had for Berensee the Mother of Agreeps That Historian adds, that Agripps not to vex his Mother constrain'd his Natural Inclination, which prompted him to make large Expences; but that when the was dead, he was fo Prodigal, that he exhausted himself Hav-ing no more Money nor Credit, he return'd into Judaa, from whence, after divers Adventures, he return d to Rome, and went to falute Theries in the Island of Caprea He was at first very well received by him; but he had afterwards good need of motions's Protection I do not know where Notdius (1) had read that Beremice dy'd at Antonia's

(1) Noldius ubi fupra PAG 297

(a) They are at tie end of the French Iranstation of Xiphili mas made by Antony de Bandole, and Paris in the Year MI OIGE

(b) Joseph Antiquit Judaic 116 20 c \ (and not (2) o m 693

House

(A) That lend Woman left him I shall transcribe a passage that is full of Faults That Berente of whom our Xiphilinus makes momen, was the Daughter of Archelaus, and the Wife of Herod, after whose Death she marry'd to Polemon King of Lycia, whom she left proper nimicatem cottus, ut quidam dixerunt, says Josephus, lib 20 chap 2. This is what I have found in the (a) Annotations of the Sieur de Canque on the History of Dion Cossius, abridg'd by Xiphilinus. Let us observe in the first place, that the Berence spoken of in those Words, is the Mistress of Tisus, and then let us reckon the faults that the Berence spoken of in those Words, is the Mistress of Titus, and then let us reckon the faults 1st, She was not the Daughter of Archelmus 21st, Polemon was not king of Lycia 3 dly, The reason why she left him, was not because he perform'd too often what is call'd the Conjugal Duty. It was rather a quite contrary region. For fee here how the Jewish Historium quoted by the Author of the Annotations expresses himself (4) à 144 m man entiquever o 2446, and Bephin il Montes of tours, it tours, it tours, it is not tours, it is not tours, it is not tours of the configuration If they have not configuration of the co dence ab so Berenice If that Author had confulted the Translation of Gemerard, he would not have fallen into the Error which he committed; he would have read there, That Morringe did not continue long, and it is fined, that it morely reason of Berenece's imemprance, who left him Granting that the Words of the Jewish Arather, consider'd in themselves, may have I know not what ambiguity, which may make one doubt, whother the Matter in question there, as the Musband's or the Wife's Irregularity, was there no moints to remove the siquivocation? Was it not sufficient to observe the ill Life of Braites! Thiose time know how she laved, will easily acknowledge, that she could not be displeas'd with a Man for being indeficingable in sheezercise of Love. The Author whom I refure, should rather have plac'd resonness sin in the idesect, than in the excess, and company as the Modunish with the sink Husband of Queen Jean of would have read there, That Marriage did not con-

Naples It is true, that Polemon came off cheaper than the other, for he did not lose his Life as the other did

Some Caviller will perhaps tell me, that Canque's meaning is that Beremes forfook Pole caule he was not able to fupply her amorous Defires; but I maintain, that the Words are not order'd an fuch a manner as to be understood so Whatever his Thought was, they plainly fignify what I suppole, and confequently, they represent Berenice a Woman of a most extraordinary Humour See what I shall quote out of the Letters of the Count de

what I shall quote out of the Letters of the Count de Buff Rabasin in the Remarks of the Article Gleichen (A) One with her Librarity, and the other with her Beauty | Tucirus informs us, That that Lady us'd her Intrigues to place the Crown on Vefpafian's Head I do not wonder at it, she had more to hope for from him than from his Competitors, if he come to the Empire. May (A) we combined if he came to the Empire Mox (d) per ecaulty rum nunties excitus ab urbe Agrippa, ignare ad tellio, celeri navigatione properaverat Nec minor mo, regina Berence partes yavabus florens at ate faque, or fens quoque Vespassano musmiscentia municipata. The same Historian informs us, that Thus lov'd hei, and that it was thought she was the tause why he did not finish his Journey, but return'd into Judaa, after he heard of Galba's Death at Corinth Fiere (e) qui accensum desiderio Berenices regina vertisse iter crederent. Neque abhort but a Bore mee juvemlis animus sed gerendis rebiu nullum ex es impedimentum. That Historian resutes santanage in two words. He owns that Queen tought Love, that did not keep him from Affairs

Affairs

(B) And sur the Hour that he would affairs

ber Hurband] Agripps and his Sifter Berenies con Journey to Rome in the 4th Confidinity of Vehalistic great Honour was done them, the lodg'd in the Palace, fine lay with Tirus, and began to dispose of all things like a lawful Wife. But Tirus understanding that the People were scandalized at it, sent her away This is what (f) Xiphilinus relates, and he observes, that Berenies was shen, in her (g) prime, and great lustre. Nevertheless, the was then Forty four Years of Age, for the 4th Confulsing of Velpasan fell (b) in the Year of IE-florebac. SUS CHR IS T 72 and she was Sixteen Years. Xiphil, wo of Age (i) when her Father dy'd, that is to say the 3d Year of the (i) Emperet Chadaus, which was the 44th of JE SUS CHR IS T. This may be easily Calculated Sessions she enter'd young sinto the Lifts, and had Takes Books, and without intermission; the had a kindblad, and perhaps some Chaldren, in the 10th Year of the Age. She had had a session she seems for the search Year of the Age. She had had a session she seems for the search Year of the Age. She had had a session she seems for the search Year of the Age. She had had a session she seems for the search Year of the Age. She had had a session she seems for the search Year of the Age. She had had a session she seems for the search Year of the Age. She had had a session she seems for the search Year of the Age. She had had a session she seems for the search year of the Age. She had had a session she seems for the search year of the search year.

(a) Nec minus libido (fulpetta erat in Tim) propter exoleto. rum & spadonum greges,propterque inınlignem reginæ Beronices amorem, vitus invitam, Sueton in Tito c 7 (b) X1phili in Lito lub ınıt (c) Au-1el V1c.or in Epitom (d)Noldius de VIta& gestis Herodum (e) Ut 1ubut pondus regi-(f) It u il e false Name of in that criticiz d the Converiations of Father Bouhours The 1bbot de Villais whom he points at here, had publish d the Treadelicateiie for Fahours against Cleanthe (1) Sentimens de Cleanthe 2d part P. 1672 (g) The 133d Let-ter of the 3d part of Count de Buffy Rabntin's

Letters, p

246 edit of Holl

That Letter

ss dated from D1-jon the 28th of

Tuly 1671

Mistress, or Concubine In the XVIIth Century the French (C) Stage resounded with the Amours of Titus and Berenice She had (D) too beautiful a Sifter to love each other The Holy Scripture makes (E) mention of Berenice Great (F) faults have been committed concerning that Princels I need not speak of all the Queens that she was in her great lustre at Forty four Years of Age 1 his was enough to be espos'd to Envy Suctionius (a) observes, that the Separation was made with regret on both sides Titus did himself a great Violence in fending Berenice away to stop the Complaints of Slanderers Berence was much vex d to be fent away Doubtless, she would rather have endur'd the continuation of Slandering cui etiam And if it be true, that Titue had promis'd her Marrage, as it was reported, one may very well believe, that the ftorm'd against the Unfaithfulness of Men It is probable, that to sweeten her Grief, Thus told her, that it was a Sacrifice he was forced to make to the Murmurings of all the City, but that after having yielded to that Torrent for a while, they would see one another again. It is certain, that Berenice behav'd herself as if she had been seen away in that manner. Some time after the fent away in that manner Some time after she return'd to Titus, but sie got nothing by it, for he would not hear of her any more. I believe, that Xiphilinus is the only Historian, who has observed that Berapice was sent away twice, the first time under the Emperor Vespasian, and the second time under that of Titus (pa) of the life on the condition of Titus (pa). uder her Politice to Egolitice paragraphs are engine and appende action with anticonsider, a superior advers a me Bigging a Pa-pur and consider, a superior Trus en que tempore principa um filus obtinuit nec cades fecit nec amoribus inservicus, sed comis quamvis insidis peteretur & conti-nens Bisonice licet in urbem reversa, fuit It is likely enotes, that Xiphilinus is not mistaken, the Au-relius Victor at d the other Historians, mention but one difinition (c) Ut subist pondus regium Berenicen nuptias suas sperantem regredi aomum praccepit I hote Words of Aurelius Vittor compai'd with what he had faid before, convince him of an extreme Negligence He fays here, that Berenice was in hopes to marry Titus, and he had faid just before, that she was his Wist. Cacinam Consularem adhibitum cana vix dum triclinio egressum ob susp cionem stuprata Birenices UXORIS SUA jugulari justit Let us inter stom thence, that Berenice lent an Lar to other Flatterers besides the I mperor I hat is common enough to great Princes Misses I cannot pass over an error of Noldius (d) He says 111 Page 408 that Dion Cassius or Xiphilinus are mistaken, in placing Berenice's Divorce under the Em-Itaken, in placing Berenice's Divorce under the Empire of Velpasian, inne Aurelius Vistor affirms, that Total did not send her away till after he had taken (e) possession of the Crown I his Noldius says, Page 408, but Page 409 he affirms, that Berenice return'd to Rome to make a new attempt on Titus's Heart, and that her Design miscarry'd He quotes Xiphilinus for this What! After having said that a Man is mistaken, must one affirm what he advances? Must in he provid by his Testimony?

vances? Must it be prov d by his Testimony?
(C) The French Stage resounded Two pieces intitul d Berenice were acted at the same time One was composed by Corneille, and the other by Racine, each of 'em had its Partilans I he Abbot de Villars publish'd some critical observations on both I should not have known that he is the Author of those Observations, if I had not read these Words in the Sentiment de Cleanthe (f) Would you have question de it, if you had thought of the Critick of the two Berence's? For what reason should we have estap'd that Critick of two excellent Poets, whereof the one did not vouchsafe to answer him, and the other said but in two words why he did not answer him (1)?

Here are some Extracts that seem to me worthy of the place I give them I am very forry, fays a Lady, writing to the Count de Rabutin, (g) that I cannot fend you the Berenice of Racine, this Day, I expett it from Paris, and I am fure it will please you, but for that purpose you must have a refin'd Tenderness, for no Morrow and engage army love and Deligace to far as but for that purpose you must have a resin'd Tenderness, for no Woman did ever carry Love and Delicacy so far as she does Good God! What a pretty Mistress! And what pity it is that a single Character cannot make a good Piece, Racine's Troggedy would be perfect. The Count aniwer'd her "I have just now read Beremice I don't find so much Tenderness in it, as "I expected I remember, that when I pretended to have some, I could have out-done Beremice It seems to me that Tieus does not love her so much "as he says, since he uses no endeavours in her " as he fays, fince he uses no endeavours in her " favour with the Senate and the People of Rome.

He yields immediately to the Remonstrances of Paulinus, who ieeing him wavering, brings the People and the Senate of Rome to ingage him, whereas if he had spoken resolutely to Paulinus he would have found every Body ready to sub-mit to his Will I would have done so my self, and by that means I had joyn'd I ove and Glory together As so Berence, if I had been in her soon, I would have done as she did, thirt is to fay, I would have gone from Rome full of Rage "against Titus, but Antiochus had not been the bet"ter for it (b) Here is the reply that was made Letter to him (i) Your Heart is not so indifferent as I 148, of the thought it to be, since you remember still that you 3d Past, could have out-done Berenice in point of Tenderness, and pres 268 one must have our-some betterine in point of tenserings, and one must have carry'd it to a high pitch, to find that one can surpais her I praise and respect you for it. He that pretends to love, must not do it by halves. I ron their thince Passages, we learn what Judgment they made of Mr. Raine's Berenice, and how much the Ladine are naturally inclined to approve of those dies are naturally inclind to approve of those Hearts that have the utmost I enderness I don't find that Count Rabutin's Criticilin is well-grounded, for he would have had the Poet to filfity an Event, which ought to be preiety d on the Stige Berenice's dismission is to well known in History, that those who had not found it in the fragedy, might justly have exclaimed against the Author, Without doubt, Mr Racine foreign this, and it is likely, that was the reason why he represented Titus Passion inferior to that of the Lady This might displease the I am Sex but the Author found that this inconveniency did not equal the other

(D) Too beautiful a Sister, to love each other] 70fephus observes, that Drustla the Sister of Berenice, gave ear to the Proposals of Felix Governor of sudea, to secure herself from her Sister's Jealous, who could not endure that she (Drufilla) should be so beautiful Drufilla was Courted by Felix, whilst she was marry'd with Azizus King of the Emesenians She yielded, and mairy d Felia, and it iecms that the abjurd the Jewish Religion (k) The Hatred of Brothers is great, and some Maxims might be quoted upon that Subject, but if I am not mistaken, the Hatred of Sifters exceeds it We may We may touch upon this (1) in some other place cum mul-(E) The Holy Scripture makes mention of Berenice] ta osten-We find in the 25th Chapter of the Ast that tatione Agrippa and Berenice came to Casarea to Salute Fe- seu ambiflus, and that having heard of St Paul, who was tione Athen in Prilon, they had a mind to hear him speak, for Apoand that for that purpose they went to the place of fol 25 Audience with great (m) Pomp, and heard St Paul 23

(F) Great Faults concerning that Princess | Sabellicus
(n) believed that she was the Wite of Aristobulus, and (n) In Pa afterwards of Antipater This is to contound two raph ass Berenices, (viz) The Grandonther and the Grandonthey and 1 itum daughter together The first was marry'd the first time to Aristobulus, and the second time to an Uncle of Antipater, and not to Antipater himself This is then a fecond mistake of Sabellicus As for the Berenice whom he speaks of (the Mistress of Ti- pag 414 sus) the had neither of those two Husbands shall let down a Passage of Juvenal, which is doubtleis to be understood of the latter Berenice, that was belov'd by Titus, and who was suspected of Incest with her Brother Agrippa,

Grandia (o) tolluntur crystallina, maxima rursus Myrrhina, deinde adamas notissimus, & Berenices In digito factus pretiosior bunc dedit olim Barbarus incesta, dedit hune Agrippa sorori, Observant ubi festa mero pede sabbata Reges, Et vetus indulget senibus clementia porcis
The Scholiast of Juvenal understands here by Bere-nice, a Sister of Prolemy Ling of Egypt, and by Agripps a Son of Julia, Daughter of Augustus, that Son of Julia and of Agrippa (p) whom Tiberius caus'd to be put to Death after the decease of Augustus To fay nothing worse, it is a prodigious neglect of that Scholiast; for it appears plainly, with a little attention, that Juvenal speaks of an Acrippa that liv'd in Judea, which can noways agree with Here the Son of Julia Besides, that according to Noldum dius's observation, (4) no Body ever said that 412

Ffffa Agrippa

(h) Buffi's 148, of the

(1) Ibid Letter 15 _ pages

(L) Toieph Antiquit 1 p 69,

Remark A of the Ar-Drufilla

TON HE parla Ciac.

(n) In Paraplnasi ad litum apud Noldium, ubi fupra,

(0) Juven Satir 6 U 154 (p) He had been confin d by Augustus in the I-Sand Planasia, Tacit Ann l Ai c 3 and not in Sicily, as the Scholiast sa) s (q) De vita & gest dum, p have been of that Name I shall take notice of some faults of (G) Mirers, (H) Hofman, Charles Stephens, &c

BERGAMAS MAN

(a) Alludere videtur preti-ofo lapidi quem prius de-dit Ptolemæus Ægyptı Rex uxorı simul & matri Verum Plinius tradit fuiffe topazion Baron Aunal ad an 58 n 164 He quotes Pliny lib 37 cap 8

Supra P 412 (c) Harduin in Plin ! 37 68

p 392

(b) Noldius, ubi

FAULTS in the Edition of Invenal L'arioi um

(d) Herodes Agrippa defix fue forori Rerenice. cum qua incestum commilerat. UT POTE que ante mupta erat paérao iuo Heroεħι

(e) Ubi župra 🌶 411,452.

Arippe and his unchaste Sister Julia were ever accused of Incest It is not so easy to reprove the Scholiast on the other Point, because the repeating of the Word dedu made some learn'd Men believe, that the Poet supposes two Persons here believe, that the Poet supposes two Persons here that gave a Diamond of great value to their Sister, 1st, A King of Egypt 2dly, An Agrippo That Explication is not good The whole ought to refer to Agrippo King of the Jews, and to his Sister Berenice And we learn a thing here that Josephus did not touch upon, which is, that Berenice received a Diamond of great value from her Brother, and that the worse it which caused their meethrouse and that she wore it, which caus'd their incestuous Love to make the greater noise Baronius thought that Juvenal alluded to a precious Stone which Pliny mentions, that Ptolemy King of Egyps gave to his Wife, who was also his Mother, as Baronius pretends (a) A (b) Modern Author, whom I have already quoted several times, finds many faults in that Opinion of the Annalist 1st, Juvenal speaks of a Diamond inchas'd or set in a Ring, but the precious Stone mention'd by Pliny, was a rough Topaze, that was afterwards made into a Statue adv. It was not Ptolemy who gave that Topaze to and that she wore it, which caus'd their incestuous adly, It was not Ptolemy who gave that Topaze to his Mother, but it was Polemon Governor of the his Mother, but it was Polemon Governor of the Island where the Topaze was found, that gave it to Berenice, the Mother of the King, who succeeded him that was then Reigning 3dly, Pliny does not fay that Ptolemy Philadophus made a Present of that Stone to his Wife Arsinoe, who was also his Sister, he says only, that they made a Statue of Arsinoe the Wife of Ptolemy Philadolphus of that Stone, and that the Stone was a so four Cubits that that Statue was of four Cubits, and that it was Confectated in a Temple that was call'd The Golden Temple One might add this ath Cenfure, which is, That we do not find that any King of Egyst marry'd his own Mother, and that this agrees leis with the Father of Pielemy Philadelphus, than with any other It is of his Wife that Plunyspeaks, when he says, that the Topaze in question was brought to Queen Berenice I was much less surprized at these Faults of Baronius, that to see Father Handway (1) of this paraises. ther Hardourn (c) of this opinion, that Jumenal's Words are to be understood of the Diamond of the same Berenice mention'd by Pliny, the Wife of Ptolemy Lagus, and Mother of Ptelemy Philadelphus The Juvenal Variorum, contains many faults concerning Berenice There is a Note there which fays, that the Berenice mention'd by that Poet was Queen of Judea, and Herod's Wife that according to others, he meant Berenice Herod's Wife, and after her Husband's Death, Mistress to her Brother-in-law, that is, to Agrippe her Husband's Brother This is all wrong, for in the first place, here are two different Hereds, which they have not taken any care to distinguish by any mark whatsoever. One of them ought to be he that caus'd the Children of Bethlehem to be caus'd the Children of Berblehem to be put to Death, the other ought to be the King of Chales, Brother of Agripps the first of that Name Now Brother of Agrippa the first of that Name Now the first of these two Hereds had no Wife whose N me was Berence, and there was no Berence that w is Queen of Judes Besides, there has been no Berence in Judes, whose Incest consisted in the Love of her Brother-in-law The Incest mention'd by Jefephus and Juvenel, confifts in the Amours of Agrippe, the second of that Name, with his own Sister Berenice That which deceived the Author of the Annotation, is, that Berenze was the Wi-dow of Hered King of Chelcu, and Brother of an Agrippa, when her Love for Agrippa was spoken of Butthe Agrippa of whose Brother she was Widow, was not be with whom the commetted Incest She was Daughter of that other Agraphs, and Sister to this There is another Remark in the Juvenal Varierum, the Author of which calls himself Lubin This Lubin makes use of a pleasant manner of Arguing After having faid that Hered Agripps was Berenice's Brother, he proves that the Love of that Agraps for Berenice was in Incest, because Berenice had been marry'd with her Uncle Hered (d) Neldrus (e) who observed two fanits in the Variorum, and who plac'd show on the account of Science less, the computer of that Commentary, sock no rouce of thus,

(G) Some faults of Moren: The 1st Bermice of whom he speaks, as the Mochar of Brolomy Philadelphine Ku g of Egypt, what he says of hat, 12 not to be found in the Author (f) whom he quotes The 2d is the Daughter of Ptolemy Philadelphis, and Wife of Ptolemy Let He quotes Elian and Justin, who was that he relates He ought to have questions that he relates He ought to have questions what concerns the seen's Head of Hair Temple of Barnice the Guardian, I contain the fource of it, and therefore hove affirm that Morers has set forth a falsity that have manny sufficients about it He should have remembered that he had said in the Article of Assing the (6) He ber'd that he had said in the Article of Arsinve the (h) He Daughter of Antischus Soter, that The the Wise of Magus have said (h) King of Cyrene, and Brothers of Ptolemy Philadelphus, and consequently, Uncle of Ptolemy Evergetes, was the Article of Ptolemy Philadelphus, and consequently, Uncle of Ptolemy Evergetes At that time Berenice the Wise of Ptolemy Evergetes was but his first Cousin, at present she is come Sister Every Body may see how much such such variations confound the Readers, and are inferient to make them weary of the Study of a Distinguish observing who they are that relate things one way, and who those that relate them another way. The said and who those that relate them another way. The said Berenice according to Morers, is Substituted by the object, whose Name was Berenice (i) The 4th, is the Daughter of Ptolemy Auletes. I have made an Air Ptolemiticle about her, see the Remarks of it. The 5th, siname dis Berenice the Sister of Agrippa, II of that Everge Name What Morers says that that Princess was with the State Brother Agrippa in the Tear 55, when St Paul Magus alleded his Gause in their presence, and in that of the areas. bor'd that he had faid in the Article of Arfinue the (h) He her Brother Agrippa in the Year 55, when St Paul Magas pleaded his Cause in their presence, and in that of the market Procensuls Felix and (k) Pontius Festus, supported that those two Procensuls Commanded in Judge and med the same time, which (1) is false. He ought act of a mea to have quoted Strabe, for what he says concern conditions another. Browner, whom Morey for our time the same time. another Berenice, whom Merers forgot, viz the and of E Grandmother of Titus's Mistiess renice.

(H) Of Hofman, Charles Stephens, &c] I Hof- who was men's first missake is, to assume that the Bernice afterna mention'd by Juvenel, was the Daughter of Hered the Missake of her Brother Ptolem Agrippa This is at least a double or triple falsity, Lagus for that Hered had no Daughter whose Name was Pausan Berenice, nor a Son which Name was Agrippa She, 1 1 p whom Juvenel speaks of, was Daughter of the (1) See I first Agrippa and was power marry'd with her Bro. first Agrippa, and was never marry'd with her Broftin, I ther Agrippa, the second of that Name, it was only believ'd that she had an incessure, or spoke figure tively, when he call'd her (n) the Wife of Agrippa. Thus II The second fault is, to say, that the Berenice, (a) See i whom Titus lov'd, is different from her whom Jumentions. Homan makes them different the Arcs of usual mentions Hofman makes them different, the Ape fince he treats of her that was Titus's Mistress in the Ape an Article apart III It is not true, that the Be- 24 v an Article apart III It is not true, that the Be- 24 versuce of Juvenal made a Journey to Josufalem with (m) 'Tisher Head shav'd, and base-footed Hasman should who can have faid, that in order to accomplish a Vow, she the Chil went to Jerusalem, where the observed the Ceremo-dren of mies required in such Cases, which were, that be-Bethle-fore any Sacrifices were offered, they made Prancis hem as for Thinry Days, they had their Heads shav'd, at the sharin'd from Wine This is all that (a) Jeseph and the share concerning that Journey of Beronice The share observes that she went bare-sooted to the Ga vernor's Audience, but this cannot be faid to have bide Journey to Jerufalem IV What figuries it to direct Act 29 the 25th shap of the Ast, and the 16th Book of v 3 ci Sersio, immediately after having faid that Berenice turn a went to Jerufalem with her Head shaved and bare-Noldio the sp and 3d fault of Hofman, and at as from hum date that the latter transcrib'd them Chaples & TE- c 260 PHE NS falshe. Pliny's Testimony, he makes have tay, That Protein Philadelphus huster sonsed? Is that mention'd in the Book of the AHI? that the latter transcrib'd them Chaples STE-c 26st PHE NS falshes. Pliny's Testmanny, he makes ham (h) Ber say, That Protony Philadelphus built a sine Townson nice, o the Red Sua, and call'd it Berense, after her Manther's Mame Pliny says only, (p) That that Town matrix bore the Name of Protony Philadelphus's Mother This parts me an mind of a fault of History, which I had laid aside. He makes Pliny say, that that Berness gave her Name to a Cary which she caus'd 6 c 29 to be built. Thus much concerning the 1st fault of

Ap ide

BERGAMAS (James Philip) issued from the Ancient Family of the Forests, was born at Bergamo, * in the Year 1434. He made himself a Monk in the Order of * See the Augustins, † in the Year 1451, and published some Books, whereby he was much RemarkA esteem'd, and amongst others, one entitl'd (A) Supplementum Chromcorum, and a + See Vos-Treatise of the illustrious Christian Women He was very || much belov'd by fius de Pope Innocent VIII and died at Bergamo 1 in the Year 1518 If he had died in the Histor Year 1515, as Morers says, would not have been 78, or 85 Years of Age, which are the two Opinions mention by Morers

BERGIER (Nicolas) was born at Reims, in the Year 1957 He studied in the Phil new University, which the Cardinal of Lorrain had lately established there, and was Labbe, de State Taccher in a for some Years. From the College he want to the Course de Same Years. also a Teacher in it for some Years From the College he went to the Count de Saint Eccles r Soupplet, Great Bailiff of the Province, to be Tutor of his Children, and afterwards pag 492 he embrac'd the Profession of an Advocate, wherein he had a very good Success
The Inhabitation of the City of Reims, who knew his Merit and Capacity, made him their Syndic, and deputed him often to Paris, for the Affairs of the City, which made him acquainted with several Learned Men, and amongst others, with Messeurs Poiresc and Du Pay, to whom he communicated the Design of his Book of the High-Ways of Peiresc and who encouraged him much to put it in Execution. For the Roman Empire, and who encouraged him much to put it in Execution For that end, Mr Perresc communicated the Map of Peutinger to him But of all Memothe Friends and Patrons that his good Qualities procurd him, the chief, and the most municated Famous, was Nicolas de Bellievre, President in the Parliament of Paris, by by Mr Ouwhose means he got a Brief of the Crown, which made him Historiographer, with a dinet, Pension of Two Hundred Crowns, and thit President took him into his House, where Keeper of he liv'd till he tappen'd the 15th of September, 1623 in the Castle of 15 the Grignon, belong Bellievre The Epitaph which that illustrious President

14th's Camade to the Memory of his Friend, is to be found in the Beginning of the History of biner of Me-Reims, printed in 1629 2 I shall speak hereafter (B) of Bergier's Works See also it dals

the End of this Dictionary, the Differtation on the Day, Remark (B)

BERIGARDUS (Claudius) one of the most subtil Philosophers of the XVII received in Century, was of Moulins He acquir'd fuch a Reputation in the University of Paris, & See the that the Great Duke of Florence got him to come to that of Pifa He taught Philosophy Prifac to there for twelve Years?, after which, he was invited to Padua, for the Time Protession his circular exercised it gloriously, when in 1642 he caused a Book to be Printed at Udina, which displeased (C) several Divines, the it was approved by the Holy Office He had 8 Phys publisht another at Florence, in the Year 1632 His Cut prefixed to the Book, print Arist ed in the Year 1643, makes him 51 Years of Age, but the Year of the Century is not 3 See hie

BERY-

of Charles Stephens The H is to have faid, that of Charles Stephens The II is to have faid, that there was a Berenice, the Daughter of Hered the Acalonise, who married her Brother Agrippa We have already found that Fault in Lloyd and Hofman, I loyd took it from Charles Stephens It may be, some body will tell me, you understand thate Words amis (a), Berenice, Herodis Ascalonise in Charles them as if the Meaning of 'em was, that Berenice them as if the Meaning of 'em was, that Berenice married her own Brother, but they must be understood in this Sense, that she was married to Agripha's Brother, which is the Sense (4) of Lloyd and pa's Brother, which is the Sense (4) of Lloyd and Hosman's Words I answer, That I explain the Latin Words of those three Authors, in the most natural sense, and that since the two latter confirm those Words by Juvenal's Verses, they meant, without doubt, that Agrippa was the Husband, and not the Husband's Brother I can at least con-of Chalcis Inc all Fault and the Afcolonite, whereby it appears, that Chales Stephens knew, ot, that Strabe leaks only of the Daughter of Salome. That Daughter makes a separate Article in his Dictionary, which shews, that he did not take the one for the other, but that he fancy'd two distinct Persons to himself, which might pass for a IV Mustake

(A) And amongs others, one metal'd Supplementum Chronicorum] It is also intitl'd Supplementum Supplementi I do not well know the Year of tim Supplement 1 do not well know the Year of the first Edition, but I know that the second is that of Bressia, 1485 The Author informs us himself, that he was then 51 Years of Age, and that he had corrected and enlarged it with much Application and Exactnets. He carried it from the beginning of the World to that same Year He world a new Edition of it at Emilia in the Year made a new Edition of it at Penies, in the Year 1503 which extends likewife to that Date. The Edition of Pers, 1535 was inlarg'd with an Hiftorical Absolutement from the Year 1503 to the Year when it was printed (c) Possion and (d) Bellormin say, that, that Work extends but to the Year 1436 They would deserve to be cenfured, though what they say should be true of the Year 1436 They would delerve to be cenfur'd, though what they fay should be true of the first Edition. Our Augustin had read much, and did not want Judgment, but he often mistakes the Proper Names, and has a barbarous Style (e)

(B) Of Bergier's Works] Besides the History of the High-ways of the Roman Empire, he composed allo le bouquet Royal, which is a Relation of the Coronation of Lewis the XIII printed at Roims, in the Year 1637 A Treatise of Day bicak, printed at Reims in the Year 1629 and which had been printed at Paris, in the Year 1617 with the Title of Archemeron, (f) Le dessende l'Histoire de Reims, printed in 1637 He wrote the Life of St Albert, with the History of the translation of his Body from Reims to Brussell, in the Year 1612 at the Request of the Arch-duke Albert He received a Chain of Gold for a Reward, which the Page 63 (f) Consult at the Request of the Arch-duke Albert He received Manuscript is in the Hands of the Author's Heirs, with some other Papers written with his own Hand, concerning the Excellency of good Learning, and the Antiquity and Excellency of Poetry and Speculative Massick, (g)

(C) A Book that displeased several Divines]

The Title of it is Circulus Pisanus See here the

(C) A Book that displeased several Divines and chiefly The Title of it is Circulus Pisanus See here the in the ReJudgment that an Arch-deacon of Canterbury made mark B of it (h) Hunc (Casalpinum) eddem impietatie vid Gratione non modu secutus est, sed superavit Claudius (g) Takon Berigardus Molinensti, qui und cum impid Aristotelus from a Mi-disciplind obsoletam istam quoque veterum Ionicorum morial (quemadmodum de us ipse censuit ac alu plerique cen- communi-(quemadmodum de sus sple cenjuit as alss plersque cenfuerunt) revocavit, cum enim disputationes suas dialogorum consuedine perserips, sermenem in duae personas Charilaum & Aristaum distribuet, querum alter Arifoelem, qui pracer miteriam, quendam primum motorom, providentia tamen supertem posuit, alter antiquos isso difendit, quos omnia corporea esc velle, nullumqua disputat de primum motorem ab universo terporeo dissinisse putavit acquo ados uno continque opere diversas cum Epicurea tum Puripatetica impiesatu raccones autornasis, quantum Puripatetica impiesatu raccones autornasis, quandique ados un continque opere diversas cum en acqui dissinisse autornas en acqui dissinisse acqui tum Paripatetica impiestatu rascones adernavit, quan- divina pag first Epils dedicatory to the Dubitati ones Gal I yncer (c) Vossius that displeased several Divines] and chiefly

(b) Bererodis Afcalonitæ Ma. Afratris uxor

6 Stephan Byzant in Toce Bupu-ጥር * Sec Berkelius in Steph Byzantin voce Pa-PUTOS A Strabe 1.b 16

p m 520 * Easeb in Chron n 2003

† Plinius 1165 c20 p m 574 Ulpianus d censibus apud Scale ani-20 A 10 171 Lusebium 2 100, p m 171 | Strabo ibid

(a) Id 1b р б8

(b) He was Prof. flor of Philosophy ar Siumur, at be Revocation of the Edut of Nuntes, and he has tun frice Kylor of Willoon Col-Leyden

(1) Petrus de Villemandy, n Supt i /mo debel-Iro pig 1.1

(1) Id 1b p 28, -9 () Th fe Are the Word. £x nsducı quidem notionem dilpolueiit, ac fapicntiffime iemit.

ted hinc nihil aliud esse, qu'im Universi totius Corporei vigorem, ab ipso sola ratione distinctum, cujus Universi singula partes divinitatis participes le iplis misceantur ad omnia componenda, nullo ilio intellectu ordinante, quam fua ipiarum energia, perinde ad finem optimum tendente, ac si ab aliqua mente diririnde ad finem optimum tendente, ac si ab aliqua mente dirigerentur I llemandy ubi supra, pag 100 He quotes Berigard circulor pisanor pitte 2 circulo 19 (f) At the Remark C (g) Nam & Beica am appellitum esse authoriest Lusebius in Chron tlandum in Plin 1 b 5 c 20 p 574 (h) Guil Grotius de vitis Jussey state (t) Scalig animado in Euseb n 1713 biggists (k) Menagius, jur Givil amanis cap 24 p m 132 (1) Frain the sisse that at book (m) Bertrand ubi infra p 4 ti) M Menage iv and William Grotius, ib consute him BERYTUS, a Sea-port Town of Phanicia, near Mount Lib nus, was (A'alfo call'd Beroe It was faid, that Saturn had built it It had a good Harbour, the Delcription whereof is to be found in the Itinerary * of John Phocas Strabo fives, that a it was ruin'd by Irypho, and rebuilt by the Romans "Twas * Augustus who rebuilt it, and who mide a Colony of it, which was cill'd † Julia Felix, and which enjoyed the fus Italicum Agrippa + led two Legions thither It was one of the three Cities wherein (B) the Civil Law was publickly taught, the other two were Rome and Confrantinople There is some ground to believe, that there were more (C) Profession in Berytus, than in any of the other two The Constagrations, Inundations, and Earthquakes, that ruin d it at several times, did not hinder the (D) I aw-Schools from being for up there again The Metropolitan Dignity that Theodofius the younger granted to the Bishop of Berytus (E) was only titular

St BER-

quam Ar stotelis disciplinam fusius & ardentius excoluit, atque eam potissimum quam libro Physicorum ottavo, librisque de Cælo & rerum Generatione tradidit, quibus universam mundi fabricam fine Providentia architectrice entruxisse se putat Philosophia Nique nefaria sua dog-mata disperse uno aut altero capite (ut Casalpinus) insinuavit, sed aperte omnem peripatetica impi tatis rationem secutus est, neque numinis providentiam ut ille e rerum natura tollere satis habuit, nist & salse dictis

(qualia vir non admodum facetus potuit) increparit
(a) Huni autim sicut & Cafalpinum, quanquam
nulto uberius rem tractavit, & quidem integrum peripatetica impictatis si stema descripsit, hoi loco redarque re operæ pretium non ex simo, quod in uno Aristotele vincantur qui ab eo st terunt omnes. Mi de Villemandy, (b) a Dench Minister, gives the time Judgment, for he looks upon B rigardus as a great I avourer of Pyrrhon fix, and as a Propagator of Imprety (c) Visigue eque (Pomponatu) institt Bergardus in Circulis Pisanis sub seculi bujus initium Quanta ab his, nonnullisque alies cjustem ordines doctoribus, malorum siges in scienti s, societate civili, & religione luvuriarit, norunt end ti He explains himself more fully in another place (d) Insorum quidem dubitationes, contendendique pruritus, eo usque non evagantur, ut rel Divinam Providentiam, vel etiam Existentiam, aperie summo cani, ita tam'n procedunt corum non nulli, nt summo er coelle videantur uteunque sit, sus-peri est admodum eo em religio ac sides. Cum, ex g Cliudius Berigardus, in Circulis sus Pitanis, res omn physicas, imo & D vinas plei asque, ex principiis Arifloteli ita diclarit & aftinit ut casdem illas ex oppositis Anaximandri hypothesibus, purum athismum redol nt bus, cont nuo impugnet ac subvertat, an quic-quam in rebus Physici stabile & immotum relinquit? Norne con in perpetue | na illa libratione cunttas fuspendit & Deinac quo ten ! t affumpta hac Anaximandri byposhesis, quam Ber vardus Aristotelica longe praf rs, nisi co ut in Supremi Numinis, cjusque Providentia locim infin tam quandam ma eriam, infinitis corporibus dissim landus ex scipsis mobilibus, constatam, hoc est, in Veti Dei locum Cacain Naturim substituat? He quotes him page 1 c, as having faid a thing that is full of I ibertinism, but the (e) Words which he deribes to him, and which are printed in Italick I etters, are not to be found in his Writing M de Vill mandy should therefore have told his Realize the handy should therefore have told his Realize the handy should therefore have told his Realize the hand of the statement. ders, that he did not quote the Text of Berigardus, but the Paraphi de of his Fhought I have quoted that Author in (f) the Article of Ruffinus (A) U. a. also cill d Beroe | The Testimony of Eustebeur, alledged by I ather (g) Hardouin, nor that of Stephanus Byzantinus, alledged by William (h) Gio-tius, cannot serve me for a Proof, for I have not found that I usebius not Stephanns Byzantinus lay fo Virtutis My Proofs are those that Scaliger (1) tound in the cujus-dim, quæ Boytus, and in the 41st Book of the Dionystaca of omnia Norms, and those that Mr Menage (1) discover'd in the third Book of the time Dionystaca, and in an (1) Epigrim of the Anthology, where Bertrand (m) would without Renfon (n) have chang'd the Word Bipon into that of Bayunus

(B) One of the three Cities wherein the Civil Law was publickly raught] In all the Roman Empire, there were but those three Cities that were permitted to have Schools of Law, which is a furprising thing, when one considers the Extent of that Limpine, and more surprising still, when one thinks on the many Universities that are it present in Errope What a Change of Customs! The seven United-Provinces, that are but one Point on the Map, in comparison of the Roman Monarchy, have two or three times more Schools of the Civil Law, than there was in that vast State Let us prove what we ought to prove (o) Hac autem tria volumina (They are Justinian's Words) a nobis compositational eist am invents (p) urbibus quam in Birytiensium pulcheri ima civitate, (quam & legum nutricem bene quis appellet) tantummodo e est i le suvolumus quad jam & a retro principibus constitutum est, & non in aliis locis que a Majoribu tale non meruerint privilezium. Those Words inform us, That the Predecessor Tustiman sixt the number of the Schools of Civil Law to three, but it is not known at what time this was done. The first, who in Mr Menage's Opinion (q) mention'd the School of Berius, is Gregory Thaumaturgus, (1) who liv'd under Levander Sevierus. The Lecclesinstical Hastory of Lecture (1) makes mention of a tong Marrier of Alexander Severus The Ecceleratical Factory of Eusebius (s) makes mention of a young Martyi, that fuffer d death under the Empire of Maximan, whi support and who had studied at Berytus That School was P 13, then (t) very flourishing It was no selss so, when Zaihary of Mitylene with against Ammonius He (r) In a Calls Berytus Antice Tax vivos, parinten legum He tione Passis Berytus Antice Tax vivos, parinten legum He tione Passis Ithe 11th Volume of the Bibliotheca Pairum, in the Litton of Paris, 1644 the 11th Volume of the Bibliotheca Pairum, in the Little of Paris, 1844.

(c) More Professin Berytus, than in any of the other two] The Title de fudits liberalibus urbis Roma & Constantinopolitana, in the Theodosian Code, and in that of fustinian informs us, That there were but two Professions Law at Rome, and two at Constantinople Now as Justinian addresses the Constitution, d still doctral at one, to eight Profession the 1 in, it must be concluded, that there were four of them in the School of Britus in vitis See M1 Menage, (u)

(D) Not hind r in I am Schools from being fet up there again I or proot of it, Ill give you the tol- P m s lowing Words of Franc's Brudonin (x) Berytum who quot Syria urbem susse nutricem legum Ro ait nossir Just 1 1 ut & matrem Juriprudentia Lunopius vocat, & ante et utrumque Nonnus nulto magis Quid igitur! sempore cus Constanti terra motu convulsim susse ait calirens ed susse restitution & tempore sussiminant nostri storusse ubis Cum vero Justinianus jam illi suos juris civicontact Cum viro justinianus jam illi juos juris civilis libros explicandos tradidister, ecce horibiliori terre (x) Franmotu cum auditorious & doctoribus absorpta est Testis ciscus Bilest Agathias Sediden testis est eo casu minime deteritum justin anum susse quoninus illam instaurarest fractium justin anum susse quonagis semper extaret se C de part des jurisprudenti e Minum voro, ecce paulo post inundatione or incendio iterum vastatam este elego Nim id testa virole des communicationes des communications de communication de tamen cofferunt talibus tempestatibus qui afflicta jurisprud n'i a opem ferre debuer unt

(E) Was only titular] Theodossus the younger, being imposed upon by Eustathius Bishop of Berytus, made this Decree, (y) Propter multas justasque causas Metropolitano nomine & dignitate civitatem Berytum de-cernimus exornandam, jam suis virtutibus coronatam Igitur bæc quoque Metropolitanam habeat dignitatem, Tyro nihil de suo jure derogetur Sit illa mater Provincia majorum nostrorum benesicio bæc nostro. The Emperour declaies, that he will not lessen the Rights of the Metropolis of Tyre in any manner whatsoever He did not pretend then, that the Bishop of Berytus did strike at any of those Rights Nevertheless, Eustathius, spur'd by Ambition, usurpt ulurpt

(o) fust 1fat in diris docemdi ratione

(p) That is Rome and Constan-tinople

(4) Menag ubi supra

(r) In oratione Paneryrua ad Or giin vitis Juniconf who quotes et se ex-(u) Menag ubisupra (x) Fran-

(v) It is in the 11th Book of the Code of Justinian

tus quam rus, ad fui totius orfent,ut ab

eius monitis & exemplis tota res

Monafti-

ca & Ecclesiastica

pendere vila lit,

ut ab ejus oraculis præfules.

principes,

confilium

populi expeterent.

eumque

ınducın-rum ac

pacis ai-bitrum

agnoscerent, & fe

tionibus

Ordines

cupiverint effe

commendatos Franci Crus

Amboesius prafat

apologetica

Abalardo prefixe operib

Abalardi

† A

of Cicero.

concern-the Capitol, apply-ed to the Deposita-

Truth

B See the Remark I

cleBerengarius
(b) Gene-

fis the

Ioth wa

ing the omnes

St. BERNARD, Abbot of Clairvaux, flourisht in the XII Century, he acquir'd 'Plus fa-such a great effect ', that it seem'd as if the whole weight of the Church lay on his Shoulders, and that Kings and Princes had made choice of him for the general Arbi-te adeptrator of their Differences It is certain, that he had very great Talents, and a great tus quam deal of Zeal, but (A) some pretend, that his Zeal made him too jealous of those, Salomon deal of Zeal, but (A) some pretend, that his Zeal made him too jealous of those, salomon who acquir'd a great Name by the study of Human Learning; and they add, that his mild and easy Temper render'd him too credulous, when he heard any Evil reported of those Learned Persons Desire, that by reason of those Principles, he omnes in suffer'd infinitely to be too much preposses, that by reason of those Principles, he omnes in suffer'd infinitely to be too mach preposses against Abelard It is difficult to imagine, that he was free from human Passions, when he made it his business, to cause all those that seem'd heterodox to him, to be overwhelm'd with Anathema's But it is very same and the Ardour wherewith he prosecuted furnamental those conceives that his group and the Ardour wherewith he prosecuted furnamental those services and the Ardour wherewith he prosecuted furnamental those services are the services and the Ardour wherewith he prosecuted furnamental those services are the services and the Ardour wherewith he prosecuted furnamental those services are the services and the Ardour wherewith he prosecuted furnamental those services are the services and the Ardour wherewith he prosecuted furnamental those services are the services and the Ardour wherewith he prosecuted furnamental those services are the services and the services are the services are the services and the services are the services are the services and the services are the services easy to conceive, that his good Reputation, and the Ardour wherewith he prosecuted fur nomethe Condemnation of his Adversaries, surprized the Judges, and made the accused Persus, ad sur fons fink under the weight of those irregular Proceedings However it be, he verified the Interpretation of his Mother's Dream She dreamt, when she was with child of him, that she should be deliver'd (B) of a white Dog, whose barking would be very sonorous Being frighted with this Dream, she consulted a Religious, who told her, Be of good courage, you shall have a Son (C) that shall keep God's House, and bark much against the Enemies of the Faith St Bernard did more than the Prediction imported, for he barkt sometimes & against chimerical Enemies, against Livors that were either meer Trifles, or wrong Interpretations of the Words and Thoughts of others. And whether aftirpt the Authority over many Churches that held of the Metropolis of Tyre Complaints were made of it to the Council of Challedon, who restrained him within his Bounds, and the Privilege that Theodofiss had granted him, was like that which Marcian granted afterwards to the City of Chalcedon Challedon or countains and Cantle Edwards Chalcedonensem civitatem in qua santia fidei concilium gestum est Metropolis privilegia habere sancimas nomine tantum, salva videlicet Nicomedicossium micati propria dignitate Consult Father Nor-

But some pretend that his Zeal, &c] I have quoted a long Passage of Francis d' Amboise, in the Margin of this Article, here is another longer (b) Pace igitur Sunti: Abbatis liceat dicere qu de eo ausus est Annalibus mandare ejus discipulus Clarevallenfi, quondam Monachas, demum Abbas Moremontanus Otho Episcopus Frisingensis, Leopoldi Pit Marchio-nis Austria filius, Frederici I Enobarbi, cujus vitam nis Austria filius, Frederici I Anobarbi, cujus vitam scripsti patruus, qui quamvis Abbatem suum in magna habaterit veneratione, tamen scribilitia ex Religionis Christiana servore zelotypum, de pabitudinali (se enim loquitur) mansuetudine quodamido credulum, ut Magistros qui humanis rationibus de saculari sapieutia considenter nimium inbarebant abborreret, de de talibus fin the guid recitanti facile aurem præberet, juxa il-le mi mond yeninum en nænai mengimi Quo alitut sibi in animum induxerit quedam esse dista ripta ab Abælardo quæ non essent, aut quæ in ve-In partem accipi non deberent

(B) That she should be delivered of a White Dog]

Her Name was Aletba, her Husband, the Tather of St Bernard, was call'd Tesselinus Cum mater Aletba axor Tesselinus in utero gestaret, somnio vidit prasagium suturi partus, catellum scilicei se paritaram totum candidum, in dosso subrusum o clare la-

ram totum candidum, in doi so subrustum & clare latrantem (c)

(L) Tou shall have a Son that shall bark much the Enomies of the Faith] I shall bark much she Enomies of the Faith] I shall quote again a shoile (d) Cui (Aletha) de illo terricum shair spiramine afflatus optimi catuli mater one detective and substitution of the white and Red, as others do, who say (e) That the White and Red, as others do, who say (e) That the would be mild and say (e) That the White and Red, as others do say (e) That the would be will and say (e) Tha Impious and Strangers, and that he would bark continually at them for it is the Property of a good Dog, to carefs his Master's Friends and Domesticks, and to fly with great Fury at Strangers in pergrinos ferus & atrex ees cauda eretta continua latratabus, imo morfibus interdum insectious (f) Fronces & Amboise omitting that Distinction of the two Colours, observes, that St Bernard (g) consisted the Prophecy, and spar'd no body He fell upon Abelard, Arnould of Brise, Peter de Bruys, Gilbert Perstanue, &c In a word, they do not do hem suffice, that call him only a Hound, or a Mastast Dog; he ought in some sense to be compar'd to Nimrod, and styl'd, a mighty Hunter before the

Give me leave to make a Digression about Bernard's Mother's Dream It was a lucky Thought of him that explain'd it, for in short, is there a better Symbol of Vigilance than a Dog? Can there be a more natural Image of the Assaults given to Error, as well were voce, as in Writing, than the Barking of a Dog? Only one must take care, not to carry the Comparison too far, since there are but too many Persons in all Countries, and in all Ages, who, to avoid being call'd dumb Dogs, bark at all times, and bite and tear all those who do not please them † Those Dogs that were kept at Rome to guard the Capitol, were design'd to make a noise if any Robbers came in And for that reason it was not thought strange, that they barkt in the Night, if they heard any body, for it is an unseasonable time that gives ground for Suspicions, and therefore they let them bark, whether those whom they heard go by, were honest Men or Thieves But if those Dogs had barkt in the Daytime at those that came to the Temple to pay their the Barking of a Dog? Only one must take care, time at those that came to the Temple to pay their Devotion, they would have had their Legs broken I borrow this from an ancient Roman, the Application is easy to be made (1) Anscribus cibaria publice locantur, & canes aduntur in Capitolio ut significent si sures venerint. At sures internoscere non possunt, significant tamen, si qui noctu in Capitolium venerint. & quia id est suspiciosum, tamens bestia sunt, tamen in eam partem potius peccant que est cautior Quod si luce quoque canes latrent quam dess salutatum aliqui venerint, opinor sis crura suffringantur, quod acres sint etiam tum quam suspicio nulla sit. The publick maintains you to guard the Truth, make a noise then against all Comers, if you have ingenuity enough to compare your self to a Dog, that cannot discern any body in the Darkness of the Night. If you are in darkness by reason of your Incapacity, the because Passions cloud your Judgment, and if you have the honesty to acknowledge the Obscuraty that surrounds you, you ought to be excus'd, but if you pretend to the Quality of a great Doctor, who acts only for the Glory of God, without any motive of personal Revenge, and if nevertheless you involve a great number of good Men into your Libels and Denunciations, you deserve to be punisht, you are unworthy of your Station, you are a Dog that falls indifferently on Friends and Foes, which shuft needs cause a thouquoque canes latrent quum deos salutatum aliqui vene-Station, you are a Dog that falls indifferently on Friends and Foes, which must needs cause a thou-sand Disorders. You are one of those English Mashiss, on which the Jesuit Maintheary. (k) once made one of the 4 parts of his Sermon run. Many Prints stuff'd with Lamentations, and Extracts of complaining Letters have been seen in Holland within these few Years, (1) as if a very consideration. ble (1) Cicero

Amerino, aper t 2 fol m 12 A (2) See the Preface prefixed to the Defence of the French Translation of the New Testament, printed of Mons, Edition of Cologne, 1668 (1) The Bishop of Meaux drew great Advantages from them in his Advantasees from them in his Advantasees from the Works of the Learned, May 1692 pag 409, & seq

(a) Noris de anno & epochis Saro-Macedonum differt A cap 3 par 400 401 edit Lips

1696 (i) Ir Amboesius prafat operibus Abtelard: præ-

· Id ib ex Willelmol 1 wite Bernardi (d) Ibid

(e) See Philippus Casius a Zesen, in celo Allemomi-PME: 256

(f) Id ib (g) Furmavit vacinium entus, nec enim ulli pepercit

Amboe! k supra

* Vita Bern lib pud Ly-ftrum tract de polygam pag 130 † 1 nSe&f Xl Supplementorum, tom 1 p 566 I heoph Raynud De malis ic bonis libris,pag 166 and in Theol calls him wrong Mi-chael I find that Thomasi us de plagio liter p 189 quest ons whither it be a fault Hi Should not have doubted of + Colomes Gall

> (a) Amboefius, uli lupra

Orient

(b) Id 1b

1 ides /y Father Maimbourg / 4 P 39 & 1eq of the 2d part, e-Holland

(d) The Author of Jeveral Thoughts on Comets, 779, 789

(e) Tom 2 1 1 ch 9 P 578 ad ann 1572

(f) Ibid chap 12 Pag, 599, 600

he was in the right or in the wrong, he could (D) give the Alarm admirably well, and make the I hunder of his Victories Eccho. He was more successful in exterminating the Heterodox, than in the ruin of the Infidels, and yet he attackt the latter not only with the Arms of his Eloquence, but also with the extraordinary Arms of Prophecy By that me ins he increas'd the Troops of the Crusade more than can be express'd, but all the fur promises wherewith he fed them turn'd into smoke, and when they complain'd that he had sent a vast number of Christians to the slaughter, without surring our of his Country, he came off with faying, (E) that the Sins of those, who had taken up the Cross, had hinder'd the effect of his Prophecies There's no Impostor but may hide himself behind such a Retrenchment St Bernard was Canonized He is one of the greatest Saints of the Roman Communion, and it is pretended, that he wrought a world of Miracles both in his Life-time, and after his Death that * once he went up to his Neck into the Water to free himself from the Temptation into which the sight of a Woman had induc'd him The best Edition that we have tion into which the fight of a Woman had induc'd him. The best Edition that we have of his Works, is that of 1690. It is the second that the Learned Father Mabilion took care to procure The Journalists of Lespsick + have spoken very exactly of it It is accompany'd with divers learned Presaces It is acknowledged in one of them, that St Bernard taught, That the Souls of the Blessed are received into Heaven, and into the Society of the Angels as foon as they are separated from their Bodies, but that they enjoy only the sight of the Humanity of JESUS CHRIST, and not the fight of GOD

BEROALDUS (Matthew) born at Paris, taught the Hebrew Tongue at Orleans 1565 Those of Rochel offer d him an Imployment in their College in the Year ın 1565 1571 | I believe he did not accept of it He was in Sancerre when the Marshal de la Chatre belieg'd it a little after the Para Massacre, and he did the Inhabitants great Scrvices by his good (A) and courageous Counsels. At his going away from Sancerre, he retir'd to Sedin, where he read Historical Lectures. Every Body was not edify'd (B) with the manner wherewith it is pretended that he spoke of Francis I in his

ble part of the Ministers sled from France, had confipir'd to introduce the most abominable Errors wherever they are dispers'd But after all, not one guilty Person has been discover'd, what pains soever have been taken about it Ought not such Dogs, destitute of Discernment, to be punish'd?

(D) He could give the Alarm, &c.] I only follow the Footsteps of the Sieur d'Ambosse, a very good Catholick He observes, that St Bernard's Letters written to the Prelates of Rome and to the Pope, were the fittest in the World to preposses and initate them against Abelard, they mention'd and illitate them igainst Abelard, they mention'd nothing but Sacrileges, Lyons and Dragons (a) Ligite si placet librum quem dicit Theologia, legite Galum quem dicunt sententiarum ejus, necono Gillum qui inscribitur Scito tenssum, Ganimadvertite quanta ibi silviscant Segetes sacrilegiorum & errorum

Leonem evasimus, sed incidimus in draconem He was not contented to write in his own Name, but di-Etated fome Letters to the Archbishop of Reims and to three of his Suffragants, in which they demanded the I hunders of the Court of Rome, and when they hid obtain'd the Condemnation of the Propositions they had sent to the Pope, they caus'd it to be sounded abroad as a full Victory, tho at the History the bottom, the Pope had pronounced nothing another Crugainst Abelard's Person Their sources and their gaint Abelard's Person I heir stourishes and their great bustle hinder devery where the Accused's Cause from having any hearing. They preposses'd every Body's Mind These are the common Artifices of Cabalists, I do not say that others never made use of 'em (b) At accusatores potentissimi tanguan albis equis triumphantes latum paana cantarunt, victoriamque suam toto orbe disseminarunt, ita ut mifir ille inauditus apud probos quamplurimos male audi-rei, & ejus exemplaria qua Galliam Italiamque Splendore collusti arant, tanquam horrende creminis carmina vel voracibus rogis cremanda traderentur, vel in situ, Squalore & cinere veterum bibliothecarum latitantia pu-

(E) He came off with saying, that the Sins] It is in truth, the Center of his Manifesto, (c) for if he alleges the Example of Moses to secure himself by the Authority of a great Name, it is because he pretended that the Members of the Crusade were no less polluted with Crimes than the Children of Israel, and that therefore both had diverted dren of Israel, and that therefore both had diverted the effects of the Promises See what a (4) Modern Philosopher thought upon the Mind a (a) Modern Philosopher thought upon the Mind and sourageous Counsels] D Aubigne observes it in two places (e) The Sancerrois fays he, composed also a Council, wherein they chiefly found themselves very happy in Beroaldus, formerly between the Mind Council the Council of the Coun brew Reader at Orleans He accompanied hit Coun-fels with Courage The (f) Besteged being very Sels with Courage much astonish d at those News, wanted to be supported by their Pastors But chiefly by the wise and courageous Counsels of Beroaldus, according to which, they resolved to endure all the Miseries of a Siege, and that those that would not consent to it, should be thrown over the Walls

(B) Was not edify'd with the manner wherewith it is pretended that he spoke of Francis I] A Minister, who was then at Sedan, and who Abjur'd his Reliwho was then at Sedan, and who Abjur'd his Religion afterwards, caus'd what follows to be printed
(g) "It is to be noted, that Matthew Beroaldus (g) De"a learned Man among them, and one of their fence of "Professors, being retird from Sancerre to SeMatthew
"dan, was desir'deby the President la Louette and de Lau"some others, to make some Lectures, which he did in the same place where they preach'd, and
"the fet forth a Chronology which he said that he Pennetier
"had made Now being come to the Reign at Ming Lately Ming. had made Now being come to the Reign of King lately Mi-francis Ist of that Name, a Prince of Glori-nifers, &co ous Memory, and whom we may justly call pag 32 the Father of Learning, and Restoier of Sci-This Book ences in this Kingdom of France, Advantages was prin-that cannot be sufficiently valu'd, and which all ted at Pa-Europe selt afterwards Being, I say, come to ris in the the Reign of that Great and Virtuous Prince. Tear 1577 Europe felt afterwards Being, I fay, come to ris in the the Reign of that Great and Virtuous Prince, Year 1577 he ipoke so impudently, and irreverently of him, and of his most Illustrious, and most Christian Posterity, that I know not one Man breathing the Air of France, but would have been fcandaliz'd at it. The Prefident, the Bayliff, and other Magistrates, and all the Ministers residing them at Sedan, were present, who, if they hadelad a Christian and French Heart, and not ungrateful for the Banasis received by the means of Learns. for the Benefit receiv'd by the means of Learning, which that good Prince caus'd to be revived. it is certain, they would have been offended at it as well as myfelf, and would not have tolerated fuch a Perion At least, the President, and others who had Authorities and others who had Authorities and others. others, who had Authority in the City, would have given notice of it to the Lord of the Place, who being well-affected to the good of this Crnwn, and the King's Service, would, I am fure, have punished him according to his deferts But it was smother'd I spoke of it myself to the President, shewing him some other faults that the said Beroaldus had committed in Chronology, and I exhorted him by the Obedience that we all owe to our Prince, and for the Honour that the faid Beroalaus nau Communications of our Prince, and for the Honour of our Nation, to perform his Duty in it, who answer'd me somewhat faintly, That he could have wish'd it had not been said, and that it was in truth, a piece of Imprudence Yet he made his report of my Remonstrance Which incens'd them the more against me, nevertheless without shewing any outward appearance of it, except Lectures. I cannot tell in what time he was (C) Minister of Geneva, but it & See the cannot be question'd that he was so, and since he taught Philosophy there s in the Year 1576, there is some reason to believe, that he exercis'd the Ministry there at that time. He publish'd a Book of Chronology in the Year 1575 wherein there is doubtless much Learning, but little Solidity In striving to honour the Scripture, he loses himself in a labyrinth which he cannot get out of He pretends, that no other Guide is to be follow'd in the Doctrine of Times, than the Writings inspir'd (D) by Biblioth GOD Scalsger has plainly show'd the nullity of that Hypothesis, but he has been too passionate against that Author Moreri went too sar, when he affirm'd, That besides the Latin Chronology, there appear'd many other Works of Beroaldus, and that he dy'd towards the Year 1575, or 76 La Croix du Maine, whom he quotes, does not say so, and that Beroaldus was no longer living in the Year 1584 and that it was likely, Printed his other Compositions would be publish'd by the care of his Son the Sieur de Ar Lyons and 1581 cannot be question'd that he was so, and since he taught Philosophy there & in the Annotati

BEROALDE (Francu) Sieur de Verville, Son of the foregoing, was born at (E) as La Paris the 28th of April 1558 r He was a Man of Learning and Paits, but he did not make choice of proper Matters to perfect his Natural Gifts He took the pains Maine to Translate Polyphilus's Dream, and afterwards to Compose a Piece of the same pays p graphical The Tennels of fortunate Princes, and he call'd it Steganographical Croix du He wrote several other Books of Chimistry, and several (F) forts of tedious Romances, that were little better than the Willings of Nerweze, and of the Sieur des Esquited enterman Perhaps he would have done better to have continued to exercise himself on page 48 the same Matters by which he appear'd first in publick Being but twenty two Years of # Eraimus Age he publish'd some Commentaries * on the Mechanicks of James Besson But epist 4 the had scarce try'd his Fortune that way, but he ran after the Philosopher's Stone In the Year 1583 came out of the Press † His Spiritual Apprehensions, Poems, and other Philosophical Works, with some Inquiries after the Philosopher's Stone The Year after, he Biblioth, Saus'd & Poem to be printed in the Mean of a Republish caus'd a Poem to be printed intituled, || The Idea of a Republick

BERQUIN (Lewis) A Gentleman of the Country of Artois, was burnt for the Protestant Religion at Paris the 22d (A) of April 1529 He was Lord | of a Village, of of the 24th which he bore the Name, and he was very much esteem'd in the Court of France, Book, Pag which he bore the Name, and he was very much entern u in the Court of Trans, and honour'd with the Title & of the King's Counfellor He lived y a good Life, 1277 and practis'd the Precepts of the Church regularly He was a Lay-man and unmarry'd, (k) It is nevertheless, no ill report was spread of him concerning his Chastity Erasmus, who had Book

"cept by some cross looks But they sought an oc"casion for it" I am willing that this Discourse should be as much suspected of falsity as one pleases, and if it be false, so much the better for this Distingary, which ought chiefly to contain the Falsities of other Books Let this be faid with respect to a great many other possess that with respect to a great many other passages that shall be quoted

shall be quoted

(C) In what time he was Minister of Geneva] Beza does not mark it, he only gives Berealdus the quality of his Collegue in the Church, which imports, as Colomies (a) well observes, that Beroaldus exercis'd the Ministry at Geneva He also taught Philosophy there, as the same Colomies observes (b), and as it may be prov'd by the Epistle Dedicatory that Lambers Danaeus, placed before the Treaty of Heresies It is said there, that in 1576 Matthew Reroaldus taught Philosophy in Geneva Here are that Lambers Danaus, placed before the Treaty of the Suefice of the Samuel of the sue of the Samuel of the Samuel of the Samuel of the Samuel of the Caralogue of the Kings of Persia, for the Chronologue of the Sue of the Scripture, que nomine quie nanguem extant in scripture, que nomine quie nanguem extant in scripture, que nomine quie nunquem extant in scripture of explaining the Times, Fanatical and Prophetical (a) the Scripture could never have been distintantled from the calls Parens Hierophantam Beroal-dinum

(2) Ma-

(E) Was born at Paris] Mr de Marelles (g) ought then to put him out of the Lift which he has given of the Famous Tourangeaux.

(F) Several forts of tedious Romances I It was he Demonothat writ The Adventures of Florida, Minervas Cloman lib 4 fet, The Maid of Orleans, The History of Herodias, chap last p and some other Works (b), wherein he intromagnetic forms were not very incentious and when the Different Property incentious and when the Different Communication of the property incentious and when the Different Communication is a second when the property incentions and when the property incentions are the property incentions. duces some Lords and Ladies, whole Conversations were not very ingenious, and what is to be esteem'd therein, is, the Sentiments of Honour and Virtue, which are the finest in the World, with many Secrets of Nature and Art, by means whereof many extraordinary things of the Life are perform'd, whereas the ancient Romances of Henry apply d all to Magick for want of Invention and Learning"

(m) The

(A) The 22d of April 1529 | We have a proof Night foloof this Chronology in a Letter (1) of Erasmus da-lowing, ted the 1st of July 1529 | It contains an ample re-which was lation of the Lite and Death of Lewis de Berquin St Mar-It is expresly noted there, that he was burnt deci- tin s Eve mo Calend Majas That proof would fix the Day The Frost of his Death, were it not for another Letter of spoil d the Erasmus, where the execution of Berquin (k) is Corn in plac'd on the 17th of April XV Calend Majas, which I rance, is the same date that Bodin (1) made use of Letter is dated the 9th of May 1529 All that Eras-caus'd a mus can do, 1s to fix us to the Month of April 1529 Famine we must look on all the other varieties as mistakes we must look on all the other varieties as mistakes and Plague Mezerai (1) is mistaken in the Year, and it may be in divers also in the Day, he affirms, that Berquin was burnt places, Beon the 21st of April of the Year 1521 John Grepin 2a Hist in the Acts of the Martyrs, places the Death of Leclei this Man in the Month of May in general 1529 Bell 1 p 8 2a places it (m) on the 10th of November in the (n) ld in same Year, in his Ecclesiastical History, and in anicombus other Writing (n) Frugibus notice post interitum illius (o) Sponproxima (qui fuit undecimus dies Novembris amo Domini 1529) in tota Gallia frigore perustu, & gravissima tum fame tum estam peste consequents Spondanus (o) plainly shews that he is in an error by the 4th Letter of the 24h Book of Erasmus, which being dated
(p) Juditer of the 24h Book of Erasmus, which being dated the 1st of July 1529 mentions Berguin's Execution, but he is afterwards mistaken when he gives the reason why he thinks that Beza salissied that date He says, that it was done to make that which was to be said on the Judgments of GOD, more likely Beza (p) says, That Heaven declared for umphaberause abrogated the Sentence of the Judges, rit, srugible because the following Night, the Cold spoil'd all bus nocte the Corn in the Kingdem, from whence a great &c Be22, ibid

(1) Bodin

and Plague

(a) CololiaOrient pag 46

(b) Ibid P#8 45 (c) Beza ın acta A. postol c 13 v 20 where

(z) Mrmeirs, p

598 had learn'd these particulars from some Persons, whom he could not mistrust, adds; B Ibid p. a that they had also inform'd him, that Bergus abhorr'd Lutheranism, and * that the Hoc ajebant in co Crimen effe graviffimum qued ingenuè præ fe fenı mir morofos quoidam theologos ac monachos non roces quam sto-lidos In debacchabatur, nec ftomachum fuum disfimulare poterat Ibid † Guil-helmus Quernus, or à Quercu Sec the Remarks B and L 1 Taken from the 4th Letter of the 24th Book of Lrasmus See & more tion of that Tryal 18 one of Berquin's Lrasmus dated from Paris the

pag 874 (a) Recolles's true Hist of Calvinilm pag

17th of April 1526

rıæ Eccle-

fiast supplemento

and pub-lish'd by John Fechtius

(b) In the RemarkH

great Crime that was found in him was, that he made an open Profession of hating morose and peevish Divines, and Monks that were no less sierce than ignorant. He spoke very ill of them publickly. Which open'd the way to a bloody War, that begun with a Quarrel which he had (B) with one of † the most violent Inquistors of that time. They did not stay long before they accus'd him as a Heretick. Some Propositime They did not itay long before they accuse a night as a reference. Some Propositions were taken out of a Book that he had publish'd, whereupon he was Imprison'd; but the Judges finding (C) no Crime in him, accquitted him. The Accusers nectended that he had escap'd Punishment by the Royal Authority. As for him, he had he was not beholden to any Body, but to the justice of his Cause, and he behave himself as formerly. He turn'd (D) some of Erasmus's Books into French, and added something of his own to them. Immediately Noel Beda and his Emmissaries began a new War, they extracted several things out of those Books, and having inform'd against them, as permissions Errors, they occasion'd the Author's second Emerisance. against them as permicious Errors, they occasion'd the Author's second imprisonment The Cause being judg'd, some Monks went to tell him the definitive Sentence that was In given against him Which was, That his Books should be burnt, that he should retract his Errors, and should submit himself to such Satisfactions as should be prescrib'd to him, and that, if he refus d it, he would be Burnt He being a Man of an inflexible and intrepid Spirit, would not submit to any thing, and it is likely he would have been Burnt, if some Judges perceiving the excessive Animosity of the Accuscrs, had not contriv'd the matter so, that the Business was examin'd again Many are of Opinion, that this was done at the Recommendation of the Lady Regent, Mo-

thing more easy than to criticise Beza very well on this Point For 1st, it is to dispose of the particu-lar Providence of GOD a little too rashly, to say, that the Scourges that desolate a whole Kingdom, are a vengeance for the unjust Death of a Man In the 2d place, Cold can do but little damage to Corn the 10th or 11th of November They sow at that time, almost all the Kingdom over, and it is at least very certain, that the greatest part of what is sowed is out of danger at that time So that if Beza had had a premeditated design to falsify the date, he would have taken our not to pitch upon the Eve or the Day of St Martin The right time noted by Erasmus, was a great deal more proper for his Resection, for Cold may hart the Fruits of the Earth towards the end of April Thus you see how Spondanus might have consuted the moial Resection of Beza If he had Criticiz'd him by my first Consideration, he are a vengeance for the unjust Death of a Man In Criticiz'd him by my first Consideration, he would have dif-arm d himself, for he is as much us'd as any Body to fay, fuch and fuch Evils have happen'd for the Punishment of this or that One (a) of those that writ against Maimbourg's History of Calvinsm, observes, that Berguin was Executed the 22d of March the Eve of St Martin, Pope, in the place Maubert What he adds of Dr Merlin, and which I shall relate hereafter (b), persuades me, that he transcrib'd Beza, only he took notice that the Month of November not being a time wherein Corn can receive any damage by the Cold, he fought another St Martin's Eve

Famine and Mortality proceeded There was no-

LET it be no wonder, that the Day of fuch a Martyrdom was not well known to the Protestant Martysdom was not well known to the Protestant Writers, and that they have variously reported that date. The Battle of Cerisoles, the Death of Antony de Bourbon King of Navurre, the Baricades of Paris in the time of Henry III were not better dated by great Authors. See the Extract that Mr Bornard gave of a Book of Father du Londol in his News from the Republick of Learning, page 224 of the Month of February 1699

(B) A Quarrel which he had with one of the most violent Inquisitors.] Berquin was no ways a Coward, he must have had a great Courage, fince he fear'd neither an Aquercu, nor a Noel Beda. He durst not neither an Aqueren, nor a Noel Beda He durst not only defend himself against them, but attack them also Beza praises him for it (c) Adfuit autem animi tanta generofitas, ut maxime unnium tune mesuen edes crairenes in ipsis corum cavis, Redam videlices & à Quercu (de quibus scripferat procul illes configen ther of Francis I to save Berquin During these Transactions, Francis I return'd from Spain, and hearing of the danger his Counsellor was in, he wint to the Parliament to take great care of what should be done, and that he would hear Lewis de Berquin's Cause himself Some time after, that Prisoner was set at liberty This rais'd his Courage in such a manner, that he was so bold as to accuse his Accusers He brought an Action of Irreligion against them, and flatter'd himself to obtain a compleat Victory 4 If he had follow'd the Judicious Advice of Erasmus, he would have look'd upon it as a great Triumph (E) not to be opprest by those Men, instead of hoping to bring them to Reason. But if on the one side, he sound himself the Erasmus, Lutetia Betam Sapere & Quercum conclinaris Mataologorum ejus seculi principes, in ipso eorum stanqui-linio sit ausus non modò utcunque lacessere, sed impietatis etiam accusatos non unius anni certamine tum tum scriptis frenue exercere See here what Erasmus lays concerning the Process wherein Berguin was the Aggressor (d) Non enim solum promittebus sibilationem, verumetiam victorium esse in manibus, adjointionem, verumetium victorium eye in manious, sed malle serius alsquantismiri causam, quo magnissientius triumpharet successive mutatis vicibus, ipsam facultatem sacratissimam, monachos & Beddaicos reos peragebat impietatis Nam quedam arcana deprehenderat in illorum actis See the Remark A, of the

Acticle Beda

(C) The Judges

acquitted him] He could be accused of condemning the Custom that Preaction in acquisition that Preaction in accused of invoking the Holy Virgin, instead of invoking the Holy Chost It is said, that he did not approve that the Holy Virgin should be called the Fountain of Grace, and that in the Evening-Song, she should be called our Hope and our Life He said, that was more suitable to IESUS Article Beda Song, the should be called our Hope and our Life
He said, that was more suitable to JESUS CHRIST, and that the Scripture does not show the Modern Using These are the Trisses
(e) for which he was imprison'd, and put in danger of being treated as a Heretick I do not worker of much that Erasmur call'd it a Trisses undivided in the Erasmur call'd it a Trisses undivided in the Erasmus of Erasmus s Books into France (D) Turn'd some of Erasmus s Books into France (D) Turn'd some of Erasmus s Books into France (D) The Panesyrick of Marriage (D) The Panesyrick

(E) He would have look dupon it as a great Trust minem not to be oppress by those Men Few Persons of 1d ib Sense, and that are us d to reflect on what they see or read, will think on Perquin's Conduct, without applying the Fable of the Wolf and the Crane to thim. He was not fatisfy'd to have escap'd from 1 19 pages the Hands of his Accusers, but be would also 1923 have the prize and honour of the Victory for a reward of his Combat. Is not this to imitate the Crane, who requir'd a reward after having got her Neck whole and take out of a very dangerous passage?

ingrata es, inquit, ore que nostro caput incolume abstuleris, & mercedem postulas (g) These Verses of Horace may be very well apply d to Berguin erquin Cervi luperum prada rapaciam Sestamur ultro, quoi epimus Fallere, & esfugere est triumphus (b) (F) Eralimus (d)Erafin.

(e) Phod.
fab 8 L 1.

(b)Horat, Od 4 %

(c) Bets hus,

Marty.

worse for having had the boldness to resist those to their Face, with whom Erasmus, for (F) very good Reasons, advis'd him never to meddle, it was on the other side a great advantage for him, because by becoming a Victim to their Hatred, he procur'd to himself the Crown of Martyrdom He was Imprison'd for the third time, the fied by Sentence (G) pronounc'd against him * condemn'd him to make an bonourable amand John Crefor his Errors, and to a perpetual Imprisonment He refus'd to submit to that Judg- Pin, pag ment He would have acknowledg'd thereby that his Opinions were erroneous, fo that he was condemn'd as an obstinate Heretick to be Strangl'd in || Greve, and afterwards Burnt † He suffer'd Death with an extraordinary Constancy He was about Forty Years of Age It is said, that the Monk who attended him on the Scaffold, declared that he observed some signs (H) of Abjuration in him But see what (I) Erasmus the place faid upon this Beza + believed that Berquin would have been in France what Luther was Maubert, in Germany, if Francis I had done for him what the Duke of Saxony did for Luther It is certain, that he was a Man of great Parts, and of great Courage Nicolas Berauld staken was one of his best Friends, as Badius Ascensius affirms in dedicating the Works of Politian to them

Since the first Impression of this Article, a Book has been publish'd wherein the different Proceedings that Lewis de Berquin went through, have been well clear'd I shall page 1278

4 Id Bega (K) give the substance of the whole matter

BER-

(a) Berquin tran-Sated Some of Erasmus's Works into French, and added to them Something of

(b) Erafn?

epist 4 24 pag 1280

(c) Ibid

les true

Hist of

Calvi-

niim, p that Budæus a

Friend of Berquin's

us'd his utmost endeavour to Save him (e) Frasm

1bid and epift 17

1 27 PAG

1522 epift 48 1 30 PAS 1937

(f) Hu

great

(F) Erasmus for very good reasons] He had only receiv'd Letters from Berquin, but he had never iten him, and fearing to be involv'd in the Protecution against the Innovators, he was not very well satisfy d to find his (a) Thoughts with those of Berquin in one and the same Book, and he exhorted the latter to be quiet, or at least, not to expose him Your Adversaries, said he to him, will never own the Crime, of which you accuse them, think that Beda is an Hydra with several Heads, you have to do with an immortal Enemy, a Faculty, a Society never dies, do not trust to the Protection of the Prince The favour of Kings is alterable, an Informer prepossesses. Kings is alterable, an Informer prepossesses them, the fear they have of Church-men, and their defire of being no more fatigued with their importunate Sollicitations, force em to grant them what they defire Here are his Latin words Crebris epiftolis hortatus sum, ut vel arte quapiam semet extricaret a causa, puta curarent amici, ut pratextu regia legationus longius proficiscerctur fortassis Theologos pas-suros ut causa tempore evanesceret, nunquam passuros ut impietatu crimen, quod illis objiciebat, agnoscerent Eti-am atque etiam cogitaret qualu excetra esset Bedda, quotque capitibus efflaret venenum Tum expenderet sibi cum immortali adversario rem esse, facultas enim non moritur simul illud cogitaret, qui cum tribus monachis belligeratur, eum cum multis phalangibus habere rem, non solum opulentis ac potentibus, verum etiam impro-b simis, & in omni malarum artium genere instructis Illos non conquieturos, donec ei procurassent exitium, etiams causam haberet meliorem quam habuit Christus, neque plus satis fideret Regis prasidio Principum enim favores esse temporarios, ac delatorum artibus sa-cile ni diversum trahi illorum assettus Postremo, ut nibil horum accidat, magnos etiam Principes vel delassari talium improbitate, vel metu nonnunquam cogi ut cedant (b)

(G) The Sentence pronounced against him, condern'd him] I have follow'd the Asta Martyrum of John (d)Rocolbut I shall observe wherein the Relations differ Beza makes no mention of an honoura-ble Amand, and he fays, that Berquin's Books were burnt in the presence of the Author, which Crepin does not remark (c) Erasmus mentions four Heads of Punishment, the Books were to be burnt, the Author was to recant, his Tongue was to be-bord through, and himself to suffer perpetual Imprisonment Beza and Crepin have not forgot this latter Head Erasmus adds, that the Cause was judg'd by Twelve Commissaries, that Budeus (d) who was one of them exhorted Berguin before his Condemnation to retract, that Berguin having heard the Sentence, appeal'd (e) to the King, and to the Pope, and that the Judges full of Indignation on that account, condemn'd him to be burnt the next Day. Fraction relates all the on a Hear-fay the next Day Erasmus relates all this on a Heai-say See the Remark K

(H) That he had observed some signs of Abjuration in him.] A Person (f) whom Erasmus believed to determ credit, writ to him, that he asked that Monk, If Barquin had not acknowledged his Errors at his last gasp? And that the Monk answered him, He had; and seemed to have no manner of doubt but that a manner of doubt but the analysis and seemed to have a bade of the Real and seemed to have a bade of the Real and seemed to have a bade of the Real and seemed to have a bade of the Real and seemed to have a bade of the Real and seemed to have a bade of the Real and seemed to have a bade of the Real and seemed to have a bade of the Real and seemed to have a bade of the Real and seemed to have a bade of the Real and seemed to have a bade of the Real and seemed to have a bade of the Real and seemed to have a bade of the Real and seemed to have a seemed t that Berguin's Soul was in the abode of the Bleffed Montius Erafmus's Friend was near the place of Execution, and gave hum a faithful account of it. He in-form'd him that no Body could hear the Speech that Berguin made to the People, the Archers hav-Ing made a great noise on purpose to drown it No Body cry'd JESUS, when the Patient was strangl'd, though it be commonly practis'd towards Sacrilegious Men and Parricides (g) If what Beza relates was true, we should certainly find it in E. as-mus's Relation His I riend would not have kept it silent (b) Seza says, that Dr. Merlin, at the it filent (b) Beza fays, that Dr Merlin, at that time Penitentiary of Paris, who went with him to the Place of Execution, was fored to say aloud to the People after his death, to the great regret of his Accusers and Judges, that perhaps for above an hundred Years past, no Body had dy'd a better Christian than Berquin There is some likelihood that Beza understood afterwards the falfity of this, for if he had believed the thing P 8 to be true, why should he not have placed it in his Icones? It is certain, that many pious Frauds are handed about in such Cases which an Historian ought to mistrust

(1) See what Erasmus says upon this] He freely declar'd, that he believ'd the Franciscan, who attended Berguin on the Scaffold, told a Lye He adds, that it is always their Custom in such Cases Those Pious Frauds serve them to maintain themselves in the honour of having reveng'd Religion, and to justify to the People those that have accus'd and condemn'd Hereticks At ego Franciscani distis nihil habeo sidei, præsereim quum hoc sit istis solenne, post extinctum hominem spargere rumores, quod in incendio cecinerit palinodiam, quo simul & vindicatæ religionis lauden auserant, & multitudinis invidiam calumniaque sufficionem effugiant (1) He knew from the first hand some of those I rauds, which had been practis'd at Bruffels, and he relates them in few words If People were reasonable, they would make such Accusers and Judges stand in awe of them, for in short, Can any thing be conceived more frightful, when it is examined without any prejudice, than to represent to one's self a Man condemn'd to the Flames, because he will not violate the Faith that he has Iworn to the True GOD? But the Authors of those Executions were, fo far from fearing any thing on that account, that they became more infolent for it, for they were in hopes to make themselves more formidable. This was one of the inconveniencies that Erasmus (k)

found in the Execution of poor Berguin

(K) I shall give the substance, &c] (1) The 13th of May, in the Year 1523 the Parliament caus'd Lewis de Berquin's Books to be feiz'd, and order'd Lewis de Berquin's Books to be feiz'd, and order'd that they should be communicated to the Faculty of Theology to have their Opinion concerning them They found mum accedat animothers of Luther and Melanchthon, and Seven or Eight Treatises whereof he was the Author, some intituled, Speculum Theologastrorum De Usu & Officio Miss, &c Rationes Lutheri, quibus omnes Christianos esse Sacerdotes molitur suadere The Debate of Piety and Supersistion They found allow Debate of Piety and Superstition They found also fome Books which he had translated into French, as, The Reasons why Luther caus d the Decretals, and all the Books of the Canon Law to be publickly burnt La Triade Romaine, and others The Faculty having examin'd those Books, judg'd, that they ing at Paplainly contain'd Luther's Herestes and Blasphemies

Their Opinion is dated Friday 26th of July 1523

176

rum colle 211 edi Hist Ec-Says, in the place †Id 1b & fuse apud in Iconibus

(g) Ex Ernimo ubi iupra,

(/) Hift Ecclesi-

(/) Erasim

culum est ne Beddis fua iponte infanten-the Origine

Gggg 2

Charlotte de Bourbon-Montpensier, + who were married together the 17th of June, 1468.

was the Wife || of Philip of Burgundy, Son of Antony of Burgundy, Lord of Bevren, one of the Natural Sons of Philip the Good, Duke of Burgundy. She broughthim for her Dowry

the Lordship of * Ter Vere, and that of Flushing, and some others, and had one Son and two Daughters by him Her own Father, and her Husband's Father, made a very great (A) Figure That Lady's Merit, and some Passages concerning her Conduct, and her Missortunes, shall be the Subject of (B) our see Remarker

BERSALA || (Anne) Daughter + and chief Heires of Wolfard de Benfelle, and de

| Thus Erafmus hath latinized the Borfelle

† Fabert Hift of the Dukes of Burgundy part 1 p 162

1 Anfelm Hist of the Royal Family p

Pontue Heuterus, rei um Burgundic lib

* It is in Zealand, inthe Island Walcheren, and was since eretted into a Marquisate, commonly Ter-veer

(a)Chevillier, 16 pag 177

(b) Ibid pag 178

and addrest to the Court of Parliament After having censured each Book in particular, they concluded that all of cm ought to be burnt, that Berquin having made himself a Defender of the Lutheran Herelies, he ought to be obliged to make a publick Abjuration, and to be forbidden to compose any Book for the future, or make any Translation prejudicial to the Faith The Parliament order'd, that this Opinion should be fignified to him He answer'd in Writing, and verbally to it, in the Presence of the Judges Upon his Answer, he was made Prisoner es Upon his Aniwer, he was made Pritoner the first Day of August, and four Days after his Sentence was read to him, which sent him back to the Tribunal of the Bishop of Paru, to be judged by him, on the Cases resulting from the Process The 8th of August, the King caus'd him to be taken out of the Prisons of the Lpiscopal (ourt by Captain Frederic, and brought the Cause before his Council, where he was judged by the Chancellor, and condemn'd to abjure some hereical Propositions, which he did These are the Terms of the Registers of the Parliament He was no isoner deliver'd from this Danger, but he begun again to utter Heresies in his Books, and in his Discourse, and to be less observed, he retir'd interested Discourse of some ways where he franchized to the Diocese of Amiens, where he scandaliz'd the People and the Clergy in such a manner, that the Bishop was oblig'd to come to Paris, and make his Complaint to the Parliament, who caus'd him to be taken up, and he was declar'd a Relaps'd Heretick, by the Sentence of two Counfellors of the Court, chosen to take cogni-Counsellors of the Court, choien to take cogni-rance of the Fact of Herefy, and invested with the Authority of the Holy See, by a Bisef of Pope Gliment VIIth dated the 20th of May, 1525 register d in the Court, which the Queen Regent had obtain'd from Rome in the King her Son's Absence Those Ecclesiastical Judges gave him up to the Parliament, as to the fecular Power His Process had been committed to a Counsellor The Morning when it was to be reported, the Parliament received a Letter from the King " who was return'd from Spain, dated the 1st of "who was return'd from Spain, dated the lift of "April, 1526 whereby he order'd the Proceedings to be stop'd And at last, after many Letters written, he sent a Lieutenant of his Guards, with the Provost of Paris, who took him out of "Jail, kept him some time in the Louvre, and gave him his Liberty" The Faculty of Divinity having censur'd Erasmus's Colloquies, the University forbid to read and teach them in the Colleges fity forbid to read and teach them in the Colleges
(b) Then Berquin fent word to Erasmus, that the matter must not be delay'd any longer, that he ought to joyn with him, that it was time to make the Doctors lose all the Authority they had in the Church, and to cry them quite down, the Occasion being favourable Nunc tempus esse ut Theologis omnis in posterum detraheretur auctoritas Hu Cause remain'd in suspense It consisted in a Sentence pronounc'd against him by two Counsellors, Judges delegated by the Pope (which Eralmus ascribes to the Prior of the Carthusians, to that of the Celestins, and to a third whom he does not name) It consisted also in a Reproach which he had made to the It consisted also in a Repronch which he had made to the Faculty of Theology, for having approved the impieus Doctrine, as he faisty said, of Doctor Beda Puft up with the Protection which he had received from the Court, flattering himself with the vain Hopes of destroying the Faculty, and uttering Errors continually, he would pursue his Absolution, contrary to Eramus's Counfels, who advised him very wifely to desist from that Enterprise, and to leave the Kingdom Twelve Commissions were deputed to judge him, who having found him convicted of Heresy, caus'd him to be taken Prisoner They had agreed together that his Books should be burnt, that his Tongue should be bor'd, and that he should be only condern'd to a perpetual Impresonment, pro-vided be would abjure his Herefy The Learned Willi-am Budwus, who was one of his Judges, did his atmost

indeanour for three Days to persuade him to save his Life, by the Retraction of his Errors But not being able to conquer his Obstinacy, his Sentence was principle'd against bim, and he was burnt in Greve, in the Month of April, 1529

of April, 1529

(A) Her own Father, and her Husband's Father, made a very great Figure] (c) For it land, that Wolfard de Borfelle's first Wise, was the Daughter of James I King of Scotland, who bright him the Country of (d) Boncam, and that he was a Marshal of France (e) It is more certain that he (f) was made a Knight of the Golden Fleece Lewis Gollut places him in the List, and calls him Count de Guand pro Mr. Fabert does the like, but I can Grand pre Mr Fabert does the like, but I can hardly believe that they are in the right, for I find, that Antony of Burgundy, natural Son of Philip the Good (g) was made Earl of Grand pre, and of Chateauthierri by Lewis XI in the Year 1478 which is about the time that Walfard to Borfelle received the Collai of the Collai of the Collai of the Marriage with a Daughter of Lewis of Booling. Larl of Montpensier, Daughter of Lewis of Balling Larl of Montpensier, and Daughter of Lewis of Balling Larl of Montpensier, and Daughter of Lewis of Balling Larl of Montpensier, and Daughter of Auvergne, third Son of John the Ist Duke of Bourbon, we could not doubt but that he made a great Figure in the World Thus much concerning the Father of Anne de Borselle Let us say a Word of her Father-in-Law, and of her Husband Antony of Burgundy, (b) suinamed the Great Bastard, was made Knight of the Golden Fleece in the Year 1456 caused the Moors to raise the Siege of Gente and the Vanguard (the Battle of Grandson, and the Vanguard the Battle of Grandson, and the Vanguard fine Lardson, as I have already said Charles VIII granted him Letters of Legitimation in the Year 1485 and made him Knight of the Order of St Michael From the Marriage of that Bastard of Burgundy with Mary de la Vieville, contracted in the Year 1479 proceeded Philip of Burgundy, Lord of Bevres, who was made Admiral the Viewnour of Artois, and Knight of the Fleece and ages, in the Year 1478 He was also provided the Sovernour of Artois, and Knight of the Fleece, the Governour of the Earldom of Flanders, and the married Anne de Borselle, (k)

Selle, (k) (B) That Lady's Merit, and some Passages consing her Conduct shall be the Subject I If lieve Erasmus, she was extremely civil and gen Vivo pervenimus, says he, in a Letter dated in Month of February, 1497 (1) ad Annam Principen (221) Westanam Quid ego tibi de bujus mulieris comitate, benignitate, liberalisate memorem? Scio rhitorum amplificationes suspects habers solere, prasertim sis qui 14 lib 4 equi artificii rudes non sunt At hic menibil alleuare, pag 286 imo re vinci artem nostram, mini credas velim Nibil unquam producti return natura, aut pudentius, aut prudentius, aut candidius, aut benignius. He had lately receiv'd (m) a thousand Marks Kindness and Liberality. The Year follows. he writ a Letter to his good Friend James I when its futor to that Lady's only Son See in the Terms he prais'd her (n) O to beat t Terms he prais'd her (n) O te beature of the terms he prais'd her (n) O te beature of the terms of the tate tua, qua mish quiden summa videtur, sine in dia frui possi. Quod ut fore considem, domina wir dia frui possi. Quod ut fore considem coolenses of the terms facit, cui Superes omnes propetios, beneque coolentes non dubito Evenit mibi, mi Batte, in ista, quod in se Id re Sepenumero solet, ut tumi ardeutiùs amare, mitarreque incipiam, quum absum Bone Dens, qui candor, qua comitas in amplissima fortuna, qua animi lenitas in tan-tis in amplissima fortuna, qua animi lenitas in tan-tis in qua enimi constantia, qua vita innecentia, qua di in litenatos PAE 293 sudium, qua in omnes asfabilitas! I would not mentuon the Letter he writ to that some Grand in the Van non dubito Evenit mihi, mi Batte, in ifta, quad in te the Letter he writ to that fame Friend, in the Year 1500 if it did not tellify that Lady's Liberality to the Clergy He wish the would make chance of the Clergy He wisht she would make sample him for an Object of her Bounty, since the Productions of the Pen are more lasting than the Voice (a) See the Her (a) adds, that he would go into 47th Letof Preachers He (e) adds, that he would go into 47th Letalially to take his Doctor's Degree, which cannot be ter of the done without such Expences as he finds himself $1th Book! not able to be at, if the does not open her Purse

(c) Tabert Hift of the Burgundy, toni 1 PAR 162

(d) seed to the ougher to

(e) An-Ichn H # of (reat Offic 73, pig 152

(f) Gollut Memu , of Burgundy 2

les L. Gemen! of the Royal Fa mily, pag

(h) Anfelm, ibid pag 220

(1) The Tear 1476

(k) Taken out of Fa-, third , 221 pag 286

(m) Tam benefica tantis illa meofficus gumulat malles me flu is pro-rescata ie Id se

BERTELIER (Philibert) Register of the Inferiour Court of Justice at Geneva, where he was born, should not have had a place in this Dictionary, if his Article was not proper to be the Supplement of another, and Calvin's Article, which is like to that of the very long, will be thereby shorten'd. This Bertelier liv'd in the middle of the XVI Jerome entury. He made himself to be taken notice of, only by his ill Actions, but because ne committed one that pleas'd the Controversists much, since it supply'd them with an ample matter to defame Calvin's Memory, he gave occasion to be quoted as a Man of note, and he made a Figure in some considerable † Writings He pretended, that the † See the Republick of Seneva had sent him to Noyon, with orders to make an exact Inquiry there, RemarkD concernates than's Life and Conversation, and that having performed his Commission, he was the John Calvin had been convicted of Sodomy, and that at the Bishop's request, the Punishment of Fire was commuted into that of being branded with the Flower-de-luce He boafted to have an Act sign'd by a Notary, that certified the Truth of the whole Matter Bolfee | affirms, that he and many others have feen that Act, | In the and this is the Count of that horrid Accusation so much spoken of, and which has History of been inserted a great many Books The Matter of Fact, whether Calvin was bran-Calvin ded with a hot Iron, for the Crime of Pederafty, is only grounded on the Authority of publish din Rolfec, who affirms, that he saw the Act that Bertelser brought from Noyon We shall stee in the Article of Bolfec, that his Testimony is of no weight in things that are laid to Calvin's Charge That of Bertelier cannot be better, for he was an ill Liver, and against whom there was a (A) Sentence of death pronounc'd, and who besides had

(a) Id epist 47 lib 8 pag 449

(b) Id opist 23 19 p 482 Itisdated from Paras

ma lib 9 ₽ 503, 504

(e) Father Anselme ubi ∫upra

(f) See R Anselme, (g) His Maxumiubi supi a Pag 8 rag 8 (k) Anne ib (i) Lad Guicciard, descript Belgu p 322 for his Assistance (a) Oftendes quanto amplius ego sim meu literu dina domina allangus, quam alii, quos al t, Thiologi dem illi vulgoria concionantur, ego scribo qua semper sint victuras in indocte nugantes, uno aut altero in templo audiuntur mei l bri, à Latinis, a Gracis, ab omni gente toto orhe legentur Ljusmodi in loctorum Theologorum permagnam ubique esse copiam, mei similem vix multis siculis inveniri, nisi forte adeò superstitiosus es, ut religio tibi st, in amici negotio mendaciolis aliquot abuti. Deinde ostend sinislo illam pauperiorem futuram, si ut Hieronymus sam diillam pauperiore.

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408

1408 fame Book

(c) Veriance colloqui sine summo periculo potuerim, nec al ire sine gravi suspicione Nosti causam prapositi, qui ut nunc in vineulis est, ita domina in tutela (c) Matters did not go better the following Year, but the steddid not go better the following Year, but the steddid not go better the following Year, but the steddid not go better the following Year, but the steddid not go better the following Year, but the stedding against ill fortune, was a sine Subject of Praise See the Letter that Erasmus writto her in the Year 1500. That the was married very young, and will all the but one Passage out of it it will some us, that she was married very young, and will sum us, that she was married very young, and will sum us, that she was married very young, and will sum us, that she was married very young, and will sum us, that she was married very young, and will sum us, that she was married very young, and will sum us, that she was married very young, and will sum us, that she was married very young, and will sum us, that she was married very young, and will sum us, that she was married very young, and will sum us, that she was married very young, and will sum us, that she was married very young, and will sum us, that she was married very young, and will sum us, that she was married very young, and will sum us, that she was married very young, and will sum us, that she was married very young, and will sum us, that she was married very young and will sum us, that she was married very young and will sum us, that she was married very young and will sum us, that she was married very young and in us, that she was a sine she will sum us, that she was a she will sum us, that she was a she will sum us, that she was a she will sum us, that she did not some she will sum us, that she was a she will she will she was a she will she was a she will she w ista adouc actate virenti. Or pene puestari, nuita procorum instantia possis a continentia proposito divelli, quod in fortuna tam assucnti, tam nhil indulges tibi, id ego non viduitatem, sed virginitatem existimo in quo si, ut consido, perseverabis, ego te, mibi crede audaster, non in adolescentularum choro, quarum, ut ait Scriptura, non est numerus, non in ostaginta Solomonis concubinis, sop est numerus, non in octagina Solomonis concubinis, setting aunquaginta Reginis, & Hieronymo quidem, us soprobante annumeravero

ast say something of her only Son Adolphante (a) He was Admiral of Flanders, using the Golden Fleece at Brussels, included the 1916 Erasmus praised him for his good Qualities, and dedicated his Book of Virtue to him He diad at his Castle of Bevers in Flanders, the 7th of December, 1540 He left a Son and two Daughters, the latter left (f) some Posterity, but the (g) Son had no Children by his Wise Louise de Croy, who was Daughter of Philip de Croy, Duke of Arschot (h) He was made Marquis of Ter-Vere (i) by Charles V and (k) in the Year 1546 he received the Collar of the Order of the Golden Fleece (l), and died in the Year 1558 The 16th Letter of the 10th Book of Eresmus, 15 written to Adolphus of Burgundy, of Erofmus, is written to Adolphus of Burgundy, Princips Versano It is dated from London, 1512 The lame Year he writ to him from Paris, a very excellent Letter, which is in some Editions at the End of the Enchiridism militis Christians

(A) And against whom there was a Sentence of Death]
Mr Dreincourt, Minister of Paris, will supply me with a Proof of this Fact, which the boldest So-phisters cannot deny He has inserted the Extract of a Letter, which he receiv'd from Mr Lullin, Counsellor, and ancient Syndic of Geneva, in a Book printed (m) at Geneva, and licensed by the Republick Now these are the Contents of that

Extract
(n) "In the mean time I shall not refuse for

(n) "In the mean time I shall not refuse for your particular satisfaction, to acquaint you with what I have learn d, and what I can assure you to have just now read in the ancient Registers of our Council, wherein I have found, that Philip Bertelier was a Native of this City, and Secretary, (which is elsewhere call'd Register) of the Inserteur Court of Justice, which place is much below that of Secretary of State, which he is faid to have had, and that being accus'd of Sedition and Conjustracy aguinst this State, and Church, he ran away, and not appearing to answer for himself, he was condemned, as being attainted and convicted of those Crimes, to sole his Head, by a Sentence pronounced against him the 6th of August, 1555 those Crimes, to lose his Head, by a Sentence pronounced against him the 6th of August, 1555 And about two Years after, he went to Law with a private Person of this City, in a foreign Court of Justice, whither he had sted, and it being requisite, for the Honour and Interest of our Republick, and of that private Person, to make that persidious Man known, an Attestation was greated of the Justice agree. tion was granted of the Judgment given against him, in the Terms which you shall see in the following Copy, dited the 5th of February, 1557 This is the true Character of Bertelier, whose Testimony is so much extoll d in the Book of the stimony is so much extolled in the Book or the late Cardinal de Richelieu. As for what concerns his being sent or deputed to Noyon, to make an Information of Monsieur Galvin's Life, it is a Fast not only fasly suppos'd, and whereof no kind of Mention is made in our Registers, but it is also contrary to all likelihood. For besides, that never any Envoy or Deputy was first from our City for publick Business, that was not in a higher Station than that of Besteller, and that such Employs are only given to Counsellors of the little Council It is notorious, as you know, that we had some considerable Persons of November 2018. that we had some considerable Perions of Noyon in our City, who sets d hither with Monsseum Calvin, a little while after him And among others, a Canon, whose Name was Mr Collement, and Mr de Normandie, Lieutenant-Civil of the City of Noyan, whose Family is yet one of the most considerable among us, and from which I am descended by the Mother's side, by whose means, it was very easy to take all the Informations that could have been defir d, without going further Add to this, that it is certain, that this Bertelier was always Mi Calvin's Enemy, because he had often reprimanded and censured him for his Vices and Scandals, and that he had oppos'd with all his might, his wicked and pernicious Designs This appears, by Calvin's Letters to Viret, and to Bullinger, in the Months of september and of November, 1553 in which he cries him down as a vicious and audacious Man Beza represents likewise the wicked Qualities of

Bertelier, in Galvin's Life

(m) The · Calvin's Defunce.

te c 2 pag 495 & feq ejuſd tomi operum, where he Shews Lefhus, that by his own Rules Ber-Bolles can " be no Evidence against Calvin in Mr Drelincourt's Book, pag (6) It 15 of him that Words of Calvin's Letter to Bullinger (which is the 162)

(a) It is must be understoed Quidam ob effrenes fuas libidines & multa flagitia privatus donec repisceict A VIC-TORY obt un d by the Confiftorv of Gu-

Arates 154th, and is dated the 4th of September 1553

grin't the Migi

(d) Beza ubi infra

more inexorable (B) than Calvin But it is no ways (f) In the necessary, in order to consute that Accusation, to make use of the just Exceptions that render the Testimony of those two Men void * There is in the Act it self(C) an infallible publick fign of Reprobation, and nothing surprises me more, than to see so great a Person as and Propage 8 & Cardinal de Richelien (D) depend on that piece of Bertelier, and alledge for his chief essentially made at Vapulante C 2

Here follows the Copy (a) of the Attestation of the Republick of Geneva, against Philibert Ber-

"We the Syndics and Council of Geneva, to all those to whom these Presents shall come, do certify, that on the 6th of August, of the Year 1555 was publickly given and pronounc'd, with the Sound of a Trumpet, a criminal Sentence against Philippin Bertelier, and his Accomplices named in the faid Sentence, by which, for the horrid and detestable Crimes of Conspiracy against the Holy Institution and of Conspiracy against the Holy Institution and Christian Reformation, and against this City, and the publick Good and Tranquility thereof, the said Philibert Bertelier, as one of the Authors of the Conspiracy, and an Enemy to this City, and to the Peace, Union, and Tranquility thereof, has been condemned to be bound and brought to the place of Champel, and there to have his Head cut off, and his Body to be quarter'd, and his Members to be set up in the four most emihis Members to be fet up in the four most eminent places round about this City, for an Lxample to others that should commit such Crimes This we attest and certify And therefore we have order'd and commanded these Presents to be granted under our usual Seal, and sign'd by our Secretary Given at Geneva the 5th of February, 1577 (B) More inexorable than Calvin] Bertelier

(b) having been excommunicated in the Year 1552 by the Confistory of Geneva, made his Complaint to the Senate The Ministers were fent for, plaint to the Senate The Ministers were sent for, to give a Reason for it, both Parties being heard, the Senate confirm'd the Excommunication Eighteen Months after, Bertelier had recourse again to the Senate, who after having heard Calvin's Opposition, pronounc'd, that Bertelier should be admitted to the Holy Sacrament As soon as Calvin heard that News, he defir'd the Syndies to affemble the Senate, and when they were met, he privatus donec reOath, that he would rather lose his Life, than Oath, that he would rather lole his Life, than give his confent, that such a Man should receive the Loid's Supper (c) This is what Calvin writhinfield His Historian (d) will tell us more of it. The noise that was made against the Ministers, as if in some Respects they had invaded the Rights of the Sovereignty, was the Reason why the Council of the Two Hundred order'd, that the final Judgment of the Causes of Ixcommunication should belong to the Senate and that the Senate might ablong to the Senate, and that the Senate might abtolve the Excommunicated as they should think fit By virtue of this Decree, the Senate granted Letters Refraces

(c) Lx

cpiffola

Calvini ad

Vireturb

It is the

By viitue of this Decice, the Senate granted Letters of Abfolution to Bertelier The Sacrament was to be idminister'd within two Days, when Calvin came to shear what had past, he soon resolv'd upon what he should do and preach'd against the contempt of the Sacrament, he raised his Voice, lifted up his Hands, and said, that he would imitate St Chrysofrom, that he would not oppose Force to Force, but that he would rather suffer himself to be masbut that he would rather suffer himself to be massacred, than that his Hands should present the Holy Mysteries to those that had been judg'd unworthy of 'em. This was a Thunder-bolt that consounded Bertelier's Faction, so that it was not thought fit that he should present himself to the Communion. The next Day after the Sacrament, Calvin, accompanied with his Consistory, desir'd leave of the Senate, and of the Council of the Two Hundied, to speak to the People about that matter, for as much as it concern'd the Abrogation of a Law made by the People. This made so great an Impression on the People's Minds, that it was resolved the Swiss Cantons should be consulted about it, and that the Decree of the Two Hundred should be suspended, but that none should say, should be suspended, but that none should say, that the ancient Regulations had been in the least that the ancient Regulations had been in the least infringed In earn sententiam animus non mediocriter (i) Beza in immulatis itum est, ut suspenso illo Diaeossorum decreto state California ad ann 1553 legibus oportere (e) By that means the Consistory obtain'd a compleat Victory, and in a manner made the Senate and the Council of the Two Hundred buckle to What would they not have done in a Democratical Country? Is it possible to rule over Men, who tell the People from the Pulpit, that they had rather suffer themselves to be kill'd, than to consent that Holy Things should be promuch to the purpole, is a cunning way of threat-ning the Government with an Infurrection

(C) In the Ait it self an infallible sign of Reproba-tion] No body knows when it was drawn up, or by whom, or the Names of the Witnesses, or in general, any of the Circumstances, which are negeneral, any of the Circumitances, which are never forgotten, except when People fear to supply those with Aims, whose interest it is to deny a thing What I am going to say, carries a much greater force with it If Berteller's Act had not been supposition, there would have been at Noyon authentick and publick Testimonies of the Trial, and Physishment in constitution, and characters. and Punishment in question, and therefore the Fire they would have been publish'd as soon as the C1- that detholick Religion began to fuffer by Calvin's means Unless we suppose a continual, and more unheard of Miracle than was ever yet known, all the Inhabitants of Noyon would not have kept the Secret, and spar'd the Reputation of a Man that was so (f) odi-ous to them I carry this Thought farther in (g) another place, and therefore leave it here as it I add, that if what Bertelier faid, was true, he falfum would have had his Paper when he fled from Genewould have had his raper when he ned from Gentva, I mean, that his pretended Commission would have preceded the matter for which he was condemn'd to death in the Year 1555 for it is visible, that he had not the Commission he boasted of, since that time But can any offe believe, that before the Year 1555 when those that were call'd Hereticks, durst not shew themlelves for fear of being burnt, a Deputy from Gewhen those tiones ut nevs should go boldly to Noyon, to inform himself of Calvin's Life? Who will believe, that if Bertelier had had an authentick Act of Calvin's Infamy epift 140 in the Year 1554 he would have kept it to clote, dated the that the Publick should have no knowledge of 5th of Det before the Year 1477? Was it not a Piece that cember, the Clergy of France would have bought for its weight in Gold? But why do I lose time in confuting such a ridiculous Romance as that is?

(D) Cardinal de Richelieu to depend on that piece

(D) Cardinal de Richelieu to depend on that piece (g) In the of Bertelier] (h) That, says he, which ought to pais Remark H for an undeniable Conviction of the Crimes imputed to Calvin, is, that ever since he was charg'd ticle Bolwith that Accusation, the Church of Geneva iec, and with that Accusation, the Church of Geneva with that Acculation, the Church of Geneva let, and did neither prove the contrary, nor even denied more amthe Information, that Bertelier, fent by those of pl in the that City, made at Noyon That Information Remark V was fign'd by the most eminent Persons of the of the Arcuity of Noyon, and made with all the usual Forms title Beza of Justice And by the same Information it appears, that, that Arch-heretick having been convicted of an abominable Sin that is only the same convicted of an abominable Sin, that is only (b) A Mepunish'd by Fire, the Punishment which he had thod to condeserv'd, was, by the Intercession of his Bishop, wert those commuted into the Flower-de-luce And the that have Church of Geneva, which does not offer what he for a formation concerning Columbia Life would be the formation concerning Columbia Life would be the formation concerning Columbia Life would be the formation concerning Columbia. Information concerning Calvin's Life, would themselves into have fail'd to have done it, if they had be from the ilev'd that it could have been done without of Church if fending against the Truth is it not strange, l 2 c 10 that a chief Minister of State, whose credit was p m 319 not inferiour to that of the King, should depend on a blind Act, which an inconsiderable Physician (1) See of Lyons had boasted to have seen in the Hands of a mean Person? An inconsiderable private Man Defence, by must then have had more credit, than Cardinal de Mr Dre-Richelieu, to bring this Piece out of the old Regilincourt, sters of Noyon? The truth is, that Cardinal (1) made p ule of all imaginable Perquifitions to find out the pretended Proceedings against John Calvin at Noyon, (k) Ibid 9 and that he found nothing, and yet he maintain d 71 See although the Affirmative on the Credit of Jerome Bellec Can Jopag 140 such a strange Conduct be excused? Mr Drelin- & passim court cannot believe, that, that great Man was guil-ty of it (k), and lays all the Blame on those who publish'd the Book intitl'd, Methode pour conver-tir, &c (E) And Calvin's death, to thank God dubito quin jam audieris me patuæ efle fuperstitem Ira urbem mortuam lugerecogor (Cal-Vin-Jaid this on occalion of stroyed that City in the Year quæ iuperiore mortis meæ rumorem folennes habuit fupplicadeChristo trium-

(b) A Me-

(1) See Calvin's

Reason (E) that the Republick of Geneva did not undertake to shew the falsity of that Paece. This is not the place to examine, if they had (F) reason to slight that Lye. There is no Article of a Dictionary that can be more uleful to the (G) Reader than this

BERTRAM (Cornelius Bonaventura) born at Thouars in Potton, was a confidera ble Man in the XVIth Century for his knowledge in the Oriental Languages. He study'd Hebrew at Paris under Augelus Cammus, and afterwards at Cahors with the Civihan Francis Roaldus. He had much ado to avoid being Massacred at Cabors in the Year 1972 but at last he made his escape, and fled to Geneva, where at the end of two Years he was made Hebrew Professor, as Rodolphus Cevalier had been before He writ several (A) considerable Books during his abode at Geneva, and he continu'd to apply himself to his Study when he went to Franckenthal in the Palatinate He publish'd a Book shere in the Year 1586 Intituled, Lucubrationes Franckenthalenses He left that Post to Laulane, where the Magistrates of Bern offer d him a Protessor-

THAT the fi-Jence of an ac-cus'd Per-1on does prove any thing in certain Cafes Some curious Fxampaes of #his (1) Dre-

lincourt 2bid p 84

(2) Rivet Oper to 3 Pag 9,

(E) and alledge for his chief Reason. That the Republick of Geneva did not undertake to shew the falling of that Piece] In the foregoing Remark we have set down Cardinal Richelien's own Words. They shew, that he lays his stress on the silence of the Republick of Geneva Mr Drehncourt shows him by some plain Instances, that there is nothing more falle nor more abfurd than to pretend, that they who fuffer an Accumulation to be spread abroad against that some of those things have been published, and some Books have been fill'd with them Because no juridical Information has been made to justify the contrary, must one therefore believe that the Relations of that Illustrione therefore believe that the Relations of that Idustriens Cardinal, and those that honour hu Memony, look upan those things as certain Truths? (2) Mr Rivict Profor of Divinity at Leyden made use of a like reation an answer to an Objection of Lissus, taken the filence of Calvins good Friends Itane?

The successfungue liburits infami alicus agarta trimia pattengage in success honos, necessariumne erit libellos na confingere in viros bonos, necessariumne erit libellos na confingere in vivos bonos, necessariumne erit libellos illos famosos discutere, ut homines isti, si tamen homines, qui famam aucupantur ex adversariorum nomine, applaudant sibi quod tandem repercrint qui se cum illis voluerint componere, & existimarint talia ess responsone digna, qua contemptu potius irant diluenda liere is a Jesur, who agrees persone with those Ministers "How long is it same it is not permitted to be silent, without being look'd upon as con"victed of the Crimes that are imputed to us? It to be filent, without being look'd upon as convicted of the Crimes that are imputed to us? It does not appear that this is the Opinion of the the state of those whose Example may serve the Rule to others. Who is ignorant how many foolish things the Enemies of France are this'd to publish against it in their Greetes and Libels? Who does not know how many Infamies and Abominations Mr Juries has spread against the Popes, and against the Church of "Barre in his Breadled in his Preaders and in 60 Rome in his Parallel, in his Prejugez, and in fo many other Books wherewith he fills the World? So that if the King does not keep People on pupole to confute those Foreign Gazettes, in every particular; and if none is to be found among Catholicks that will lose his time in confuthe Popes have pretended to the Universal the Popes have pretended to the Universal marchy, that in order to it, they have occawhich is a schiff between the Greeks and the Landau, that afterwards to end the Quarrel, they have for I say, unless the King of the Pope take care to have those Fooleries and Sanders refused, will not the Gazetteer of Hellind and Mr. Juries have reason to insult France, and the Holy See, and to say, They dare not answer there is therefore reason to believe, they cannot do it? Would the Author of the Morale Pratigue condemn em upon such an account? I am willing to believe, he would be asham'd to own it. Why then might not the Jesures neglect to answer Libels, that are in their Opinion no less answer Libels, that are in their Opinion no less answer Libels, that are in their Opinion no less fabulous, nor less despicable than the Gazettes of Amsterdam, and the Historical or Prophetical Systems of Mr Inview? Ought they to be more mice in point of Reputation, than those whom GOD has placed over us? Ought they not, or at least, may they not, after those great Examples, despise what concerns only their particular Bionour (w)?

(F) If they had reason to slight that Lie I Mr Drelincoure's and Father le Tellier's Maxim is very good and true, generally speaking, but there are some particular Cases wherein it is better not to make use of it I shall not decide, whether the Republick of Geneva had done better to make a publick Declaration showing the fallity of Berelier's Deputation. tation It icems at first tight, that the advantage which the Catholick Controversifts have pretended to draw from the filence of that Republick, shews that they did not do well to be filent, I mein, not to make it appear by a publick Act, that those Men were impudent Liais But they, who consider that violaing can stop the Pen of a fort of Men, will easily perceive that an Act of the Re-Men, will eatily perceive that an exet of the Nepublick of Geneva would not have ended that Dispute I agree with the Maxim, that sometimes the best way (b) to be revenged of an impudent Calumniator, is to answer nothing to him Nevertheless, I believe, that Bera did not well efterpere apply that Maxim, when he made nic of it in relation to Bolfee An Answer would have puff'd him up with Vanity, and he would have concluded from it, that his Slunders had touch'd the Proteftants to the quick, which would have fill d him with joy I grant it. But it had been better to let him enjoy that pleasure that attended the infamous Note of a publick Calumniator, wherewith a good Answer would have branded him, than to give him and others a prefence to boaff, that the Republick could not deny the Matter in question Qui tacet consentire videtur I hose studenturs, do no less thwart tumeline each other, than Errors and Truths

(G) That can be more useful to the Reader than this indignations of the greatest Uses that may be drawn from Reading, is, to learn the Weaknesses of the Heart of Man, and the ill effects of Prejudices in point ut optime of Man, and the ill effects of Frejudices in point at optime of Religion. Can there be a more remarkable linfrance of it than this? What must not a Man naturally be, or what will he not become by a blind fapients and furious Zeal of Religion, since a Monk, who Hunc fruturn'd a Protestant Physician, and afterwards a Hunc fruturn'd a Protestant who was expell'd two or about the polynomial and who was expell'd two or about the polynomial and who was expell'd two or about the polynomial and who was expell'd two or about the polynomial and the Popish Physician, and who was expell'd two or three times with a note of Infamy from the Places fcens quen where he was ferrl'd, no fooner produces in Accuiation on the Credit of a Fugitive condemn d to wiventi Death upon refusing to appear before his Judges, Japientim an Accuration, than which none was ever work patientia an Acculation, than which none was ever work patientia contriv'd, and worse prov'd, but it is adopted, and Rivet ubi convey'd from Book to Book, a thousand Consequences are drawn from it, and Authors of the first Rock the great Cardwal Rocketter himself proposit Rank, the great Cardinal Richelies himself propose it to the Hereticks as a powerful motive of Conversion And all this propeer majorem Des gloriam & (c) Persi-(c) O QUANTUM EST IN REBUS us Sat i

(A) He writ soveral confiderable Books during his abode at Geneva] He publish d the Thefauru Sanstes Pagninus with Additions, part whereof he (a) Qui took out of the Writings of Mercerus and Cavalier, ex omni and the rest he supply d out of his own Stock He bus ejus publish'd also a Comparatio Grammatica Hebraica & openibus Aramica, and a Treatise de Politia fudaica Thuanus maxin knew no more of them He places this last Treatise (d) above the other Books compos'd by that datur Author He might have added, that Beriram contributions of the Marian Contribution ted as much as any Body elie to the Edition of the Gommentary of Mercerus on the Book of Job: Which fin is own'd in the Pictace; (e) Cateram ne sus qui- (e) Beridem'lande fraudandus Cornelius noster videsur, equidem in Pratat Mercer: quondam discipulus & nune meus in hac E.cle- illius fin Collega Huic siquidem non parva en parte debitur Comenti-estima libri editto, vum vin alius reperiri potuiss vide- 111

cit contumelie voluptricm Solunt dicerc, mime puto lexiffe ! Adeo fun-I hose Etus contione patientiseff. er ademit operibus maxımè commen-

(a) Father le Tellier, Defence of Christians 14

À Taken fiem Thuanus at the end of the Beek 109 > See Be-72's Preface to Mercerus 1573 Ant 1 ayus de Vita & o-bitu Th Bezæ,pag See Colomefii ental p 73, 74 The States presented him with a golden Gup ena-mell d † 7he 16th 1ry 1666 M The 19th of April 1666 of July 1667 They made him a Present of a fine Set of fil-ship, which he exercis'd till his Death, which happan'd in the Year 1594. He was in his Climacterical Year when he dy'd, β by which one may judge that he was born in the Year 1531 It must not be forgot that he was a Minister, and that he exercis'd that Office in Geneva, where he marry'd Genevieve Denosse, Niece of Beza's hist Wife, in whose House she had been educated from her Youth She was very tenderly belov'd by her Aunt Bertram was a good Critick, as Beza, Cafanbon, and feveral other Learned Persons have publickly acknowledg'd

BEVERNINGK (7erom) was one of the fittest Men of the XVIIth Century for Am
Printed in bassies and important Negotiations He was originally descended from a (A) Noble Family of Prussia, but he was born at Tergou in Holland the 25th of April 1614. That Town which boasts with reason to have produced so great a Man, saw him in the number of its Counsellors in the Year 1645, and in the number of its Burgomasters in the Year 1668 He was deputed by it in the Year 1646 to the States of the Province, where he gave such good Proofs of his Capacity, that not long after they made use of him for matters of Consequence In the Year 1650 the States of Holland deputed him, with Mr Van Brederode to the States of Utrecht, to desire them to be at the Extraordinary Affembly of the United Provinces that was to be held at the Hague 1651 the same States of Holland deputed him to affist at that great Assembly of the United Provinces In the Year 1653, the City of Tergou deputed him to the Assembly of the States General The same Year he was sent to the Protector and the Republick of England in the Quality of Deputy Extraordinary; the Year following that Character was chang'd into that of Ambassador Extraordinary He concluded the Peace between Holland and England the 28th of April 1654. During the course of that Ambassy, he had the Office of Treasurer General of the United Provinces confer'd upon him He possess it till the Year 1665 and it was his fault that he held it no longer, for the States General desir'd him to continue in that Office, and did not consent to the laying down of his Commission, till they saw that neither their Reasons, nor their Intreaties could prevail upon him He receiv'd a very advantageous Testimony, that they were perfectly satisfy'd with his Conduct, and they gave him * in particular some Marks of the esteem they had for his Person In the Year 1659 he had the good fortune to contribute, with other Deputies, to the composing of the Differences that were rais'd in the Province of Groningen It may be faid, that he was born for this fort of good Fortune, which appears by the many Treaties (AC) of Peace or Alliance that he concluded He was twice fent to Cleves in the Year 1666 The first time he concluded a very strict Alliance with his Electoral Highness of Brandenburg, the second time, he concluded a Peace μ with the Bishop of Munster The Year following, being invested with the Character of Ambassador, he concluded the Treaty of Peace with England at Breda In 1668 he was sent in the quality of Ambassador Extraordinary to Aix la Chapelle, for the Treaty of Peace between France and Spain, and that Treaty was concluded the 2d of May In the same Year 1668 he was nominated to go with Prince Maurice of Nasjan in the quality of Ambassador Extraordinary to the Emperor, but the States General chang'd their mind as to that Ambassy The States of Holland gave || Mr Van Beverningk some marks of their Consideration for his important Services In the Year 1671, he went to the Court of Spain in the Quality of Ambassador Extraordinary, to dispose his Catholick Majesty to a Negotiation about his Differences with France, and he succeeded in it to

(n) Critical Hift of the Old Tcstament L 2 ch 24 pag 347
(b) to give the whole Tutle, we must add here, seu 1pecimen expolitionum ın difficiliora utiiusstament: loca In Mr Simon's Critical Hiftothe Supplement to Moreri's Distionary it is Frankellatenles infliad of Franckentallenics (c) Tellier, elog de Mr de I hou

2 PAS

retur, qui hac a Mercero minutiffimis characteribus ac fugientibus pene literis in adversariis descripta legendo consequeretur Mr Simon (a) mentions another Work of Bereram, he says, that this Professor assisted by Bera, la Faye, Rotan, Jaquemot & Goulart, Revis'd the French Translation of the Bible in the Year 1988 and that being more learned in the Hebrew Fongue than all those that had preceded him, he took a great deal more of liberty in the reformation which he made both in the Translation and in the Notes The other things that Mr Simon says concerning that Revision, are not only to be found in his Gistical History, but also in the Supplement to Morers & Dictionary I shall observe, that according to Thusnus, the Work intituled (b) Lucubrationes Franchenthalenses, was published in the Year 1586 and intiruled to because the Author liv'd at Franckenthal How then, may it be faid to me, could he have a hand in the Revision that was made at Geneva in the Year 1588. This is no difficulty at all; when Mr Simon lays, that another Reformation of the Tranflation of Geneva was made in the Year 1588 he inflation of Geneva was made in the Year 1588 he intends only to mark the Date of the Impression, and does not pretend that the whole Work was done in the Year 1588 It is well known, that such Revisions commonly last several Years So that Bertram might have been the chief Director of that, though it was not printed till a long time after he was gone from Geneva I add, that he was particularly the Author of the Figures of that Bible and of their Explication (c) These Words of the Presace presix'd to that Bible, must therefore be understood of him We have also added some Figures.

at the end, and out of the Body of this Work, which may ferve for the understanding of several passages, wherein a learned Person of our Society, who is very well vers'd in the Hebrew Tongue, and in the reading of the Old Testament, has been particularly concern'd Mr Colomies (d) apply'd them to our Bertram

(1) Orienally descended from a making Family Concerning lomies (d) apply'd them to our Bertram

(A) Originally descended from a noble Family of ru Profis His Grandfather John Van BEVERNINGK, pa a Gentleman of Profis, came into Holland in the Year 1575 with the Count de Hohenlo The Santes gave him a Company of Foot He was made afterwards Lieutenant General of the Artillery He marry'd the Daughter of Direk Long BargoMaster of the City of Tergon, and Treasurer General of the Province of Holland From that Marraage proceeded Molehior Van BEVERNINGK, Captain of Foot in the Service of the States General, and Commander of the Castles of Argentonia and Dalem He marry'd Subylla Standers Daughter of Leonard Standers Eiquire, Captain of Foot, and Governor of Knodsenburgh over against Nimegen, and of Catherine Hausser, Daughter of Francis Haussfort Chamberlain of the Queen of Hungary Our
Pa

and of Catherine Haussert, Daughter of Francis Haussfort Chamberlain of the Queen of Hungary Our Paets Mr Van Beverningk proceeded from the Marriage It is he of Melchier Van Beverningk and Sikylla Standers, whom I

(AD) The many Treaties of Peace or Aliance that Speak of in he concluded Here is a passage which contains a a Margalong Parenthesis, that will serve for a Commentary upon these Word "Monsseur (e) Paties being of the Ar"Ambassador, in Spain, and having by his great tiele Sain"Capacity preserved and increased in the Queen Cles, Reof Spain and her Council, the good Impressons that Monsseur Van Beverningk (a Man born to the satisfaction of his Masters. In the Year 1672 he follow'd the Prince of Orange to the Army as Deputy of the States After this, he had a mind to live a quiet Life, and thought he ought to be fatisfy'd with the Glory he had acquir'd, and that he had perform dall that a good Subject owes to his Country, but his Country wanted him too much to let him enjoy a retir'd I ife The redoubled Instances of the States, and of the Prince of Orange oblig'd him in the Year 1673 to ingage himlelf in one of the most important Negotiations that had yet occurred Imean, the Conferences at Cologne At first the City of Am la Chapelle had been chosen to Negotiate the Peace between the Princes that were then in War, but it was found more proper to go to Cologne Mr Van Beverningk appear'd there with the Character of Ambassadoi Extiaordinary The carrying away of the Prince of Furstenberg produc'd the effect that was expected from that bold Attempt, viz the breaking off of the Conferences in ielation to France Nevertheless, the Negotiation was continued with the Allies of that Crown, and it was done with all manner of fuccess, for Mr Van Beverningk brought the Elector of Cologne and the Bishop of Munster back again into a the Alliance of the Stites General Atherica. He was made Curator of the University of Leyden in the Year 1673. It is in Oshice ty of Peace that is not commonly given but to those who have served their Country in great Imployments When he expected to enjoy the repose which he had so long wish d for he Munster found himselfingag'd in a most difficult Negotiation. He was so carnestly sollicized to was figured go to Nimegen in the quality of Ambadador Plenipotentiary from the Republick for the general Peace, that after having excus d himself several times, he could not resuse that important and laborious Commission The Obstacles that he was to overcome cannot that with be express'd A less consummate Industry and Experience than his could never have the Elestor compass'd it, for except the French Ambassadors, almost all the 1est made it much of Cologne more their business to retard the Treaty of Peace than to idvance it Nevertheless, of May after the taking of Ghent it feem'd that the Peace was become at least a necessary evil following for Holland, and People were so sensible of the fatal Consequences which the tiling of that place might have, that they ardently defin'd the end of the Wir Mi Van Be- v Hearverning k had Orders to go to, the King of France it his Camp of Wetteren, and after the zoth of the reception he met with, it was no longer doubted but that a Posco would be May concluded It was fign'd between France and Holland the 10th of August 1678, after 1678 which Mr Van Beverningk serv'd effectually for a Mediator to conclude that of France with Spain the 11th of September in the fame Year He also concluded a Treaty of Thename Peace and of Trade between Sweden and the States General the 12th of oldober 1679 Old Tel-After so many honourable and happy Negotiations, he enjoy dut last that quiet Life lingen which he had so long wish d for He retuil to a fine Loudship * that he had a small + true. League from Leyden, where he chiefly imploy'd himself in the Culture of all forts of their il at Plants, which he fant for from all Parts of the World But this pleasant and innocent den Occupation, so like that which some great Princes have betaken themselves to after their Triumphs, and the Government of the State, did not hinder him from minding the !! She was Common-wealth of Learning He excised his lunction of Culator of the University Amsterwith great Vigilance He felt the beginning of his last Sickness a little after having dam the spent one Morning in perusing the Manuscripts of the famous Library of Isaac Vossius, with of which had been lively householder and the state of the st which had been lately bought for the | University of Holland As soon as he was got he into his Coach again he began to shiver This was the beginning of all ever that in- Name is Creas'd daily, and of which he dy'd the 30th of October 1690, at the Age of Seventy in John le Years His || Wife furviv'd him, but he had never any Children by her, to that he Gillon, being an only Son, there remains none that bears his Name in this Country. He was the is oribury'd at Tergou in a Marble Chappel that he had built His Relations caus'd his Lpitaph sinally of a to be engrav'd on a Touchstone there—It is a fine Inscription, which may be seen mily of entire. Picardy

" make Peace in the World, having given it in "Crommel's time, and afterwards at Bieda, to the "Crommel's time, and afterwards at Bidos, to the English and Dutch, at Cleves to the Bishop of Munifer, at Aix la Chapelle to the French and Spaniards, and lately at Cologne to the Archbishop of Cologne and lately at Cologne to the Archbishop of Cologne and lately at Cologne to the Peace lately made with England, and who for that reason, might most be call'd, the Peace-maker) had made up-mon them, to oppose early by just and effectual Means the Ambition of the French, Stoupe does not know any other way of revenging himself upon him, but by Calumny and fassly accusing him of being an Arminian. He is also foolishly afraid that if Mr Patius, should go through Swisserland, he would not come off very cheap if I am sure, that is he should happen to pass by that Country, the Swiss, as well the Frorestant as the Catholick Cantons, would receive him with their usual Civility, and with the Respect due to his Character and to his great Merit, and that they would give him publick Thanks for having so much contributed to the preservation of Religion, and the Liberty of Early." This is to be found in an (a) Answer that was made to Mr Stoupp's Letters about the Religion of the Dutch English and Dutch, at Cleves to the Bishop of Mun-(B) After the Reception be met with] See the Anfwer that the King of Irance made to the Letter of the States General, and the Memorial which he order'd to be deliver'd to Mr Van Beverningk with the same Answer There is nothing in it but what tends to facilitate the advancement of the Peace, the Style is mild and civil, and many idvances are made in it Every Body (b) may be convinced of it There was a particular Circum- (1) All stance in that Ambally that is not known, but it this is indeferves to be known. It shews on one side the di-first din struction wherewith the King of France received the the ad Perfon that had been lent to him, and on the other part of the fide with what Principles of Honour, and Un interfledness Mr Van Beverningk behaved himself of the Alfs. When he came away from Wetteren, the king and Mewould make him a Present of two of his Pictures, interpretational and the mourt of the Alfs would make him a Present of two of his Pictures, interpretations of the part were again of them worth rich'd with Jewels, that were each of them worth the Nigorich d with jeweis, that were each of them worth the Nigo-about 8000 Livres. It is not usual to give two trations of Pictures, but one only. He aniwer'd the Person that offer'd him that Present from the King, That he thank'd His Majesty for that Honour, but that gen, pag he did not think it proper to accept of it. Nevertheless, he made a Picsent to the Bearer of the two Pictures, as if he had accepted of them. The King's Letter to the States contains among other things, that the Sieur Van Beverningk's Person and things, that the Sieut Van Beverningk's Person and Conduct had been very acceptable to him

1675 1

* Taken from Come Memoirs that come from good Hands & Memoirs pag 417 edit of the Hague 1692 ted the 14th of August 1678 The City of Tergou made him a Present of two filver Andi-1 ons in the Year 1679 in considethe last Treary of Pcace, and ımportant Services done othe State and ₹Virgil υ 390 * In Elencho Hæ-1cticorum, vonita, p m 93 † At that time Beza was not a Minifle hen is on-1) Profesor of the Greek Tongue Dubitantıı dınloge 2 p m 152 entire (6) in the Remarks It contains an Abridgment of a Life that might fill a Vos lume, and if Mr Van Beverningk had taken the puns to compose some Memoirs concerning his Ambassies, it would be the most instructive and most curious Book that could be feen He always succeeded in his Negotiations, which is an Honour whereof we find but few Examples among those that have had the Management of so many publick Affairs He was laborious and industrious, and never discouraged at any thing * The French and Dutch Writers do equally praise him I could alledge many proofs of it, but it shall be sufficient to produce what (D) Mr de Wiequefort and Mr de Saint (E) Didier have said of him As for Sir William Temple, he seems to be a little vex'd at the signing of the Treaty of Nimegen, but notwithstanding he owns, be that Mr Van Beverningk put a stop to the complaints of his Enemies. He might have said that the Magniferates of Amsterdam went a very obliging Letter to him a whereby faid that the Magistrates of Amsterdam writ a very obliging Letter to him , whereby they thank'd him for the conclusion of the Peace. They assured him, that they had taken much pains with the Members of the States of Holland, that he might be imployed in that Negotiation They knew very well, that they stood in need of such a Man as he to make it succeed. The Town where he was born shew'd him upon that occasion, how much they esteem'd him

BLZANITLS, or BLZANIANS, an imaginary Sect which did never exist but in the Heads of some makers of Catalogues of Hereticks There would be reason to wonder that such absurd Writings as those Catalogues are, have not been supprest in their birth by Peisons of Authority, I say, there would be reason to wonder at it, it it were not known that those Persons of Authority are very often the least knowing, and the most persuaded of this ill Maxim, that one may use indifferently Fraud or Bravery against one's Enemy, & dolus an virtus que in hoste requirat Those Persons did not perceive that those Catalogues being full of impertinent and notorious Palsities, were only proper to inspire the Hereticks with a very great Contempt for the Writers of the prevailing Pitty They only consider'd the advantage that would accrue from the Hereticks being thought to be divided into a thousand Sects However it be, it Prateolus may be believ'd * there arose a Sect under the Empire of Charles V and under the Pontificate of Julius III + about the Year 1550, which was call'd the Bezanites of the Bezanians, from Theodorus Beza. The only proof that he could bring for it, would be, that he had read such a thing in a Book of Lindanus, for it is very true, that || Lindanus says so, but without quoting any Body. That which is very certain, is, that one might boldly lay any Wager, the never so great, to be paid to those

(C) Which may be feen intire in the Remarks] Here it is, the Lines are plac'd here as they are in the

Perillustris ac generofus vir NYMUS VAN BLVERNINGK, HIERONYMUS Theilinga I opiichi Senatoi Judex Conful Goudinus

In confessu prepot ord gen Assessor Idem aliquotes extra ordin Idem aliquotes extra ordin Communi Belgica I ad arario Præfectus Lycei Batavorum Curator
In Hispan & I æd Belg finibus regundis Adjutor
Legarus Wilhelmo III in exercitu datus Westmonasterium Cliviam II Bredam

Aquisgranum Bruxellas Madiitum Coloniam Agripp Noviomagum Ad Gall item Regem Wetteræ Morinorum castra habentem

um potestate res componendi missus Ad Cxfarem vero designatus Orator Re nisi perfecta nunquam reversus De maximi præterea momenti rebus domi De amicitiis parandis

Et fæderibus pangendis foris A Patire Patribus passim Feliciter consultus & adhibitus Natus Goudæ xxv April MDCXIV Mortuus Theilingæ xxx Octob MDCXC Satur honorum

Hoc monumento conditur Cum

Optima vitæ fortunarum que focia Joanna Le Gillon Nata Amft at Majt MDCXXXV Mortua

OANATO HANTEY OFEIAOMEOA

(D) What (a) Mr Wicquefort faid of I m] "Jerom Beverningk is doubtless one of the "ittest Men of the United Provinces for Negotiations The City of Tergon, which otherwise does "not want able Men, deputed him several times to the Assemblies of the States of the Province of holland, and to the Colleges of the Capacity. " of Holland, and to the Colleges of the Generali" ty, and he did always perfectly answer what " might be expected from his great Ability It " was he, who in the Year 1654 made the Tree-

ty with Oliver Crommel that gave Peace to the United Provinces, but it had like to have involv d them into a Civil War, because the Interests of the Prince of Orange, according to some, had not been well manag'd in it. The Province of Holland was so well satisfy d with the Service he did them in that Juncture, that they procui'd him the Office of Treasurer General, that is to say, of first Minister of the United Provinces I here is no Affair, tho never so difficult, but what he can clear, when he will apply himself to it. If one desires some proofs of it, he medden only look upon the Treaty which he caus'd to concluded at Clever with the Bishop of Manual in the Year 1666 And he was no less successful "in the Year 1666 And he was no less successful in his Negotiations at Madrid, concerning the important Interests of the Provinces of the Netherlands If he did not succeed at Cologne, it must be imputed to the ill-disposition of the Parties concern'd, and to the unlucky Juncture of Affairs, rather than to his way of managing Things Hence it is, that he was intrusted with the whole Negotiation at Nimegen, and the States made choice of him to go and conclude it with the most Christian King near Glove, He is weary of so many Imployments; that whereas others strive for them, he avoid them; choosing rather to enjoy himself in his Cauntry Retirement, than to be troubled with the area that Business brings upon him, and which are ten no less troublesome to him than to those that ten no less troublesome to him than to those that Negotiate with him A better Pen than mine, is requisite to draw up Mr Van Beverningk's Character, because, if all the parts of it be well examin'd, it will be found, that abating his une-" ven Temper, there is nothing in him but what " is Excellent"

(E) And Mr de Saint Didier] Of all the places where this Author speaks of Mr Van Beverningk, I shall choose but these three "Mr Van Beverningk's quick return, occasion'd by the "News (b) which made him set out from his "House to repair to Nimegen with all speed, consistend the Conjecture of a private Agreement between Holland and France That Ambassador "appear'd to be so realous for the true Interest of " between Holland and France I that remove appeared to be so zealous for the true Interest of his Country, that if any private Negotiation was " to be expected, it could not be by any other meins

means

(a) W (quefort s Ireatise of Amballaders, tom 2 P' 443 that could prove that some People in the XVIth Century made a separate Sect, in "Whose the quality of Beza's Disciples The same may be said in relation to a great many I heads other Sects, that fill up the Alphabet of Patreolus It may be, the chief reason that mov'd him to make mention of the pretended Sect of the Bezan tes, was a desire of the adorning his Work with the (A) Slanders that were published against Beza If in His Catalogus has flead of rewarding (B) Lindanus, they had punish'd him for his Lies, he would not have been transcrib'd by so many Persons, whereof doubtless, a * Carthusian of Germany is the most ridiculous

BEZA (Theodorus) in French de Beze, One of the chief Pillars of the Reformed Teat 1628 Church, was of Vezelas in Burgundy He was (A) nobly born on his Father's and Mother's fideathe 24th of June 1519 He was hardly wean'd, when his Uncle Nicolas de Beze beach /a d Counsellor in the Parliament of Paris, would have him at his House, where he was ve at it him ry affectionately educated till the beginning of December | 1528 when he was fent to Melchior Wolmar at Orleans, who had a wonderful skill to Instruct Youth He lod'gd feven Years at Wolmar's House, who improved him wonderfully in Classical I earning, and form the partial production of the partial produc instructed him in Religion out || of the Word of GOD, that is, he educated him in la Fave the Protestant Religion Welmar had been sent for to Bourges by the Queen of Navance devita to teach the Greek Tongue there He left that Imployment, and return d into Germania his Country in the Year 1535 Then Beza was fent to study the I iw at Orleans 9 and co my his Country in the Year 1535 Then Beza was fent to study the I iw at Orleans 9 and in That Study pleas'd him but little He spent the best of his time in the reading of good processing. Greek and I atin Authors, and composing of Verses He made very good Verses, so time, and military that he distinguish'd himself by them in a particular manner, insomuch that he was ker, taken notice of, and belov'd by the most Learned Men in the University of Orleans land to He took his I icentiate's Degree there in the 4 Year 1539, and went to Paris where Berry me

(a) History " of Nimegen, t 1 p 94 ad ann 1677 (b) Ibid pag 187 (c) Ibid tom 2 P#E 29

(d) Lin-

Dubitan-

2 P 240

(e) Prate-

òÍ in c- lencho Hæret p

m 94

(f) M₁ chael Faro Fran Balduino tu, dial

danus

He is a Man of a quick Wit, means (a) that knows what is good, and attains to it by the shortest way He is Vigilant and Laborious He has been imploy'd by the States in several Ambassies, and in all the Treaties that have been made since 1650, but he loves a retir'd Life, and it was with some kind of trouble that he left his Country-house near I eydin to go to Nimegen (b) Mr Van Beverningk is a Man of no less Ability than Expedition (c)"

(A) The Slanders that were publish d against Beza] (A) The Slanders that were published against Beza J My conjecture will appear very likely to all those, who shall consider that Praieolus bestow'd but five or fix Lines upon his pretended Bezanites, and fill d seven or eight Pages with the most disgraceful things he could find, against that famous Minister, in the Writings of Lindanus, Claudius de Saintes and John le Vieil Besides, he relates unfaithfully what he takes from them Here is an Example of it Lindanus had quoted Peter Viret, who said, That some Schoolmassers took delight in expeating That some Schoolmasters took delight in repeating a thousand times to their Scholars, That a Main was happy when he could trample upon the scal of Death and infernal Tonnents. It is a passage of Vigl (d) I stitute P treess lib 2 de Minist Verbi esse quosdam ludimaristres ex illo Epicuri grege porcos, qui in scholis solcant suis sape schoolasticis occinere illum acre beatum gai, ut est apad Virgilium, metus omnes & mexoribile tatum Subject pedibus strepitumque Acherontis avair Lindanus adds, that Beza hid made himself suipested of a like Epicurcism, as his Biethren of Paris and Orleans witness. What did Praeeolus? (e) He maintain d that Lindanus said, that when Beza was Schoolmaster, he often repeatthat when Boza was Schoolmaster, he often repeated that passage of Virgil to his Scholars Is not this to falsify an Author? Afterwards Lindanus, who had quoted hitherto no Body against Beza, quotes one Fabricius, (f) who accuses that Minister of having sold his Benefices, and of loving the Fate Sex excessively Beneficia ecclesiastica publice venderet, & alienas uxores permoleret tam familiariter ut publicus matronarum haberetur maritus. This is foon faid, but where are the proofs?

(B) Instead of rewarding Lindanus, they had punish'd firm for his Lyes 1 It is certain, that Praceolus has placed a great many Sects in an Alphabetical order that never have existed, and that he had no other Authority for it than Lindanus Father Gaultier a Jesus sets forth those same Sects in his Chronographical Table, on Prateolus's Testimony If he is not his only Author, he is at least his chief Authority A hundred Authors have spoken of those Seets, and do so still, on the Credit of that Jesus Observe the prodigious and horrible propagation of the fault of a single Writer, I mean, Lindanus When one considers, that that Author having been prefer'd to a small Bishoprick, was afterwards promoted to a greater, and receiv'd great (g) Honouis at Rome, and that none of all the Superiors, to whom he was to give an account of his Conduct, censur'd him for the Boldness wherewith he had a present for the Boldness wherewith he had invented to many Sects, it can be no longer wonder'd at, that there should be so many Liais among thoic that concern themielves with Controversies If Lindanus's Superiors had required of him to prove, that certain Disciples of Been distine from those of Calvin, and from those of the other Resources, had form'd a great or imall Body ther Reformers, had form'd a great or small Body feparated from the other Sestaries, and if for want of good proofs, they had condemn d him to the Punishment of publick Impostors, and declard him uncapable of concerning himself with holy Things, they had established an Example that would have reclaim'd all credulous or deceitful Writers, who report so many falsities. But instead of bringing him into trouble for it, they look d upon him as a valuant Champion of the Catholick Cause, and raw'd him more and more. Who would therefore secret to Calumniate Hereticks? One might apply these Words of Horace (h) to that Author. ply these Words of Horace (h) to that Author

Ulla si Turis tibi pegerati Pana, Barine, nocuisset unquam, Dente si nigro sieres, wel uno Turpior ungue, Crederem Sed tu simul obligasti Perfidum votes caput, enitescis Pulchrior multo, juvenumque prodis Publica cura Expedit matris cineres opertos Fallere, & toto taciturna notis Signa cum calo, geti la jue divos Morte carentes

Here is another Reflection that deferves to be thought on I believe, that if the Question had been to defame the I tylors or fome other I i def-men of an Imperial City, Lindanus would not have offirm'd any thing publickly without being certain of the Fift, but because Religion and the Glosy of GOD was concern'd in it, he publish'd all this came into his Head, without any examination of 1d feed remorfe. So that if we confide the matter well, the recken the Zeal of the Controversits instead of increasing # / x x their Virtue, stisses the Knowledge and all the Scruples that might keep them in the way of Pio-bity in things purely Humane QUOUNO-TANDUM (1)

(A) Noble on his Father's and Mother's fide] His I ather, who was Bayliff of Vezelai, was call d. P. ter de Beze, his Mothel's Name was Mary Bourdi-lot P a Beza ejus oppidi præfecto, & Maria Boni l-lotia, utroque Dei gratia genere nobili (utinam v 10 potius veri Dei cognitione imbuto) & integræ same pa-Beza, who ipeaks in this manner in an Epistle Dedicatory (k) to Wilmar, tells us elic- that of h. where, that his Ancestors had been Rich for toveral Confession Generations, and great Benefactors to the Church of Faith, (1) Sum enim ego (ne nescias) Dei gratianon ex Monachis, who he non ex adulterio vel slupro, sed honest s avis & atavis publish din prognatus, & ne ad allegorias tuas consugias scito Beza La n n rum familiam, si forte quacunque ante ducentos & empli- th Tar us annos in Monachos superstitiose largita est reciperet, ta fore locupletem quam agre hodie sese in sua inopia tuesur

(g) Valer Andreas B₁bl

Xaintes apologia altera fub fin H h h h 2

(B) Woore

156

(1) Beza ad Clau-

dium de

ted in (B) he given u of Age to Wolman to le eduverbo tan ou un limpidiffimo fonte peti a tu inc ira ım suutı ւ, &ւ B .a, de nifi ‡ Ani o Lon ini 15,9 II Cil Augusti quum annum atttis I cc'igreffus // / n 13 ali i , in (1) I rat His Or liv, (1) Remark A ule Ciyet

* See the Annot at :ons G and † Taken out Epistle Dedicatoryof Melchior Wolmar, Lefore bis Confession of Fath, which is a the beginning of his Worksin of Geneva 1582

(a) Ver-

eenacfill

LIVING. 15

mistakin

(6) Huc

duobus pingui-bus & opimis

qui ma-cium 1-tem &

teffor, ıstarum

1 erum

ignarum & ibten-tem onc-rurint,

quorum

ronatos

annuos inus (cj. - epist ad Melci

Wolma-

tingentos αηиιbant Beza

Liatorea

accedebat quod

heiden p 209

beneficus quod verc Deus Opt Max ut vi Etigalia

(1) Ex fratris morte Ructiones aitus cident fi-Et 16 d

(a) L d

(i) 1d abid

(f) Buzz,

(B) he might have had good Preferments, which cross'd for some time the resolution he had taken to go to Wolmar, and make a publick Profession of the Resormation. He says, that the Pleasures of Paris, the Honours that were offer'd to him, and a great many other Snares of Satan, did not chook the good Seed, he never forfook the Refolution of renouncing Popery, though the (C) Temptations of the World made him irrefolute. He had provided against those of the Flesh by a Marriage of Consciences that is to fay, by the Promife which he made to a Woman, to marry her publickly, as foon as the Obstacles that hinder'd him at that time facilit he remov'd, and in the mean time not roengage himself into the Ecclesiastical himse. He perform'd those two Promises faithfully, and a dangerous Sackness saved himself om the Snares that kept him in the Mire. The frightful Image of an approaching Death, made him remains to darnessly the Vow he had formerly made to profess the Resource With that Woman is he had recover'd sufficient Health to travel, he fled to seneral with that Woman as he had recover'd sufficient Health to travel, he fled to Geneva with that Woman He came there the 24th of October, 1548 and before he reloved upon what course of Tayus ubin Life he should take, he went to see Melchior Wolmar at Tubingen

The Year following, initia, page he accepted the Professorship of the Greek Tongue at Lausanne, and after having 18 (D) exercis'd it about nine or ten Years, he return'd to Geneva, where he was made (D) exercis'd it about nine or ten Years, he return'd to Geneva, where he was made in Minister † During those nine Years, he did not confine himself to the Greek epist deput de-Lectures, he made some also in French, on the (E) New-Thestament, which was for dier and the Instruction and Consolation of several Resuges of both Sexes, that hv'd at Lausanne Wolming Lausanne

(B) Where he might have had good Preferments]
(a) His Uncle the Countellor had been dead feven Yeus, but mother Uncle, Abbot of Foodmont, had no less kindness for that Nephew, he design'd to resign to him his Abby, that was worth fifteen thousand Livers yearly Rent, which together with two other good Benefices wherewith Beza was already provided and which had been managed. with two other good Benefices wherewith Beza was already provided, and which had been procured to him without (b) his knowledge, would have put him in a very good way Besides, his elder Brother was very ill, and could not live long, the Succession to his Benefices was an approaching Hope, he died soon after, and that Death increased Beza's (c) Incomes considerably It is easy to gudge, that a young Man, so well settled already, and who had such great Talents, many Friends and Relations, and an uncommon Reputation built and Relations, and an uncommon Reputation built on the Success of his Latin Veries, which the Publick had feen, might promife to himself all forts of Presentents. Quanque mini practilla imped menta qua ante commemoravi, triplicen laqueum reanas circundediffet, nempe voluptatum illecebras qua funt in ca civitate maximæ gloriolæ duliedinem, quam ego non parvam, ex meorum prafertim Epigrammatum editione, ipfius quoque M. Antonii Flaminii doctiffimi poere, O quidem Itali, judicio eram consequutus. Spem denique maximorum honorum mili propositam, ad quos ex ipsis nulicis proceribus aliquot me vocabant, incitabant amici, pater & patruus hortari non disincbant voluit tandem ex his quoque periculis

(C) The Lomptations of the World made him wreso-luc This ought to be no wonder to us, it such an Age, a witty and handsom Man, who wants nothing to diveit himself, has much ado to resist Temptations The Woman that Beza kept under a Promise of Marriage, spoke to him in vain of marrying her, the Revenue of the Benefices which he must have renounc'd, confuted all her Instances One may easily believe what Bezz siys upon But the strength he hid at last to break those Bonds, is fo much the more admirable Quum mili & juveni & ameis ot o, preunia, rebus denique omni-bus portus quam consil o, abundanti, Satanas omnivilla impedimenta derepente objeciffet, fateor me inani illarum rerum splendore o van's blanditus ita fuisse pellettum, ut me totum duc & lluc abripi facile paterer Uvocam mili despondi, sed clam, id tamen faceor & uno tantum & altero ex pus am cis conscio, partim ne cateros offenderem, pertim quod adbue non fatis poffem a sceterata ula pecur a quam ex sacerdotus, de quibus ante d'xi, percipiebam ut impunu canis ab unelo corio abst: cri Ego tum interca semper in luto hærere, in-strintibus meir ut tandem eer um aliqued vita genus amabst i eri ple ferer, & patino mibi omnia deferente, adeo ut quum uni ex parte me premeret conse entra, & conjux de proo con in redition (first faste, quali ommis consilie inops Il a imi cuas jacciem (e)

(1) It rlaw no exercis dit about nine or ten Tens at I will no I re ru'd to Geneva] This is what rologia he five himi it in him answer to Claudius de Saintes Novem (f) cover amos Gracas literas do uiffe Anp m 3c9 tony li 1 m, hath made vie of an even Number, viz ten Years compleat (g), Inciderunt postes tempora, que Bezam ad migrandum Lausannes, un DECEM annos integros heserat Graca docende munere desungens, induxerint Beza in another place of his Books tays, that from Lausanne he return'd to Geneva after ten Years stay there Inde (h) vero tandem, id oft post Years stay there Inde (b) vero tandem, id oft post annum decimum in hanc urbem iterum tanquam in placidissimum portum redii. Nother he nor la Fay, have judg dit propei to explain all the Reasons of his leaving Lausanne What they (i) say of it, does not hinder us from suspecting, that there was I know not what in it, that would be fit for secret Memoirs. His Enemies that made a Mountuin of a Mole-hill, publish'd, that he had been turn'd out of that City. See Lindanui, at the lead Page of the 2d Dialogue of his Dubitablement. 152d Page of the 2d Dialogue of his Dubitations 3 aid Baudouin, in his 3d Answer, fol 146 werfe where he says, Docust Lausanna multus annis illine turpiter atque ignominiose pulsius. That was false, but there was something that I know not, that gave occasion for that Lie Mr Teissier (1) has taken one thing for another, when he said, that Bezs exercis'd the Professorial of Philosophy tor

ten Years at Lausanne

ON E (1) of my Friends, a famous Professor at Lausanne, having read what goes before, used all comments Endeavours to help me to some Explunations, morarc his Endeavours to help me to some Explunations, but his Endeavours proved vain. However, I here give you an Abstract of his Letter, which as of some moment. I thought I should to a some some light into Bera's Life, and particular to his leaving this Academy, to go to Geneva matter I am very sensible that it has been reported, and an Author, whose Name I have forgot, says, that it was, because he had got his Maid with child Bur is it had been so, it would have been known at Geneva as well as here, and he would not have gone away honourably Bona cum venia Amplissim Magistratus Bernensis, as he says would not have gone away honourably Bonacum de Re"venia Amplissim Magistratus Bernensis, as he lays becque in his Letter to his Preceptor Volmar And to "conclude, he would not have come every the Satyr
"is he did, to Lausanne, and have been the Satyr
"received They shew'd him to much
"that the Council used to go and meet him to the Memoirs testify "I am uncertain with Author, meant here, be not (m) Reboul, fatyrical Writer, who was beheaded at Rome for the Pasquils (n)

Pasquils (n) (E) He made some also in French, on the New-Test the Reforment | He made choice at first of the Epistle to the Romans, and afterwards of those of St. Peter They were, as it were, the Seeds of those matter page 9. Romans, and afterwards of those of St Peter They were, as it were, the Seeds of that great Work that he publish d some time after. I mean his that he published fome time after, I mean has Latin Trinslation of the New Testament with Notes. He revised it several times, and made many Corrections in it; none but those that are agnory. rant of the Difficulty of such a Work, well find at firinge, that he should have made some Alterations in each Edition (a) Illus tamen aliquoties emendates as a splon mirabitur nemo, qui opera difficultation turn diginitate corputal am ut decet perpenderes. It is true, that this created some trouble to those who had made use of the first Editions, they fear'd, that a new one would come out, that would overthrow what they had look'd moone a certain but to be sorressed. they had look'd upon as certain, but to be forry for Pag 15

(1) Inci-

tempora dum Lanlanna unt FAYIM d pirtim merkinus datou Theologire totum coniecrnie. partim a-lins ob quas niin hanc urbem redii Beza 16 (Addit to Mr de Thou, t 2 PAE (/) Mr Confirm de Re-Synod, pag 9, (n) Seethe

Sance,

Laufanne. He publish'd several (R) Books during his abode in that City, and before he quarted the Professorship which he exercis'd there, he made a Journey into (G) G r-

1cone Piesbyte. rianorum, p ult ex Fpiftol Jo Drusii d Theo dor Bezim MS But Colomics is mistaken to afirib this Letter to Drufius, it was writ by one Brough

I nglishman Sce a Litter of Sixtinus Amama Drugge 15 his Book de Nittdzis (b) Recherches cap 7 p ton an

A RE-TION on the Hook de punicadis bareticis

(1) The Iranslaties of the p femainder of David's Pfalms shews what be could do, though be did not fo well fuer reed as Clement Marot, who tran-Stated fifty Pfalms Priquiet ıbıd.

 $(d)W_{\ell}$

fuch a thing, is to be angry with Nature, which will have our Knowlege to be very much limited, and that it should increase by degrees. Cruel Reproaches were made against Beza on that account proaches were made against Bezo on that account Nisi quis septies tum Novi Tesson distones emas, resciet quid ains aut quid reges Natural typographum eruditem for mum Commelinum bot mels ance decen-nium distate, quod orebra mutatione confilit hoc tantum adeptus as at plurim: nibili factant Novum Testamentum lisera lasum atqua sensu stenioquum Et olim quidam Doctor Cantabrigiensis muhi retulit, qued Cantabr gia plures aversati suns religionem ducti per te ad credendum plures aversate sure religionem dusti per re ad credendum quod Novum Testamentum depranatum est, sicut per Edmandum Linglein and Vetus ulceratum (a)

Note, rhat the arti Fdition of the Work of Βιως, is of the Year 1596. He mide a Second, ten Years after, and dedicated it to the Queen of Lingland The Listh Ld tion was made in the Yeu 1598. He dedicated it again to the same Queen, by a new Epistle, and suppress the First He should not have suppress it, for it explains at large, the Method, and Pesign of the Author

(F) H publish of several Books during I is abode at Lausanne | I have sit was a French I ragi-comedy, intitle distribution for the Author for the Sames Brunon translated it into the same Language at Amsterdam. It has been printed I know not ar Amsterdam. It has been printed I know not how many times. Let us see what Pasquier says of it (b) About the same time. Theodoius Beza lived, a brace I atin and French Poet. He composed Abraham's Sacrifice so much to the List, that in cading of it formerly, it made Teats drop from my Ejes Bera was us'd to go to Geneva during the Vacancies, to fee Calvin there, who exhorted him to confecrate his Talents to the Service of the Chuich, and who dwin'd him particularly to finish what Marot had the Been tollow'd that Counsel, and translated in the West of the Hundred Pfalm, (c) that remains to be translated They were printed with the King's Privilege, in the Year 1561 After the had known the Planue he made an Odne or and the Planue he made an Odne or the Planue he made and the Planue recover'd from the Plague, he made an Ode to return thanks to God for it. It is pretended, that iodelle (d) made this Quatrain at that time

Indelle (d) made this Quatrain at that time

Beze fu lors de la peste acqueilli Qu'il e ouchoit cette harpe summertelle

Mais pourquoi fut Feue a resta martelle

One of the most remarkable Writings publish'd by Boza during hisabode at Lausanne, was the Treatise de bareticis à Maristratu pun indis He publish'd it in unswer to the Book that Castalio, disquis'd under the Name of Martinus Bellius, had composed on that important matter a little after the Execution (e) of Sarvetus Castalio tieated the general Thesis of To-Servetus Castalio treated the general Thesis of To-leration Bza maintain'd against him, that the Magistrates ought to punish Hereticks The Au-thor of his I see maintains, that, that Work was publish'd very se sonably to settle floating Minds, (f) Scriptum utriusque Biza tum refutavit, tempore in speciem importuno, I d respla opportunissimo ad cohibendos levium hominum in Religione fluctuantium vagos & inc itos aftus. It cannot be denied, but that the feir of a Capital Punishment is of great force, to flience those that might have any Doubts to propost gainst the previling Religion, and to main-te Unity of the outward Communion But ith the Doctrine that authorises that as 'tis with the Invention of Bombs and Communion of But was, and of all kind of Machines of War. Those that make use of them first, draw great Advantages from them, and whilst they are the strongest, things go very well with them But when they are the weakest, they are destroyed by their own Inventions If Biza's Party had been the strongest all the World over, and if it could have maintain'd its Superiority, the Dostrin de puniendis hareticus, would have done great service, it would have represt the Zeal, or the shussing Humour of Innovators, but because within a quarter of a League of Geneva, they were exposed to the Caprices of the Strongest, and did not know whether God would permit the Sect of Soilnes to prevail, it was very im-

Jodelle whether he compos'd that Quatrain (1) Servetus was burnt at Geneva, in the Year 1553 (f) La laye ubs surra Note, about by utriusque he means Lælius Socious & Castaliò prudent to maintain, that the Magistrates ought to inflict the Punishment of Death on Hereticks present Advantage ought not to blind our Lyes fo much, as to hunder us from thinking on the Confequences On fuch an occasion, the Maxim of (g) Regulus is to be made use of I do not mention the other Reasons that may confute this Doctrin, I dwell only on that of usefulneis, alledg'd by the Writer of Bizz's Life. That Ute-fulnels is but a very little matter in comparison of guli, Dift the Evil, which the Book di punicidis haretica pro-duces daily, for as foon as the Protestants have a tis condimind to complain of the Perfecutions which they fuffer, the Right that Calvin and Bezz have ac- Ladis, & knowledg'd in the Magistrates is alledg'd against exemplo them Hitherto we have feen no body that has trahentes not pitifully miscarry d about that Objection and Pernicibominem But let us proceed to other Books pub- cm venilish'd by Beza before he left Lausanne He pub- cns in a lish'd a short Explanation of Christianity, ex do²² 1111 de aterna Dei prad stina ione, an Answer to soach in Horat Of Westphalus, concerning the Lords Supper, two 5 l, (h) Dialogues on the same matter, aguinst Tillemannus Heshussus, and an Answer to Castalio, concerning the Doctrin of Predestination Bezas had (h) The not yet at that time temper d his Heat, and his on in jovial Humour, which made him diop I know not what Raileries in his Writings, v hich he left out when he made new Fditions (1) In his quiden the of

when he made new I ditions (1) In his quiden (dialogis) posten quadam liberiore calamo quam rei qua de agebatur mai saire survivire quibus joios aliquot (ut enat ingenio lepido & faceto dum atate adhui og nte estat ingenio lepido & faceto dum atate adhui og nte estat ingenio lepido & faceto dum atate adhui og nte estat ingenio lepido & faceto dum atate adhui og nte estat ingenio lepido & faceto dum atate adhui og nte estat ingenio lepido & faceto dum atate adhui og nte estat ingenio lepido & faceto dum atate adhui og nte estat ingenio lepido & faceto dum atate adhui og nte estat ingenio lepido & faceto dum atate adhui og nte estat ingenio lepido & faceto dum atate adhui of the Words of Antony la laye, tor if I would follow the Judgment of some Lutheran Authors, I should be obligid to make use of other Terms Courad Schlussillurgius pretends, that there irc such scurrilous and lewd Revilings in Reza's Works, that they only become those, who have had no other School than Stews What he sud upon this, has been carefully pick'd up by the Author of the Calvino-Turcismus I must needs quote him, for I have not the Book of that samous Lutheran (k) Omissis alies Theodorum Bezam exempli gratia pro-(k) Omissis aliis Theodorum Bezam exempli gratia pro-ponit, ex cujue scriptis non modo contra Papistas, sed etiam Lutheranos hoc (inquit) abunda potett demonstrari Er hæc adeo sunt vera, ut ipsos Sicrimentarios pigeat & pudeat futilitatum & blifphemiarum, quas Beza fine metu divinæ majestatis evomuit, sicut ipse Lavatherus fateri cogitur, & aliquot nobiliores Calvinista apud ipsum Bezam conquesti sunt Et quanquam Reza excuse omnia, vocans sanctam urbanitatem hae tam urbanitas vocans fanctam urbanitatem hac tam urbanitas (inquit iste Patriarcha) non Theologos in pietatis Ichola versantes, sed lenones effrontes, & scurras ipurciloquos in ludo meretricio à Thaide vel Candida profuga eruditos decet Unde haud dubie fol 77, noster ille Beza flosculos suarum elegantiarum deceipsit Mor fortius uigens atque probans hoc de Beza maledico & elimbi in d sputationibus & scriptionibus charattere Si quis (inquit) de hac re ambigere velit, ille duos famolissimos dialogos Beza contra D Heshusium legat, qui certe non ab homine, sed Ab 1910 incarnato Beelzebub exarati elle videntur Morret animus blufphemias obicenas, & diabolico aframento tinctas referre, quas iste impurus convitator & Atheus in dialogis illis, in articulo giavistimo blafphemi, impie & scurriliter eructavit Certe adeo sunt sadæ, ut 195e Beza paulo post, qua speciositis priorem editionem supprimeret, secundam procurarit, in qua septem solumnatione milit, & loca plumina el morret, qua erat in editione priore. ca plurima es punxit, qua erant in editione priori Quanquam est bonus & gravis Superintendens hat qua-licunque castigatione non contentus, optat ut non modò isti dialogi in universum, sed simul alia ejus omis a logical in universum, sed simulalia ejus omnia impia & blashhema scripta quæ sunt plurima, abolerentui, no à teneris, piis, & castis hominibus viderentur in atornum sicille Remember that this Coming into Caermany, with the Character of a Depuy I Here is the Subject of that Journey An Assembly of those of the Reform'd Religion was surprized at Paris, in the Year 1557 It consisted of I our hundred Persons, whereof Seven were hurst, and the rest (1) were put into Prison

were burnt, and the rest (1) were put into Prison

(g) Hol caveiar mens pro-vida Reguli, Lif-

*PIRESZHE, V(5)~

(1) Ant

(k) GulielmusReno-Tuicifmo lib 3 cap 19 pag 67 Gonrad Schluf-I heol Calvinit lib r fol pratar lib 3 fol to Beza in viti Caltaken, and th rift The fled

BEZA 610

* Cumque eo de villimis communicaret. fed potifsimum ut ıllıus əni-mo,fi Deus aspirare dignaretur, veræ religionis gu-ftum aliquem in-stillaret Ant Fayus de vita de obitu Th Bezæ pag many, with the Character of a Deputy He had then the pleasure to confer with Melanchthon. Having fettl'd himself at Geneva in the Year 1559 he addicted himself to Calvin in a particular manner, and in a little time he was made his Collegue in the Church and Academy He was fent to Nerac, at the Instigation of some great Persons of the Kingdom, to convert the king of Navarre, and to confer with him about * matters of consequence, wherh the Guises had invaded the Authority under the Reign of Francis II to the prejudice of the Princes of the Blood The King of Navarre having fignified both by Letters and by some Deputies that he desir'd that Beza should assist at the Conference of Possis, the Senate of Geneva did not fail to consent to it No better Choice could have been made for the good of the Cause Beza spoke well, he knew the World, he had a ready Wir, and much Learning His Speech was heard attentively, till he touch'd upon the Real Presence An Expression that he (H) made use of, caus'd a Murmuring In the remaing part of that Conference, he behav'd himself like a Man of great Capacity, and never suffer d himself to be surpris'd by the Artistices of the Cardinal of Lorrain He did not return to Geneva when the Conference was ended, for being a Frenchman, Catherine de Medicis would have him to stay in his Country He preach'd often at the Queen of Navarre's, at the Prince of Conde's, and in the Suburbs of Paris After the Missacre † at Vassi, he was deputed to the King, to complain of that Attempt, the Civil War follow'd soon after, during which, the Prince of Conde kept him by him Beza was at the Battel (I) of Dreux as a Minister During the Imprisonment of

† The 1st March, 1562

(a) I γ Fave ubi

iupra pag

(b) Ad C1 de Xaintes apol

2 pig (c) Beza m vita Çalvını

1 Oper t

(d) Beza

clesiast /

4 p 516 (e) Ibid

pag 521 (f) Apud Mumbourg Hist of Calvinısm,p m 223, 224 Le Laboureur

Castelnau t

P 763 fets

Queen's Letter (g) (The

The Churches had recourse to some Princes of Germany, to endeavour to obtain the Lives of those poor Pisioners from Henry II Farel, Beza, and John Budau, Son of the great William Budaus, were the three Deputies that went to the Court of the Elector Palatine, to that of the Landgrave of Hesse, and to that of the Duke of Wirtemberg, in the Year 1558 Those three Princes recommended earnestly the Cause of those Princers, but the Court of France had little regard to those Recommendations Beza, as he went through Francfort, had the Satisfaction to speak with Melanchthon there (a) This is what Antony la Faye Francfort, had the Satisfaction to speak with Melanchthon there (a) This is what Antony la Faye fays, but according to Beza (b) the Motive of that Journey was, to desire the Intercession of those Princes for the Valleys of Pildmont, which were then in the Possession of the King of France, that is, in the Year 1557 He acknowleges nevertheless, in the Life of Calvin, that, that Intercession was desir'd for the Prisoners at Paris, and that it was not made in vain. (c) Partim intervenientium Ger-Hist Ecdesti'd for the Prisoners at Paris, and that it was not made in vain. (c) Partim intervenientium Germanorum Principum legatione quam summa celeritate Calvinus procuravit, tempestas illa nonnibil conquievit He finds fault, Claudius de Saintes, who plac'd that Journey in the Year 1556

(ti) An Expression il at he made use of, caus'd a murmuring I The Expression is this (d) We say that the Body of JLS US CHRS I is as far from the Bread and the Wine, as the highest Heaven is remote from the Earth Let us see now what the Effect of it was, and let us make use of Beza's own Wolds (e) That only Word (though many others as Words (e) That only Word (though many others as contrary and repugnant to the Dostrin of the Church of Rome, had been sa d by him) was the Cause that the Presates begun to bustle and to murmur, some saying, Blasphemavit, others arose to be gone, not being able to do any thing woo se, because of the King's presence Among others, Cardinal de Tournon, Dean of the Cardinals, who was seated in the chief Place, requir'd of the King many othere as or that he and he whole Company might be permitted to retire. Neither the King nor any of the Princes did stir, and audience was given to proceed Silencebeing made, Beza nint to the silence of fie you And then he returned to his Discourse, which he the and the Queen, that filence might be impos'd on Beza, fie you And then he returned to his Discourse, which he continued to the end Catherine de Medicis i ud in her Letter to Mr de Rennes, Ambassador of France, at the Emperour's Court, That (f) Beza speaking of the Sacrament, forgot himself in a Comparison so absurd and offensive to the Ears of all the Assistants, that she was like to silence him, and to send all the Ministers away, without suffering them to proceed any farther, but that she absain d from it, less People should go away imbued with his Dotti ine, without having heard what should be answerd him Observe the (g) Parenthesis that the Historian made use of, nothing will better discover the Weakness of Mens Minds An old Cardinal, and many Bishops are scandaliz'd, are going cover the Weakness of Mens Minds An old Cardinal, and many Bishops are scandalized, are going awiy, and cry out Blasphem, for what? Because they heard a Minister say, that JLSUS CHRIST is not under the Symbols of the Bread and the Wine of the Eucharist as to the Body, for its what that Expression so offensive to the Ears of all the Assistants, comes to Can there be a Scandal worse grounded, or more childish? When People teach that the Body of JESUS CHRIST is only present in one place at one time, and that it is always seated in Paradise at the Right-hand of God, they plainly maintain, that it is as remote from the Sacrament of the Lucharist, as Paradise is from the Earth Now the Prelares of the Conference of Poiss could not be ignorant, that the Ministers teach, that the Humanity of JESUS CHRIST is always in Heaven at the Right-hand of God, and that it can be present but in one place at one time, and they could not expect that Bexa would not explain the Doctrin of his Party, they should not therefore have been offended at his Expression, (for once again, it adds nothing to the Doctrin of the Ministers) or else they went to the Assembly with this Persusion, that the Ministers would betray their Opinions, and only endeavour to deceive the King. I see one place at one time, and they could not expect and only endeavour to deceive the King but one thing that can excuse the Irritation of the Prelates It may be said, that some Expressions offend us, though they import no more than some Expressions at which we are not offended for example, the Parts that Modesty does not permit to name, may be denoted by some modest Words, and yet those Words significe the same thing, as those that are call'd obscene If the latter are offensive, it is not because of the thing it selt, which they signifie, but because or the thing it self, which they signifie, but because it is thought, that he who uses them against Custom, has not that respect for us that decency requires (b). At this rate the Bishops of Posss might be more offended at the Art of Ministers Doctrin represented by a Comparison, than at the same Doctrin nakedly and plainly represented. But then their Scandal was not groundered on the Zeal of Religion for the Comparison that Reseateled d. is not more contrary to God. ed on the Zeal of Religion for the Comparison that Beza alledg'd, is not more contrary to God, or to the Christian Faith, than the plainest Exposition of the Doctrin of the Protestants. It was not then for the Interest of God, that they were scandaliz'd, but only because they suppos'd, that the Minister did not sufficiently respect his Auditors, when he made use of such Words. They that would make such an Apology for those Research tors, when he made use of such Words They that would make such an Apology for those Bielates, would attribute a most criminal Vanity to them What shall we say then? Is it better to say, that they acted like Children, that they were not offended at the things, but at the Words? This would not be for their Honour I am surprized, that such a grave Historian as Mezeras (1) durst say, that, that Proposition of Beza was pallionate and offensive, that Beza was asham'd of it himself, that it offended the Lars of the Catholicks strangely, and that the Prelates trembled at it for horror and that the Prelates trembled at it for horror ann It is plain, that Mezera: finds those great Tremb- 1561 lings reasonable, and he makes himself ridiculous by it, for it is the same thing to say, the Body of JESUS CHRIST is not present in the Holy Sacrament, and to say, it is at an infinite distance from

(1) At the Battel of Dreux as a Minister] I add that Clause for fear any of my Readers should suspect, that he assisted there to fight, and to handle the Sword Claudius de Saintes reproaches him with it , here is Beza's Answer Interfui Sane pralio, & inchoanti & definents (quidni enim boc facerem?

(h) See the Winking,

(1) Meze-Abridg Chron ad faid by him) Be-in Hist Lccles pag 521 A RI-III C-110N

the Church of Kome

Scandal of the Prolites, at the Confe on the tence of Porf

BEZA. 61 T

the Prince, he always kept with Admiral de Coligni, and did not return to Geneva And that was to till after the Peace of 1563 He did not see France again till 1568 go (K) to Vezelsi, where his Presence was necessary He had (L) written several Books since his return to Geneva, and he publish'd others after his return from Vezelai He went into France again in the Year 1571, to assist at the National Synod of Rockel, of which he was elected Moderator The following Year he assisted at that of Nimes, and opposed the Faction of John Morel, who defigned to introduce a new Disciplina The Prince of Condé caus'd him to come to him at Strasburg in the Year 1574 to send him to Prince John Casimir, Administrator of the Palatinate, which shews, that it was well known, that he could do other things, besides Lectures and Books The Conserence Monbelliard, in 1586 ingig d him against James Andreas, a Divine of Tubin-Beza desir d, that the Dispute might be manag'd Syllogistically, but he was obliged to yield to the Desires of his Adversary, who would not be confin'd to Syllo-The Success of that (M) Dispute is as it uses to be, each Party boasted to have got the Victory, Beza lost his Wife in the Year 1588 but that Affliction, the never so great, did not hinder him from going to the Synod, which those of Bein had affem-The Doction of Samuel Huberns was condemn d in it, concerning our Juffitheo rite vocatus) & quidem quod magismireris palliatus

(a) Beza ad Claud

de Xaıntes Apo-log altera

opei t 2

pag 362

(b) Hæc

fuit occa-

fuos revi-

beris profpicerct, partım ut patrimo-nu fui redisperias collige.

ret, quod & fecit

quantum

permiter

(c) Id 1b

locus.

tempus

fio Bezæ

non armatus nec mihi quisquam vere vel cadem cujusquam vel fugam objecerit (a)

(K) To go to Vezelai, where his Prisence was necessary solas de Beze, Builiff of Vezelai, filed to Geneva for Religion, when he died a little while after of the Plague, at Theodorus s House, his Brother by the lather's side (b) The litter having a mind to order the Affairs of the Family of the Deceas'd, and to endeavour at the fame time to fave part of his Estate, made a Journey to Vezelai, where he indeavoui'd to persuade a Sister which he had in a Nunnery, to forsike the Church of Rome She was an old Nun, very obstinate in her Religion, that would not listen to her Brother's Remonstrances (c) fendı,par-Remonstrances, (c) frattire function (L) He had written several Books and he published others A little after his Settlement in the Church of Geneva, he made a Confession of Faith in Latin, which he had formerly written in French, to justify himself to his Father, and to endeavour the good his Maria Conversion. He published dervour that good old Man's Conversion He publish'd that Confession in I atin, dedicated to his good Master Melchier Wolmar, in the Year 156. His Pen was quiet whilst he tollowed, in the Armies, either the Prince of Gonde, or Admiral nonnullas mies, either the Prince of Conde, of Admiral de Coligni, but as ioon as he return'd to Geneva, he made two Answers, the one to Castalio (d), and the other to Francis Baudonine Afterwards he set upon Brentius and James Andrew, about their Doctrin of Ubiquity, and then he wrote his Book de divortiis & repudiis, against Bernardin Ochinus, who had writ in favour of Polygamy He attackt ato the Errors of Flacius Illyricus He answer'd Claudius de Saintes, Schnecerus, James Andreas, and Pappus, & and put David's Psalms into all forts of Latin Verses Ile publish'd a Treatise of the Sacrament, and a Book against Hosmannus, some Seimons on the Passion of JESUS CHRIST, and on the Canticle of Canticles, a Translation of that Canticle in Lyrick Verses, and an Answer to Genebrard, to whom that Translation had given a new Subject to repeat his Slanders In 1590 he publish'd his Treatise de excommunicatione & Presbyterio, against Thomas Erasius Some time after he Fayusubi Supra,pag (d) He had Beza's Translation Translation ferio, against Thomas Erastus Some time after he examin'd the Book of Saravia, de Ministrorum EvanNew-Test Books, they may be seen in the Lists that Antony la Faye plac'd at the end of his Work de vita & obitu faye plac'd at the end of his Work de terio, against Thomas Erastus Some time after he Lizer La Faye makes no mention of it; but as for some other Satyrical or Burlesque Pieces, that were attributed to Beza, he maintains, that it is a Mistake (g) Differess plenes libros composuit, Haranguam ad Cardinalem Lotharingum, de suroribus Galliess, vistam Catharina Medicea & similis nota chartas. Aqui tam verum est libros illos suisse compositos à Beza, quam verum est (quod isti ignoranter & temeré deblaserant) ab Amirallis ministro scriptum su-

isse librum cui nomen est Matagonis de Matagoni-bus

GARASSL maintains, that (b) Beza, " calls (b) Ga-himfelf justingly by the Name of FRANTO- 1 (se, himself jestingly by the Name of FRAN 1 O-PIN, writing against Doctor de Saintes in that little Macaronick Book, that begins with these Words, Tu facis bene de sufficiente Domine Magister noster, post habere bibitum quatuor bonas sides de ve-"fre vino Sorbonico in dejunando Iheologaliter, &c."

He attributes (i) also a Book to him intituled, APa- (i) Id ib rallel of Henry II with Pilate Observe, that there is p 1012 a great Fault in the List of Antony la Faye It does not mention the Date of the Jirst Editions, not It does when and how many times the Books of Beza fine lite

aut am rulentia

ted nullo fructu, ut fere femper in tacontinge-curicule

when and how many times the Books of Beza were reprinted

(M) The Success of the Dispute of Mombelliard was

(k) as it uses to be] Some Gentlemen, that were come out of France for their Religion, and had fled to Mombelliard, gave occasion for that Dispute The Court of Mombelliard desir d the Canton of Berne to name some Deputies to confer with some Divines of Wirtemberg, he desir'd also the Republick of Geneva, to send Beza to the Conference, he did it to comply with the Desire of the Resugees Abraham Musculus, Minister of Berne, and Peter Huberus. Professor of the Greek Language in the same (k)Utrinque placi-de disceiberus, Professor of the Greek Language in the same (ity, were the Swiss Deputies Beza and Aniony la Faye were the Deputies of Geneva James Andreas and Luke Offander, were the chief Deputies of Wirtemberg Most of them heard only Beza and James Andreas, and saw but little Light in that Dispute of Swiss Days because it was not managed Swiss luftris publicis Andreas, and law but little Light in that Dispute of leveral Days, because it was not managed Syllogifically, and when two Persons answer each other by long Discourses, it is almost impossible to perceive, whether they remove the Dissibility to perceive and personal to perfect and they will be they also be they are the re foler I ayus, p (1) I wus how to prattle The Parties agreed not to publish the Relation of that Conference, but when it was known that some Letters were disperst all over Germany, which were read in the Courts of Princes, and in private Conversations, and that those Letters proclaim'd the Victory of James Andreas, and that at last the Divines of Wirtemberg had publish'd the Conference with Marginal Notes, Beza was oblig'd to publish a Counter-Relation,

I HAVE lately read in a Work of Abraham

Sculter, that the political Reasons, as well on the part of the French Resugges as on that of the Count de Mombeliard, contributed much more to appoint that Conference, than the Theological Helvetia Reasons The Refugees tent for Beza, because they vid mul thought that if he conferr'd amicably with Doctor Andreas about Controversial Matters, they should live more easy in the County of Mombelliard, and that perhaps the Duke of Wirtemberg would come over to their side As for the Count he had been an Ubiquitarian in his Youth, but having heard Beza's Sermons and Lectures, he declar'd freely (m) that he had seen many things at screen and in D Jacobailferland, whereof james Andreas had never spoke bo a word to him, and that he had scarce seen my Abrah thing there of what the same Doctor had often Sculictus said to him. This was to declare, that that Min must did not draw the Picture of the Calvinists very apologet faithfully. Ever since the Count was more kind to p 26

(m)Gene-

vidi multa de quibus nihil, pauca coquibus Tipe audivi ex

History of Calvinılm PAS 144

(g) Ant Fayus,

PAE 70,71

De noftra ad tribunal Der justificatione per fidem. tanquam ınstrumentum quo Chritia nostra apprehenditur, professus est se penitus affentiri, ouum antea & fcripto & verbo docuiffet iuflitiam

nostram apud Deum efse qualitatem quandam patibilem in nobis ınhærentem Favus, ubi ∫upra, p 55 † La I aye pag 61 Says in 1599 and 15 mistaken (a) Non tam ut veritati con-fuleret, quam ut le de Cal-

Vinismo

purgaret Id 1b (b) Scultet ubi fupra, pag 25 & seq (c) Tossan Profesior at berg, had invited Christopher Pezelius a Divine of Bremen, to Dine with him in the Year 1591 (d) Catharına Plaпіа, Аstensis. Francisci

Taruffi

magno fublidio fuit 1d Fayus,

Tannentis vidua. que eiufque adultimum Spiritum

cation before GOD, which he faid * confifted in an inherent quality Beza marry'd again (N) the fame Year a Widow that surviv'd him The inconveniencies of Oidage began to come upon him in the Year 1597, and oblig'd him to speak but seldom in publick, and at last, he desisted altogether from it in the beginning of the Year His poetical Vein was not so dry'd up in the Year 1597, but that he made fome Verses tull of Lise against the Jesuits, occasion'd by the Report that was spread of his Death, (0) and that before he expir'd he had made profession of the Romish Faith The last Verses that he compos'd, were a votiva gratulatio to Henry IV after (P) he had been kindly receiv'd by him near Geneva in the Month of December + 1600 He hy'd till the 12th of October 1605 He continu'd always (2) in his right Senfes, the Reformed, and gave a retreat to those that fled from France for their Religion. But when it was represented to him, that the Duke of Wirtemberg had no Son, and that the House of Austria would not fuffer a Favourer of the Huguenots to inherit that Duke's Succession, I say, when it was repre-fented to him, that he had made himself suspected both by his Journey to Geneva, and by his Kindness to the French Refugees, he consented to the Dispute between Dr. Andreas, and Beza, but his aim was not io much to (a) promote the Truth, as to clear himself from the suipicion of Calvinism This is what Daniel Iossan answer'd Christopher Pizelius, who had ask'd him the Reasons of the Conference of Mombelliard Scultet (b) who relates it was at a (c) Dinner where this was faid If we had a Collection of such like Table-talk, as large as that which is found in Plutarch's Works, we might which is found in Plutarch's Works, we might learn a great many curious things in it

(N) He marry'd again the same Year a Widow that surviv'd him] The Name of his first Wise was Claudine Denesse. See here after the Remark T Their Marriage continu'd forty Years. The Name of his second Wise was Catherine (d) de la Planc, who took great care of him as long as he live de Patin (e) is missaken when he says, that Stephen Pasquier made some Verses on the three Marriages of Rena.

Uxores ego tres vario sum tempore nactus, Cum juvenis, tum vir, factus & inde senes Propter opus prima est validis mihi juncta sub annu,

Propter opus prima est validis mihi juncta sub annu, Altera propter opes, tertia propter opem Here is the sense of these Verses, I have marry'd three Wives at several times, in my Youth, in my Mantrood, and in my Old-age. I marry'd the first Wife f the delights of Love, the second because she was Rich, the third because she would nurse me in my Instrintes But this could not agree with Beza, since he had not three Wives. Some (f) say, that Pasquier made these Verses only for himself. He that observes this, is nevertheless in the error of Guy Pasin concerning Beza's three Wives. (g) He marry d again for the third time, at Seventy Tears of Age, and had sent the third time at Seventy Tears of Age, and had fent word of it to his intimate Friend Junius (h) a Duich-man, in these Words, If it be a folly to marry again at Seventy Years of Age, I have lately committed it He was an old Cock that could not break off from Venus: Chariot, to which he had been put from his Youth These are the Words of a credulous Monk, who is but seldom well-inform'd of what he says. If he and Patin had consulted the 19th Book of Stephen Pasquier's Letters, they would have spoke more exactly See (1) the Margin Beza's second Wife had a wonderful care of him, he left her Heires of all his Estate in Geneva Eorum qua Geneva habebat haredem ex asse institute Catharinam Planiam conjugim suam, qua sinettutem ipsius sustentante, Egloriam ex ossiciis assiduis erga ipsium annorum septendecim spatio quarente vivebat (k) Beza never had any Children (!)

(1)
(0) The report that was fread of his Death and had made profifion of the Remish Faith They that invented and spread that Story, knew the true Interest of their Church but very little Those kind of Frauds may be spread to some advantage against a Sect that has neither Authors nor Prince that the work needs he presented ters, but they must needs be prejudicial, when they are boldly made use of against a Church that has a thousand Presses and Pens in her Bosom, that let nothing fall to the ground, and take the

pag 55
(e) Parin, Letter 506 t 3 pag 490 it with 176th Letter of the ift edit (f) St Romuald's Chronological Abridgment ad ann, 1615
(g) St Romuald, Ib p 391 ad ann 1605 (h) He was no Dutchman, nor in Holland, when Beza marry dagain (i) Pasquier in the 2d Vol of his Letters, p 486 relates, that having heard Jay, that Be-2a mas marry'd again, he made that Quatrain in favour of him, that mainly defined marry three Wives (k) Fayus pag 74 (l) 14 th. Id ib.

Ball at the first rebound Was it not a great Folly to fancy, that the Protestants would lose such a fair opportunity to cry out against Momstick Impostures and Cheats, and to draw many thundering Conclusions from the Confidence they had to report a falfity that was so easy to be confuted? The Ministers of Geneval were not silent on that occasion. They publish'd two Pieces invested with the Authenticity that was necessary to consute that soolish Lye. One of those Wiltings was (m) in Latin, and the other in French tings was (m) in Latin, and the other in French Beza in a Letter to William Stuckius confuted the fame Story, (n) and the Jefuit Clement du Puy, who was look'd upon as the Inventer of that Fible, drew a shower of (o) Satyrical Verses on himself in particular, and on his own Order in general, which Beza's Muses, as old as they were, made ve-ry formidable. It was easy to foresce that, so that they were but dim-sighted People in their own Inthey were but dim-fighted People in their own Interests, who thought of such a Romance There are rash Persons in all Communions

OBSERVE, that in 1591 there was a report that Beza was dead That false News was writ by a Minister to Mr du Plessis Mornai, who answerd him in these Terms Tou have made me sorrowful him in these Terms for have made me sorrowful (n) See all with the Death of Mr Beza, quain nondum certò so Me Preaccepi, quanquam jam olim animo præcepi We saccept, have lost three or four Stars, I see nothing but which New Testa. Clouds over us I his we find in the 94th and 95th mant, of Pages of the 2d Volume of his Memory. Pages of the 2d Volume of his Memoirs not omit that the Jesuits asserted, that this Story was invented by the Protestants to be imposed on them See the Scaligerana under the Word Fellerus, them See the Scaligerana under the Word referus, and the Notes on the Book, Intituled, La Confession de Sanci, wherein you'll find an Abstract of the Letter which they published in 1598, under the Name of a Savoyard Gentleman, in which, they maintain'd, That the pretended Letter, which was attribu-ted to them about the Death and Conversion of Theodo-

ted to them about the Death and Conversion of Theodorus Beza, was a meer Imposiure of Beza himself, and (p) Taken his Party at Geneva The Author of the Notes observes, that Stephen Pasquier had no regard to that, and that the Jesuit Richcome gave out as certain, the Story of that Minister's Conversion in a Book Reprinted in the Year 1599 (p)

(After he had been kindly received by Henry IV]

Dr Spon (p) reports the Speech that Beza made to that Prince, and the King's Answer Mr de Perofixe (q) thought falsly that Henry IV enter'd into Geneva, and that he was Harangu'd there by that Hist of Minister He received (r) the Deputies of Geneva at Luysel, a quarter of a League from St Catherine's 3 p 319 Fort, which Fort was two Leagues from Geneva edit of Uthuanus says, (t) that the King made Beza a Present of 500 Crowns

(Q) He continu'd always in his right Senses I His of 500 Crowns

(2) He continu'd always in his right Senses | His Historian made no mention of what Thuanus observes conterning that Venerable Old Man's Memory (v) Presentium memoriam debilitate guippe mente evanidam amiserat, preveritorum dum ingensovalebat impresam servaverat Itaque & totos Plasmes Hebraice, & quadcumque caput ex B Pauli Episidis proposuises integrum Grace recitabat, nec in itaque olim didicerat judicio carebat, sed que dixerat statim obliviscebasur. The meaning of this is, that in diver's respects Beza's Memory was very good, and very bad, very good as to things that he had learn'd during the Vigor of his Mind, (for he could repeat all the Psalms in Hebrem, and all St Paul's Epistles in Greek by heart,) and very bad as to things present, for a little after having said any thing, he forgot that he had said it. He continued in that condition almost two Years, if we besheve Thuanus, who seems to have been supply d with very good Memoirs on that Head. And indeed Casaubon affirms that in point of Erudition, Beza shew'd himself in the latter Years of las Life
(v) Id lib such as he had been seen Twenty Years before

134 p m
1685

(r) Peref Life of Hen IV
(i) Mattheu, His of the
Ine IV
(ii) Mattheu, His
of the
Ine IV
(ii) Mattheu, His
ine IV
(ii) Matthe

tis nomine ito publicis duobus icripris, alteza redivi-VUS fromen fecetero Gallice Fayus Pag 59

(n) See al-So We Pre-I muft the Editi-8651 80

> (o) Ant la Frye has those Beza, pag 60, 61

134 P m 1082

and express'd a great Piety to the last gasp He was a Man of an extraordinary Merit, and who did his Party (R) very great Services He was expos'd to a great number of Slanders and Calumnies But he made both Catholicks and Lutherans ice that he knew how to defend himself, and that he had Teeth and Claws He had a great share (S) in Scaliger's esteem I criticize Morers only (T) in I we Things Mr de Mezeras treats that Minister very ill, he owns the Story for a truth, that had been

(1) Cafau-bonus epist 297 ad Scaliger

BEZA,

as is faid .

was the

Confulta-

Rome AT-TEMITS

against fon

his Per-

(a) Leti, part 2 lib 3 pag 262 & seq edit 1686

vita di Sixto V

tions at

Subject of iome

He discours'd so neatly about Ancient History, that one would have thought he had just read Plu-tarch, and other such Authors, he spoke Latin and sometimes Greek as before But after having amply Discours'd on the Subject of the new King of ply Discours'd on the Subject of the new King of England, he would often ask in the same Conversation, Whether it was true, that Queen Elizabeth was dead? (1) Venerandus senex Theodorus Beza cum per longinquistatem atatis fattus sit obliviosus, adeo ut post frequentes de novo Rege Anglia sermones subinde me rogaret de Regina, an virum esset quod fama jattaret, illam satis concessione. Idem tamen in literis visus nobis is esse quem ante annos viginti noveramus Lo-quitur Latine, interdum O Grace ut antea audivimus de historia veteri disserentem e re nata luculentissime, ut videretur recens effe a lectione Plutaribi & id genus autorum Thuanus was ill inform d of the circum-frances of Boza's Denth, he inys, That as that Minuster was going out to Church, he was feized with a judden Convulsion, of which he dy d The truth is, that for tome Weeks his Strength declind visibly, and that there was nothing sudden nor unexpected in his Leith See la Faje, pag 65,

(R) Who did his Party great Services Mr Lett (a) relates, that Sixtus V caus d two Conferences to be held, in which he wis prefent, to deliberate about the means of depriving the Protestant Party of the support which they had in the Person of Theodorus Bezs What could be full more glorious for that Minister, than to represent him as a Min, who made the Pope and the Cardinals uncily, as to Affairs of State, for there was no Controverly in the matter? Mr Lett pretends that in the Ye is 1587 the Deputy of the King of Navant to the Cantons, made ule of Beza's good Offices to obtain fome Levies in their Country, That Beza went from Town to Town over all the Protestant Cantoms, and that he animated the Swifs in fuch a manner that they provided Prince Casimir with great Sums, which the Catholick Cantons seeing, they inform d the Court of Rome of the great prejudice that Min did to the Catholick Cause, that upon this, Sietus V cius d two Conferences to be held, the refult whereof was, that all manner of means should be made use of to make that Minister leave Geneva, after which, nothing would be more city than the Convertion of that City, and that the Convertion of Geneva would be the total rum of Herefy both in Swiferland and France, that Mi de Sales Bishop of Gene a, being at that time at Rome, was defir d to tell in the Pope's presence, by what means he thought they might disloage that old Minister from his Post, that he declard, the only i ichas was, to supply the Duke of Savuy with ne cellary loices for the Conquest of Geneva, that Bend not doubting that there was a delign upon his Life, would take inch care of himtelf, that they must not hope any enterprize against his Perion should fucked, that their that Lifeourie of Mi de Sales, the Delign was laid tide of making that Minster away either by Assuming that Minster away either by Assuming that his breaking that were interested that her best here. forasinuch as they were informed that his Highness of San oy had attempted all Lapedients for that nurpose in vain I have three things to observe upon this Narrative 1st Antony la Faye does not fay, that Beza made a Journey to Swifferland in the Year 1587 and yet he feldom forgets those for of things An Lypedition like that, whereof the effects were, as it is loid, fo great, and of fuch a general influence for the good of the Cause, could not have been unknown to, or supprest by him 2dly, Irancis de Sales was not Bishop of Geneva under Sixtus \ Clment VIII made him Coadjutor of that Bishopricl ment vill made nim Coadjutor of that Binoprici 3dly, The Discourse which is alcribed here to that Prelate, does not agree with their Words of More:, (b) Beza, with whom Francis de Siles had fome Conferences at Geneva, confess d to h m, that the Casholick Religion, was the only true Religion. On such a Confession, the Prelate would have advis d the Poppe to offer all manner of Disputies to that the Pope to offer all manner of Dignities to that Minister The description of the care which it was faid at Rome, that Bena took of his Life, is hyperbolical (c) Non faceva passo, senza un cumulo (c) Leti, grande di precautioni, e senza p olisi cento & mille mi- ib p 264, suri, non costumando di praticar n suno, senza esser sicuro d'un inveto ata conoscina ne voleva domestici in Sua Casa, della di cui sede non ne sosse sieuro oltro che ques suo perversi Settaris lo custodivano come suos Demons tutelar, ne usciva mai di Caja Jinza naverni cinque fei a lato, e quel chi importa, che per naggior sicur z za non metteva mai li picci fuori della Citta But it is true, thit he made use of a provident Care See will find there, that they upbraided him with not during to go out of Geneva, for fear of being kill d, like another Can, by the first that should meet him Geniva pedem non audes efferre, ne te quisquis invenerit ut alterum Ca noccidat He aniword, I hitif GOD call'd him to it, he would go any where without fear, tho he was not ignorant of the Ambushes that were laid against him, and which he would ivoid as carefully as he could (d) E si mili appo-fres a tuis illis & venepcos & sicario, non ignoro, (he funt enim artes Romana) quorum etiam unus 1am hic deprehensus pamas dedit Interca me sane li-bens domi continco, 6 vestras insidias quam prudentissime toffum exito

(d) Beza. Pag 362

(5) A crea share in Scaliper's Esteem] This appears by his Epicedium on Beza's Doth He interted in all prefige in it, that provided faste (c) Addite et am de fato urbis in qua accessive omine, quod tamen l'acteur eventu caruit. It is Ninety Years, more or less, since Thuanus mide that Observation, and it has not (t) busherer appeared that Scalings. and it has not (f) hitherto appear d that Scal gere profige has been confirm'd in the least It was not one of those Poetical Preliges, that are of no greater consequence than those of a finatical Commentator on St John's Revelation Nor do I be-lieve that the defire of comparing Biza to St Augustin, which might have ingaged an hundred other Poets to hazird that Prediction, made Scaliger ipeak in that manner. It is very likely, that considering the state of things, he tear d for the Ciry of Geneva the leate of that of Hippo, which was ta-ken by the Vandals a little after the Death of its Bishop So that it was rather a political Conjecture than a poetical Rapture. The event has proved the continuity, which shews, that the furest way is not to judge of things to come. I place Scaligers (g) ill Omen in the Maigin. There are ceitun things in the Scaligerana, that are not for Bezas idvantage, Lut do we certe to esteem a Man, when to example, we make no disheulty to confess, that the many Affairs he concern d himfelf in, and the multitude of Books he composed, have hinder d

(1) It sticize Moich only in five Things] I Beza was not yet pass Childhood when he was brought to Par His Mothe carry dhim thither as soon rs he was weind Viter mariti imperio ob-cuta Intetian usque me RIGLNS ABLAC FATUM peraux t Bezz writes this to Wol-mar II We shall technic under (b) it we ought to believe, Init a scinaalois Ep gram drew the re-sontment of Justice on Beza and that he was accused of a more horible Crime than Fornication, in I that his Debaucheries brought a Difease upon III It is not true that Calvin did often procure some remarkable Commissions to Beza that he might affift at some Conferences aga nft the I utherans I up not thin that there were any Conferences in all Calvin's kide time, at which Beza was present, for the Dispute of the Yen 1557, must not be recloned Chance (1) brought it about, it was but a small matter, they sent into Germany upon another Denga IV It is not true, that Beza is the other Denga Author of the Confession of lath of the Reformed Churches The Contession of I aith that he composed first in Frenct, and afterwards in Latin, composed first in Franci, and atterwards in Latin, is a different piece from the Contession of the Churche. V Biza did not preside in the Synod of Nimes in the Year 157. The following faults are to be imputed to Moreris Printers. They have placed Beza's Birth in the Year 1619 instead of 1519.

It is a different piece from the Contession of the Clade Xunites of Nimes in the Year 1619 instead of 1519.

They

AIALSE Predictiliger

(e)Thuan P 1082

(f) I write this in May 1699

(g) Utque Dei famulo non Hippo fuperstire capta eft. Quum guateret Libycas Vindalus hoftis opes Indulfit tibe fic pireminis,isto Cernere ne posles malo Atque utinam celeres rapicul omini Venti. finaerit iifa metus Sed te fecem,

Rımark U

(,) Beza

(b) In the Article of Francis de Sales spread, of an Accusation of Sodomy, enter'd against Beza before the Parliament of Paris, and another Story of his running away with Candida, a Taylor's Wife This looks unworthy (V) of a judicious Historian The Poems intitl'd Juvenilia have (X) given occasion for great Bustles It cannot be denied, that they contain'd together the licentious Verses, and little becoming the Chastity of Christian Mules, but if the Author's Enemies had been reasonable, they would have prais'd him for the

They have quoted Antony Pale De with the obstu Theod Beze, it should be Antony la Faye, and Beza

MEZE-RAIcriticifed

(a)Me7crai H story of France, Vol 3 pag

(b) Hiftory of Calvinısm, pag 217

THE $\mathbf{W} \mathbf{A} \mathbf{Y}$ to know whether ın Accufition is ialie

(c) Be7a Apolog alteriad Claud de Xuntes, oper Tom 2 pag

(V) This books unworthy of a Judicious Histor an] If he had been contented to fay, that we read in many printed Pieces, that Beza was accused of that Abomination, it would be no strange thing, for he would have said nothing but what is very true Perhaps Two Hundred Authors might be quoted, who transcribing one another, have spoken of that Process Mezeras goes much further, he maintains the thing, he warrants it, and can produce no proof for it, this may be call'd the Conduct of a heedless Historian Let us set down his Words He may, (a) without prejudice to any Religion, very well be call'd a very wicked Man, and a Soul wholly corrupted, who like a filthy Harpy, ipoild the most Holy things with his malitious Raileries, and whose Heart brooded nothing but bloody, and altogether execrable Defigns ther was there any manner of Villany wherewith he did not defile his Youth, the Poems whereof he design'd to cover the Lewdness with the Title of juvenilia, make sufficient mention of it but belides it is certain, that he fled to Geneva to avoid the Punishment he desciv'd, for the Sodomy, whereof he was accused before the Puliament of Paris, and that he carried his Candida away with him, who was a Taylor's Wife, and who was yet living in the beginning of this Century, after he had fold some Benefices which he "tury, after he had fold some Benences which he had of his Uncle, and among other, the Priory of Longjumeau, beginning in this manner the Reformation of his Life with Simony and Adultery." Mr Maimbourg (b) gave only a Paraphrale on these Words of Mezeras, when he drew a horrible Picture of Beza, but instead of following the example of Mezeras, who quotes no body, he quotes Bollec, Spondanus, Florimond de Remond, Claudius de Saintes, &c Had he had any better Witnesles, he would doubtless have produced them, to that it is unquestionable, that Mezerai had no other Authorities than those that Maimbourg quoted Now once again, this is a most shameful thing for such ind illustrious Historiographer as he is a famous and illustrious Historiographer as he is Truly an Historian would write very pretty Stories, if he should mention all the abusive Language that Controversits give each other, of what Religion so-ever they be They are not to be believ'd in Per-ional I acts, for which they reproach their Adver-iries, unless they support them with authentick Acts, so that Mezerai having only follow d Claudius de Saintes and Florimond de Remond, who brought no Proofs for their Slanders, has done himself a great deal of wrong with Persons of Judgment

Let me be suffer'd to make an Observation here, that may be of use in the Discussion of Personal things Several Authors have maintain d, 1 That tnings Deveral Authors have maintain d, 1 That Beza left France to avoid the Confequences of a Process of Sodomy, which they say, was enter'd against him in the Parliament of Paris 2 That he carried a certain Taylor's Wife away with him Beza has publickly maintain'd, that they were two enormous Calumnies, and that he had liv d an unblamable Life at Paris, and that he left it neither out of fear, not for Debts, but for his Religion, and that he had never attempted his Neighbour's Wife any more than the Kingdom of the Indies (1) Lutetia inculpate & bona integraque existimatione vixisse Inde non suga, non clam, non vi, non metu, non ære alieno oppiessum (quæ tu mihi fal-ssssmit mendacissime impingis) sed unius religionis sudo ad ver am Ecclessam justu itineribus ultro Coram Deo juratus testari possum non magis unquam mibi contigisse ut cujusquam uxoris pudicitiam attentarem, quamut Indoum regnum invale-rem Thus fai no Man of any Religion whatfoever, is oblig'd to believe, that Bezs is either innocent or guilty, no body is oblig'd to believe either that his Minister would not deny an infamous Crime, if he was not innocent of it, or that his Priest would advince a heinous Accusation, if it were not true So then the Readers are to keep themselves in an equal balance, till the accusation first thing be proved But on the other side, it is to be gives them to give it for the accused Person, when they Godthank. fee that the Accusation remains without proof, for in his and chiefly in the Circumstances that I am going to last Will, mention If the Fact in question be of such a na- 11, quod ture, that it may be prov'd authentically, and if the Accusers want neither Good Will, nor Indu-stry, it must be concluded, that if they do not prove it, they are Calumniators. This is sufficient to convince Beza's Accusers of Calumny A Process enter'd against a Prior of Longjumeau before the Parliament of Paris, is a thing that may be easily verified The Accusers, their Attorney, their Petition, the Commission of Information, the verbal Proceis of the Commissioners, are either setled Persons, or Pieces that are kept under the publick Authority, and it can never be thought, that a wretched Man, who flies as fast as the can, can have the Credit to abolish the Proceedings, and to silence the Complainers, or his adverse Parties. The logia pri Laylor, whose Wife was said to have been debuch'd, liv'd as long as the pretended Seducer, position. How comes it about then, that such a ladg on the second one as Claudius de Saintes, and io many Ecclesiasticks, who publickly accused Bezs, could never produce any Vouchers, nor a formal Deposition of that Taylor? It may be, that Beza's obliging Words dilarm'd them But on the contrary, he treated them like Dogs, his Jests, and his ill Language, pierc'd them through and through, and all their Writings breath the most violent hatred So that they had on the one fide all the means imaginable, to find the Proofs, and on the other fide, a most passionate Desire to find them, and yet they have own'd not produced them From whence any equitable in the Person ought to conclude, that they we meer Ca-first Editi-

I his is the Substance of all my Argument The thing is of fuch a nature, that if it was true, lawful and authentick Proofs would not be wanting The Accusers have all the Skill, and all the Capacity that is necessary to find those Proofs They have the greatest Interest in the World to find them They have not found them, it must them fore be concluded, that it is, because there were none. It must be then then concluded, that the thing in question was false and chimerical

I have enlarg'd on this I hought, because it may ferve to clear the Uncertainties occasion d by so many rash Writers, who transcribe the most heinous Accufations from one another, without caring to prove them, whilst on the other Hand, the Accused and their Friends, do not cease to cry out against the Calumny against the Calumny

(X) The Poems intit'd Juvenilia, have given occurs on for great Bufiles] I hey were printed at Park the Year 1548 in the Printing-house of Jodocus dius Ascensius, by Conrad Badius, for himself and Robert Stephens, with a Licence of the Parliament for three Years The Author's Effigues is in the for three Years The Author's Effigies is in the fecond Page; wherein he is faid to have been then Twenty nine Years of Age He dedicated liv'd like that Work to his Professor Melchier Wolmar an honest Those Poems consist of Silvæ. Elegies Engage. Those Poems consist of Silva, Elegies, Epitaphs, Man Pictures, Icones, and Epigrams Tis in which till Brerlejus Pictures, Icones, and Epigranis the Controversists that Beza brought forth those ubisupra lewd Poems before he was a Protestant, for he himself contradicts those, who make such the Controversists that Bezs brought forth those lewd Poems before he was a Protestant, for he himself contradicts those, who make such as a long for him. He acknowleges, (a) that find Years of Age, he had imbib'd the Knowlege of the pure Gospel, and that when he abjur'd Popery outwardly, he had (e) made a Vow to abjure it a long time before. It is also in vain to have recourse to Recrimination, for neither Maret, nor jobn della Casa, nor a hundred other Poets, who had no Reformation, nor any new Church to set had no Reformation, nor any new Church to fet up, were oblig'd to be distinguish'd by a singular Virtue and Piety The shortest way is, to place those Poems of Bezs among the Sins of his Youth,

(d) The Godthanks anno ætatis lux 16 Christiana Religionis cognitio. ne ac lines fit, Fayus ubi iupra p 73 See Brerleius, Apologia Protestant p 55 and Pots, t 4 Pag 67 No ethan Morton in Apologia Cathol part cap 21 having on, that while Be-Za was a Papist, be was such a one as be is represenied, erat. dum in volutabro vestro miler hæferat dum Papısta hırcus fuit, Gi corrested this in the fesond Edin tion, and main-first Editi-(e) Epift dedicafessionis fidei ad Mel Wolmaium

Grief * he express'd for them, rather than to cry down (T) the Epigram upon Candida * See the and Audebert. They have accused him of having had a hand in the Murther of the Duke of Remark X Gusse, this we may examin in the Article of Poltrot They have faid, that he wish'd + In the (Z) to return into the Bosom of the Catholick Church It is not true that a (AA) Do- Article of minican confounded him in a Dispute We shall see in another † Place whether Bolsec Bolsec may be credited

I believe, that after having committed the fault of publishing his Juvenilia, there was no other way left for him to avoid fuffering for it, than to live a very obscure Life, or very semote from Theological Disputes, for under what Figure soever he had appear'd, his Enemies would have taken advantage of that Blot, to lessen his reputation He had chiefly to fear this in whatever party he should signalize himself in point bourg of Controversy And it is not to be question'd, but that if the same Arms he made of made use of against the Papits, had been imploy'd by him against the Pro-

for which he ask'd (1) God and the Publick pardon It is certain, that he endeavour'd to suppress them (a), as much as his Enemies endeavour'd to revive them, and if he consented, at the Age of Seventy Eight Years, that a new Edition of his Latin Veises should be made, it was not to have those inserted that gave a scandal I wonder the (b) contrary was believ'd, for not only the Authors that are quoted do not say, that Beza gave ALL hu Verlet of be printed with the sairest Charassi-ALL his Verjes to be printed with the fairest Characters that were to be found at the Stephens's, but it is certain also, that the Edition that was made then, does not contain the licentious Verses of the Ju-venila Consider well these Words of la Taye (1) Accidit ut de Beza poematis ageretur & generos

D Zastrizellus peteret a Beza sibi donari illa carmina, qua cum ipse, tum Paludius (he was Zastrizellus Tutor) vita digna judicarent Idquum impetrassent, Beza concedente, curavit ille in unum colligi Sylvas,

Equity
YOU will find a good Justification of Beza in the (e) critical Miscellanies of Mr Ancillon He relates a fine Passage (f) of Mr Daille, wherein we learn, that the Insidels reproach'd the Primitive Church, that they gave their best Limployments to those, whom the Scandals of their ill Life had made odious and insamous among the Pagans Mr Ancillon (g) refers us to his Apology stor Calvin, Luther, Zuinglins, and Beza

Eligias, Epitaphia, Epigrammata, Icones, Emblemata, Catonem Cenforium, & ut elegantissimis typographis Steplaniani formis excuderentur effects anno 1597 Mr. Baillet (d) has shew'd his Civility and his

Pagans Mr Ancillon (g) refers us to his Apology for Calvin, Luther, Zuinglius, and Beza

(r) To cry down the Fpigram upon Candida and Audebert] There is nothing to ill grounded, as the enormous Accusation built on that Epigram See the Article of Audelert Those that pretend that the Candida of Beza was his Wise, are mistaken, for Beza's Wise was never with child, and there are some Verses on the Great-Belly of Candida in the sixualiza of the Author (h) Quanamilla est Candida's uxor mea scilicet quam in meis versiculis pragnantem superis commendo, quum uxor mea verficulis prægnantem superis commendo, quum uxor mea werstutts prægnanten juperis commendo, quum uxor mes nunquam etiam concepcrit. I have not been able to sind out any thing conceining Beza's Wife, only that she was of no good Family, and that their Commerce Legun four Years before they left the Kingdom, and before they married in the Face of the Chuich. Her Husband gives a good Chainster of her (1) Uxorem mibi en quam illa tempora ferenant ration. bant ration. quatuor creiter annos ante volunta-rium meum evilium despondi, genere equidem imparcm, rium meum exilium despondi, gencre equidem imparcm, fed es wirtute præditam mulierem cujus me pænitere ab dicatory of eo tempore minime oportuerit Scaliger (k) lays, that his Poems (i) Epist dedicathe was the Daughter of an Advocate, and barren, and afterwards he cries out, What foulh Woman' and afterwards he cries out, What foulh Woman' The Husband's Historian speaks otherwise of her, praises her for several good Qualities, and chiefly for her conjugal Assection, but it is the seeallo the second and learned Person, his Wise, if ever he had any, was always a Woman of a great Merit, and of a claudus. peaceable Temper The Funeral Orations of Professors never leave that part out, although those, that make them, have but too often a Secrates to praise However it be, let us see the Elogy of Beza's first Wise (1) Anno 1588 mense Aprili e vivus excessit Claudia Denos Beza conjux, cum qua conjuntissime & honestissime vixerat annos quadraginta Fut illi casus hic gravissmus erat enim famina multum laudata, sedula, frugi & viri sui in primis studiosa Not a word of her Family This makes me question what Scaliger says, that she was the

And besides, would the Scali-Daughter of an Advocate And besides, would Beza have confest so freely, that he had married below himself, if his Wife had been the Daughter of an Advocate of Paris? That under-mitching has fomething in it, that I cannot unravel, and that leaves Suspitions Beza as handsom (m) as an Adoms, Polite, Learned, Witty, wanting no Money, under-mitches himself! One of those (n) that have answer'd Maimbourg's History of Calwinism denies, that the Cambourg's Beza is a certain Dense Clearly of Talker 1865. tain Dame Claudia, a Taylor's Wife, and among other Reasons, he makes use of this, When Beza speaks of the Clasp, he complains that coercit globulos duos rubentes intia cæca jubet manere chuftra, those Expressions, says he, of a Woman's Breast, are not for a Taylor's Wife. Who told him that a Taylor's Wife of Pais could not wear a Class in those Days, to hide her Breast? That Apologist makes some minute Observations, which he had done better to have supprest

I CANNOT give any credit to a thing that tuled, The I have read in one of Mr Ancillon's Works, which true Hiis, that Beza's first Wise was (o) Frances de St Marcel d' Avençon, Sister of a Bishop of Grenoble, and the Widow of Nicolas Odewoud, Brother of John nim, the IVth first Consul of the Same City of Grenoble, P 171 her first Husband, and of Philip de Poy, Lord of France, her second Husband Such an eminent No. (o) An hilly cannot agree with the wider mesch new total life. bility cannot agree with the under-matching which the pretended third Husband confesses so ingenuoully Besides, Mr Ancillon had not well in- Cittique formed himself of what concerns Bezas Mar- tom 1 p riages, (p) he admits three of them, and applies 379 to em Pasquier's Epigram, which I have let down in the Remark N

(2) To return into the Bosom of the Catholick P 405 Church] See in the Remark O, the report that was spread, of his dying a good Catholick in the (q)Fel Year 1507 I have in Author to quote here, dent, I whose Name and Temper agreed very well tremarks. (q) Did he not lately most humbly supplicate our most Christian King to obtain the Absolution of our Holy Iather for him? The same Prince told it two several times to a Prelate, and I am sure he would not revoke it for all the Huguenotism in the World Cry out and murmur at it as much as you will The Sieur Coineille, a late Minister, told me, that the Same Beza, advising him to for fake all hier Errors, and return to the Faith of the Catholick Church, protested to him that he would do the same, if h could easily get out of Geneva If you have a mind to know more of it, he will tell you the Day, the Place, and his Discourse, with so many Particulars, that you cannot doubt of it, &c Thus Particulars, that you cannot doubt of it, &c Thus the Cordelier Feuardentius speaks of Beza One is amazd to see him quote Henry IV with so much confidence, as for the Ex-Minister Corneille, his Quotation fignifies nothing Compare this with the Remark R, towards the end

(AA) That a Dominican confounded him in a Dispute] Alfonjus Fernandez relates in his Annals of the Dominicans, printed at Salamanca, in the Year 1617 that Pather Sebastian Michael, a Religious of the Order of St Dominick, dashed the Pride of the Huguenots in Montpellier, and chiefly that of Beza, who travel'd often from Geneva to Montpeller River (r) says upon this, that in the time of this reGeneva pretended Triumph, Beze was in his 81st Year, and excessisse, that he was not in a condition to undertake long autiful-Journeys, and that it is certain, that neither in tem fines I 1 1 1 2

Rivetus in Jesuita vapulante, Oper t 3 p 499 tife of Rivet are divers Answers to Beza's Accusers In that Trea-

(m) See the Descriptiof Calzitestants, nijm, p 217 that Buza had the Prefence of I uit vilde pul-chei sepræstinti forma ut tur alıquis princeps

Book inti

lon, Me-

(a) Fourrdent. Enministrales, Book 3 ch -4 (r) Cum tamen certum tum octuagelimum priagentem. ıllo anno nec potuisse si voluisset, Montempessulanum adventare. lo tempothat Genevenfium

Chapter of St Matthew, v 19, his Answers to Claudius de Saintes, or (a) Ant kayus ubi Supra, p 9, 10 (b) Jugem sur les Poctes t 4 p 71 (c) Ant Fayus p 59 (d) Enfans celebres, pag 183 (e) In the Firft Volume, pag 386 & feq (f) Taken from the 19th Sermon on the 3d Chap of the first St Paul thy (g) In the 398th page (b) Apoad Claud de Xaintes, operumtom 2 # 359, 360 S Allo the Claudius

de Saintes ? 360 (k) InScaligeranis,

at the Word

Beza

(/) Ant

Fayus,

PPS 54

(1) See the

Preface to his Porms

address'd to An-

Dudithius, dated

the 14th of May,

1569 his

Notes on the First

drew

(a) At the end of the Remark R

(b) Ant

(c) Guli-elmus Reginal-dus in Calvino

Turciimo lib 2 cap 11 pag -74 (1) (on-

Schluffel Cilvinist Theolog 1 2 Fol 72

() Idem

(,) 10193

lib 1 Fol 92

Fayus pag 19

testants, some (BB) Reformed Writers would have teaz'd him with his Audebert and his Candida. Among the Roman Catholicks, he that treated him with the greatest Moderation Candida. Among the Roman Carbonicks, ne that treated him with the greatest Moderation could be more easily pointed out, than he that treated him with the greatest Anger Those that have shew'd some Moderation and Equity towards him, are but a small number, those that have discharg'd the tury of their Animosities against him are numberless. But I do not believe, that there are many, whose Passion is so enormous, as that of the Author of the Dostrine curiense. I shall mention one of his (CC) Calumnies. It is so strange, that one can hardly believe the own Eyes in a thing of that nature. He was publickly Census'd for it by a (DD) Catholick Writer. But he was that Year, nor after, he did not fet his Foot out of the Territories of Geneva I do not believe, that in any time of his Life, that Minister made frequent Journeys from Geneva to Montpelier have ieen (a) that they reproach'd him for not daring to go out of Geneva River did not know that in the Year (b) 1601 Beza Went to Lausanne, he took then his final leave of that City

(BB) Some Reformed Writers would ha (BB) Some Reformed Writers would have teaxed him with his Audebert and his Candida JWe should prefume too much upon the Privileges of Orthodoxy, and belie Experience, if we should believe, that all those who write for the Defence of the Truth, resist the Impressions of Resentment in such a manner, as to see only in the Writings of their Advertages what Justice would have 'em find in them Brea's Fingram on Audebra is at the bostom him. Beza's Epigram on Audebert, is at the bottom but a witty Conceit, it is free from the Abominations that the Missionaries pretend to discover in it, but to see this Purity in it, one must either be the Author s Friend, or have no Partiality for or against him, for when once a Man is very angry, and would be reveng'd for the Offences he has receiv'd from that Author, he gives a criminal turn to his The Protestants of the Confession of Geneva do not doubt, but that those of the Confession of Augsburg, are part of that true Church that leads to Heaven Nevertheless, some Lu herans were so offended, because Beza had writ against their Pai-ty, that they adopted the Slanders of the Roman Catholicks as to his Juvenilia See a long passage here of the Calvino-Tirissmus, wherein the thoughts of a famous Lutheran Divine are to be seen (c) Et quanquam Theodorus Beza aliter de vita moribusque Calvini scribat, tamen contra Theodorum Bezam ist arcaicini scribat, tamen contra libedavum Bezam ist argunt hec esse offen, nec unquam luculenter & solide a Calvinistis iestutata Nam quod ad Beza testimonium attinet, quim Theodorus Beza (inquiunt) (1) cadem hares, & codem ferme peccato nobilitatus sit, ut historia de Candida meretricula (& Audeberto) test tru , nemo issi hac in parte sidem hibeie potest Nihil certe apud hominem moderatum & aguum valere potest ejus guacunque vehementissima licet contestatio, si verum est quod juxta istos, (2) Ceito constat Theodorum Bez im a puertri imbissise verum impudication. vitum impudicitiam, & impudentism, totamque etitem explendis fuis libidinibus & cupiditatibus, ic describendis fuis imoribus, & ulciscendis fuis nivilibus exercuifle, atque in meretricem lenam, &c cynedum transformitum esse (3) De quo irem constit & ho, quod obscænissimos versus scripsit id Germinum Audebeitum Aurelia, & eundem tanquim Adonidem a Theodoro Bezi sistum esse The time blindness that ingag d Schluffelburgius to write fuch things, would have been found in some Resourced Authors, it Beza had tollow d the footsteps of Claudius de Saintes, or of (d) Ronsard, if he had been Chaplain to the Duke of Guife at the Bartle of Dreux, it he had Haringu'd against those of the Religion at the Conference of Poiss, in a word, if he had persecuted them by his Books, Intrigues, Sermons, Journes, & Let us say then, that the Glory he acquir'd in maintaining the Cause of the Reformed with a great Leal, caus'd his Poems to be taken notice of, which without that had never been exclaim'd against And if it were permitted (1) to compare finall faults with great ones, one might remember here what shall be sud in another place of john della Cassa His Capitolo del forno, would have remain'd unknown, as so many other more infamous Poems, if he had not been rais'd to the Function of an Inquisitor To conclude, I add, that if Beza had been a great Perfecutor of the Huguenots, and expos'd to their Libels for his Juvenilia, the Writers of the other Party would have maintain d, that there was no harm in the

Epigram upon Audebert and Candida, and that a Man must be given over to a Spirit of Slander, a perperual Character of Herefy, to &c

CC) I shall mention one of his Cal minies] (f) The Fourth, that was guilty of a great piece of folly concerning the Sacrament Beza, for that curieuse, Man who had a good Wit to pute a lascivious pag 283, Epigram, though he committed childrifn faults 184 in the quantity of his Latin Veries, never spoke of any thing relating to Divinity, without exposing himself to the mockery of Learned Perions George Fabritius tells us, In responsions and poing himself to the mockery of Learned Perions George Fabritius tells us, In refponsione ad Apologiam Bezz, that the said Arch-Heretick being at the Conference of Possi, made a long Discourse in the Form of a Paraphrase, on the Words of the Confectation, by which he equilibrium that here is an electric transfer is an electric transfer is an electric transfer is an electric transfer in a partice that there is an electric transfer is an electric transfer in a partice transfer in a partice transfer is an electric transfer in the contract of the property is an electric transfer in the property in the property is an electric transfer in the property in the property is an electric transfer in the property in the property is an electric transfer in the property in the property is an electric transfer in the property in the p he, Sirs, I give you notice, that there is an effential fault crept into the New Testament in the Words of the Consecration; for whereas we read, Hoc est corpus meum Hic est caliv meus it must certainly be read with a Negative, Hoc NON ESI corpus meum, Hic NON EST caliv meus, and that CHRIST pronounc'd it in express Terms, but that the Evangelists and St Paul. who were our Lord IESUS CHRIST's Paul, who were our Lord JESUS CHRIST's Secretaries, have by misfortune, or by too much Secretaries, have by misfortune, or by too much precipitation, forgotten the Negative, as it appears often, continu'd he, in the Pandets of Florence, and the Civilians observe, that there who transcrib'd them, have often forgotthe with gative, and by that means made some quite contrary to the intention of the Foundate. Thus, said Beza, the Evangelists having forgot the NON, are the cause that we debate this Day a most clear Truth For, what likelihood is there that the Body of CHRIST should be contain'd in a small round Waster? I say, Sirs, that Non plus est in COENA, quam in COENO, he is as much in the Mire as in the Sacrament Arthis Discourse, the Doctors, and particularly Espenaus, and Claudius de Saintes were in a manner stupisy'd with Astonishment, seeing the Impudence and the Folly of that Man were in a manner stupity'd with Astonishment, seeing the Impudence and the Folly of that Man And Claudius de Saintes having produc'd the Confession of Augsburg, which the Calvinists of Augsburg, which the Calvinists of Augsburg, which the Words in experient Terms Christic corpus in Eucharistis ADESSE: Beza answer'd, that it ought to be corrected, that the same fault was in it, as in the Evangelists, and that by changing one Letter is might lists, and that by changing one Letter it might be read ABLSSE, that the Body of JESUS CHRIST was absent from the Eucharist" We shall see how this absurd Discourse of Father Garaffe was confuted by a Person of his own Com-

(DD) He was publickly Cenfur d for it, by a Catholick (DD) He was publickly Cenjur a jor 11, by a Catholick Writer] I mean, by the iame Mr Ogier, that work for Balzac iome time after, and who was a good Preacher He did not put his Name to Book, which he Intituled, Jugiment & Cenfur livere de la doffrine curiense de Hançois Garasse, which he mublished at Parie III the Vear which he published at Paris, in the Year is But nevertheless, it is certainly known that was the Author of it bore down or training to the Adversary, as Gay was by Mr Oglar Co.
Censurer did two thin Reasons that nothing is more about the pose that Beza spoke in that manner, and offer pose that Beza spoke in that manner, and afterwards he prov d, that the Witness quoted by Ga-

wards ne plov u, that I affe, did not fry what was imputed to him

Let us fee his three Reasons (g) Is it likely that Bern, one of the chief Ministers of the Conference of Poilfit, held such a Discourse as Garasse puts upon him, Hoc non est corpus meum, since that cursed Corruption do-snot only ruin the Catholick Belief concerning the Holy Sacrament of the Eucharist, but also that of the Hereticks, and of Beza and his own Party Certainly it seems to me, that if our Lord had said, This is not my Body, as the Catholicke could not conclude the reality of the Body from that Expression, so the Zuinglinas

(d) Sec the Remarks D and E of the Artule Ron-

(1) Si parva licet componeic mignis Lingil Georg lib was not asham'd of it, and chose rather to make use of (EE) a pitisful shift, than

Zuinglians could not draw their signification of Body from it, and much less the Calvinists their stowings, irradiations, participations of the Body of Christ, which they add to the signification, since he would absolutely have said. This is not my Body, and to this Consideration, that one must be not employed, as Gazasie station, that one must be not employed, as Gazasie station, worse than a Beast, more station at Log, more station than a lump of Lead, to have such at thought that our land JESUS CHRIST said, Hoc non cit, &c. For this bono? Wherefore should be tell his Disciples, that the Bread was not his Body, rather than any ples, that the Bread was not his Body, rather than any r Meat that was on the Table, nay, rather than the otbo other Meat that was on the Table, nay, rather than the Table ::[cif? Befides, What Coherence, what Consequence, what Reasoning in these words, This is not my Body, that is given for you, This is not my Blood. Or without adding any explanatory Words to make one know which was that Body and that Blood that was to be given, and shed for the Salvation of Mankind? As for me, I own, that the I consider those Words never so attentively, I cannot conceive any Reason or Consequence in them, and I do firmly believe, that or Consequence in them, and I do firmly believe, that one must be a Fool, and a furious and distracted Man to be able to find any sense in them Finally, Who will believe that Beza made that sine Speech that Garasse assertions to him at the Conference of Possi, he that presented this Form of Confession concerning the Eucharist to the Bishops with his some Hands? Considering Christian Jection Confession of ium in fua fancta Coena nobis offerre, dare, & exhibere veram substantiam corporis & fanguinis, per operationem Spiritus Sancti, and what follows, that may be read in the Answer of Cl de Saintes to Beza's Apology And the these sine Words, so Orthodox in appearance, vanish into airy Notions and Figures, yet in what manner seever they be taken, they are inconsistent with that pretended Negative He tells us afterwards of the Companison he de between Garasse's Narrative, and that of the wilian Gabriel (a) Fabricius, whom Garasse had quoted for that Story (b) He relates, That Francis Baudouin, alias Balduin, having for saken the Sest of the Calvinits, was a long time exposed to their Galumnies and Curses Besides he compos'd very learned Treatifes against Calvin's Dottrine, and among tearned Treatifes against Calvin's Dostrine, and among others, a Preface to an Edition that he published of Optatus Milevitanus with this Superscription, Joanni Lucanio He adds, (c) "If the Ministers hated that "Civilian much, they feat him no less, because of his Sufficiency and prodund Learning infomuch, that all the Works of the Catholick Do"tors, wherein any Point of their Doctrin was folidly confuted, were imputed by them to selduin. It happening then that Dr de Sainter. Raldum It happening then that Dr de Sainstes, sterwards Bishop of Evreux, compos'd a Book that tuled, (d) Examen dostrine Calviniane & Be-

Rana de Cona Demini, Beza compos d an Apology to serve for an Answer to it, wherein he furiously inveighs against Baldwin, as the chief Author of the Examen De Sainstes answer'd by a Reply intituled, Responsio ad Apologiam Theod Beza, &c And on the other side, Gabriel Fabricius undertook to defend his Master Balduin's Cause, and compos'd a Libel intituled, (e) Gab Fabricij Responsio ad Bezam Vezeliam Eceboliam, which, to speak properly, is a sharp Satyr, wherein he sets out Beza in all his colours, never calling him by any other than a Feminine Name, dealing th him, as with the most lascivious and progate Woman in the World, and using the most apping strokes that Satyr can invent against an Enemy It is out of that little Book, that Ga-

raffe took that Speech of Bezz at the "Conference of Posss, which will be streamed, if Fabricius had be in the silver of discourse of the silver of the silv

all the Book, Fabrician fays only, that Beza, without racking his Brain with so many Forms for Confession, Commentaries, and Explanations of this Passage, Hoc est corpus meum, should have said with a brazen Face, That it is an Error of "the Transcribers, who instead of Hoc non oft, as the Evangelists wrote it, have carelessy left out the Negative, and writ Hoc est, &c Here are Fabricius's own Words in the 17th Page of my Copy Et fortasse, at tandem to expedies, &c to commentariorum plaustra facessere jubeas, recurres ad talem emendationem & quia nostri correstores dicumt in 19ss etiam Pandetha Florentinus, sape deesse negationem, tu tali artificio statim te liberes, & adversarisis os obstruas, prasertim cumalios multos Evangeliorum locos smiliter scilicet emendaris, partim ex consestura, partim en manuscripius, ut ais, exemplaribus. By which Words it appears as clearly as the Sun at Noon-day, that Fabricius means this, Eum qui semel verecundia sines transserit, naviter oportere esse impudentem. That since Beza was so impudent as to corrupt the Scriptures in several passages of less moment, he might carry his impudence farther, and corrupt this passage, Howest corpus meum, substituting in the room of it. How non est, &c. The following impossure of Garasse is of the same stamp, when he says, I hat Claudius de Sainstes hearing Beza speak in that manner, produced the Contession of Augsburg to contound him, which has these Words, Christic corpus in Eucharistia adesse, and that Beza answer'd, that it ought to be read abisse. Garasse stupidity, who thinks to make his Reader believe, that Beza who would never subscribe to the Consession of who thinks to make his Reader believe, that Beza who would never subscribe to the Confession of who would never unicribe to the Confession of Augiburg, notwithstanding all the entreaties of Caidinal de Lorrain, nor give his opinion about that Confession, made that foolish and impertinent Repartee to Dr de Saintles (f)

The truth of it is, that Fabricius derides Beza ac- (f) Ibid negationem, tu tali artificio statim te liberes, & adcording to his usual custom Ub. id eviceris, says pag 95 he, facile deinde efficies quod præteres suscipis, ut persuadeas, tam susse historius temulentos omnes Protestantes, & Anda a little after, Ingenua profecto & ingeniosa sucressi usa emendatio, ut ubi in eorum de cona confessione scriptum est corpus adesse; scr batur abesse Facilem enim lapsum ebris scripto-ris susse, in tanta assinitate unius literula. Certainly, it would be an ingenious Correction, if instead of adess, as the Contession of Augsburg has it, you should read abess, ind if you should fix, that it is an error easily crept into the Text thro the carelessiness of some drunken German, by reason of the affinity and resemblance of these two Letters d, and b" You may be sure, that us Censurer did not forget to insult Garasse this for his boldness to mention this Gircum-flance, That the Dectors, and particularly, Lipen-caus and Claudius de Sainces were struck with amazement He ends with a very good Resection, (g) That way of proceeding, fays he, is greatly projudi- (g) Ibid cial to the Conversion of erring Souls, and particularly p 96,97 of those that Gazasse pretends to bring over to the Church by means of his Book For pray tell me, what Heretick, what Atheist would trust him after he has been surprized in so maniss fix a falsity? Who will not presure that a thou-Sand Absurdaties, which he relates of several Heresical Authors, are of the same stamp, and that he quotes the Ancients with the like sincerity as the Modern?

I have it from good Hands, that the chief reason that retain d the great Cafaubon in the Errors , wherein he was brought up, was for having perceived the like Tricks in some Modern Authors, which made him conceive a very bad Opinion of those that would triumph over their Enemies with false Colours

Let us observe some small mistakes in this Ju-ERRORS dicious Censurer I he reason why the Protestants of Mi publish'd iome Slanders against Baudoum, was not be-cause he had forsaken their Religion, and compos d learned Works to confute them See the Remark H, of his Article, where you will find that he diew their Indignation upon him for having condiew their Indignation upon him for having concein'd himself with some Intrigues, wherein they thought there was a design to destroy them under pretence of Reconciling both Religions. You will find there, that they took him for the Author of a small Piece that Cassander had made, and which was not a Book of Controversy, but rather an explication of the Duty of a good Man in the Condition the Church was then in In short, you will find there, that the Slanders preceded the Preface to Optatus Milevitanus These are already some faults of the Prior Optatus. Here are some others. The Protethe Prior Ogier Here are some others The Proteflants imputed only the Anonymous Book of George Cassander to Baudouin It is false, that Beza look d upon him as the chief Author of the Examen Doupon him as the chief Author of the Examen Do-Hring Calvinians, written by Claude de Saintes, he was contented to fay, that Baudouin had supply'd that Doctor with some things that consisted much more of matters of Fact than of Arguments (EE) Make use of a pitiful shift, than to confess the Truth | First of all, he supposes that the Question

(a) Hillians

Garane had Said, for which

Ogier

censures

(6) Ubi fupra

PAE 91 (c) Ibid

pag 92

Box W

Prison at

Paris in

the Year

(e) Printed a: Paris in

she Year

1567

8vo

1567

& Note that Beza Apol 1 nd Claudium de Xaintes Ot CI to 2 p 194 Jaid that of I tuncis Brudouın, vir fanc nullius fidei, ut tanticus haticus hathe took one part of the passage that was favourareticotum, and prove then, that Fabritius did not speak by Irony, and that he did not fally accuse Beza of having of festate under the passage of having and Success of the Church in the form of " a (bronicle, and Printed at Paus in the Year 1583, in 2 Vol in Folio and that he had certainly corrupted the passages of the Goipel I hese are his Words, that deferve to be seriously consider'd Ipse Illyricus de illa explicatione & INVENTIONE Bezana loquens, vocat phantasticam inwentionem,qualis est amantiumin pictu-ra Poefs, ut ibi suos amores esse somnient, ubi non sunt very that appears in these Words of Father Garaffe, at untarion, there would be reason to laugh at that excuse, and to call it a Cheat But Gar affe was then at Paris, so that he might easily have found Fabrilius's Book, and no Author was ever more oblig d to purge himfelf from Calumny So that tt was a prodigious Confidence, and an invincible Obstinacy to say I could not find that Book, what diligence focuer I could make What a Jesust, who can be supplyed by the Libraries of his Order in the furthermost part of a Province with any Book he stands in need of, tells us, that he could not find at Paris the Work he quoted? His Advertary could find it there, and does not say, that he used any diligence to find it out. Why, had he not recourse to that Copy, if all other helps fail'd him? Mr Ogier dust not have refus'd him, his refusal would have been a proof of Garaffe's innocency. This is worse still, that Jesuit took a passage of Fabricus out of his Collections, and gave it as the Sequel of that which his Adversary had mention'd, I say, as a Sequel artificially suppress'd by his Adversary But it appears plainly, that Mr Ogier suppresses nothing, and that Pabritus & Words which Francis Garaffe quoted, concern another thing

What would have become of him, if the Reply that Mr Ogier was going to make, had not been stop d by the Reconciliation that was made between them. Would he have found new ways to dispense himself from fairly acknowledging his Calumny, Rashnets, Imposture and Impudence? I shall say often, without being weary of it, That it is a very useful thing to collect many Exam-ples of the Knavery of Authors, and the pieces

(a) Garasle Apolodoctrine currense chap 26 pag , 19

Spon History of Geneva,

P m 357

(1) 12 16 101 350

to confess the truth I have read somewhere in his Works, that Sturmius affirm'd that Beza might truly say, I believe but one thing, which is, That I believe nothing a What Calumny is this Prateolus must be reckon'd among the Authors that have been the most diligent I ranscribers of the most abusive Language against that Minister He lest out nothing r of what Surius, and such like Writers had collected Cardinal Richelieu made use in his Method, of some of their Rhapsodies. I'll make a (FF) Remark aganst him Let us not forget that Beza was bury'd in St Peter's Clorster, and not in the Burying-place of Plein-palary, because the Savoyards had boasted that they would take him up and send him to Rome * La Faye says, that this was done for some Reaions which it was not necessary to mention

BIBLIAN-

(c) See Theoph

Ray naud

Treatife de

Mai tyrio per pe-item H that Buck

perswaded

Fat her

Garaffe. that the Crappy of

Martyrdem

Was to be means, and the Plague

See Mumb 44 of the I heolo-gia antiqua de vera Mar-

in the

ut tanquam also only to know, (a) Whether Fabritius spoke those to sociato vere possit illud usurpare, Hoc unum credo quod nifil credo fil credo

See his Perceive, that Monsseur Augier did, out of Simlenchus Alphibeticus ha
" to only to know, (a) Whether Fabritius spoke those those the social way of Irony? He conselles afterwards, that his Adversary grounds himself on the country is Book, and then he expression to multiply Words in Not to multiply Words in the shimself thus
(b) " Not to multiply Words in
the shimself thus
(b) " Not to multiply Words in
the shimself thus
(c) " and not being able to get it, what diligence so treather than the ship ship ship ship to the ship ship ship ship
to the ship ship ship ship
to the ship ship ship
to the ship ship ship
to the ship ship
to the ship ship ship
to the ship
to fuch Men as Langius and Gruterus had spent part of the time, they bestow'd upoh Polyanshea's, in making such Compilations Garaffe would have often appear'd there, he was a Satyrical, Hot-headed, Scurrilous and Rash Man, who told a Lye boldly, and deny'd afterwards that he had faid it It was hi Interest that the Doctrine (c) of those, who hold that a Man who dies in the Service of People infected with the Plague, is a Martyr, should be true For he dy'd in that manner, and he had publish'd so many Calumnies, and shew'd so much Knavery, that icarce any thing but a true Martyrdom could expiate such Faults Observe, that some Persons will rather facrifice their Lives, than a false point of Honour, Garasse would not own stem He his Calumnies for any thing in the World, and says, that made no (d) difficulty to thut himself up with the readthought that had the Plague and that he did not fally accuse Beza of having substituted a Negative to the Sacred Words of the Evangelists, he shews evidently in the sequel of his Discourse, that Beza's belief was such,

(FF) A remark against Cardinal Richelieu] Let us first set down his Words Beza being an Ecclesia stick and in possession of some Benefices, for sook the Church of Rome when the Parliament caused him to be summond to appear before them about an (1) extraordinary cascivious and scandalous Poem that he had composed, Crows of but finding himself guilty of such a great excess, he (2) Martyrdom fled and retired to Geneva (e) To learn what he was, was to be we need no other Witness than himself, having published gained by in the Verses he made in imitation of Catullus and that Ovid, that he had given himself over to an enormeans, and monst and monstrous Lewdness for which reason himself. lascivious and scandalous Poem that he had compos d mons and monstrous Lewdness, for which reason, his own brought Fraternity call him, (3) the shame of France, a Si-him to exmonist, a Man guilty of all Vices, and even of that pose himwhich drew Fire from Heaven This is what that self to the Cardinal fays in the 10th Chapter of the 2d Book of his Method, Page 321, 322 of the Edition of Paris 1663 Mr Martil Professor of Divinity at Montauban, and at Puilagren before the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, and fince that revocation at Bern, opposes the Testimony of Stephen Pasquier against those words of the Cardinal, and adds, That it is not a Frenchman that call d Beza a Simonist and a Sodomita It is Costerus, a Flemish Writer, and a Jesust I tyrii no-cannot tell by what Rethorical Figure they pretend to those at put him among the Fraternity of our Ministers (f) As pag 163, for what he lays of Costerus, he refers us to the 21st and 164 of Chapter of the 2d Book of the 1st Part of Morton's the Apo-Casholick Apology where it is correct these the prompens Catholick Apology, where it is certain, that the pompæus Latin Words quoted by the Cardinal Gallia probium, of Theograe are to be found, as taken from the 1st Chap philus of the 3d Book of one of Costerus's Works That Rayand. Eminence, or those that publish'd his Method, cannot be excus'd for this false Quotation: They found it necessary that the Name of a Reformed Writer should appear next to the Galle probram, Or For the it should be prov'd that Costerus's an Epr-Words are to be read in the Writings of the Lu-gram ad-theran Schlusselburgius, it would not justify them, dress to a since it is very evident, that that Lutheran can Woman, ince it is very evident, that that Lutheran can Woman, not pass for one of Beza's Fraternity As for whose what remains, it must be confeis'd that a Flemish Name was Jesus in the first char charg'd Beza with such Candida Abominations Costerus did but transcribe several Frenchmen, and namely, Claudius de Sainteir A (2) In Chronological Fault of the Cardinal might have 1 Name sales a sales a sales and the same as Alexander Sales and Sa

(d) See his Article
(1) It was that it has occasion'd It were to be wish'd, that ra Poeji, ut ibi suos amoi es essi somnient, ubi non sunt Illum absens absentem auditque videtque, & ita inquiebat Illyricim, si cum Christo in Euchai ista Baza gessit, ut Phadria cum Thaide apud Terentium, cum ait, Volo ut cum milite isto prasens absens sies & mecum tota sis, ita Beza sua illa phaniastica & imaginosa inventione vult ut Christus in Eucharistia piasens & absens siet, & ita sit ut non esse dicatur Monsieur Augier may plainly see by these Words, that Fabritius, whom he represents to us as a Juggler, purposely to lessen his Authority, did not "Juggler, purposely to lessen his Authority, did not ipeak jestingly, as he supposes, but with all the ieriouincis that such Matters deserve" The Knacannot be inflicently represented. An indigent Layman, living in a place remote from great Cities, might make use of this excuse, I could not find such a Book, I could not verify such a passage, but if he livid in Paris, and it his Honour ingaged him to justify > been taken notice of He lays in a Maiginal 55 Tegr.

> Note, that Beza retir'd to Geneva in the Year 1554 of Age > Aged (g) Fifty five Years Handle 1594 of Age Aged (g) Fifty five Years. He should have faid, in the Year 1548 being Twenty nine Years (e) The Cardinal in the Margin some Verses of the Epigram de Audeberto & Candida (3) Gallie probrum, Simoniacus, Sodomita, omnibus vitus coopertus (f) Martel, Answer 20 the Method of Cardina of Richelieu, Book 2 ch 10. pag. 186, 187 (g) Doubtless it 1 a fault of Impression instead of 33 for in a fallawing Note Bezzi Birth is placed in the Month of June 1519 (A) He

BIBLIANDER (Theodorus) Professor of Divinity at Zurich in the XVIth Century, was born at * Bischoffsel near Saint Gal in Swisserland He was a very univer- Epitcopirury, was born at * Bischofffel near Saint Gal in Swifferland He was a very univerfal Scholar †, but he excell'd chiefly in the Exposition of the Scripture He was Professor of Divinity at Zurich from the Year 1522, to 1560 and he dy'd of the Pocella Plague in the same City the 24th of September || 1564 If any Body asks, Why his † Vir fee Professors that caus'd some Disturbance, wherein he departed too much from the nin, & Theologon Doctrine of the Protestants about Predestination To prevent the Schism Theological Religious Religious I means to use him as a Veteran and to let him up. Settice per to declare Bibliander emeritus, I mean, to use him as a Veteran, and to let him understand that his Age and his long Services required, that for a Reward they should communist in Helvegrant him a quiet Life, and an honourable Dismission I cannot tell whether he ap- ta parens. prehended the true meaning of that Compliment, and whether it vex'd him, but I Hottinknow that he left off Teaching As he understood the Oriental Languages, he went ger in Biblioth about a new Edition of the Alcoran, whereof he corrected the Text according to Cri-Tigurina, tical Rules, by comparing the Arabick and Latin Copies together He added the Life pag 72 of Mahomet and of his Successors to it, and an Apologetical Preface, against which several People $(A\triangle)$ did very much exclaim He publish'd (B) several other Books, and compos'd a great many that were never printed, and they are kept \downarrow in the I i biary of Zurich He had a hand in the  Translation of the Scripture I have endeavour'd in vain to find out what Age he was of when he dy'd I give no Credit due to the several printed in the several p to Melchior Adam, and I wonder (C) he has not perceiv'd his fault Moreri relates dim, &c (D) very ill what he takes from Thuanus concerning Bibliander

A-111 _ huol p, 403 (b) Theof Histor loc 4 a-pud Testfier addit nus,tem 1 Pag 255

(c) Note, that the Preface of Biblian

itself in

the Year

1638 by care of John Facicius of Dantzick

(d) See the Index 11-brorum prohibitorum, 🌶 755, edit 3667 (e) The-oph Ray-

naudus, erotem

de malıs & bonss

341 p m

(f) Id 1b

342, Pag 201

200

der was Printed by

(A) He stirr'd some Questions that caus'd some Disturbince | Pantaleon has not specify'd those Questions, he fays only they did not agree with the common Opinion, and that Bibliander lost part of his Authority upon that account (a) Pantaleon scribit ante obtum motas ab ipso susse quasitiones quasitam nowas & insolntes unde autsoritati aliquid decissert sed qualis ille susse quasitiones, non addit But Henry ding has not express'd himself in general Terms, he says, (b) that Ribliandon had imbrac'd parasitiones. he fays, (b) that Bibliander had imbrac'd Erasmus's Lears concerning Predestination, and that for that realen those of Zurich discharg'd him from the Functions of his Office, under pretence that his Old-age made him unfit for it, and put Peter Martyr in his place I his latter hast is not to be contested, under pretence that Peter Marty, was called to Zurich in the Year 1556, to succeed Pelican He might have been Professor at Zurich for some Years, and nevertheless succeed Billiander, for all Professor of Divinity have not the same Functions assign d them

See here under the Remark a at the end (A') An Apologetical Preface against which several People did very much exclaim The Title of it is, Apologia ad reverendssimos paires acdominos, episcopos & doctores Sectlefiæ Christianæ, in que rationes redduntur editionis wilminis quod continet Alcoranum & ejus confutationes, winas Mahumetis atque succissorum ipsius That Work was printed by Oporin in the Year 1543 in Folio (c) Bibliander Corrected the Text of the Alcoration ran by comparing the Latin and Arabick Manu-foripts together, and made some Marginal Notes which shew or refute the Absurdities of that Book This did not hinder the Spanish Inquisitors (a) from Condemning that Edition of the Alcoran, they did not only Condemn the Prefaces, but the Alcoran itself. This is as clear as the Day, and nevertheless, some Authors say, That they only condemn'd the impious Prefaces, and the permittions Notes that are in Bibliander's Edition Fallows Proposed (a) majorants should be allowed to the same of the same o these Notes that are in Bibliander's Edition Far these Peophilus Raynaud (e) maintains, that the Alcade at left deserves to be proscribed, and shews, that farellus, who says that the Index forbids and the standard added to it, argued but wently. I set down that Jesuit's Recommendation of the Reader of the Reader of the Reader of the Adversaries involved by the Rooks of the Adversaries involved be destroy'd (f) Trassars has puriture Antonius Sansarilus trass Tractans hoc punctum Antonius Sanctarellus tract de hæren c 14 dub unico, propositione 7 ait, Alcoranum per se non prohiberi, sed ratione scholiorum impiorum, notarumque ac prafationum Lutheri ac Me-lanchtonis, quibus Bassliensis editio Alchorani, per Theodorum Bibliandrum damnatæ memoriæ scriptorum adornata, contaminatur Hoc verê & recte autor ille adornata, contaminator toc viere & recte autor tite

Et addere aquè poterat, ipfius Bibliandri Apologiam, qua Alcorano patrocinatus est, dignissimam suisse qua configeretur Omnium quippe librorum prohibitorum indemuitati studet meribibulus ille, usque adeo, ut nou erubuerit contra Theodosis & Valentiniani Imperatorum becom de combinandio Nashonia librori, gruppina Hacissi legem de comburendis Neftoris libris, grunnire Hacigi-tur concedo Santiarello Sed addit quo everti videantur que sic sunt constituta, addit enim rationem, cur Al-coranus prohibeatur esse, quia in eo agitur de Religione nationis, hoc tempore maxime potentis, & ad corporum voluptatis patentissimum ostium aperientis, qua sint valida corruptela illectamenta Hac, inquam, ratio monfrare videtur, Alcoranum non vitari tantum atione impiarum Bibliandri annotationum, vel ratione Prafationum Lutheri ac Melanchton i, sch per se ac ratione Remark contextus ipsiusmet Alcorani, quo Apostasia hami, quos D

diximus, apponuntur
(B) H. publish d several other Books Here are the Titles of some of them Evangelica historia quim scripsit B Marcus, &c una cum vita Johannis Marci Evangelista collitta ex probatioribus auttoribus, at Basil 1551 He added the Protevangelium Jacobi to it, for which he was blam'd Expositio vaticinii de restitutione Israelis, de instauranda urbe ferusalem & templo, terraque dividenda rursus inter tiibus, quod ulti-mis otto capitibus Ezechielis legitur That Work was inserted in the Commentaries of Pelican on the Scripture Purgatioscriptorum Joannis Oecolampadii & Ulrici Zuinglii, qua & acta eorum obiter desendun-tur contra calumniatores That Picce was printed before Zuinglius's Works De fatis Monarchia Ro-mana somnium Vaticinium Esra Propheta explicatum non conjectatione privata, sed demonstratione Theologica, Hiflorica & Mathematica Ad Julium III Papam & cateros Ecclesia Romane prasides consideration de sudao-rum & Christianorum desestione a Christo, & Ecclesia & side Catholica itemque de Judaorum & Christianorum onversione ad Christum Jesum, & Ecclesiam Dei Sanètam & fidem Catholicam, at Basil 1553 De Summa Irinitate & fidem Catholica, at Basil 1555 De mysseries falutifera passionis, & mor is Jesu Messia expositionis historica, libri tres, in the iame place 1555 (C) And I wonder Melchior Adam has not perce ved his Feele ! He assers that Babli ander was horner.

bis Fault] He affirms, that Bibliander was born in the Year 1514 (g), and that at last he died very old (g) If it in the Year 1564 valde senex Can this be faid of were so, it a Man of 50 Years of Age? He adds, that his mould poring too much on Books, had so weaken d his Love been Sight, that coming one Morning into his Stove, in offer v'd, as his declining Age, and sceing his Cat playing on a forething Table, he took her to be his Maid, and bid her good-morrow Ex nimiis studies atate declive traordinaauBhramar contract. Accidit ergo aliquando cum ut diluculo surrexisset, hipocaustum ingressus, feli in men- had been sa gesticulant, ancillam suam esse ratus, faustum sue- made Prorit diem precatus, quem felis ut potuit, resalutavit sessoros DiA fine circumstance, and most worthy to be transvinity in mitted to future Ages!

(D) Moren relates very ill] I It is not true, that Thuanus places Biblianders Death on the 29th of November He makes use of this Expression, VI observes it November He makes use of this Expression, VI Kalend December, which signifies the 26th of November II It is not true, that he speaks of Leo the Jew He made use of these Words Leo Juda, which must be translated Leo Juda, or Leo of Juda But it is very true, that Bibliander was one of those that put the last Hand to the Bible of Lee Juda, to that Bible that is call d the Zurich

Death on BIBLIS the 26th of Novem-+ Hottin ger in Bibliotheca Tigurina, ry, that he

BYBLIS, Daughter of Miletus, and of the Nymph (A) Cyanea, fell in love

* See the RemarkD t Ovid de arte amandi Id Metam lib 9 fab 11 (a) Quem I co Juda inchoaver1t, & moriens ut opus periequeietur collegis in 6cripierat [hum / 36 p 11 726 (b) S mon. rgedu

Bible, and which was printed in that City in the Year 1543 Lee Juda had very much advanc'd the Latin Translation of the Scripture when he died, and he made his Collegues (a) promise that they would finish that Work (b) Bibliander translated the last eight Chapters of Ezekiel, Daniel, Job, Ecclehastes, the Song of Songs, and the Forty Eight Pialms that remained to be translated Pedem teli-giole idi-et s triniter Cholin made the Translation of the Greek Books, which the Protestants call Apocrypha It is of Cho-lin only, that Thuanus fays, he understood the Greek Longue very well Bibliander Chunrads Pellicani & Peri Cholini Tugiensis Graca lingua peritiffim of ta adu us Morer does not translate this well by theie Words, Bibliander, affifted by Conrad Peli-can, and by Peter Cholin, two learned Men in the Greek Ionane I his is his III I tult I he IV is much more confiderable Along time after, tys he, the Sp n sh D vines caused that Bible of Turich to be print d agiin at Lions, having been reviewed by William Roville (c) Here are Thuanus & Latin Words Hispani Theology diu post recognitam per Galielmum 188 171 (c) 11 t/ Elor Rou il um denno Lugduni excudendam curaverunt Wilpubliss d liam Rovili is the Printer of Iyone, whom those by Mo Leiflier, Divines employ d, but it was not he that revis'd the Frinflition, but the Spanish Divines themthe Trimittion, but the spanish Divines themfelves. Fither Simon makes no mention of that Ldition of Iyons, he fays (1) that the Divines of Salamanca causal that Bible to be reprinted in fair Characters at Salamanca, and made very Small Alterrections in it. Its no wonder that Mi Du Rier of the Four hands are because the Course Salamanca. Rancille (d)Simon ubi lupia pag 323 () Rude the French Academy has ill translited Cicero, Seneca, donatus, and Irvy, fince he has committed to many Faults in translating Thuanus Morers does but transcribe Mr. Du Reis I implation in this Place. As for Imprdem ad whit thums tys, that John Stuckius was put in bhirther splace, this neither igrees with Alting, who find, that Peter Mn yr succeeded Bibliander, nor with Hottingo, who faid, that Johas Simler tempus vicin in trelient J) Inte nor with Hottingo, who laid, that Johns Simler (i) fucceeded him for a time, and that (f) Stuckius laving been sometime the Substitute of James Amboth II-gur fe (i) and professor of Rhetorick and Logick, was ordinary Professor of Rhetorick and Logick, was ordinary Professor of Divinity from the Year 1571 to the Year 167. It is certain, that when Biblianio resigned his Professor Age, was then in It mee He was it Pries the Year soldowing, where the received a Commission to joyn with Peter Mintyr for the Conference of Profit He continued a long true in Iranic, alterwards he went into Laly, and he call not begin to have any Academical Offices in 200 cb, before the Year 1568. Nevertheless it is offined in his Liste (h) that he succeeded Biblianion. This was in the Month of Fevruary, 1571 men I his wis in the Month of February, 1571 Bill ander hid been dead a long time, that's no matter, his Office continued vicint many Years, Metun lib 9 v 452 (L) Schothere are many Lyamples of this Thuanus is not haft Theocriti id Idyll 7 (1) Schohift

Then criti id Idyll (m) N1-cenetus

then de instoi affect c 11 (n) Ovid

ubi lupra

apud Par-

to exact in this Point is he should hive been, for Ill his Reiders will believe that Stuckius was made Probession of Livinity in the Year 1564. He should have find, in what Year Stuckius had that Professor-thanks for a large way. Ilip be fic wed upon him (A) Daughter of Milet is, and of the Nymph Cyanel That Cyanea wis Diughter of (1) the River Meander, but iome Authors by (k) that Miletus mittied Endethea Diughter of Eurytus, King of Course and Public were hour of Caria, and that Caunar and Byblis were boin of that Mairings Others (1) affirm, that the Name of the Mother of those two Children wis Aria of the Mother of those two Children was Aria others (m) call her Irregula. There are also some Varieties about their paternal Grandmothers Name, for some fav (n) that Miletus was the Son of Deson, others (n) try, that Acacallis, the Daughter of Mines, was his Mother. They agree better on this, that Miletus lest the Isle of Crete, and built a City in Asia, that was called by his Name. Mines was the cause of that retreat Miletus. Minos was the cause of that retreat Miletur prevented thereby he Violence of his Ambition with her Twin-Brother Caunus, and indeavour'd to inspire him with the same Passion, but not succeeding in it, she strangled her self * Ovid, who says so in one of † his Poems, says in another, that she ran after Caunus till she was quite tired. He adds, that being fallen down with fainting, she was so obstinate as to lye on the Ground, and cry so abundantly, notwithstanding all the care the Nymphs took to comfort her, that she consum'd her self in Tears, and was converted into a Fountain || He describes (B) the Progresses and the Symptoms of that incessious Passion admirably well, and had he made no other Verses, he would have sufficiently shew'd his great or of his Love Ovid represents Minor very uneasy to find himself old, and to see Miletus in the Flower of his Age That Disquiet too common to those that Reign, made him look upon Miletse as a Man that might dethrone him Tunc (p) erat invalidus, Deionidenque juventa Robore Miletum, Phæboque parente Juperbum Pertimuit, credensque suis insurgere regnu, Haud tamen est patriis arcere penatibus aufiu

Sponte Sugue, Milete, tum Without doubt you will find in the Greek Words, Without doubt you will find in the Greek Words, that I am going to quote an amorous Prince, that made himielf to be feared (q) E net to o mais notife, my cyline neutro, neic Kaelav amosis estate Puer ut adolivit, pulcher strenuisque evasit, Minosque desiderio impulsus eum violare intendit int tum Miletus nostu conscenso lembo, consulente Sarpedone, in Cariam profugit

(B) He describes the Progresses and the Symptoms of that incessuous Passion admirably well Byblis at first did not discorn what it was, and did not feel her I lame, to kiss her Brother often, and fall about his Neck, feem d to her a good Action, she confounded that with the lawful Affection that is due to a Brother She continued in that state of Ignorance even when she perceived how careful she was to make her felf fine, and how desirous to appear handiome when the was to fee Caunus

Paulatim (r) declinat amor, visuraque fratrem Culta venit, nimiumque cupit formosa videri Et, si qua est illic formosor, invidet illi, Sed nondum manifesta sibi est, nullumque sub illo Neither this, nor the Grief the conceiv'd against the fur ones of the Neighbourhood, did open her

Eyes, her Fire burnt without casting a Light, it did not yet inspire her with a Wish for the Cure She went so far, as to be pleas'd with giving Caunus (s) the Title of Sir, rather than that of Brother, and she had rather he should call her by the blame of Bullet sheet by the state of Sister and were Name of Byblis, than by that of Sifter, and yet whilft she was awake, she had not the boldness to hope for any thing It was in her sleep that she began to be familiar with those impure Imaginations, she dreamt often of hei Brother, and thought once the injoy'd him

Sape videt quod amat, visa est quoque jungere fratri Corpus, & erubuit, quamvis sopita jaceret She was asham'd of it, though it was but a Dream, but the next Day she made many Reslections, and wisht to have many such Dreams

Dummodo (v) tale nibil vigilans committere tentem, Sape li et simili redeat sub imagine somnus Tistis abest somno, nec abest imitata voluptas Proh Venus, & tenera volucer cum matre Cupido Goudia quanta tuli! quam me manifesta libido Contigit! ut jacui totis resoluta medullis! Ut meminife juvat ' quamvis brevis illa voluptas, Norque fuit praceps, & captis invida noftris

A while after, she was vex'd that the quality of Sister forbad her to hope for that of a Spouse she represented to her sist the Gods who had married their own Sisters, and could not believe that, Mortals could enjoy such a Prerogative

Sunt (w) superis sua jura quid ad celestia ritus Exigere humanos, diversaque sædera tento?

She will either be free from her Passion, or die, she is sensible, that if her Brother had lov d her from whence she concludes, that she must venture to open her mind to him by a Letter, if modesty will not suffer her to use Words She takes her Pen, and after a thousand Agitations of Mind, she declares her Passion She represents several pass things to her Brother, whereby he might have guest, that she was in love with him, she puts him (p) Ovid

(g) Anton Li-

(r) Ovid 1b v 462

(s) Jam Dom num apjam nomina fanguinis odit, Byblida jam mavult quam fe vocet ille fororem Id v 467 (t) Ibid 7 470 (v) Ibid v 479

(m) Ibed V 301

(1) Ibid w 536

(a) Ama* rillis in the Pastor fido, without knowing that the Person disguis a in Maid's Cloaths mas her Lover, found no vertheless a great difference between her Killes and those of other Maids Quando la leggiadriffima Amarıllı Giudicando 1 miei bacı quelli d'ogn altra faporiti, the first Scene of the second Att of the Pastor fido, p 82 of the Venice Ed. tion, 1605 ın 40

Piu di

(b) Ovid ubi fupra, v 556

(c) Ovid ubi fupra, V 557

(d) Ibi& v 611

(e) Lasci-

vior ali-

quanto eff Ovidius, inquit Fabius lib 10 Inftitutionum 2 nimius imator ingenii lui, o Ovidia Medea ridetur nihi ofendere, Juantum /irille præstare potuerit, fuo temperare,

Skill in the Description of Love Antoninus Liberalis (C) relates the Issue of that matter somewhat differently Some say, that Byblis was not in love with Caunus, but on the contrary, that Caunus (D) lov'd her, and could not persuade her to yield to him. They deprive her a little after, of the honour of that noble resistance, they suppose, s that she repented of her hardheartedness, which ingag'd him to leave his Country, and that she ran up and down the World, to seek that dear Brother, and that not being able to find him, she hang'd her self Others relate this Adventure in such a manner, as neither dishonours (E) Byblis nor Caunus

BYBLOS, a Sea-Town of Phanicia, between Tripoli, and Berytus, was situated on a Hill, and the ancientest. Town in the World, if we may believe some Authors s, who say, that it was built by Saturn, Son of Heaven and Earth Malcander Bucks, and his Wife Aftarte, who reign'd there, gave Isis a good Reception, when she went sanchothither, to feek the Body of Ofirs, which the Waves of the Sea had cast on that matho in mind of certain Sighs which she had fetch'd. and of the custom she had taken to embrace him, and of I know not what that might have made him sensible, that her Kisses were not those of a

Esse (1) quidem lass poterat tibs pettoris index Et color, & macies, & vultus, & humida sape Lumina, nec causa suspiria mota patents,

Et crebri amplexus, & que, si forte notasii, Oscula sentiri non esse sororia (a) possent She protests, that she has done all that she could, to extinguish that Flame, and that she has recourse to him, after having tried all other Remedies in vain. She exhorts him to leave the Examination of what is just and unjust to old Folks, and to make use of the Privileges of Youth, in a thing of which the greatest Gods have given an Example, & fequimur magnorum exempla deorum (b), and wherein he needs not fear the Opposition of a rather, nor what will be said of it, since their amorous Commerce may be hid under the Familiarity that Decency authorises between a Brother and a Sister Lastly, she begs of him to take pity on her, and that he would not be the cause of her

Nec (c) nos aut durus pater, aut reverentia fame, Aut timor impediet tantum absit causa timendi Dulcia fraterno sub nomine furta tegemus Est mihi libertas tecum secreta loquendi Et damus amplexus, & jungimus ofcula coram Quantum est quod deste miserere fatentis amorem, Et non fassura, nis cogeret ultimus ardor Neve merere meo subscribi causa sepulchro

It was not long before the Bearer of that Letter brought her an account of Caunus's Indignation, which cast her down, and made her faint away, which cait her down, and made her faint away, but as foon as she came to her self again, she made such Complaints, as shewed, that she would not be discouraged. She blam'd her self for having made use of a Letter, and she fancied, that her Words might have been more effectual, and that perhaps the Messenger having mustaken his time, had hindred the good Success of her I error. had hindred the good Success of her Letter

Forsitan (d) & missi sit quadam culpa ministri Non adut apte, nec legit idonea, credo, Tempera, nec petist horamque, animumque vacantem

Hec nocuere mibi She bethought her felf of every thing that might Paffions are ingenious to flatter themselves, and that they might be taken for Animals, and even for those fort of Animals that are most industrious to seek their Food She resolved to declare her self by word of Mouth, she spoke over and over again, without ever heing discovered at the over again, without ever being discourag'd at the uselesness of her Intreaties Caunus tir'd with refusing, before she was tir'd with being refus d, forfook the Country

If Ovid had not deserved in this place, as much or more (e) than in a shouland others, the censure of the Grammarians, who found that he dwelt too long on Particulars, he would have made a perfect Description Note, that I mention only part of the Touches that he made use of

(c) Antoninus Liberalis relates the Issue of that matter somewhat differently] He iays, that Byblis being courted for a Wife, by considerable Matches, despised them all, and that not being able to resist the violent Passion she had conceived for her Brother, she resolved to cast her self headlong from quam indulgere maluisser Et hic sane fatendum est lascivire ipsies ingenium, nactum scil. materiam sequacem & genio suo affinem. Farnab. in Ovidium, Met. lib 9 v 591 p m 225.

the top of a Hill She was ready to execute her defign, when the Nymphs, touch'd with compassion, hinder'd her They did more than that, for they cast her into a deep sleep, and whilst she flept, they chang'd her mortal condition into an immortal one, and call'd her the Nymph Hama-diyad Byblis, and admitted her into their Commu-nity The Water that ran down the Hill from whence the would have cast her self, was call'd Byblis s Tears (f) Others pretend, that the Fountain, that was call'd Byblis was form'd where that Maid had wept, and hang'd her self (g)

(D) But on the contrary, that Caunus low'd her]
One of Conon's Narratives, whereof Photius left us
fome Extracts, imports that Caunus having made use of several means in vain, to obtain the Injoyment of his Sister Byblu, lett his Country, and was not known what became of him griev'd Byblu fo much, that she forsook her Country likewise, and led a vagabond life, and at last she found her self so afflicted (b) by considering the found her self so afflicted (b) by considering the bad success of Caunus's love, that she made a Halter of her Girdle, and hang'd her self Caunus wandring up and down in the World came into Lycia, where the Naiad Pronoe told him, that Cupid had reveng'd him, since Byblis had hang'd her self, Ta to county better the Bolish depoin, the expendence to seem of the self that is, according to Andrew Schot's Translation, qua Byblid accidifine narrat, utque amore sit coasta more She added, that if he would marry her, he should reign over that Country The Proposal was accepted (1) Parthenius (k) relates, 1st That Nicanetus had reported that Caunus loving his Sister against his will, left the Country, and undertook long Travels, and that Country, and undertook long Travels, and that Byblis was much afflicted at her Brother's abience Byblis was much afflicted at her Brother's abience 2 That most Authors say, that it was she that lov'd Caunus, and beg'd of him not to be cruel to her, and that he abhoi d that filthy Proposal, and retir'd to the Leleges, where he built a City that was call d Caunus, and that Byblis seeing that her Passion continued, and that she had forced her Brother to leave his Country, was overwhelm'd with so much grief, that she hang'd her self on a True The Scholiast upon Theoretius, follow'd the less common tradition (1) is (BULLES) says he. new (m) follow'd the other Tradition, (viz) That Byblis being in love with her Brother, strangl'd her felf, because he fled from her Hyginus (n) only says, that the Passion she had conceived for her Brother, made her kill her self Eusterius (e) says the same thing, and here are two Verses of Ovid agreeable to the same Tradition

Byblida (p) quid referam vetito qua fratris amore Arfit, & est laqueo fortiter ulta nefas?

(E) In such a manner as neither dishonours Byblis nor Caunus] Consider the above-mention'd Nairative of Nicametus. You will only find there, that Caunus to his great grief, was in love with his Sister, and absented himself from her, and that Byblis being very much afflicted at his absence, defir'd his return, and shed many tears on that occasion. All these things are compatible with the severest virtue, for it may be suppos'd, that Byblis wish'd only, that her Brother might conquer his Passion, that kept him out of his Country To feel a criminal Passion, and to oppose it so far, as to retire from the beloved Object against ones will, is no crime It is a thing as involuntary as pain, it is not to be answer'd for, unless it be consented to, and take notice, that Nicanetus praises Caunus (q) for having always lov'd justice Kkkk

& See what Shall be quoted of Conon, in mark D 2 Stephan By-Zant in

pud Eu-febium præpar Evang lib i 10 P 37 ton Liberal Metam can

(g) Photius,& Parthenius ubi infra

(h) Педс

1 /44 DM C 64 9784-OF SUBSTRE Ob frustritos amores animo fra&a Phot ubi ınfıa (1) Photioth c 186 p 423 ex Cononis narrat 2 then de amatorus affect10-(1) Schol tı ad Idvll a (m)Steph In Kaug ex cdir Berkelii (n) Hygin cap 243 p m 29 (0) Euftath in Dionyf Perieget v 533 (p) Ovid amandı libipm 164 (q) Kairer อเหล่อที่ส GEMERE Caunum peperit gaudentem legibus aquis Paithen

ubi supra

* Plu-tarch de Ifide & Ofiride, P 357 † Lucian de Dea Syria,p m 879 tom Hieron de locis Hebrai-+ Sec the first Book of Kings,c 5 B See the 5th Book of Polybius y Strabo, lıb 16 Plut ubi fupra 6 See Fathe Noris de Epochis Syromacedonum, dilu' + c p $u' \neq m$ 466 80 ieg † Phot inp 72 p .0, 121 Servius ın/Eneid + Histoire des Ouvragesdes Savans, February 169c pag *Îbid (1) Stephan Byzant iii βυίλ(3-, (/) Id ib

(c) Arridit Alex lib > (d) Strnbo lib 16

(a)Pinedo in Steph Byzant pag 186 (f) Nous ubi infia pag 46y (g) It should be Cinyra

Shore * The Grammarians have grounded on that Journey one of their (A) Etymological Observations Some Inhabitants of Byblos, reported, that Ofress was buried in their City, and that it was in honour of him, that they practifed the Ceremonies that were thought to be practifed in honour of Adonis † The City of Gebal mention'd in the 9th Verse of the 27th Chapter of Ezekiel, was that of Byblos, if we may believe st Jerom ||, which may be confirmed by the Translation of the LXX It is also thought that the Byblians were imployed by Hiram, King of Tyre 4, to prepare the Materials for the Temple of Solomon They cast, of the Tyrians, and let up a particular kingdom They were afterware that City having been subdued by Alexan, remained subject the Ptolemy's, Kings of Egypt, till Antiochus the Great, had taken Phanicia from of which he made i Province of the Kingdom of Syria, in the Third Year of Aoth Olympiad, and the 536th of Rome & The Civil Wars having overthrown that Kingdom Tigranes king of Armenia, made himself Master of the Upper Sana, and then dom, Tigranes king of Armenia, made himself Master of the Upper Socia, and then there at ofe a Tyrant, who established his Authority in Byblos He with cheaded, by Pompey's Order Strabo in saying this, observes, that Byblos, the Royal Society of (C) Cinyras, was confectated to Adoms The Goddess Venus was (D) particularly honour debree 160 About The Public was 160 About The Manager The Conditions of the New York of the Manager The Conditions of the Public was 160 About The Manager The Conditions of the New York of the Manager The Conditions of the New York of the Manager The Conditions of the New York of the Manager The Conditions of the New York of the Manager The Conditions of the New York of the Manager The Conditions of the New York of the Manager The Conditions of the New York of the Is had her Temple there also Byblos was assign'd to the Maritime Phonicia, in the Division that was made of the Provinces, under the Christian Emperours Its Bishops appear'd in the first Council of Constantinople, and in that of Chalcedon The Genoese deliver'd it from the Dominion of the Sarracens, in the Year 1106 but it fell again under the Yoke of the Infidels, after the Victory that Saladin obtain'd over the Christians, in the Year 1187 I here was a very strong City in Egypt, that was cill'd BY BI OS This we learn from the Extracts that Photius † made out of Crepus See 110 Stephanus Byzantinus

BIGOIS, a Nymph who had writ a Book in Iuscam, concerning. Art of inspecting I ightnings—That Book was kept at Rome, in the Temple of Apollo, with terpresing I ightnings fome others of that nature |

BIGO I (Emeric) one of the most learned, and most honest Men of the XVIIth Century, was of Roan, and of a most illustrious Family of the (A) Long-Robe He was born in the Year 1626. The love of Learning diverted him from publick Imploy-

(A) One of their Etymological Observations] Let us remuk in the first place, that the Word $6620. Mother was the Daughter of Adonis's Father, figure, the Plant that supply'd the matter where-of Paper was made, and let us relate afterwards, what the Ltymology-Makers say of it They affirm, that Byblos was call'd so, (a) because it was the place where the place where the land down here. the place where Is lamenting Osi, laid down her Diadem, which was made of Paper Others will have it, that that Name proceeds from this, that Piper kept in that City as long as one would, without being spoil'd in the least (b) Consult Stephanus Byzantinus, and the Author of the great

Etymologicon

(b) Tributaries to the Kings of Persia] Arrian relates, that Enulus, King of the Byblians, served with his Ships in Darius's I leet, but understanding that Byblos had capitulated with Alexander, he for look the Persian Party, and went with his Ships to the Macedonian I leet (c)

(C) That Byblos, the Royal Scat of Cinyias, was confecrated to Adonis] I shall be down that Paifuge of Strabo, to shew the carelesses of the ancient Authors in their Writings (d) Η μων εν Βυβλώ. Το το Κικορα βασιλείον 100ξε 55 το α δονιδώ. Το το Κικορα βασιλείον 100ξε 55 το α δονιδώ. Το το καινορα το ποριμένον πλευθέρος το ποριμένον πλευθέρος το ποριμένον Τhat 1s to 1sy, Byblos the Residence of King Cinyras, is consecrated to Adonis Pompey deliver d it from Tyranny, by causing his head to be cut off Here is the most natural Senie of those Words Cinyras had establish d the Seat of his 1 yranny at Byblos, but Pompey caus'd his Head to be cut off, and by that means restor'd that City to its liberty Now there is no likelyhood that Strabo had that thought, and if it was his meaning, he would be guilty of in extraordinary carelesness, since he would all of its lidely mention. a Tyrant call'd Converse, and leave us there, without faying any thing of him leave us those oblig'd to be more prolix, if it be supported that he forms to the first obligion of the second of the seco He wis not oblig'd to be more prolix, if it be supposed that he speaks of the ancient Cinyras, the lather of Adonis, for that Name was sufficiently known I believe he speaks of him, and if so, what shall we do with his messon? What can we reter it to? Observe, that his Latin Translator has ill rendered the nexts Adons &, thus, in qua funt Adonis templa Pinedo (e) has taken notice of that I ault Here is a small Carelesses of Father Noise (f) Adons, says he, filius sueres (g) Cynera apud Byblum regis, ut ex Plutaicho & Ovidio pranotavi Now it is ceitain, that he had not alledg'd Plutarch, but Strabo concerning this, and that Ovid, whom he Strabo concerning this, and that Ould, whom he had alledg'd, does not say, that the Tather of Adomis was King of B 1/25 nor the Husband of the Mother was the Daughter of Adons's Father, was the general Tradition Nevertheless that thor expresses himself in this manner (h) Cyncras thor expresses similar in this manner (b) Cyncras suit e wetustu Bybli regious, qui ex Zmyrna conjuge Adonim puerum formossiffimum suscepti (D) Venus was particularly honour'd there] She shad a Temple there, wherein the Ceremonies of the Worship of Adonis were celebrated Lucian speaks of it as an Eye-witnes (i) Eider A 19 CP Boba μιγα 1907 A 2008 A Veneris templum, it with quosdam sacros in Adonidem peragunt. He in the mention also (k) of another Temple of Venus, consecrated by Cinyras, on Mount Libamus, a Day's Journey from Byblos. He went to see it Father Noris (l) thinks, that ithaps it is the same Temple that (m) Concaus'd to be demolish'd, and which was cocrated to Venus Aphacitis, near Mount Libamus, and the River Adonis. I think this ought not to be question'd, since Eusebius observes, that the Temple of that Venus stood upon Mount Libanus. The Surname of Aphacitis was taken from the place where that Temple was built, as Zosimus obscrees (n), and it is likely, that Macrobius speaks of that Venus, in the 21st Chapter of the First Book of the Saturnalia, and not of Venus Architis, as 'tis in the Editions (o) What he says, concerns the Worship of Venus and Adon's among the Asyrian; and he tells us, that the Statue of that Venus on Mount Libanus Eusebius (p) observes, abundance of infamous things between Meniad Men, and Men and Women, were committed in the Temple that Constantine caus'd to be destroy'd, but, Sozomen strains, that the Heathens affirmed, that on a cert is the Library of the Invocations, caused the Library of the Invocations, caused the fell into the neighbouring River They pretented, that, that Fire was Venus her self, whom they call'd Urania (q)

(A) Of a most illustrious Family of the Long-Robe]

Urania (9)

(A) Of a most illustrious Family of the Long-Robe]
According to the fine Elogy that Mr de Beauval confectated to him in his History (r) of the Works of the Learned, he was the Son of the Dean of the Cours of Aids, and of a Daughter of Mr Groulars, first President in the Parliament of Normandy, and he had among his Ancestors, two Presidents of Sourceign Courts, one Advacate General, and sin Councellors in the Courts, one Advocate General, and fix Councellors in the Parliament Let us unfold this a little, according to the Particulars that Mr le Laboureur Supplies us

Imployments; he only minded Books and Learning He increas'd wonderfully the I 1- Paris brary (B) that his Father had left him Once a Week there was an Assembly at his Gazett of House for Learned Conferences He corresponded by Letters with a great many December 1689 Learned Persons His Counsels and his Parts were useful to many Authors, and he ber 1689 endeavour'd to promote the good of the Common-wealth of Learning He publish d but tha Croix (C) one Book, but it is likely he would have publish'd more, if he had hv'd long du Maine enough to finish them Mr Menage (D) within the Kingdom, and Nicolas Heinsins in a pag 141 Foreign Country, were his two most intimate Friends IIc had contracted none of the defects that Learning draws after it He was Modest, and an Enemy to Contests. It 25th of may be said in general, that he was one of the best (E) Men in the World He dy'd March at Room the 18th of December * 1689 being about 64 Years of Age He has demonstrated by his Will (F) that he dy'd with the same Affection for the good of Learning, Edition of that he had in his Life-time

BIGOT (William) Born at Laval, † in the Country of Maine, a Physician and dam you a Philosopher, was a Learned Man in the Reign of France I It was believ'd, that will find the Learned Peter Castellan conceiv'd some Jealousy against him, and that for fear his of the fullow-ing mords of the following should be eclips'd, he hinder'd him from having any access to the King there in the Others say, it was a (A) Calumny, which Melanchthon believ'd too iashly It is Author's with Lawrence BIGOT Lord of Tibermenil, was Advocate General in the Parliament, when the City was taken from the Protestants in the Year 1562 He was a zealous Catholick, and contributed with all his might to the Hanging of many People at Roan The Hagianas Historians have complained of his Rigour He dy'd the 13th of July 1570 He was the Son of Austry BIGO T Lieutenant Gencral of the Bayliff of Rean, and the Father of Hemery rai or the Baylist of Room, and the Father of Hemery BIGOT Lord of Tebermonil, who was provided with the reversion of his Father's Place, with a dispensation of Age, by a Patent of the 1st of Novumber 1551 registred in Parliament the 2st of August 1552 and he exercised it from the Year 1578, to the Year 1578 when he was raised to the Dignitude of President in the same Parliament He had opposed in the same Year the motion that was made pos'd in the fame Year the motion that was made to the States of Rloss to exclude the King of Na-varre from the Succession of the Crown of France, as Thuanus observes in the 63d Book of his History Several of his Letters have been Printed with those of Stephen Pasquier (1) He left no Children That Family was continu'd by John and Stephen BIGOT, Brothers of the Advocate General I omit the Posterity of John Bigot, as for Scephen, he had I welve Sons and Six Daughters Laurence BI-GOT Sieur de la Turgere, one of his Sons, was the Father of Stephen BIGOT, Councellor in the Court of Aids at Rean, who transmitted his Office to his Son William BIGOT, Father of William BIGOT Councellor in the Parliament of Rean John BIGOT, another Son of Stephen, was Lieutenant of the Bayliff of Room, and had no other Heir but his Son John BIGOT, Stew de Sommenil. Councellor in the Court of Aids at Roan, who collected in his large Library, the Originals of the Hiftoconsected in his large Library, the Originals of the History of the Province of Normandy, and who had Nincteen Children by his Wife Barbara Groulatt, Daughter of Claudius first President in the Parliament of Roun, among others, John Sieur de Sommeill Connectior in the Parliament of Normandy, Nicolas Sieur de Cleuville, who succeeded his Father in his Office, and Hemerl Bigot (2), who makes the Subject of this Arricle Article

(B) The Library that his Father had left him] I have already (a) iaid fomething concerning that Library of Mr Bigot the Father, in quoting Mr Library of Mr Bigot the rather, in quoting Mr Is habourear, but here is an Author that speaks more amply of it (b) " folm Bigot Esq, Sieur de (c) "Sommeus!, and Clewelle, Dean of the Councellors "of the Court of Aids of Normandy, understands "Books very well, of which he has made a magmiscent Library consisting of above 6000 Vo"lustee, among which there are above 500 very "good and rare Manuscripts, which he communicates freely to those that want them for the "Publish for which he will ever be praise. Publick, for which he will ever be prufeworthy

(C) He published but one Book] It is the Life of St Chrysoftom, compos'd by Palladius Pronto Ducaus and Sir Henry Savilcould never find the Greek Text of that Work, there was only a Latin Translation of it compos'd by antrofus Complaints Mi Biggs found the Greek at Pierres in the Great Duke's Library, and publish'd it at Paris in the Year 1680 with the Latin Translation lie had made of it, and from a calculation of the Paris of the Samuel Care fome other Treatifes. The Journal des Savans gave a (d) particular account of it, but without fiying any thing concerning a Letter of St Chrysoftom to the Monk Casarius Consult the Journalists of Holland, who have often mention'd it (e) Here are the Words of one of 'em, who spoke of it last of all Mr Bigot's design was to add the Epistle to Ca-latius, which he had found in a Library of Florence, to the Life of St Chrylostom, but it appear d so formal against Transubstantiat on, that the Examiners oblig d

him to suppressit (f)
(D) Mr Menage within the Kingdom] Of all the places of the Menagians where Mr Bigot is mentioned, I shall only set down that of the 75th Page It I was Forty Years of Age, I should weep bitterly for Mr Bigor's Death, but I am to overwhelm'd with my own Evils, that I can no longer be fensible of the Evils of others am as unhappy as Priamus, who turviv'd all those that did belong to him Mr Bigot lodg d at my House 35 Years ago, every time he came from Roan to Paris, and we never had any difference Roan to Paru, and we never had any difference He was fingular in one thing as he spoke little, he never told me anything that he design d to do, not withstanding the familiarity that was between us, insomuch, that when he went to Rome, he told me nothing of it but a 1Dry of two before he set out. When he took his leave of me, he ask'd me only, if I had any service to command him. I lose much by his Death He had witt to me not long before, that for my sake he was going to read all the old French Poets, and that he would impart to me all that he and that he would impart to me all that he fhould find proper for my Origines de la langue Prançoise The Library which he left is worth at least Forty thousand Livres He had a great at leaft Forty thousand Livres He had a great Literature, and the Learned of Holland expected his Letters as fo many Decisions of the Diffi-"culties they proposed to him It was a lovely Friendship, that lasted to long between those two great Men without any interruption, He (g) who said, that those kind of Friendships are happy, might with as much tenson have fuld, that they are rare Mr Menage dedicated his Anti-Bailles to Mr B got

(E) One of the buft Men in the Horld] was never a more fincer or faithful Friend, fays Mr de Beauval, and he own d himfelf, that it was a praise that affected him most lie was a Man of an Integrity not common in this unhappy Age, and such an Enemy to Ossintation, that his Modesty went as far as his Simplicity in his Manners His peaceful and calm lemper made him uncapable of the noise and guarrels that Jealousy creates among Learned Men

(F) He demonstrated by his Will] "He has en"tail d his Libiary upon his I amily to evoid the dividing of it, and intrusted Mi B got of Monville Councellor in the Parliament of Para, with the care of it, having left a considerable Legacy

"to increase it every Yen (1)

(A) That it was a (alumny which Melanchthon believ'd too rashly] We have two things to do, we must shew what Melanchthon publish d, and what first around him on that Subject These are was faid against him on that Subject These are Melanchenon's Words (k) Duo sunt in Gallia viri ex-

cellenter docti, Castellanus, & Bigotius Et quia Castel iem edita lani disputationes crebro à Rege audiuntur, hor atur anno quispiam ex proceribus at Bigotius etiam audiatur In-Kkkk2 terrogat

Amstercertain, praise, Mi Bigot tamous noble Library, and who has been a long time the honour of Learning in Roan (e) Nouvelles de la R pub June 1685 art 3 pag 605 func 1685 art 7 p 685 Gallibi Hift des Ouviages des Sivans, s chruary 1690 pag 267 (g) l el1ccs ter & Quos 11rupt : tcnet copula nec malıs Dıvulius querimonus Suprema citius folver 1mor die Horat Od Till would not make a Soufe Lan the epithet Tclices (b) Hift des Ouvrig des Sav ubi Jupra (1) Ibid
(k) Me- _ linchth hone con. tri Clerum Colonien-

(1) The both Epigram of the ad Book of Pasquier is addrest, ad Edemericum Bigotium Tibermenium an Senatu Rotomagenfi pra-fidem

(2) Taken from Mr le Labbureur's Additions to the Memoirs of Casteinau ſèq

(a) In the foregoing Remark

(b) Fasher Tacob = bis Treatife of Limres, p 681 Printed in the Tear 1644

(c) He alght to have faid Sommenil. Proper Names are ftrangely disfigur d in Father Jacob'. Books

(1) Pe trus Gal-

130, 131

certain, that the (B) means, which it is faid, Castellan made use of to make William Bigot odious to their Common Master, is very unlikely There is a Story about it * Look the in the (C) Menagiana that is not exact Bigot must needs have been a great Philosoend of the pher, fince he was very much praised by * Julius Casar Scaliger. He published fome (D) Treatises in Verse and in Prote It is a mistake to say, (E) that Calvin upbraided him with keeping the Truth in unrighteousness terrogat Rex in quo doctrina genere versetur. Cumque alii honorisico testimonio eum ornarent, tandem Castellanus, qui augeri ejus opinionem nolebat, interpellans, Quid, inquit, tantopere pradicatis? Est Aristotelicus Rex interrogat qualis sit ea descriptio Dicam, inquit Castellanus. Aristotelic austropen das adsirmat meliorem statum esse quam regnum. Hac voce apud Regem Sciebat se omnem austoritatem & Aristoteli & ejus studiosi detravisse Cumque Revinterrogaret an hoc scripserit Ariflotcles, & ceters id adfirmarent, audivissetque desendere Bieotsum Aristotelicas sententias, delirare Aristotelem inquit, & negavit fe defensorem harum ineptiarum auditurum effe Facile vicit Castellanus tali judice The Author of Castellan Life, refutes this with some torce What he siys, deserves to be set down at length (1) A Bigotio Gorgiam quendam in vicus of quadrivits profitent ita privatim of publice lacessitus landius in convitus que appetitus fuerat, & scripto apud exteros vita Peti 1 traductus, ut merito cum adio prosequi posse videretur Castelluni Nam & Philippum Melancthonem calumniis ita illi inn 74 pre sesum reddiderat, ut is nimium credulus & facilis ea d. 1pfo scriberet que nos, propter publicam causam, non fin comitu legere poteramus Nompe Castellanum ex eo calumniatorum esse genere qui, invidia concitati, men-daciis constilis bonas causas apud Reges oppugnarent & deteriorie redderent Argumento esse Bigotium, quem ille Philosophia Aristotelica prastantem, ne sibi & sua gratia obissit, eum odiosum Regi reddere medicaritur Ansstelem, quod laudato paucorum & populi principa-tu unius imper um improbassit, apud Rigem graviter rriminatus isset Quod totum cum esset vanissimum & a Castellano Aristoteleni amante & admirante alienissimum, nec minus improbe a Bigotio confictum quam a Melanethone leviter literismandatum, Bigotium tamen postea in gratiam receptum Regi commendavit, atque illi quæ a Regi pitchat apud Nemausenses impetravit It ip-pears from these Words, ist That Bigot in imitation of the incient Sophisters, and namely, of Gorg ar, declaim d and rend Lectures every where $_{ad/2}$, I have he had spoken all of Castellanus both in private and in publick 3dly, I have he made his price with Castellanus, and that by the recom-

terrogat Rex in quo doctrina genere versetur Cumque

mendation of that reconciled Enemy, he obtained from francs I what he wish d for at Nimes

